

=

AUGUSTE CHIRAC

ÊES

| KINGS OF THE REPUBLIC

HISTORY OF JEWISH COUNTRIES

HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS & MONOGRAPHS

I call, like the people, by that name mistaking a Jew for any cash trafficker, any unproductive parasite living in the substance and the work of others... He does not de-it is not the writer's fault to alter the value of an expression consecrated by usage...

The Jew reigns and governs in France.

A. TOUSSENEL.

History of financial feudalism

VOLUME ONE

PARIS

PARNOULD LIBRARY PUBLISHER
20, BOULEVARD MONTMARTRE,

Re de me

1883

All rights reserved.

to J There) u £ 1 F THE FF x "| D " #

PAS LS Re è EPOMPREL PAT r Es h mr : ü 3 Ah te AFTER this j J +

1 ALES 1 F = 4, . » "| pui
tait F a ah a à Ve = "4 pus À " Fi Er
Sal fine Te, PE RP TT RER Ve, ; s Er]
CPL a
=
"
$
js
k has
F1
Li
Æ is ea pre – = 5

THE

KINGS OF THE REPUBLIC

HISTORY OF THE JUVERTIES.

NECESSARY EXPLANATION

A German's prediction. – The kings of the Republic. – Press law. – Probity. – Religions. – The persecutors.

In 1845, a German wrote the following sentence:
sells:

It has been fifteen years since the reign of Louis-Philippe
"serves as a revolutionary lightning rod for these mar-
"those rich people who govern in France..."
"Well then! Let all these fools hear-"
"geois gorged with gold that they would only earn
"half a percent to exchange their king constitu"tional against a president of the Republic,
"The exchange would take place tomorrow."

This sentence is quoted by Toussenel, in his immortal history of financial feudalism, plus commonly known by its other title: the Jews

4 THE KINGS OF THE REPUBLIC.

kings of the time, and, after transcribing it, he he added:

"That German knew France well,"

How right he was!

Wasn't it financial feudalism that devoured
the constitutional monarchy, and, believing + ga-Ener, did he replace it with the republic?

Being disappointed, isn't she the one who throws away the empire?
on the republic and crush it?

The crushing blow succeeds: she reigns! And it lasts.
eighteen years old!

She rejoices so well that she is considering expanding the territory.
a laughter that she devours with gusto.

[She loves French wines, she dreams of the wines of the Rhine!

But, equally thirsty, Prussia is there which æuette. During this imperial feast, she succeeded to Prussianize Germany.

Suddenly she enters the scene, greedy and wild, and it so happens that it is the German of 1870 who ju-brilliantly refutes the opinion of the German of 1845!

The republic is proclaimed again: what-door! We know very well that it is ineffective: it is firmly bound by German financial feudalism Mandarin and Jewish!

Yes! It is thanks to Prussia that the "bourgeoisie"
"Rich in gold" understood that they would win

Su " -æ. LA LE 3
"PES 2 pue nl = BE ur: r = "M7 c' all nf PRE asp) © LrT br Y dE AA LT Air ET al 4 API: open RES PAT EE, _

= — "To

—

3

Far P0 PME ee” SE PP ET ET) 5 tie VE RCTRSS ER

—

has
+
sr
1 I bone
%
HAS
L
2
Fr
.
THE
D born
L
5
v

mt Pen

EE Bu ee – of the

EXPLANATION NECESSARY. 5

“half a percent” and more, to exchange a monarchy versus a presidency

To be more certain of their triumph, they have popular discontent was nurtured and cultivated, so well that today this fate befalls those who reign and who tra-
They are at the mercy of the Republic, and France, instead of groaning under a single sovereign, sees himself delivered into the hands of a voracious appetite for a host of financiers, almost all foreigners, almost all Jews, and who

The Kings of the Republic.

All of Toussenel's prophecies have come true.

reads,

I too am terrified by the enormous development of the all-powerful gold, since the time when my country had to pay five billion for the glory of his defeats, – thus inclining his patriotism of- before the strength of the traffickers, throwing, on his fields of bloodied battles, a thick sheet of gold worth five billion, – myself, I say, in 1876. I raised a red flag and recounted, in the High banking and revolutions, how the trali- quantities of gold have caused and extinguished all the revolutions, building, each time, new for- tunes on the ruins of all.

|,

6 THE KINGS OF THE REPUBLIC.

In my turn, sadly prophetic, I have seen, since seven years, repeating all the maneuvers that I had revealed them; I saw, more than ever, Fa's hand muddy of the tralicants corrupt all the vivid memories of my country.

But, to enlighten public opinion, this was not enough than writing a story,

No matter how boldly one quotes from Proper names, the reader hesitates to conclude that the appalling things that are told to him are the direct work of the designated men.

And then, these designated men are surrounded of the prestige of gold; they are sacred from the outset, and of From a distance, they are imposing.

To understand them, you have to see them up close: In order for public opinion to judge, it must be presented with... all these actors' eyes after breaking their mask.

impossible; Ja İoi contained a terrible weapon against the flourishing of any unpleasant truth to the kings of gold.

I had to limit myself to presenting my case to the Senate, in a petition, among other serious revelations, this the impotence of truth, and the Senate gave me unanimously agreed in March 1877,

From 20 L, Te Dole
THE |

#

"4
of

THE

In

[2

d

|

* 7
This

=]

(L

EE -

#

Rec |

#

Read

4%

2

Fr

LR

I"

There

Fe HU,

ne: |

rt tal

:
4 L
+
me.

ER

No. 4. |

r

ER

AND:

: In

EL

EU

L

THE - tn
1
The |

#0
e,
:
Es | they Ya
LP

:
:

– (D

EXPLANATION NECESSARY. {{

Unfortunately, between Senate approval and the law that could allow the truth to emerge to lean freely, five years had to pass
Again,

It was only in 1882 that the new press law, recognizing that the truths of general interest of-worth circulating, proud and haughty, without a
The bandit can stifle them, having the Code in hand as a gag, allowed the writer to go to get to the heart of the matter and to expose the wounds.

I welcome this freedom and I make use of it immediately.

[a courageous newspaper had undertaken to deto show, through personal stories, all that which hides behind heinous abuses beneath gilded prestige surrounding each of the members of the feudal system
financial,

But, to these isolated sketches drawn during the day the day, it was necessary to add the force of the volume; it was necessary Even more: it was necessary, within the volume itself, to join them together and squeeze tightly, as in a bundle, individual studies, to do highlight the general teaching which com-wear.

This is the aim of this introduction.
historical.

It's good to know where they come from and where they go.
the new powers that are turning everything upside down

8 THE KINGS OF THE REPUBLIC.

our political history, astonishing and corresponding, to the times, our current generation.

It is good that we see, by reading the monographs, as when reading the summary, where is the source located of so much immorality, dishonesty, and shame.

Yes, all these kings of For are harmful to the na-do not provide grounds for the most dreadful indictments tables,

But also, what a wonderful role is reserved for those, if they understand their duty and Paccomthey pleat valiantly.

They can clean up the Republic. They can raise the nation and save France from a terrifying catastrophe remarkable, because they alone have the ability to make in truth this fact which now belongs to Utopia: namely, that even in the art of distribution to manage and channel public wealth, one can to combine personal integrity with general utility and with patriot! 1st.

To arrive at this demonstration, I am obliged to take a high-level and distant view of things.

To explain how the powers that seem to have a monopoly on the right to direct, as they see fit, the destinies of the

ee

"The ee al RE Me cet TE 2nd RTE Fonte "ulée, A as A

AE TEL"

EXPLANATION NECESSARY. q

human mass, I will be forced to wear my investisations on all the questions called "religeggy",

But I want it to be clearly understood, from the outset.
first pages of this book, which I do not have for:
but to tarnish or oppose the professed beliefs
in good faith.

[There are family traditions that are respected] tables, because they emanate much less from the inspontaneous movement of the heart.

That a feeling of kindness might lead some to empirically solve the great unknown algebra-brick, which has been made into a deity; that, in the metaphysics of thought, we want to explain the mysteries (that is, the ignorance), by the marvelous (that is to say, incomprehensible), I I see it as nothing more than a minor scientific drawback.

But from the moment when, in the name of a metaphy-In cases of questionable music, laws are enacted, the effect of which is to reduce the majority of humans to the state of ordinary prey for a predatory minority and invasive, I must set aside all feeling-mentality. all superstition, and attack frankly-the practical results of any theory that.
to avoid the discussion. hides behind the divinity.

10 THE KINGS OF THE REPUBLIC.

To clarify my point, I will take the example of the honors paid to the memory of a great citizen, honors which, ordinarily, physically translate through the erection of a statue.

As long as this statue remains, purely and simply-exposed to view, like a manifesto-a statement of opinion, in the same way as a work of
In spirit, I have no objection to formulate.

But if, around this statue, men... groups, organize themselves into coalitions and seek to to impose their sovereignty in the name of this statue.
for his worship and to make a living from it, so I am astonished,
I am looking for the real motives, and, without having no hostile intent towards the model of the statue
I am obliged to discuss her and her titles with her.
glory and the use that is made of it.

This, precisely, is the spirit in which they will all the criticisms of this historical synthesis were conceived...
toric.

This is therefore not a work of denigration,
It is a work of conscientious study which, mar-singing, proudly before her, in search of the in the face of no obstruction, whatever its nature-ture.

TY ps The L] ER at 7 ms - = r nl
FE TES LS ; DE PPT QU Grant Cr Ke er : => : CF
CAPES HU OT Let ri) WE Lee De Punta fe Mois ee DIES; :

_ PS ip A ane DT PT DE de La Apt k= a EE s: | ss _ + rl a" +] a ni A A+ : }

= e = Far LL

EXPLANATION NECESSARY. 11

But it will not be enough for me to have for-mule the criticisms: it will still be necessary after having demonstrated the evil, I can make known the ways to destroy it.

By nature, I am an enemy of violent revolutions.
slow and bloody endings; also you-Should I say that this century, which marches on like its predecessors, towards terrifying explosions, similar to those which abounds in the history of the past, gave a formal denial of the traditions of brute force.

I would like it to happen peacefully, through study and through the possession of truth, Pharmonie could to establish a balance between all national interests.

To that end, I will give, as a conclusion to Kings of the Republic, a summary of the reforms to to complete, and I will then send my work entirely to those who are the only ones to possess, to the times, the right, the duty and the power to realize his indications, that is to say to the members of both parties French elements.

And then this work needs a sanction and a protection.

1 2 THE KINGS OF THE REPUBLIC.

Contrary to most of those who are considered...

to make their ideas triumph only by attacking, succeeding Specifically, all those responsible for administering the country, and then, by an extension which is not without logic, all those who, under the name inaccurate ruling class, these administrators argue nistrators, | attack, me, those who make this administration impossible, by occult power which they have at their disposal and which, in large numbers more limited, are much more formidable than all the rulers.

The French spirit, eminently rebellious and a somewhat skeptical, rewarded easily, by a sort of flattering popularity, all those who take to part of the governments.

Their reprisals even serve them,
of apotheosis,

And then, in such an instance, any conversion
a secret cannot be hidden for long; the reward-think, like the opposition itself, end up always by appearing in full light.

[This is not the case when one attacks the Hidden kings, holders of all riches.
These persecutors operate in the shadows, and find the a way to sully even the most disinterested generous and the most obvious.

EXPLANATION NECESSARY. 13

With them, if the attack is perilous, the retreat is golden.

That's the whole secret of their power, and who... misunderstanding and whoever confronts it is at the same time the most honorable clear and the most useful of reformers.

THIS

ÊES

KINGS OF THE REPUBLIC

HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS

THE NIGHT OF TIME. – THE SCAM. – HOW

MAN CREATED GOD. – JEWISHNESS, FORMULA OF MOSES. – THE JEWISH COUNTRY, JESUS' FORMULA. – DEV-LOOPING OF THE JEWISH HOUSES. – NEW JEWISH HOUSES:
THE PROTESTANTS, THE JESUITS. – TRANSFORMATIONS, INVASIONS. – INDIVIDUAL HOUSEHOLD HOUSEHOLD, THE HOMO==
MES. – J, EXAMPLE FROM ENGLAND.

The dawn of time.

Fierce beasts, – Animal customs. – Human customs.
Theft. – j, fraud.

Until now, it has not been possible for man to to account for the phenomena that presided over the complete separation between plant life and life animal.

But, if science has not yet surprised the Island
The secret of this transformation lies in the philosophy of deits distinctive character, which resides, entirelyrament, in the act involving both the struggle and the conquest.

The entire animal order is based on selfish struggle.
that the English, those masters of selfishness, have re-summed up by these words: the struggle for life.

The idea, thus summarized, contains no other something that the painting of animal habits in the state primitive or wild.

The ferocious beast seizes and kills its prey to...

7

= =

= a NS re

18 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

feed; a larger and more similar individual appears strong; this one has no other concern than to pro-liter of the work done, – capture and killing of the prey, – and to seize the object necessary to its diet.

In reality, the ferocious bee only has one gender of struggle: it is the hunt for the weakest among them.

But here is the man: the struggle is different, Na- Naturally, it does not need, in order to feed itself, to feed on the flesh of his fellow man; On the contrary, his self-interest compels him to partner with him. to help him and to accept his help.

This developed instinct is what has been called the civilization, a social state that, after so many centuries, whose island we have not yet been able to calculate number, we declare, today, to have reached its apogee,

That being said, how did we end up in this situation? returns to employer the special processes for animals ferocious?

(How is it that our civilization is composed of a pile of slaughtered prey, only Beings, calling themselves human, are constantly tearing themselves apart between them?

[nv has no reason to hide it from himself, what one ap-Shovel today "the fight for life" is not.

|
ME AND 7 aa
LT Li PE Lee ec
Fr gr Her

I. – THE NIGHT OF TIME. 19

something other than the act of the stronger, ferocious beast, taking its prey from the weaker, ferocious beast.

The lion hunts and the man steals.

In flight itself, the centuries have introduced improvements:

The domesticated cat steals from the good, fat dog his colleague, the bone that had just been thrown to him, and the good big dog, generally, lets you do as you please A paternal air, and that says it all.

In humans, even domesticated ones, the their hearts are less sweet:

The violent hoarding, which they called theft, has changed in form and process: civilization They call it a scam.

However, by examining history, one quickly realizes—last of this transformation, and, in a mo—Nozraphie of the centuries, the nineteenth should be ap—peeling back the century of fraud,

Sn

THE.
Poe
AT

I
The scam.

Incitement to laziness. — Legal theft, — [the mysteries, — Heavenly promise. — The priests. — The financiers. — The clergy, Laziness, on the one hand, and cowardice, on the other, have powerfully contributed to replacing fraud on the fly.

Fraud is therefore an extremely sophisticated art form. laughed, to spare himself the natural work, allowing him to Man needs to fertilize the earth in order to live. And to to seize, by trickery, the work done by others or its results,

I am aware that this definition is not the Code and enshrined in case law; but the

The Code, and especially case law, being the work
They are full of parasites, riddled with misconceptions, to such an extent that pure morality had to make a dis-

29 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

distinction between court rulings and rulings of fairness.

It is, in fact, a widely held opinion that one can be both wrong in law and right in fact.

I will certainly surprise my readers, by... asserting that fraud draws on the laws for everything his arsenal of fake keys, all his weapons more triumphant,

This is all the more daunting because all this He who defies the law is endowed with force, so that simple fraud, being legalized, becomes a a real robbery.

But. from the moment I pronounce the word
"[01], I am obliged to analyze its origin,

This origin was initially very simple: the law was the expression of the will of a higher power.

Men, never having been able to agree-cord to transform the Code into a collection of Truly social conventions, laws, even mo-lasted, have never ceased to contain the trace of a power above humans.

This power, generally tyrannical, was all its strength lies in its undeniable assertions, which were given the name myxteria

Submission to these mysteries, a remarkable thingble, always had one objective: OBTAINING A
A present benefit in exchange for a future benefit.

LI

:

£

x

|
Mr. |
er 1)
TT
+

P

p

fl

"L

[that mid:

PR fl LL)

e.g.

LE a rer Dan: LS to

II. – THE SCAM. 23

In fact, the most sophisticated scam has there is no other way to proceed.

– Give me a penny and I'll buy you heaven.

– Give me a hundred sous and I'll make you win a million,

These are promises, equally fallacious, constitling, very directly, what I called the swindlerquerie.

Only the wenres differ,

Heavenly well-being, the promise of bliss eternal, are based on what is called theory religious: quintessential mysteries.

Everything went well while the majority of the few:
Ples, languishing in ignorance, did not wise to try to find out if, in reality, she re-

. would one day reveal the immaterial happiness promised in Exchange of the very material taxes that were levied

based on his credulity,
But a time came when ignorance was less

... Thick, where the old, quintessential mysteries per-they spoke of their power.

The parasites immediately felt the need to rem-

... to place the mysteries, truly unfathomable, by
... other mysteries, seemingly easy to unravel.

[They grouped together, then, in a bundle, I don't know what statistics of human interests, which they made a arduous science and which they christened with the bizarre name to stop the progress of science.

24 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

political, social, and financial economy, and which suitably bristling with mysterious formulas laughing, produced on the ignorant crowd the same
The effect of the former religious mysteries.

The result was that ignorance became an A relativity and that it is, simply, for the swindler modern quest, to proportion the cunning to the dose

However, a distinction must be made:

It took real science to unmask
The impostures of religious theories, 1l is enough, Today, information to unmask the economic frauds.

The priests had seized control of the teaching

The financiers have seized control of all the means of communication, roads and newspapers to hinder the rise of injunction.

They did more: they created ANONYMITY, under all its forms.

As we can see, the processes are the same.
It is still the systematic hoarding that has,
as the main lever, power through imposition Truth and imposture through power. S

People are therefore currently in the grip of two ruthless clergy in their actions:

II. — FRAUD. D)

one that revolves around an invisible deity and that only death can reveal; the other that turns around a palpable prestige and that life alone may manifest.

Both of these clerics are crooks, and they have no shame.
in no way and most often s2 coalition.

This presentation would be incomplete if I did not point out how parasitism formed and how The two clergy were constituted, having, for their part, quest, the oldest: God, the most modern: Gold.
the latter being, moreover, only a perfectionist-the first one.

- ' cr É * é
' . =Cr. : e = F = É L = Elf " n
; to j Ë d a Fi ' F : ant LU is es = : - - F jf ut
A 3 pe " " # = = TC pie: " mir Ty 2h +

L = to : : : + ; = A Ed Û to -": mL PC = 1
« put #4 ve dr r es re F0, L =: TT PT
L v . AS HOTTE,
i
L]
L
2: i RE - . é _ = + : nn = - a. :
2 = x CE . . = .
ML Een: L * " a # :
CA even LEA- 2; ge 9 Ro ER - LI
F. =. Ê am z
Read

THE

III

THE

D
not -"
LR]
"
2:
if LL " ke
Fra
D
115 LI
Gi! n'> Ha
|
Eu
The D RL fa di to CLPE
Rob
ER D'Are
ral
T's
BP

RTE RU: (] FFE q
you +8 Ci pal
EE
1
Read
Ha
A
Er
AND.
Li
d
I
1 F
=
:

How man created God.

The first question. – The father of the family, – The rituals. –

Knowledge of the times. – The great shining eye. – The | Clericalism, – Idealisms, – Brokers.

[It is absolutely childish to claim that the pre-the first desire of being, arriving at conscious life, or to wonder where it comes from.

On the contrary, he immediately concerned himself with to know where he is going and, far from probing the horizon, better, to look for some unknown person, his
The first concern is how it will overcome the obstacle that separates it from the necessary object sare to His life,

This observation, despite the penetration of The religious idea results from daily experience.
dienne, makes any spontaneity improbable in the beliefs that impose worship on man of a god.

28 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

The mystery god is a creation of impotence

In senile dementia, it stems entirely from need tried, by the infirm old man, to make do others what his infirmities do not allow him more than doing: that is to say, preserving, by a subterfuge, the authority that his former self gave him muscular strength and the services that she had.
permit to return.

At the origin of human societies, the first
The tribe gathered around the father of the family: he it turned out that the first accepted authority, I I would even say "endured" by the family was that of the father.

The father creates beings who are at his mercy
From all points of view.

He defends them, cares for them, and corrects them when they are weak:
Hence the habit of submission which continues, when the child became a man, and when the-
The authority of muscular strength transforms into self-authority of acquired experience, expressed by advice.

Strong, he invites them to "unite forces" against the natural obstacles to overcome in order to provide for life's necessities: but also, sometimes, over-Disunity or struggle arises when passions
The son's views contradict those of the father.

How to overcome this revolt? Because instinct

Fee $

RE A n} RE E pi EE Fo JE ET"

1 EE M EE DD PL CE, PLAN HR

PE NE 0 PRES, ES ENEE, pe nu Dee À DRE ee LE FRA Hs AS

YIIL. – HOW MAN CREATED GOD. 29

the father's role is always to perpetuate his power, on by nature.

This is where rites are born, this is where Religion seems to be the answer; now is the time to invent.
God !

In early societies, man, in struggle with nature, he focused above all on overcoming the obstacles, by simplifying his effort as much as possible muscular and thus reducing its cor- fatigue Porelle,

The old man, having long and frequent-through numerous experiments, the one whose intelligence had observed, studied and concluded, remembering simply because of his mistakes or his lack of foresight, had, certainly, a superiority first, over the youngest, then their equals.

The first superiority was that which proceeded from the "knowledge of the times".

We know, in this respect, what foresight gives to sailor, forced to study the Ocean where he ventures, the habit and observation.

The first observer was therefore able to give his similar opinions regarding what appears to them the most interesting thing was: the "back to school" coltes. »

At first, people were incredulous; the event justified-

3. |

30 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

fully linking the old man's prescience, Pin-credulity was overcome, |

"He was consulted": he, as a salary, did not demand firstly, the work necessary for the proper administration management of one's own harvests.

His experience had already earned him a muscular effort.
area of less.

So when, amazed by his knowledge, the young or those less experienced told him-

– But, father! How do you do it?

Then he, solemn, like any old man, was silent like someone who doesn't want to reveal a secretive "prolitable", proud and arrogant in its With foresight, she rose, and, with her trembling finger, pointed to the sky.

The sun was out!

The large, bright eye, already the subject of so much comments and containing so many enigmas, in its periodic rays, naturally became the the gaze of a mysterious being, if not this being himself-same, immense and all-powerful, with which he,
The old man was in invisible communication.

God was created: the inevitable mystery followed him
And the old man, the priest, was quite ready to live off it.

As for the father, head of the family, chief of the tribe, he there was a means of government placed at-

Rranr

î
Li

nf ess j

III. – HOW MAN CREATED GOD. 681

above the resistances and protecting its crumbling study!

But as families dispersed, and the same phenomenon... nomen reproducing on the oldest and the
The more intelligent ones, the more they guessed each other.

Far from fighting each other, they understood, on the field, which they had an interest in supporting each other,

They gathered, following a mysterious ceremony-

among all with care.

Now, "religion" literally means "to choose," and "Profanes" means those to whom one does not speak shows that from a distance.

L.

* +

Clericalism was done! It became fornudable-

_ Se RTE TN Le En à dent ur de a : - nee Ne Fer rare ae. d PONS RUES nbeeni re een EN QE D en 5: » «fl He ñ RL, RE nee DIET DENE RE "y Es Maps 1 _- : E » L er AT 4, 16 si LAS , CE: Te PE TE Fi GR NE Le Le 1 mr =. sur EN Br 7 1, Fe Le ge Fr L ie? Te 3 Ê 'a re e. "7 Poe L | LS de Lee et Cl = K es en a à = sr der + je 1 ND] A de" ee ns j . Cia ln É . rot hi re] L a % à ep É F, Es J en "tu ï ME 3 L powerful ment.

He dominated all empires, and it was in recount-both a coalition due to material force and the poet was able to summarize a historical period in the splendid verse in which he recognizes:

These two halves of a god: the Pope and the Emperor!

This is how the clergy were formed, and that's how it is, whatever the religious fable and whatever name is given to the Almighty [n-known for which they appointed themselves ministers.

92 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

Every clergy is therefore a coalition of men seeking to seize by trickery the work done by others or from its results.

It has always been this way: from time immemorial those who discovered a mysterious way to acc-to control the fortune of others have recognized each other, renis, allies.

praised idealism: thus there is Catholic idealism-lic, Protestant, Israelite, as: there is an idea-political, economic and financial lism.

The habit of idealism has become so widespread rale that those who wrote the history of human-nity – The very islands that exploit it, moreover – have consistently truncated the nature of the facts which They formed themselves into the popularizers.

[It follows that the history of humanity is everything to be re-examined, no longer by interpreting the acts by imposed ideas, but, on the contrary, by de-drawing on the ideas of the actions performed.

In short, he will prove that the only his-
The true story is the one that will completely trace the brutal struggle of interests will reveal, behind each of the major humanitarian theories, the direct cause of the act committed under pretext of humanity.

Regarding the divine theory, the pretext

LEA

III. – HOW MAN CREATED GOD. 99

Humanitarianism is the relief of suffering;
In reality, it's the need to impose resignation.
to exploited men, by making them believe that, in another existence, they will enjoy a happiness all the more complete if they have been more unhappy in their current existence.

The worst part is that the brokers of this sea-
The nightlights are a sham, paid for by the poor.
devils whom they abuse, as well as by the acc-fortune builders whose fortunes they consolidate perpetually potentially the power.

Regarding social theory where ec9no-
The humanitarian pretext consists of mimicry.
to curb the hope of universal well-being; in real-lity, it is the need to provoke general laziness, by making each person believe that they are being provided with a free access to wealth accumulation, without work and in a short amount of time.

The worst part is that the brokers of this scamperie attract, precisely, all the wealth to themselves that they claim to distribute and circulate.

The identity of the trends is indisputable and written history, as I just explained above, it constantly provides proof of this.
and the example.

tm nd dE 1 ;
en me on © Maty eee Re US RS RMS LES one = pp coq pe on ee

:
;
|
r
1 3
. =
| ;
THIS LS
i sk
E
J
|
| |
L
|
w
| Ê

Eu

[V
The Jewish community. – Formula of Moses.

Denial of the Jewish community. – Regulation of interests. –
The credit granted. – Hebrew social liquidation. –
Leviticus. – Deuteronomy, – Usury. – Nationality
Jewish. – The longhouse. – Eastern Question,

The act of consuming without producing, that is to say silisman.

The same fact, established as a system and to practice-cant by means of the Appropriation of signs ser
The exchange of wealth constitutes the }fiverie.

Cunning and deception, applied to the exercise of the Jewish community, constitute the eseroquerte.

It is therefore obvious that, regardless of all religious superstition, Judaism exists in a completely separate way.

It hardly remains to explain why the
The people of Israel, or Jewish people, served as a prototype to the point of having given its name to the entire set of maneuvers that I have just described.

36 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

It is believed that the word "Jewishness" is not taken in its stigmatizing meaning than on the old continent.

This is because the old continent was fertile in religious struggles, that these struggles have displaced, without, however, leaving a certain circle
They thus spread the existence of the first laws written, codified, so to speak, in the Ancient-Will.

Christianity played its part in this propagation gation since he accepted, among his holy books, all those that make up the Old Testament of Jews, simply adding the Gospels constituting the New Testament.

These collections contain the codification of moral laws offers nothing particularly original: besides, we found traced in roughly the same way in almost all the peoples of the globe.

The only part that is original is the one that regulates the struggle of personal interests, in a way to place out of reach the parasitism of a certain class which, ordinarily, makes up the clergy.

The Jewish race, a nomadic race long enslaved and valet by instinct, is the first to have etc

the distribution of wealth, for the greater profit of a privileged class.

IV. – THE JEWISH COUNTRY, MOSES' FORMULA. 37

His laws served as a model and his name is [name missing].
meuré uneétiquette,

Also, by examining the Bible and the Gospel, one Two formulas can easily be extracted from it: that of Moses and that of Jesus.

Moses' formula is that of a pro- master leaving the theory known today as of credit granted.

The master is God: everything belongs to him, no-especially tangible assets,

Leviticus says (Ch. 25, v. 23): "The earth does not will not be sold at all, because the land is 'To me: And you are foreigners and itinerant people in

" ME.

Thereupon, Moses built a number of prescriptions that the Jewish people were required to observe, under the most terrible punishments, consisting, gen-Generally, in all kinds of diseases, destructive-union of harvests, houses and cities.

What emerges most clearly from all the Mosaic legislation, that's the spirit of tralic
The practice of plundering was so complex and developed, that it was necessary to repress its abuses internally and to prevent the Jews from devouring each other same: in compensation, Moses gave them to devour foreign peoples.

But, above the foreigners, the people of Es-

HAS

38 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

Raël and the fairground peoples dominated the representatives master's scents

God – put power to the removal of all the solutions,

I just stated that the land belonged to God, Leviticus formulates the consequences thus based on this principle:

& (Ch. xxv, v. 24). That is why, throughout the "country of your possession, you will give the right
"A ransom for the land."

This right of redemption was exercised every fifty years ago, it was a kind of social gentrification which It was called the Jubilee.

Leviticus says:

& (Ch. xxv, v. 10) And you shall sanctify the five-
"Quantity and you will publish liberty in the country"
"To all its inhabitants: this will be the year of the "Jubilee, and you will each return to your own possessions"
"session and each with their own family,"

It's wonderful to see the meticulous attention to detail Moses explains how to determine the purchase and selling prices, how not to to devour each other as Jews by practicing usury: Moreover, usury is only permitted towards the foreigners. Here's the proof:

“(Deuteronomy, ch. 20, v. 20). You will lend "Wealthy property abroad, but you will not lend
"Do not pay usury to your brother, so that the Lord, your nr.

LL
born!
e
:
In pounds pen Ms.)
I Peas
AR 1
Ø HP = US EE
pr |

el
of"
LEE acer has w
is rh,
*
4
In 1
HS
Fe
Ch
Your
Dr.
2%

" ; > ES,
PE

"ni aa Lies"
LT Dr ONE,
Dr. – RNA er
DPREMAMIMENS
And

+ 4 te – FRET De

Eee x! Fa ee DR
gr re L

Æ

min _

FA, LAS its

CLIS

Him EL Ps “1,

Eee Len ee M De RTE Ent
EE PR EU ER a FUT) Ø EL Far og pe ie de PL er A ne Le. THAT che Ter RER on os r EL

&
LL | .
min}

i
,
:
HAS thousand pe
... v
has not [In not Ru OT
D
E.r
THE
on 1st tn? Fr vs 1.1
YEARS ue ra born.
4
+
DJ"
EL
Fe,
he ra\ Lo
Li PT
"Li
D *
TA D".
L
Log re
+.
ee 1
AT
4 The Let

Sas "il
Free
D
Of:
ATEN |
years |
Eu
THE IT
.h i Um
Ti
HAS EL da
£ Fey |
TT

IV. – THE JEWISH COUNTRY, MOSES' FORMULA. 99

"God, bless you in everything you undertake." hand in the country you are going to enter for the possess. "

The Lord is not afraid to repeat himself; he came to say, in the preceding verse, by listing all types of wear and tear:

"You shall not lend at interest to your brother, be usury of money, or usury of food, or wear and tear of anything else that one "Ready to wear out."

How can we be surprised, after that, that devotion Judaism has been perpetuated through the centuries! To be blessed by the Lord by uniting among Jews to Devouring foreigners, what a boon!

But that is precisely what is still happening and (nowadays,

So this is parasitism, regulated and Henri, the Jewish community being able to wsure at its ease, which-conch, apart from his brother.

So this is the Jewish community, the clergy of the universe; but, within itself it possesses another devo- clergy rant, carefully arranged by the Eternal, before Moïsa for speaker.

I just said, in fact, that the seller ren-

There are serious exceptions in favor of the Levites.

These people own entire cities; the right

40 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

The buyback period is limited to one year for the common mortals: for the Levites the right of redemption is perpetual Leviticus, Ch xxv/1V199/a 52;

Leviticus goes even further; it admits to verse 433) the spontaneous return, into the hands of Levites, properties that they would have sold.

All Jewish concerns are exclusive. material things; their spirit of traffic is without boundaries; Deuteronomy (ch. 24, v. 17), rule—The pawnbroker is obliged to say:

"You shall not mistake clothing for age" of the widow.

Habits are so ingrained that the Leviticus (ch. xix, v. 36) and Deuteronomy (ch. xxv, v. 195), insist, repeatedly, on prohibit the use of false weights and counterfeit scales.

In short, the entire history of this people abounds in escams, prostitution and theft, and this has been going on since from the origin to the final dispersal of the race. as a nation.

The connections are made naturally: moreover—theirs, modern Jewry, which covers itself in worship Israelite, presents exactly the same tendencies than those recounted in the Bible.

The processes have changed form, the substance is identical: however, it is necessary to point out the existence of an entirely new aim which tends to re-to constitute a Jewish rationality,

7 places
Re

The Jews still aspire to possession of a "land of Canaan" which would be their kingdom and where they can raise armies, they fear a new reaction against them: they want to be European POWER and consolidate their aAccCaparements,

Anyone who studies the history of the principalities Danubian, for about sixty years, and which-conque will reflect on the triumph of the Jews in Hungary will not be able to ignore the existence of a Jewish national movement.

Before they had won their citizenship rights, they did not
They do not maneuver because of Catholicism.
hunting, but only because they want to create a center to their empire.

They want to be masters of the world; and, this What is even more serious is that Christendom in "Generally, and Catholicism in particular, are becoming their accomplices and their servants and that it is with them and through their participation that politics has created, for sixty years, this eternal source of war, which is called the Eastern Question!...

4

EE sms mi

49 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

But this is not so strange, for we will see, soon, that all religions have carefullysanctified and deified the most Jewish Mosaic Law.

Here is the proof.

"Ti
and] Fr;

The Jewish community. – A formula of Jesus.

Earth and sky. – Israelite Jewry, – Christian Jewry. –
 Financial Theories of the Gospel – The Publicans.
 Parasitism. – False translations. – Jesus and taxation. – Arcant fishing. – Authorized flights, – Jesus and Guizot.

If Moses' formula admirably summarizes the appropriation for the benefit of the Israelites by establishing-health, within, only one compensation: the fiftieth anniversary liquidation, if, in short, it seems-ble say:

"Eat yourself at your leisure for forty-
 "Nine years, but every fifty years, I hear "restoring balance:"

Jesus' formula promotes, in another way,
 the same monopolization; it is, moreover, much More skillful: she seems to overwhelm with curses.
 the rich and powerful, but she tells the poor-true and weak:

"Bah! Just let it happen: you'll have the sky:"

juxtaposed with the Israelite washhouse.
 | P

44 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

"You will have a second life: the last ones will be "The first and the last shall be"
 "niers."

The difference between the two formulas is significant.
 For Moses, this is the promised land... a Cha:
 any old naan.

But the possession of land being a thing
 The hardware was a bit too controllable. He had added the Messiah, a kind of potentate yet to come, on the wing clouds, amidst thunder and lightning.

When Jesus appeared, he thought it appropriate to to end the Israeli expectation by dedicating themselves to this Messiah.

promised.

He had, in one fell swoop, condensed all the do-his unknown sons that Moses had produced in two blows: the promised land and the Messiah.

Unfortunately, it lacked thunder.

and the lightning bolts to be accepted by Israel, so well that a certain number remained incredulous: lhu-

Manity only gained from possessing two Jewish women.

ries instead of one: and Christian Jewry has

I am even convinced that if each cult if there was no living clergy from the altar, there would have been

IV. – THE JEWISH COUNTRY. JESUS' FORMULA. 45

had, for a long time, a fusion between the two Jjuiverles,

I must acknowledge, however, that the Jewish community Christian with its dual theory of resignation and second life absolutely serves the rapacity of the Israelite Jewry.

In support of the above, it is extremely

It is interesting to examine economic theories from the Gospel,

At the time Jesus spoke, the Romans, those who three pagan Jews, whose history lies outside the within the framework of the current synthesis, they were doing harshly to feel their yoke on the various peoples they had SUBMITTED.

Their Jewishness was therefore deeply troubling.
that of the [Israclites.

Moreover, generally speaking, taxes, even taken by David, was odious to the latter, to all the more so that taken by the Rohands,

Renan, following Montesquieu, observes that at the time-that of Jesus "Fargent of the public coffers not-"Sues for stolen money."

But what do we find at every step in the Gospels? Jesus constantly insulting the collections tax collectors, that is to say the publicans.

I could multiply the quotes: because all

46 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

the times Jesus places a curse on someone, he does not fail to describe him as "pagan and public.

"Nil doesn't want to listen to you," we read in "Matthew chapter 18, verse 17, may it be as you are "A palen and like a publheéain."

After that, one might expect to find these Despite the last furious attacks against Jesus, nothing could be further from the truth: a
On the contrary, Luc observes that the "toll collectors and people
"People of ill repute frequented him readily" and Mr. de Ligny, Jesuit, author of a life of Jesus, notes that "the tax collectors always had some
"Well worn down at its base."

The Romans, moreover, did not see Jesus viewed with suspicion, because, with its second-order theories life and resignation, 11 could only facilitate the tax season.

Thus we see Pilate with very little concern for to contribute to his torment.

For his part, Jesus was careful not to put himself trouble with the tax authorities: he only had it in for the Jewish clergy and His entire concern consisted of...
to be considered a seditious person, wanting to be king Jews, despite Roman domination.

Ultimately, Jesus' financial theories are arranged in such a way as to give a new shape to the parasitism instituted by Moses.

Cr
=
CI. |
=
[=
THERE
THAT PL. 4
,
"TH

Here

Li
LI

{ Fr pr

Te Vi
ru aa, "2 LH PR, 2 7. F- .
= worst td cn of A M LE: a: 4

F:
V. – THE JEWISH COUNTRY, JESLS' FORMULA, 47

The fundamental principle he teaches his
The apostles' way of life consists of living at the expense of others.

Mathieu and Mare explain it explicitly:

"Do not store up gold or silver, or..."
"Money in your belts, nor bags for the travel, and, in whatever city or town that "You go in, find out who is the richest and stay at his house until you leave

"from there. » (Matthew, ch. x, v. 11.)

Before going any further, I must point out the sin-oulier subterlude dont traducteurs et commente-
The authors used it to hide the pre-indication.
the idea of "choosing a wealthy house."

The French and Latin translators say:

"Find out who is worthy there and stay at home"
June, »

Protestant Bibles add in italics a explanation and the sentence becomes this: "[nfor-

"You are the one who is worthy to house you."

The Vulgate simply says:

Interrogate quis in ea dignus SIC. »

The Greek text contains the following sentence:

“ÉÉTATATE Tis Ey aÜTÿ AELOs Ed.”

Or “&ftos” has much less of a meaning of merit personal rather than numerical value.

It is in this sense that Homer, Plutarch, Xeno-Peacock and Herodotus used this word.

48 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

[It falls, moreover, under the meaning that the apostle, in his search for accommodation, he chose the most beautiful house. without first checking if the owner in was more or less virtuous.

Having established this first point, here is the attitude that P adopts Jesus facing tax questions.

Besides the famous "Render unto Caesar what is Caesar's" Caesar, » which has been so often commented on, we find. in the Gospels, a few other rarer cases-cited, among others this one:

There was a tax called the two-tax drachmas, intended for the upkeep of the temple, and on which the Romans had set their sights on.

Mathieu recounts that one day, someone came to ask to Peter if his master paid the tax of both drachmas. Just in case, Pierre replies: "Yes". then run to find Jesus.

However, this one, who paid no more of this tax than he ne pavalt sa nourriture, sa entretien et sa lowe-ment, he also gave him the following beautiful theory, strong approaching the church of Moses, placing the Levites above common law:

Jesus said to Simon Peter:

What do you think? Whose kings of the earth
"Do they collect tribute and taxes? Is it
"Their children or foreigners?"

– Foreigners, replied Pierre,

– Children are therefore exempt, replies
Jesus (Matthew, ch. xviii, v. 26).

Clearly, the children of the temple must not paying the tax of the woman: that is indeed the struggle of Jesus against the Israelite clergy. And that is, at the same time time, the principle of tax exemption for the Christian clergy.

But Jesus thought about it:

This tax for the temple was levied by the Romans.
who levy it; but we must not offend the tax collectors, and Jesus adds:

"However, so as not to scandalize your people–
"There, go to the sea, throw the hook, take the "First fish that comes up, you will find a
"Stater (a coin of one–four drachmas), take it and"
"Give it to them for me and for you."

As fish are not accustomed to having;
for a muzzle, a purse and like, moreover– theirs, if Jesus had been able to enrich them with this in the way all the fish in the sea, it would have been beautiful–
It was easier for him to put his hand on his pocket, with the certainty of finding the money, he is It is impossible not to discover the reality of the council given by him to Simon.

This fishing, with a hook, of one or more sta-tères is simply equivalent to a piece of advice from begging and, perhaps, something worse.

.

50 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

The parabolic shape that provided material for so much interpretations was, in essence, a kind of language, a slang term, if you will, which allowed Jesus spoke publicly without being understood by his enemies. He wouldn't compromise himself with that bottle.
No, in fact, he says so himself. Mare, ch. 1v, VOA

"I speak in parables, that is to say, through allegorical allusions,"

Those who see do not steal, and those who
"They hear, they don't hear."

Now, nothing is more suited to explaining the necessity from this conventional language that the adventure of the tax of two drachmas,

However one wants, apart from the middle-raculous, to explain the fishing with a stater, it emerges
This is always the same: this is what Jesus said to Peter: I I don't have any money, try to find some.

Coin fishing has, throughout history, summer was a source of processes for the poor devils INnSCNICUX.

The hook and the bait usually form one the base.

Even in our time, it continues to be used in the language of the money hunters:

"Throw the hook," Alphonse said to the beautiful girl.

that he protects.

Ent rx At mid-in of tan sol DEL, È Ê su: dr a; = rer A ww à (a Lis CERN PR à .

2 2 s 4 at Pr Ne ee 12 L = TAN A w 1 s
LE PU = oi Th es ; " a er SM cu ES 34 F FA 4 ri = c Fast
- Er Ê , gs F ie

RP, se ss zi+ Ê
= SR LUE: Read gs

V. - THE JEWISH COUNTRY. JESUS' FORMULA. 1

"Let's cast the line," said the banker, writing a leaflet.

- (Guigne le pante, said the grumbler to his slack.

to the temple tax "so as not to scandalize these "Those," it should also be noted that we have strange-twisted the word "εὐαγγέλιον" to make him ex-to prioritize the purely religious idea, which is intertwined with sin or bad example. In Greek, τὰ δα) or », means "a trap where you get caught by your feet"

Therefore, Jesus, by minting coins for to pay taxes, was simply looking for to avoid getting on the wrong side of the financiers, who could have trapped him.

It is worth noting this financial concern.
constant in Jesus, for we will find it again strongly developed, subsequently, in each of the claims Christian and Catholic clergy, who draw in the Gospel all their inspirations, sometimes taking the letter, sometimes taking the spirit of the language "sacred," depending on which one or the other serves better their material interests,

This, then, is Christian parasitism: preaching the word, promising a heavenly kingdom, and for this The motive was to be fed by the assistants, and between-controlled by financiers.

52 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

To the rich, Jesus said: Give alms – and he took advantage of it.

To the poor, 1] he said: Let it be, your turn will come to the heavenly city; neither revolt nor sedition – and the rich applauded.

Ur, Iles persecutions only began ben-later, that is, when the Romans
They realized that the new clergy was threatening Pancien by taking his faithful followers, that is to say his providers, those who feed him,

As for the means indicated by Jesus for
To recruit his supporters, one must not read the Gospel.
to ignore the extent to which morality is lax there with regard to financial matters.

Moses permits usury towards foreigners, Tesus approves of the corruption of public officials.

for various malpractices, summoned the debtors his master's men, and, in order to make friends of them relieved them of most of their debts, to the detriment of his boss.

Upon learning of this, he praised his servant.
unfaithful for his skill, and, Tesus concludes:

"I'm telling you too, make friends with "unjust riches, as when you come—
You won't want to miss them; they welcome you into their restaurants.

barnacles. (Literally: "in their dwelling.")

M Lee 20 0 ee PC NERRE

RTL es CR 5
mes. en ten je à 4
| van to er Dole AL SRE Ts L
RE MET The re ee Lighthouse NS Ye k

L LE +, 14:

V. — JEWISHNESS, A FORMULA OF JESUS. 53

The most audacious commentators are somewhat taken aback by this conclusion.
[They fall back, as does Mr. de Ligny, a Jesuit, on "the lesson of charity it contains."

In fact, all the scams of our century are authorized by this gospel:

Fly, make friends with the product of Your flights are an act of charity!

He is not a civil servant deceiving the state.
not a single MP selling his conscience, not a single ban-quier buying journalists, who cannot find, by Jesus, a shining justification.

Moreover, money needs to be put to good use; it needs to Putting your money in the bank: respect for money.
Listen to Jesus.

Luc is still the cheerful reporter of the story

We will see that this parabola is a circle Vicious.

A king goes on a journey; he summons ten of his servants, and to each one, he gives a pool of silver with an order to assert it.

Upon his return, he gathered them together and verified their g-tion.

One of them, with one mark, had won ten.

"Good servant," said the king, "I give you ten cities.

LL]

54 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

The other one, with one mark, had won five:

"Good servant," said the king; "I give you five cities.

A third simply returned the silver mark, carefully enclosed in a linen, saying:

– My law, | I was afraid. You are severe, because you Take what you did not put in, and reap what that you did not sow.

The king's anger.

– Why didn't you put my money in the Bank (èmi tir Todmebar), on my return, I would have it withdrawn with interest?

– Let this brandy be taken from him and given to the one who won ten.

Jesus concluded:

"So I tell you that to each one who has 1 liter will be "given, and to him who has nothing, that very thing, him
"And will be Oté."

Mr. Guizot was therefore nothing more than a Jesus in disguise foot when he uttered his famous € enrich-
YOU, "

This dubious morality is astonishing, and complete, wonderfully, that of the steward who He makes friends with stolen money.

The Jewish counts that the pope creates in receipt-

If nm L: =
sir ul ne Brie LEE FE S
TE De pe de Oo CU DEN RMC CARS PA PA Re ES EE PE Mn) y Lars HE hr TT " F 2 =

CASE

dede db or os And 15
DE RD ER LR NT x Es ms on

el
Mr sn se
LA, ©
And
"Eu
2 The PL, YEN
j ppunl |]
worst |
D

"RS
The EEE

The ETR

wave Meter al

From EE Len EE To EE SE le ER SEE HO PE ee eo AE A TAEET LORS

It has 5 TE
– in Er PUR

D

V. – JEWISHNESS, A FORMULA OF JESUS. 9

displaying their money "earned" in a strange way, are the product of evangelical morality, of which I

Fr a EL Fe FN "re lg LE AT a: Ce ï
Ljuie to aXaf Ph nee Li 8 cui UT RENE

I just finished the presentation.

F: Everything, in the religious Code, called the New Testament, is favorable to accumulators of ri-Chess: everything is designed to constitute the respect for Your fortune and Your resistance to poverty

FRE xl _
EE EE

Es
: ;

AD Fou
D '& :

true.
However, these doctrines allowed Christ to live in a Uninterrupted material well-being. His life was a y ee Perrier

as PTE to

Mina ir A0 de ia Le he Re es dr
_-. on . "7 = F2

a succession of weddings and feasts at all the rich people's homes that he met, amidst the most beautiful courts sanes, under a sparkling sky and among the most lush nature.

His growing credit caused serious concern

x Li 0
Re EP OT NE ER LES AL st É ie Ni Fu OR CE EP ma
EE 9 ee LP rm LEE 2 eo pe pa LD 15 YEARS Ge Es ee = f

Rs

the Israelite Jewry that he fought against, and it was she ii out

Rs pv ut
Dec Her

HAS

who demanded his execution,

But the theory was not lost, and we we find ourselves closely linked to that of Moses, to throughout Christian history, up to our days when it intensified and disastrously

rs
ons pi Eng Dai
SC CI EN |
Te East SE
"E a ni F.

consolidated,

born

e. re po a SL Lo1 ES -

RES De ha E M" nes

SE EN EE PE LE PRE

D at LE re LS de tn LR on LS Ego - ee ee RC Le ET Ce OT = Fr Ars "tr TL En A eV Un een à VE PS PME ee QUE ren dE: :

ï

Fr a SL rate tr ENVY

er op
Jar
pa xn Ve m di LE on

;

D

nn: TL CE re Cp 2

fm PR qe Or eu

= Fe s = = hi 1 7
RTE LA FU To PEN + es - a : Es = AE :Z a Pre re - _ = on me Ji. : = æ 2 LR 1 z kr
* = 7 ee
k TL |
mi es. va ee Du À - me Eee oo à "= RTE ere Sn ,

FE
STE
I
Ye
The TC
THE :
That
arr
Dr. era
THE
all
EL
+
Es
1.2
+
CT a ns
FE - 6
THE (Aer EH rec
br D
1
"1 |
L57
++
THE T rare) ur +06 rer)
°r FM to
HAS E 5 A]
+4)
Li ol
D]
AA ÿ |
A Mr. Re
bu:
L 1 +
THERE to US

ù
dE qe LS. at 7, 2 OF A And ver
STE has Sr and SP

cts worst father NT wax CPR REN A 55
Mr. | Sr E "rs – A EAU STREETS Es per
CN ee PL

Hey, tire, ht er
EL. with head. Wa
RL has died
Er AU er M

; S
Re ET a EN em A CET

LUE Fe PM at ELLE PET ai = g se The brother RE ET dd pr ri D Hoghn Du EEE fÉnéne n jes Fe
ARE SME in Treo SAR A ST

Eee

as

PRET EL GE PU AE PME
RARE Er
HE F6 a D

VI
Development of Jewish communities.

The Masses of Clovis and Henry IV. – The Stock Exchange Coup of
The year 1600, – Pious wills, – Emancipation of the sworn, – The kings preaching on vases. – Jewish quarter of The Jews. – The Jews in France. – The Popes and the Jews. – l.imprimerie, – Discovery of America, – The Jewish community of Venice. – The counterfeiting kings. – The Fla-

[I do not fall within the scope of this introduction-tion to follow, among the various peoples, the history detailed account of the actions to which I have retained name of Jewish community.

It must not be forgotten, in fact, that I have mission to introduce the reader to the gallery of kings of the Republic, that it is the Republic

French, and that, consequently, I must concentrate-to focus all his attention on France.

I am taking France at the moment when the monarch-Clovis's dog has seriously formed, The 5$S HISTORICAL SUMMARY.

Christian ideas dominate, and it is absolutely certain that, well before Henry IV, he had understood what a mass could earn him.

The historians most faithful to Your tradition

mystics do not hesitate to acknowledge that the con-

Clovis's version rallied all the forces of clergy,

Undertaking a complete history of the consequences consequences of this policy, would absorb ve-lumes.

[] it will suffice for me to recall that the popes and the bishops became the main supporters of the royal power, which they offered to him the peoples dominated by religious superstition, in exchange temporary goods that the brutal power of kings consolidated power in their hands.

In the year 1000, Israelite Judaism was absolute-defeated; on the other hand, Catholic Jewry was all-powerful.

Her sovereignty was such that she could act with impunity-how to pull off the most gigantic scam known, by spreading and lending credence to the rumor that
The end of the world was coming.

Printing had not yet been invented: reading was a rare science; but Catholic Jewry had something better than newspapers: she had a tri-

Te ii Tr
ju Er LÉ KT,
, Vs UT
lepis: Read, AE

bia
el

sus PRET
Fa pi Én TE Le
HAS

PTE En nie Te TR
LT ' 3 Sr u arts ALES – SU

al ra PU JL

ant ae
Fe

4 L
BRAKES eq

PT Fi ein Da a berbr 8m PSS dt ruse pes ñ dif da:

HÉSENEPLLERR

—
PR
AE een

a ETC GR WILL HAVE ai

EE

sure D

sr

po

EE

i.e.

And

bn nd nn
"FERUL
RS ne te
FER DS

FT

; Free – Ares 4 . nai

| 55 7 ti ERP PE 1e as to

The vain A of PA And ET PA LT EE D EE
Rens nn SRE

HAS

Ft RL

Ge au) HE De riragrt STE a

. ET. ES 5

s sait *— : L des. l SE

A+ s FAT | ne Le À LE Port ns oh Du ne er TT e NES ho : " : 1

To a LUE To: a and L se of LEP ge M a AT Reese MA LL ae itasre, fe 4 RD rl a ts T Le nie are : + : Ie HR En J AA, dt 8 to ie of the LE " z

Lee ae J n wr' FE Re PR ape 7 EE En re Pi LC TN a" og PE y; its ER PS +

In nn" LE a Li : = L to Soil shit h Lg

Fes SUMMER mr js e n" AE 24 rie hr: ER NT Rae Las nd FH EE La RE re = er Vie hs Li, Res I Pat RE ES OR EE hÉ Su LE

You,

ru

CR pr

w,

I ARE rs
enr

nr

F ME P CAL

iris f

men Fr
27

VAR DEVELOPMENT OF JEWISH COUNTRIES, 9

bune in every church, and it is not a village that was not created around a bell tower.

based on the end of the world: "The stock market crash from Fan 1000,

Strangely exploiting ignorance and credulity of the clergy, which then constituted the true Catholic Jewry. promised I salute eternal in exchange for earthly riches.

At that time, there were thousands of donors testamentary in form, but perfect-irrevocable, in case of life, basically, labeled as follows:

© The end of the world being near, me. for the remedy for my soul and so as not to be put down among the mud... I give such soil, such may-"His, such and such property to such and such convent."

Catholic Jewry did indeed take possession of sion of the lands. The end of the world did not come, and, Incredibly, not a single one of these poor (able) people capable of telling themselves that, the end of the world naturally implying destruction property, the donation that the church was seeking was at least strange,

60 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

Soon the progress of humanity will be revealed, by the very force of circumstances, the Catholic Jewish community Lique had to take these advances into account.

She had been particularly involved in the crusades: She had put her hand on the corporations of the merchants third, all the arts were in motion for the luxury of the Church, and, secondarily, for that kings: therefore, since there were pledges, The Israelite Jewish community may have sought to stir up trouble and to be raised in France.

But the Catholic Jewish community had been keeping an eye on her: too did she apply herself, above all, to infiltrating the Islands laws; the Inquisition was one of its best means to defeat and dispossess Israelite Jewry of its riches,

For their part, the bishops had established a monstrous ridicule.

reading and writing, had gotten their hands on all the affairs, in Christian states.

Fous, the wills were their responsibility.
because they were supposed to contain a bequest to the Church.

However, any testator who had forgotten to make one of These "pious ones" were declared consecrated, that is to say...

to speak without religion

BE ut
A CUS TT D LT L'
f

ss. abs a | e 1 Ee- EG FE ji a | islands eu dt NU to AT Ie A EL LA TLEN vo ra QE ho So ae ue UT 4e Von) 270 2 EU ne ju EN

IE Er:

"Nnt

EM

at

Wa

E AND: S"
N'a VUS TN PONT at LP à Le, ES In R Le
L KT ce # l'ip Mis CPR Be 7 - | 1 Fi Cp mn TE nn LS can s RCE CE EE ee

ES OT AT FC er LE RE RO CE Po Le
MOTHER IN ie of THIS READ

FT: rh FT FF to rhin.

EL,

F-Rp"
Oh
(has AL
d ad is dar ein prie EU A Te pa

CS STE PE ONE a NIQUE RSA 2

ER EARE

" & FE db
mi RE NuLe Sp D

Ts

Æ

FE FE ge, Fr ù
dE Don El a SUP EL, ah 5 THEN THEN RE

Fi

I would say born
Fe g SR AT réch RF0 TA
= Fast LOT DAS ANT " "el pe

Sir Dix to Reda s

vi

D x Te CLP EEE

dass pas = :
- to mor rl

READ tt 06
nb ble;

+ 1 57 RSS
FORED RS

VI. - DEVELOPMENT OF JEWISH COMPARTMENTS. 61

Consequently, he was denied burial, we broke his will; the Church made one for him, and appropriated for herself what the dead man had... should have given it to him.

It will therefore come as no surprise, after what pre-gives in, and after the great Fan 1000 scam, to note, with Mr. Garnier, that in 1789, the pro-landed properties of the clergy occupied two-thirds from France.

In reality, I find, in these actions, the Moses' formula, declaring that the earth was not not the property of man, but that of God.

In the name of this same God, the clergy and the no-wounded, hand in hand, they monopolized everything.

Roman customs had, moreover, propagated the means of minting money through emancipation serfs, the Church encouraged etc. emancipation ly, not out of generosity, but out of calculation: for this is the rotation that was instituted:

The nobleman, possessing brute force, had the right of life and death over the serfs.

When he needed money, he cut some of it.
He knows some of them, for a fee.

The servant, having become master of himself, worked, eco-

But as he was quite ignorant of his own nature.

)

62 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

and submissive, out of habit, he easily takes pleasure in Ecclesiastical laws relating to wills.

Thus, Catholic Jewry was able to enrich itself at the expense of nobles and commoners.

As for emancipation for a fee.

It is undeniable: history has preserved many names of them. Numerous formulas: here is one dating from 1180:

Freed from Your hand and mouth, I de-
"Book of Customs of the Salic Law, John Pi-
"Tuna from Vice, that is to say from this village, in the-
"the "de vico", my man, and his His Héritages.
"I restore them to their senses: so "that his daughters may inherit, and I constitute the-
"said John and his sons, my free and honest men.
"And, for this honesty, I received 100 good "Viennese books,"

As the Jewish community develops.
The use of money is becoming more widespread.

It is, above all, from the time of Louis X and the emancipation of the growth of the municipalities that the currency com-begins to occupy a large place in all the transactions.

Age-related lending, especially practiced by

Israelites, rising to the throne,

Louis lends 20,000 écus to Marguerite of Anjou.
Queen of England, she pledged the city of Calais.

=
Er

F nr
EE
£
|
D
=.
L
4 d
"
4

DTA PL:

VI. – DEVELOPMENT OF JEWISH COMPANIES. 63

The same lends, again, to Jean IT of Aragon 700 men-at-arms, against the pledging of counties of Cerdagne and Roussillon.
–, : L
Finally, the same one, again, buys back moving
7 r.
100,000, the towns of the Somme that Char-
The VITs had been ceded to the Duke of Burgundy,

On the other hand, the Jews, who have long been had grown rich from Spain's laziness, ten-were forced to flee this country and ended up entering France, by way of a long detour through Italy,

If the history of the Jews in Spain entered within the framework of this book, it would be easy to deto show that the Jesuits were their successors and that after having, in turn, plundered the Peninsula, They left her in a state of stupor which
She had great difficulty getting out.

However, in France, being Jewish was not an enviable position, The establishments of Saint Louis had stated that the furniture Jews belonged to the barons.

Furthermore, they were serfs; every nobleman had his Jewish, that is to say, his supplier of money; and he

It was no more permissible, said Voltaire, to remove a

64 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

The Jew to his baron rather than take his commoners where his horses.

There is something even better, the clergy, when it does not could not burn the Jew 'the baron' + opponent.
sought to convert him so that, in his will-
In fact, the pious bequest was obligatory. But the seioath-makers, who were willing to use the clergy to to exercise their power in the name of God. and who find-
It was sufficient for them to comply, too, in this case
If necessary, to the pious bequest, they gave precedence, as a general law, that any Jew who converted to Christianity would, at the same time, lose all its goods, which would remain the property of the seieur.

So we were able to organize a rotation of swindlers inquiry: Jews hunted down or intimidated by the in-The inquisitions were pretending to convert; the baron preserved their properties and, naturally, the more E-

The more conversions she received, the more she made.

lihéralités.

The Jew was certainly not likeable.
and he too was a plunderer who had been forced to forbid lending on "san-" clothes
"oil-like or wet," an obvious way of preventing the taking as collateral of the clothes of a murdered man siné, and, consequently, to reduce assassinations for flight.

"1 r F LE LI n" Pi

Le Rd FA Ben 28 CRE ar lo JE pal = strain TT AT Ale te Pete PRE AD DRE Te 4e ET CT RE RS E ea SENS TE DE RE RE VOL ER rte en PER Tu NS AR de Te QAR crée us a 7 tn At ui gt rat

"
LS
"has
D could mt
'4
is
THE
HAS
D
ia |
THE"
-
Fe, ro
'41
=
FE
|

Er:
3 7
HAS Li
has '2
ER
L:
PC
Fig
LL:
THE | Î

at 4
el ñ
"2.]
#1
+
E. A.
Ki
174

THERE #

R 1

æ

Hey

THE

Ve,

OF

TR

Its

L- Lr,

=,

ct

LAS AFRO ea nr pin en

RE + af LS D 4

.

Eu

e

Mr.

RTE 2m 7th

S'RAAONRS RE

red

VI. – DEVELOPMENT OF JEWISH COMPANIES. 65

Moses, who, as we have seen, had forbidden to accept as a pledge "the orphan's clothing" or of the widow," he had therefore not foreseen everything, and the Catholic clergy, in turn, had to make ren- to issue an edict forbidding them from lending on church ornaments.

But the ignominy of some does not excuse the... family of others.

Let us note, in passing, that this is precisely the system- the system of extortion to which the Jews were subjected which inspired them to create the bill of exchange, an ingenious way of removing their wealth from any inquisition.

In any case, as early as 1394, they had been completely expelled from France. In Paris, they had occupied the Halles and seven or eight streets in thirds,

They were only left with synagogues at and Bordeaux, because these two cities do not belong. They were not then entitled to the crown. For example, they continually consider Avignon, which was a papal land, and it is not without interest to remark that the only city in Europe, one of which does not They never chased them away, it's Rome!

The popes have always had a soft spot for Jewish women. rie, taken in its exclusively Hinan- expression wrought iron; it is, moreover, an imitation of the excellent wrought iron 6.

66 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

cord in which Jesus lived with the public-eains.

Finally, do I need to point out with what The popes eagerly ennobled the Jews who Do they pay them a lot of money?

The Jewish community had therefore taken refuge, either in Holmoorland, whether in England, the North, in [Italy and in Hungary in the South.

It was in this situation that Charthe Quint, and I do not hesitate to say that this monarch-which in fact contributed powerfully to the restoration the ration of Jewish life in France, particularly Lierement.

Printing was discovered in 1450; in In 1470, during the reign of Louis XI, it was com-began to be printed in Paris; finally, in 1492, the Amé-The risk had just been discovered.

The empire of Charles V greatly facilitated the mixing of nations; gold suddenly became more abundant than it had ever been: the Jewish community Venice's influence spread throughout all the capitals, and finance, the skilled goldsmith who, borrowing from the Jews

VI. – DEVELOPMENT OF JEWISH COMPANIES. 67

a part of their processes, improved them by the application he made to the largest transactions commercial, Jacques-Cœur, in short, could have numerous imitators.

With Francis I, we enter an era of commerce and industry, art and fine arts.

In his time, the sons of Charles V, royally endowed with an appanage of 12,000 livres of annual income, would have been mere petty bourgeois, La falsi. coinage, so often practiced by the kings of France, will become more difficult, and auclin successor (the Frenchman [°° will not dare to rejoin to implement the ordinance of Philippe-de-Valois, enjoin allowing the mint officers to arrange bottle so that the merchants "don't notice" "Not that there has been a significant change" and their making them swear on the Gospel to keep the secret.

all the numismatic science of the Jews did not had no other motive than the need to distinguish the Title of the coins: their greatest skill has consisted of substituting for metallic currency 'which, Once recognized as being of poor quality, it can no longer (to be improved only by overhauling) a currency-paper, which is worth or not, depending solely on the the will of its creator

With Francis [°° Italian customs will diminisher; the merchants of Florence, with the Medi-

the HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS. &

cis, and the Jews with Zameti, will soon have the ways to establish a presence in France. 2

Politics will change its face, everything will, more than ever, to be made by money. The clergy and the The gold-laden nobility are triumphant; but their Ji luxury and their corruption will soon cause a a reaction that will provide Europe with two new Jewish quarters: that of the Protestant Jews and that of the Je-

Luther 1517, [nigo de Lovola 1521. |

dpi Éi bn M me dr and "... Best rÉ]
mn | er ee pral. to s'ae "4 Ets

ART Re SRE
Lee the Ethan the PA ce PA ES PRE D LE 2

%

U 4th
al
| The ai
to | laugh,
,

VE
|] |
"
uh Ts
of born laugh

VII

New Jewish quarters.
The Protestants. – The Jesuits.

Luther and Loyola. – Protestant Jewry. – Plundering of the abbeyes. – Venality of offices. – The finances of the rancois 1. – Ienri IV boursilleur. – Grouping of interests.
– The militias. – Jesuits in France. – The 32 million of the League, – Pledges to the Protestants, – The Jesuits at Paraguay, – Jesuitism and Judaism. – Massacre of the Vau-

I am obliged to summarize the following in broad strokes march of the centuries.

So two major facts emerged at fifteenth and sixteenth: the popularization of gold, through the discovery of America, and the reaction against luxury, through the reform of Martin Luther.

These two facts are, moreover, complementary silences.

We were surrounded by luxury: kings, nobles, and monks. overflowing with riches. The Pope was selling ir-

70 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

Dugences to supplement the product of the capture wills.

Martin Luther, with or without personal interest, attacked the scandals, debauchery and luxury of clergy.

He founded a school of thought and, no doubt, to win over the material force of kings he issued, not without habita doctrine according to which princes who,
Until then, they had been kneeling before the church.
had the right to confiscate his temporary property porels.

It was a terrible blow to the Jewish community.
Catholic and many princes became protestators in order to be able to seize, in the name of ÎJa new doctrine, treasures and domains of the Church.

Their example aroused popular greed and the
The people began to plunder the abbeys.

Moreover, printing had been invented, and this a way of popularizing thought had contributed already, powerfully, to shake the former prestige of theocracy.

On the other hand, since the extinction of the government feudalism, metallic currency in gold and in money had started to become the best mercenaries, a great specialty of the Swiss,

ed
-0n
ÿ
|
In]
3
Read

|
u
HAS
|
has “jl We
©
if cl
<
E
You
THE
n

r is L ce nuls -nbi ed va LL
RE TAN RTS NE RE EP

D ,
PART MES SR
AET The LEE

=,

PE CS
RENE EE

My in Me te

pn

rare ed

VII – NEW JEWISH STORIES. 71

The governing administration imitating the organization-the sation of ecclesiastical benefices, as well as, that of the offices, in the corporations, had taken based on the venality of offices, the realization of which The most complete sation flourishes in what one called the parliaments.

The tax system was rudimentary and,
Most often, arbitrary.

For example, Louis XII could not pay his trou-Swiss troops; they immediately besieged Dijon to to get paid.

But the king had no money; he had to make do with it.
to cure. Now, it will not be to pay, but to resist. Consequently, the first president, Du-Prat puts twenty councilor positions up for auction at Parliament, that's the taxman.

Another example: Francois I needs funds for his expedition to Italy; his chests are empty: he takes the silver grille, of which Louis XI had adorned the church of St-Martin of Tours, as well as the ornaments of the treasury and assign the payment on royal estates. It's a forced loan.

Protest of the clergy, remonstrances of the Parliament and, finally, the king's order, transmitted by Island
Captain Frédéric, who triumphs over resistance.

This is the era when Israelite Jewry, coming from and from Italy, begins to naturalize in

72 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

France, trains of all kinds, and a prelude to
The financial organization of modern times.
At the accession of Henry IV, venality had become general nuisance. The Parliaments were a hotbed improbable. 1

Henry readily admitted it, [when he came | to that of Paris, to obtain from him, through flattery, k that he recorded the Edict of Nantes. 1

The king spoke in these terms: .

"I love my Parliament in Paris, it's the only one:"

"a place where justice is served, it is not corrupted |

"by money. In most others, justice- Ė

"Tice is sold there, and whoever gives 0,000 crowns wins |

"On the one who gives less."

And 1l adds:

"I know this because I once helped to bour--

"to silvigate; but this served me for certain purposes"

"Individuals."

We are, truly, disarmed in the presence of a pa
a language that is both cynical and naive.

Moreover, nothing could better support this royal observation that this other observation of Sully stated that in 1596 150 million was raised:

on the French people to bring in, approximately.
30 in the Roval treasury.

To Een

ER Eee LE dd ce

CAT EE DE a) PET 2 SE a ee =

PES LE) DEA em Ex Mn og Ps à ANS LE mt 0 LS 4

Rs

e 1,

"E El

EA RSS

i.e.

VII. – NEW JUIVERKIES. 15

has not been modified by modern progress CT 11 will, in a way, be easy for me to demonstrate that only the figures have changed.

Since the feudal power was defeated in breach, since the power of the Church is discuté, l'Esemble que chaque catégorte d'intérêts cher-to form a troop to defend themselves against other categories.

The merchants have their provost and the Church com-ence to lose some of its power on the corpores.

The monks, secluded in their cloisters, admitted already given the example of parasitic coalitions, mid-its under the direct protection of Your divinity, and un-linked under the papacy.

However, this compact Jewish community, which oppressed the popular mass, divides into sections, and each The h'onçon is agitated, like a cutting snake in PIECES.

The struggle is becoming widespread: the creation of a mihhiee.
half civil, half religious, inspired by the
The first ambition that came to mind is, certainly, in the movement of the era.

74 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

The Spaniard Loyola created this piece: she does not delay in taking a development Extraordinary, Spain and the Jesuits will... now weigh on France.

Do I need to remind you what role FEspa- played?
Entering the league? With what incredible boldness!
Did the Jesuits want to take over France?

Henry IV had to defeat all the coalitions religious associations, that is to say all the Jewish communities.

All religious orders carried the musket time, and, today, that they no longer have hope—rancid to absorb the direct government, priests and religious people want to avoid military service ture: soldiers against the nation, yes! for [a nation, no!

As for the Pope (Gregory XIV), he was already quite rich for CH\0XCr troops to the aid of Ja hiuue and supply the factious people of Paris with 15,000 li-lives pal MONTH.

For his part, Henry IV continued to gamble
As I myself said: he bought, at a good price ringing coins, the principal leaders of the rent.
just as, today, P England buys Indian rajahs and Egyptian pashas: just like Our financiers buy off civil servants and Journalists,

That one | neither der TE to a #1 7 g Li it mirl C? . Bip LQ
DT RO SE Cat PDP ARLE EC TE ERA LU RE

== + The PRO Tex F æ . ==
This EE does not The year

Your

DU er M CES NE

VII. – NEW JEWISH STORIES. 49

Sully recounts that the conscience of the leaguers cost the king 32 million.

I will not attempt to recount his mini-tere, which would lead to too much detail; moreover—
I have deliberately neglected certain facts, such as the Saint Bartholomew, who would have offered too much of a field favorable to my thesis; indeed, this massacre, under Charles IX, like the league, under Henry IV,

the most shameless tions,

It will suffice for me to note, quickly, the existence-maintenance of material interests dominated by the Jewish-laughs, and, whatever the idealistic pretexts, providing for all coalitions.

Just as the Jews had synagogues in Metz and Bordeaux, and citizenship in Avignon, Similarly, the religious idea of the Huguenots is transuited by the possession of safe places, such that Montauban and La Rochelle, by admission to all jobs and by the wages of their pre-very,

As for the Jesuits, although recalled to France-this by the same Henry IV, whom they assassinated, they began to turn their gaze towards the islands foreign pavs and soon went to exercise their jui-verie in the form of a mission; we find them in Paraguay where they founded, in 1610, a verit-

ï 3 = "4
The AI AR RE Vo pt
L s, w À &

DR The

-

ST

7 dry

76 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS,

a kingdom from which they drew powerful riches, |

The Bishop of Mexico wrote to Pope Inno-hundred \ :

"All the riches of these provinces. Two of their colleges own 300,000 sheep, 6 large "sweets, some of which are worth nearly a "million of crowns: they have very large silver mines"
"rich; their mines are so considerable that they-
"they would suffice for a prince who did not recognize
"And no sovereign above the Jews."

It is certain that these riches have not lost, and when the Jesuits could no longer, di-To exercise their sovereignty, they arrange things.
rent, as is their custom, so as to have front men,

The exploitation of Paraguay certainly yielded
The idea of the first East India Company. More Later, their actions were still being observed in the middle of...
Law's speculations,

It should therefore not be surprising if, even today
Today, they have a hand in all the coalitions.
financial, commercial and industrial and econ-they contribute powerfully, alongside the Jews, and even with them, complicating all discussions economic,

CAIN EE AND

summers TC dre
PTE ERA

MT pr Ê

Sins a ca mi ÆT Nue Le PE Me
PT See Ms 0 A MO LE EN mu Me

ia ÉviÈ
1. Jr d ee A, me 2"

ES "1 Fe F bon' . - ne
FER AS LE ie. ; = , :
TR ae Eh Ep D ut sm Le pin, D = SE juice

1

"|
,
L)
d
D

| d
:
15 here]
I
%
OEA
READ
Es
LL
there 413
1
FT

VII. – NEWS FROM JEWITH STORIES, 11

They have, moreover, carefully preserved the ecclesiastical custom of having wills made in their favor.

Finally, things reached the point where morality: Jesuiticism has become synonymous with $\ddot{y}\#$ -daique.

Those who wrote history did honorneur to the Jesuits of the Paraguayan civilization.

Nothing could better demonstrate the drawback
That he should write history by judging actions, not by their motive, but by their result.

Thus, we arrive at the theory of necessary evil.
sari and to the legitimization of all infamies, under the pretext that their consequences reveal social improvements,

We don't consider that, through this reasoning, we prepares reactions that constantly paralyze the definitive reforms.

I will give one last example, taken from the reign of Francois I, |

It relates to the unspeakable massacre of a peaceful colony, inhabiting certain valleys of Provence and the Dauphiné, I want to talk about Voodoos.

All historians agree that

These people were hardworking, just, and frugal.

d

15 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

regularly paying their dues, but not recognizing—nascent point, for about 200 years, the pre—dominance of the Catholic clergy.

That was enough; they were burned, they were shot with arquebuses. They were stripped with the utmost cruelty.

All moralists condemn this infamy.

but, the same people are careful not to say that line—The interest of the sky was quite secondary and that these Vau—I must, having no priest and not enriching myself the Church, were to be subdued by force and fire.

This matter was discussed in the Parliament of Paris: The Pope feared the light so much that he intervened. through the intermediary of the vice—legate of Avignon, re—demanding that no one should have to judge "murders" committed in papal lands.

Parliament disregarded this, ordering some executions; unnecessary stops; most of the cut—bles was spared punishment by the credit of the Cruise's house.

I must emphasize this fact of the intervention direct of the popes, every time that Jes goods or the fortune of their associates, priests, monks or

They readily adapt to all the Jews.
veries, provided that Ja leur is not touched. Au-today. As I write these lines,

has pa s ei
A1=
el
has
+
EL be at EL.
f-
[
HAS
al
1 2." î
Po

That 1 n
B.
Ent
has x.
RT7

SU to gg
Ha TT D ne 2 ed: x. ErE AN 7 0 a en le, sr
ed ne D 0r re ne. ne Jah gro

PPS PP ER RE
HS NUS SE LT -

4

: THE -- if
Re TT EE MAY D

FOR el LTAT ab TE

|
HAS
|

this RE PES

pactk doici Eu is in:
Em mg | A
CEURRS Eee" TENT AE PS

AND

born
"HAS

PE era mue
d hr a Tm me ALL

L

do he ddr ne ii 1
RE LM pe cet ef PE AT PE Er A ST CP PE re En

rats
Es ft year. LI us M Poe ag a Ten. Cle

DE pu ue doter SU

Lratpihode

5 CURE A TEA

pe

Atos Fe EF LF
TEE: Enrh Re Pau
LT PS TR SU ES

ss EP L SERRE

PV LA has an arc
Pa er en ray Dur RE UE Mel LES Fm

Ø ON RS

this is Te
J FE CR ENT Tr

rs rs EE LL
Lt EE RC ee 11 ji
MALE AT Plan r

RARE VER mate. Ge, qu,

D mé RENE r pate
ER nn
READY Do you know?

a Le
DE ture

D AND AU, CPU to EL no EE

'SUMMER SET'

VII. – NEW JEWISH STORIES. 79
in 1853, if the reforms did not reduce the resources of the churches and clergy, 11 there would not be No dispute: the Pope would not complain.

or if one does not practice.

The popes, moreover, have an infallible barometer-blue, imitated from that of Mazarin.

Mazarin said: The people sing, therefore he will pay.

The Pope can say: Lèé clerzé palpe, therefore we practical.

After that, the money can come from wherever he wants: Money is everything. Royalty is a title: money, That's power.

The Catholic Aeolus is the first organization the world's financial center, because it encompasses all the islands

Jewish quarters, gum om = – sex ete, ms "I er a en + – : z ui È

np se " = E – La – LE 3 L =: É

a ep 0 pme ee a =. = . = _

HE = as

at pds ea In view TE 1 Ér] ao ir rie chgbé RAS PET mA Pate eo PL LEE

PPS as EN ne to LE DE PRE ONES MO DATE

1st qu

III
Transformations. – Invasions.

Accomplices and victims, – Concentration of wealth, – Li-
The suppression of the Church. – The liquidation of feudalism. – The hourageoisie, – [Foreign traders. – Richelieu. –

Parliaments. – Offices up for auction. – Power of S9 and the Code. – The chambers of justice. – Ligotage official, – The tax farmers. – Foreign invasions

oeores,

I believe I have sufficiently demonstrated, by what preceding, that Christianity and its derivatives, far to be in opposition to the Jewish organization of material interests, they borrowed all his prescriptions by perfecting them.

Furthermore, with less initiative and more re-In its sign, Catholicism is, inevitably, doomed to to be, at the same time, the accomplice and the victim of the vora-Jewish city.

If there has been war and if there has been antagonism between the two clergy, it's more out of jealousy of profession that is based on respect for principles.

82 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

Thus the Jewish community is constituted for the sake of the domi.
To ner the Catholic Jew: and if the latter wakes up, what Sometimes in a feverish movement, it is for sometimes asking for charity and sometimes for fraud.
rather than haughty reforms, the revenge of his defeats.

Having said that, I won't push it any further. far from my demonstrations. I don't have to rewrite in-üierement the history of France; but, upon arriving In the time of Louis XI and Louis XIV, I must especially to condense the actions of all the parasitic coalitions that constitute what I have ap-Pele Ja Juiverie,

Furthermore, company liquidations will follow one another.
yield at closer intervals, dega-thus spontaneous application, to all history theory of the economic system, to which Moses referred given the name "Jubilee,"

[It is undeniable that, through various methods-

a small number of hands, and when the disproportion reached its final limits, a reaction violent action takes place, which, for a certain time, restores the balance. Now, if it is unstable, it is because it Jewishness alone destroys it.

We have seen, with Henry [V], the beginning of the liquidation of the Church's wealth, thanks to the

has

VIII. — TRANSFORMATIONS, INVASIONS. 89

the greed of another Elise, following in the footsteps of Luther,

Between these two coalitions, the feudalism (we have seen) usually, already fortified, defends what remains of resistance to him, provided he has some 30 million.

We will now see that this same feudalism seeks to regain power under Louis XIII, and that, in order to silence her, he nothing less than the axe wielded by Richelieu.

At that moment, we witnessed a double spectacle: On the one hand, royal power absorbing all the feudal apologists, and exercised by ministers all too young.

On the other hand, the bourgeoisie, rising gradually, recruiting its main leaders from among the Italian or cosmopolitan dealers who are starting to flood France,

These are called, first of all, Concini and Galigai, quite worthy of getting along with the Medici. They are soon replaced by Albert de Luynes, which is limited, with an almost aristocratic name, to imitate his predecessors,

Milk, a clean slate; Calvinist republics are crushed; he dies, after having favored their ten-

R{ HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

dances in Germany 'as if to move Pagitation by pushing it out of France, and is found having facilitated the conclusion for the Italian Giulio Mazarini-sion of the Treaty of Westphalia.

This treaty consolidates power in the hands of the princes Lutherans, the possession of ecclesiastical property, and grants Protestantism the right of citizenship in Europe,

History, which periodically reproduces the same situations. Will soon find himself in the presence of of a liquidation similar to that which was enshrined
the Treaty of Westphalia,

The day is near when the nation, in revolt, ob:
It will also link to a treatise on Hquidation, no longer to | Outside, this time. But inside.

Indeed, 11v will have taken possession violent destruction of property of all kinds, secular and religious.
hisieux, accumulated from Louis XIIE until Louis XVI; these properties will be called national:
a law will consecrate ownership in the hands of their new owners, while a another law will enshrine human rights, such as the Treaty of Westphalia had enshrined the rights Protestants,

Thus everything expands; all interests descend-tooth from ten to one.

VIII. - TRANSFORMATIONS, INVASIONS. 09

It took approximately one hundred and fifty years to ac-
} to complete this evolution.

1 But, in the meantime, Jewry will have taken and still greedy.

As soon as the individual emerges from the coalitions, she will become attached to him, sweet and deceitful, and he making people believe that the anonymous association has nothing It will absorb what it has in common with the corporation. She will swindle him, and rebuild, from his ruins, a new feudalism, whose appalling actions will make another liquidation inevitable social donation,

But that's where we're headed.

The despotism of Louis XIV was the main organizer of all future land grabs;

It was during his reign that the pretexts of taxation, taking on the most multiple and most extravagant, further enrich the collections authors.

It was at this time that a crowd was imagined unpopular taxes, and, among others, the one on the houses built in the suburbs; then they created

8

S6 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

annuities, repayable, and they wanted to force the citizens to buy 15,000 pounds worth of new annuities,

Now, with the bourgeoisie in parliament, the parliamentment had become extraordinarily financial for his own account.

And then, the bourgeoisie was jealous of the no-wounded and we only had a hold on her through the means of aristocratic trinkets, titles and distinctions.

It was the parliament that was the center where... recruited all the people dedicating themselves today to what is called "[justice].

It is in the parliamentary spirit that all the Officials drew on commercial instinct.

How could it be otherwise?

[there is not a single one, even now, who does not find, in his family history, the so-to come from some position paid for with good money coiptants.

People paid to be advisors in parliament.
The right to judge, a royal right and duty, can be bought!

All the magistrates of the kingdom were required, from nine every nine years, paying a tax called the right of Paulette; this payment ensured the session of the burden within the family.

We paid (and at auction, please), to be

VIII, – TRANSFORMATIONS. INVASIONS, St

advisor to the king, to be controller of timber heating, to be a sworn wine auctioneer, to be sworn hay seller, for ctre stockbroker, for our receivers of the quaternary finances. I am not speaking Not prosecutors and bailiffs; the prosecutors are now called notaries and solicitors, and the Bailiffs have not changed their name.

It was the bourgeoisie that funded these expenses:
It was therefore put under strict control; in turn, she was putting the popular, her song.

On the other hand, in addition to special taxes, the
The monarchy collected general taxes.

With the theory of the venality of all the charges, 1l it was impossible that we wouldn't reach that point to the official institution of the tax farmers.

Had the Jews not existed in the world, that system they would have invented.

From that time onward, their power grew it was no longer supposed to stop, Today, the old organization still exists in fact; also, more than ever–
But the spirit of Tralie dominates everything.

Leon! The judge, it is true, no longer pays his salary;
but everything that surrounds and encloses it paid !

This abnormal situation, combined with traditions,

88 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

Even unconscious, from the past, makes people justice, a prey ripe for the machinations of all the Jewish quarters; also, the magistrates would need a an exceptional dose of self-sacrifice, and the philosopher one might wonder whether, in the social organization, as it exists, this exceptional selflessness-nelle is favoured (1.

The immorality that developed under the reign of Louis XIV had become such under his succession-sister, queen 1716 one had to re-establish, especially against the financiers, a chamber of justice.

The state owed 900 million in arrears:
The king's revenues did not amount to 69 million.

The court of justice had to discover the fortune

(1) The idea that the right to administer justice constitutes not a mandate but a property acquired by the husbands, is so so deeply ingrained in their minds that, even when they want to demonstrate independence, they let this preoccupation show through.
cupation,

A counselor at the Court of Amiens has just written to the warden seals, following the vote on the law on judicial reform-ciaire, the following lines:

"I cannot accept or submit to the downfall of the magist& trature.

"However, I insist on setting the time myself at the-which I will resign the office which is my property, in
"by virtue of a contract, as the rank is the property of the officer-
"cier. Also, this is to clearly and publicly characterize-

|

"My situation, my feelings, and my independence are being questioned,"

VIII. – TRANSFORMATIONS. INVASIONS. 89

of 4,410 people: they were taxed: they wanted to to force them to pay 219,400,000 pounds.

He only brought in 70 million.

From then on, efforts were made to perceive, indirectly, through a series of frauds, which could not
To collect directly. Official speculation was born.

It is at this moment that Jean Law appears, whose the bold designs made, provisionally, a savior for royal finances.

The Jews had long since monopolized the currency, and, at first glance, the "system", as it was called before, resulting in degradation
the money, in exchange for the paper, could be accepted as being a serious weapon of war against them.

Ultimately, it was childish to believe that the
The inventors of the bill of exchange would not know, in turn, skillfully maneuvering with the paper by Jean Law.

An ordinance of May 30, 1718, relating to the currency reform, had decided that the mark
That would be worth 60.
those who would take the old ones to the Mint of silver, which was worth 40 pounds government promises or state-backed carnations, with a certain amount of money, at 40 pounds nuraires le marc, would receive the total payment of their money and their cash notes at 60 books.

90 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

From June 20th onwards, parliament resisted: it ignore it.

It is important to clearly specify the Advent of the new method according to which we will extract, hence—but, the money from the pockets of those who contribute bubbles, inais do not yet bear this name.

An intermediary was placed between the king and his subject.
Diary: the corporation of general farms.

The ideal of the tax farmers is, for me to use a vulgar expression, "to skin I "public without making them shout."

The entire system can therefore be summarized as follows: en—to pocket a lot of money without anyone noticing
(OIVE, |

The scam proceeds in no other way; lagio—
Speculation has no other purpose: but speculation does not will only triumph completely when he is anonymous nyme in all its operations.

The scam will not be carried out without difficulty.
legalized: there will be bankruptcies, riots,
blood,

Between the time when the tax farmers, masters of France in their capacity as agents officials in power will have exercised all the powers relationships, and the moment when other farmers generally

raux, also masters of France, in the capacity

VIII. – TRANSFORMATIONS,. INVASIONS. y] of shadowy intermediaries, dominating power, will have been able to continue absorbing all the wealth of the country, they had to go through the courts revolutionaries and by the Scaffold,

However, if history, recounting the same concerns—wealth transfers, observes, in the present era,
the same consequences of oppression and ruin,
she could not refuse to predict the repeat—the same reprisals, and she must say so very high, in order to fulfill its role, which includes both information and a warning.

I will therefore not dwell on the history of the legend, to the history of Louis XVI, to the history of the Revolution.

The era of synthesis is over; it's time for study—to control the invading units that are rising.

Men are, moreover, beginning to take a huge place in the events because the Powerful individuals are multiplying against the king to absorb the monarchy; against the people, to cut it to their heart's content.

And then, the catastrophes of 1793 are imminent.

nents;; if I were to tell them, I would be obliged to re—

92 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

to produce, in this place, everything I have written in High finance and the FRevolutions.

I will simply note that the era of Jean Law attracted a lot of traffickers to France all nations: on one side, the Jews, perfection-born in contact with England, on the other hand, the calwinemakers from Germany and Switzerland, not to mention the contingent sent by Holland, Spain and Italy, not to mention the Jesuit coalition—tic, who claimed, on the ruins of the unbeliever—the state of the century, to rebuild religious power by rallying to its side the gentry that the beyond—the arrogance of the financial bourgeoisie had exasperée.

We will soon see that this alien invasion the work took on new proportions in 1815, which it It was perfected in 1855 and 1872; that today—Today, finally, the whole of France is in the hands of foreign Jewry, with the accomplice national Jewry.

Individual hoarding. – Men.

Jacques Cœur. – Agnès Sorel. – Zaméti. – Gabrielle

d'Estrécs. – François d'Orléans. – Sully. – Fouquet. – Colbert.

– Samuel Bernard. – The Farming Companies. – Tem-

Pier. – Jlénaul. – Boulogne. – Jean Law. – The Condés. –

The Paris brothers. – The Marquise de Prie. – Carlier. –

Popelinière, – Dupin. – Bourret. – Poisson, – Bertin, –

The Jews of Metz and Alsace. – Abbé Terray and the

4 Du Barry. – A union. – The Jewish farmers. –

Arrest of the tax farmers. – Robespierre. – The kings dominated by the Jews. – Henry V.

The new Jewry possesses an army which all soldiers are generals.

; I must therefore, to facilitate the transition between the | synthesis and monographs, take enough above the indications relating to men, mê-HN Jlant, chronologically, the good and the bad.
The first one who comes up to me, with ti-
| more than sufficient to be included in my list,
| belongs to the fifteenth century.

Jacques Cœur (1480–1161) was a goldsmith and

94 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

a skilled refiner: with him, the State became a merchant:
cant. [He had correspondents abroad, and lit to make his services available by lending to Charles VII 200,000 gold crowns to help him in the conquest of Normandy,

[He was very well protected by Aunes Sorel; then, des-alleged to have defaced the coins.

of gold, and he is banished. He immediately becomes a fornisseur, lends money to Pope Callixtus LIT for fight the Durcss, tethmeuri'anCypre Len the AGM.

Jacques Cœur had owned land and selgneuries having more than ten fms of circumference, between other Ja land of Saint-Farseau,

– About a hundred years later, the banker appears Italian Zamnetti (TaS0-16 1%), a former shoemaker of Lucques, who came to France with the Medici, This ban-Quier became wealthy, above all, through the salt farm or the æabelle; he was the financial provider for Henry II and his entourage; later, he subsidized the Livue. His hotel on Cherry Orchard Street was a Florentine palace, he lent money to Henry IV for the game and for his mistresses, for the humonkeys and for the looters. He was accused of having poisoned (Rabrielle d'Estrées, I married Henri IV) with Marie de Medici. His fortune was immense, and

IX, -- INDIVIDUAL ACQUISITION. 95

This earned him the title of Baron of Murat and Billy.
that his heirs wore.

– As long as the Italian shoemakers of-
They became barons by becoming bankers, 1l ny there was no reason for the gentlemen
They don't concern themselves with finances. Among them, I...
I will quote the French superintendent, Marquis d'O, sei-Lord of Fresnes, a Norman (1575-1594), player risky and very expensive, in the meantime Catholic-a convinced and very devoted follower of Flenri [IF; one to him owes the first lotteries and life annuities.

– 'out different was Maximilien de Béthune, duke of Sully (590-1610), Huguenot, enemy of luxury and Superintendent of Finance, IT trades in horses; he inaugurated the system of requisitions violent. He amasses wealth, he becomes considerably richer-He deserves the epithet of miserly; but he is needs a little order in the finances and some examples of integrity.

About forty years later, I find Wico-Las Fouquet (1652-1661). He belonged to a race mother, a Maupeou. He borrowed a lot, thanks to Mazarin, to the Jews of Genoa, Florence and Venice. Very debauched, having aroused the jealousy of King Sun, he spent 30 million to adorn his castle water of Vaux, the accusation was brought against him of speculation and accumulation. Its main processes consist of the use of lotteries and annuities viaseres ef des tontines.

96 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

– Here, now, is Jean-Baptiste Colbert 1661–1689. This one, whom some claim to be the son of an cloth merchant from Reims, and others they descend from a noble Scottish family, made his first experience was as a bank clerk– Florentine quiers Cenarni and Maserani. Colbert, nah– less, hated the tax collectors; he had contributed to accuse Fouquet; his usual methods were the confiscations of offices and the elimination of rent quarters: 1l operated the chamber of Justice against the financiers. But he's a man. orderly and a skilled administrator, we owe him the First idea of consumption taxes; 1l fostered the creation of several ac– companies tionaires, among others, those of India, of the Mexico, Senegal and Canada.

– I come to Samuel Bernard, engraver (1685–1730. He is a Jewish discounter, a supplier to the armies; He quickly became rich enough to lend money thirty million on farm notes and twenty-five millions on a single banknote from the king. His apologists admit that he acted in a way "to make himself completely "days master of prices and rates of each "Something, and he was definitely playing that game." Is this...

IX. – INDIVIDUAL HOLDOVER.

famous for its monopolization of all the wines of Es– loincloth. Great bon vivant, great debaucher, Jew of Louis XIV and Louis XV he owes, to so many qua– titles, letters of nobility, and buys counties and marquisates. His eldest son was called count de Rieux, the younger, Count of Coubert: his daughter married President Molé; the Boulainvilliers and the Cosse–

It is no wonder, then, that we see, under the regency, The gentry, Judaizing to excess! Party of nothing, Samuel died with over sixty thousand lions of fortune.

– Vojei the beginning of the iron companies-taxes. More than ever the bourgeoisie
The nobility escaped through millions.

– In 1677 Tempier and Co. had, for thirty-seven nillions, the aids and domains, the salt tax and the five large farms. Among the co-farmers, we find first, the ancestors of many magistrates ac-tuels and a large number of financiers. He + to D'erthelot, rue de la Cerisaie, .Blin, rue Saint-Roch, Homanet, rue Kainte-Croix-de-la-Bretonnerie, Îles L'Huillier brothers, summer. /

10. HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS,

– In 1704, a new lease: forty-one thousand lions and three million pins, passed on in the name of Charles-Feruand and Co. Among the co-farmers we We find Arnauld, rue d'Anjou, in the Marais (of the lamille of Arnauld-d Andilly-Pompone; Hénault, street du Bouloi, (he's the millionaire president sung about) by Voltaire: Legendre, Place des Victoires, fannile still financial; Grandea, a group of bankers, who owned almost all of the NKeuve-des- street Small Fields.

– In 1715 it was the Verville Company that-
The farmer came for seventy-six million.

There one finds the Messrs. de Boulogne, perpetually financiers, and also the Jontiqny; then, Messrs. de Montimerque, who became magistrates; then the Pairs Who, later, wrote to each other from Azy and called themselves also Benoist.

All these partners sublet their farms with benefits and risk cancellation. Treaties passed from hand to hand, until the big bouroeeois who lent money to the Company of [lernes au denier 2, |

We shudder at the thought of what it must have cost to the people, the millions advanced by the farmers.

Here, now, is the king of gamers, Jean Law:
He is the one who replaced the tax farmers. His bank gives 200 000 of Benelices, the shares

IX. – INDIVIDUAL HOLDOVER. 99

They then rose from 500 pounds to 10,550 pounds, then at 20,000 in 1719, but they fall in-following o books (December 31, 1720). Parliament orders his arrest; the regent milk escape,

As we can see, modern methods have not Nothing innovates.

After this bankruptcy, Law traveled around Europe
He was regarded and adored by all the princes: he died at Venice in 1729.

The Condé family owes him the greatest part of his fortune and the current Lau- family Riston belongs to his descendants.

Law had foreseen the Bank of France and the Credit Land; His system perished through exaggeration of fictitious capital.

Who would dare say that in our time the mass of

Our institutions will not perish in the same way?

Money is increasingly becoming the symbol of royalty; princes play like servants:
In turn, the servants play like princes.
Soon we won't be able to tell them apart anymore.

The nobles spend lavishly: the servants accumulate, and, from 1734 to 1745, these are the sons

100 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

from an innkeeper in the Dauphiné who will run the Scepter of Your Finance: the Paris brothers.

These individuals leased the general farms that

But, after his downfall, the regent recalled them. The four brothers worked extensively with the Marchioness of Pray, businesswoman, as Voltaire said, Hille, a contractor, Mr. de Pléneuf, a friend of the agio-Bourbon, to whom Law had made sixty millions to which we owe Chantilly), and, Finally, the last asset with all the financiers of the era.

When Cardinal Fleury was minister, he emptied Bastilla, without ceremony, one of the Paris brothers. This cardinal had, moreover, adopted the system which consisted of was trying to extort money from financiers, which is, like I, Pat, demonstrated the application, in reverse, of the jubilee. of Moses, for it is the forced jubilee. The descendants The people of Paris called themselves Count de la Blache and marquis de Brunois, It is good to take these into account racial mixing: they explain the baseness of our aristocracies.

The number of obscure commoners, who put the hand to the general farms, raise their fortune to the detriment of the general public, believes by day In Daylight.

– The ball of 1728 was granted to Pierre Carlier and

IX, – INDIVIDUAL GRABBILITY. 101

Louis Bourgeois, for seventy-six thousand lions.

'Among the farmers of that era, I must mention a few names.

First, Alexander Joseph the Rich of Popelinière (1720-1760), a bon vivant and a Don Juan, famous-marked by its scandals and its squandering, which which, moreover, earned him the removal of his position.

I must then mention Claude Dupin, a former captain, and his wife Madame Dupin, a great friend by Jean-Jacques Rousseau.

Then, another bon vivant, from the Live d'Epinay (1730-1760), deposed in the same way as Popelinière and for the same reasons, a great friend of man-Lady of Pompadour.

– I'm moving on to a financier who, in his spare time Remorse, produced some beautiful pages: it is Helvétius, belonging to a family of doctors. He had the sincerity to write that: "The actions of "Man's desires are determined by pleasure and by "Selfishness," it was confessing his entire existence whole.

I must also mention the Grimod family of the Reynière, those of Cazes, that of Joly, including the names are still known today.

– The lease of 1740 was held by Bourret and for a figure of eighty-five million. Bourret is rich enough to offer to Louis XV, in the forest of Sénard, a lunch that cost him 300,000 Hvres.

J.

102 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

Around Jui, we find the de Beauimort, Inagis– The Laborde family, financiers of Spanish origin, the Hague family, and finally the Masade family.

– With the lease of 1763, given to /ean-Joseph Prerét, for ninety million, one Here appear the Bordas, the d'Agincourts, the d'Ar– Lincourt. The Boismont family. The La [lante] family, the Haudry family the SOUL, the Sainte-Amaranthe, the Sénæ and the Lronchin.

Among the bankers and suppliers of the time. I must also mention Aarignu, the lady's brother. of Pompadour. We know that Pompadour and Marienx Their father was the general supplier Poisson, whose name has been perpetuated, in finance, until our days,

– Besides the tax farmers, he was dealing with the con-general financial troleurs.

Among them, we must mention Jean Berlin, who, for the first laws, since the Middle Ages, officially negotiated– Heavenly and in the name of the treasury, several loans with the Jewish community of Metz and A sace, These, for their first Blow, lent to State ten million at 24% compound interest, by year, taking, as a guarantee, the income of two provinces, these loans did not arouse any

IX, — LL INDIVIDUAL ACCUMULATION,, 103

anger, but Jean Bertin resorted to taxation and
The parliaments became angry,

The disorder of the finances and the ruin of the country were the direct result of the actions of all these Financials. To keep them in check, one needs a a Jew more Jewish than they are: and it is to a clergyman, Laboé Terray, supposedly an enemy of the Jesuits, that [70

1374. Naturally the system he employs con-

we agree with the general control of finances!
insists on reducing annuities. on canceling the effects of treasure in circulation, which ruined many settlers and bankers, but what does not preventcha not to bring it to one hundred and eighty million the lease of general farms,

This was, as we can see, the direct application of the ecclesiastical reaction, that is to say, the Jewish community stripping the Jewish community.

I can summarize this abbot's theory in one word:
Someone was complaining to Jui that, with his system, he would soon come to take the money in the pockets.

– Or where on earth do you want me to take it? re-laid the words of Abbot Terray.

He was, in fact, very rich personally. surrounded by women, – among others Madame du Barry, – and deeply implicated in a flurry of speculations.

to flourish the financial school of Geneva. Already, in the royal almanac of 1764, one could see, under the rubric: bankers for drafts and place remittances in place, MM. Thélusson, Necker et Cie, rue Michel-le-Comte.

I will not attempt to recount either Necker or [alonne; I will only say that with them the games Stock market transactions take on an almost legal character.

A triumvirate that caused quite a stir and that reminds us of our current unions, which were composed of ('lavière, Genevan banker, of Canon Sahuquet d'Espagnac and Abbot Charles-Maurice de Tal-The yrua ncl- P,. rigord ,

We are approaching the final liquidation 1790-1792), We resort to assignats, the sv- The practice of confiscations is becoming widespread.

The National Convention sees three rise up bitter enemies of the tax farmers:; Pun was the chemist Fourcroy; the other, a former cornetie named de Montaut and finally .fnfoine Dupin, ex-farm worker.

The last lease had an unknown Jewish label. testable, 11 had been passed in the name of Darid, Sa-Lazar and Mager.

The great fortunes, discovered among the iron-

The first generals had terrified the Convention.

IX. - INDIVIDUAL LAND HOUSEHOLD ACCUMULATION. 105

David, Salazar and Mager were closely watched, res-titled 7%5 million; they thus confessed their abuses.

[They would have paid even more, either ostensively, as if by transaction, either in secret, to buy their impunity, if Robespierre hadn't took over the management of the social liquidation which was necessary,

Thirty-five tax farmers were arrested and I note, among their names, those of Messrs. Clément Papillon de Hauteroche, Gibert Neuilly, François Borgeot; Laleuse de (rrille, Balthazar Danger-Ba-aneux, J.-B. Boulogne, Marie de la Haute, Noël De-tisine, Didelot, Duvancel, eLC., they were judged... on knows the rest.

In 179, a remarkable event occurred.

Hit a procedure to rehabilitate the farmers ge-orders executed, and it was Dupin himself who came to present to the tribune the counterpoint of his accusations.

Dupin was rehabilitated, they wanted to accuse him; a Amnesty saved him; he kept his fortune. What is it? What became of him? There are so many Dupins in France that I dare not look for him.

As for the motive that drove Dupin de la Con-intervention to destroy, within one year, all

106 | HISTORICAL SUMMARY.

We can conjecture what he had done, but no to prove it,

I simply note that Robespierre is not no longer there, and France is moving forward, by leaps and bounds. around the time when new Jewish coalitions will dominate the island governments. I note also that the rehabilitation of the farmers exé-eutés had, to a large extent, a plato- character nic; the government could not restore mi Îles neither the goods sold nor the confiscated sums of money about the Company.

Two traffickers had bought the hotel of general farms; one, a Prussian, a spy named Sigismund Ehrenreich, Count of Kedern: the other, the famous Saint-Simon, future head of the Saint-Simonian Jewish community.

Having reached this point in my summary, I will limit myself to indicate the invasion of foreign traffickers. sers pris, «les alors, des proportions énormément.

The first empire died from it, and royalty from it. VOGUE, ment; the kingship is in the hands of the men of arms

IX. -- INDIVIDUAL LAND HOUSEHOLD ACCUMULATION. 107

went and they will choose, successively, as their leader apparent, any man who, according to the expression from the German I quoted at the beginning of this syn- their thesis will seem capable of making them win only one percent.

This apparent leader will also be called Louis XVI or Charles X, that Louis-Philippe or Napoleon [and he almost ended up being called Henri] 1873: or it will be a great honor for the latter of Bourbons, that they had not listened to the proposals Jewish issues.

[had understood that the coalitions that the ground- hicitaiant were the expression of a vast speculation- tion, and despairing of making them accept, in their purity, the true or false principles that He professed in good faith, he abstained.

(As for France, it neither won nor lost in her abstention; she is currently struggling with amidst the less avowable desires, and, this, for this reason alone, that the true strength being the arcent, and the silver being in the Jewish possession, he it is impossible to enforce any principle of economic interest.

The example of England.

|, Augletcrre, Jewish ionarchy. – Bismarck's error. – (Concentration of wealth in England, – List of fortunes, – Financial internationalism. – Amortization- They died by death, – English ministers in France. – The Jewishness and the newspapers. – Slavery of the press, – The Science and information. – The auxiliaries of the Jewish community,

– The savage Jufte,

One last word:

to arrive at a people among whom Judaism uWiomphe, that the role of England, especially since the time when its history had to be recorded the actions of this violent judiciary who had ho: Cromwell,

England is a Jewish monarchy by ex-excellence. Consequently, she has everything moanayé, time itself. Money serves as his patriotism.
sie and army.

110 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS,

His queen is a ghost that the fords make move-to see as they please.

His people are a corpse that would live and who He who believes himself free, yet is a slave, dies; who believes he earns money through work and who nourished by its Ways,

England is far more our enemy than Prussia; she plunders and poisons us with-then one hundred and fifty years: moreover, upon closer inspection-der things, she was behind her in [S70.

Prussia made a mistake. It consists of to have been duped by England.

If the Iron Chancellor, whose penetration, had an accurate understanding of the interests of his own country, not {ant for the pre-sense, which is childish, that for the future, which should be a most serious concern
Like a true statesman, he would have taken COM that the place should be to ask the Jews, who had de-voré Alsace and Lorraine, a territory whose possession ne Jui is worth no more than Ja France's anger. He had to turn his gaze away.
flowers and to blame the executioner rather than the victim.

No way! English Jewry was quite strong.

Fear blinded even the Prussian chancellor!

Why be surprised?

The hoarding of wealth is at its peak.
In England: peasants are dying from it and the workers do not live off it

A recent statistic from an-Ulster, explain that on the ISS, there are 35 million souls. inhabitants of England are dominated by one hundred thousand millionaires, who own everything.

In turn, the 100,000 millionaires have a a general staff of 10,909 high-ranking lords, who, in securities or land, hold the largest part of the concentrated wealth.

Fortunes are divided into two categories Landed wealth and movable wealth:
often they are held together in the same hand.

The British Isles have, as their surface area, 31 million hectares; 2,238 people have, at
They alone cover 16 million hectares!

We know that in England, the owners of soils are, like the rites of the Bible, inexpressive-prayers: nothing, moreover, resembles the jubile Jewish, like the islands, practiced emphyteutic leases.

in this country.

112 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

Here is a list of the main English leutes:

Assessment

We, the Superticians, possess 'real fortunes'
in millions of francs.
Due from Norfolk... [N.000 295
Marquis of Bute.. 11,000 19:
Due de Buccleugh. LS. 00) LT
Due to Northum-

DOTLAN EME SN 19, 00H 145
Sir .H.-\W\, Ramsden, 2,000 Bed

Count of Derby., 265,000 147
Duke of Bedford.... 35,000 [IR
Duke of Devonshire.. 53, 000 [1%
Duke from Portland... Ga, 000 110
County Fitz-William. 16,000 113
Duchess Sutherland. ASS. 000 [OS
Lord Tredegar,..., 16, 00) 1 (4
Count of Dudley, 10,000 104
Lord Calthorpe..., 3,000 10°
Lord de Ailston 1222 1.000 91
Marquis of Anglesey 10,010 90

Fofaura 1,197,000 dE)

Thus, {7 people hold more than a million d'heares worth ? 1/4 billion.

Here now, according to the successions or-green for the past 10 years, the movable fortunes which have changed hands.

[It goes without saying that the accused figure is.
certainly, less than the truth, because the most

X, - J, EXAMPLE FROM ENGLAND. 115

The holy duty of the Jewish people is to escape from the tax.

Assessment

Our movable assets
in millions of francs.

Baron L: 'N...de Rothschild. 63.0

MPPaAmDer ton HeVAT00 2nd UN 176)

PACKAGE This DNA ALMA EEMRNANT AA OR E2:0

LÉ Pr AA CEA 0 0 ER ES AE 4

Duke from Portland 31.0

MM Year. ME)

M: Th'Wivgley.. SAN)

Mr. Crawshay. 30

MI. HR. Mills 30

Mr. Laneworthyw. . Al)

Mr. James Baird. . 30)

1 GA 8 ta 0 Ka RE BÊ4 -Q 1 o) P RE LITE

Baron Wolverton (Gr. Glyn). 25

NM JOSedNiEOVe Lee AT

NMJONRIPeNNIU TS TEE ENS 27

...
THE
L

N. EF. Mackenzie.

I have to stop there, fortunes of 12 million
|/2 abound and we would reach fifty-billions of wools.

And then, let's not forget, the fortunes real movable assets escape control: if lad-
The English government may know a part of movable possessions, she has no means to list the fortunes made abroad.

Financial internationalism, a kind of free

10.

HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

exchange of the sticker paper, transformation na-the turelle and absolutely Jewish nature of the bill of exchange, has no other aim than to conceal, from Looks, the enormity of the wealth amassed.

How many foreigners own property in France?
real estate and securities:

However, it is precisely this internationalism that... destroys all national policies.

At the top, as at the bottom of the ladder, the intern-Nationalism is a theory that is fatal to the people.
For France, in particular, the game is not equal point: I say this quite plainly to those who declare Having no homeland, they unwittingly become the a game of all the Jewish factions

Indeed, and especially in England, lef-
The egregious inequity of wealth distribution reduced to a state of vassalage, the popular masses:
of the Iors, no personal independence ei
no possible struggle

If a few rare daring ones manage to hold on The blow, we pay them to silence the Islands. In Anæleterre, that is what victory consists of in the "struggle for life."

But the Jewish community knows perfectly well what it's doing when it pays
Thus: it dampens resistances, but this damping-
The weaving is calculated in such a way that it is well certain that I would never fully recoup my investment.

X. – THE EXAMPLE OF ENGLAND. 115

Death is the collaborator in his calculations:
for a depreciation paid, it x to 10,000 depre-Weavings executed by nature. This rolling prolongs the duration of depreciation and, during During this time, land grabs are expanding.

As a result, the English press is subservient.
to the dominant Jewish community, as well as all the ser-public vices and all functions.

Well! That's where we'll end up in France.
if we let the financiers have their way.

They have made giant strides since 1743, ep-that to which, driven mad by a thirst for freedom, the theorists emancipate those who gave their name to the Jewish quarter.

Napoleon Bonaparte was the only one to understand the danger it posed to France, too, Never before had England developed more hatred and no more energy to overthrow a sovereign.

Except for Napoleon and Chambord, all the princes Exiles were pampered and fed by England, until the time of their advent.

Since [S195, French policy has been absolute-English ment, and its finance ministers are English. I could name names and tell stories.
what it is like, precisely, when they are not

English, or those who hesitate to be so, that our ministers diplomatic relations are being stolen, and tensions are rising immediately. directly with this country.

At the very moment I am writing these lines, that the observers of good faith would be kind enough to study the situation on the other side of the English Channel. they ver- will only see the semblance of severity of which, currently- The Jewish community is the subject of discussion in France, coincides, wonderfully, with the sudden aggravation of the minor diplomatic incident between the two Country.

[It has been almost impossible to find a journal where I could have written the previous pages.

The French press is not free, no, certainly, due to the Government, but also due to the made Jews alone.

From time to time. Nevertheless, the newspapers take a position on certain financial issues cieres, under the pretext of the general interest,

Now, I would surprise my readers if I told them I explained that, in most cases, the interest ægenal is for form and that, in substance. it There is an interest in July.

I will give an example

I drew from a magazine, affiliated with the Journal Debates, organ of English interests in France. the figures I gave above on the for-

English tunes.

X. – THE EXAMPLE OF ENGLAND. 117

Now, do we want to know what the opportunity is to this publication, by Anglophiles who know, as well as me, what a dreadful conclusion Can this be used against England itself?

Here it is

English: the figures in question demonstrate elairement than the words "Land Credit", so well known In France, they are merely an illusion, being applied quarries to England; this serves a small-scale interest, (juant to enlighten the French people, by signing them-and the resulting land grabs, for sure
The newspaper I'm referring to didn't consider that.

I would say a lot if I wanted to study the atti-various studies, taken from the press, on the questions conversions, borrowings, pathways of iron, gas lighting, which fascinated the public public union.

For railways, for example, such as As for gas, some have found a way to to appear to fight the monopoly and its abuses, by having it subsidized by him.

This sad observation is, unfortunately, explainable:

The writer and the politician are, generally speaking...
The poor: to start a newspaper, you need Money, who provides it? The Jew: but he lays his conditions, Naturally, it is a matter of doing the si-

118 HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS.

incensed by all the abuses that interest him; and This silence is all the more necessary for men money, which it is impossible for them to earn—I don't Don't say inherit – ten million in six years or one billion in sixty, without them having done any hard work addicted to delicacy and morality.

Deep down, very disdainful of science. The Juls understood that newspapers, telegraphs, and railways of iron, linking men and nations, were,
For them, it's a supplement to religious pulpits.
and that information was, from now on, the real means to dominate.

Also, like religious sects of old had monopolized and poisoned the "/enre, they ac-Capent and poisoned islands, sources of lrfor-nation.

After the information, they need action.

which they equalize their hoardings,

The bailiff, the notary, the solicitor, the stockbroker.
who borrow to pay their bills, find always Jews, eternal lenders, and natural-
They are, in fact, under their control.

Finally, the magistrate, generally ill-equipped, sovereignty is encountered in a thousand circumstances Jewish people on her path, either in her family, or in the little he possesses.

X. – THE EXAMPLE OF ENGLAND. 119

[It is not even the industrialist, that one believes-rait BHbre that one, who, by the way, is not slave of the Jews. Count, then, the Jews who Are they on the board of the Bank of France?

Thus, the entire civil organization is subject to the Jewish community, which has concentrated all its power by having modern religions published by Iles
The voice of Christ, this appalling formula:

"TO EACH WHO HAS, 1L WILL BE GIVEN, AND TO HIM
(He who has nothing, even that will be taken from him: 2

This is not a formula for peace, it is a declaration of war,

Honest work does not guarantee life and does not
It does not protect against ruin.

It's about taking without being taken. It's a struggle.
Wild. One is the food of the other. {It is Weaker: too bad for him!

That said, let's see what the current situation is.
the predatory men (who oppress this country, el Let us mention, in passing, those whose past allows to believe that they would join in the necessary reforms ways to avert the catastrophes towards which

We are rushing both France and Europe.

SR ""ñî

MONOGRAPHS

Its

æ4.. Es

ä LE

THE

2.

ir:

– me UF 3

Rs LC ee ee 2 ie equr

r

Lamy if a

7 #4 Li 1 =. SE Than 7 PTS re. CES = ; = =. ts 8 jee Te DT
ARE RS EL rer MR EEE QE na

To Mr. Charles Ducher:

My dear colleague.

I don't want to forget that it's only in your newspaper which it was not permitted to say almost all my thoughts on the men of finance and on the conspiracies of the Jews.

It is therefore quite natural that at the head of these mono-noographies your former colleague returns

the justice that is owed to you.

PLUTARCH' (L.

dl) The newspaper Don Fabrice Au Ft fevrier ISS4 con-Leniut's next opinion:

We will begin publishing tomorrow: The Kings of the public license.

The author, seeing that he had to study the priests of Plulus, resolved to sit PLUTARCH:

SR ee dress

u fn

4:&

Rat

rt

ë pra:

“

Shot.

Su An pu Nr to ROOT ES 00

PE

4

Al

,

CI

THE

Mn

fr

'hi

HAS]

+p

e

+

10

L

LI se

k

has 4
41
L'
F.
Of
L.

5
% "
"4
...
has 4
(
HAS
The 3
- 4
THE 24
-
=
-
"
1 lg
Fa
;
has
has 2 1
LAS
F
>
E
f
i
I.

: 1
+
THE
d%
THE
has ua,
se
HT
: THE
EL.
THERE!
sr

'E QE
*
L
PRE)
- TR
"has
e cr
"16
ga 0
L r
"5th
L sl pad
,
has nee.
as
is +1
=
Co:
D RL
Bu
THE. L
is CO
has JA

this HS 3
EU EE this ins

" to "juice pans let folles + Saga be ES or CM 4 FarnNTE; RE Vs: Er CEE

PRE re es ga Rp Te on © DE PES

CANNOT
ON

SUPERPERSONALITIES

The monographs that follow were written day by day, and under the influence of events—daily comments.

No classification has been established, although all were designed according to the same plan; The author was, above all, guided by the importance of people and by the ease of gathering information about them, the most sincere information such as the ju—the fairest elements,

However, when it came time to group them in this In the first volume, he experienced some hesitation. by comparing [the way they were written] with the spirit that inspired the historical synthesis, their serving as an introduction,

But he soon understood that he had to let go of these monographs, their character, which is somewhat of the controversy, because it was a way of to make more vivid and animated, consequently, more striking, the application of the principles developed in the synthetic part.

dns RATER

12 A WORD ABOUT THE PERSONALITIES,

Moreover, it is impossible today, to to recount, separately, the theories and the men who profess or apply them.

The maneuvers belonging to what is called Politics is so complicated that... more often than not, the most respectable principles are defended precisely by the people more outlandish and, on the contrary, the most dangerous acts are tolerated by the most... estimable.

In both cases, there is an error; the only
The way to precisely clear Ja is to go every right to man, to study his character, to judge his actions, in order to unmask the error and to determine whether it is intentional or involuntary,

In our time, history is no longer possible.
if we disregard personalities; in times past experiences, it's from having practiced this abstract-tion, that we have ended up truncating most of the historical events and to give, as a result tat, a meaning contrary to the truth.

But it's time to break with the routine.

Pare de # er ; JL ES Eu À Ze bib EE an en 5
In nl: LE M am EE ed D ON Ne Do Ø ie ee PR RE PR to, ETES | SEAS and nel LS fé VAE RE ne L The 7? AE AO aa PRE AT Re dla la ri EP Û son De RE

era
"D

ñ mé

| ri: cu
| 1
"08

Ireland

Eu
9 Ø
A

THE
=

h rh SRE RT TE

L

%
. +

CC
1
| To
And

al

Lx

a 21
a Nr

D #

RUN
@ 4
Of
has

=:

... #04 LU

EE" +

'_

1

ER,

LL EN

PEL

Er

L of

Liu

Mori

has

has

ii

I

[HAS

"eh

nl

"

Cha

3

EE

Fr,

æ

of.
has]
Fo

Read

Ti

TR
At Ex
That
[D]
“

THE

KINGS OF THE REPUBLIC

HISTORY OF THE JEWELS

He
MONOGRAPHS

ROTHSCHILD. —:LEON SAV: — DUCLERC.: — MOREAU:
MALLET. — CAMONDO. — HIRSCH. — BAMBERGER.
STERN. — CAHEN DANVERS. — RISCHOFFSHEIM.

LÉVY-CRÉMIEU. — ERLANGER. — JOUBERT AND SAUTTER.

— PEREIRE. — DONON. — DURRIEU. — LERAUDY.
SOUBEYRAN. — WILSON.

ue =Æ

TS Et +. FLE x ; ,
TA PE RTE EL; Ed HE _ . a rte caen
TAC RACE ES RTE Lee = ! . 5, if T.. as & Ti 1 = re a be CE ee IPS DE sc LR Fat % Ar J rs
. _ A, 1 LL
This

Sea": of. SITE 7 his is cr
TN ce RU Se PE RE are EE 3 _ ms sr 1e Me om re EE EU mn and PL D MT; E 3m -i =. sit Emi En =, ee - Si ES
: rene Fe pe 1 PC or Can: - = ERA ä " A Es ' to me oops us rs La e: d Tien = ml ; Û PR Mn ne "- D ei - ar ea ci D LEE Er - = PRE: F: Le Cl
:: L = 8 dè: ; " k Re | =: PRE 8 to
= J - 5 A

|
.#
. has
This
Dry
1 CR
mu gold
L _ a Par
FU: Me
Fr
-
[7
The + FEX
2 a Er?
in Hi
THE Li
a €
i
"
ER
has.
13
.
has rh
has neither
YOU That vb
2: 1 &
You
born
er:

there
Read
Er
HAS 1.
"|
has
L r st ed
LT
4!
+1
L
Fe
. pe
PE. to Enr,
dd
Late
dd av)
has
Fe
:
fe
+1

Rothschild.

We're so used to seeing the sparkle ten letters of this Germanic name, which we give them gives, to each, a decimal value representing Indeed, the unit followed by nine Zeros (which (it's just a billion), and imagine the Mr. Billionaire, like a a kind of fantastic, imposing, enormous being, even Hajestueux |!

What a mistake, though!

The provincial, prowling between four and five o'clock-res, on the asphalt of our boulevards, is exposed to to meet and even rub shoulders with this extraordinary being naire—for him, drooling like a mere mor-such and lorenant, with some insolence, the people who pass by him.

Yet no one has anything that attracts the re-jien, which aims for gentleness, from the outside

12N MONOGRAPHS,

and in ways, € poor ingot has the pain of
to have never succeeded: this last word remaining.
Moreover, clinging to his entire person.

All he could do was look an-
Elais: and, in the way he wears his white beard-- It's strange, it seems he's taken it upon himself to put on his neck an upside-down image of Moses' head: also he tucked his sideburns neatly under his jowls, just as the prophet launched, from the summit of his front, the two biblical rays.

Stiff, by intention. Composed, by habit, he is known to be proud, especially for his coachman, when-that he throws his "sulvez-mn0a" at her, as if his the mouth was an insufficient universe to contain the a single word from his vast personality.

Ordinarily he listens to himself speak: he expresses himself slowly tement and cause little... out of caution.

Just think! He still has Ia ba- in his throat atavistic lance, i.e., trebuchet with the ragged louis, and His word is golden: he knows it and spares him.

This savings is, moreover, the only one he pro-care for his fellow citizens: 1] takes all the others with trapezoidal agility.

This billionaire, however, has two sorrows: he his name is Alphonse and he lives in a lodge on Laflite Street, which has nothing in common, alas! with the suburb Saint-(ermain).

ñ
"has
=
3
=
has 12th NT
has

PL
THE.

Jo

ÉCrOTCE ani ST ER nu Si ie u ET ; You per ui dream PT RTE FE PA ME ee es EC oem Ph Sea 8 Eu mi AL pr A PT LS red É f: PR ee to

ROTHSCHILD. 129

Oh! the Faubourg Saint-Germain! that eternal dream-the best of all the Rothschilds!

Outrageous disappointment! To have so much power by the millions and to say to oneself: something is going to happen that I cannot have,

To be a baron in a Republic and not be able to
to be counted only in a balance sheet and thanks to the sup-pressure of a letter prostituting the word!

[There was a time when in this family we had]
The Duchess aspired to a stool at court d'Angoulême responded with a "fie!" so accentuated, that the Rothschilds ceased to be le-optimists and turned to the Orléans family.

The initial efforts were in vain. The duke never d'Orléans refused to receive the Rothschilds at Chantilliv.

[The same was not true of the Duke of Nemours.
With the Duke of Orléans dead, the ice was broken.

How distant those times seem! Today Alphonse can rub shoulders with everyone with impunity princes, thinking they would thus acquire something their dignity, and, surprisingly, ll n'arriver than to erode this dignity with less pro-Hit as if it were a simple tournament pound.

And besides, the Rothschilds are easily deluded.
and often learn very harsh lessons from the part of the princes, who are somewhat rigid,

150 MONOGRAPHS,

even when they are not of good quality. Thus, Few people know the cause of their long period of sulking against the Empire.

The event took place in Ferrières, where AT-'s father phonse often received Prince Louis Napoleon Léon, then President of the Republic.

[There had been a break between Louis and the general]
Changarnier, but the old baron, who knew very well although politics was one of his best elements of fortune, had dreamed of bringing together the two statesmen.

T

Louis thus met Changarnier by chance.
to the erricres.

The old baron was walking them in the park, fort embarrassed to start [a conversation, when-
They did so in the following ingenious way:

– Well then! he exclaimed, let's be a little foolish*, otr'est-ce vue cest oue cette æuerelle & Allemand !....
Let's tear ourselves away, by Jove! Let's tear ourselves away!

However little prince Louis was, this fine and delicate-his opening remarks offended him: 11 he raised his shoulders and turned his back on the baron.

He was stung to the quick: he first made a strong opposition to the new regime, very certainement, if he had not been the Austrian consul, Napoleon had sent him to Mazas to reflect on the inconveniences of conducting financial diplomacy,

DA
: has '1
qua

“
SAID
'2 24

i

ROTHSCHILD. sl

The father's traditions became those of the son, and if I am well informed, a similar mishap occurred. happened to Alphonse from a prince of popular association and which was called Gambetta,

At the beginning of the grand ministry, Alphonse, estimating that Gambetta was a power with the- which one should count, he hastened to run over in the presence of the tribune,

He fled and made an antechamber available; then finally, When his turn came, he received it: and Torque the financier Gambetta had explained the purpose of his visit, with this Orosse's voice and that accent we knew, se con- tried to answer him:

Sir Baron, you will come here when I I'll call you!

Alphonse left; but, a few months later, the Grand Ministry did the same, for the Grand Ministry nistere was not disposed to act, as, thirty Louis-Napoleon would have acted years earlier.

Alphonse therefore maintains his father's policy. and, even now, it is the linchpin of all the Orleanist developments: one only wonders why he never sought the office of de- whore.

1:52 MONOGRAPHS.

[It is true that in Ferrieres the Rothschilds are considered clerical; in Paris, on rue Vivienne, one declares that Alphonse is the most intelligent of the family.

This spirit was so original, in fact, that one
He had been given a proper name: he was called Henri Hein.

Well, there you have it! Flenri Heine is no more. It's true.
that Alphonse often scratched his forehead while he-weant to {bert Woljÿ, and has long meditated on this algebraic equation:

Bert Wolf is-ll to Henri Fleine What Mphonse

Is it James's? Or, if you prefer:
LATE to PRAONES ME

Unfortunately, the equation above com-
Two unknown people were inside, and Alphonse's eyes gaped open.
in front of his question mark.

[It is necessary, moreover, to give this due credit to public opinion]
The public aspect is that, until now, it has not managed to baptize Alphonse's spirit: it is true anonymity, and it's even the only one a lesson that the financier personally practices the Companies Act of 1867.

For a long time, the Rothschilds resided in France as foreigners.

#1
has M h + [PT 14 a RP ONE ee NO TUE ere ia

SAR CP v3 A RER TER CORRE

Lt ienee

LOTHSCHILD. 1.55

Alphonse is the first Frenchman of this breed.

the role of a citizen.

This singular honor bestowed upon the Republic had multiple causes.

The riot was rumbling, it was even burning some castles; the old baron, understanding well that his
A leak would be the signal of an inevitable contusion stroked the popular ogre: 11 subscribed for 20,000 francs for the wounded and the workers without work {at the same time, he was getting naturalized his son Alphonse, |

And this same baron who, one day when Henry
"She wasn't there," the painter exclaimed.
calling him: "Hey, Mr. Decorated Worker" he made himself small and trembling before the great moustaches, the wand saber and red scarf of Caussidière, then prefect of police.

We may not know that Caussidiere, well
The devil, deep down, later became a wine merchant.
"Alphonse's father's lineage, here is the story:

One day, Marc Caussidière showed up on the street
Lailitte, and the banker is panicking:

– Let's go! no weakness, citoven Rothschild

|C, answer for yourself.

L) Comine today for the victims of Ischia,

.

154 MONOGRAPHS.

The old baron dreamed all night, mediocrelying confidently in the promises of a police officer revolutionary.

However, as he soon realized that his hotel on rue Laffitte, as well as its properties those from Suresnes and Ferrieres were guarded and put Safe from attack, he understood that, truly, he had found a protector.

The first, he was grateful and a few months later later, when Caussidière, in turn, was outlawed, arrived in London penniless, he received from Paris, the following letter:

\ounsicur.

Allow me to make available to you a sum of 30,000 francs. This small amount of capital will help you to undertake some industry on the hard ground from exile. You will return it to me in ten years, in Twenty years old, whenever you want. It's a weakness a token of appreciation for the great servants vices that you have brought back to the country.

I am completely yours.

ROTHSCHILD.

Caussidière created a wine warehouse, which prospered and returned the money received very quickly.

The baron was congratulated on this act of gratitude.

ROTHSCHILD. | 199

but fled, as if he were ashamed of what he had done so, replied:

– [;e tiable is never weak! Who knows!
We will perhaps delay it.

Findique this precedent to the police prefects who would aspire to become wine merchants.

But what about the baron's reply? If we remembers that the same person called a brave man an idiot coachman Jui bringing back a porefeuille, stuffed with banknotes, which he had forgotten in a carriage a rainy day and good fortune, in him However, by throwing in a 500-franc note, one has the right to believe that by receiving from Caussidière the mediocre opinion of the exiled republican.

Such is the man, such is the race that exercises in republican France a true power-Royally!

Skeptical about loyalty, the Roths-children poison all the authorities, inter-come into play in all transactions, not at all in the general interest, but in an ex- interest strictly personal.

Doubly Jewish, moreover, if you will.
remember that, in the Jewish race, a financier Israelite to himself: indicated two different castes annuities

150 MONO:RAPHIES.

German Jews and Portuguese Jews.

The first group, disdainful of industry and not approaching him only to exhaust him, without a homeland, without generosity; the latter, undoubtedly eager for gain, but adopting a nation and letting it be beneficent, to some extent, conceptions of their Industrial winemaking.

The Rothschilds are German and, when there is Forty years old, Fun of them had otter-dance of exclaiming:

"The war will not be fought because the house

Tothschild doesn't want it: »

He was certainly not inspired by inte-
I'm from France and I will prove it.

We have just seen that from a human point of view. Island
Rothschild's gold bar does not inspire much sympathy:
It's quite pious when one studies the Jewish instrument.
lonetionnant,

lei, Findividu disappears leaving in his place a A wonderfully arranged, gloriously arranged pump to vacuum up the eggs.

a system which is a tradition: it consists of developing nir depositaire, under one pretext or another,

7 0 É w à # ET ee Re en AS — _ Re f L æ Re " island Pat à i

CNE: s. to i"— L

SR PT 2 2 ee

D NN

J
f
;
;

en one 20e dem RE pepe Pat P0 QU BAM, His

PES

THE

ROTHSCHILD. 137

using other people's money, making them work for it, in such a way so that the risk is for others and the profit for the house,

The process isn't exactly new, but there is a a way to implement it, and that's the old father Aanselme-Maver Rothschild, good July from Frankfurt, who accomplished it with marvelous dexterity.

The strangest thing is that, while committing a a true abuse of deposit, as I will demonize him.
to ter, Maver-Anselme Rothschild found the way to pass for a very honest man.

Here's the fact:

It was the end of 1793; the Convention was throwing

The little German princes fled in terror.
most often without taking the time to do their trunk and to save their treasure.

One of them, a little prince, the more astute land-grave of Hesse-Cassel, did not wait for the troops French women, and, packing her diamonds, with two where three million thalers, he took the road to Frankfurt,

He was a small Jewish moneylender, a great numismatist.
and regular supplier of medals of the land-grave in question.

– Mayer, he said, handing him the cassette,
I believe you are honest and conscientious. Here is all that I have.

CT = É ñ dors F.

158 MONOGRAPHS.

that I possess, accept the deposit, you return it to me in better times.

The Jew prostrated himself before the trust he was the object; nevertheless, he said to the prince:

– Do you forget that the Republican army will be Perhaps within our walls before eight days?

– You think so? Mayer!

– At the rate these madmen are going, each expects to see them descend upon us: and, added the Jewish man looking at his interlocutor with some malice, you understand, my lord, it will be the Looting!

– Well, Mayer, God forbid! I won't tell you request for receipt point

Before the end of the week, Frankfurt had... due to the French troops: the house of Mayer: hence complete ruin,

blit. So, without exciting, in any way, leton-
In the meantime, Mayer reopened his shop and resumed his painting tit commerce.

[He began by crying out in misery and begging]
Many people wrote it. Little by little, however, his prosperity became apparent, so much so that it was... was already considered, in 1902?, the richest banker
quier of Germany.

We can guess what happened: the cassette of

TT DEP TEE

SE A TÉL AE à NAS ES RS ee A

ROTHSCHILD, 199

landgrave had been buried deep within the cellars.

No receipt, therefore no entry to the books:
so that all the apparent money had to be par-crushed milk.

Once the danger had passed, what should the
The conduct of the Jew?

Those who follow the straight line will say, all of next, that he should advise the prince of the good savior-ment of its deposit.

Mayer found it much simpler to use it-to see for his own business. [It is not a question of knowing if success has proven him right 'in every hypothesis, he had committed a breach of deposit, he
On the contrary, the question is whether, having saved a fortune, far greater than ever had
It was his own, he was not to report it to the prince who, most certainly, would not have refused to do so sponsor.

Mayer did nothing of the sort, having become powerful He was so rich, he didn't even try to warn the poor devil of a prince, and that was the only need who brought the latter to the Jew.

So, towards the end of 1802, the landgrave, having become, by the will of Napoleon, Elector of Hesse-Cassel, worse Germanic, obtained permission to return in his states,

- = ==

* 2 The

4 Ye oi rt

140 MONOGRAPHS,

The newspapers of the time had reported in details the looting of Mayer Roth's house-schild, whose ruin had been notorious: nothing-less, passing through Franclort, the prince stopped at his home:

"Hello, Mayer," he said to him, "finally we have Ja Peace, my old friend. Plague! It costs us dearly; you see an unfortunate prince as poor as Job.

- You? Poor man, my lord!

- Well! No doubt, since those damned sans-Your underpants stole my coins along with yours. I'll... I will ask, however, if it doesn't bother you too much, to to give me a small advance on the compensation which m is waiting in Cassel.

The story I am transcribing does not manifest itself in the Prince, no hesitation.

Having no receipt, he does not request a refund. institution, but a "small advance"; moreover, he "A good guarantee: his compensation. Now, he knows very well that a Jew, even if ruined, can always find money to lend on a good pledge.

As for Mayer, he was pensive, he was meditating, by a bold move, to transform his prince into a diplomatic broker, able to get him the choir of all the princes of Germany. fl dreamed, as they say in financial jargon, of

ROTHSCHILD. 141

to make an impressive advertisement by "amazing" its song.

We will see that he succeeds completely.

[E said to the prince:]

— There is no need to resort to borrowing, mon-Lord. I have here, perfectly intact, the deposit that Your Highness confided in me.

— Hey! So you weren't robbed?

-- Forgive me, the French have done everything to me taken, and I was careful not to anger them by my resistance; they would have conducted more rigorous searches in my cellars where I had hidden your diamonds and your gold.

— Is that possible!

— For nine years, sir, to de-
I am distressed by the loss of my own money.
I took the liberty of bringing yours to the forefront, all of them.
My banking transactions have been successful, and I then, without hesitation, return the sum to you inhicre aree les intérêts & 9 percent.

The prince wept with joy, and cried out:

— Mi Mayer! You are the most honest Jew that I know! Keep my money, keep it
You can assert your claim, lose it even, if you so choose.
I don't want a receipt for it for the next twenty years, and I undertake to only take interest at 7 percent.

Reading the account of this assault on one's parents is like a dream.

Fe x

142 MONOGRAPHS,

An "honest" Jew, because he is not a thief.
is still a marvel!

However, it is not five percent and the capital that owed the Jew, but all that he had was going to [æné. 11] is careful not to offer it, he is thirsty for <e tariler.

As for the prince, he is somewhat Jewish, and also fled: he to immediately become the banker's partner, as Maver had foreseen it, he immediately made his broker; 1 liter peddles this in all the living rooms
The astonishing thing is that a Jew, able to keep the ar-gent, a oflert de le rendre!

In short, he did so well that in 1814, at the conferences from Vienna, it was by telling the assembled sovereignsnis the story of the cassette, which he procured for the house-his Rothschild clientele of the Sainte-Allance, that is to say, a monopoly on all loans luturs.

It was an immense fortune.

Old Maver left five sons, who created a financial pentarchy, and divided five capitals of Europe.

One of the sons, Anselm, sat in Frankfurt:
Solomon, in Vienna; Nathan, in Manchester, then in London; Charles, in Naples, and James, in Paris.

P,

The latter is Alphonse's father.

ROTHSCHILD, 115

The two houses in London and Paris remember each other.
Nathan and his biographers mutually agreed portray them as completely unscrupulous,
He was a man of big moves. He was the one who...
finding in Brussels on the day of the Battle of Wa-Terloo immediately jumps onto a horse, runs at full gallop towards the sea, crossed the strait on a boat, and, arriving twenty-four hours later as soon as the new official one, buys on the market puts it into practice, without trouble or remorse, /reute-ciny nations in a single sweep!

Meanwhile, his brothers were also winning,
one hundred million!

And that is why, Frenchmen, the annuity that was at
"3 francs the day before Waterloo, was 66 francs"

a few days later, and then in ST francs.

I showed old Maver, the Roths- family's ancestor child, casually disposing of a sugary stash; I have Nathan, one of the sons, was shown prostrating himself with a desastre to play the stock market; here is now
James established himself as a moneylender in Paris.

I have, in another work, extensively recounted,
With figures in hand, the investiture of this financier

EC dLES

Eds

144 MONOGRAPHS.

in all French affairs: I must therefore I will limit myself here to summarizing his role, in broad strokes.
adding some typical details.

Everyone knows that in 1815, the English demanded.
with their usual rapacity, which we compensate down to the last cent, all their compatriots whose properties in France had been contquaestred by the revolutionary laws.

The settlement of these compensations was carried out first in Paris and ended in London. The government-
The French ment had allocated, for these payments,
6.5 million in perpetual annuities 500:

The recipient of the compensation was to receive it.
not in cash, but in annuities, and, during for the entire duration of the liquidation, these annuities were to remain deposited, their arrears

although a compensation claimant who might, for example,
He waited three years for the settlement of his compensation.
was to receive, not only his capital, at the rate fixed by the conventions, but also the interests accumulated and compounded assets represented by annuities additional purchases, semi-annually, since [816 until the day of payment.

James, representing his countryman in London, and acting also on his own behalf, he took advantage of the long wait imposed on claimants for

PE TE Ut 2e al et en
D

: s FL % Er El an À Se je host x lg dun DS
é sbals ix PE FM t der à ji ; a PR EP PE NE CE EP Pr LT 2 ce 1
'in da LémEE ANSE 2 te PR here us ne à pl Pr ET | Loc Meter re sis LA 28 AE SE
F nos SE à PRET DA me 0, Mo er be +. ee, fe MO CRE TRE n Es LEE PV LS PS re nr AULE AU RSS
Fa EURE He me d er el read 1 APCE EE Ê STE Hs x CRT Te them pm ni Ke ALT ESC EPS EN ne se

STOP
La Er Ci

a dr pi 5 LE L'HiSs Dre! as: RTE
SAR NES RE EE +
This LUE Du gli, (-Æ 5 " s:

1 Ê Ch : 1 E ee" L

p |
What

KOTHSCHILD. 145

buy their liquidation certificates at rock-bottom prices donation.

When we multiply the numbers under the eyes, we can easily realize that the Jew was able to realize-to generate profits of 60 and 80 00.

English rats against Englishmen; the worst part is that, by this method, James and Nathan facilitated the most serious violations committed to the detriment of the French treasury.

Special agreements with England, in stipulating six and a half million in rents, had expressly stated that, if this figure was insufficient By reading, France would close the deficit; but that, if there was a surplus, he would refund France with compound interest and accumules.

The two Rothschilds, financial intermediaries In this operation, they conspired like thieves.
Loire,

In 1821, the English claimed that he had a deficit, and they demanded new funds. However, There was no deficit; the Rothschilds had, in deposit, one million unused annuities; and This is so true that, at the official closing of this liquidation, in July 1826, an account, ap-proven by the House of Commons, and published

Read

æm-

Es eg ES Es À
= 2 ar pe er "fe 2) Qu ne ra r
L- sen er En = En Le

P

= "15 T0
ie mg 2

PE drag & ne te M EU tn lalable

146 MONOGRAPHS.

in IS31 alone, it still amounted to 700,000 francs

The Rothschilds knew very well that he was in-prohibited, by treaties, the negotiation of depositary annuities scen in their hands, for the benefit of the compensation-res; 11s also knew, very well, that this is not not with that money that was meant to be used for building or decorating Buckingham Palace, paying for the coronation and the mistresses of George IV, to provide assistance to the distressed workers of Lancashire, and, during-that they have made themselves Intermediate Islands of new complaints, they knew perfectly well that it was an attempted extortion; that the accounts were false and that France, far from being indebted, was creditor,

They said nothing: they accomplished enormous be-nelices on the funds seized from the French people.
and, consequently, deserve no trust when-that it is a matter of having them manage international interests nationals.

Moreover, during this time, with this same ar-went, they had lent Prussia 1295 million (1825), and, thanks to the Holy Alliance, they had negotiated for eight billion in various loans, within a space of thirty years (1846.

I will not recount the history of all drainage systems.
which James engaged in to the detriment of their

Æ

At
THE 5.
THE READ
Ts
. -
f.
T1
ra n / A Not
r ul
ed
LA 21

CLLe
ap |
ee |
there
i
&
4!
M2 LI
11
N / A

MK,

ai is at PET: : Ta Pat pe PE) MOTHER PE to Dr. Cd
7 rer er, VE RU'AEEXE Fe

Fomigé + is SE

L Ne k
m4
1 1
"has ln:
ani

You
D vor

El rs Ci Dur et EE as Pur FFE re CR EU

ROTHSCHILD. 147

French. I will only say that his role as a Jew international had ended up causing such a great scandal press of the time, that at a certain point, to be His friend was reason enough to fail.
at the elections. That is, precisely, what happened to Jacques Lefebvre, Regent of the Bank of France

Times have changed a lot since then, and Alphonse became one of the regents of the Bank of France!

In 1845 James astonished Paris by deigning to contribute to the construction of a railway, the railway Northern iron.

Under the guise of a French company, it was Ja, again, a purely inter- conception national, because it was, above all, a link with England and Belgium.

One would never suspect, at present, that at At that time, in July 1843, the Journal des Débats dared to write about the concession of the road to First of the North to the Rothschild house.

[It is obvious, to all sensible senses, that "Mr. de Rothschild requests the privilege of..." "To ruin."

While Le Journal des Débats was writing these lines, Rothschild and his cronies speculated on the share promises and collected, by means of

148 MONOGRAPHS.

of the game, on the shareholders' side, all the sums they would have to pay for the supply the rails and equipment.

F CT PPT ; ZLAE ere ue ni in it ms of in ri pa 2
INR Een PORTES a Ag ne DA

pe Fe RE ER ETS EE

At that time, we saw all the re-emergence of scandals of the rue Quincampoix; only Law His name was Rothschild.

D ee ee De dE ed EC OR

The majority of the press was bought, like,
Also, Parliament.

A news item was paid five shares; one Twenty shares in the margin; Ze Constitutionnel had one hundred and sixty shares; we are not counting those which were given to the Journal des Débats.

[not even Mr. Sax, instrument manufacturer—copper components and which, in this capacity, said a columnist, could make a lot of noise, who one day he found two shares under his control that he was having lunch at James's house.

Needless to say, all the small players fu—they were ruined and the Jews divided themselves among themselves near É five hundred million.

Hence it follows that the Northern Railway, which was supposed to ruin the Rothschilds, did not, in fact, help them.
milking, not a penny spent; that, concessionaires
From this railway line they have, as was their custom, took everyone's money without risking their own.
which in no way prevents them, today, from sf mie M ain A nt:

Such;
ren
=

EEE STUD FARM

+ in di Pner
SEINE

PE CE

SL
n

PER POP ST En pe ir ar en = = ex, to Te to

at PA RTS LOL ES EL

rinE

THE Ts
jar
"| E
Ra
has.

ar, THE]
j

We LPS
Hi
pure '4
HAS

Li
lr:
+15
F Zr
Pal
Fe |

dE =

RL The dci ms
SAT TEA ne fe ie OP
4 a nr EE LT

on

PR RON L'ORTRE M en | D en ee

;

=. LL

DES | FL

E i

tooth

Sr

Die

FRE

THERE

HAS:

A 1

let

ui

AT

rs a

LL BTE

FT Ne

*

Der Le)

nt

he PP – This is not

YOU

DEC PT

TR

ME

ROTHSCHILD. 149

to demand considerable sums of money from France to transfer that same railway back to him.

I am aware that one can argue, as One merit, the Rothschilds' perseverance in being shareholders of the Northern Railway. And so. we will want to invoke the various crises across-served by railway lines.

Yes, the Jews of rue Laffitte did, in fact, mo-changed their habits, with regard to the path of northern iron. Ordinarily, these gentlemen do not never keep paper; their system is the perpetual change. If, today, they are still shareholders, first of all, are playing on the velvet, and then that they want to have the di-supreme command of international transport who go to London or Brussels; one would have to be a Bastiat to dissect the actions of these Jews, and to show what we don't see, next to from what we can see.

What happened regarding the railway of the North and many other lines, it is nearly forty years old, looks remarkably like anything what is happening nowadays.

Where Rothschild gold lies, independence principles prostrate themselves before theories that are not-wise,

Michel Chevalier had, in a newspaper, maintained

13.

150 MONOGRAPHS.

with a rare eloquence, which only the State should be entrusted with the execution of all major public works public.

A few years later, he enters the /frolicking and he
This is the northern TER line. It's over, he forgets.
his entire past and, with astonishing fervor, Island
This is what is determined to vigorously demonstrate the absolute impotence of the State in matters of EPAUAUT publish.

Furthermore, it would seem that, from the path of the North iron, Michel Chevalier became an-Elais; you shouldn't have to wait very long for North Korea, by becoming an apostle of the free exchange with England.

It is the Jews of rue Laflitte who must be blamed. to bring about the ruin, by England, of a great number of our industries for the benefit of a few others, in which, of course, they have a hand, directly or indirectly.

I won't go into how, a few years barely after the railway raid North, Rothschild, concessionaire of a loan French, refused outright to ex- euter near the republican government, under The pretext that the stock market had fallen: I I1C will tell not the speculation that characterized Fempire and which,

has 1 o
Ch
'5 sad
a+ ra 3 pe
Let
e Pr
w
I
"has
e Brel
Fu
AND
: se
[has #

PT El Ur ñ
TM qe "ge

Mon
L)

Li.

r VE
ve
Liu
EL fi j
LL)
1 1
Ke
e 4]
+
mu
To = To
"has
GR.
D
+
PEL
Mid
gold!
1Ë
+
Cr
Er: QE
THE mid
he
{
4
F
.
1
0e
HAS,
HAS 54
4 1 hour
#)
laugh
"|
r El
%
4
is
'has
There
j Lt
in:
fu

]
1 1 u' i 21 h ER:
AE
"has FU
L
ul
=
HAS
is 11
F

| THE to
CRE bic 3 = ' FS
RE Apr er PP AR OT EE - cc
É Fr: ea: 4) Es Ve NE an LS Se NES Den td nf pos oct RES & to pr an Er, arte PRE Sr enai ER

x nt ml

SR L LE
+ 1 ee AE, x
Er:

QT
-

ROTHSCHILD. 1

ruining some or others, they never benefited than to the Rothschilds.

I can't wait to get to 1870 and the Sinis- eras very where it is at Rothschild's, in Ferrières, that Jules Favre can find Mr. de Bismarvk.

[There are many peculiarities in tranquility] perpetual Jewish community of Laflitte Street throughout

Have you ever heard that, during the municipality, this municipality which, nevertheless, is invading the Bank of France, and ended up burning our national laws: this commune, under which one Mr. Thiers' house was looted, we have never, ever—no longer worrying, for a second, the billions Laflitte Street? Never! Never any peace and quiet no fat plus larger and none of the trances of IS84S did not occur there in 1870 and TS7T.

(When the enemy comes to France, he stays with the Rothschilds. The Rothschilds themselves can impose—to serve, to Bismarck, their will, when it comes to Frankfurt, their birthplace. Is Font proven in obtaining—nant the delivery of a requisition to the Francloitois.

But when it comes to France, there is no such thing more so: a large war loan, far from them Impoverishing them can only enrich them. They will be Discounters will lend at high interest rates, because

They will have a "little hidden gem": Your France; good

L rs

152 MONOGRAPHS.

Better still, they immediately take their rightful place in the Prus— finances his, and A/phonse ligure, since 1877, as «d—minister of the Prussian Central Land Credit.

Despite this, we must be careful not to touch them, their friends, or their interests.

A German newspaper, reproduced by a newspaper French Anti-Semnitics. insert the following lines Yours are, truly, astounding:

"Rothschild sent a dispatch to the minister"
"Hungary's finances, ordering him to do
"_doing everything possible for the Hungarian government"
"Chut the Tisza-Eslar affair." And the banker adds: "if the government does not take into account na
"As a formal notice, I will do everything in my power to ruin the
"on credit from the Fonadrie."

in question, which may, in the end, not be that the explosion of very legitimate hatreds, excited by the Jews, hatreds which may have misled public opinion Pulaire, I do not retain, from the quote, borrowed from the Neue Deutsche Volks-Zeitung, that the phrase where Rothschild is simply doing "me-conditional births."

If the news report is true, this is pure blackmail! Moreover, the method is highly plausible: He was employed by the Rothschilds in 1840: 1l a was employed during the occupation of Frankfurt: 1l

Es. Sr hi 5 in TRE) Te dE Ne to SE Se nc EU

ROTHSCHILD. 199

was used in France during the first tentative of the repurchase of the railways under the great ministry, everywhere and always it's the same re-brake:

– If you don't do what I want, I'll... ruin.

And, to the great scandal of public morality, This threat is possible, indeed, it is real- legible thanks to the weakness, thanks, perhaps, to the corruption.

We also witnessed what has been called the Crash, that is to say, the deliberate and prepared collapse of the public funds market,

The most surprising collusions have been revealed, in the hands of these men and their like, the most serious interests.

When, seemingly yielding to the current of opinion- public union, Léon Say created the at 0/0 amortiss- ble, allocated to the repurchase of the railways, this emblem Prunt, almost entirely, was absorbed by the Rothschilds. Masters of this state fund, they have could have been the arbiters of the rise and fall and, Thanks to this omnipotence, they were able to paralyze all the decisions that the French government

Besides, what do they care about the public interest?
Parasites of the people? The Rothschilds have become...

154 MONOGRAPHS.

titues clergy in the midst of the nations and they escape up to the inheritance tax, because they do not inherit

Never.

They eventually formed a civil society and their congregation marches, in the middle of Europe, constantly accumulating, always accumulating.

And that's how, in eighty-seven years, these Greedy Jews, starting from a warehouse robbery, have seized a fortune that surpasses that of one and a half worthless people, and, this, among all the ruins, all the catastrophes pheas and all the shames of the French nation

Gary

[1 x = L -. . =" a di J, : g Sd to nn M moe LE 1 rt EL; se s Es READY 2 ia hi n FT De ni Ty ETS Cr TC ee LT Le =

40 '3
2 |
That

E -
THE "Nn
'5
F pł
æ |
EU
| 2 su
RL

Fe
SM

FL
2
4
TU 4
4

L

if a
has

.

SRE

ee eee ne ns
Ed PER IP AU mn | Fa to Plus |, A EE a
ER HERO MATTER ENS LEE

Fe

4
Li
THE
ee
ee,
"Whi
"4
w pre! 1
The
"r +4 ei
FA
If
Fe
Fa
4:
"

RIT

al
FE
FZ
|

He
Léon Say.

This Jew is Protestant. Moreover, he calls himself economist. The civil registry was kind enough to... prepare an inexhaustible source to which he draws all the flattery he addresses to his self-esteem:

His name is Léon, like Gambetta and Say,
like J.-B. |

This J.-B. was a pedestal for him. – The
The mausoleums of some ancestors are the arches of triumph of little children. -- But I'm afraid so. that history will only consider this J.-B. as a a simple pillory where Léon will remain hanging like Absalom was once like that.

This is not, in fact, such a great title of Loire than to descend materially and morally element of the man who wrote this horrifying sentence vantage:

"Strictly speaking, society should not
"nothing to any of its members,"

156 MONOGRAPHS.

Egoism, thus exalted and formulated as a
The axiom of public law is, in reality, the character distinctive from what I have called Jewishness,

I must, in short, say this once and for all.
that by adopting this term, I certainly have not...
claim to attribute certain beliefs to crime religious women, everyone is free to organize as they see fit.
He works on his opinions about human origins: he
I am completely indifferent to what I call NX. may be called by others: God, Jehovah or Brahma; but from the moment men touch who are the source of this, I group those who think Likewise, and, returning their labels, I... calls "Jews

Since Judaism is separate from religion, I have the the right to quote a proverb well known to the people of finance and who declares that a "Genevan is worth July 6.

Between them, moreover, there are 11 of them, a whole ladder of proportions, and the inhabitants of Geneva say vo-less than those of Neufchâtel are worth six Genevois.

Now, Horace, father of Leo and son of John the Baptist

1
d:- d TE |
'll
120

L Fe = D js op mer ag
= - = -

+

BE if FeTTaE ME AND L

PP AND nt

&

E=
OF

Dream
DE ee pere LM mp, to Mr. -

STI AVE rh -
Mother Re

Dr

LL k 404 ins
A ee rase, Rs ni

=

ds CORP ES"
Eos ne bte
CPR SERRE

THE June +

ps
is

; rs PT

TP Er |

=, 3 DS eee ee bus Pr er rhymes mn (7

EEE to ee URES

L. = J
aus EE en, F à - i Œ
RE OL mit ue a os s. Ê du ENT D ER PA en pa de op ns aa LA SFr cel = SR RTE Ta To PR M VE DE = pra")

THIS

= jt
Ba OT D me
THE

And not Fe
CS.

CR PRE ee De LOT RERO
ST ASE ee AS DE
RER A Fe

LÉON SAY. 157

tiste, studied in Geneva; also, morally, Does Léon summarize his father's theories and, for to acquire what (not being from Neulchâtel: him
He lacked something in the Jewish quarter; he found nothing more.
It is simpler than to become subservient to the Rothschilds.

On May 16th, Léon was just fifty years old again. volus; 1l is therefore, more or less, the same age as his boss, the King of the Jews.

But 1l is not a boulevardier like him and
No more wit than looks.

He is said to be somewhat Gallic; he uses this Rauloiserie, trying to put on a "good guy" air.

o
His speech is honeyed, when he laughs, [1] look facing his friends: Never his adversaries when he speak to them,

His person is thickset. If one forgets his mous-stain and if we notice that her hair is falling out in loops at the nape of the neck, one can easily mistaken for an abbot.

Beneath the ecclesiastical garb, I imagine him-willingly became a village priest, a joyful table companion from the neighboring castle, cheering up the marquise with sallies, even those who were courting a little, and sa-imperturbably wanting the voluptuous dimers of the marquis.

At heart, he is a man of the drawing room who, in the long run...
Time is spent in the antechamber, in the political palaces.

14

15% MONOGRAPHS.

He is often seen pacing the corridors.
It's become a habit. The Rothschild family
He said of him, "He is a good servant."

his father was a non-resident member of the Academy of Moral sciences: the son is also, freedom in less; in short, he's from the Institute. It's not, at Strictly speaking, a man of character, and, if it is true that the preferences of some houi-
My, for some, distractions reveal the core Regarding their character, I would say that Léon is skeptical.
that grand sentiments do not impress him point, that everything, for fled, is song, that in one word, dramatic art, for which he has more
The preferred one is the one displayed at the Opéra-Comi-
That. He has his own box there and he's often seen there.

It is on the heights of the Trocadero that this financing ceir houses the twenty or thirty million to which one
His fortune is estimated. He owns a hotel there. The exterior-Laughter is commonplace. Inside, it's like at the Opéra-Comique: 11 goes from splendors which recallpelent the freight forwarder of London, who later became President of the Senate from France.

Comic opera, I tell you! Where one sees the se-

LÉON SAY. 159

The prince's daughter. The prince's daughter, for Léon,
It existed. It is not, as one might think, believe, in the sense of the dowry that I am highlighting the ma-(Léon Say's princely marriage, he was already rich), but from the point of view of real political influence principal, which he acquired the day he married Miss Édouard Bertin, daughter and niece of the founders from the Journal des Débats.

On that note, a brief aside: in some
In biographies, the Bertins are referred to as: Bertin of Vaux. I do not disagree that "de Vaux" does not either extremely financial – these words are reminiscent the dazzling splendors of Fouquet, especially-
He was also involved in finance. But then, why Joussenel, who was very involved with the Journal des Debates, Aressant, the list of its founders. Registered-
He was thus one of the Bertins:

Armand Bertin, an illiterate owner!

Whatever the case may be regarding this particularity, when.
Through marriage, Léon would have gained a foothold at the Journal des
In debates, he could claim anything.

A marriage is, certainly, a literary merit.
to be like any other; but, in my humble opinion,
It is not sufficient.

Ultimately, thanks to its inspirers, the Journal des Dcbats is nothing more than a nursery

160 MONOGRAPHS.

financial, commercial or inindustrials, which, on the day of their accession to the po-litigants are ordered to support the interests of those who created them.

I don't want to create any personalities actuelles: but I will be permitted to say that The Journal of Debates, from the Republican period, carefully preserves the traditions of the Journal
Debates of the monarchical period of 1830,

It was well known, around 1840, that the Court of the Court of Cassation, the Court of Auditors, the embassies and the consulates were populated by former editors of the Journal of Debates, and I could, if I wanted to,

I will be content, to prove my point, with ex-to extract from a book, published in 1547, the following sentence boasts: "In a few years, France will have ministers plenipotentiary and consuls who will be called Alloury, Jules Morel, John Le-monk, Bénazet or Berger de Xivray.

Without the Empire, the prediction would have come true.
the appointed hour; however, one must not forget NM. Prévost-Paradol.

It was in April [1858] that Leon Kay entered the active period of his "contribution to the interests of Rothschild: 11 replaced, at that time, in the con-Northern Railway Administration, a

LEON SAT. 161

English, Mr. Jameson. His titles then consisted of to have been attached to important functions
– according to the vice-president's statements – to the Lyon and Bourbonnais railways.
The same report added that the new colleague
It was also recommended by an experience premature, especially in matters of comp-stability,

Once inside the inner circle, Léon, sweeter and more honeyed than ever, he pushed himself behind the king of finance.

Politically, he remained obscure until 1869.
at the time when he failed in the elections against Messrs. Rendu and Lefèvre-Pontalis, it is only after the INS70 disasters he found voters. But, from that moment on, his elevation-
The process was rapid. In June 1871, he was prefect of the Seine, replacing Mr. Ferry: a few months Later, he was Minister of Finance. Also he hastened, in 1873, to conclude with the Rothschild an agreement intended to guarantee the pay-the amount of the war ransom imposed by Prussia.

This financier therefore manipulated Ja's credit France, specifically at the time when the people of the rue Lalfitte left their powerful mark on the island orand-livre de la dette publique.

From then on, he was gripped by a kind of vertigo:

14.

162 MONOGRAPHS.

He read the story, and he saw that, during the first LE
In the invasion, three men, in particular, had dominated F the finances, and that these men were called A1-:
Chelieu, Corvetto and Louis.

Unable, beside Mr. Thiers, – who is not there point reached himself, – claiming the role of Richelieu, 11, did not think any more of imitating the
Mr. Corvetto's rigidity. Léon Say's ideal –
A really strange thing! – This is the third one: a Abbot! Abbot Louis, who was made a baron because he It appears that the barony complements any financier, – and who is the author of an aphorism that Leon invokes on every subject, even in his financial diatribe of Last November:

"Give me good politics, and I'll give you..."
I will do good finance.

Unfortunately, the opposite is true.

But since politics is the art of leading the masses, that is to say, to impose submission to them maneuvers of the major monopolists, the theory the work of Abbot Louis and Léon Say consists, in fact, to favor a few friends, chosen from the masses, and not to worry about the rest; that's what he ap-shovel: to do good politics.

ET ee Et I johrice Ti a Tr LS > cpu ES bise pu ls D nf LES ds | to me Tee ten Panen and
Mn AUD A pr pr AC ESS Ra
DT DR ee ME ME EI EP OREMER TC In daring D 9
PAT if a '

THE

It is also a direct application of the axiom of

D gai qe s pn me En Lac Fa RE; SEEN

born

ST UT LE ES

His grandfather's view on social egoism is the explanation.
of his hatred of any kind of relief, and pie "0 pr ae to SE Te NE

rè Ü

Fe Le mt

THE dar] ee
5 Ne SE Al
is ne GE

En M ir TC nr eu ie Got cle
PO a Ve Eee ee Te ren MON D Eee Ets UN
AE M RE 6 LA D ne nt PA

mise rie
LT LT ge
Pl pp En E
The Po" er eq

ec TL
CE to Pa

—.
abs

BE UP ed
TRE

to: 5 — aa per si für Fe vas
RRQ ARE YOU

Fire

if LL ur sl"
Er

LEE 4 F d "
re Er ATP CES CS MT eo There + ang Fe g 5
Pons Mrs ' a LAUGH El Ls: | UE ea EL 1 Ed.
“ J ur FE LE ; ES ee ra Cure AT:
ete els tan ci ue ef ES dr rs D dep! es htm To TT. Lot Fa
#3. F. F = mani r ré en mon Me

"of
FE
IN

ft

CE1, Jp, Q æ ji au ms cepeati e FT eue ESS Tes Se PRE

has
LE ae Ve ne
' + HCFR
These at £.
Br al L lc)

LÉON SAY. 163

disdain that he expressed in favor of feudalism financial, in the middle of Parliament, on May 19, 1876.

That day, he dared to exclaim in defense of the most one of the wrong causes, that of the old management from Crédit Foncier de France:

I no longer have private or public credit; there is "of possible serious matters, if Parliament

thus creates commissions of inquiry to examine

to undermine [the situation of companies], »

It would take a Bossuet to recount the variations of this Protestant who found the a way to be both Jewish and Christian, papal and freethinker, French, Swiss and English, Orléanist and republican. Orleanist, because he can to become a baron, a republican, because he is not one.

His true party is called: financial domination cière. When he participates in this domination, he supports the Republic: when he is not participating in it plus, 1 liter protects the Orleans.

But one thing strikes me: the resemblance absolute speculation under Louis-Philippe with speculation under the 1875 Constitution voted and served by Léon Say.

164 MONOGRAPHS.

The 1830 revival is therefore his dream, and Islands Those who embody him are his friends; their sacrifice-Fiera Bonaparte and Chambord.

His actions clearly demonstrate this.

As an Orleanist, he voted for the repeal of the laws of exile and also the validation of the election of princes. If later [1] it becomes necessary to exile them? Jérôme Bonaparte, Yes; the others, no! [He disappears on [May 6th, because Presidency of the Republic.

Moreover, the man with the flowers from Ivs is worrying—would be Lafhtte Street, However audacious some may be—some of its inhabitants, these did not dare to take familiarity to the point of calling Chambord
"My dear Ienri," as they might have ventured.
to say "my dear D'Aumale".

As a Protestant, Leo may not be
He was very opposed to divorce, but he voted in the Assembly.
national wheat, for the temporal power of the pope.

Like the English, if his boss gives that impression,
He practices his inclinations: 11 eats at the an-Ælaise; he hastened to accept the invitation of the Lord Mayor, in 1871, in his capacity as Prefect of the Seine: and if he accepts an ambassadorship, it's still that of London, because 1] Ss will be dealing with treaties there of trade, free trade and Rothschild.

After everything I've just said, it's good

ga,

soisistaistt ais né mil

4 ter: + PIE BAG
LES po: He tte BE, ep CORRE DS

h re ni
PT PR
Ds Lee RE

æ rh me, ni PTE Aa

to era

Sr pp ap ln
; Len Lx
EC has an È

A ES
CS RE

THE

.

: TA 7 L cute ri é LA 1e as = En Pr MM RER Ch

Ra ee SG D ae Op LE er En Los = TL PE RARE UE PTT EEE UN Bas Caire FOR EECES , ain ee dE ER RER

A SRE NE

Re Nm
TE NE Be as BC LS Run Scene EE

LÉON SAY. 165

It is difficult to summarize, in a single word, the special usefulness of Léon Say. Vapereau calls him "administrator French." Ad is perhaps too much, minister suffi- knows; as for me, since he models himself on the abbot Louis, I can certainly apply to get a man who, more variable in theory than in practice, passes his time to leave and re-enter the portfolios- them, what the biographers of 1830 said about Abbot Louis, when they called him "the catcher" ministry, »

In its pursuit, ll never gives up, although, as a minister, he experienced certain pains which, as was his custom, he expressed in comic opera phrases in his last pam- Financial phlete, This pain, which called under His pen contained witticisms borrowed from elsewhere. without emission, is due to the existence and actions- ments of a political sub-secretariat at the department- finance department,

Dalise of certain acts of favoritism and as he daube on them, thus arrogating to themselves, with some imprudence, the right to cast the first stones. No matter, he picks them up, he even chooses them, to include them in his sentences, among the witty remarks of Maurepas and Henri Heine 'still Henri one!)

166 MONOGRAPHS.

For example, 11 cites Maurepas writing to Lau-ZUn: 3

"I couldn't do anything for your protégé, he didn't-"
It was only for him that the king and I were involved; that's what it was.
to slum it, »

Then he quotes Heinrich Heine, saying: FS
"Men lock up some of their:

"similar to houses, which are called dr uit madhouses, to make people believe that those who

At njs | , 3
+ "Those who remain free are reasonable people." 4 with a spirit of which the Journal des Economistes and IC

The poor undersecretary of state must have felt the full force of it.
weight declares that: F

!
And our writer, transforming this joke
has
N

"If the political undersecretaries of state agree—"

:
"still waiting for us to make some observations."
"It's to make people believe that those against whom Bi
"We don't issue tickets to those who are not fraudsters." F

The allusion may be a bit far-fetched; but it seemed fair enough to warrant all the wrath of the Lantern, which, as one knows, honors the undersecretary with his protection-dolphin.

Finally, and to give Mr. Léon Say his due, I'll tell him straight up that if he voted for certain

ï
Fr
0
And
has 82 =
THE"
2
E = 7th:
er
EU ie
gr
2, Es
author:
Fired
no. 4 k De

+65
-# Er
" =}
EU
as naked
+ 1
LT
| Lan
1 Bu
se a
El
EE nr
D
Fe
Ke
D
of
A 1%

" ES sn F ET Aa pi Lin x LE mteg is is Enr Frs E TE Po ae DR PRO RE Tee

an rie Mec DL
a EE Cent

5 to PT [El

PE ES At

Read > Cr LE ee pi a

FOR FETE ù ETLES L, a nie d
Dr. D EE pee CRE Ver

The ne RON ec Lee NES ol Fe CRE RSS CR En

JL nn on M EE
LR BEN rte
Den EE reed |

LÉON SAY. 167

He wants us to believe that these are "selective" expulsions.
in turn that those whom he does not expel are not Orleanists.

This attitude is perfectly acceptable, especially when We remember that this Léon has been dreaming since the death on the other hand, to reach the presidency of the Republicblique.

Jehovah! Does he really think France is a simple valley of Andorra?

(1) Since this monograph was written, Mr. Say has suffered some mishaps that Le Figaro itself dared to

In essence, he said nothing more serious than all that pre-it yields, nor anything that destroys it, Only it results, from its story, which Léon Say compromised for a morally sound claim due by Jui as administrator of credit unions, whereas his well-understood wisdom should have inspired him
The thought of paying without discussion. The electronic advertisement-the moral he had formed, on the occasion of these functions, was worth
For him, certainly much more than was asked of him.

ale
the aar

III
Duclerc.

A financier, chairman of the council of ministers and Minister of Foreign Affairs!

This is certainly a sign of the times!

It is indeed true that finance constitutes the veripolitical table; that everything, in external relations both internal and external relationships, is dominated by the question of money: that finally, the in-Silver terets are precisely those that create the most formidable coalitions against the gu-governments and against the people!

If, however, one wished to refute my thesis, I I would point the finger at this ministry which has just fallen-ber and the ministry that had fallen before him; I in this way I could go very far up in the past or going far into the future in regard-within the new ministry.

But I have the good fortune to find myself in front of a no and before an existence favorable to my

pa nd of L
|
Sr
rer
it
"

has!
Pr
E: \
#7.
is
has ner
,
a | ra
Eu
TRE
+
eee to
THE E VF
el
D AE
; leave 5 page 5
*
rs
Fa
Ê Li QE peak instal ET, man

5 PURE E

FAN DOOR SP RRE

sn nant LE Ait ES
EPSEN mn sh, %: Me ec 7 ve

PT pl ic 1 LEE «born
S i PE

+ Reis Re Ars

EE nn D and ml

=. naked

E *

ae,

Li

D

ER

ee,

This ir

Len RL

Link "TT

Chat

tre Tu

mn + + = s is

Re TT P e EP RE M ee PR nt CH

D AE Et TS EL es CES ot PT Et +

Dan. ne Dr , p1We DOTE Le maps

pres LL. FOUT

SNS: UUL

me LI at r = pr F

ne us | to & F Lo to

Pr An i Fe on t-il

KILLED IN Preceleration and EPP PES HEAD THIS

APP D'R LUa, Ée der Se Re ve 4

J 3 ne En mur pd Q rs a pe

EP ART

Ta axa

+

these, and I can show that, Duclerc, man private, as well as Duclere man publishes, has been constantly pursued by the resentment of the high bank.

Duclere was born in Bagneres-de-Bigorre just three years before the first invasion of {8[,

This triumph of the Jews! His family was poor; this-
Meanwhile, she sent him to Paris to finish his studies.
Since the father's pension was insufficient, the student-Diant was reduced to working, and became a proofreader.
printing.

Who would have guessed, seeing this shy young man, who, moreover, remained a {- mid-old man, that one day, some sixty years later, the French people would find in him x
President of the Council of Ministers?

And who would have guessed, in the editor of the Common Sense and the National MV, the administrator of so-financial companies, sometimes in France, sometimes in the e-foreigner?

To these improbable comparisons, I...
I would add something even more improbable:

After sixty years of an active lifeintertwined with journalism, politics, and social issues financial companies; in power: by the ministry of finance, by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs ueres, by the Senate, by the presidency of the council

15

170 MONOGRAPHS.

ministers, - here is a Rome to which his detractors do not bestow a greater fortune has three million, and his friends say he has only one hundred thousand francs of income!

I can call it "poverty" in an era where so many pedants find at the end of their ignorance billions by the dozen, manufactured, 1 liter is true with the debris of all the scruples of Ta cons-human science.

This man has therefore remained himself; young, he
He was gentle: a grown man, he became affable, From the modesty of his early days, he retained a timidity an insurmountable challenge. Never, at the podium, was he able to to pronounce two words in succession; he is barely there that he becomes confused and muddled. Besides, he has a a very keen sense of his dignity. This feeling was young.
led him to work: old man, the same feeling
He was inclined somewhat towards authoritarian ideas.
Two means of independence for an honest person man !

Both physically and mentally, Duclere is a Patriarch. He is very gray, almost white.
her hair is cut very short: 1l carries all her beard, naturally trimmed to a point; his physio-
The economy is reminiscent of Zeydeau's.

His greatest happiness is living in the countryside:

3 æ 7 A): : = "1 d= r "1
Dee tes DSETSRET ET ue PP TER à nl ni ad ill TE Su PCR der es ci) 2 EU | rt gba ie les

Hey
"
has JET [+-pul
= [A LS
Li
D
L
,

DUCLERC. THE

He's a rabid planter; you should see him around here.
from Bayonne and beside his worthy wife, took care of-

Moreover, if we were to consult the latter, whose simple devotion rests from the clamor of certain political elegances, alas! that is not Neither in Paris, nor in the ministry, does happiness reside.
It's at "Bramepan". This strange name is that from the country house where Duclerc gardens;
also, when he accepted the chairmanship of the council ministers, his wife, did she write to him all the same?
Simply, but not without a subtle hint of irony:

"I'm so sorry you accepted the Council chairman: you're going to be malade; fortunately, I have hope... it is The Chamber.

It is certain that when one is sick, 11 is worth better to keep the room; but when one is at-complexion of this double disease which is called "I-"Nistere" means the Chamber that doesn't keep you.

For the peace of mind of Mrs. Duclerce, the fall was late, and everyone knows that, for a long time-
At the time, the health of the president of the council was...
Ridiculously attacked. The latest news is good, fortunately, and the esteemed senator will to be able to retire peacefully to his office, to put back on his Scottish skullcap and grey jacket,

Pre MONOGRAPHS.

and suppose, with a slight effort of imagination, that Boulevard Faussmann is ten minutes from "Bramepan."

Such is the man whose modesty is being considered.
either from his looks or his fortune, some po-litigious speculators, veritable daredevils, have
He said, in a professorial tone, "he's useless," no doubt.
because after sixty years, he only has one
A most ordinary fortune!

This naturally leads me to examine the two portions of his life devoted to finance, either as a private individual, or as a man audience.

Duclerc was a major railway issue.
Editor at the Vational. Our current generation
He may not know that he was not in IS43, throughout Paris, only three newspapers to com-defeat the railway concession project
North at the Rothschild house, these three newspapers
They were called the 1st Vational, the Phalanx and the Lesisla-ture. Now, it was precisely Duclere who was negotiating, in the Vational, railway issues.
All the other newspapers, comprising the press, nastic. were beholden to the Rothschilds; I I will cite Les Débats, Le Globe, La Presse, Le Siècle and the Constitutional.

| DC
iSe

DUCLERC. 173

La Presse was advocating a kind of compromise between the State and the bankers while publishing hostile articles. However, a compromise by bringing another, the author of these hostile articles, was indeedtot bombed commissioner general of the railways of

Iron

[It is quite certain that the Rothschild family has
I harbored some resentment towards the editor of the journal.
Therefore, it is not with the ministries where Duclere would have a serious role that this house could have to come to an agreement,

In February, the Rothschild house found itself... was a bidder for a loan of 250 million in annuities 3 0/0, taken by her at 72 fr. 48 cent.
In February, approximately 85 million had been paid out.
and the bidder was free from any commitment-until July 6th. But, from that date, 1 was to pay, on the 7th of each month, to Treasury, 10 million until full payment, Gold,
It is certain that the Rothschild family could have

However, she did not hesitate to invoke the case force majeure when the annuity fell and she categorically refused to make the payments. exteriors.

However, we need to be clear:

When a banker submitting a loan application

15.

174 MONOGRAPHS.

was able, materially, to place his loan with a profit of 7 to 8%, if, through greed or incapacity, He has postponed his operations, does he have the right not to to meet its deadlines?

The Jewish banker, not very sympathetic to ideas revolutionaries, did not go there by four ways mins.

[] broke his contract and he declared it quite plainly to NI. Goudchaux in terms that I can trace— drive in the following way

—"My good sir, when, in November
"In 1847, I bid on the loan of 250 million—
"Lions, I was hoping to win 100 million; I have
"I misjudged my measurements, and now I am"
"At risk of losing 60! You can feel that
"That cannot suit me: by doing so, you
"You and your em— can go for a walk
"Borrowed; I'm not paying anymore!"

This poor little discounter from Goudchaux... tried to resist: 1} recalled, even, timidly—ment, to the baron, that he Ru had ordered, Relatively, on [March 1848, the service of the em—
Greek prunt for the portion guaranteed by France.
Nothing is happening, and Goudchaux, the finance minister, had to end his interview with: "Sir,
"Baron, I am your most humble servant!"

Goudchaux was succeeded by (Garnier—Pages, with

A Re rs POUU ÂdE. matures TE: Te je In 12th

L gr. r' me!
MAR UU LA

EE 1

DUCLERC 179

Duclere as Undersecretary of State. News
Attempt, another failure. Finally, it's Duclere himself-Even the one who is the finance minister; you feel well the impossibility of the baron going to bow down to stand before the former editor of Le National, who had had the audacity to find it wrong that one had granted the railway to this banker
North,

As for Duclere, I am quite certain that he has
He had some sad thoughts and he said to himself, at that era :

"I would be curious to know if the baron, before œagné, on its loan, 150 million instead of (00, would have come to tell the government: "My
"My dear, I've earned more than I expected, here's some

Half!

Finally, Duclerc himself left the finance department:
His budget had been described as fanciful: he did not relied solely on the 150 million loan made to the Bank of France. However, Duclerc had insisted on the abolition of the salt monopoly and combined rights; moreover, his ministry is-was busy drawing up a table of certain re-demands, not only on the civil list, but also on foreign nations, all of which, were, to varying degrees, indebted to the

France.

176 MONOGRAPHS.

Among these nations was England, to whom we could have claimed several hundred million.

had in its coffers, long after the coup—
The English government had claimed to have finished sex accounts with France, one million annuities from—unemployed women. I have already explained his role in this whole affair.

These annuities were the property of the French Treasury.
Spanish, and, according to the treaties, they formed a porch
tion of what the chessboard was supposed to give back to France.

The strangest thing is that instead of receiving them
We continue to pay them!

Everything I'm saying here is historical truth.
Every five or six years or so, a few naive people
'They call these fantastic accounts.

But, oh well! What can they do? Whereas Duclerc
As a minister, he couldn't do anything. There are so many responsibilities... sabilities involved in this case, so many for—tunes have been built on this French money, that The most daring trembled at the moment of to sift through this mysterious filth! Finally we have had so many English ministers at our finances, which, diplomatically, they never
They took care of it, they're not the ones paying.
It's the taxpayer, so it's a trifle!

After the dissolution of the Constituent Assembly, Duclerc returned to private life and, at the coup d'état, he... found, like most men of the Republic—republic, forced to offer services to private industry vices that he had previously devoted to the gov—government of the country.

DUCLERC. 1077

In 1852, a Society was created in Spain for the Ebro pipeline, with a capital of 126 thousand lions of reales. In 1856, the Spanish Mobilier Credit—onol was founded with a capital of 456 million real; Duclerc actively took care of these two companies, and it is obviously to its spatial relations oenoles that he had to participate in, for a time, in this other castle in Spain, which we knew under the name "Gallions of Vigo". This demon of the satire called Rochefort, the Fui has well quite a reproach.

For me, when I consider man barely twice a millionaire, when his life found included between proofreading and ad-Ministry of the Bank of Paris and the Countries Low, with frequent gaps in the highest within your governmental spheres, I remain con-defeated than the history of the Galleons of Vigo was for him, only a curious and perhaps costly ex-experience.

Finally, I must not forget the essential project.
patriotic element of the Bordeaux to Cette canal,

1 {this Me MONCGRAPHIES.

of which 11 attended with unparalleled zeal.

This canal would have been an inland, French Suez, and If it existed, there certainly would never have been of the Egyptian question.

But we need the Esvpte at the high bank! We
We saw it clearly, alas!

In any case, modern political life of Duclere is well known and it is generally made-does justice to its financial sobriety.

His patriotism is beyond question.
He had risked his life on May 15, 1848, for peace.
to unite the parties. In 1871, he disapproved of the revolution lution; but, after Kreischollen, he entered the island movement, nothing less could be expected this patriot who loathes everything German and even to harmony when it is signed | Ì aqner.

Here he is now, restored to relative rest.
of civil life and, 11, should not be hidden from anyone,
the coalition that caused his senatorial downfall carries.
today, the same name as the one she wore (was in 18959 when he wrote to Common Sense), because In both periods, its aim was to prevent the execution by the State of the road works iron, by invoking absolutely the same arguments comments than those recently developed by Mr. Léon Say and his friend Mr. Ribot.

IT 7th tres =

E & = LI:

laughed at his An dtant ä hnz hide in ms [À Ps:

Hi to Li Dore Lx cd LE be æa TS : rh + ' 1

ar Her-e re = Le DU TE TRE es pop ë rabat

In ER D TP RE rat FAIRY TREAMS

Ed,

Lex Far

CR

R:

#

ÿ

|

AE

st

ke

ÊY=

gold

EE 10

has

;

ï

3

= % CFE " =. r 4 mm 2 + im st - ns of Ti CUT. F Ci ENS = 3

EE re Er Dot STE TEE EURE = ; =

ET EE px pit ps LOC EE DEN

D Er pee ESC E LE ES

3 ri EP" TI 1e

D RCE UT in LL IT Pa OR gs

iË Le pa RRE CE LES EST SECOURS Leg eo Tin lp

Lee
#4
ee
| LI Es be
THE
ur | ve
se
Fe TT
THE EF Bin
"ue
Eu:
The Fi
Deva
#3
Hey
HE
: has pe
L: Hey
5
From E at LS = PR +

LT

CE ions Nr Æ. ROTE-FE A in Dr Erin Su gi
RE HE SET ao Lea ie ceclase se cite net à rm a en De D Se PT d'a ce

Born
pert

ar

Street mid teen 1

nn

ad

FC

HS. =" ps iudee tir HA Del CAN if L A – RE MT TT ep ji ie ai "nl FT, r LE" Te Ce eee nt v, PEU Li mov Eee F3
Aer rs A GS RL ET M EE qe QE» CA RE DA
; The: 1 D ere NE POUR ge

k

7 21

De ie Per Den D
RARE

SET ve AE

DUCLERC. 179

Michel Chevalier, editor at Les Débats, had,
In 1839, the state-run system of execution was supported:
suddenly he changed his pace, and, without going back his discussions of principles, 11 ended a final article by these words:

"The State is demanding three billion! And where is that coming from?"
"Find three billion?"

This was the burial of the ministerial project and Ja
The coalition triumphed in 1843 against the Wational.
as she hopes to triumph in FSS3!(l

We will find this coalition again in [SS?, causing the crash and killing the great minis-

"mins of iron," poorly concealed by the scrutiny of list. Finally, at the beginning of ISS3, it's still her which destroys the ministry under the label of "liber-'ALISM'.

Liberalism, railways, Orleanism, under these Various names, I always find the feudal system Jinan-a company that only allows puppets to govern of which she holds the strings.

But Duclere was incapable of being one of those puppets; also his independence, his spirit of justice, far from serving him, has created enemies for him.
powerful people who almost played a trick on him abopathetic.

(1) These lines were written on March 6, 188,

150 MONOGRAPHS.

I might not have spoken about this matter.
But Le Figaro has just given me an opportunity
It was too beautiful for me to let it slip away.

On Jisait, 11 some time ago, in his columns, and under this title: The Justice of Yesteryear, the the following reflections supported by a document undisputed,

One of our friends shared with us the curious a piece we're going to read. Perhaps more than one minister of Could the Republic have, in the last ten years, renewed this document.

This letter was sent by Mr. Duclerc, deputy Secretary of State for Finance in 1848. to one of the rece-specific aspects of his administration.

Paris; April 22, 1848
Sir,

Since the establishment of the Republic, you have Request for advancement twice, in your claims-tions, you assert [the consistency of your opinions of fraud and deception, and finally the deliberate forgetting where you were left behind by the fallen government because of your background, your relationships, and your unalterable patriotism.

You add: "I'm not coming here, Mr. Minis- Island
"To be, to dispel your good faith, by showing off" a matter of my patriotism: My file will establish this in this regard "Your opinion on my account."

In accordance with your wishes, sir, I have made myself
I presented your file and here's what I found:

The r; L € . # ë E | u
PR EN EL PT PE Sn AL Rs
3 " ae or "ITU vx MALUS LE RES 5 suitable for the

F - 3 Er
ArETEE CT ENS

an St " Fe -

A El a EU
he RES qu PR

=

sw ani ad péri Dame ina be 4 sh 7 OL = bte x

THAT

DUCLERC. Ia

Appointed in IS50 to the special recipe of Bressuire. which is worth 19,090 francs, you were sent, in 1837, to Cliff, with advancement;

In 1810, you were summoned to the tax office in Péronne,

In IS44, you requested, to see suitability particular, the recipe of... although of a product slightly less, and you obtained this favor.

In 1816, you were appointed a member of the Legion of honor.

Finally, sir, you have constantly requested All ministers in a better position.

That's not all yet. In a letter that you you addressed, on November 30th last, to Mr. Nouton, then As the personnel director, I read:

"Penetrated, as I am, sir, to find in

You, the ever-just man, I come to appeal to this interested in what you promised me, and to tell you that "You can currently achieve all the species-"resources of a father burdened with a large family, who "has compromised itself in the last elections, by des-"devotion to the government he serves and whose "Efforts, alas! too evident and without success. have thrown

"a disregard upon him that I cannot bear"
"For longer."

The juxtaposition of all these facts, sir, m im-
He set a duty: I fulfilled it. By a decree dated
From this day forward, I have pronounced your dismissal.

I have the honor, sir, to greet you.

For the Member of the Provisional Government, Minister of Finance,
The Undersecretary of Elal.
E. DUCLERGC.
1ü

182 MONOGRAPHS.

I will spare the civil servant thus mistreated, the ashamed to be named in full,

I will only say that L. de V, having become, more Later, one of the regents of the Bank of France, e!
being there on May 16th, next to Aiphonse de Rothschild, to punish the Island undersecretary of state of 1848, for being remained the enemy of petitioners and monopolies their.

Here's the fact:

Duclere has a very well-developed family instinct:
someone from their family having suffered great losses and being under the island's jurisdiction, subject to a claim urgent to satisfy. was obliged to turn to Jui.

This involved providing a guarantee to the Bank from France, a certain banker, creditor of relative of Duclerc.

He did not hesitate and gave his signature and endorsed 200,000 francs.

Mius 11 was stipulated with the Bank of France.
that the sum, thus guaranteed, could not be payable "before August 1878."

On these interlacings, the banker who guaranteed the guarantee $se gave death and, almost at the same time, the blow the state decree of May 16, 1877, brought to the Bank of France, Duclere's political opponents.

They immediately saw that, thanks to death

2

k
Fr

Hey

=

| pra
'If
FRE
+
PE
eh
The Son

you.
has
Fe
5 ns
$

FA

Rs to

D

=

D

MT.

cu

Te D AE
R0 EE TETE RAS ea

“es

READ

d

=

me
has has
E ra F
has

of D fo % ñ ( 80 1 nd
IN Eee:
| ge) rl
|
pe
Far
THE
THE
Dr.: |

Te nf
HE a AA

DUCLERC. 159

from the banker who guaranteed it, they could put the island republican of 1848 under the threat of a refund – immediate ordination, without any regard for the deadline set for the following year.

They did it and they were hoping for a bankruptcy resounding would rid them of a polite man tick whose moral influence they feared.

What a stroke of luck and what a revenge!

Duclere had friends, and among them, a former official of the Bank of Paris and of Netherlands, a young and energetic man before,
For him, it was one of those acts of devotion, like one is happy to encounter them, sometimes, in this ter-a strange world where what is called "The" is in motion
"affaires."

This young man had uncovered the trap; by a vigorous shoulder charge 11 completely unseated-the conspirators who, astride the Bank of France, had launched themselves against the old republican blicain.

Duclere paid within forty-eight hours, to Ta

Warnd and stronger than ever, so that, five Years later, he became chairman of the council ministers.

One day, perhaps, I will reveal all the names actors from the drama, as well as to make

RE! MONOGRAPHS.

Justice to the devoted man who, by saving Duclerc.

rendered France an immense service, which for Mastering those who were not afraid to use underhanded methods to ruin an honest citizen, guilty of being hostile, out of conviction, to their Jewish affairs,

This little story, which certainly is not isolated point, can cast an instructive light on the way some financiers go about it to weigh, in certain circumstances, on the conscience politicians.

These people exploit everything. A gen-
For them, a service rendered, a good deed, everything, in a word, provided that it translates into a signature, on a piece of paper, becomes, between Their hands, a terrible weapon.

Who will ever be able to scrutinize the turmoil that stirs the soul of a brave citizen that one places, all-Suddenly, between the threat of a dishonorable ruin and the casting of a vote, which may take on an appearance theoretical and devoid of any personal interest"

[1 You have to be Duclerc to support such things] blows without flinching and without any crack

RE Re

come to crack the old convictions of yesteryear?

France is, alas! in the hands of a bunch of millionaires who, even without resorting to this strange thing, to which the ignoble name has been given "Bribes" can be used to pressure people with impunity. consciences and preparing well in advance, of armed in the same way as the one I just mentioned Give an example.

Unfortunately, these odious weapons do not become blunt. doesn't always feel like it's on chests covered in... tripleæ of the poet,

And Duclercs are very rare!

IV
Moreau.

It is not possible in Paris to call oneself "Mo"reau" without immediately being told:

– Trustee? Son, brother, cousin, relative?

Because Moreau and syndic are two words so accustomed to being placed side by side, it is not nearly that it is not possible to separate them in opinion publique.

And then, you see, this trustee who is called Ferdinand, too, is a great figure, and if a few genius idiots had the audacity to dance of calling himself Moreau, and, under that name, of he- to polish the arts in all their manifestations. Believe me, this is a pure trifle, of which 1: France should not care.

For France, for Europe, for the world,
There is only one Moreau, a true king, that one, under
All regimes, more king than Rothschild, more king

Say, because he is the power, he is

F
#

Pa L
Y
Î
L'
4
PL.
HAS Es
Len
CE 4

here

=

F Fr
THE Ø
|
D 3
(L

l +4
Ra bros
D
we ND Naked
you
SOS
THE

a ci Re dt pi EPS 7
– The LE
; 4 TR SEA AT CE

u
AND |

“
3 ER = CL mn o ° Fa SR in Mr. Lof of

EL
1

#

| To
has:
all
E
THAT

4)
=

MR TER

MOREAU. [87

the action, it is the fact: in a word, it is the expression of the occult wills of His Majesty gold.

Man and function, it would be very difficult to determine which of the two has distorted the other more. Is it the man? Is it the function?

To solve this problem, we need to study the 'them.

Vovors the man:

Ferdinand Moreau is the youngest of three brothers.

The eldest, Frédéricie, a wholesale timber merchant, possessing huge construction sites on the boulevard Beaumarchais was president of the chamber of trade and regent of the Bank of France.

The youngest, Adolphe, is not yet known that for having married the lady of Doctor Nélaton.

Ferdinand, for his part, inherited his father's position, was a stockbroker.

So that, since 1824, the date of Jan no-the father's mination, there is an agent in Paris of change named Moreau. As for His, 1 is syn-the death of the aforementioned agents for twenty-two years.

So we don't know exactly what, in reality,

As for me, I wonder with uncertainty-study whether it is a man, a function or a chi {tre

1S# MOGNOGRAPHIES.

As a young man, Moreau was pale blond: he wore...
However, his beard, which would blend into the red hair: today

It is light grey, speckled on one reddish side.

slightly bulging at the sides. But, all in all, Insjonitiante.

[l aims quite a bit to make people say about Jui, he's a big

Delighted: 1L afflicted with rounded shapes. EL eye shines without producing a vile look. The mouth is thick-lipped without being water-loving.

Driven by this general sentiment among financiers who pushes them to display a certain taste for the arts – because they are all dominated – and crushed | +, Dar the memory of Jacques-Cœur – Moreau Ė is a trinket dealer: he pays a high price for rare books: he it even extends to the statue and the masterpiece painting.
You see, Moreau is a lord of the manor, and this
The loyalist of the King of the Jews was a courtier even in its seigniorial acquisition,

Didn't he acquire and restore the castle?
From Anet? Happy to be able to mix the FM from her name to the intertwined numerals of Diana Poitiers and his Roval lover.

I was even told that our trustee, sub-

Moon, which he once made his tragedy into verse, loves still to rhyme and that one day, put in beautiful hu-dies by some brilliant exploits of the coast of-

MOREAU. 19

icielle, 1} had wanted to have three engraved verses on a marble plaque, at the entrance to the chàa(water.

The verses were by Victor Ilugo who had D, placed in the mouth of Saint-Vallier, the specter of The king was having fun, but they were dressed up in Moreau-style costumes.
"in the following way:

Do you believe that a baron, a Jew, a financier,
Be less decapitated, repudiate, 0 eosotte!

As for the Place of Honor, is it missing the rating?

On reflection, however, 1} renounced his island; they never wanted to tell me why. But Lacking poetic flair, Moreau spent

| Anct more than four million.

FI sometimes hunts, although he has no e-crew. He did, however, give some hunts to race, but then he borrowed the crews of His friends.

In summer, 1 goes twice a week to Anet: a (once a week in winter, however, 1} possesses
A lovely villa in Cannes.

He aspired to a political life. He managed to remain silent.
appointed deputy in 1871, but later failed in Dreux and in Ancet; in Dreux, against Mr. Ga-Hineau, in Anet, against a simple locksmith from

190 MONOGRAPHS.

In Anet, however, Moreau apparently opens quite largely his hand full of gold and [Isaac Pereire who. In 1879, he had become the biographer of the syndic, in him pouring forth, twelve columns long, a deluge of syrupey phrases – a way, probably–

ment, to launch an assault on the official rating recounts humorously | that the said locksmith having found beneath the financier's shower of gold, without ou- "I don't want any kind of umbrella," he declared. confused at having been preferred to Dianc's successor from Poitiers.

To complete Moreau's silhouette, I re- I will verify that he is clerical, without being religious, and I will finish painting it by saying that, morally as in the physical I} donned Ja frock coat of Mr. Havin, the director of Le Siècle, of which he owns and lives in Paris in the former hotel located on rue de Londres.

I'm done, alas! with the funny or silly sides tics of this financial physiognomy, because I am addressing Now the official, or Ja function touches to the drama through the most serious aspects of our political-financial organization.

I will not give a complete list of rights and duties attached to the position of trustee. Everyone knows that the union is a brotherhood then- Health, a formidable coalition of interests, at times disciplinary chamber and central administration,

AT PL ALT
Ant CHR nr) Leu

MOREAU. 191

It throws us back into the Middle Ages, by its sta- tuts; it is, in reality, the "mastery" of mai- trises and the "guild" of guilds.

Before the Empire, the stockbrokers' union, which was strongly constituted, concentrated, among its sixty members, orders coming from all points from [France and transmitted by the treasurers] to the Bourse.

Benoit Fould imagined, one fine morning, that the effect of a scattering of these orders, among sixty islands agents, was a serious obstacle for a government needing to give to the fluctuations of the Paris Stock Exchange has a diplomatic air about it.

[It is certain that large financial market which can be delivered at the discretion of a few big cosmopolitan capitalists, a cautious government must be concerned with ways to defend itself, himself, against certain combinations of interests.]

Benoît Fould was therefore not too badly advised to to consolidate all orders from the treasurers general by creating, in 1562, the treasury service general. If this service had existed in 1552, during the Bineau conversion, which almost failed so miserably. Clearly, high finance could not have, as she did not impose her laws on the government.

But for Fould's dream goal to be serious—

192 MONOGRAPHS,

Once the goal is reached, there should not be a any possibility of this centralization could proliferate, fortuitously or otherwise, to those whose maneuvers it is tasked with paralyzing,

This is what the treasury service consists of. general sorting:

"The stockbrokers' trustee is responsible for to receive and execute alone, on a daily basis, the cash orders collected across the territory of France by all financial agents of the Treasury. "

One can easily imagine what power—sance disposes the man who knows, the first and only one, For how many orders and for what amount? purchases where cash sales will be executed

We can also easily understand which re-dubious forward transactions can be grafted on based on this knowledge, especially today, race to the telegraph network, we can do nai: from all corners of France and abroad, as if they came from there spontaneously, or-dresses whose design truly stems from a a unique center located in Paris.

Upon hearing of Fould's innovation, the sixty stockbrokers threw down the high Cries.

MOREAU. 195

It was abominable! These poor people were being robbed. They were being robbed of their clientele! Moreau He was tasked with calming them down, and he did indeed calm them down. Here's how:

"My dear fellows," he told them, "we love a union, and no matter what you do, the minister will always have the right to give to its agents the order to choose such and such an outlet among us. Now, the Wolves must not devour each other; and I As a lion, since I am your trustee, I want even less likely to devour you. There's a moven sim-I'll sort everything out: as a trustee, I'll work for all of you, and the product of this work will be peaceful a portion paid into our common fund.

A triple hurrah greeted this solution: "the the treasury department" was installed

Is it any wonder, then, that in 1866, at the time Sadowa, the trade union chamber spent 14 million to save thirty agents exposed to the bankruptcy. Are you surprised that in 1871, in 1872, in 1875, the same trade union chamber proceeded to similar rescues. Be amazed, finally. than in 1882, and at the time of the crash, this same trade union chamber has managed to protect then-savant its agents against the public, even in taking on a debt of 80 million!

If you ask me now where gt

194 MONOGRAPHS.

the danger of union concentration among the major state financial secrets, I will tell you only—the following anecdote:

On Wednesday, February 26, 1879, upon hearing a noise conversion, the French Annuity 50/0, which had made 114 francs on January 31st, fell to 109.72 francs.

It had been said that the budget committee was favorable to conversion. On February 1st, inter-challenged at this point by a member of parliament, Mr. Léon Say, minister, had replied:

— I would be careful not to offer an opinion—
I have no opinion on this matter, because if I had one, it would be a secret; but, I have no secret, for this excel—
The slow reason is that I have no opinions.

Fifteen days later, on February 27th, at three o'clock
In the afternoon, the same minister declared to the Budget committee:

Given the economic situation, in—industrial and commercial sector of the country, the Government
"He wasn't even considering converting the annuity."

What had happened between the 11th and the 27th of 196—
NrIer?

Simply this: a persistent noise had accredited daily, and for fifteen days, on the stock exchange and in the newspapers:

"That the conversion had taken place, that the conver—

The decision was made.

MOREAU. 195

However, on Thursday, February 27, at 11:15 a.m.
In the morning, the finance minister had announced to the union that he was going to express before the commission—

ZION,

By noon, this news was known in London.

A little over a half, she was not yet afflicted ched at the Paris Stock Exchange.

This event has been widely commented on at the time.
the time it happened, and we couldn't find out anything,
One other thing:

Moreau had lunch that day at Rothschild's.

I said earlier that Moreau was king, that he was even immune to any decline; for the
To prove it, I will only add one word:

Say is no longer a minister, Rothschild is still banker

and Morcau is still a syndic and officer of the Legion of Honour (1)!

(1) This monograph was written in May 1883; on juii-
Mr. Moreau resigned from his position and sold his responsibility.

Mallet.

Necker, from Geneva, established a race of financiers that we are used to referring to by the words "Protestant bank", without doubt, as opposed to the Jewish bank.

However, a little before Necker, France had already seen some Protestants return, another-times driven out by Pédit de Nantes: among them, Thé-Lusson and then Mallet.

These men, generally austere, made certraining their first weapons in operations rations of the general farms which had the importtance of a finance ministry.

We know that, among the farmers, some... were witty and had the right to be, among others, Felvétius: so I am not surprised by to be found in Voltaire's correspondence, In 1772, several letters of praise were addressed to a liberal spirit, which is, probably, one of the

[ä a Ge Ce Ce]
7 LO Æ yes =.
Fa or au VE = Eur

MALLET 197

first Mallet having marked their place in France.

Mallet was then traveling and frequenting, like many eighteenth-century philosophers century, the German sovereigns

By a strange coincidence, the prince he is talking about Voltaire, in addressing Mallet, was none other than the Landgrave of Hesse-Cassel, whose legacy, employed with great dexterity, it enriches more late the old Mayer-Anselme Rothschild.

However, the pontiff of philosophy celebrated pri-his correspondent barely knew what he "professed"
"the noble contempt for impostures and imposters,"
And, if I'm correctly informed, we can to be addressed to the Mallet family, today, as in the past, the compliment that was given Voltaire.

I am therefore fortunate enough to find myself, by with the exception of a race of bankers, who has been able, slowly and extensively, to develop its fortune, which includes at least a hundred years of French nationality and in which one finds very little reminiscent of either the upstart, or the speculator.

Under Necker's ministry, the "Mallet" house
"Father and Son" was located on Rue Montmartre. At that time
At the time, this district was to Paris what main-

THE

19% MONOGRAPHS.

Located in Passy or Neuilly. Immaculate gardens extended towards the Monmartre suburb, and when we reached the level of the street of Martyrs, we were almost in the middle of the countryside.

This is where the founder of the Mallet house participated in the minister's main operations who was declared to be the head of the Bank genevoise, and who played, under the reign of Louis XVH, roughly the role the island is trying to play, with less of considerable scope and many more flaws, the senator author Léon Say.

The Mallet family fortune was already substantial at that era; the events that followed did not shake him, and, in the indictments raised against financiers, and which lead to sired such a large number at Léchalud, one does not I can't find any trace of their name.

In 1794, we still see, among others, the prominent bankers, "Bontems-Mallet brothers, rue Richelieu, 91, and) also Mallet père and {ls Fue Montmartre.

It was only under Robespierre that these houses seem to be elongated, without however attracting no colcre.

All the crises of the Convention left to operate, with the utmost composure, the Geneva bank, two are mentioned at that time

di
#1
%
f y Gi
i:

main houses: the Mallet house and the maihis Delessert, because of their attitude both Correct and courageous

Moreover, as one historian said: "The school

Swiss and Protestant seems to have made this indifferent and impassive reason that does not concern itself

"of the spirit, of government trends and "of the company that to the extent of the negotiations and the things that can be combined there and there " realize. "

This caution was, moreover, indispensable.
in a time when any accusation led to condemnation; indeed, if one strayed too far from the Negotiations with Île Pouvoir, we were suspected as lukewarm; and if, on the contrary, one threw oneself into speculation and island supplies with too much With his quick wit, he was immediately suspected of bribery and theft.

The true financier must be only one cog in the grand economic machine of a country, and it would seem that this definition of principles or more specifically applicable to the Mallet family.

. At the creation of the public debt ledger-
In the Republic of Geneva, the bank took a new ilmimportance; similarly during the sale of natural property nationals, she must have been one of the first to four-to allocate resources to the government.

200 MONOGRAPHS.

However, under the Directory, the Mallet firm remainedhe did the same, and did not mingle with either the Barillons or the Childish, great courtiers of Barras, Later, again, she did not imitate the Ouvrard family in any way and the Social Security system.

She does not engage in politics. Under the Convention-ion, its manifestations were limited to exhibiting the Patriotic donations: one of the daughters is quoted in this regard of Ta maison Mallet, which became, through marriage, the ci-tovenne Nessant, and displaying doudozens of low-priced shirts, for voluntary donations in Pan If, by the Convention.

When the Mallets take care of the affairs of the State, it is to contribute to the foundation of the Bank of France. In the first council of this national establishment, we see the eldest of \allet, next to Récamier and Perresaux.

Around this time, the Mallet company was the pre-Mière, with the Perrier company, to make loans in Current accounts on mortgages; it was, as we see, from afar, the prelude to the operations ac-mortgage loan offices and the sub-office of entrepreneurs,

The same company also created the purchasing and the green ones with right of redemption.

Under the Empire, Mallet continued his operations

MALLET. 20)1

with the same caution and the same French tendency-cause; it was at this time that, along with several others, very, he became one of the major creditors of what called it "the rear".

The main financial family system what I was dealing with consisted of generating income territorial, with a portion of its profits, while maintaining the most available resources load-bearing, for the course of business.

The wars of the Empire, which ended the catastrophes of 1815 did not shake the credit of the Mallet family, but they had, for consequence, a sort of lowering of what had eventually come to be called "French finance".

Indeed, the foreign invasion brought about, in the same way Suddenly, the supremacy of the Hope and Baring families, and, later, that of the Rothschilds,

However, the Mallets rallied to the Restoration; they were part of the General Staff of the Corite d'Artois, and it was at this time that their

The chief was created a baron.

The Mallet salon was already well known at that time.
for its austerity; a writer thus describes its character: "It was preaching through robes"

"White and flowers in her hair," he said.

202 MONOGRAPHS,

reporting on the high society parties under The Monarchy.

But, alas: soon Minister Villèle arrived and
With him comes the abandonment of serious finance:
Rothschild had monopolized all the royal bonds and the full favor of the Gascon minister.

It was a mistake: she repeated it again, in 1850, under Charles X, and one could see, from then on, this surprising spectacle of a social revolution fomented with the help of all the people of finance. Like all French banks, the Mallet had even gone so far as to wish for a revolution of July.

It took place, but the reign of the Jews was founded; and when it came to creating the path to Northern iron, it is next to the Rothschilds that the Mallet had to sit on the board of directors.

Despite this erasure imposed on them by the ban-Quier Jew, the Mallets had a really French during the Revolution of 1848.

They weathered the storm, honorable and respected, and it wasn't them who would ever have needed to implore the protection of Caussidière.

Under the Second Empire, they allowed unrest to erupt.
the Pereire and the Mirés, without their house of the bank found itself embroiled in the fantastical events tics of which the Stock Exchange was the stage.

It is with a certain satisfaction that I have I have drawn up the preceding table. [It rarely happens to me—how to meet a family of financiers as well old and also reserved

Almost everywhere, I am forced to acknowledge mysterious origins to the money handlers who they reign, in this country, with a rare outward appearance dance.

The Mallet family gives me a bit of a break from this clamor of of poor quality; therefore I hardly have the courage to... criticize their presence in certain societies known for building their operations on the ma-speculative works, organized by syndicates cats, such as, for example, the Ottoman Bank, — or, in societies where the monopoly does not offer point of the characteristics of real utility, such as that of the Match Company.

However, I notice that they are trying to succer, almost everywhere, alongside the Rothschilds and this makes me hope that their control will, perhaps, of some effectiveness.

Finally, they are bangiers, and there are, at them, a kind of professional self-esteem D not to be absent from certain "major"
"business."

I have outlined the entire story in a single summary.

the Mallet family, without distinction of person, because

204 MONOGRAPHS

They are all united and have passed on their knowledge intact.
traditions of their family.

Currently, there are seven of them: he will Baron Alphonse, Knight of the Legion of Honour neur; 11 y to Charles, also a knight; there is Arthur, Henri, Edmond, Edouard and Louis.

Together, they are spread across twenty-six soils.
cited, mainly in all companies insurance companies, some industrial operations, among others the P.-L.-M. railways and the at Crédit Foncier.

If, in Paris, they are bankers and administrators
In Seine-et-Oise, they are lords and farmers.
farmers.

It can be said, without exaggeration, that the entire the Bievre valley belongs to them, since Ieny as far as Buc. They own four castles there.
linked together by specific routes; 1ls possedent the castle of Montcel, the castle of Ville-green, the castle of Côtes-en-Josas and, finally, the castle-teau of Jouy-en-Josas. That is their main state-bliss.

It is hardly necessary to mention here, their former alliances with Oberkampif, the great industrialist, who, so to speak, gave life to Jouy-en-Josas. You can't take a step in this country without encountering a historical memory fixed by a date carved in white stone.

MALLET. 205

When going to the newly built train station, fresh and elegant building belonging to outer ring railway, we can see, a little on the left, rising above the houses, a triangular pediment that seems to announce a temple; a few more columns, forming gale-laughter, and you'd think you were seeing the Paris Stock Exchange. It's the castle,

Nothing flashy on the outside. Inside,
A tasteful luxury. In the country, a concert of praise for the good deeds of the lords of the manor.

Why must a discordant note come Join this concert?

How is it that alongside unknown benefits testable, and horacing their character, one can to reproach them for an unbearable arrogance tending revealed a complete lack of education and ur-Banned?

Is it, decidedly, the neighborhood of For se-would, to such an extent, be fatal to the wonders of nature that it geTC?

I understand that the Mallets are proud to have In fact, the Bièvre valley is a marvelous Eden. them; I understand, even, why they put a 5

206 MONOGRAPHS.

a kind of self-esteem that leaves no room for the acquisition of a single piece of land, by others than by them; but they should remember that the urban-nity is the only magnitude to which aspiration-rer Millionaire Islands, that this quality is a duty to them, because they have to be forgiven.
to possess so much, so to speak! while Others have so little!

The flaw I have just highlighted is,
Moreover, quite common in Protestant banking.
Even in its worship, the Reformed religion has introduced lit a sort of roughness.

In any case, these financiers are making their fortune, an honorable job.

This fortune is estimated at 200 million, they say
Some say 300 million, others say.

I have just almost demonstrated that,
by virtue of its antiquity, the Mallet family can having accumulated it through work and integrity.

Indeed, she has resided in France for a hundred years.

But if I suppose that, for a hundred years, she had placed, at the beginning of each year, 100,000 francs with compound interest at 9%, I find that at
At the end of the period she will have amassed a capital of 214,052,041 francs, €90 (two hundred and seventy-four millions).

[It is quite acceptable that a family of ban-

THE

THERE

Er

"rl

Dr

"0

is

e F ul

el

L

4 n1

4 |

d

MALLET. 207

quiers, succeeding one another from father to son, managed to accumulate, each year, a benefice of 100,000 francs, without it being possible to believe that it was necessary to employ unhealthy and harmful practices.

[Alas! I would have too much to say on this subject; I will therefore limit myself to concluding:

What an example and what a lesson!

Whatever the origins of the financiers that I have just studied, and whatever appreciation it arouses their actions, they occupy, generally, and for a long time—time, a French role, having definitively established In France, the headquarters of their interests, as well as their center of action.

Here are some of the cosmopolitans who, For the most part, they came to move to France the millions acquired abroad, and especially in China, for fifteen or twenty years.

\|

Camondo.

This Italian name, which has Portuguese overtones raises, however, is that of a Jew from Constantine-nople.

[1 embodies, moreover, a type belonging to a nationality, a hybrid one, as its name suggests, and which is usually referred to by the word
"Levantine".

It is a separate Jewish community, which is not to be confused point with German Jewry, with Jewry Swiss, with the Portuguese Jewish community.

The "Levantine" is a mixture of Greek, of arabe and ture. He came into the world, indifrem-ment, in Asia Minor, in Egypt or in Greece.
However, what dominates in him is tempera-Hellenic type, I mean by that the type stemming from a "restricted, modernized" Greece, from a Greece, finally, where the "Lesbos" of the poets does not appear shovel more than "Metelin", which does not prevent it

EE
g
ES
HAS F4
%, '|
f T0
+
of k

CAMONDO. 209

point of producing Sapphos that lack only Pindar.

Before appearing in the financier clan-
The Levantines had become Manilestic, in France, in the form of lozenge-shaped négociants of the harem. They did not hesitate, then, to exhibit their costume and we don't know exactly if they're fake the necklaces displayed in their showcases did not were not, also, at the bottom of their breaks, to be used for certain mysterious transactions-

Moreover, if they donned the tailcoat or dressed up-wearing the French frock coat, they could not-they do not need to conceal their nationality.

For fifteen years, they have taken the habit of disguise, and, if it weren't for their Livation, the outfit could create an illusion,

This is the race to which man belongs which seems to promise France a dynasty of Camondo.

Count de Camondo! That might remind you of...
Count of Aguado, who was, yes, Marquis of Las Marismas and one of whose titles of glory – if that is a – consisted, towards the end of the Restoration, to have had the idea of scattering a shower of gold among those poor devils of journalists with only one thread of to make them write with impunity, if necessary, that there 18.

210 MONOGRAPHS

there was water in the Mançanarès, so much had he been able to
To make them declare brazenly, when he was wine merchant, that there was no water in its Aerated.

But Camondo would like to say that he is full of wit and Parisian, although ture: e is dif:
ficile! Abraham, Isaac and Jacob... (sorry!), Nissim, are names not well documented in the chronicle.

We do indeed have in Paris, somewhere, towards the heights of Monceau, Count Abraham of Camondo and Count Nissim de Camondo,

But further down, on Lafayette Street, everything changes:
There lies the bank house; neither title nor particle neither on the sign nor in the phone book; one reads only-ment: Camondo {[saac) et Cie, bankers.

This Camondian trilogy represents, af-
It is estimated that several hundred million.

It was around 1865 that this family came to Paris, to make the sequins earned in culations on land,

The friction of Eastern speculators with French Jews date from 1854, the time when a first borrowing ture was commonly the object negotiations on the Paris market.

Since that time, they have become countless. (the loans) and it's truly wonderful that

a |

CAMONDO. one 110:

to note the enthusiasm with which our financiers rushed to seize the Ottoman treasure.

The Orient, being the land of capitulations of conscience, not counterbalanced by the police correctional, was expected to appeal to many financiers Clers.

And, indeed, among an organized people of a fa- such a bizarre concept that the sovereign, at the same time Pope and king, spends his time stripping his subjects of their rights. jets, how can we be surprised if, in turn, these spend their lives trying to recapture, through cunning, this that the power did not come to them by force?

Everything there is fodder for tralic. The government- lying himself, speculating on the cariosity of travelers, delivers for eight hundred piastres firmans to visit mosques. By this de- tail, well known, we can judge what results pu- rent be produced by the coupling of fa finance [French with native greed,

The Orient was therefore the object of a veritable cru- financial scheme organized by Ja high bank.

But the East defended itself in its own way, in such a way so that all losses were suffered in challenge- nitive by the direct lenders, that is to say the pu- bhc; the borrower took his revenge by not paying point; only intermediaries and speculators have amassed incalculable wealth!

One fine day, these latter, enticed by their contact with the Paris financial sector led them to conclude that... In any case, it was more advantageous to be among the intermediaries of the praetors that under the ferule'/a little too much Sanslwynne in the em-lender.

This is especially true since the crash of ia Turquie that the Levantines flooded Ja France in establishing close correspondences between the pharmacies located along the Bosphorus and the high reaux installed on the banks of the Seine.

And that's how the Camondos found oportun to develop in Paris.

These three Jews have different appearances: 11 y one is something we see everywhere, the other something we don't sees nowhere, and another, finally, who shows himself sometimes.

The one we see everywhere is Count Nissim.
[He is well known at the Stock Exchange. Tall. Dark-haired. Skull-shaped.] Lying down, it's a kind of thersvte: it has the profile of a young Arab. He is, it is said, in business.
holds the house flag.

[Lestcomte in the manner of all those who ask] to Italy, and very often to the Pope, a patent of no-wounds in exchange for fine, ringing coins. These kinds patents, moreover, constitute an emission which

It's as good as any other: large paper money,

Line ns Es der
That

ses ER ANT ST PEN ne D Um CPU ': næ
PE EUR SE ET RASE pas RS LE LP Fr
7 THE { EEC NT PET 10 27 EEA i?

ste
I

From PAR AE es

a E-8 of EE
AR eee Bar sine

CAMONDO. 213

small change of nobility: the antithesis is rejoicing-health. With a name like Nissim, "sidi, pasha or "Bey" would have been too natural! Count, that's good Even funnier! And it's devilishly Levantine, because, at
In Cairo, the Camondos would have been fellahs, so much their Its origins are modest.

Nissim's dream is elegance. To be mistaken for:
A Parisian is a joy for him. He does
All his efforts, in short, he looks it if not he has the spirit.

[There is a well-known English table]
She's at the back, towards the right: Nissim is showing himself there very often with Stern, Broleman or Bamberger.
For some time now, he has been frequenting the cafe more often.
from Paris. I've been told this is especially true since the English cafe became a limited company, according to the law of 1867, which, from an aristocratic point of view-üque, it seems, has corrupted him a bit. And then, at Parisian cafés have traditions! So much so that during-Nissim thinks he's more of a count than when he has lunch there.
Never.

The most original side of this Parisian Byzantium is, unquestionably, the double preface matrimonial woman who opened the book of her wa-lanteries.

[He is divorced once before. And as the
In Pera, divorce is still called repudiation, when-that he would remarry, Nissim, out of habit, wanted to re-

He was caught. French law does not:

does not include Muslim convenience.

[1 therefore simply substituted his will for the law: ?
equality, and Paris could bid farewell to the splendid festivities which had been given by the Countess of Ca:

mondo.

Since then, he has been free

in the South, and Nissim swims in the open sea

{ortunes!

Perhaps we should subtract 8 from these two words

The first one is more expensive, because it's the second one that plays the most major role. A certain lady is mentioned in particular, counting among the most fanciful things in the Ba a world of millions, and which has been the subject of a struggle

Countess Voyasrk

MONOGRAPHS,. È

resembling, unmistakably, a game of baccara. It should be added that Nissim is a great player:

but € is a loser in good looks, and, when it has had to "pass the torch," it is claimed that he has shown to be extremely "Gallic". and the lady

Unfortunately, his romantic adventures did not I've never been able to cross a certain circle... At the Jockey-Club, we mock his eternal grey hat, and we claims that the nine pearls of his crown com-tales are simply made of felt. But, for him, 1 liter avenges by eclipsing certain jockeys with his attacks truly remarkable sizes. Finally, to conclude

= =

FERRER In no way,

-
Ar AND THE

ES

in)

Bai Bo Dr. a pu di
Re Ce nm gr eV

2" LE LU BR and or Anar) . Fm PTE RS 1
DEV UES e E n RL aeA e = LL CE sn 4

+ CAC

[D
ee

CAMOND&, 215

and man and unmask some of his aspir-
"ti ns, I will say that, unable to invite, nor Or-neither Chambord nor its hunting grounds, like Rothschild, he had the bizarre idea of inviting Leon there

The Camondo that we don't see anywhere, except at through a wire mesh – the one on his cash register – it's [saac.

He's said to be the strong-willed one of the tribe. That's quite right.
Impossible, because nothing grows like mystery. You don't
I will not disturb its grandeur and I will leave it peacefully weigh the piastres that Nissim spends.

Finally, the one that sometimes manifests itself is Count Abraham. He certainly fits the type of his name. He is a little fat, which makes him look small. His complexion is ruddy, his scalp a little bald, the oriental beard. What he misses in Paris is the absence of slave seraglios, also takes-if its re-Vanche on the Hbres seraglios. Even he is a little jealous of Nissim's successes. Why on earth would he-shovel-t-1l Abraham:

He is the administrator of the Bank of Paris and the Netherlands.

And it is even to this Society that two of the Ca-world owes its title of Legion officer of honor. For they are not only knights

Those counts of Wille and Nuits!

2106 MONO:RAPTIIES.

Title-signing machines, while |

NM. Duclerc was president of the council, they dedicateaenerent the perception that the famous Isoard, of the General Union, he did not disdain, but they pushed Fusure to the point of aspiring to the cross at of an officer.

glove Nissim protested, "as we couldn't |

to overload a decree... » a second one was made for Nissim!

These are their service records.

A similar process had already opened the door for them inner circle of the Bank of Paris.

Abraham is, in Elvish," an administrator, less by the free choice of his colleagues rather than by a kind of "union breach",

It serves the Bank of Paris and the The Netherlands! A trade union shouldn't be there, damn it! can always be a conclusive reason. However, the Ca- The unions are monolithic, so it is not not so much in societies ostensibly constituted tips that we find them in, that in these associations mysterious, not foreseen by the code, and which are the instruments of artificial increases or decreases dizzying heights that sometimes astonish the world from there Sotck exchange.

And even if these capital reservoirs contribute would be for truly useful businesses! But no! They are mostly directed against the Islands French interests and they act, in all [eur strength, in favor of a true black international. whose triumph we witnessed during the PUnion crash general,

CAMONDUO. TT

When you think that the laws claim to be powerless- Faced with such coalitions, one cannot Preventing oneself from looking, with a certain tris- esse, the energy that these same laws discover, suddenly, against poor heretics, to whom

"Jutte for life," as the English say. inspires certain associations, too forgetful of the French homeland.

If anything can be said in their defense,
It's because this French homeland is letting them die of hunger, while she quintuples and honors her millions of Camondos!

VIII

Baron Hirsch

I suppose a novelist has to summarize, in a single word, the character and attributes of a fantastic devil, cruel and cynical, more terrible than that of Aeust, and seeks a name for it belonging place of talking weapons: he would first study the the physiognomy of the letters with which it would be composed and he would soon discover that the letter IH, so similar a la guillotine, with its two uprights and its a knife-arrow suspended halfway through its stroke wonderfully embodies the threat.

He would then discover that the vowel | is indeed made to express the victim's hissing sigh who trembles, cries and moans.

Finally, if he wants to express a mysterious tone
the friction produced by the falling knife who kills, he will borrow from the sound of the saw a portion of its grinding; then it will group together the three consonants that roll, that

Er
LI Ch
D
:
4
1F
Li
E
There
Fe
'has
"Æ
ch
HAS
<
in
#)

us
And
pe
1 hour
“

BARON HIRSCH. 219

They whistle and cut, then he will reproduce the letter from the beginning, to end as it began, and

He will have obtained this dreadful word:
HIRSCH

Well! By chance, in naming the financier thus...
The person I'm working on acted like the novelist.

But a needy sovereign collaborating with
He, however, preceded the name with the title of baron.

[It is truly remarkable to note the touching solicitude with which the kings accord-granting Jewish traffickers letters of nobility the boldest ones. It is true that in exchange for the rattle the nobility they bestow, the kings accept relisecretly the Jews' coins; if I dared, I would search-Cherais, where the largest dose of Cynicism... but I don't dare!

Hirsch is not just a Jew made a baron by by decree, he is also the universal concessionaire of the Lurque, through its plenipotentiary ministers, (Why so many gallows in this word?) it is also inhabitants of the whole world, and finally he is a compatriot of M, of Bismarck.

For, however cosmopolitan it may be, there was a time,
where, having no deliberative voice, with regard to things
In his life, Hirsch was forced to be born something

22() MONGGRAPHTHIES.

Part: Mannheim, it is claimed, played Europe on ct Frankfurt contributed to serve as his colic.

In any case, the father's shop, where...

Hirsch's early years were spent in Germany.

Nothing is more humble and obscure than beginnings

The development of his fortune coincides with that of his father.

like that of the Rothschild fortune. with the

the inauspicious date of 1815 – that dark era of waters troubles so favorable to fishing for millions.

But it is likely that Hirsch did not have the good fortune of dealing as an equal with some Mareraves, in such a way that wealth was not.

at home, only a way to express his hatred and his

a desire for everything that, near or far, reminds him of milk his former masters.

This state of mind almost naturally explains really the strange way of operating adopted by this international financier.

[He has carved out a kind of specialty in the Diplomatic relations and it is, generally, towards the officials of this order whom he points out

millions.

The iron discipline established in Prussia had as its

The forced consequence is the servility of the characters, but

In chemistry, iron displaces gold from its compounds.

BARON HIRSCH. 22331]

human ingenuity (which spends its time violating)

Slowing nature created diplomacy, and this...

Contrary to chemistry, it uses gold to hunt

iron.

This is the scientific falsehood that has

Inspired by Hirsch to set up his diabolical grid both on the Ottoman railways and

"ur ie tre de baron.

the beginning of this man's fortune, and it is estimated at approximately 400 million, its final destination: these two sums before evolved in the res- space a complexion of about twenty years – all one's life of an honest worker who dies poor:

(the number of grim tragedies in the- Which, rightly or wrongly, has the name of Hirsch been associated with? found mixed up, But if, one day, we discover in Austria, Serbia, Bulgaria or Furquia. memoirs of deceased diplomats, 1st probably- It is possible that the most astonishing revelations for- Ronl Jeter (111 new days on some phenomena- unexplained events, among others, regarding the genuine causes of the perpetual incompleteness of the Ottoman railway network.

[It is impossible not to see the calculation] appalling that emerges from the various attitudes of our Prussian sparrowhawk.

19).

2929 MONOGRAPHS.

In it, one can only conceal the means of communication, railways or {ele- æraphes, have not profoundly modified the processes government officials, both domestically and internationally interior of nations.

However, if we consider the interests, so many PAur- It's undeniable that Turkey is cheating, that's what the island is about. connection of Ottoman roads with the che- Serbian mins and Austrian paths are essential in the name of the general interest.

This connection did not take place, only by the will of Firseh which, to the general astonishment- general, was able, single-handedly, to hold all the European diplomacy!

It's truly shameful to be a diplomat, and I confess I don't understand the forbearance with which Europe is showing so much insolence in the face of so much dance.

Nevertheless, light is gradually emerging, each day, on the actions of this corrupting master.

Indeed, there is currently circulating in Munich a very curious brochure, in which one reproduces—dit Httéralement des lettres adresse par Irseh to Davoud-Pacha, his partner.

The first two are dated May 26 and [July 0, 1870; they attest to the offers and the en—

I see considerable sums of money, which does not prevent

LL) to pe =. 1 = D]
DR re ac a

|

BARON HIRSCH. 293

Hirsch, on July 26th, wrote to the same
Davoud! forced to deny the rumor that the pots
He had been given wines: "I never..."

would be permitted to offer some sum of money to your

Your Excellency,

Financial morality permits these counter-audacious truths, unworthy comedies played at the face of governments!

Hirsch is one of the major black marks of the ques-Hon of the Orient: it is the main obstacle to the remfund for Turkey's creditors; it is capable to suggest in the shadows, to certain am-Hassades, attitudes that can be resolved in de-Initive, by gunfire; that is to say that a-after having ruined the people, to whom he gave a dubious paper in exchange for honest money.
He still exposes these same people, or their sons or their brothers, killing each other for his greater good avantav'e.

I won't bother recounting all the details here.
Hirsch's lagorries and Turkish lots; I do not rc—obtains that the revenue from the Ottoman roads does not benefits only him, on the basis of ten million per year; I won't even bother questioning the real causes of certain unexplained movements

the Turkish Rent; I will not search, no

2924 MONOGRAPHS.

Moreover, the secret of the Tuttés could not have existed between Fhirsch, the Austrian Roads and the Union ge-general.

I will only bring together three facts that have marked the year FRS?

At the beginning of this year, Peffondre-General Union: in the course of Ja same year, an explosion of Findigna- is revealed public information, regarding Turkish claims:
This explosion is resulting in numerous commental in Islands newspapers of France and of abroad, and we're talking about the Ottoman roads!

Then we realize that Hirsch has arrived, at move in Austro-Hungarian diplomacy, to be done insert a special article into the Treaty of Berlin asserting his alleged rights, from which It follows that any railway in Bulgaria or in Serbia, where even in Austria-Fungary it is doomed, in advance, to the Hirseh operation.

This financier did more: he managed to escape the ctoman jurisdiction, it Ÿ substituted a court arbitral, and he transformed his various companies enies by transporting them to Brussels, Paris and to Jenne.

However, when this desertion of Constantinople irritates even the Turkish powers; when Ja

Germany's hand appears through the con-

neither
ELT
Fe

2 '4

BARON HIRSCH. 29F

— =" !

Hirsch's inventions, thus suddenly, the the slightest Eastern diplomatic issue: at the moment—where, from all sides, and even in France, one They believe an immediate solution is needed, in short, to...
In that same year ISS?, what happens —ll?
the high-profile suicide of a diplomat who, in a posthumous letter, throws to public opinion a a veritable indictment against his Mephistopheles.

In 1853, it is said, things will have a resolution—
Lies, but Hirsch is, in a way, a refugee In France, [He is well aware that he has accumulated [problems] against him formidable rages.

Moreover, this man, whose name in German Zionist deer, always expected to be forced to flee precipitously. In it, he found Island Moven lavoir constantly, Hquide and available.
and in a slim volume, the enormous sum of 20 million, not in bank notes, not even in treaties on foreign soil, but in diamonds and in rubies.

ua calculated that in diamonds and with "a at an average of 00 francs per carat, it could enclose

2,000 francs, in the weight of one gram. And for very little

2926 MONOGRAPHS.

that he mixes in rubies at 12,009 francs per carat, his k 20 nullions will weigh less than twelve kilos and Ê half.

The precaution is crucial.

Besides that, he deigned to own in France:

I am the country in the world where [property is most res- É protected) some beautiful hotels, including the one k of the rue de l'Elysée and, in the department of R
Seine-et-Oise, a gigantic estate, the castle | de Beauregard. He has hunts as big as at countries, which he has guarded ruthlessly, to ee point, that the dogs of the garrison officers | of Versailles, are sometimes treated by its B
They treat them like mere game. I will quote for E memory of his countless lawsuits with the city of Versailles, because this man doesn't want us to be any more than B traffic circulates around Beauregard only on the paths | of fittings.

[he often dreamed of being called the Count of Beauregard: but, presumably, the Republic that, being devoid of any ba-fs manufacturing Ronnian or comital, will refuse him this satisfaction | action.

Can one imagine this greying, stooped man, with a red, apoplectic complexion, and a clean-shaven chin.
beneath excessively mustachioed lips, has grey eyes-flashing blue and ominous - the habit of accumulating Bi

BARON HIRSCH. 227

to mule metallic undertones in the movement of his eyelids - and calling himself the Count of Beauregard!
This lie is unacceptable, FHirsch is a
A name that describes him best: let him keep it!
Moreover, 11 has two compensations: it is beautiful-
First of Bamberger and Grand Officer of the Legion of honor!

NII]

Henri Bamberger.

It is, already, a sufficiently dangerous animal.

It's much worse when, through an ex- Jesuitical approach extraordinary, he managed to get under the skin of a "good Belve,

It is the synthesis of Henri Bamberger.

Moreover, it would seem that this king of our Re-
The French public is possessed by a mania for Naturalization. It is the most singular cosmopolitan who in the world; he wants to be at home everywhere.
without it being possible to say anywhere that it is solidaire; that is why, a little before the war Franco-German, he had taken the topical precaution of to become a naturalized citizen: that's why, a little Everywhere, 11 seeks to naturalize his fortune: 11 es!
even somewhat managed to naturalize his character

gruff: mius, unfortunately, 1 V to three things

HENRI BAMBERGER. 299

which he was never able to naturalize, these are his honors, his pleasures, and his luck.

But let's not anticipate,

[lenr: Bamberger was born in Prussia in the late no longer observing the social hierarchy, but this is France which he chose as the scene of his exploits.

He's lived there and tinkered with it for a long time; of-
Then, for a long time, like a bold fisherman, he cast his nets.
in the golden lakes, and 1} succeeded, one fine day, in to bring back, attached to their stitches, a cross of The Legion of Honour, that was back in the days of the great troubled waters of France, where it flourished, in in all its splendor, what we have agreed to call the "gigantic financial operation" having earned Mr. Thiers the title of liberator of the territory tower,

What he had most advantageously was "li-
"Béré" in all this affair, it's the big ones
"annuity cuts" 0/0, and poor Thiers, for the sterile glory of being able to say that his loan had been covered an uncountable number of times.
has only succeeded in making things easier for Bamberger and others tat 5 0/0 nominal, but 6 0/0 real by the rate resignation.

Thanks to this process, it's hardly so popular was able to subscribe directly, and it only became true-

20

En Ts SRE RE Te me Pr dede tu - à

2531) MONOGRAPHS.

only when it has agreed to foreign and French vultures to cede it to him transformed in » 0/0 real with a benefice of 20 to 2» Irances on Capital Island.

Without this intervention of COSM0)h0- finance Lite, the detractors of the Republic would not have!
no one could use this all-too-easy argument con-between the conversion, namely "that we knew seriously-
"ment the interests of the current fund holders"
"of State created in our days of misfortune and in a patriotic goal

That's the way the world is! It's up to the repairmen of mistakes made that they want to make the island bear the brunt of weight, and yet principal author of these faults is crowned founder in a sort of apo-Theose: as for his accomplices, they bear pride-happily tore the stars from their buttonholes to the formation of French honor.

Bamberger amassed his fortune during this period.
The millions he had already collected and that he had neutralized by making them Belgian, they seized greedily-providing an opportunity to multiply through contact with French disasters.

Moreover, 1} was well placed to give to his operations had a utilitarian appearance, because it was:
then briefly an administrator of the Bank of Paris and of the Netherlands, and the services rendered by this state-blissement in foreign exchange operations have not not much contributed to concealing the sides from view after his particular intervention.

So, for about ten years, Bamberger lives in France on the memory of his liberated competition failure, and he readily has it said of him, by his newspapers, that he has only ever done good to humankind mantis,

[He certainly alludes to this humanity] naive woman to whom he slipped the annuities at 100 francs that he had at 50, and which currently supports in its place the consequences of Fa conversion.

he is counting heavily on this phase of his existence-lence administratises, because it's the only one he can to confess, thanks to those among whom he was found, ærace, above all, due to public ignorance in this area of financial economics.

Bamberger's main concern is to to declare themselves friends of France. He and his brother, deput in the German Parliament, even a socialist one, and, Perhaps, internationally, they do not let pass an opportunity to show off one's love of gallons.

Those kinds of friendships terrify me.

PBamberger's German connections are notorious, and Jews are worth the reputation of being exceptional technically well-informed about matters of the domestic and foreign policy.

232 MONOGRAPHS.

At the time of the demonstrations on the esplanade of the Invalides, one of his friends said mysterious-ment: "When you want to know what degree security matters are reserved for political affairs.
France, look for where Bambercer is.

I had heard this phrase which was not at all addressed, and, quite intrigued, I asked the next day-hand in the most naive way possible:

– Where is Bamberger?

– He left for two months.

Since the internal turmoil had no further consequences,
Bambercer has returned.

But here is the conversion accomplished, here it is.
Crises and discontent are predicted.

What are the Bamberger newspapers saying? Here it is:

Mr. Bamberger is believed to intend to
"To retire."

Bamberger is currently fifty years old:
Like Hirsch, he was born in Mannheim, at the castle de Platern, it is said, not in the castle, but on the lands that depend on it; there is something there which is reminiscent of the soil, as Hirsch recalls the serf; this similarity of origins caused a alliance: Mrs. Bamberger is a young lady [irsch.

More than this alliance, a great resemblance

ee

pm TE di =

RAA 6 SEL where cr PL QE DR as nn ne ieoi ri Per TO ET mo PRE] Month
DR a ot
"From: 1 ei) KEY AND ME

Pa ET ln

L
E- _]
Lara
:#E
Eu
my

4 ñ

|

min

F2

pe

mid

GE

THE

L 1

Stonnl

i And

PE

LL

= 1

CCE)

El

E 1

261

| 5

æ pi To

Fe

Lt

el

"4th

has

r vi

pe L

Carr

HENRI BAMBERGER. 233

of refined tastes, in finance and in pleasures, had Moreover, these two men had already grown closer.
The East had lit up their gaze and, naturally-both of them put their hands forward, very far ahead.
in Ottoman matters, particularly in the occasion of the deplorable Turkish Lots affair.

But Bamberger is prudence itself, for he only railway administrator:

the only mandate he accepted was that of administrator trader of the Bank of Paris and the Netherlands: However, certainly! There is not only this bank which we can occupy ourselves safely.

It is inexplicable that with its power of 30 million and his personal relationships, Bamberger Bamberger is so little known in the councils administration of financial companies. On this would amount to outright ostracism: this ostracism does not continue not only in the area of finance; the Circles joined in. I was even recounted that, in vain, he sought the favor of being admitted to the Imperial Circle and that he has always found enough negative balls to shut him down access.

There is certainly something strange about this.
Indeed, I know that Bamberger's position at the Banque de Paris et des Pays-Bas was able to resist the 20.

234 MONOGRAPHS.

A terrible blow had been dealt to him by the {890,000 Lots Turks, with whom he had found a way to reward her, and who had brought her to the brink of ruin: but It must also be said that Bamberger, when he was director of the Bank of the Netherlands, was one
'the authors of its merger with the Bank of Paris and This circumstance played a significant role in it.
solidity of its administrative situation.

In any case, he has not yet been told-given the Turkish Lots affair and in the bank whose name I mentioned, the austere and French element offers vigorous resistance to the July element and speculator of whom Bamberger and Camondo are the main representatives.

To recount all the attempts by this fake Belgian to to make people forget his Prussian identity would be truly to begin a litany of more or less Machiavellian. This big bag of thalers and Florins, lovers, without limits, from all islands Material pleasures, went so far as to try to
to do some good deeds.

He who easily spends 109,000 francs in a day to satisfy a whim... of any kind, imposed upon him the heavy burden of dedicating 30,000 francs. per year to maintain ten scholarships in schools of commerce.

There's no way to say no! He's the one who...

HENRI BAMBERGER. 239

gave the impetus to the work of the stock exchanges cials which have already produced more than fifty distinguished professors,

Sacrifice being periodic, it does not bring him any benefit.
not, immediately, the moral satisfaction that he hoped for, and even less so for one of those satisfactions physical attributes, which he is so fond of, must seem to him very difficult to accomplish.

Because, however lavishly endowed it may be, Bamberger counts and 1) counts so well that when it comes time to shoot in the splendid hunting grounds he owns with Hirsch, he calmly has his game brought to Market halls to sell it.

The Jews have this in common with the Russian Islands that in Îles, if you scratch the surface a little, you always find Île (/osaque.

[It would be truly scandalous if Fortune Islands immense, gathered in a short time and without their origin clearly accompanies a series of work having, at least, a social utility, parent certain men possess the attributes of a true glory table. That's quite enough, already, that they give them so much power over the destinies of nations.

1) Elsewhere, the prestige would be very poorly placed in Bamberger; he is the piurvenu incarnate. Delivered to his By its very nature, it is incredibly brutal towards his inferiors; however, it seems, since what-

That time, he managed to overcome himself, it's 1 to a naturalizations in which 1l was able to succeed:
He should be congratulated for that; nevertheless, no matter what he does; 1l
He may be intelligent, but he prides himself on his nose.
fox, which he calls his "flair": 1 liter may give has her blue eyes an impertinence that wants to be of The fascination. The vulgarity stands out against the background of its nature, like an oil stain on a coin of cloth.

Moreover, German though he is, he speaks
He speaks French well, but so quickly that he stammers.
The words burst from her mouth, furious like a squadron of elfin horses: its power-Healthy moustaches are an insufficient hedge, the spittle jumps over, and it's under a pa-It's clear that we need to listen to him speak. That's good.
to be embarrassed by the enchanting sex, of which he is a fervent worshipper. In love, he is eclectic:
For a moment, 1l would be statuary. The beautiful torsos and
The beautiful breasts put him in ecstasy at the Salon.
He pleasantly blends Cupid with Mercury, that is to say-He speaks of love and accounting. He always has to near the place where he works a small temple artistic where he feels the need to rest his spirit of serious discussions.

[It is not uncommon to see him, all of a sudden, into interrupt a deliberation, to disappear ten

1F
FA
î
F4
D
Eu
"
AA
s pe.
I
There

HENRI BAMBERGER. eo

minutes, to return more talkative than ever. I] has just finished his prayers.

social aspects: sometimes he stirs up a wealthy marriage Prussian, sometimes 1 liter provides Spanish grandeur to one of his little protégés.

Like the ancient Roman knights, 1l has a bunch of friends he maintains hoping to have through them, access to the "gentry".

Assuming that the diplomatic caste represents To feel the first floor of the social edifice, one can to say that Bamberger is a Firsch operating at third floor.

Despite so much care, poor Fenri has a The sorrow is having so many material advantages. Alongside such a small but glorious chance!

If he dies one day, it will certainly be from a excess of inwardly drawn veins.

Is it known that this Turkish Lottery boss won three times the jackpot of 100,000 francs in the draw obligations of the city of Paris? However, each time His winning is a source of intense pain for him. one day he opened up to several of his friends, to- which he said:

"I really have a soft spot for the city of Paris and the big prizes: there I am, wawning it, this times, and the gossips will have their say.

238 MONOGRAPHS.

GAME. "

[It is incredible to realize that this poor Henri confuses the lottery, where chance is left to Jui- even, with the game where skill corrects it.

Would he imagine, by any chance, that one on the island believes capable to substitute a vuleare number for a nu- winning mero in the wallet of the Bank of Paris? That would be a strange and true weakness. unworthy of a Jew.

As for me, I believe that's what makes it to jump for joy when he wins a big prize. It's pure-

In this case, it serves Fur right.

[It is impossible to observe, calmly, the evolution of this man's wealth and the in-influence he exerts; whatever the automobiles islands, whatever the largesse of this ri-Chesse gives him the means to practice, he is impossible to admit that they are inspired by a true love of humanity and devoid of of any ulterior motive.

How many of these millionaires I've seen, throwing away with ostentation: a thousand-franc note to a funny girl in a high-life and repulsive restaurant, im-

and nt rad

AR RE Te ER LE

D a em AP Jp bobo Sr EÈ
SE AND AUTO

L
1
| 0
3
THE
L
L " :
has (ssl)
X
FL
Fe ee
IN Fr
pr ge
has
+
LL
Mn 4

14)
e k
D]
=
has
£

HENRI BAMBERGER, 239
pitifully, if she is ugly, the poor girl who, Hungry, ashamed, and tiny, she fled, extending her hand in a secluded street!

No, to upset the interests of a nation, to-investing millions, violating the laws of the economy social enrichment through sudden and unpaid work such an individual, by ruining, directly or indirectly-ment, thousands of others, is not a work healthy.

We are no longer in the time of Louis XI did not excite astonishment when, meditating a Inauvais Coup Où Fexpiant, 1 fait ses dévotions
Ja bonnet, "Our Lady" sewn onto her bonnet,

Modern morality must not accept that may alms repair or excuse the harm done.

through excess or the audacity of certain speculations.

Jacques Stern

In German, Stern wants to "read 'star,'"

Jacques and his family are contained in that single word.

In Germany, one is called Stern, just like in France Martin or Durand. The Paris Directory accuses seventeen Sterns, relatives or not; but He v has some in London, Frankfurt, Berlin, Vienna in Brussels and they all stand together.

For Jacques, the word "star" has a significant meaning.
tion particularly artistic, making synothe nymphs "constellation" and "consternation"; I Say these words because, in each of them, there is " star ".

Jacques is a handsome forty-two-year-old man about; he is tall, dark-haired, admirably decoupled, and, seeing him pass by, one would not suspect Not the finance man. He is gloomy, often unpleasant: n1 good, nor generous, he seems to have

EC TN ER .

; EN mn 7
the pet The PET an Er NC

= -
ki

nes ro AM IEN

a =

[1 n g. 3 #

"PSE T0 L Dr 4 =

a AND æ =. "h . ñ
As * É Fe al Ecn- ei lu

BY: HA 1 x;

of. + min 1 T0 PEARL e: Read ss ji u SE LE A nent 29

The 1st PE TT
STRONG SICE

ER RULES for the THINKING ROUTE

JACQUES STERN. 241

concentrated all his aspirations in a feeling-mysterious thing that absorbs him entirely.

He's the Parisian of the family; he's the one who says—most closely resembles, at first glance, Jewishness Frankfurt, from which he originates.

The Stern clan is immensely wealthy: the ensemble seems to represent 150 million, of origin Oriental, Egyptian, Turkish, everywhere in short, in major international deals, fishing reaching millions was possible.

Old Father Stern is alive; thanks to him, there still has a certain cohesion in fortune like in the family.

It was he who made each of its members, a delegate tasked with learning the secrets of the commercial companies, by pushing them into the administrative seats.

They are therefore distributed among sixteen companies. In Berlin, they sit on the Bank of the Empire, worse than Rothschild.

In Frankfurt, they are attached to the Mortgage Bank. In Cairo and the Union Bank; in Vienna, they are at the Bank of Brussels and Belgian Gas; in Italy, at the Italian Credit Bank; finally, in Paris, they are distributed between the coal mines of Haute-Loire and those of Montieu-Saint-Etienne; the linen company of Pont-Rémy; the Tobacco Monopoly interested; the

2i

249 MONOGRAPHS.

General Water Company; the Union of Ports and Colonies, Bank of Paris and the Netherlands,

In all these societies, the five letters of their names are, modestly, recorded next to a small initial, rarely part of a whole first name

Moreover, company directors have the great concern to give the impression of public, so that they do not notice a This accumulation is far too scandalous.

I could cite a number of them, including the names, composed of several words, allow

In any case, in Paris and other capital cities
In the surrounding area, the Sterns are simply called Sterns.
Without a title or particle, everything changes in Romania:
we also see spreading among the members of the Board of Directors of the Romanian Bank.
Mr. Baron Hermann de Stern.

Nothing is funnier than that "de Stern" at the end of a title, and you really have to be Romanian to to take such nobility seriously.

At the Bank of Paris and the Netherlands, Jacques Stern is part of the most Jewish element launched in boudoirs or behind the scenes, because, I must say it, on Rue d'Antin, we are extremely "regency",

This does not surprise me at all, and I note, quite

JACQUES STERNX. 243

Generally, alongside the great thirst for gold appetites... of the heart.

But Stern is a terrible eater. He almost was because of a revolution, so that, to prevent-dear Passaut that we wanted to give to the bank in its entirety, we almost had to resort to a faction-the sign that would have been placed at the door leading to the street, with this instruction against all approach of being skirted:

– Cross... bayonets:

Jacques Stern is also very witty, only-
He hides his true intentions; he hates puns.
He describes witty remarks as "Bastardizations of the mind." Everything that is anoa-
The name horrifies him, except in finance.

He was once asked, about something or other, I don't remember which show whose promoter they were looking for,
was an abominable joke with these words:
"Father unknown." He didn't laugh!

All this does not prevent Jacques from being strong gentleman: he is one of the ornaments of the Circle imperial, and 11 votes fiercely for Bam-

Despite his Prussian leanings, Jacques did not research no less than French alliances. IT has given one of her relatives, endowed with a rich dot, to Fun of our officers of Alsatian origin and nephew of the Abbot of Ratisbonne, the famous convert from Strasbourg.

244 MONOGRAPHS.

Jacques also provided care to a few patients financial rations of the Bank of Paris and the The Netherlands.

If we haven't been very grateful to him for having He encouraged the Turkish IoT affair, he knew how to forget this imprudence by approving warm- fortunately the conversion of the endowment fund of the Legion of Honour.

This opinion of the cap earned him even the cross. very French cross; elsewhere, he already had the diminutive, for the same reason that makes musette the diminutive of muse.

In any case, it is clear that the governmental cooperation was expected to manifest itself, for the Bank of Paris and the Netherlands, under the for the form of any decoration.

The administrators were already decorated. except for Jacques Stern: his buttonhole had no She took a vow to remain a vestal virgin, so there was lit the fire with a red ribbon.

And that's how Jacques could sign "the che- Valier Stern » which, by Jove! wouldn't be too bad.

From a financial and economic point of view, the The Stern fortune has a cosmopolitan role that it is monitoring is necessary.

JACQUES STERN. 245

The "Stern" bank in Paris, affects she has a puritanical air; in fact, she is very prim and proper.
for small matters; not that she disdains the small benefits; but, at the risk of compromising oneself-to put it, she wants to oppose, as a counterpoint, the risks receiving a large profit, therefore she in search of great combinations; she the Rothschilds, with often hostile, or at least rivals: this surveillance is never useless to him. He belongs to all the unions!

She is adept at diplomacy; if necessary, she would employ Hirsch's seductive methods.

In short, the wealth of this financial clan functions-nent as a vacuum pump for the foreigner and are far from being a metallic reservoir where Findus-French sorting should be able to draw an element teaching. Thus France nurtures at home the agents of its financial disorganization, and she is sometimes astonished, with genuine naivety, by the catas-trophies for which she bears responsibility while Cosmopolitan Jews are the true guardians of this.

authors.

21.

“

Cahen d'Anvers

The walker who, on November 30, 1832, would be wise to travel the streets of Antwerp, could have been accused of some recklessness. That day-there, and the following, a hail of machine-gun fire and bullets lets, although specifically directed against the citadelle, scattered, despite the precautions, and ar-pink, concurrently with the waters of the sky, the houses and the streets of the city.

All the Can, Kahn, Cahen (that is to say all the plausible ways of writing Gain) had bravely took flight from the French army
French, commanded by the old General Gérard.

But the citadel was taken; he who commanded it – returned his sword to Gerard, who, although promoted to the rank of Marshal, he continued, after his fine achievement, simply being called Gérard, like before and without a particle.

CAHEN D'ANVERS. 247

This was not the case for all the "Cahen" because one of them, no doubt to perpetuate the memory of his valiant escape from the bombardment, had the strange idea of bombing himself of a pseudo-particle, calling himself "Cahen of Antwerp."

In Paris, there are something like forty-nine "Cahen", having a gable or sign on street, which implies about a hundred practicing the most diverse professions, which we are used to to summarize in the name of merchants of "pons lorniettes".

But there are only three "Cahen" that are from Antwerp.

The head of the dynasty, the founder of its wounds, the one they called "the old man" and who was called "Mordecai", has been dead for a long time; was a former broker of the house Bischoffsheim. He became much talked about during the Empire, and he was on very good terms with some men and some women; there are even, at this In this regard, a famous song which has often been tempted the echoes of Marbeuf Avenue.

But what did the echoes matter to old Mordecai? And the songs? For two years now, at this time – that is to say in 1862 – this excellent Mr. Fould having conceived a conversion project, he had provided the opportunity to harvest a large quantity of millet lions.

248 MONOGRAPHIES.

He was young then, and, hidden somewhere, at–

as Brantôme would have said, I could have known certain financial secrets, which an imperious Jupiter-Rol had whispered in his lady's ear, as a shower of gold.

Not content with accumulating wealth, the old man A Jew aspired to the nobility. From Antwerp, not That wasn't enough for him – because they had the audacity to write Sometimes: from Envers, – he wanted to be a count. Naturally, he addressed the Pope who, in the same hand, with the peculiar habit of signing patents Catholic cardinals, like those of counts Jews, and, for a large sum, Mordecai could call himself Count Cahen of Antwerp.

To complete the illusion, he lived in the suburb Saint-Germain.

His penchant for gentlemanly behavior attracted even to mockery from his fellow believers. Everyone knows how one of the "Oppenheim" (of Cologne) knew how to give, in Cahen's vanity, a stroke of the pen that strongly resembled a kick.

Old Mordecai had finally eliminated completely changed his father's name and signed very voluntarily: C, from Antwerp. This circumstance suggested

CAHEN D'ANVERS. 249

a charming little letter to Oppenheim which he soona: ©. of Cologne.

The thing caused a lot of laughter at the time; but Mordecai did not flinch and continued, imperturbably, to load millions onto its securities and its particles.

Representatives of the name and the house There are four financial institutions, three of which are financial institutions. only are known. Those – have a little de-stripped the Jewish bark from a physical point of view? of course; some even have pre-Christian names: the eldest is named Edward, the second-Captain Raphael, and the third Louis.

Edouard has retired from business. He has, in what way-that sort of thing, petrified in the costume he wore at the receptions of the imperial court, and which characterize

Knight of Malta. He will become a fossil, and, Besides, how many financiers are in that situation! Based on the realities of gold, they are perpetually lying on the lookout for the fictional country house.

The heads of the banking house are currently—Raphael and Louis, the first is, in our—three, knight of the Legion of Honour, which once upon a time, Maltese chivalry was beautifully displayed!

Both are of a thin, small appearance, and, constantly, in motion. They married the two daughters of a Levantine Jew named Morpurgo.

250 MONOGRAPHS.

Their luxury is well known in Paris, and they affect to blindly observe the customs and traditions of what is called "high society" in Paris, They don't miss a Tuesday at the Comédie-Française In France, they have impeccable tailors, attentively chosen pages; their interior, perhaps—to be a little heavily ornamented — because the real Good taste is a matter of lineage, not borrowing.

is, however, worthy of mention. A pleiad of artistic frequents it, in the midst of it shines Francis Coppée, It is said that the little-known Cahen is accompanied by Albert Shostakovich and composes music!

The true stage for the family's splendors is the Château des Bergeries, near the forest of Sénart.

We will be showcasing oriental luxury and, it is added, the architects have exceeded the original estimate; this is where the major events take place summer heads and it is there, too, that one rests from dizzying pace of financial operations candles.

To conclude, with the physiological study of Cahen, and before moving on to their financial role, I must say that, in their family, we don't look for point to exert political influence.

We might feel a little embarrassed in a similar situation.

æ To sssses ss; RTE EL ee One

da Su és is Le Ê " cl 2
= EU ue =
3 FL Tale ee ra f nes A 0 is ee Le ee ET QE EL pate Re CET, met

CAHEN D'ANVERS. 251

matter; we have too many Bonapartist ties, of-then the captain of the guides, who was made the manager from the Château des Bergeries, to Prince Joachim Murat, who is closely linked to Louis, Count Cahen, and who, in the company of the countess, did, in Italy, a trip for three, where luxury and comfort are paramount.
tortable were not the least of their charms.

While Raphaël has a particular fondness for literature,
Louis marks his prerogatives for Îla musique;
We see him constantly at the Opera and I couldn't help but-to explain why his friends nicknamed him "Ja Guinea fowl. Nevertheless, on ballet days,
In particular, he is seen assiduous in his golden armchairchest and, during the intermissions, strolling, arms above, arm in arm, with one or two friends, when-wandering here and there, without, however, leaving the reserve and the good manners befitting the brother of a she-valet of Malta, descendant of the citadel of An-towards.

The Cahen family are not very common among financiers.
in credit societies, and if, somehow, Ra-Phael, stepping outside his usual domain, deigned To contribute to the establishment of a case, I must to acknowledge that he did not do it in a way that would merit-ter des éioges, We owe him the creation of a certain "Canadian Land Credit," which he misrepresented as "Island" true goal.

2592 MONOGRAPHS.

In a country where mortgage legislation is In its rudimentary form, creating a mortgage lending institution is... it was especially important to want to impress the French subscribers French, generally ignorant, by the label "Cre-said land", having some prestige in France.

I could describe the Raphael's role in all this, because he was not content with merely helping to initiate the pu-public by its presence and by the company's title, but, again, it killed the original plan (which was a land development) for the sole pleasure of to build up a contribution, which he had not directly ly, and to graft a profit onto the issue any kind of umpire.

In reality, the Cahens have a specialization in finance.
Purpose: they are international arbitrators.

The arbitration practiced by them is, primarily-ment, de change; he gives, in all his purity, the expression of the Jewish system, which, at all times that, which is what made them strong in financial matters, this industry requires a very high ease of cal-ass, a huge amount of information and a in-depth knowledge of market credit and individuals,

Therefore, it is not surprising, provided that one parks at the telegraph office of the Stock Exchange, to hear pronounced, five or six times by

CAHEN D'ANVERS. THE

minute, the name of the Cahens, senders or recipients-
They are recipients of dispatches, because they have correspondents.
everywhere.

[They are therefore the true Jewish synthesis: they-maintain excellent relations with all their coreligionists – even with those who are tearing each other apart
They are having a good time among themselves – because they are in a state to render them very great services.

I do not intend to give a lecture here on arbitrage operations, whether on the stock exchange or change: but I think it's useful to explain the ease, sometimes dangerous, like the financial islands of wenre des Cahen provide for the disappearance of

I suppose, for example, that I am a prince and,
Moreover, he was subject to a decree of exile. Now, I possess-sede in France five or six hundred million. I them realizes, but, obviously I can't mess with them
I won't even carry any metallic cash with me.
in banknotes, because I can be robbed.

My goal, moreover, is to emigrate to a-isolated right, without any connection to the France I want to flee forever.

Under these circumstances, I went to Cahen's house.
where at other Cahen's place, because Rothschild and a bunch
The people of Brunswick do this trade, and I buy from them papicr on New York, for example, if my in-

1 EL

There

254 MONOGRAPHS.

The intention is to go and reside in a city in the States.
United, without direct dealings with Europe,

Upon arriving in New York, I would obviously find paper about the city I chose as asylum.

This is a matter of arbitration, and, depending on how it will have been combined by the choice of papers at long- |

In the short term, I may be able to restrict the cost of my negotiation, to reduce the differences these exchanges, while leaving the banker a be-Nelice is important.

Such is the ease offered: but it is necessary to recognize-to be born that it is also accessible to the prince who emigrates or to the thief who carries off and that, in
In certain circumstances, it can promote dis-capital distribution and, if necessary, triggering a

Under the First Empire, these were the arbitrationists (and the banker Laflitte was one of them) who, despite Île blockades have facilitated the circulation of goods in France.
English capital, via Ia Hol-moor.

[As a result, all political measures, the more serious, can be paralyzed by the arbi-tragic, especially today, that money is the the final word on all governance processes ly,

L ".to L Æ ÿ hi p dy ="
PA NT 1 den ce PTE ER
2 sr Nr CAN | stat Euro L
THE In co

if Ê to ai BL RE ET AE ES A Se PT AE

2nd PE Er to

1 tr é LE À 4 ai a _ PA ES CA AA 9 fe pe D 3 Sem

DErT. =: Tu EL ei EL > | ü ci PT PR ENTER TE np AP en TE De nee Er Ds ain tr) Pat to j A s MS M re pa Eu ee mn to ir

3 AN SME NE The T0 of to 100 THE Links csérs ire VS oo et ELLE care Ed à tro FT

CAHEN D'ANVERS. 255

I will not speak about arbitration, which consists of BP trades securities listed on the Stock Exchange, in the the sole aim of profiting from the differences arising of the various methods of listing on all markets

compensates for a service rendered to commerce.
by facilitating its transactions,

Felle is the Cahen family's specialty. We will agree that if one does not find there the elements of an im-direct and public involvement in politics, on could discover there the secret of certain rare-capital investments, capable, at a given moment, to seriously harm the interests of a country.

However, it was reserved for Jews to write letters changing is a double-edged sword, that is to say both useful and detrimental to trade, by organizing itself health as a truly international force, and by always ready, at the slightest awakening, to do disappear the wealth accumulated by their rapacity.

This is so true, with regard to the Cahen d'Anvers, that,
although they live like spendthrift people, annually, nearly half a million, outside,
of course, no movement of their affairs, no
they do not venture to quantify their fortune.

These works are [a mobilization embodied, the mobilization-

2356 MONOGRAPHS,

lisation being the only way to escape the control,

Escaping control is wonderfully beneficial all the corruptions and capitulations of conscience: for what Horace said about misers,
I can say this for Financial Islands: € Money doesn't have no color.

Therefore, one always finds this same thing among them.
a mixture of more or less material pleasures morals and social ambitions, more or less fonc'ics, without ever, to the gold that weighs on the characters and the milk descend, one can oppose the ominous feelings that emanate from them and the

XI
Bischoffsheim

The father's name was Louis-Raphaël; the son's name is Raphaël-Louis: this inversion summarizes the pre-
First time, all the son's tendencies.

And, in her, Faphaël IT, whom I will call stmples-Raphael's comment is so remarkable that,
To recount his fame, it would suffice to recom-
to begin the father's biography.

However, since the great weapon-wielding lords
They live as sovereigns in our republic.
I must mention the one who continues the dynasty founded by the late Louis Bischoffsheim.

'Aris has the honor of possessing only three representatives sentients of this illustrious race,

On Rue des Mathurins is the Douai Palace behind; on Taithout Street is the bank building of Raphael and, finally, to the Avenue des Champs-Elysées lives Ferdinand, qualifies, fashions tement, owner.

t_ LC]

CEA

258 MONOGRAPHS.

Old Father Louis was, quite simply, a good Jew of Mainz: he was born in the most humble shops. Xe able to live in his native country, 1! traveled the world a little and ended by settling in Amsterdam.

It was in this city that he was born, in 1523, it is.
that is to say, barely three years after the father's installation.
Raphael, head of the current house.

Fortune was very quickly in his favor the child from Mainz: it is true that. to prepare himself-to prepare for future arbitrations, which his house was expected to,
One day, to undertake the perpetration in France,
He had called on the Island suits for help plus INCENNICUSES: emails, as they would not have points were acceptable in a country with the code
Civil, 11 went to apply them in Türkiye.

That was back when, even more so than today.
the coins circulating in the Ottoman Empire affected extremely varied types.

A numismatist full of concern for the interests of his country, the vizier, in charge of finances, had the habit of collecting taxes by designating!
in what currency should the payment be made?
Naturally he chose the most current and further on.

The good Jew from Maverick sensed a scheme there-his; he periodically monopolized certain mon-

BISCHOFFSHEIM. 259

naies, and, in agreement with the vizier, once the monopolization rally accomplished, it was always found that the currency designated by the minister, for the payment-the tax system, was precisely the one that, Reduced in traffic, it had piled up in the vaults of Bischoffsheim., Fuck the world ran to ask him for it: so it was, not only-the mandatory exchange, but also, lar-bitrage force

Shovel is the main source of the fortune from which Raphael enjoys this fortune today.
S has increased considerably, especially since [S20, the time when old Louis, settling in
In Paris, he became involved with various financial companies, among others: at the Discount Counter and at the Société Générale,

I won't dwell on the details here.
artistic aspects of the life of the one whom the "stars"
they called it "my old doe.

Louis, patron of the arts, was a whole poem in himself.
at a certain point in 1866, the Conservatory to create the Athenaeum, a conference and concert hall, whose proceeds were to belong to the poor.

[He hoped to become the little blue coat]
French artists and, like so many of his core-religious figures, he firmly believed, he would cleanse his

260 MONOGRAPHS,

Turkish piastres by rubbing them against the works of charity.

[There are even biographers who have recorded the fact, by pompously decorating Louis Bischoit-sheim of the sound title of "banker and philan-thrope. I find that "philanthropist" is a not very exclusive.

They wanted to break with traditions of the father; judging that the arts were compromisedtants. pa en de certains sides, il tourne vers les Îles SCIENCE.

In fact, Raphaël already had ambitions.
political and was preparing to be a member of parliament for the Alps-Naritimes.

But as if, inevitably, the stars had to to dominate this family's philanthropy is astronomy, which attracted all the favors of Raphael.

The father had his Athenaeum, the son had his Observatory,

I'm not entirely sure that the father didn't beautifully enriched or adorned with diamonds, some priestesses of dance and song, but he is I'm sure the son gave some magnificent devices astronomy at the various observatories.

This deviation from paternal traditions has point prevents the large 16 of the English Café from sheltering

BISCHOFFSHEIM. 261

My stepson: only, she restricted her

Raphael's relationships are placed in a world of speculation that has, somewhat, isolated him. serious matters: he even received a serious lesson, on the occasion of Honduras, – this em-Homeric prunt where the whole world won, except the borrowing state and the gullible lender.

But, having become the son-in-law of the Baron d'Erlanger, one understands that it was difficult for me to refrain from any participation in bold ventures the strange financier who wears to his crown the jewels of Bingham.

I wouldn't even be surprised at all to app- to assume that Raphael's political ambition was the first product of her marriage.

This idea is all the more natural, given that... Raphaël was born into a very Bonapartist family. made a Republican candidate,

This is actually quite recent, dating back to 1880. only by invoking the services rendered by He, in the sciences, was able to obtain his letters of naturalization work.

The following year, he was elected deputy for Nice.

Thus, according to Eastern customs, a German by origin, Dutch by birth, came in France to enjoy its riches, and who,

262 MONOGRAPHS,

One fine day, he finds that, to polish his name of family, it wouldn't be bad if he were deputy.

And he succeeds, thanks to a few million skillfully employed!

As for having a French soul? That's another matter. thing !

We are German or Dutch: we find suitable to enroll his son in the school cen-

When in military service, one remains a foreigner.
but the day when, as a millionaire financier, one dreams the honors, we reward with a few "pons lor-"Niettes" – some observation establishments astronomical and we start from there to obtain the quality of French citizenship.

The Roman Empire did not destroy itself by other means.
very processes, and our decadence is undeniable.

The financier, about whom I am making these reflections, does not believe in a bias that is his personal: he can, scientifically and astronomically how, to be more or less remarkable: it can, financially, employ his fortune in a
The way in which it is appropriate for me to wear a harsh judgment, and, after all, it can be done that he himself unconsciously thirsts.

It is certainly not his fault if he is not

BISCHOFFSHEIM.)63

born in France and if the paternal millions have an eastern source; the mone- maneuvers uires are not, moreover, the monopoly of his family and we have seen, very recently, the de-rolling before the courts a story of mis-dailles starting from Switzerland and Turkey as the point of arrival, but whose transit in France was not considered a fact sufficient to legitimize the intervention of the justice system Irançalise,

[Therefore, there is nothing really new in the metallic combinations of both sides,
I do what impresses me and what I point out as a danger, is precisely the reproduction-tion of these combinations, constantly tending to to create, in France, foreign fortunes that move to the detriment of the general interest and which have, either directly or indirectly, voices ofliberating in the sovereign assemblies of the Days.

NEITHER]

The financial powers that I brought in.
up to this point in this gallery, are specially remarked by the effective hostility they have devoted to the republican principle, while appearing to bow before him.

except for those among them who have exercised the power to see, under very different conditions, the au-They acted, purely and simply, out of their metal torso. Finally, several have a history.
story, where ancestors, where even more theories less justice,

But with Marcus Lévy-Crénieu, I find myself in the presence of a new model financier, invoas for the Republic and sheltering under its wing.

There are no traditions here. In fact, there are no Father Lévy-Crémieu: Marcus is the first of his race. He is one of those who, having suffered from the organmonarchical nisation, take their revenge in

LÉVY-CREMIEU. 265

serving the opposite organization, but no great idea; everything, for him, boils down to the accumulated-
The enjoyment of life: he's a speculator:
Too bad for the others if that's what he finds the way to exploit their lack and ruin them.

It came to him all by itself, just as it came to cobbler of the fabulist Tatin the ambition to be me-doctor.

In short, one fine morning, Marcus exchanged, without shouting "Watch out!", his merchant's counter against a financier's egg cup.

(Don't accuse me of a crime for bringing people closer together) the cobbler's merchant and the bank doctorquier; it would be difficult, currently, to do a big difference between the first two professions – ask the mu- laboratory national – and, as for the two seconds – ofsummons to the criminal courts – they live.

So Lévy-Crémieu is not just a par-
He came, he is a transiormée. We must be grateful to him.
to some extent, for not having gone too far the metamorphosis of his person by adorning himself with a particle or of a noble title; not content Instead of being Lévy, by himself, he wanted to be Crémieu.
by his wife, which is expressed, moreover, very well.

29

266 MONOGRAPHS.

the hyphen that joins the two parts of k

SOIL HOT),

In Marseille, where this financier was very well known as simple shopkeeper, with the sign of the "Devil of the ar"ænt", we have the delightful habit of lengthening the names using a preposition that takes on all of following the appearance of a particle.

For example, I suppose that a shopkeeper would-Pellant "Galuchet" has no other heir than a Lille. A good lad named Chégalut.
He marries the daughter and succeeds the stepfather. Immediate-They paint a beautiful sign where they display in gold lettering [the following words]

"Chégalut, S' de Galuchet. »

Comine on île voit, the word "successor" is re-due to two small letters, which soon after disappear in pronunciation, - because the meritsdionaux have an incredible power of elision - et,
One fine day, the excellent shopkeeper advertised himself... quietly, he called out a resounding: "Chevalut, de Galuchet.,..." and so, he is now a gentleman!

In the South of France, and especially in Marseille, the kind-Men of this making are countless.
I could name some of the most prestigious ones in the the Phocæan bourgeoisie; but I do not want upset your good people by revealing their little

Done, by the customs and traditions of the Canne-beer, Marcus could perfectly well have been called Lévy de Crémieu. He didn't do it. That's good!
However, the "silver devil" was on his mind.
In his brain, he needed the bank!

The figure is estimated at around forty million
Marcus's current fortune, and it is said that, on this
In total, fourteen million fled as a result of the crash.
the General Union.

This greed for millions leaves me dreaming.
Why, remaining a commoner, did Marcus have-1} to-Chastened by great fortune? He has not yet entered into the feudalism of the great companies financial; at most he skirts the edges as an administrator of the Franco- Bank Egyptienne and Commissioner of the Docks and Entre-pots from Marseille. [E was a runner in 18994. [a
He was heavily involved in Mexican affairs with the island.
Discount Bank: it has been in all the unions and, in particular, within the union of Panama.

And as for his political aims, they characterize him-they perform poorly if we note that, on the one hand In hand, he is interested in the Journal des Débats and of the other to the French Republic.

Moreover, 1 liter is all contrast: 5 has a castle

In Epinay, and, for crew milk, 1 liter is sufficient

268 MONOGRAPHS.

of a coupé rented from the Compagnie des Petites Voi-tures: he readily offers a place to his friends, all the more readily since the horses are not point to Jui.

[in her family, parents holding the top at the end of high life and, in his outfit, who would want resembling that of an aged diplomat under Island lorniette.

Maieus's ambition, it seems, is absolutely artistic. In such a medium, it is protection-rabid nationalist;; he would almost organize at four corners of Paris, museums of paintings whose custody he would entrust, not to one of these brave invalids who would find a pension there retirement, but rather to young widows of "their capital, » which these museums would replace tobacco outlets.

I wouldn't even say that Marcus, very Actil, despite his sixty-two years, has not installed Actually, four or five of these museums. This man is therefore a true "benefactor", and I I understand. If the fact is true, that he has great be-care of a few million in revenue.

Works of art are not given away, their en-Maintenance costs an arm and a leg, and it is absolutely...

It is entirely legitimate for the Stock Exchange, with its unions, provides certain men with all the facilities available to them. capable of accumulating millions in a short time without much work or effort, for quintessentially their pleasures and prevent the arts from to atrophy in the attics of seamstresses and in the lodges of the concicraees.

LÉVY-CRÉMIEU. 269

However, this love of the arts has some regrettable aspects. No more thorns: public opinion is so bad language, which our pseudo-tax farmers are often forced to take it into account.

It's hard to say, and I'm really Victor Hugo was quite upset, in one of his pieces, had given, to a certain Podesta precisely the a name that would have put me at ease if he had given it to me linked to Tisbe, his lover.

I was told that one evening the Tisbé that I want saying this made a heroic sacrifice to his Podesta.

She, for whom her diamonds were, and are, to strip – for one evening – if the Podesta gave, in exchange for this temporary deprivation, a beautiful painting worth approximately 100,000 ducats.

The Podesta's whim was bizarre, one might say. and not very economical; it nevertheless had its reasons to be.

At the Padua Stock Exchange there had been some waterfalls: the inquisitors of Venice declared that the Podestà of Padua had some interest in to conceal his wealth, Now, at that same moment, the Tisbé was to appear on the stage, adorned with all His diamonds, munificence of the Podestà! If the Tisbé spread out its rivers, what would the Inquisition say about Stock market fluctuations?

1) "to Half to

270 MONGGRAPHIES.

It was essential that the rivers return to their starting point. in their velvet bed: it is to obtain this re- the result was that the unfortunate sovereign had to approach to view at some museum in Florence.

The sacrifice was difficult to make, but it suggested to the same Podesta the revenge that will follow.

Fa Tisbé's pension amounted to five thousand ducats per month, One day, she entered the cabin- clear of his protector, and glimpsed a charming canvas that a needy chance had led there for the modest sum of one hundred ducats.

Tisbé, a great biblical-lover, was seduced by the pretty canvas, and prayed, without further ado, to his protector of to give it to him.

Exclamation of the Podestà: a masterpiece of First order! She had just come from Jui, at the bottom Word, 20,000 ducats. It was an enormous sacrilege.

Tisbe had an inspiration: she proposed a market: the internet, in exchange for three months of his pension. The beloved was therefore no longer in the presence of anyone but...

LÉVY-CRÉMIEU. 271

The gallantry of the beloved waned. The Tisbe had the painting, and, of the 100,000 ducats paid As for the diamond strike, my darling couldn't care less. Trapped 14,900.

I don't know if Marcus belongs to the descent-dance or to the family of the principality from which I come to narrate the story: I only note that there there are great similarities between the two manice to count.

He himself felt that he needed to don-to give some appearance of theory to his practice stock market fluctuations, I imagined, very recently, to formulate a project for the conversion of the 3 0/0.

Was he aiming for Mr. Tirard's doorbell?

It is certain that the "merchant" Firard for-could be a precedent for the "shopkeeper" Lévy-Crémieu. Basically, this project was a cousin-certain aspects of the above-narrated conversion, from Îla monthly payment of 5,000 ducats for a canvas of 100!

I doubt that all this junk can to be taken seriously, and Marcus, for a long time again, will continue to look through the big end from one of its "pons lornicttes", the ribbon of which I would like to democratically bloody his buttonhole.

AIT

Erlanger

Erlanger is a German Jew, born in Frankfurt; He renounced the religion of his fathers, to please to the chief corporal of the generals of Berlin, He It has been introduced into France for about twenty years years: he acquired an immense fortune there, a deplorable reputation: consequently: Prussia, and France, upholding its honor, made her an officer of his national order!

The preceding synthesis is truly topsyhealth.

The man who thinks and seeks secrets humanity remains confused upon realizing that gold, combined with intrigue, produces the supreme power and eternal impunity.

ERLANGER. 73

This, however, is the only possible explanation.
of the leading role played by Erlanger in several major political or financial questions French candles.

There are few Erlangers in Paris; we count only nine, and even then, within those nine, the
The financial manager I'm dealing with, by himself, is three different places.

The phone book is indeed accusing Erlanger (baron, 0. #, and baroness Émile d'\, rue Made to stand,

Erlanger and Co. (Emile, 0, %, banker rue Faitbout.

Erlanger 'baron Emile d'}, 00. #, consul general of Greece, Taitbhout Street.

As for the other Erlanger books, they are, generally-merchants of feathers or lamps.

The financier, baron and count, the only one I have to to study, his name is "Émile": he has a brother who His name is Louis, and he married, despite her family, a charming actress before making the
The golden age of the Italian Theatre; it has, finally, several parents in financial companies Prussian.

Old Father Erlanger held a shop in Francfort bric-a-brac shop, and was Jewish throughout the country.

The strength of the term: Emile received only a cursory education.

214 MONOGRAPHS

and, early on, he began to chase the fortune.

Two marriages served as a springboard for his rescues.
golden teries.

[He had found a way to marry, first,
Miles Odette Laflitte, who later became Madame Cordier; Émile being Prussian, the wife depending on her husband's nationality, and the divorce being in force in Prussia, he took advantage of it to to conquer his freedom on the day when it was useful to him.

Indeed, this proved very useful, for he remarried.
a second time, and I will explain how below.

Émile is, moreover, a former Don Juan: alas!
A long time ago! Today, he wavers between fifty-five and sixty years old; his head tilts at œauche, like a poppy on its withered stem, finally, far from heading towards the majesty of old age,
It penetrates only through decrepitude and vulgarity.

Around 1860, Emile was a small-time banker from tenth order, in whose offices one arrived via a service staircase.

But five or six years had not yet passed,
that he had become an extremely wealthy millionaire.

The story is quite intriguing and deserves to be narrated.

We know that one day, almost suddenly, the Free America saw stirring within its heart a

ERLANGER. 279

a real social question, regarding abolition

On that point, a split had occurred between North and South.

The northerners or federalists no longer wanted it of slaves, the Southerners or Confederates, on the contrary, wanted the status quo. Several fights had taken place, and the Confederate Islands, lacking money, attempted to obtain a loan in France.

At that time, Émile had a certain degree of intimacy with Morny; this speculator-merchant-sergeant was not not difficult in choosing his companions; in short, this [ut ia petite maison Erlanger qui était chargé de the Confederate loan amounting to 7% » million francs.

I don't know what strange reason this loan came about, in favor of slavery, obviously, in France, a great success. It is said that he was covered forty times.

After all, the frenzied passion for stock market gambling explains a lot. America was far away; the frequent battles with varying outcomes provoked them. They were receiving contradictory news. What a mess for the players!

I therefore believe that it was not very difficult to Prussian financier to take advantage of the movements of Stock exchange to pick up the company's shares at bargain prices

276 MONOGRAPHS.

Confederate prunt, so as to find oneself a beautiful Day, sole holder with 80 0/0 profit.

Meanwhile, the Confederates needed with their money, they sent two delegates to Paris: MINT. Mason and Slidell.

Erlanger did not hesitate: first, he challenged their powers, contributed to making them worry during their stay in Paris: finally, he delayed so much and so much so that the delegated government was disappeared before the discussions had even begun. mined.

However, the delegates demonstrated the intention-

no longer as an agent of the Confederates, but like individuals before giving a mandate to a banker and coming to excise the account of his management.

Erlanger's new loophole: the dispute was American and could not be a judge in France!

Basically, asking a representative of the con-delegated to go and stand trial in America, a country where Lincoln and, after him, Andrew Johnson, swallow except for amnesty "the persons "having left the country to provide assistance to the "rebellion, as well as individuals whose fortune exceeded twenty thousand dollars and which, voluntarily- "They had silently participated in the rebellion." It was, truly, a bitter mockery:

ERLANGER. DAT

This is so true that the matter ended in a In an unexpected turn of events: the former delegates of the Confederates gave a discharge to the good Jew and... Mile Slidell de- Mrs. Erlanger came.

Thus, a loan was solemnly issued could have remained the property of an intermediary, without anyone, neither subscriber nor holder, having could not raise the slightest complaint.

It is quite obvious that such an adventure has This must have earned Emile many enemies; also not feeling sufficiently protected by his Prussian nationality, he sought, like Rothschild, after the Laybak congress, to cover himself with diplomatic inviolability. Rothschild became Erlanger became the Austrian consul general. consul general of (Greece, without even appearing) suspect the epigram contained, for him, in the name of the country of which he became the representative.

In any case, his first success encouraged him- rasea: 11 soon mingled, behind a certain Vi- boux, of a case known as Comp- Loir d'Alsace, which was not long in coming, like the rain- part of the companies in which Emile participates, to provoke endless lawsuits.

On this occasion, there was yet another attempt Self-absorbed, stuffed with gold as he was, he thought

278 MONOGRAPHS.

is among those who, judging according to GUX: believe that Consciences are a similar commodity at the COCOOn.

The dispute that interested him was judged at Siras-town. The trial court lavai Convicted, the case was going to appeal in Metz. Erlan-er, upon learning that the president, Mr. d'Almeras-Latour was going to adopt the unfavorable conclusions at the first judgment, suddenly obtained the no-nomination of this magistrate as advisor to the Court of Cassation, with an order to enter into functions within forty-eight hours.

It was done. But I must say, to eternal honor of the judiciary, that the successor of the president de Metz adopted identical conclusions and con-damna Erlanger.

After these two exploits, should I tell that Emile was rewarded by Prussia, as [Supplier to the armies during the war?]

Do I need to say how, of the LK72s, 11 was preparing.
through his interventions in Tunisian finance,
The necessity of the protectorate, which cost and which still costs France so much money.

[For Erlanger, it was then a matter of re-to know one's debt by Le bev, - *% mulons 1/2

Newspapers printed that, neither arriving

No, Lrlanger invoked Mr. de Bismarck, who that if, within twenty-four hours, the # millions 1/? were not paved, Germany de- would declare war.

And the newspapers added:

"The next day, the 4.5 million were de- placed between the hands of Mr. Tulin, consul general- German ral in Tunisia, »

It is not surprising that knowledge of these various ways of acting inspired, in no- November 1876, at the municipality of Madrid, Pidée to withdraw from the Erlangwer house the service of his loan of 1568.

However, France is less daring than Spain, and 1] is such a counselor at the Court of Cassation who one could affirm, today, that around the time of the intervention of the Prussian chancellor in Tunis, In Paris, the prosecutor's office, upon seeing a letter from the same personnoge, had to stop certain prosecutions (1).

(However, lawsuits abound surrounding this) appointed.

I will only mention those he had with the Republic of Costa Rica, on behalf of

(1) Since these lines were written, new Correctional trials have been reported, but it is impossible to predict that their outcome differs, significantly, from other outcomes previous ones.

240 MONOGRAPHS

which he had borrowed 65 million and didn't had paid only five! This trial was judged at London,

I will also mention his involvement in the Bank of New Caledonia: its responsibility lite in the phosphates of Sombrero Island, its Stock market fluctuations in the electrical cable business sticks, each break of which served as his chicken to the golden eggs; and the Auteuil palace, and the Ffippo- Drôme, and its conduct in the Crédit Mobilier, and his intrigues in the French Crédit Oéncral, and his speculations in the plaster quarries of Paris, and, finally, his extraordinary attitude in the Mines invrai-similar to the Bingham.

This last case has, for a long time, filled the newspaper columns; all jurisdictions of The judiciary was aware of it.

How many times have the newspapers announced that Mr. Macé, or Mr. Lambquin, or Lechartier were tasked with providing instruments in the affairs where Emile was located, and, in particular, in the Binoham?

It was all in vain! Erianger dealt with the shareholders of fools" and persuaded them that, if Bin-æham was called Lexington, and if, consequently, they exchanged their Bingham papers for a

ERLANGER. 28]

Lexington paper, they would find all their areent.

Thus it was done, and the great Emile sleeps in peace. safely, I hope, from all responsibility, thanks at the Stock Exchange.

However, the stock market is not enough for him: this universal man also plays like a simple Lebaudy, on all kinds of merchandise.

Unfortunately, in this series of operations, Responsibilities are more difficult to grasp, and Although an official rating exists, it does not give point, by an admission, the notoriety that the syn-Die Moreau gave to the Bingham titles, in leading to sanctions by the agents' union of exchange. Stock market fluctuations on the merchants Dises usually have a bloody ending: the The law, paralyzed, can never unmask the true author.

(When we summarize all the actions of this financier- cer, when we observe that not a single one of the affairs in which he found himself involved did not escaped catastrophes and ruins, from trials involving scandals, without ever any asks by what phenomenon it can happen that such and such a French financier, for a single disaster or a single offence, has incurred and suffered the 24.

282 MONOGRAPHIES.

the rigors of justice, while this Prussian triumphantly, if I wanted to quote some names, the list would be long, from Mires to Bontoux.

+ Li

Erlanger is a German Jew, born in Frankfurt:
He renounced the religion of his fathers to please them.
to the chief corporal of the Berlin generals. IT has introduced in France some twenty years ago: it
He acquired an immense fortune and a reputation there.
detestable; consequently: Prussia, scrubbing
His commoner status made him a baron, then a count, and France, extolling his honor, he made him an officer of his national order!

+ i # " # ' '

Apart from the cosmopolitan Jewish community I come from to give some tips, there is a financial cooperative EDR RES RUE, at | r RUN RAA; cers, of entirely modern origin (most dating from the second Empire), which moves, more particularly.
in the political world. "To varying degrees, cl uses certain methods, in some circumstances.
\ ss to " :
escape criticism, but which, in most cases
In such cases, they constitute a public danger.

Here are a few examples:

there
|
[has

XIV

Joubert and Sautter

When the people of Ta rue Laffite combine one of their blows, they hasten to deliver a reeardrum scrutinizing the people on rue d'Antin.

There, indeed, is a meeting of financiers
'whose association has enough power to influence of great importance in their concerns.

And then, this Society has a head and a arms that intrigue them, because, if the head is made of bronze,
The arm is made of cast steel.

In short, the Jews of rue Plaffitte are very upset.
veiled from noting that they can be of the last well with the large spring of the official coast.
while they would not dare to worry the head of bronze nor familiarly pull the sleeve at the arm of steel, which I just mentioned.

Given the absolute power of the descendants of Mayer Rothschild, their attitude in the presence of 4 to ?: INR MONOGRAPHS.

this head and arm is quite singular for attract attention.

The bronze head belongs to Mr. Joubert, the
The steel arm belongs to Mr. Sautter.

They complement and intertwine with each other in such a way that the fact that one cannot speak of the moon without to take care of the other.

[It is certain that politicians who use-would skillfully read the capabilities of these two Hinanciers will be able to paralvser Islands

most formidable Jewish conspiracies.

Joubert is one of those men who did not They've generated a lot of buzz, which is already an in-dice favourable to the modesty of his character.

Vapereau says nothing about it. The little ones rarely æazettes, composing the orchestra of certain operas Financial experts have printed his name: also, great was my perplexity when it came to drawing up a porexact trait of this administrator.

Joubert is a bourgeois name; the civil registry does not reflect it.
inflicted no kind of barony.

The Bottin almanac contains no less than thirty-one Joubert, In the number, two are

JOUBERT AND SAUTTER 289

decorated, but the two are one. The rubri-
The issues are different because it concerns the home.
deprived of the administrator and the official residence cielle of the vice-president of Ta Banque de Paris and of the Netherlands. For the latter only, we took care to clearly indicate the grade of the member the Legion of Honour, This is not a A man's weakness, it's a small advertisement for the Bank,

According to those close to Joubert, he would be impossible to guess under the appearance of daylight, under the appearance of Knight Mondor which sums up his personality, powerful intelligence, and affability of character residing under this temperament that one would think he was apoplectic,

Moreover, he is a financier worthy of the Re-cence; 1l has artistic alliances and friendships.
Was it attraction that led him to choose Voisine?
to install his summer residence in a magnificent castle ?

[He has namesakes in the Senate and the House] members of parliament, but he was content with having filled the functions of a member of the municipal council

Directly, and officially, Joubert therefore did not collaborate in the general administration of the country's finances; the same is not true if

286 MONOGRAPHS.

his role as administrator is considered, for he focused on a few specialties from which he emerged to his credit,

It is fashionable these days for all advice administration, by each of its members.
ramifications in the councils of other so-companies, If I wanted to give examples, let me see-it would be easy to establish that the board of directors of the Paris-Lyon-Mediterranean railway, holds.
by its members, to sixty-seven companies: that that of the Northern Railway is forty-three companies, and that it is not uncommon to discover that a single administrator manages in the same twenty-four different companies at that time.

As he only has twenty-four hours in One day, these people, obviously, don't sleep!
no, and if they sleep, even for just six hours, they do not fulfill their integral mandate-element.

Joubert only accepted five or six mandates, in addition to the vice-presidency of La Banque de Paris and the Netherlands, and, among them, that of administrator-founder of the Banque d'Épargne et de Crédit,

This last one is in liquidation in circonstants that everyone knows and I have almost not having the courage to criticize Joubert for the competition that he gave to this foundation, dominated as I am

—

through the memory of his collaboration, which was very remarkable quable, at the control institute in Egypt, when, as a colleague of Mr. Goeschen, he went to support against the Khedive the interests of the creditors rancaus.

We remember the commotion that arose around the convention known as Gæschen-Jou-Bert. We know with what duplicity Ismail welcomed-read all the negotiators, the reputation of this sou-Verain is, moreover, well established and we often said of him that he was the greatest corrupter of SO era.

out what has happened since that convention, all the Egyptian difficulties, all the conflicts raised about the Consuls, among others THE AIR of Rine and Bhenicres attest to the seriousness of the vested interests and indicate the true terrain dc the struggle between English claims (| the French complaints,

I don't want to see the results.
Certainly, this could give rise to a number of names numerous revelations which would be mixed Rothschild and Soubevrans families.

But, once again, I only want to see the results: however, the main one of them was, at Ultimately, the repair of the Cr'uve Hnpru-dence committed when one engages the Crédit foncier

258 MONOGRAPHS

of France in all the perils of Egyptian finances yours.

At the time of Joubert's mission, the struggle was so wide open, between the Khedive and the negotiators citors, that the newspapers recorded the information
The following information:

Messrs. Goeschen and Joubert did not accept any of the atspecial train, nor the Care Palace, and north stayed that twenty-four hours in Alexandria.

“
#

We know the rest, and, under penalty of making history
Of all the conflicts in Egypt, I cannot speak more on this topic

'Among the administrative acts of Mr. Joubert, I
I will point out, once again, an interesting peculiarity.

At a time when all societies were gripped by the vertigo of doubling their capital social, the Bank of Paris and the Netherlands, at
On the contrary, it reduced its capital, by the simple sup-pressure to call for payments; I would add even the accounting system, followed by the administration with which he collaborates, offers unc-clarity rarely found in financial statements from other companies,

After that, I do not want to establish that everything, in the trends of the institution and the administration

The contractor I just dealt with achieves the ideal

JOUBERT AND SAUTTER. 289

financial operations. I One could criticize the Bank of Paris for being, above all, of the Netherlands; in short, to be the representative feeling the presence of a foreign element in France.

In everything, however, there is a question of a measure that must not be exceeded; 1l y a especially knowing when to use practice and in-depth knowledge of foreign finance works to defend French interests. However, it is that's precisely what I think I've found in a part of Joubert's acts; also, in their favor,
I can certainly not nitpick.

[1 it is rare to find, in the circles of Ia fi-sane-froid under the storm of millions or of to guard their austerity amidst bursts of laughter tall waterfalls of tinkling gold.

There is a heroism here that recalls the military spirit.
ture.

When Joubert speaks of his collaborator
More devoted, that's pretty much what he says about Charles to jump.

Charles Sautter looks like an artillery officer in service activity.

Fur
25

290 MONOGRAPHS

Tall, strong, square-shouldered and square-bodied tere, the grey moustache, trimmed into a brush, the che-
I want whitening products, pushed back, with a pale complexion and matte, with piercing eyes and a confident gaze, he de-giving his whole person an impression of the-
to see accomplished.

Sautter was born in Marseille to a French father, Although of Swiss origin, his family is that of ho-worthy merchants: I even believe that one of its members ran the consulate of the Republic Swiss.

Nevertheless, Charles keeps politics out of the picture.
reur; in religion, he is Lutheran; he was born in around 1830, and, after having studied serious, either from a scientific point of view, or from the
From a commercial point of view, 11 had about thirty to thirty-five years old when he was brought in to take care of finances, by participating, in 1863, in the foundation and to the administration of Crédit Ivonnais.

The prudence inherent in his character, did not he was quick to advise him to isolate his responsibility-hité, when this establishment, leaving the form of a limited liability company, se Jança towards the freest anonymity, according to the gospel of 1867.

We find him again later, in 1870, translated-

Zionii [the "savior"]

JOUBERT AND SAUTTER. 291

Alone, at the time of the Paris Commune, in
In Place Vendôme, he became the guardian and the defender of several hundred million securities that had remained deposited in the cash registers of the Crédit Mobilier. It is hardly necessary to add that in 1870 and 1871, the Place Vendôme was at this point, by far, the safest place in Paris, To Finally, in 1872, he accepted the position of di-Rector of the Bank of Paris and the Netherlands.

Sautter, family man, homemaker and office, moves about with ease in this administered environment administrative whose homogeneity is not its characteristic dominant, without paying attention to the bushes of his road, which contains both roses and thorns.

Austerity is not incompatible with tolerance; but I confess that this charms me.
because I'm so used to weddings
Venus with Plutus, that the exceptions, in pa-
These materials, like an oasis in the middle of nowhere, give me the impression of...
Sahara.

Another oasis: Jumping to the horror of games Stock exchange, and I was seriously assured that he didn't never made a forward transaction on his own behalf personal. As strange as it may seem, I rap-door. I even think he's pushing the horror of

I gamble to the point of avoiding lotteries, and I'm not well

299 MONOGRAPHS.

certain that lot bonds do not no point in grinding my teeth, even in memory.

In short, winning a big prize must seem to him abnormal.

Joubert, for whom he professes a veritable cult.

You have to hear KSautter narrate the story of Liquidation vouchers from the City of Paris:

– There's no question about it: no, sir, at this
At that time, in 1572, the city's credit was shaken.
Mr. Joubert was then a municipal councillor: it He's the one who led this whole affair! F6, good! Never!
We couldn't get him to accept the slightest participation tion in this operation: "I don't want to, me and he often said that my mandate as a councilor "either involved in my role as a director, and the "Two mandates should not benefit each other"
"so much so,"

Sautter is inexhaustible when you put him on this chapter; 1. The same applies if he is made to tell the conversion of the Legion's endowment fund
of honor:

– There were six million annuities there, 30/0.
Nothing was more useful, to all interests, as Converting that 3-0 to 5-0 was patriotic.
Sir! € was contributing to the ranking of the new fund: it was, moreover, to increase the Island

JOUBERT AND SAUTTER. 993

income from the injury to honor, or, at the very least, to provide him with a cash payment capable of facilitating major-
the reconstruction of his destroyed palace.
Joubert understood that perfectly, go and our
The bank carried out this transaction upon arrival.
to tie the two ends together.

Poor Sautter! It would have been preferable if after having managed the conversion at the bank, he could have to go and manage the accounting at the Legion of Honour
neur.

[It is likely that the Court of Auditors would have] experienced less difficulty in untangling the differences rents memories that she had so much trouble making to put back.

[There might have been, perhaps, fewer ceilings]

But there would certainly have been more furniture.
in others.

That, I must say, is an old story.
which does not affect the current chancellery in any way.

In any case, Sautter, who is today
Knight of the Legion of Honour, was not decorated on this occasion. Another had taken his place; His cross dates from 1876. Moreover, this financier is modest: 11 understands that, like Joubert his boss, we give ourselves talking weapons, symbo-hsant the character; and, indeed, when he hears

A1 TS

294 MONOGRAPHS.

to discuss the man for whom he professes so much es-time, 11 pleasantly reminds us that this one has taken for arms "a tortoise" with this motto: "I have "Good back."

As for him personally, we wouldn't suspect it.
Oucré seeing him so simple in taste, so rounded affable in manner, that he has a strong brother in Switzerland busy colonizing Kétif, Algeria, and which is called Count Sautter de Beauregard.

Is Charles Sautter hiding his title, or is this brother found a Beau- estate in Switzerland look like Hirsch found one in Seine-et-Oise?

I would add to my list of astonishments
And among my satisfactions, the discovery of a financier who is neither a count nor a baron, or who does not want to Being, which amounts to the same thing.

After what I just said, 1 liter is a good amount.
to point out that Sautter's kinship could have been.
for a long time, allowing it to feed pro-ambitious projects: it is, in fact, both a cousin of Léon Say and Raoul Duval. I won't push it.
the indiscretion to the point of conjecturing that the alliance of families could have generated some kind of servitude economic or political theories. Eisto-Nothing, I must say; but, if I may

JOUBERT AND SAUTTER. 295

a certain independence, and I find an indication of it in the often rebellious attitudes of the bank whose administration he heads.

However, it could do more; it could serve—counterweight to the combinations of loligar—
Jewish financial shit; it would be, even to the point
From an international perspective, an extremely fa—voracious to French interests and to his own.

It's Ja, I know, a delicate undertaking.
that a company, equipped with a board of directors tration, composed of Jewish and Christian elements, ne would realize that thanks to a particular energy of its most prominent leaders,

But finally, the thing is possible and deserves that we
I'm thinking about it.

To the large metal tanks hostile to Ta France, 11, it is necessary to know how to oppose the major reservoirs friendly metallic eyes, and, if one wants to prevent the a social revolution ready to use brute force,
This revolution must be carried out by force.

peaceful.

AV

Peereire

(THE HEIRS).

Science, that great insolent thing, has pushed the irreverence for his findings until establishing, by statistics show that constitutional diseases—such or cerebral perfections do not reproduce occur in families (when they reproduce they are, by skipping a generation.

Without wanting to compare human movement from the transmission of races to the confession movement
The art of the baccarat game, I would venture to say, however,

By virtue of these scientific theorems, I have the esso that the five Péreires, currently registered at Bottin in the Faubourg Saint-Honoré, is contributing will give birth to some offspring ca-possible to illustrate their name again or, at all at least, to uphold the reputation, in my opinion

PEREIRE (THE HEIRS|. 297

a little overrated, of the two financiers who led
So much noise during the Second Empire,

In the meantime, to replace the large flaxwots, Emile and Isaac Péreire, we have a me-Numismatic currency, composed of five coins:

Eugène, Émile If, Isaac II, Gustave and Henri:

Only two, out of the five, aspire to the supremacy; Fun is more specifically devoted to French affairs; the other is more particular-delivered in a Spanish style.

To more clearly symbolize the trends,
I would say that one embodies the General Company transatlantic, and the other the Crédit Mobilier es-pagnok.

One cannot work to appreciate the financial personality current Péreire candle by Pétude d'une création any emanating from their initiative

To judge them, it is inevitably necessary to recall the strange environment in which they were raised,

The former Péreires, bankers before being bankers had taken part in everything that was recounted the ceremonies of religion were born of the grotesque Saint-Simonian. They even preserved, from this chief, a great love of advertising, and, by Jehovah! we can remember that the first Émile
He did not fail to do so. It was Eugene, son of Isaac, who perpetuates the tradition.

Dominated by their love of advertising, the an-
The ancient Pereires had invented a marvelous formula to legitimize their unbridled speculation.

Because these speculations had earned them, regarding the Crédit mobilier, a vigorous apostrophe of the eloquent Berrvyer, calling this establishment "a Europe's largest casino.

Therefore, the theory of the ancient Pereire consisted of in this respect: that "all means are good, provided that we arrive at a result, »

Children of the Empire, coming after the ca-In the stanzas of 1848, they needed to tell the people :

We handle billions, that's true! We are the masters of the rise and fall, it's still True! We earn hundreds of millions, that's strong.
Possible! But, in the end, look closely, you'll find Protites. We're giving you railways in France.
in Spain, in Switzerland, in Austria; we give you canals, ships, shops, ports,
New neighborhoods: we teach you how to enjoy the riches Octomaniacs! What does it matter? After that, let him have senses.
who, having bought all our securities at the highest price.
have lost a lot of money by reselling them! 300 billion Millions? What does it matter? Don't you have the roads, the ma-Oases, canals, houses? All of that remains with you.
There is nothing in common, you see, between our ways to operate and that of the Rothschilds. It presupposes a liquidation-tion of the operations of these German Jews, you do not find-
'You don't have, under all their piles of papers, an inch

PERISH THE HEIRS. 209

the fertile land, and nothing will remain for you, for they will have-will have taken everything.

To this dazzling exposition of principles, the few-

Ple was unable to answer one very simple question:

You forget that "moving is not creating"; you Forget, above all, that when it comes time to restore the balance that you have disturbed {which will inevitably happen:, The liquidation will be social and revolutionary: because, even assuming that we seek peacefully to stop the abuse of your monopolies, you have made it so expensive-reuse the possibility of concluding peace agreements that, it is not certain that the final explosion can be avoided.

You are proud of your railway lines, of your neighborhoods brand new!

Your railways? But your air force has so-majorities that, when the public interest requires their
The repurchase, this same public indiscretion, shudders with terror in adding up what your markups allow you to to demand it from him.

You are proud of your new neighborhoods! of your May-sounds! But it has become impossible to satisfy the your lovers' ecstasies, and you have increased so much the grounds, which sensible minds wonder if the mortgage lenders, believing they were lending half of âa real value, have not actually lent the entirety of this value: so much so that a crisis in incomes im-furniture, which could lead to the forced execution of æawes, the mortgage lender is no longer certain of to recover even one's capital.

Since no one gave that answer, the theory

300 MONOGRAPHS.

The Pereire family remained triumphant, and she
To sum it up in two words: Monopoly andagio.

Theagio! The Péreire heirs practice it in all its ugliness on the Spanish Mobilier Credit.
whose stock market fluctuations alone amortize capital and maintain income.

What one loses, the other gains: Move-fundraising, financial parasitism,

The monopoly! The Péreire heirs perpetuate it the cult in the venerable Transatlantic Company-that, which has no other reason for being than the for:

The former Péreire family also practiced the Theory of Accumulation, in its heyday
In fact, the first Emile alone directed ten-Nine companies and 3.7 billion: at this same
At the time, Isaac was administrator of twelve counties.
companies, Eugene was cutting his teeth: He was then nine times an administrator.

Today the five divi- coins
The sionaries named Péreire have scattered.
In all, in nine or ten companies, and Eugène did not gives more care than four or five people.

I certainly don't blame him! Although he, must be singularly diminished next to his uncle.

At least if we could say that in rest:-

PÉREIRE (THE HEIRS). 510

Given the number of his mandates, he was able to grant to those he kept a larger sum surveillance!

But, alas! if one studies in detail the administrative history of the Compagnie transat-antiquity, for example in Saint-Nazaire, 11 ÿ to In a few years, it will be easy to see that-certain most regrettable shortcomings,

If we conduct the same study in Paris and on the biinans, we will search in vain for a resulirie and normal depreciation of ships.
while this depreciation is a prerequisite - moral security of material and administrative tive of any shipping company.

And as for the role played by state subsidies in the balance sheet equilibrium, it is so important-as long as one understands, without difficulty, the susceptibility Eugene in the presence of everything that can lead its removal.

If I continue to search for the traditions of faa thousand in the current Pereire, I confess that I am moderately reassured about the strategic processes what they can use in matters of assessment.-

Indeed, I cannot help but remember—to say that it is to the great Emile, in person, that is Then came the following series of misadventures:

26

WHERE? MONOGRAPHS.

This was the general assembly or was supposed to to merge the ports of Marseille.

On October 19th, the list of ac-tionnaires having filed their securities and we had stopped at number 22. That same day, an actionnaire, named Mr. I, that his relationship with Mires probably made him a formidable opponent to the Péreire family.
also wanted to deposit its securities.

Under the pretext that the deadlines had expired, we did not refused to receive them. Thereupon, referred to the pre-the presiding judge, who ordered, on October 23, that Mr. If. will be included in the list of actions naires; but, to his great astonishment, the map that is issued to him bears the number 335; of such so that between the closing at 32? and the reopening by order of the court at 335, there had been twelve Interleaved numbers!

That's not all; the day of the assembly...

This man distinguished himself, above all others, by his enthusiasm—
A siasm in favor of Emile Péreire. A shareholder eventually noticed it.

"Links," he said to himself, "X...? He has shares? I don't know."
Don't believe my eyes! But, whatever, it's a
What a great opportunity!

And, in her, it was a good opportunity; the action—

the national in question being the holder, against the enthusiasm—

PÉREIRE (THE HEIRS). 3083

Siaste X..., of an enforceable judgment, but until—Alas! Unworkable.

immediately practice opposition on the actions filed by X..

Two other oppositions took the same path-min. And, that same evening, do you know who raised the Objections? Do you know what receipt the bailiff was forced to bellow, three times, and for a total principal amount of 3,800 francs? This one: "Received from Ia Mr. Emile Péreire's share of the sum of... »

The lawyer who recounted these events before the court-nal, M°Grandmanche de Beaulieu, adds as In conclusion:

"(Generally, the one who pays the amount of Opposition is the island's owner of the shares.

Such is the moral tradition of the family, and,
HOW LONG HAVE THEN, HERE IS WHAT THE HEIRS HAVE distanced:

Everyone knows that the two brothers, that we are con-had come to call the great ones, had amassed a fortune of 100 million; that, to put this fortune tune protected from eventualities, and also to avoid the transfer or inheritance taxes, they had formed a civil society for the management of this heritage.

However, upon Isaac's death, Eugene did not want to-

304 MONOGRAPHS.

to die in this kind of joint ownership and he demanded his share. This decision, it seems, produced a cer-a cooling of relations among the heirs.

In any case, financially speaking, Eugene does not lead the high life like the most of his colleagues, whose lexis I have outlinedtence.

Is it out of taste and principle? Or out of-Drerie? As his enemies claim; he
It is nonetheless true that at an age, still relatively young advanced, because it floats between forty-five and one-
For as many years, he lived a modest and very remote life.
one of the easy pleasures for which most financiers find it so appealing.

I conclude that, if he piles it up, in order to increase the T5s or 20 million that fell to him in part-tage, it is, in the absence of Jewishness, by a feeling ambition.

Unfortunately, nothing justifies it, and he does not tra-

It may only be worth it for his descendants!

XVI

Armand Donon

Take a veteran of the First Empire, having cut off his favorites; take the voluntary deafness of Raspail, lock it all in a vest this Staub, and, with this improbable assembly, you will have created the strange financier that everyone Paris knows him, and his name is Armand Donon.

If, approximately sixty years before the memorabilia erarable, to which, thanks to the plan of Mr. de Freyeinet, the State was able to buy back certain railway lines de feret pay Donon around forty million:

Yes, I say, sixty years before that time, the two syllables of this name did not appear on Îles civil registry records, I would readily believe that they simply constitute a Latin motto, chosen by this financier, that a student in rhetoric-rique would translate it simply with these words: Do "No, I don't give €, " but who, financially, translates much better as these-cl: I keep.

Case

Pa db

306 MONOGRAPHS.

And, indeed, the entire financial system of Donon consists of holding deposits, by paying, well Understood, a minimal interest, for the laudable purpose to anonymously withdraw products from it rables: in short, 11 immobilizes Pargentet makes the accounts, a system for the realization of which it has created a company whose title clearly expresses the Operation: The Deposit and Accounts Company

Donon's flourishing occurred under the Second Empire, three or four years before the Exposition of 1807.

At that time, it was already part of a trilogy social: Ja bank Donon-Aubrvy-Grautier; he was Consul General of Furquie and he felt the need, thanks to his impeeriales, to embark on major operations.

[L was feeling cramped in his banking association; direct responsibility, imposed by reason social, often stops the conclusion of certain business. Anonymity suddenly puts you at ease. Therefore, deposits and current accounts could to address clearly all matters that had not The three partners were not taking on the daring task of acting in their own name. collective.

In the following, Armand Donon preserved again this process; he created, around the Accounts

ARMAND DONON. 507

currents, several other anonymities having for the main goal of doing, precisely, what the mai- His mother had been removed from her position. Hence the Paris financial society, the central bank popular work and savings and several others.

Moreover, Armand claims to be a A man of ideas; he readily proclaims himself a socialist. list. He interprets the word singularly. He has aeroupe, in its various societies, all the detritus political parties. He has the momentum of the Bonapartists, that of the Levitimists, the Orleanists, the Oppor-Tunisians and even radicals. It's a real tontine intended to insure him against the chances of changes of government.

This eclecticism stems from his origins. married Ja, daughter of Staub, a tailor famous for his Carnations in 1830, it was an alliance, but he had ærand care to give his daughter to a gentleman. It is a peculiar thing that every worker, who nobility. That's how the banker Ouvrard had found a way to make his daughter a co-Countess of Rochechouart, and Mirés, of her own, a Princess of Polignac.

We must also tell the whole story: since 1789, finance stripped the nobility, and the latter finds it natural to

308 MONOGRAPHS.

to reclaim, through marriages, what politics He took it away from him, trafficking like any other, but trafficking nonetheless.

Under the Empire, Donon was linked to this Law at little foot whose name was Morny. He was guardian of his children; he organized, for them, I don't know what Garwotière farm on the lands of Deauville, which were for a long time the undivided property of the successor cession. Then 11 turned to politics.

Armand Donon's political impulses may to be studied, in a fairly certain way, in the way in which various societies behave pivoting around the parent company,

Currently, Bonapartism is in decline: or, in Donon's consortium, Bonapartism is represented by the Paris Financial Company. The master's favor is noticeably diminished as a result. to move on elsewhere.

We can recall that Donon addressed, for so to speak publicly, the press in a huge a newspaper called the Globe; it was the commentary: cement of his opportunism; the bad Some say it cost him dearly.

Donon continued his relations with the press by means of the Little French Republic. Its attitude, in the railway question, is Deserving of attention. A supporter of the buyout so much that he has lines to sell, 11 soon feels the hesit-

ARMAND DONON. 309

His attitude
The current situation is mysterious, but so are his theories.

It's about going through his wallet, only, well
He would be clever indeed who, among the millions piled up, under this heading, in its financial statements, could to discover the truth.

When questioned on this point, Donon is deaf than ever; however, I have it has been said that, for some time now, all the the sensitivities of his eardrum are reserved for the voice of a single man: the city councillor Villard,

Villard is a creation of Armand Donon who triumphed at Batignolles against Maret and Martin Villard is Bixio's brother-in-law; he is a a talented engineer, very close to a Portuguese Jew named Ruiz and with the Creole Hérédia.

Villard became Donon's guardian. Grand
That devil of a man, very loud-mouthed, he uses on Donon the methods of intimidation, such so that poor Armand trembles and makes, in Villard's will was final.

The Central Labor and Savings Fund has not no other origin. We wanted to show that the
The Republic was doing something for the people;

great care is also taken to insert the word "popu-

510 MONOGRAPHS.

"Laire" on the prospectuses and in the statutes:
But, alas! I fear that everything will end there.
and that financial operations do not have, with the people, with very distant relationships.

Donon is therefore a political financier and, as
As such, he certainly has his place in this gallery, because his influence, since it is controllable by certunes individualities who, hiding behind Judaism, bear no responsibility whatsoever for the combinations the sounds they suggest to him, can become extreme dangerous situation to the general interests.

It is always with great concern that I note the alliance between financiers and the politicians.

What is called the democratization of credit to mainly resulted in a confrontation between the hands of about ten public limited companies Islands the most direct material interests of the nation [French.

In turn, the ten public limited companies re-suent in some men, whose number is often very limited due to the cumulative effect, if although, ultimately, at the top of all the in- In the general area, there is a small church which all aspirations are directed towards those who hold material power.

But if, in turn, this church accepts a direction-

(RMANI) DONON. 511

hidden detail, it is certain that the goal pursued is, First, the interest of the church, then very secondarily- public interest. But like these two impos- The nets never manage to work, okay, since It is from the public masses that the church levies its taxes. its profits, — 11 it follows that any catastrophe that can be attributed by financiers to the scheme In politics, it is the financiers who, in reality, they hold this regime in their hands.

On the other hand, political bombs have a profound terror of addressing the questions from the podium financial conditions.

We live in such an extraordinary time and so corrupt that suspicion immediately attaches itself to directly, to the attitude, whatever it may be, of a politician supporting an economic thesis.

Inevitably, it is said, he has a personal interest- nel. So we end up using a process bizarre, consisting of dissolving with the greatest care, under grand, meaningless words, under deliberately obscure theories, any question which, In practice, this should translate into increased costs. the sowing of life and the elevation of contributions direct or indirect licals.

So, everything is done through subtext: Ja finance He takes advantage and the nation loses.

55 to &7 MONOGRAPHS.

Donon seems formidable to me, and that's why-
It's good that we know about them and their pros.
ceded and their existence.

Moreover, one could see, upon browsing the names of those I have already studied, that the mass of financiers is divided into two categories well-defined theories: one contains all those who accumulate wealth, driven by a passion for enjoyments of life, as well as to satisfy the stupide vanité, characterizing the French nation and se revealing through the love of the braid; for if the braid It's the game warden, happy to offend a few of his peers speak out against them.
It is also the financier who, with the same gold, is happy to dominate truffles and girls,

The other category contains all those for whom material pleasures are not a goal unique and who want to satisfy their pride and their passion for domination. These are the ones who buy with the same look and the girls and their consciences, and they find, in the category of simple Players, wonderful helpers when,
In one big move, they want to ruin an entire Country.
Donon belongs to this second class, and This is explained by his dual status as French and former Consul General of Türkiye; for, alas,

ARMAND DONON. 019

When you touch the Orient, there is always some left.
something !

Meanwhile, Armand is covered in deeo-rations, 11 wears the Legion officer's cross
As a matter of honor, he disguises himself as a Basque when he is at his castle near Alençon, no doubt for Not taken for a slab, and 1 liter continues to govern peacefully the hundreds of millions recorded in the ledger of the many $s0-bank. He is courted by all the politicians, at Whatever opinion they may hold, which, by wealth, want to rebuild or support the political order favorable to their interests.

I cannot help but borrow from Monteswhich led to the conclusion of this study and of Iui don-
He is very right when he says:

"The tyranny of a prince does not put a what more
"near its ruin, indifference to the common good"
"mun ny met a republic. The advantage of a State
"Freedom means that incomes are better managed there."

But when that is not the case, and instead of friends and
"the prince's parents, it is necessary to make the fortune of the pa"rents and friends of all those who have a part in the sister-"Government. All is lost!"

(The Republic should take heed!)

=
.....]

XVII
H. Durrieu.

Il Durrieu possesses 20 million, and Balzac would have loved his name).

These two figures sum up the man.

In reality, some names have a sound-ritual that demands such typographic clothing, all like the islands, people have such an attitude that demands a certain cut of clothing,

This name: /{. Durrieu, with a pure- physiognomy particular; it would certainly disappear, st lon wrote, in full, the first name "Fenri" or if we were to add either a particle or a tre.

But "Durrieu" is resistant to any dislocation of letters: if we translated it, we would arrive at the e-equivalent of "hard stream", which throws us-

Railing acknowledged the financier who is the subject of no comments.

H. DURRIEU. 915

Once, noble, he is not; neither D'Hozier, nor Bottin does not accuse him of it: he did, however, have parents who were counts and barons, by virtue of the emperor's factory {the first, which posed willingly his right to pass on his crown imperial, but which ruthlessly refused to its ennobled members the right to transmit their nine per-the comitals or their baronial tortil.

That said, enough is enough that Durrieu has some imperial affinities, which does not prevent him from da-to see Orleanist alliances,—having married the pro-daughter of a minister of Louis-Philippe, and having Republican friends, — I don't know why.

[He is therefore not young. He has been for ten years past half a century.

The burden does not weigh on his shoulders, as one might believe upon seeing them light-vaulted; it is likely that a habit charming helped round them off: 1 liter goes down and looks very often at the ground, not at all, as the Jew picking up a pin or looking for a Louis lost, but to smile at his dog, a John sheepdog, half-shaven, who never leaves him and who attends, gravely, in the office of the financial, to all business or discussions chilires.

This dog needs to know how to play in the fields.

316 MONOGRAPHS.

A man who loves his dog is usually a good man; and, when he is a financier, he me-a ritual where we forget half of what this profession-Zion contains harsh and metallic elements. And then, I I've heard that, whoever president he may be, At Crédit Industriel et Commercial, Durrieu is, at at the same time, jovial, good-natured, and that, if he has the hair a color of mourning.

Does he have poor eyesight? Or is this for diplomatic reasons?
financial, that he's wearing a pair of glasses screwed onto his nose?
I would be tempted to believe it, because his nose is the only Jewish side of his entire being. However, this
The man is charming. But, by Venus! Why
So, is he really so ugly? He is, it seems, the faun.
more attractive than one could see circulating in the virgin forests of the Opera. For this is a corner of its nature: numbers and music absorb its leisure. As a financial institution, 1 liter is one of the main sponsors of the Opera; as a musician, he is a cellist, I therefore do not have the courage to It's too much to criticize him for his 20 million.

Opera being drama in music, to love the O-
To pera is to flee skepticism. Durrieu is not He's skeptical; besides, he loves his dog. Also It's nice to see him enjoying the music, isn't it?
point in the chair of which he is the holder at PO-

H. DURRIEU. It

Pera, but well – and this reveals the administrator next to the music lover, – in the very box of the director.

He is not a politician in the strict sense of the word.
How to speak, but 1 liter is a bit like a general farmer.

Isn't he the son of the Receiver General? Doesn't he have Was he the Receiver General himself? I would compare him willingly to Alexandre de la Popelinière, farmer general under the Regent, and whose greatest happiness consisted of listening, in its charming Passy house, Rameau touching on the organ his opera preludes. But I won't go any further.
far from the comparison, because it is certain that one does not
I can't tell you what was said about Durrieu.
formerly concerning Ia Popelinière,

This financier protects art and artists
The author had become infatuated with Dancourt's daughter dramatic.

Mi Dancourt, raised in the grand ma-nières, possessed such distinction that she could – which was the custom of the time – te-

Now, this abominable braggart who was called Richelieu (the one from du Barry), had sworn to play a dirty trick on the financier, as soon as Mile Dancourt would have become Mrs. de la Popelinier. This was done, thanks to Cardinal Fleury, who had not

o +

+ to

5 to Ke MONOGRAPHS.

agreed to renew a farm lease to the financier-cier, than if the marriage had taken place.

And it was then that Richelieu had it built, for his appointments, the famous rotating fireplace, the scandal of which was made public and which provoked a separation.

Durrieu, young, may have been a bit /rehelian, but He was never Popelinière; if, in his declining years, he became clerical, perhaps it was to have a reason to go and hear the music in Rome, – and 11 y Va.

Originally from the Landes region on his father's side and from Alsace through his mother, it would seem that Durrieu, who, in 1848, was Receiver General of Indre, had, by a predilection for Alsace, wish to live in Strasbourg.

[He lived there for eighteen years: he had adopted, for his favorite walk, the Kehl bridge which he traversed was quiet, often, after lunch, going thus, moved by I don't know what prophetic instinct, from Alsace to Germany and from Germany to Alsace.

It was around the time of Sadowa that we came to snatch him away from Strasbourg, to invite him to

to come and fight, himself, against another

Sadow's financier, where Credit was swallowed up furniture and the real estate company.

I do not know exactly what his victory was:
but Péreire voted him thanks, Désor-but Durrieu had renounced government finances nationals, and he had entered the domain of Sociétés anonymes.

He is credited with raising the roads of Portuguese iron, thanks to a payment of 14 million done, with some boldness, to the bondholders coupon sellers,

On Jui also attributes a large part in the French cable affairs, In short, it succeeded, a day, to a financier of some renown, Mr. d'Audiffret, at the presidency of Crédit industriel and commercial commercial.

[1 Durrieu does not practice accumulation too much: he accepted, at any one time, only seven man-administrator dates.

In terms of numbers, and not counting eastern Algeria,
There are two banking companies operating in France.
and four companies whose greatest interests are in the colonies, in Mexico or in Indo-China. Moreover, at Crédit Industriel et Commerciale-Durrieu himself is fond of business dealings.
loniales, and it is very likely that the theories sugar mills belonging to his stepfather, M. Lacave-Laplagne,

320 MONOGRAPHS.

financial factors play a significant role in his financial preferences ceres.

After these details, it is quite curious to note-that, although, for a long time, a member of the Legion of Honour, this financier received the cross as commander, not as administrator of public or private funds, but as pre-tooth of an electric lighting company!

he is not involved in the usual Jewish affairs; he is,
Perhaps a little stingy, but that's not all.
does harm: the player, the eagle-eyed are always prodigals: who will ever tell the harm they caused?
through excessive ease in distribution
Gold!

In any case, here is a face that seems likeable. As a financier, Durrieu has had the foresight to isolate himself, in time, from the long procrastination reversals that accompanied the attempts to reformation of the Crédit mobilier.

While he helped to found the Mortgage Bank,
It's less a matter of preference than of training.
in the whirlwind of the great union of the seven ins-
credit institutions.

Moreover, under his presidency, the Crédit Industrial and commercial has not ventured too far into placements of ultra-major securities,

H. DURRIEU. 921

I am not, however, pleading innocence.
complete, but, in fact, there is so much of an increase of sinners that Paris would need to be de-paved for their throw the stones they deserve.

As a man, he also knows how to practice isolation-Lies. His life is sliced into pieces.

Don't talk to him about business when he has closed the door to his office.

He would be very unhappy if we did it halfway.
Minister of Commerce or Finance; the colonies might please him; because I don't know too much if we have it in line with the question of sugars.

I know very well how he would cut it; but he would certainly be scandalized if, in treating this question with a newspaper manager, we re-was laying out what we replied to a friend of his stepfather, who was questioning a manager of the regime
from 1530:

"I'm sorry, sir, that I'm unable to plead my case."

sold yesterday, our question about sugars: one day-
An honest journalist has only his word.

Those times are, thankfully, long gone, and this-
Meanwhile, who knows if, in 1653, a similar response Wouldn't that be done at IE. Durrieu?

Unfortunately, I am told that he teaches for

322 MONOGRAPHS.

advertising, a certain... indifference; that he has even inspired disdain at Crédit Industriel, the-who, it seems, doesn't indulge in pretty little advertisements well known to brokers,

That's a good score for the man, like for the institution: what if it were a little less "foreign" and a little more "parked" by the "de"pots and current accounts," she would achieve the ideal financial !

N\VIII
Lebaudy.

In 1818, there was a trading house before gaining some importance in the industry sugar. The revolutionary events, which confounded speculation as well as the work. brought her to the brink of ruin: it was the Lebaudy father house.

Having established this, the starting point of the two Current Lchaudy figures may not amount to half a million; they now own more one hundred and fifty million.

Really! It's a beautiful social organization.
than the one that allows two men to take,
in the public movement, one hundred and fifty million in thirty years:

The proportion, if I'm not mistaken, exceeds five millions per year; it's not surprising if I take into account the information I was given as positive and according to which, at a certain moment,

"has

– # RER EE] The year
3 SRE The worst
AND – =. es Te i Re pc at LT F4 5–atS

924 MONOGRAPHS

a notary was tasked with investing seven hundred thousand francs, every month, on behalf of the Lebaudy family.

The Lebaudy family consists of two members: Gustave, who is a member of parliament, Jules, who is not.

They are both ugly on the outside and, indeed, on the inside Inside too.

Gustave is decorated. Jules is not. Why?
Gustave's decoration was enough for Jules, like him
His parliamentary immunity is also sufficient.

Moreover, these two brothers are complementary.
arithmetic: what one has more in "hon-
"neurs" the other has it in "silver".

Jules constantly has stomach pain, which exacerbatesstill exhibits his grumpy and disheartened character oeæreable.

– Why don't you give me an order?
"Today?" a porter was saying to him.

– (What orders do you want me to give you?)
My stomach hurts, leave me alone!

Crustave must be upset by his brother's stomach.
because he's just as quintessentially quintessential as him.

Furthermore, both of them seem to have received no education.

When Jules, who owns the Vaude-city and more than forty houses in Paris:
who is ruthless at the slightest delay in his

?

LÉEBAUDY, 02

trial; when, I say, Jules enters his
He confessed, lightly touching it with his fingertip.
brim of his hat, which he does not move from one line, and, on the contrary, on the summit of which He gives it a little tap, as if to fix it.
More on his head, that's his way of greeting.

Lebaudys are rare – but they cost
Dear

In Paris, apart from one bookseller, perhaps one builder-mechanical dough mixers – and again, it would be to know if Jules, manufacturer of financial schemes, doesn't inspire its namesake a little — all the others are united by kinship.

[There is, in the phone book: Lebaudy brothers, decorated and notable merchants, shipowners.

And also: Lebaudy brothers, undecorated and not notable merchants, but also smugglers.

(What does this mystery mean?)

In any case, Jules and Gustave are out of Jar.

These two silver firefighters are, perhaps, Christians and probably men; but they have found a way to be the exaggeration of everything the Jewish quarter.

One should not believe that the businessman skillful or intelligent speculator is necessarily A man of wit. There is an antagonism between wit and +0

920 MONOGRAPHS

the matter, and the larger the matter, the more
The mind is small. That's the case with Jules, for example.

They are truly pitiable!

Jules is a kind of bird of prey, all the more so more dangerous than he exercises his industrial rapacity—legally, commercially and financially.

Industrially, it engages in the hunt for raf- liners. [He exterminates them, not by violent means, but through the cunning of traps that he offers them; glue plays a large role in it, he offers them milk of avarice, opens their accounts, he does not does not disdain to collect all their paperwork com- commercial, and, when the time comes, he strangles them.

In the publication, his process is summarized as follows:

"Lebaudy, very strong! Much stronger than Pamard."

Commercially, it plays on everything: if re- hundreds of catastrophes had not sufficiently illuminated the hidden agendas of certain variables tions, which one suddenly notices on mar- everyday items, I could explain one of the operations familiar to both Jules and Gustave,

It is fortunate that modern laws, a little Civilized peoples, perhaps, have fallen into disuse the crime of hoarding, because, without it, I experience— I would see serious concerns for speculators of the Lebaudy type.

LEBAUDY. 921

The two brothers, moreover, possess a mer- skill A nightlight to escape responsibilities, On They do not see them working in established societies, exercising an ostensible mandate, and Jules, by sur- believes, seems to have aspired to and obtained, for his brother, parliamentary immunity, much less so in by virtue of political convictions rather than by virtue of a a theory that I would dare to compare to that of insurance,

'Financially, it's telling too much of a story vulgar as to recall the disastrous intervention of Jules, caught up in the rampant speculation into which he has sunk the General Union, which caused the crash; it He was afraid and ashamed of his profits, so that,

hidden in a car, on the street corner
Vivienne,

Its role in stock market games, influencing under the titles of the Suez Canal the movements more absurd, is also well known.

Jules apparently owns 20,000 Canal shares of Suez, not counting the delegations, the shares civil and founder shares.

A man who can absorb, all by himself, a such a quantity of securities is the negation of the divi-capital allocation, which served as the basis for the Formation of public limited companies.

D26 MONOGRAPHS.

In the general interest, one can substitute one's whim.
in particular; this whim can be destructive of the honor of a nation, and when he obeys speculative passions, 1] can ruin and ruins eflectively the small capitalists who, for their part, in pla-
They can't afford their money, they haven't done anything like gambling.
but simply a man of foresight. These last-
They can't even defend themselves, they are.
In spite of themselves, they are complicit with the hoarder.

It's mandatory parasitism!

This is the height of immorality and the law is im-powerful.

On other occasions, I have been able to indicate by what strange methods, some financiers have arrived to betray public trust.

Regarding the breathtaking leaps executed by the courses of the Suez Canal, it was said that Jules had had it inserted in the Times, for a fee million, the famous story in which 11 was the question of digging a second Suez Canal, next to of the first,

The fact was hotly debated: contested by the
Some, affirmed by others. Absolutely ignores
The truth; but I have the right to express an opinion.

financial processes of the one I compared to a sparrowhawk, I believe it perfectly capable of having

LEBAUDY. 329

The idea was conceived, but it was not executed; this is not
It shouldn't be his fault.

One man could have dominated and contained the predatory instincts of this financier, and perhaps the use for public interest.

That man was Gambetta.

He had already started using them with some success with some special strategy-c'ale, against the coalition of large companies of railways.

Unfortunately, too little or poorly informed about matters of finance, the famous tribune left to divert the animal which, driven by its instincts, strugglestit odiously in the General Union, st well that he would collect, through the crash, approximately 60 million.

unfortunately again for France,
The tribune is dead, and, better than ever, the Le-Baudy can give a career to their ferocity fi-
financial.

Every morning the two brothers have a concilia-bubble; they lock themselves in and become invisible.

Together, they generate figures and combine their blows. But, incapable or lazy, having sometimes columns of figures to torture, they entrust this task to skilled calculators: seu-element. these never have the proportions true. And when they give the results to the pa-

28.

330 MONOGRAPHS,

They restore reality. It's a kind of alphabet.
A secret whose key changes every day.

The two brothers are stingy: Jules especially.
exerts a harmful influence on his entourage.
he made one of his sisters, once generous and a jovial bon vivant, a veritable Harpagon, a swindler in the art bric-a-brac, buying at a discount and taking advantage of general and specific crashes.

When they want to flee the scandals. The two brothers go to the fields: Jules to Bougival and (iustave at Rosny. Both have in Seine-et-Oise, magnificent hunting grounds.

One of them was once the object of a mysticismextravagant tion: one of his neighbors owned,
Apparently, there's a secret to attracting people outside of hunting grounds.
Where he had no access, the game that we keep-was done at great expense. The process used had pro-
It produced a splendid result, so much so that the guards
The Lebaudy in question were elf-like.

Intrigued, the millionaire went to visit his neighbor sn, in turn invites him to come to his home, and, finally-ly, the countess.

Great joy for Lebaudvy, who had not, from that moment on,
ment, no other thought than to organize, vis-à-vis I'm not even like someone else's cunning.
of course the idea didn't come to him

LEBAUDY 331

extend exploitation to all hunting grounds
France.

This is indeed the first impulse of modern man,
all calculation, and, instinctively becoming insensitive!

I fear that the exaggeration of what is said to be...
Ja shovel speculation, having distorted almost all citizens, do not make this definitive and fatal for this country.
the lowering of French character and dignity CHISCS,

I noticed the gentleman's spontaneous movement – into which chance has just slipped a coin counterfeit money, and who has no other concern

no longer generally translates into actions of civilian life.

An author who has been heavily involved in financial history-
Cièrè, wrote one day:

"Medieval Jewry tends to recons-to kill, and that is why the chivalric spirit has
"He took refuge in the army."

Yes, we have this consolation: the officer and the soldier maintained respect for certain traditions honorary principles that the majority of civilians do not have plus treatment.

Unfortunately, the onslaught of speculation in its most terrible form: the "paper-

"Counterfeit money" could have caused such devastation,

302 MONOGRAPHS.

that, when one leaves the ranks of the active army to examine the frameworks of the administration,
This one is no longer even defended against the soupcon, by the glorious uniform that covers her,

Well! These are men like Lebaudx who, by their example, have managed to shake the old principles of our national chivalry and to tarnish the French prestige!

NEX

Souhevràn.
y

False gentleman, false financier, false man of the world; in this man: the name, the birth,
Money, politics, talent: it's all fake!

Even the diamond he touches turns to rhinestones.

Before the king of speculators – and this de-sufficiently sine Louis-Philippe d'Orléans – would have deigned to highlight the gentleness of Soubeyran, they were simply called Girard. It was therefore to the monarchy of 1830 that Jean-Marie Georges Girard owes it to having inherited the title of Baron de Soubeyran, given to a prefect of AI-Oerie, who was his father.

Girard, for a financier, was, it must be said, Pavoucr, a rather meager name, and when one wants to be what-that one, we don't have the same name as everyone else.

394 MONO {RAPTIIES.

Also, for the twenty-three years since he joined
In high finance, don't we know Jean-Marie-Georges Girard, known as Baron of Soubevyran.

Girard was born in IS29: he is, therefore, currently.
fifty-four years old, well into his life, His portraits and His charges depict him with a hairless Ligurian woman.
pale and possessing a shifty gaze,

He is said to be stiff and reserved; polite cold; in short, it carries one of these figures solemnly bourgeois, to which one feels the need to immediately offer a sieve, murmuring:

– Please take the trouble to sit down,
Beneath his impassive exterior, Jean-Marie
It hides a fiery temperament. It's a concentrated force.
In front of strangers, superiors and even of equals, he observes: but woe to you if

You are his inferior.

It is said that a visitor who insisted on being received, heard it, one day, through a door to outrageously mistreat one's servant: the the least aristocratic terms escaped

It wasn't (Georges or even Jean-Marie, it was Jean, completely raw, shouting, swearing and raging.

Suddenly the door opens, and the Baron,

SOUBEYRAN. 999

Dignified and calm, he receives his visitor, the man, all The whole, is in these transformations.

Morally he's a mixed-race person: he's an amalgam of Christian and Jewish; this amalgamation gave its financial career of importance and physio- truly unique economies.

Minister Fould Tui established his Jewish community. At the age of twenty, Girard was already a chief of staff. net of this imperial minister, and at thirty-one years He was being bombarded by the same deputy governor. of Crédit Foncier de France.

Girard's Jewish tendencies burst forth in his fondness for Eastern countries, in his love of the most eccentric arbitrations, in his cult for circulating paper this, finally, in his immense passion for millions easily acquired.

His Christian leanings consist of having meditated on Jesus' parable entitled "the intention-

L |

"dant" and for practiced its moral conclusion (!):
"Make friends for yourselves, acquire unjust wealth, so that
"that, when you happen to run out, they will "receive in their tabernacle."

[Mbu of this evangelical principle, Soubeyran has He was lavish with his metallic favors. Also when 1l ES£ came to HR} having left the Cre-said land, the seven major establishments ano= nymes [ut spontaneously opened "their taber-Nacie, »

As well as most Jews and upstarts, Jean-Marie-Georges has only one dream: to be taken at Serious as a gentleman!

This first became apparent in her marriage; in 1864,
He married a Peupoil from Saint-Aulaire, which Pa immediately made brother-in-law of the Duke of Castries and, – by extension, – admitted it into the "alentours » of the relatives of Mme de Mac-Mahon.

Immediately, Jean-Marie devoted himself to the so-called pleasures aristocratic, the races: he is the partner of the duke's stable, he races, he gambles, he spends crazy sums, all the gold in Egypt would be enough to struggling to satisfy his passion for horses,

Furthermore, he wants to be taken for a scholar, a archaeologist... 161 the Jew reappears, Hasn't he managed to get himself appointed as a member of the commission-historical monuments management – probably as a mortgage lender!

Finally, he's a bon vivant, a hedonist, and a gambler.
his outraged.

Strange thing! It is said to be to his liking for the aristocracy, for horses, for the arts and...
As for the rest, France owes these actions appalling financial matters.

Soubeyran, the financier, fled despite everything! What a shock!

SOUBEYRAN. SE fl

However, if this were true, it would explain rage.
with which he trades stocks; it seems he is genuinely furious at being forced to resort to the ice age to satisfy its many passions.

But this led him very far, so far that he skirted the edges of the code and grazed the anti-Mazas rooms.

was appointed deputy governor of Crédit Foncier from France.

[soon absorbed all authority and] to relegate the governor, Mr. Frémy, to second place, who, as we know, already had many other "cat-your "to whip".

Not content with that, he managed to slip into all the companies, so that, at some point given, he was found to be the administrator of about ten of companies.

Nine was too many for his brain, although I recognize that this financier possesses a true scientific knowledge of the counter. He calculates, in fact, with a speed Unheard of; he would have made an excellent croupier in Monaco or in Baden.

But, apart from that, his financial and economic background nomic is pure tinsel, and its lightness has not de-his horror of legality, his conduct

AA

390 MONOGRAPHS.

As Crédit Foncier eloquently demonstrates, everything the world knows with what nonchalance he dealt the statutes of this national institution. The result His management has long occupied the judiciary: he had lent considerable sums of money to the viceroy. at a rate that has nothing in common with the rate legal and even less so with the statutory loan rate silences. 07, this operation led to the ruin of the Crédit Agricole, a company whose true purpose would have had been expressed much more clearly, if we had called: "Society to transpose the statutes of the Mortgage loan and transfer its funds credits.

Around the end of 1878, the justice system was actively engaged in... Girard's management; the prosecutors, for their part memes, were concerned and if, thanks to someone that I know very well, a no. Heu intervened at the criminal, it is nonetheless true that it was 6v0-qué comine sous-œouverneur ef, cornme adminis-trader, declared responsible, of 15 million on

These two failures struck him to the core.

First, he rebelled: he wanted to create an altar against the altar; he indulged in an orgy of societies, among other things he created the Discount Bank and the Mortgage bank: then, a pile of 'real estate,' of carryover funds and real estate companies

SOUBEYRAN. 534

his sturdy hand, ll shook the purse like I jar-Diner shakes a plum tree, All Island world of speculators, both small and large, were at his re-morque.

He wanted to kill Crédit Foncier! because he had gone out! He didn't realize the danger of Crédit foncier was inside when he was there; Outside, the institution became a place again.
strong, able to laugh at his attacks, and, if necessary, to start again against him, what he had done there, him-same, with Crédit Agricole,

Any cool-headed observer could have foreseen this.
the outcome of this duel; from the very first hour it was
It was evident that the giant of [8352] would one day open, its wide mouth, to devour the dwarf of 1879.

So it was done, and the dwarf, barely three years old years ago, it was absorbed by the giant.

The major trials that resonated for several years several years, and ended with judges-deeply unfavorable views towards Girard, him have, no doubt, inspired the thinking of Hiquider tou-your companies,

However, this resolution was not taken without that, by a letter which has remained famous, and dated from April, ISST, 16 great man! The famous Jean-Marie has revealed himself to be more Farina than ever.

was not the other,

The flour that he tried to force-feed his readers consisted of demonstrating "that prosperity "of Crédit foncier, evident since he no longer says so"

It was no longer a problem, it was solely due to the warranty "of the 16 million he claimed to have paid,"

Because Jean-Marie forgot how much he had was resistant to this guarantee, to what extent this guarantee-his tie was the result of his mistakes, he could have pushed-to take his reasoning further and declare, with the same logic as if Crédit Foncier were pro-Father, currently, it's because he had put was two steps away from its demise; conversely, 1 liter would have could conclude, just as powerfully, that if the Bank mortgage had been forced to disappear, that is because she had not ceased to be in such a-brilliant performance.

Girard did not dare to finish the job. Moreover, solitude surrounded him. One One of her most dedicated collaborators left her. Its halls are necropolises. He resorted to... Prussian and Jewish employees. There are three of them at the Discount bank, some named Mayer, with more or fewer variations.

Finally, for some time now, he has dreamed only of stick the card capuchins together which he had pompously called: his Societies

Anonymous!

SOUBEYRAN. 341

Also, after having been the Ruggieri of profusion, It becomes the realm of mergers and transformations, absorptions and, above all, innovations; all its The current movement is indeed a fire of fire: on will also see that the grand finale will leave the same traces as the hundreds of rockets that blossom in the air, and fall back down in the form of emptied cartridges, corpses which, in finance, They are simply called ruins.

If Jean-Marie-Georges Girard were content

Christian, driving more or less correctly
One could pity its shareholders for being ruined.
to and disregard, knowing full well that he has as his con-Solation the thirty or forty million fortune that is attributed to him.

But no: he wants to be a fraction of the sou-national truth, #{} is a deputy!

Certainly, he cherishes his seat as much as his stables,
– much more than his seat tempts him.

He has occupied it since 1860. The Empire had made of His district is a veritable rotten town.
is the master of it. However, in the last elections the number of votes he usually received-ment has diminished to the point that the validity of His election was highly controversial.

It is certain that the scandals that have surrounded

)Q

342 MONOGRAPHS.

Jean-Marie, for the past few years, has had to wear their fruit.

However powerful parliamentary immunity may be,
She could not defend herself against the judgments severe public morals, certain ways to act which the law does not punish, not having them planned.

We certainly remember the stu- revelations
The pleadings that were brought to the tribune in 1879 parliamentary, during a debate on the pre-Police reading. We learned that reports of money, difficult to explain, had existed between the director of Ja Lanterne and the deputy governor of Crédit Foncier at the time when the latter saw the terrifying results of his deplorable administration.

An honorary jury had been appointed. It was issue of "overprinted receipts and money paid"
"For mysterious reasons."

to go there; he let them talk at their leisure and without control, the Jew he had so generously subsidized and with which, long after, he still maintained the most friendly relations.

It is said, however, that for the past year in-viron, thanks to certain incidents, too long to ra-

To tell, Soubeyran understood his fault and we add

SOUBEYRAN. 343

even that he withdrew his favor from the aforementioned Jew, who it bears the weight heavily.

In any case, Jean-Marie must be very hu-Militant, he did not steal this lesson, and, for the honor-
As a champion of humanity, I hope that similar se-will be inflicted on all financiers who are insolent enough to believe that no probity could withstand lured by their worthlessness.

People who, like Soubeyran, buy the silences or words and practice all the theories of Érlanger, unfortunately encountered so many capitulations that they are stunned when chance throws, in their path, an ordinary granite-that, rock or pebbles, against which they stumble;
they have, moreover, compromised directly or indirectly-directly, so many people, that no one has the neck-it is impossible to judge the actions he accepted the benefits. Therefore, I am convinced that I would have found, with great difficulty, – not to say more – a newspaper capable of printing the pre- lines previous.

Almost everywhere, I would have met Soubeyran shareholder or subsidizer.

This is the grand Jewish theory expounded in the Historical summary: 11 people need Pargent to make a newspaper, Soubeyran gives some, and we avoid ourselves-unwillingness to be unpleasant to him,

(After that, what does it matter what the balance sheets of his Whether these societies are more or less fantastic, that is, promotes prosperity where disasters are imminae.

It was established, in principle, that the writing of the journal-
The list is like Pavocat's word, a plea that we pay.

We simply forget that, before the law, 11 y two lawyers speaking in opposite directions, and re-appearing before the same court.

In the eyes of the public, there is never any useful discussion, and I challenge anyone to counter-to say, in the same newspaper and before the same readers, the economic infamies that the Jewry
It prints there every day. Girard knows all this. He does
He uses it and he abuses it, in every respect.

I will conclude the study of his personality by don-briefly naming the extent of his frankness and its usefulness.

One day, regarding conversion, he dared to say in the middle of the podium that & the minister lacked sincerity, »

No one has noticed this audacity, and yet
He could easily have been silenced.

But this is how he practices sincerity:

At the time when he had to make the guarantee in silver-the 16 million penalty imposed on him, 11 de-

SOUBEYRAN. 345

Clara formally confirmed that she had made her payment.
IN SILVER.

This was not the opinion of Crédit Foncier, [it was necessary] all of Mr. Josseau's eloquence to explain that Soubevrnan had indeed written a check, and that the baron would have had the right to say, as he did He said: "A check is money.") , only, in case a cover, belonging to, had exists, (one there was no cover, and Sou-

Thematic! Ah |

That's the eternal theory of this inter.
and I can say that most of his actions societies have such a hypothetical representation than that of his check. When he creates a company, 11, is much less concerned with the product: future its operation is such that it can be realized on the stock exchange.
significant price increases.

That's the whole secret of his business.

As for the usefulness of this financier, it is still more questionable than his sincerity. In Parliament, due to the reputation for competence he has usurped
pée, through its advertising combinations,
He muddles all the questions, whether it's about paths of entry, conversion or convention

(1) Plea by Me Josscau, page 15 (Téqui, edlit., 1881).

3546 MONOGRAPHS

monetary, and even treaties of coinmeice, for the greatest damage to French interests.

Essentially, it's a manufacturer of sticker paper.
– checks, without cover, – which astonishes the Islands nails, due to the abundance of its production.

He is not a politician, a student finance, he's a financier juggling with politics tick.

We shall see; and soon perhaps, we will be able to resumer throughout his existence, by modifying lexere-the classic Latin phrase:

€ Paper! paper! prætereaque nikil\ »

False gentleman, false financier, false man of the world; in this man: the name, [his birth,
Money, politics, talent: it's all fake!

Even the diamond he touches turns to rhinestones.

N / A

Daniel Wilson.

The most terrifying danger one could face:

A nation consists of submitting to the preponderance of this which I will call {political Jew.

Politics is, already, in itself, suflisam-a fertile ground for infamies, supposedly covered up by reason of state, let us judge what it can to become, when implemented by the pro-Jews ceded!

It is indeed the case to repeat here that the Jewish community is parasitism elevated to a systemic state, which the deceit and lies applied to Jewish compo-
It smells like a scam.

Gold,
the heart of politics, and this involving the blood-cunning and lies being precisely the

that, the scam that it engenders must take the name of abuse of trust.
If these reflections seem harsh, I would add that they are not suggested to me, only, by

046 MONOGRAPHS.

a man, but also through a series of actions ments and, even, by a psychological state spreading with formidable persistence,

I have often noted this during the course of the monographs previous examples, the spirit of trafficking, which should not be not to be confused with the exchange of social utilities, dominates so much those thirsting for pleasure, my:
sterile, that they carry it in everything, even in Iron of public trust.

Our current generation does not understand as-know that, in order to fulfill a function, – in what we calls the government, and that's nothing else that the responsibility of balancing the general interests of a countries – it is impossible to improvise homines.

Government service requires preparation ration and it is pure folly to admit it, of the the next day, the troublemaker, the reveler, and especially foreigners.

Daniel Wilson was an English Protestant who became French.

It was in the gas companies that he was trained his inheritance. His family was wealthy, his sister had married a learned chemist, Mr. Pelouze; as for He, born in 1540, came of age in full empire and he retained nothing from the gilded youth that he l'réfresta, that this kind of fashionable eynism-blue, popularized by Mr. de Morny, who was convinced that his hand remained untainted because he wore gloves to stir the im-financial worlds.

DANIEL WILSON. 949

Morny's silhouette remained in dreams.
Daniel's ideal is Morny; but, obscure rotu-
He laughs, he is clumsy in imitating men.
and he only manages to parody them, if not to prostituer, much more than Île did Morny.

At eighteen, Daniel, lacking great senses-moments, had some of Ja's illusions
In his youth, born into abundance, he was ignorant of vatheir money. This honor made him a good boy, jovial and helpful, but lacking in any serious idea. In short, he squandered it so well that one was forced to ban it for a certain period time.

The judiciary, which shook a judge over its head—the ban, returned to France, it is necessary to admit it, a very poor service, perhaps... She notices it today!

Daniel, defeated by the law, had a concentrated anger. trée, one of those cold and ferocious rages of Angiais.

30

39) MONOGRAPHS.

and, soon, it transformed into an ardent desire of revenge.

Naturally, it's decided by universal suffrage. that he addressed in order to become, in turn, a fraction of sovereign, that is to say a legislator. that is to say, again, one of those who make these laws that the magistrates apply.

The final days of Pempire were particularly favorable to—Specifically, the emergence of young politicians: Moreover, Daniel was rich, his sister was a property owner the secret of Chenonceaux, royal residence and, as Anet, full of memories of Diane de Poitiers.

He was therefore able to triumph in the election in 1869. against Messrs. Duval and Mame; naturally in—core, he sat in the moderate opposition; little to small, 11 approached the center left, on September 4th In September, he took part in a poorly disposed secret meeting. for the Tours delegation, which was composed of Mr. Cochery, who became a minister, and of Mr. Guyot—Montpayroux gone mad, by Mr. Tassin, who remained deputy, Mr. Grévy, who became president of the Republic, and finally of Jui himself, Wilson, who became Mr. Son-in-Law.

The different fate of the five members of this group may cornered, which was even accused of conspiring against the delegation from Tours, is particularly

JC UUIC,

As for Daniel, personally, his presence
This opposition explains his ultimate attitude laughing at Gambetta,

She also explains her intimacy with her future father-in-law, who was, at that time, one regular guests of Chenonceaux.

Soon [Gambetta's popularity excited his desire. Meanwhile, the National Assembly had just to meet in Bordeaux and choose Grévy for its president.

It was, for Daniel, a godsend! Full of himself, linked by its English style, mimicking with care on the photographs of the Prince of Wales, he pretended to mock Gambetta's robust attitude and his methods of popular tribune.

It was during this period that his ambition knew no bounds.
no more limits. that he devised his plans for wanderers and, in the solitudes of Chenonceaux he many times, upon seeing near him the MP yesterday, president today, lying down peacefully happily on the green lawn, dreaming of entering, in turn, triumphantly "in the future.

1873 dealt him a fatal blow; it is certain that it was under the presidency of Marshal MacMa-honor that the former centre-left MP passed quickly through all the nuances that led him to its current color.

,n9 MONOGRAPHS

Between 1873 and 1870, Daniel, like so many politicians Livia, disappointed in their ambition, threw themselves into the financial affairs.

I remember, even very well, that, without being an apparent interested party, he had a great influence in the first National Bank which, long before Genty, had worked instead

The soil of power should not be long in coming to him to forge multiple alliances with the speculators and profiteers of all kinds,

Admittedly, 1 liter is not believable, given his love of Lucre was caused by the need for money. Ka Fortune kept him from such a suspicion.

But all of Morny's traditions were running through his head.
in the brain, he felt that money is the ve-a veritable instrument of domination, which it serves to corrupt to break and that, when it is necessary to corrupt on a large scale, 1 liter is needed a lot, always and everywhere.

However wealthy he was, he was less so than Rothschild
And, moreover, it would have been just as much so. Its English nature

The portal. To take. Preferably, in the pockets

DANIEL WILSON. 399

from others, the millions needed for his revenge of the old prohibition, From then on, he organized a whole system for recruiting supporters,

Representing nothing by itself, not being a personality, he attracted to him through interest, through speculation and, through mercenary tactics, all the downtrodden
As poor in money as in conscience.

For five years, he thus occupied finance politics ;: 11 became involved in banking affairs, pushing to the right, pushing to the left, but without succeeding in highlighting a true merit personnel,

However, from 1879 onwards, and after having succeeded in to have him appointed for a while as a member of the budget committee, 11 had managed to make create Undersecretary of State for the Department of finances.

In this position, it was not the section of The higher studies he had chosen were the di-supreme personnel command.

sniin, in October ISSl a wedding put the fulfilling his ambition by giving him the title of

By this marriage, Dantel cut himself off from any retirement towards the financial powers of reaction.

Also, as jil knows very well that he cannot, at no degree, rely on their help, 1 liter to them

SU,

394 MONOGRAPHS,

declared war by seeking to train, by all the means, a financial and speculative power outside of the Orleanist Jewish community.

This attitude, which is imposed on him by necessity... the circumstances of his situation, misled the republicans clerics, so much so that some of them, and some more radical, consider it the pillar of the Republic.

[I am far from sharing this] opinion and I consider, on the contrary, Daniel as the most dangerous instrument of Fa disorganization of republican France.

Indeed, he installed it in the palace itself. of the State, a kind of vast corruption agency ion. We see them, twice a week, all the Tricorche and Cacolet of politics, the Roberts Macaire of finance, the Gibovers and the under- They come begging, prey of journalism: Some want impunity, some honors, some money! It is the Loire of consciences, and, in all its history deur, the true hidden government!

There's even more, all the ministers who don't do not an act of domesticity, are at the mercy of this vase!

Nevertheless, during this repugnant need- Oene, he indulged in such promiscuity that we ended up by telling them publicly, and Daniel is at that skeptical point that, even, the care of his dignity stations that are swarming around him from all sides.

DANIEL WILSON. 399

It's as if, like most people—
FEopire's broken beds, the malevolence Iut appears a natural thing, given how much he jostled her, free—Quentec and accepted,

Terrible confessions are attributed to him; for example this one: Il was seeking, one day, to satisfy one of his supporters by asking the chief of staff certain ministry, such an exorbitant favor—aunt, such an extraordinary privilege as this one,
"Revolted by the beggar's insistence," he cried out:

— But that's a load of nonsense you're telling me.
Order it!

"But I know that perfectly well!" she replied, quite naturally.
Daniel,

This replica paints the man: it denotes a elasticity, if not an absence of consciousness, which suggest a poor opinion of the character of the one who uttered it,

The fact that I just reported is well-known.
in Touraine, was published by many newspapers and, never, did Daniel protest.

For him, therefore, political functions should not wind serves no other purpose than to make triumph the claims of a number of individuals

that

L
. HAS

590 MONOGRAPHS.

to the detriment of the masses, and he is very capable, returning the famous phrase attributed to a magistrate, to say: "the Court provides services and not stops.

Also, barely settled into his general practice...
Did Dr. behave with such unconscious nonchalance?

his Jycaea; he, for his personal service-nel, the small number 3 stamp, the presidential stamp dence and prerogative of the supreme magistrate of the tepublic entitled to postal exemption.

Daniel used it casually for his business.
personal, to launch his newspapers and for a a lot of intimate uses.

Le Figaro has discovered the sending of a strange autographed circular, containing a general response general to the beggars who approach Daniel.

It says, in essence, that Wilson makes the steps desired by the applicant and, in post-scriptum, 11 is added there:

"Mr. Wilson will have the Pelile France sent to you and you & SEA grateful to recommend it to your friends.

Some time later, a quit- is presented subscription fee to the poor devil honored by the sending of the newspaper and, as is generally the case, "the "steps have not yet been successful," we pay the a-

DANIEL WILSON. 397

simply for fear that the protector might formalaise.

How, in proper French, can one express this ma-new work? For me, I hardly see anything but in the American vocabulary words that can be used to its proper qualification.

In all cases, its use reveals an ab-complete sense of morality.

When the example starts from such a high point, that isto say when one finds it placed very close to the ma-supreme leader of the country, how can anyone be surprised?
that electoral customs limit with eagerness-sowing.

Have we not seen, just recently, the naive-cynical vet with which a candidate, brother of

as such 11 © enjoys an undeniable reputation" and that he is "called upon every day to exercise it in favor of of some fellow countryman, military or civilian.

After which the same candidate dares to hope that voters, concerned about the interests of their country "and those of their families" will be willing to en- to be courageous through their vote "and to prove it to him through their sympathy, those who are worthy of His kindness LANTES PROPOSITIONS. »

Make no mistake, this is not a isolated naivety; it's a sign of the times, and it

MONOGRAPHS,

= |
L
L]
Lee A |
in.

continuation that Wilson's theory, consisting of to put public functions at the service of the in- special interests, increasingly tends to be neraliser.

Daniel brings the same to everything without ACE:

One day, the Paris Valley prints what son-in-law

the president of the Republic was accused, by a newspaper, having stated that it held written proof of the

The disposal of unbelievers. Renting apartments in the national palaces. Neither Petite France nor

Daniel did not correct it; only I find in a

"Editor of Ia Lanterne, a Jewish merchant of € bric-a-brac obtained from Wilson a dwelling in the "Palace of the Institute and that, this same Jew, having
"wanted to ask for another favor, refused, this "time-unbelievable!-took his revenge in

has,

spreading the rumor that instead of being a tenant graduring the noise that instead of being a tenant:

"And two 1-liter tenants were paying tenants."

=
Es

The question, thus posed, is now simply a matter of
To know what currency the lover was paid in, because he is not really necessary, given the accusation made, to indicate the type of funds used. Pay in Money or paying in services, that's, it seems to me, 11.
quite a lot, but the editor of Ja Lanterne did well

æardé to shed light on this matter.

DANIEL WILSON. 94

It is even added that the more Wilson sees his proceded, disclosed, the more he rejoices, because, he says-
He said, "It attracts customers."

Alas! What a sad clientele!

If Jon believes everything CC that we publish and everything that we reveal.

One of Daniel's two best friends was a certain exercised his talents at the bank known as the Chaussée-d'Antin.

Naturally, there were lawsuits; but, at
In the course of these, we produced correspondences dances; or, here are some excerpts verbatim.
which were read in Paudience:

Dear aniseed (says the banker), I received your Liters. I'll fiddle with it as best I can. I received { AUss!, YOUR bottles of couwnac. Of the deinain inon grand
"I will tell them where they came from and I will tell him their origin. At this

Dl'Op0s, you know he has a chance for Ctre mi-

NiStre, »

This craftsman's language has a certain clarity.
But that's not all, here's another excerpt:

It's the same person who wrote:

"I went to pay my respects at the Élysée Palace yesterday and
"The day before yesterday, I wore 1fS CLTeNNeS.

OUUQ carried away Cul échønye the Dr'onmCssC to activate and en-
"to lift the concession of Beaucaire,"

What a world! Jehovah Jehovah! And what to think when...

THE

--

The Mi to the F1

369 MONOGRAPHS.

Consider that the author of these edifying letters ral cté invited, with a certain lady, very COITUe at Asnicres-les-Eaux, at the wedding ceremony of Daniel, CI full chapel of the Elysée!

printed, and Wilson never protested: As for to the unfortunate banker of Ta Chaussée-d'Antin, he lives, it seems, abroad in a calm pro-in the background, in the company of "a certain lady" who,
From time to time, he procures safe passage for him.

This banker is not the only one who, a close friend
Daniel, could have defied the magistracy; I I could cite, in Paris, financiers and directors newspaper editors who owe him impunity more perfect, despite numerous misdeeds.

Two or three Jews of the day are cited, in particular.
nationalism and finance having obtained certain non-places and we even add that by a beautiful morning, pursuers Ct pursued had lunch ex-seems, at Daniel's, to be at the Elysée.

Need we add that after this dentist's party,
The pursued was no longer pursued, and the pursuer ærimpa in an apothecosis.

Anyone in Paris who is rich or about to become so future: banker, speculator, architect, entrepreneur taker, lemonade seller..... or others, is immediate-targeted by the Elvsée's secret cabinet. It's from a banker of action to harm, for politically engaged companies industrial, or from the seed of sponsor, for newspapers that spread, like a a huge oil slick, from Paris to the provinces,

DANIEL WILSON. 201

For money, everyone has their promise: to one the cross, to the other a candidacy, to this one a Plenary indulgence. All of this is listed: the
The office is open! Come in!

Ministers, good children! Don't forget that these Things are happening behind your back; don't forget that You are SOLELY responsible before Parliament.
lying and in front of the country!

Ministers of good faith, BE WATCHFUL!

As for Daniel, the irresponsible son-in-law, former vi-A demoted lord, this must be no small satisfaction.
taction than hovering as a protector, in particular,

tribut of the blows.

However, what he does in Paris, quite easily and by using processes that leave few traces, he does it also in the provinces, and, particularly, in the department of Indre-et-Loire, where the small stamp Number 3 is well known.

Not to mention a certain civil servant from Loches, provided, thanks to Daniel, with a management position in Tours, and who had to resign to avoid the re-imminent vocation that his immorality had

3 |

Li

THE:

362 MONOGRAPHS.

Intrigued, I will specify a few cases, demonstrating to what extent Wilson scoffs at justice, to the benefit of a group of bad guys from whom he made his agents.

At the beginning of 1883, in Tours, or in the surrounding area, a counter manager financial, called ED

We know that people in finance are, the most Often, honest, delicate, and... martyrs, in Tours as at the Chaussée-d'Antin.

However, this poor D. was the subject of several lawsuits. and numerous complaints. It involved... sums of money given to buy shares of a metallurgical company in formation, of syndicatorships and handsome benefices; now, the sums were Payments were made, but the securities did not come.

All complaints were dismissed. solely on the restitution of the sums claimed, despite the official reports filed, and thanks to the intervention of the small stamp no. 3.

is arrested for stealing a bag of dispatches, and, in-next, involved in a jewelry theft. The first time, He is suspended the second time, he is dismissed:
but no legal action, because this brave
A boy, named A., owned a amulet. Among the papers seized from him were found, in fact, an intimate letter from Daniel Wil-its, arrived in franchise with the small stamp no. 3.

DANIEL WILSON. 363

Finally, I will give another example from a different era.
June 17 FSS3: because, since I am analyzing the way whose public federation exercises its power Roval, I must not resort to formulas vague, but based on extremely precise facts.

In Tours, on a Sunday, the seventeenth day of June, two good Gaullards, true rbauds of Tou-Raine, having fun, get into a car, they take walks, but, judging it quite pointless to pay
The coachman leaves him on duty and slips away.
without warning.

Naturally furious, the automedon begins to pursuing his clients, and eventually discovering them sitting at a table in a cafe.

All his complaints were met with a
With profound disdain, he insists; the customers do not find Nothing could be simpler than beating him up, beaten, and not paid, 1] runs to get the guard; she arrives, under the form of two police officers; these are also severely beaten by the characters in question, which are not done for lack of announcement cer, loudly, that they are going to complain to their friend Vilson.

Nevertheless, the scandal had been made public, and one had to stop the fanatics, absolutely inca-

EE.

DT ns nm -

pables to understand that postal franchise.
usurped by their friend, could not, under any circumstances, to extend until they, in turn, obtain the /ranchise horse-drawn carriage transport.

[A certain lady, belonging to the community-nativity, intervened warmly in favor of these ai-remarkable characters-the worst part is that Wil-his little one did indeed intervene stamp, and, if he could not prevent a condemnation from them-fined around one hundred francs, he gave them at least avoided prison, which was "assault"
"against law enforcement officers" their au-would be attracted everywhere else.

Such is the noble use that Daniel makes of flax-influence attached, rightly or wrongly, to his position son-in-law,

However, he has no intention of stopping, because, since
Some time ago, it was announced that, seeing each other a little Having been too exposed in Tours, he set his sights on Dijon. Already, a kind of special edition of the Petite France N is circulating. Already, there are announcements of mouchanges in the civil service personnel, and Ambitions are running high!

It's enough to make you tremble, when you think that this protector of anyone who is in trouble with the parquet floors. will operate in a city that is so neighboring our borders!

DANIEL WILSON. 36

If one objects that Daniel is good, and that it is through weakness that he protects from unsympathetic beings that, I will answer that the frequency of these facts wounds revealed among the supporters of the polite mana deplorable and shameful moral level, in
In all cases, a representative of the country.

Unfortunately, Daniel does not limit himself to ar-rescue a number of criminals from justice teurs, ll also exercises it on finances and on the the country's policy, a harmful influence.

It has often been said at what pressure ll

tele prints from the administration of finance.
There is even a famous circular on this subject.

Here is another fact verbatim recounted by the Ja Touraine newspapers, This is a function-dependent, this time, on the Ministry of Transport public assets,

"One day we went to the official's house..."
"question, and this is what was said to him:"

"Sir, you entrust your printing work to..."
"So, Mr. X. If you don't bring them to us,
"I'm warning you, Mr. Wilson is going to have you put "In disgrace."

– "But, sir, I have only myself to praise..."

– "That's good. Mr. Wilson will be notified tomorrow."

"And the unfortunate official was obliged, for
"to avoid the predicted disgrace, to command inconti-
"He prints his documents at MM. Arrault and Co."

Ji.

TT ee +

366 MOXOGRAPHIES.

At the time the fact became known. Little France claimed that Wilson had relinquished his stake in the Arrault printing house, where all the tax collectors had been urgently invited to the fair their printed materials.

Immediately, Île Journal d'Indre-et-Loire de: to say that it is "a cynical lie"

10th story, about a certain factory of linens, owned in Loches by Mr. Wilson. This the factory had been equipped with numerous comorders from the Ministry of War, and one could find that it was a "delicate" situation for Wil (T4) his, chairman of the Budget Commission.

As with printing, it was stated that it:

from Indre-et-Loire immediately responded that "there is no no factory sale, but only 10-«cation

These mixtures of interests are profoundly regrettable: they coincide. Moreover, with numerous plants from all corners from the French press.

One day, these complaints were deeply... agitated the Chamber of Deputies, during a session, at the end of which Paul de Cassagnac saw himself applied-to challenge censorship, with temporary exclusion.

On that day, the issues at hand were those of Tonkin.

DANIEL WILSON. 367

Unfortunately, the accusations made by the Bonapartist deputy were formulated with a certain perliodia against the entire ministry, and I have trouble understanding why, having to say this which he printed the next day in his newspaper, he stubbornly remained silent in the face of the objur-wations to the President of the Council, That is, in fact, what he allegedly said completely exonerated the (government, and, on the contrary, serious accusations-Wilson.

So, the day after this session, the country reproducing /e Clairon, printed the following:

We talked about unions similar to the unions
"Tunisians. We were right, the unions do exist, indeed"
"that they are not where we thought we saw them... One
"A so-called Golden Sands Society was founded in Paris"
"Cambodians, born under the inspiration of the governor-President of Cochinchina, with the support of Mr. Wilson,
"With money from Baron Seitlliere, financier."

The claim of the traveler Dupuis, a claim re-known and enforceable, has no other connection with the done, to give him mining concessions in silver place.

It is in this line of thought that we have been able to say, with some justification, by highlighting the attitudes di-Wilson's verses, as chairman of the commission:

There

is

ur

868 MONOGRAPHS.

budget allocation, which he did not initially obey, to the sense of France's dignity, and that the true causes of the Ifanoi disaster, before brought about the death of Commander Riviere. remont-tempted at a time when the attacked ministry was not not in operation.

It was then that the explorer Dupuis was able to write in turn, as reported by "{ntransigeant ,

"I will say, when the time comes, which way they came from."

"The proposals of interest:"

We know that the first time, the expedition was abandoned after being sufficiently damaged to endangering the safety of our troops.

However, Wilson, chairman of the budget committee-get, personally contributed to the credit refusal which paralyzed the expedition, he + has a little more of a year, and this allows us to conclude that the gold sands of Cambodia had nothing left to win the expedition requested by Dupuis.

It is strange that these explanations have not were given before the House, and it is much more

It's still strange to notice that /a Lantern €

DANIEL WILSON. 309

The Intransigent ones maintained, on all these matters, a silence complete.

We understand, up to a certain point, the mu-Lantern's ism, devoted to Wilson, for a a multitude of reasons, because the Jew who leads it could not to be cited as a model of independence.

But Rochefort? This relentless pursuer of all the dishonesty, Rochefort, of which one can to discuss the theories, but which, I believe, we do not would not have the right to suspect independence, especially when it comes to money matters.

How is it then that all the actions-Wilson's comments may have escaped him, he who has searched the Bokhos file, he who discovers and de-Vince, sometimes, all of Ja's hidden agendas political finance? How is it that his the newspaper never contained the slightest criticism
At Wilson's address?

Would she really be the dupe of republicanism?
I. (Son-in-law? And, even in that case, how not to Doesn't he understand that this is detrimental to the republic?
to remain silent about the misdeeds of those, whoever they may be, who shelters under his name

He who, in the Chamber, and behind every dis-financial impact, sees a stock market crash, comment never mentioned the large agiota-

the things attributed to Daniel, both regarding the

310 MONOGRAPHS.

conversion of the annuity, as in the matter of the vote of iron?

What would he say if we told him the same story as we told me?
"that a certain Mr., a general councillor, reactionnaire, a friend of Wilson, had previously carried out or-considerable resources, at the time of the conversion, with various agents, who settled it via money order white, among other things, for a sum of 720,000 francs, handed the warrant to Wilson who acquitted him and affected towards the end of June.

And what would he say if he then observed in the Figaro of July 11, 1883, that Daniel Wilson, around around the same time, on June 30th, "bought for the sum of 979,357 francs. 99 euros, plus charges, "a "land at the corner of Avenue d'Iéna, of the "ru Magleboure and rue Fresnel? »

How many things would one not see in this coin-Obviously!

What does it matter? After all this, how few rare apo-Logistics staff praise Daniel to the point of saying that "during-
When he speaks, all the ladies become interested in him.
financial issues, »

In fact, this praise is treachery, because we know

DANIEL WILSON. o()

how can ladies be interested in to address the issues of money, and the former squandering-
The author is quite enough to make one tremble when one thinks that he presided over state finances,

It doesn't matter if one admires the infernal skill with which he did, to (Gambetta and his friends.
a knife war, using a vast organization nisation "of the press, paying almost no one, but it's interesting for everyone to have operations

{financial?

Ultimately, what does it matter whether one [lends an existence-without respite!

Hey! Good heavens! I was told the same thing about Jewish man from Lallitte Street and I think it's meron the verge of wanting to excuse the hoarding or the corruptions, under the pretext that it is necessary to give well-a difficult task to accomplish

But, if there is one, the bandit who is watching the traveler at the edge of the forests, the Arab pillager of ca-Ravanes and the Strangler Indian have an existence in-extremely harsh and very laborious, indeed! with this difference difference that they risk their lives, while the

(HI

S MONOGRAPHS.

Alphonse and the Daniels only risk that of others.

[It is time for common sense to awaken and that popular equity puts everything back in its place.

Daniel has already lost the presidency of the commission.
budget management, he deserves to lose his seat deputy, and it will perhaps cost his father-in-law the presidential chair

After which, France will be entitled to a reaction JEWISH, to which he will rally.

Beware, this man is a da nel

CONCLUSION

Of the twenty-one personalities that I have just to study, five, barely, can be cited as having escaped, to varying degrees, the dissolving action boasts of millions acquired too easily.

But 4l is far from that proportion of five on twenty-one can be taken as a basis for assessment; Moreover, I will only be able to solve this problem after having finished the traraur in order to provide the material from the second volume of this work.

For the moment, I must point out that all those I dealt with were not involved, equally ment, & the direct manipulation of jinance. There is, In particular, there are differences between Duclerc and Mallet practices that it is hardly necessary to emphasize.

Duclerc is a rigid theorist; Mallet, a specialist-austere list. On another note, I can in The same can be said of Joubert and Sautter, and even of Durrieu.

3 2

314 THE KINGS OF THE REPUBLIC.

As for the others, Jews, Protestants, etc. Catholics, these are instruments of ruin.

Rothschild hoards billions; Leon Kay is "OTè spokesperson in the assemblies of the State Pa Moreau "gives citizenship to the strangest" values opened the official market to them.

What advantage does France have in feeding the Camondo, {es Bamberger, les Stern, les Levy-Crémieu? What serious work have they undertaken? Can they, in fact, claim that they give The example of an austere and useful life. These are... syndicated prey networks.

How do the Cahen-d'Anvers serve our economic situation? In what ways has Bischoffsheim-1/ Deserves a seat in Parliament!

What authority should be granted to Liebaudy, to Soubeyran and Wilson, who laugh at the laws, by a singular irony, have our legislators become?

What presumption do we have of making Péreire, These subsidy-hungry Donon types who became the ELLE AE on I'm going to be a financial genius of our republican youth!

Enjin, how do we tolerate the Hirsch and Les

German or Oriental lions. A kind of Mephistopheles of the judiciary and diplomacy!

All these people are gold internationalists.

– # ë “ F. nr L

They deserve the harshest judgments, because they

CONCLUSION. 911)

exert an enormous influence and set an example deplorable

They destroyed the prestige of work. They all have accumulated incalculable wealth in less than a quarter of the century, and it would be impossible for them to admit, year per year, by what extraordinary means they have they got their millions.

International trafficking plays a significant role in their methods: with gold extracted from abroad, they come to France continue their land grabs.

A famous parliamentary document (1) explained that for a single loan, that of Honduras, on APPROXIMATELY TWENTY-FIVE MILLION, THE INTERMEDIARIES HAD ABSORBED MORE TWENTY-THREE MILLION: at Total: disappearance of EIGHTY-SEVEN MILLION AND A HALF.

On the other hand, Mr. FRouland, governor of the Ban-France, in particular, had a table drawn up detailing the losses suffered. within the space of thirteen years, that is to say between TS? and [S0, not only on the purchase of foreign securities, in France, but also, on the money exported to their OCCASION.

This results in the inclusion of a charge on the purchase price. LOSS OF ONE THOUSAND FIVE HUNDRED AND SEVENTY-THREE MILLION composed of four hundred and two million. (arrested by the)

(1) Report by Mr. Develle, Member of Parliament.

READ

ju

316 THE KINGS OF THE REPUBLIC.

founders or issuers and of eleven hundred evening and eleven millions exported.

Since that time, the ruins have accumulated even further. nullified: from a report drawn up in 1880 by the "committee "Foreign security holders," I would like to draw this statement accompanied by very detailed figures, © WHAT A LOSS "The value of twelve stocks amounted to nine billion."

However, with the exceptions I have mentioned, the majority-part of the financiers I just dealt with were the agents of these losses; meanwhile, | Their fortune was built with frightening speed.

I have only recorded the losses resulting from the foreign values. It is necessary to add, to obtain a final total, all those from the cases issued in France, especially in the last ten years.

I will draw up this table, and, when I have studied the existence-tence of all the leaders of the Jewish community that reigns in France, I will place, next to each name, the list of matters in which everyone took part, between the time where they began their financial careers and the moment they became cliff-climbing powers by tens of millions.

We must understand that these KINGS, in a REPUBLIC, constitute, nth at point of view of lin-France's territorial integrity, a terrible danger.

It's in the millions accumulated in their hands that we must seek the secret of certain manifestations

CONCLUSION. 311

from the international press, suddenly blowing away the war, sometimes with England, sometimes with Ale-nagrance.

What is needed for that? That one of these handlers of millions, with their finger in every newspaper, inspire to some scribbler, often unconscious, but always Awarded, a thesis which, beneath a patriotic appearance tick, is made to sway opinions, to stir up imaginations, warming up minds and then launching the Peoples against each other!

It doesn't matter that France fled from revolutions. against royalty if it has only succeeded in multiplying the many of His kings!

Alas! He who, about three hundred years ago. wrote his admirable speech on servitude volunteer, which he called the contract one, would have, today today, to formulate the same indictment, not against One against ten, against a hundred, against a thousand!

Moreover, he himself already sensed the dreaded multiplication of kings, having power without ATOr the title.

Here is what he wrote:

"However, it is true, they are always four or five who maintain the tyrant, four where five who hold the country entirely in servitude. It has always been that five or six have had the au- The tyrant's reille, and S'v are approaching them-

"dc
]

CP A

378 THE KINGS OF THE REPUBLIC.

memes, where they were called by him, for to be complicit in his cruelties, the compai- eæmons of her pleasures, pimps of her voluptuousness and common to the spoils of his plunder,

These six have six hundred, which proliferate under them and make of their six hundred that the six make at tyrant. These six hundred hold six thousand under their control. that they have raised up, to whom they have made To give OI the government of the provinces. ON the mA their avarice and cruelty, and that they carry it out.

when the time comes, and do so much harm to the garlic-theirs, that they can only last under their shade, to be exempted from it, except by their means, from laws and punishment. Great is the sequel that comes After that.

What more can be said to this eloquent statement, frankly?
cerile in the French DTATNE of Montaigne, by that who was a magistrate in Parliament and whose name was Etienne by Ja Boétie.

Everything that was said three hundred years ago still applies.
severely, to the infamies of our time.

Only royalty is suitable for a people of servants.

France believed itself free because it had guillotined a rot and she didn't arrive, by mating with the Jewish community, than to give oneself dozens of them, all the more formidable

CONCLUSION. 319

that they work in the shadows and evade the res-responsibilities.

The Jewish people will be our downfall through their slavery and through his tyranny.

La Boétie sensed this too, because 1 stigmatized the instinct of servitude by designating itself "THOSE "OF ISRAEL, WHICH WITHOUT CONSTRAINT OR ANY BE-{ CARE, S£@ FEIR A TYRAN:

And al adds;

"WHICH PEOPLE IE NX LIS IAMAIS L, HISTORY.

MAY I NOT HAVE TOO GREAT DESPAIR. QUASI

I UNTIL I BECAME INHUMAN, TO RESIOUIR

(OF SO MANY EVILS THAT BECAME UPON THEM.

What profound sadness overwhelmed the thinker,

after so many civil wars and so much bloodshed, 1
You have to give 7. This sells the same ones to see the ISSUE.
MENTS! |

AUGUSTE CHIRAC.

Paris, September 4, 1853,

DOCUMENTS

Jewish methods.

Agiotage, – Names. – Philippart. – soubeyran.
Bontoux. – Mary Raynaud.

Besides the results achieved by the Jewish community, it is good to outline the processes it uses to execute the big moves that so often leave the public amazed.

These processes are sometimes explained in full court of assizes and reproduced in the Gazette des libunaux, sometimes they result from complaints made or simply of stories told in newspapers and on which Those involved have been careful to avoid facing the evidence.
in court.

Here, borrowed from various sources, is the story of what–
The maneuvers of speculative Jewish society.

The great concern of [Jewishness] is to act in the mystery: hence the constant use of front men.

So she hides to carry out her schemes. The main point is...
For her, the issue is the origin of her stock market orders.
or completely ignored, even by the agents:

The Gazelle of the Courts reporting on a famous

* –
a me to – trial, – the Carpentier trial, – recorded, on the grand

The public was stunned by this observation:

Guérin, an office boy at the Northern Railway,
1,200 francs salary, 280 francs rent at La Cha:
shovel, did, under his real name and at his real address, for 43 million (we say forty-three million) of operations in ten months with his stockbroker.

It is understandable that with such a way of acting he
It is quite difficult to know the truth, as for the causes that bring, onto the public funds market, requests or offers,

[Another concern of the Jewish community is to-
To outmaneuver his opponents,

Here are some examples:

In IS39, there was, as we know, a crash, which we called the Philippart crash. The plan was to crush this eneur, because he was a nuisance to the allied Jewish community.

Evlanser and his associates discovered, upon purchasing, at Gold price, Philippart's trusted man, that this the latter was a buyer of 335,040 shares of Crédit Mobito bind. Immediately, a watchword was issued among all the Jews of the Stock Exchange; Shares of Crédit Mobilier fell of 40 0/0, and Philippart could neither sell nor raise the titles, nor even finding any money in the report. It was a strangulation, and disaster island, in short, weighed definitively-vement sur l'audience.

On another occasion, the same Jewish community had an interest in 4 counter-to cover the operations of a daring speculator who was none other than Soubeyran.

He had engaged in an epic struggle, sometimes with Rothschild, sometimes with Péreire.

The same methods had been used, and we were told!
having managed to know, very precisely, the stock market position of the former deputy governor of Crédit Foncier.

It is said that the Rothschilds stopped because of the market turmoil, which had not yet recovered of the recent Philippart disaster.

A power stronger than Rothschild's. He hadn't put himself in a position to...
The part: Pereire died, and his death saved Soubevrant,

It is almost necessary to recall how, since 1839 especially. Partial crashes followed one another.

DOCUMENTS. 389

[It is not even the Suez Canal titles which, by the will of a speculator, have not accomplished. In short delay, variations from 7 to 100 francs. What there is of What is more peculiar is that the operation ended, not not only by a stock market profit, but also Ten genuine industrial accidents appeared.

This is the story as told in the newspapers.
At the beginning of 1840?

Two friends meet. One is tall and sweet, the other more petit: one very millionaire, the other less so! The big million-Naire said to his friend: buy some Suez, there's a coup
One to do, the other part. An hour later, a month for Innocent words, the fat millionaire is worried, catches a fly on the Suez. Charity begins at home.
The millionaire's sales fall on a poorly prepared market.
Prices are falling: A drop in francs on the Suez. So the sugar producer will cry famine at the great su-shout, his neighbor. "Good heavens!" said the other, "what a misfortune! Have you-What difference do you have? 24 ä - No,

ki Comment no ''

"- Not Dargoul.

"- But your factories?"

"- Ah! My factories, yes."

"-Well! I'll buy them from you to get you out of 1,"
According to rumors circulating on the Stock Exchange, the "colossal" sugar bowl
Mr. Lebaudy and the "good-natured" sugar bowl, Mr. Pamard.
(He would have been led to make Falgoutière in question to bears of 3,109 and 5,900 francs by Mr. Lebaudy, who would have lions.

To the god of this, he finds himself in the presence of the course of 2,200 francs, representing a loss of around ten million, with the prospect of seeing a slightly lower price in the equation, that is to say, a greater loss.

This is the story that has never been denied. HI
It is a question of an unspeakable maneuver, but which escapes the law entirely.

This speculation is, moreover, linked to the very important...
aunt to whom the General Union gave its name.

Here again, the same maneuvers and the same methods awravés of legal proceedings against which, it is said, the Jewish bank has a strong push, and who really like it as extraordinary as those which brought, under the ems Worse still, the arrest of Mires: it's not just Bontoux and

=
—

2 CRE me de kr mm =
D

304 THE KINGS OF THE REPUBLIC, .

leather would be beyond reproach, but at the moment where the law would have noticed the excesses of the asiotage, she should not limit herself to pursuing these two men, while she left so many others unpunished in less guilty than them.

In any case, the crushing defeat was complete, the conlition was general: the positions had been spied on taken, the watchword had resonated throughout the Jewish community.
verie, the ordinary reservoirs of funds employed in reports [werent taris, in order and suddenly — Ia dé-Baccia ensued

This series of executions does not seem to discourage the wrestlers, and there are always some who seek to raincre les conlits juives sur le terrain de ln Bourse.

Around the middle of last year: a stranger from-Suddenly came the market gate. The Druit strained his...
it was reported that this speculator had just taken a revenge on the leaders of the last crash. This auda-Heavens was called Mary Raynaud.

Immediately the entire Jewish community was mobilized. The fight resumed.
It begins, we simply observe that it has lasted since longer than the others, without a de- result
A final judgment was obtained against him.

Here's how the different phases of that struggle.

After employing countermines, the orders of Conversely, speculation in the opposite direction reveals that the en-
Mi avoids the traps and stays on her feet.

So we resort to the old methods: betrayal.

The authorized representative is bypassed. He is given a golden bridge and we thus learn that Mary Raynaud is buyer of some securities and seller of others others.

Almost simultaneously, the Gaul launches himself into train against this isolated speculator and publishes an article of exhaustion, although, it is claimed, the same newspaper had particular reasons for not being disagreeable to the banker who was attacked.

The blow was harsh, because Mary Raynaud had depots in current account; we were hoping to create a pa-screw. To provoke the withdrawal of all these funds, and we believed that, like most bankers, thus taken Unexpectedly, it would go bankrupt in abuse of deposit and abuse of deposit in the assize court.

DOCUMENTS. 39)

Mary Raynaud resisted; he repaid all his debts.
open-top taps, and smelling the treachery, resolved to be. himself, his notebook keeper: in short. he li-
He questioned his position, and soon reappeared armed on foot.
CAD

It was then that another newspaper, Jon the Sheriff, believed duty to fry In return for the Gaul by publishing, among others, the following Hunes:

Mary Raynaud, who is returning to the stage today, details
He is already the man of the moment in Paris. In the financial world, he is remained the man of the day pendant Cn an.

For the past six months, it has been rising, threatened by the increase.
Daus 11 declined and stagnated, he retaliated blow for blow and played his game so well that at each liquidation he cashed out new differences.

We knew it was falling, and we were removing the annuity prices of ? franes: but as a prudent speculator, muui of double of bonuses, 1l found himself earning, through purchases, more than he would otherwise have ea dait pur ses vente; el lors ju'on le croire à immiliG Vaincu, SC returning from all sides, striving to borrow what was needed to silence Faced with his losses, he had calmly gone to the baths "the sea, calmly approaching, near that other ocean which ra-
He even took those he swallowed, the balance he had at all-
Dear.

Buyer here, seller there, constantly stirring, operating in thirty different houses, always ready to think or to return. He thwarted all predictions and completely overwhelmed you.
all the tricks.

And when in July, the augurs pronounced that it was Gtail
They were mistaken about him, that he was a forborn, yet another law.
and one could see, all reports lails, the tireless and elegant lutheir, ready to resume the campaign in August.

The stock market world never tired of inquiries on this strange sweeper, course-breaker, obstacle to dan-er in circle without which every stock market move became impossible, so harsh was the hand of this adversary, so much, by With a spirit of opposition and lactic acid, Mary Raynaud liked to to precisely countermand the high Bank was trying,

So who is he? This nuisance, this speculator who always aims, Still no luck! Is that Mary Raynaud you're calling her? That name
He doesn't smell of finance... what! Isn't he a bit of a baron?
At least? It's not possible that we would allow a simple Mary Raynaud, shaking up the system like that... Doesn't he have some Solid support, any serious recommendation? Isn't it the
The first name of a major financier? Isn't he Jewish? Doesn't he have anything For him? Isn't he a little bit German?

— Make yourself comfortable. It is known on the Stock Exchange under the name of the Au-

em

- + =

r Be RS Lei

= ES D RS

æ Ba" ps

390 THE KINGS OF THE REPUBLIC.

cergal. His only flaw, as a financial one, is that he was born in Saint-Flour.

In fact, he was born in Saint-Flour. See how this life imposes little, besides the heraldic advent of a German baron

mand': He's doing excellent studies on these memes: baccalaureate or sor:
The father was a fellow student of the Bishop of Saint-Flour: he wants toto shoot at Saint-Cvr; but too frail in health at that time, he He renounces it and a few years later embarks on a reælinent of hussars.

As a non-commissioned officer, he takes on a replacement, who soon proves ineffective aga:
lile, For war has just broken out, He serves as captain at the army of the Loire. In 1871, he joined the Stock Exchange as a sim-known pile in the backstage house of Jullienne de Turme-islands,

Finally! He has found his path. Very subtle, calculating ra-fast, 11 to quickly designed all types of operations, the com-
the most multiple combinations, the most complex arbitrations ([ues. Started from nothing. He will Sclever quickly GE. LILOLI milk]. by Speculation alone.

DUT] COUP de miutre may have been his famous refereeing decision:
sale of French Annuity against purchase of Bank shares of France. He gained on both sides: The rent fell.
Bank rose by 2,000 [ranes.

His fortune is rising rapidly, reportedly to 20 million.
lions.

He bought the castle of Sailhans in Auvergne, and its population
S's rity increases with all the benefits of teeth; it fulfills its companions.
trioles that the struggle for life throws on the pavement of the capital.

But at the same time, and on the other hand, in Paris, the cabal was... imele, it is not enough that he is targeted by the big players, by the cosmopolitan group that has not yet found the flaw of past a ridiculous profession, if it is one, at least. of ridiculous mis-third party.

The opponents' blows redoubled. (Some protested: tent. C6 are backstage operators who are wondering if one can on-forget that in the January 5? crash, more than twenty couturier-smooth at 1 Bourse We remained due to Marv aynaucd near 3 million, which is thanks to his discretion. To his venosilé that most of these houses have been rebuilt and are enjoying of great credit.

It is said that Mary Raynaud wants to continue the fight:
Is he right, is he wrong?

If one could believe that he would succeed in giving to the Jews a green lesson, it would be comforting to see them, a laws by chance, beaten by a Christian with their pro-arms

Means of defense.

Separation of the markets of stockbrokers, – PGtition,.
Railway regulations, -- Military zones. – Buyout.

After outlining the main processes used by the Jewish community and in financial matters, it is good to indicate that also some of the means proposed for the paralyze.

There are two main ways, really the more effective: it is, first of all, a matter of regulating the species-lalion. then, to buy back the railways.

REGULATION OF SPECULATION

The author of this book presented, in February 1882, to the Chamber of Deputies, a petition aimed at provoking a law regulating the creation and regulation of values financici'es.

The main provisions of the proposed bill tended to divide all values into two categories: one grouping all fixed-capital securities and Variable income or stocks: the other, including all islands fixed capital and fixed income liters where bonds.

The same project existed that every value had two representatives sensations comprising only one title: the first, equipped with coupons negotiable only for cash: the second, bearing no coupon and negotiable on its own—eventually.

(the two representations of the same title being today delivered together to the subscriber at the issue

388 THE KINGS OF THE REPUBLIC.

that can be sold separately and exchanged on an equal basis between them: securities without coupons. special—led. able to validly pay for any liquidation forward transaction.

Finally, the same project declared commercial acts all forward transactions, eliminated charges of stockbrokers, and completely seized the market cash transactions in the trading market. Lions eventually, through the creation of two separate premises and of two official committees for the rating resulting from the mass of transactions carried out.

These main provisions were preceded by
The following statement of reasons:

Statement from the petitioner.

The abuses of speculation have just been demonstrated, by terrible conditions, the need to proceed with radical solutions wedges in the legislation governing financial transactions and public credit.

It is indisputable that all evil stems from the passion of game, which increasingly tends to replace the love of work.

However, the purpose of a law cannot be to eliminate a Passion.

It is not possible, in fact, for the legislator to change the nature of the human species; but it can enact measures aiming to cancel the effects of a series of practices fatal to the public interest, and to imitate the sensible farmer, who, unable to delete a periodic torrent, the endzue and the submits to watering his field, instead of letting him freely

'Such is the aspect of the law proposed by the petitioner.

The situation that is being addressed to French capital is such, that nowhere can they hope to find safety.

The hardworking and prudent man – the only likeable one – who knew how to read a reserve by capitalizing on part of his work, and who then seeks to make it generate income remunerative, no longer finds: income, even by sacrificing all with a guarantee of the capital paid in.

In a word, the action, the capital of which is likely to be completely lost, it most often capitalizes in such a way, that its dividend, even when it is considerable, while remaining possible, eventually leads to being chilled below the inner gage par une obligation mortgage.

As for the bond itself, its fixed interest rate decreases continuously, and its capitalization will eventually make it impossible to – all depreciation methods are possible.

DOCUMENTS. 309

It follows from this dual situation that, no longer being able to hoping for a profitable return on ventured capital, the – public procurement, placed between the risks of a single important – launches, is real on the side and looks in the variations of the capital himself the benefice that he no longer finds elsewhere.

Therefore, differences in playing style serve as a dividend. and of interest: therefore, transactions become deceitful ruses; therefore, the shareholder has no interest in ensuring them to – sister to the general assemblies; these become fictions; the most heinous abuses are committed there, with impunity, by passers-by who only vote for a dividend to have a pre – text to speculate.

This leads to unjustifiable price increases. and the possibility of representing, in practice, ten times the real value of the object it is supposed to represent.

But, inevitably, as we have just seen, at the first shock a collapse occurs, and, like the mass of the public is unable to recognize the verifiable causes, it happens that public confidence is shaken, and that credit of the State. itself, can sadly feel the effects.

man, having never played, saw it melt in his thigh and disappear, without him having anything to reproach himself for, the savings that he had linked to a fiduciary title, it is impossible to expect to hope that the public can maintain its confidence and transition, Again, in securities. The fruit of his savings.

So, in what we call credit, there are two elements absolutely irreconcilable.

The pallery and lagiotace.

Since it is impossible to eliminate speculation, it is necessary to be limited to protecting the complicity against him.

We must go further: we must expose this speculation. to consolidate the investment and to serve the public interest.

This goal will certainly be achieved by establishing a line of unbreakable demarcation between negotiations at the covaptant and the negotiations at lerne.

This is how the peltionist sought to isolate the title of placement of the speculative security, of such a series that the security speculation can vary infinitely and satisfy the passion. players, without the placement title experiencing the plus lower préjuuice.

This is the reason for the creation of coupon-free securities. tiles with coupons, to represent a single and the same value. The first ones being nezociable only in the long term, the se-conditions being negotiable only in cash, but able to all-days can be exchanged au pair.

It would be a mistake to believe that this innovation could to be a disruption of received habits.

33.

390 THE KINGS OF THE REPUBLIC.

Not at all; the proposed modification does not disrupt anything; it is limited to averting public dangers.

In Ellet, what happens when speculation is short-term? milk rose to 2,500 francs, a value which originally required A simple payment of 300 {r. ?

Simply this: we pay 2,500 francs for the right to be collee, which may be less than its value reserved, which may descend to zero, and which can only increase by Capitalized reserves, but not distributed, and still adventurous.

Even better: if the dividend has reached 50 francs per share
Uon, it is {0 0/0 on the even at 300, but it only becomes 2 U/0 on the arbitrarily obtained price of 2,500 fr.

Obviously, it's not the lure of income that's driving the request.
the buyer at 2,500 francs. That's the game: that's the hope of re-sell for 3,000 francs.

He is therefore indifferent to the asioteur (whether his carle has or has not
No coupons. They matter so little!

However, {as long as the spot market and the market term will not be (these will not be reduced, any upward movement or a decline will affect the stock price, even when, during this In time, he will have remained safely locked in a crate, without any question of it being the subject of a delivery reflective,

If, from upward reasoning, the petitioner moves to
By lowering the reasoning, the argument becomes even more elo-quickly, because 105 pearls are always ultimately suffered. by the innocent capitalist who didn't play.

A union, with a lot of advertising, had slipped it to him.
a bond freed from 500 francs by making him pay 2,900 francs?

The Syndicate is liquidating. The share price falls to 1,000 francs, and that's it.
1,900 francs vanished before the horrified eyes of the poor buyer in good faith.

Does it make sense? Is it honest?

Such is the infamy that the petitioner renders impossible in separating the two markets, loul by leaving the possibility-fNlé to deliver books, since the title without coupons is always exchangeable at par for the title bearing the neck-Pons, SIT, some are available!

Nevertheless, cries of "the obstruction" will inevitably be leveled.
"Related to the freedom of transactions."

The prisoner protests against this accusation.

From the moment speculation is free to be quoted as She will want the title without coupons, still exchangeable.
against the filter with coupons and au pair, she cannot

However, the petitioner will obtain this: that the action-
A serious professional will take care of defending social interests.
because, as a cash purchaser of an even-numbered security, he will be

DOCUMENTS. 391

{always certain of getting his money back if he needs it, and,
Meanwhile, they are earning substantial income.

The petitioner therefore rejects all negotiations arising from the asio, to leave possible only those born of nature and the management of the case itself. The nature of a case is not up for discussion here, but its management should be better monitored will be an additional guarantee for its vitality.

Enlin, the majority of increases or decreases being made by heated enthusiasms or | panics provoked-ruled out as a result of speculation, the petitioner dismisses the ra-retés or the ficlires abundances born of the agio, which tantol offers and sometimes asks a thousand or ten thousand times more titles than actually exist.

However, according to the proposed law, the liquid-dalion pour antetre légalsalisfaites par la fradilion coupon-free securities, the market for these same securities with cash coupons retain their placidity, and consequently their security,

Besides the security that this organization would bring to the placements, the petitioner must indicate the benefit that the State would find it advantageous to promote, to the extent explained, the opera-Lions of the Game in the long run.

Speculation at (term) provides stockbrokers 100 million annual brokerage transactions.

This presupposes a capital, committed in the form, cle 60 mil-liards of francs annually at the game.

In reality, brokerage fees are only levied on the differences, although they are calculated on capital, 1
It is obvious that if we raise the brokerage, we will only raise the differences.

That being said, if the State wants to strike at the operations to the point of
of a 5% tax, he will be able to withdraw on this account, and without proto cause no economic disruption, an income of ? billions 400 million.

Let him leave the 100 million to the couriers and keep For him, the billions, and he will be able to usefully reduce and annually the most critical taxes, or to make Islands tra - public assets without loans.

This is how speculation would lead to a public benefit instead of causing ruin and killing the trust.

The petitioner does not believe he needs to elaborate more his thinking.

All that remains is for me to comment on articles 7 and 13.

Article 7 allows the creation of securities of 10 fr., 50 fr., 100 fr., summer., but entirely free,.

This doesn't bother anyone: instead of issuing shares of 500 francs released from 125, we will first issue a series of actions of 125 fr., then a second, then a third, etc.

Meanwhile, speculation, with no-cost securities

392 THE KINGS OF THE REPUBLIC.

Negotiable prices only in the long term, may discount or interpreting the probabilities of future emissions, but there is no will have more fundraising calls with its uncertainties and its dancers,

As for Article 13, which abolishes exchange fees, i
It is obvious that it is the freedom and sincerity of transactions protected from coalitions of speculators.

The petitioner concludes by expressing the wish that his pilgrimage EITHER examine with particular care, and he declares that he remains at the disposal of the commission that would be appointed to conduct this examination, in order to give it to him verbally all 16 clarifications and all the details that the im-weight of the interests at stake.

The petitioner was not summoned, and as of the date of June 1892, the Official Journal contained the report of the commission, by Mr. Florent Lefèvre, Member of Parliament.

This report concludes with the agenda items for the following reasons:
following:

Commission decisions.

what strikes you at first glance in the proposed system,
What is shocking, to put it more accurately, is that the legislator ory-nerialtle rules and conditions for exercising a pission that his duty would prescribe him to repress, is that he would have to formulate the provisions by which the agiolage could to pursue a career. That the legislator tolerates gambling on the financial values, which he even manages to recognize as bonds and the resulting debts, this can Justify yourself if necessary, but let him analyze the operations whose moral character is very cost-stable. which can To often only have the appearance of loyalty is not To discuss a necessary evil is to elevate it to the level of a
To place a social institution on a dangerous footing is to put it on a dangerous footing.
honest transactions and those that might not the being.

On the other hand, upon examining the proposition in detail, it is
It is impossible to believe that speculation could get bogged down in a title that has no original value and cannot produce
No income or dividends. Future growth is unknown.
The randomness of income is the obligatory starting point, the pre-a more or less serious text of speculation: it is the reason for being.

It is no worse to then say that, during the collapse of an inflated value, the serious portion of this value pe-Risse with the fictitious increase: it often survives and perpetuates it she only suffers momentarily, unless she has been

DOCUMENTS. 393

to belong to a company whose founders or the niter of operations should not offer him all the guarantees of-desirable.

The fourth committee therefore proposes to proceed to order of the day on this proposal, as well as on that of the establishment
The introduction of a 3% tax on forward transactions.
refers to the commission that will be appointed to decide on the Proposal from our colleague Mr. Menard-Dorian. (Order of
"JOUR". }

The author of this report is among those who voted in thanks to new agreements with companies of railways, and this observation will serve us as question, one of the most serious for France.

THE RAILWAY QUESTION

To effectively resist Jewry, it would not suffice not to have disarmed unhealthy speculation. It would be necessary to still wrest from the hands of financial feudalism its the most formidable instrument of government, because he's involved in everything: the MONOPOLY OF THE CIFEMINS OF IRON.

To arrive at this result, the author of this book has elaborated I developed a project which was communicated to several people. suggested to them the idea of having it distributed – a little late – in the Chamber of Deputies.

This document contains the following considerations:

It follows from a careful examination of the conventions submitted Submissions to the Chambers:

That, under the guise of maintaining intact the right to State buyout. They actually add difficulties significant new developments regarding the exercise of this right: in Furthermore, they strengthen the power of financial coalitions. companies, interested in enriching themselves at the expense of the interests political and economic policies of the nation, which has for e!fet d'augmenter evalement la puissance d'une sorte de

A corporation inclined to resist, Sins ceases. To all the improvements and capable of exerting its resistance (such as

(This has already been seen) by compromising the safety of the o-

T |
es = = =

mem me =

394 THE KINGS OF THE REPUBLIC.

government, and if necessary by seeking to change it]

The main argument of those opposed to the takeover is less its financial impossibility, currently, than the dangers of direct exploitation by the State, which de- They are much less influenced by the trends of the State itself, that of the French temperament too easily affected by the disease of bureaucratism.

However, a buyout is currently possible: the means Financial matters are easier than we pretend to believe. All that remains is to reconcile: On the one hand, the direction policy which legitimately belongs to the State, with the the need to eliminate the dangers of bureaucracy.

On the other hand, the complete completion of the networks has budgetary necessities.

This is the aim of the bill, the provisions of which are as follows: sitifs

Railway regulations in France.

General provisions. – 1. The State exercises its right of redemption which is reserved for it by the conventions, currently in vi- heart, concerning the railway system.

2. The agreements are cancelled. The various existing networks the tenants are merged and 'OnIposeront, from now on, a single re- national bucket.

a. The supreme direction of the national ESCAU is contiguous +! li Ministry of Roads 81 communications, specially created at this effect.

4. The national network is subdivided into 18 districts Administrative or geographical areas coinciding with the (Military sections.)

The Ministry of Roads and Communications is substituted 'the towering companies, which will have, under their direction- ion and their responsibility, all material exploitation com- taking Ja traction. maintenance, selection, equipment and the staff. They will number IS and will be as 1! will be stated below,

6. The Minister of Roads and Communications will centralize all the income and expenses of each IS Regional Companies.

Expenses: a unit kilometer will be calculated and the re-divisions will be made, between the Companies, in proportion to the nombre kilometers comprising the zone managed by each of elle, and according to proportions which will be indicated below,

reouies

HN 1!

DOCUMENTS. 509

Lies Cornpaynies gestionnaires., – K, Any treaty of management will have a minimum duration of int years: any renewal cannot exceed fifteen years.

J. The managing companies will be qualified. vis-à-vis the State, conune of the civil agents. towards the Liecrs, Comine des people businesses.

Consequently, they will be responsible to the State of their internal management and their dealings with third parties. of their clothing exterior,

In this latter case, knowledge of the litters will belong to the ordinary jurisdiction.

I. Loute, the managing company, will have to

1° To pay into the hands of the State, as a guarantee– a sum of 29,000 francs per kilometer included in the area for which the company will have obtained management. This guarantee will generate an annual interest rate of 3%.

2. Acquire, according to the estimate, its share of the rolling stock moncral, el Ce au pro rata du nombre de kilometres Component If ZOTIE",

3" To pay annually to the State a kilometer– fee which number 16 will be determined below.

11, the managing company will receive mil per! kilometer of gross revenue from the oneral tralie: A management allowance calculated based on mileage:

Jo da parl kilométrique de tout ce qui plus sera le recette brute that will have been mistaken for ctalon.

your brutes from all existing companies at the time ar buyback, deducted from the average of the previous five years, and, likewise, for the future, will be used to calculate the revenue crude-Clulon, necessary to determine the conditions of the treatments the of gorance.

13, The standard-burner recipe stopped at 1% January 1883 is the the basis of the new organization; it is, and remains fixed to the a sound of 1.2 billion per year.

14. The distribution of this gross revenue will be made according to the sweating proportions:

\°
I

our fresh ex-

TO THE COMPANIES \ exploitation..... 357 0/0 That is GS4 million.
ocrantes / For indemnities

'Management: 2.60/0 - ÿ

PAU LE EH Ed AA RO EU a IE 31010 = 144

EE

Totals... 10000 goit 1200 huillions.

These proportions will be revisable every CIN([4ns:
but, during each five-year period, everything that-will exceed the 1.26 million gross revenue benchmark, will have restarted

=
D PR nn

HAS -

396 THE KINGS OF THE REPUBLIC.

Kilometrically, between the IS Compagn'es sérantes and at the pro-rata of the number of kilometers included in each of the ln, As a consequence of the above, the annual fee that the Companies will have to guarantee to the State, for five years, mileage-wise and at the mileage rate of zones, will have to reach a total of 414 million.

_17. It will be drawn up, to serve as a commentary on the distributions-Kilometric units, an exact statement of the number of kilometers existing at the date of January 1st 1935, as well for the exploitation-nationalization (prepared for regional exploitation, Limits. - $1. Prices will be drawn up exclusively, calculated and promulgated by the Ministry of Roads and Communications.

19. IIS will target each of the following categories of traffic, passengers, goods, speed and slow speed: they have to have kilometric and calculated in a straight line and as the crow flies-BELL.

0. Whatever the figures of the divisional tariffs, it will be calculated at an average annual kilometer unit, and that multi-unit by the number of kilometers comprising The total of 8 in the French national network, in operation, will have to always reproduce the benchmark figure of gross annual revenues nuclei for the previous five years.

21. 11 a distinction may be made between regional tariffs national tariffs, national tariffs, and international tariffs. in € but to create, as soon as possible, and for each case [category of objects transported, a single regional, national tariff] and international, regardless of the distance.

2) Any applicable uniform tariff shall be deemed a national tariff. to transport originating in the same region or constituency administrative information and destination at any point in the same region.

Any applicable uniform tariff will be considered a national tariff. has transporters born in a region and destined for a any point of an axis within a region.

will be deemed an international tariff, any uniform tariff applied to transport originating abroad and to destination either of one of these regions, either from abroad, The international tariff will be divided into national tariffs, when the destination point will be in France, and from France, when the destination point will be abroad.

Increase in iron rails, - 15. Any creation of The new line will be decided by the Ministry of Roads and Transport.

1. The works will be put into adjudication according to the former usual ones.

25. The managing companies, which will propose to the State either to carry out the work, or to advance him the sums necessary, will be levied at the same price as all others.

DOCUMENTS. 397

26. In both cases, the managing companies that will have increased their railway lines, will be entitled to an extension of their management agreement, and the gross revenue standard, having served as the basis for setting their fee, will remain, during this extension, as stipulated in the treaty existing at the time of the auction; moreover, the share that belongs to them returns, on the surplus of the gross-kilometer-standard receipt. will be calculated, not only according to the old standard, existing at the time of the adjudication, but also pro rata to the number of kilometers added in their region, such
In short, any managing company increasing its railway lines, or be exempt from any potential increase of the royalty, and, on the contrary, benefits more from the most-values of the general traffic.

27. The managing companies may issue bonds tions intended to carry out the above-mentioned works.
These obligations will be guaranteed by the State.

Liquidation of the buyout. – It's due to a barrage of lies.
that we managed to scare the public with a figure of 11 and a half billion

This total can be subdivided as follows:

Capital borrowed from bondholders..... Are I IDIHATOSL/2 Capital to be repaid to shareholders (ma: ICPCL ROHANT COMPTIS) Een e to mets 4 billion

EE

Total: 22,000,000,000 11 billion-1/2

Nothing prevents the State from replacing the Companies for the servicing and amortization of the bond capital. This royalties from the managing companies which, according to the system exposes, pay 444 million per year to the State.

Moreover, we can unify the obligations, extend their amortization and reduction of the annual charge set at 242 million.

In any case, the bond service being re-
Having served, the State still has more than 200 million available per year.

A loan at 5% interest, 99 years, for a capital of 4 million liards, would flow, as an annuity, 1,610,000 francs, interest and depreciation eorapris,.

In 3000, 99 years, and on par, with 191 million per year, we can fully service a 6 billion loan.

But he doesn't have 4 billion to pay to shareholders, on-all if we consider that, according to the system described, the State does not have to purchase the rolling stock, which is acquired immediately directly by the mass of the managing companies.

All that remains is to repay the shares. If the 31

L

mom

998 THE KINGS OF THE REPUBLIC.

Mr. Allain-Targé's statement is correct; it concerns less than 2 billion,

This is the case here to recall a law on caulionnecomments, the initiative for which was suggested by a petition filed to the House. (1!) |

By means of this law, one would have, without borrowing, without issuing-Sion, at par and costing 300 net, resources considered rables.

It can be designed as follows:

will be mandatorily deposited with the Caisse des Dépôts and Con-Signatures, which will serve the holder with the annual interest of 3,970.

2. These are considered as guarantees:

The sums deposited in advance with the Gas Companies and water keys and the rent semesters, paid in advance, but imputables only on the last six months of the leases of a duration exceeding two years.

The deposited security deposits are being assessed. to the water and gas companies, as well as the rent payments for the six months in question, deposited in advance and chargeable in advance on Islands

'last six months of the lease (noting that a Paris only, this last resource can amount to around 900 million), for all of France @ more than being", 2,000,000,000 [r.

We only phone the security deposits requested from the gecrane companies, to at a rate of 20,000 francs per kilometer, and WHEEL 20.199 kilometers (0 fie el of July 1st, 18853,

P. 369?)- s'élé A LS LE 529.100.000 fr.

If we take these different means into account, it seems im- It is possible that, from a financial point of view, we are raising objectives serious objections against the possibility of the buyout.

The spirit that guided the development of the previous project essentially consists of uniting all the companies. managers, so that each one works for all and all for each, competition be replaced by emulation.

From the moment the diversion tariff system is having become irrelevant, and where, consequently, it will be indifferent to the sender to contact this or that company, he/she- will also come into play regardless of whether, in order to go from one point to another otherwise, the expeditions will follow this or that route. The result will be that the high-speed rail lines will be cleared of slow-speed transits, and that, consequently, accidents will made almost impossible

Furthermore, this system allows us to conceive of a kind of

(1) The signatory of this petition is the author of this work.

ñ
FA

DOCUMENTS. 399

continuous service on secondary lines, serving a multitude of localities that would not exist otherwise and ar-thus aiming to avoid overcrowding at train stations by staying goods awaiting departure.

It is also conceivable that this circulation will excite Traffic at numerous points is currently almost entirely inactive.
which will have the effect of considerably increasing the re-these annuals.

Finally, it is possible to glimpse the moment when we will be able to to establish uniform rates, as with the postal service, which will have, particularly for certain goods and for certain passenger transport, the same effect as that which has been produced by mail, that is to say: matching each lowering of the tariff to an increase in revenue.

END OF THE FIRST VOLUME

LE En er

TABLE OF CONTENTS

EE

EXPLANATION NECESSARY.

A German's prediction – The kings of the Republic. – Press law. – Probity. – Law of religions. – its DODSOCU ALL IN A ACT ARR ESS R Do

II. HISTORICAL SYNTHESIS

I, THE NIGHT OF THE TEMES.

Wild beasts. – Animal behavior. – Human behavior.

re vol: tiescroqueme. TN USINE Ent 17

The SCAM.

Incitement to laziness. – Legal theft. – Mysteries.

Heavenly promise. – The priests. – The financiers. – The (EN Eee LT A PR LE EC AE a NL GO RE

I

|

| III. HOW MAN CREATED GOD.

The first question. – The father of the family, – The rituals. –

| Knowledge of the times. – The large, bright eye, – The

| Clericalism. – Idealisms. – Brokers. . . . 27 d

A. IV. THE JEWISH HOUSE, FORMULA OF MOSES.

| Definition of the Jewish community. – Regulation of interests. –

| The credit granted. – Hebrew social liquidation. –

Leviticus. – Deuteronomy. – Usury. – Nationality

Jewish. – Hungary. – Eastern Question... 35

has

402 TABLE OF CONTENTS.

V. THE JEWISH COUNTRY, JESUS' FORMULA.

Earth and sky. – Israelite Jewry. – Christian Jewry. –

Financial Theories of the Gospel. – The Publicans.

– Parasitism. – False translations – Jesus and the tax. –

Fishing for money. – Authorized thefts. – Jesus and

FRAME RE A RAC PU CES ORAL ee AS

VI. – DEVELOPMENT OF JEWISH COUNTRIES.

The masses of Clovis and Henry IV. – The stock market coup of the year 1000. – Pious wills, – [Emancipation serfs. – The pawnbrokers. – The Jewish quarter of Jesuits. – The Jews in France. – The Popes and the Jews, – J, printing press, – Discovery of America. – The Jewish community of Venice, – The counterfeiting kings, – The Flo-

rentins CL] LI Li Li L] Li L Li Li Li LL Li Li L LI L Li L 0] L LI LI LI 57

VII. NEW JEWENTIES: THE PROTESTANTS, THE JESUITS.

Luther and Loyola. – Protestant Jewry. – Plundering of the abbeyes. – Venality of offices. – The finances of France-cois 1". – Heuri IV boursilleur. – Grouping of interests.
– [The militias. – Jesuits in France, – The 32 million of the League. -- (Pledges to the Protestants, – The Jesuits to Paraguay. – Jesuitism and Judaism. – Massacre of the Vau-must. – The barometer of the popes , . . . , . . . 69

VIIT. TRANSFORMATIONS, INVASIONS.

Accomplices and victims. – Concentration of wealth. – Li-
The suppression of the Church. – The liquidation of feudalism. – The
The bourgeoisie. – Foreign traders. – Richelieu. – Land grabbing under Louis XIV. – Commercial instinct in the parliaments. – The charges at auction. – Impotence of S9 and the Code. – The chambers of justice. – Speculation
official. – The tax farmers. – Foreign invasions Fe ee NU AE OP LE NA EN a AT LE PS

w., \

TABLE OF CONTENTS. 403

IX. INDIVIDUAL HOUSEHOLD HOLD-UP, MEN.

Jacques Cœur. – Agnès Sorel. – Zaméti. – Gabrielle
d'Estrées. – François d'O. – Sully. – Fouquet. – Colbert.
– Samuel Bernard. – The Farming Companies. – Tem-
Pier. – Hénault. – Boulogne. – Jean Faw. – The Condés. –
The Paris brothers. – The Marquise de Prie. – Carlier, –
Popelinière. – Dupin, – Bourret. – Poisson. – Bertin, –

Du Barry. – A syvpdicat, – The three Jewish farmers. – Arrest of the tax farmers. – Robespierre. – The Kings dominated by Jews: – Henry Vin nus ee "08

X. THE EXAMPLE OF ENGLAND.

England, a Jewish monarchy – Bismarck's mistake – Concentration of wealth in England, – [List of fortunes. – Financial internationalism. – Amortizationment by death, – English Ministers in France. – The Jewishness and newspapers. – Slavery of the press. – The Science and information. – The auxiliaries of Jewry.
– [Ha dutte sauvares. 0: 0: AR BASKET LEE

[EL MONOGRAPHS]

A word about the personalities PA TE NET Eee LPS DOS EE PL
PROTECTOR MEL NUS ES AE DENT La ar EE PA tt |
A RENE 1 Stat 2 a 2 ARR A IN RSA LUE ES Se RP DA ACTION EEE EURE NE RE ET AE ete tr et LOS IV: Moreau . D Ro Lee Se RES TRS M NE PIN
NL ESA PE AA AE LE AA CE RE AD A ME D RS WRESTLING 196
LE A SN A a EE ON EN GE
AS QU GS EU at 2 Lu 8 V8 E 0 RARE TT PEN SR AIR RUE NES
NAT RAT OP NPIRS CT ACT ROSE TUE EE RAR ER NU AR RE 218
CE Ument DAME rRON PENSER EP ET EL EN DA
IX. Jacques SE RCA 9 L ROUPRONN ESP SNPNEU TE TOME RIRES À ?
NA SCIE ATANEES SU En PO EAU CITE AA UN ns en TER ES DISC DO STORE ESS ne EE PAU 2

404 TABLE OF CONTENTS.

D 6 € AAA PEN CN GE 8 to 2 DREAM EE DPI PAP ROES GR EI

ED DIT AN EE Er A te LTD Ce A ES OT ee) IN PUBLISHER TE re NT A MILK ANUS IN CG 2

XIV. Joubert and Sautter . . Us RATE EL NA SU MTS 283

NVUPererentles heriiers) A2 EL EUR AR 296

MENT AAA TION OIL MATE CESR TN NEO 0

DS PA 1 PL 5 HN to to 0 3 CELL A RE RRRINR ET NAN ner CRE RES RE
PNA HA NU EC ef Le AUS DA A SR RETRO LINK EE RCE Er 2

NN RAT ATLES VE LS Ce ee Des em ete er nee Nate M 07

CONCLUS TONE SL MENT DRE RE EN RAT DINE MAG PC ET

DOCUMENTS

I. JEWISH TRIALS.

Agioiage, – [The nominees. – Philippart. — Soubeyran. –
BONQUS 2 MATMER ADVANCE OM RENE NE eo |

II. MEANS OF DEFENSE.

Separation of the markets of stockbrokers, – Petition.

– Railway regulations. – Military zones. – Buyback L = L. L “ L] LLD “ D “ “ s [] = s 0) DL] Li L] “ = 381

RE ©

Paris. – [Dupuis printing works, 1, rue de la Perle,

National Library of France – Paris

ISO TAMPER NO. 1
AFNOR 92049 PARIS LA DÉFENSE

—

06th o 66
22:20
PES 280
2® 200

DO 90 60 25!
160 140
Q

PRODUCTION SCRIPTUM PARIS

In compliance with NF Z 43-011 and 150 446 1991

FEBRUARY 2001 'Reproduction Workshop-MLV'

"Justum et tenacem propositioni virum,
"Non civium ardor prava jubentium,
"Non vultus instantis tyranni

"Mente quatit solida. . . . ©

«,, e ° e °

« Si tractus illabatur CEbIs |
"Impavidum would ruin! »

Am I ready to translate them into action?

Auguste Chirac.
Paris, October 1885.

(1) Houace, ode 1x, book Ill.

THE

KINGS OF THE REPUBLIC

HISTORY OF JEWISH COUNTRIES

I
ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

GENESIS OF SOVEREIGNTY. – SOVEREIGN FUNCTIONS. – THE AUXILIARY FUNCTIONS. – LAWMAKERS. – AUXI-LIATRES FOR THE LAWS. – REFORMS. – THE DEPOSITIES OF THE JUSTICE. – AUXILIARIES FOR JUSTICE, – REFORMS. – THE HOLDERERS OF FORCE. – AUXILIARIES FOR FORCE.
– REFORMS. – THE DIRECTORS OF OPINION, – REFORMS.

ir. | | |

Digitized by Google

Outside of metal there is no salvation. – Theocratic parasitism. – The owners. – Right to live. – The act and the idea. – The em-Phytotherapy. – France sold to foreign interests. – Balance of subsistence. – Voters, taxpayers, rentiers. – One thousand Hoarders. – Cataclysm.

I hope I have demonstrated, in the first part-light of this work, that "the religions" coalition against the human mass have embodied their hypodeistic thesis in the omnipotence of gold.

Therefore, whatever the doctrines, whatever Whatever the altars, whatever the priests, all agreed to impose on nations a a kind of universal "Eucharist" having as its essence coins, or for host THE GOLD COIN.

Woe to him who does not receive communion!

He is a heretic; he is damned! "Out of the metal,
No salvation.

The heretic of religions, now condensed
In economic theory, he's THE POOR!

4. ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

Lepers in modern societies are a hundred times more likely tomore modest than those of the Middle Ages ever were, the poor are always and everywhere systematic-were sacrificed.

Social inevitability? No; ferocity! Because of poverty is not, like illness or death, an in-firmness inseparable from human nature; it is, on the contrary, an artificial distortion of the equi-free social, vigorously desired by the organization based on parasitism.

The condemnation of the poor is, moreover, pro-announced by the God of the Catholic Gospels, in the following terms:

"To each who has, more will be given, and to him who does not have
"Nothing, not even that, will be taken from him."

This appalling formula is repeated up to five times in the New Testament (Matthew, chap. xiv, verse 12 and chap. xxv, verse 29; – Mark, chap. iv, verse 25; – Luke, chapter 11, verse 18 and chapter 19, verse 26), and the
The meaning cannot be disputed in good faith, I
I established it in the first volume (1).

Well, it's on this formula that all the laws were established; it is from this formula that the economists were able to draw inspiration from it to the point that one

(1) Pages 52 to 55.

GENESIS OF SOVEREIGNTY 5

Of them, J.-B. Say dared to say cynically: "that he
"There is no place for the poor at the banquet of the "Life. That which has rigorously spoken, society must not
"Nothing to its members."

Others, equally clear-sighted, such as Malthus and Mill, have demonstrated– the danger of population growth exceeding that of the means of subsistence, and, for All remedies have highlighted the need to "Love" the number of births.

Finally, they all united to preach the a– the mortification of the people through poverty, which is the collaborator born of the disease and leads more quickly, through the suppression of being, to the diminution mouths.

Therefore, it is understandable that the masters had {enu
the hand to any compression and that their preoccupation– tion consisted solely of consolidating what I will call it "their theocratic parasitism".

Whether he expresses himself through almsgiving, as well as the founder of Christianity wanted it (pictorially (obeyed, moreover, by all religious orders), or to means of establishing a perpetual property the actual coming of God, as Moses arranged it in benefit of the Zevites® who have preserved this tradition parasitism persists even in modern society.

imprescriptible and sovereign manial.

6. ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

And, indeed, voluntary donation or taking possession
Violent sessions are equal causes of ownership.

Social brutalities initially placed the so-truth in the possession of the land; then, when,
The metal was extracted from the very bowels of the earth.
property that is both manageable and mobile, capable of, by Thus, to represent all the others, sovereignty
It was embodied in the most precious of all: Gold.

So, in essence, there was only a substitution.
Utilities, instead of being realized through the exchange of land parcels or their products, have made using the metal embodied within it-even the value of the ground, the subsoil and the surface face.

All the laws, moreover, have enshrined the proprie and endowed it with sovereign domain rights;
Our current social foundations are the family and the property, and the only tyrant that our democracies tolerate-Rent is the owner.

But like perpetual property, that is to say the Land ownership, as it is always understood, has a of purely theocratic origin; like the theocracy is based on the deistic hypothesis; like God, a thing invisible, intangible and inert, cannot, in any way in a way, to serve as the foundation for a social structure (being good, at most, to make it shine on minds horrified by the death, a kind of mirage, reflecting, in the distance-

GENESIS OF SOVEREIGNTY 7

taints of the horizon, the blue that fades at their re(gards), the property is a simple hypothesis, devoid of
By all logical reason, PROPERTY DOES NOT EXIST.

A claim imposed by force, it is even contrary to the physical order.

In nature, indeed, everything is transformation.
Everything is exchange.

Between the plant and the soil there is a per- exchange petuel. What the plant takes in as food, it it is returned as detritus and fertilization is reciprocal.
Does this mean, therefore, that between the plant and its soil
This link exists, perpetually indissoluble, that Would man call his right to property?
No way. Carried to another soil, the plant and the new soil will continue their exchanges ct
They will fertilize each other.

Between the cloud and the earth, the exchange is the same without an indissoluble link ever having been the consequence.

But what about the climate? one might say, the climate that sustains life
the polar bear where the elephant would die; the climate did not matter Doesn't it explain an appropriation between being and the ground?

Well, what? The climate? It's the homeland! It's the homeland that the internationalists of exchange have finished by denying; for that is strange! the same ones who sing
The owner mocks the patriot.

8. ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

_ It is the climate that created the races and it is the languages, this climate of ideas, which created nations.
In the name of his right to life, man is therefore justified in saying: I want to speak this language and toto die under this sun, because elsewhere I die-Yes! His right to live being sacred, to the force that He has a duty to oppose the attack with the defense.

There is nothing comparable between the owner and the land, because,
In any case, his right to live is preserved.

In fact, property is not a principle, it is An illusion!

His very instinct is artificial: he is the result of the ingrained theocratic prejudice, in which our the brain was shaped in a certain way during an accumulation of centuries; so that, at
At first glance, the denial of its legitimacy is apparent-street as an unprecedented act of daring, if not as a
An apology for theft! However, upon closer examination,
It soon becomes apparent that, as an instinct, Property stems solely from a selfish vice.

animated, vice and ferocity all the more refined as one rises higher in the hierarchy of beings.

Sexual attraction, love, if you will, immediately expresses himself like an owner selfish: the beloved woman is property; wrong-Lucky for those who touch it! The first kiss is always

GENESIS OF SOVEREIGNTY 9

A hellish takeover! A pitiful eternity!
which is measured in years, months, and days and which disappears soon, without leaving a trace.
than a wave in the ocean.

Theocracy violated nature by creating the indissoluble marriage; that was, again, a form of sovereign property.

Like the plant and the soil, like the earth and the Naked, man and woman exchange their fertility;
But, however tender their mutual desires may be,
They are nonetheless powerless to create a perpetual property right of the woman over the man or of the man over the woman. I hasten to add that sworn faith and respect for promises are, here, exonerated and that life imprisonment itself has more than a relative sense, because it is necessarily ren-confined within the limits of human life.

Everything, therefore, in the scale of beings, from the plant, even down to man, is the negative of property, source of all sovereignty.

Man has only one possession: the thing arranged and created by his direct work; that only one Right: the right to live; he has only one way to exercise one's right: that is to exchange one's work vail.

So, after centuries of experience, having de-demonstrated the futility of the principle of property and the 1.

10. ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

for a formula that is EXCHANGE.

Instead of continuing to interpret the law of to live out of the necessity of possessing, as he did Jesus, in teaching his disciples the principle of parasitism sanctioned by this threat: "to each
"To him who has, more will be given, and to him who has nothing, even more."
"Even he will be taken away," it would be better to apply
Moses' economic theories, by removing,
However, the caste of Levites for whose benefit he had enacted them.

Having made this removal, we would find ourselves in presence of jubelias, a series of social liquidations, peaceful technically organized and which, fundamentally, were born from the need to erase, periodically, the inequalities that the multiplicity of diseases and infirmities, continued the lack of hygiene and the accumulation of all the ignorance that had been created among the Hebrew people, thus threatening the fortunes of the Levites in their essential elements.

Once this jubilee is implemented in current society, the next generation will be able to organize very well its social existence, without property;
He will simply need to exchange utilities and amortize the wear and tear on beings, so that those, reaching the period disability, have their right to live assured without to be a burden on others.

GENESIS OF SOVEREIGNTY

This means that the first thing to do is... to eliminate the odious and shocking contradiction laws punishing with death those who attempt life weaving crowns for those who suppress the means of subsistence.

And if the elimination of this injustice cannot to be obtained through the peaceful means of the jubilee Mosaic, then, in the name of the undisputed right to live by those who hinder it, the mass of oppressed people have a duty to use violence.

Now we need to come to an agreement.

The right to life is paramount and indissoluble.
attached to being; it therefore constitutes, in reality, a property, a perpetual right, a sovereignty

But this transmission, whether we like it or not note, does not realize the transfer of a right, she creates a fact: the exchange between the sexes has produced a
To be, that's all; this being does not receive the right to to live, he has it 2p50 facto.

There is no perpetual jus in perpetuum of the father over the sons: there is solidarity in their right to live. Therefore the Man's sovereignty does not originate from himself.
it only acts upon itself, and it is only in adding to that the social consequences it can generate the general law.

Now all that remains is to draft the law.

19 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

so that the right to live is written there.

Every cube of human flesh requires, in order to maintain his life, another cube of nitrogenous matter.

Science provides pre-formulas in this regard cises. Life sustained in the cube of flesh human activity manifests itself through muscular effects and intellectuals. That is to say, the electrical reaction-chemical, which modern science has not yet penetrated the mystery, but whose result she observes that we call life, manifests itself through movements two kinds of movements: the act and the idea.

The idea tends to perfect the act; because the act is a concretion, while the idea is an expansion; from which it follows that the act has only a personal effect whereas the idea has a collective influence.

The nourishment necessary for the act can be measured by cube of nitrogenous matter, that necessary for the idea
Its only measure is the idea itself.

Hence two elements of the right to live: one fixed and calculable by mathematical formulas, the other essentially variable, but that the conventions social factors can be measured by their usefulness.

Therefore, to use common terms, the law Life includes both necessities and pleasures. But Both exist only through exchange, and when I society, I understand that, in fact, the exchange is inter-

GENESIS OF SOVEREIGNTY 13

came; in reality, therefore, the right to live is the right. to exchange.

But there is no exchange between the owner sovereign in perpetuum and the one from whom he demands a perpetual royalty, by virtue of its alleged sovereign right.

On the contrary, there is an exchange when, for a For a specific use, the tool and the work are associated.

So I would understand the ground very well French divided into long-term leases for livestock simple (sharing of winnings and pearls), but without individual properties; ownership is called-right: right of use; the sovereign would be the nation in its entirety, considered as de facto owner on behalf of the community and would receive, in that capacity, as a contribution to common expenses (tax), a minimal part of what the owner demands current, constantly increasing the value of its funds.

Upon expiry of the emphyteutic lease, the improvements would therefore not benefit a family, as in England, but to their mass, the nation.

This organization allows for very regularization exactly the exchange of utilities; it ensures the ah-the difference between the act and the idea, the latter involving both personal reserves and depreciation general; that is to say, diversifying the necessary and the pleasant currently monopolized by classes of citizens.

44 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

It's hard to believe how significant the reform that I've just summarized what would simplify civil relations. and would purge the laws of the injustices they enshrine.

With it, the equitable distribution of the tax of-

would be resolved.

Those who study it in good faith will realize that, being accomplished by a law, it does not entail at a violent dispossession; it only carries out a progressive liquidation et pacific.

It's simply a matter of defining what we call Today, property. Article 544 of the Civil Code... defined: "the right to enjoy and dispose of things, of "the most absolute way... by conforming" "To the laws."

All you need to do is write:

"Property ownership is the right to enjoy French soil"
"and to dispose of movable or fungible things"
"By complying with the laws."

Every current owner of the land would receive, in exchange of his old property contracts, a emphyteutic title establishing his right to enjoy and his duty to pay to the community (the State) a contribution. This title would be transferable, by donation. or by exchange, just like the old property;

GENESIS OF SOVEREIGNTY 45

emphyteusis has no other purpose than to limit the periods, as for the number of contributions (former tax).

Except for the illusion of the word absolute property and perpetuelle of the soil, that, in the present state, death or The creditors take it upon themselves to brutally destroy, the proposed reform would not change anything regarding the enjoyment of sessions, it would only eliminate abuses.

Do we know how far abuses can go?

Here is an example, logically deduced from the principle even of absolute property; it constitutes, it is True, a reductio ad absurdum argument, but, as it is, that is more than enough to condemn the principle.

Understand that, through mortgages and purchases, stories, supported by the entire series of combinations financial, two or three Rothschilds ended up They will have Having paid for their property, they will therefore be the masters of it.

Civil Code); in short, they will be all-powerful kings.

As long as they choose to sell everything they France therefore belongs to Mr. de Bismarck, for example, I'd really like to know where an obstacle to this trans- will be found in the law Property mission?

I announced a reductio ad absurdum argument; is-
The hypothesis is so absurd that it

RE 4

46 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

Does it seem so? – Is it really so impossible? Who knows? to what extent the Jews of Alsace were able to facilitate to Germany the annexation of this part of the France? And, in this time of anonymous speculation, who So who knows what's going on? England doesn't-Didn't she acquire a large share of the Suez Canal?
Is this an isolated incident? Do we know where they are located?
all the securities of our railway companies which, through their tariffs, so surprisingly favor all Foreign businesses?

Let us beware!

In the face of a principle that applies logically and, which, in fact, can lead to such a result Strange, all French people are truly honest and sincere.
A patriotic man should not hesitate. – Peril at Outside, peril within, such are the consequences of the economic and legislative routine.

The popular masses and true science applauded
they would say to the reform of property ownership.

It is true that the entire army of attrition: the pre-Mortgage lenders and hereditary parasites would raise a huge outcry, but, precisely, they are those who provoke the cataclysm and are frightened then to see him arrive.

Let them stop being hypocritical: it is not
Not the revolution that will assassinate them, it is they themselves.
who will commit suicide.

Meanwhile, the observation of pauperism has raised concerns among the ruling classes and it is not uncommon to see their speakers or their Writers invoke the following hypothesis:

"Place," they say, "ten families in a conti-
"They will be deserted; they will divide the land between them and at the end
"In a hundred years there will be rich and poor, and..."
"Landowners and proletarians."

When they are told that they are rewriting history the ignorance of humanity, subjected to the para- they add, "theocratic ism and devoured by it." right away :

"We assume the ten families sent, ac-
"so much so, in virgin land, equipped with
"all modern progress, and founding, in a word,
"a colony under the protection of the mother country.
"Well, we maintain that laziness alone..."
"and vices will generate classifications in "Rich and poor."

The error remains; because the hypothesis admitted that the ten families took the laws and the social constitution that had poisoned their cradle; moreover, that one assumed a continent desert where travel will allow, during centuries, dispersals of a nature to delay the time at which the land grabs will take place to feel.

18 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

But it's not about knowing how we will little- to plant a deserted land; but how, on our closed continent, on our French soil surrounded by borders, we will reform the social order to ensure the right to live, the disregard of which leads to periodically bloody upheavals, pro- It evokes wars and engenders cataclysms. It is not a question of bringing about the destruction of beings in the principles of governments, but, at On the contrary, to multiply at the same time the forces that pro- duisent and the mouths that consume, by removing to the hoarders the means that the law gives them same, the means of obtaining them, at proportions incompatible with the needs of the population.

As we can see, this is precisely the opposite of the Malthus's formula, which is today the official basis of economic education.

Malthus had said: "Considering the present state of the globe in general... the human species crofitrait like the numbers 1, 2, 4, 8, 16, 32, 64, 128, 256 (that is, by doubling every 25 years), while subsistence would increase like this: 4, 2, 3, 4, 5, 7, 8, 9. At the end of Two centuries, the population would be able to afford to..."
Subsistence, like 256, is at 9."

GENESIS OF SOVEREIGNTY 19

That is to say, according to Malthus, development—the condition of the human race and that of subsistence have a walk such that, taking as point of departure { for subsistence and 1 for the population, after two centuries, approximately 28 beings would have to fight over the unit of subsistence.

Mill draws this conclusion from the preceding principles—sion: "that at some point wages will be so reduced that a portion of the population will regularly die of hunger."

To avert such a disaster, economists posed this dilemma: or to make the resources work subsistence as quickly as the population or li—to regularly count the number of births.

Let's examine this second point first:

England, despite the reported debauchery, and Germany, despite the same problem, are more pro—which is not the case for France.

Here's how they apply the theory:

Malthus: limiting the number of births to their appeared to decrease, at the same time, the number of beings within their valid period; then, to maintain the e-balance of subsistence, they favored the destruction-tion of beings, by using up their strength more quickly, so that the able-bodied who have passed away are replaced by the able-bodied newborns.

France simply applied both systems

20 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

themes; its social constitution encourages a reduction in the number of births, and its social functioning to reduce the number of forces more quickly active.

Aspirations for property and inheritance produce the first effect; the concentration of the fortunes in a small number of hands produces the second.

Contrary to previous findings, objects that in France property, far from being concentrated, is, on the contrary, extremely divided.

If this division actually existed, such as one She asserts that it would support my thesis, by explaining that the trends in ownership at the sovereignty can only favor the restoration—the nature of a monarchical government: moreover the sovereignty of metal is, in itself, 'a monarchy.

However, to prove the division of the propriety, they cite the increase in the number of Land values: there were 40,900,000 of them in 1835. and there were 14,300,000 of them in 1881. This increase—"ment" means absolutely nothing: it expresses the number of listed parcels, but not the number of their owners; the same owner pays to Various locations for various properties, that's all. The best proof I can give is the

GENESIS OF SOVEREIGNTY 21

The following comparison: in 1835, while one had 10,900,000 land records, we did not note that barely 6 million personal mobile ratings

However, it is clear that the personal rating mobility Billière contains more people who own property than

Land values; have they changed since 1835?
No, because here are the figures from 1881.

Number of land ratings 41%, 300,000
Number of personal securities quotations: 8,300,000

There's more: by comparing the increases-ments, we will be able to observe a decrease in The division of property. Here is the proof:

NUMBER NUMBER
fundamental dimensions, peripheral dimensions

Population. (sound cières-)

furniture

MILLIONS MILLIONS MILLIONS
1884 31.6 14.3 8.3
1890. 4 or at 33.5 10.9 6.0 increase: 4.1 3.4 2.3

The differences I just obtained show although the population has grown faster than the coasts real estate, which has grown faster than stock prices personal movable property; that the increase of these the latter represents, roughly, half of the ac-population growth, and this within a space 46 years old.

22 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

In the same time period, the surplus of The ratio of births to deaths is approximately 2 million.
for a total increase of 4 million 1/10, such so that the increase in personal ratingsmovable assets only balance that of births;
From this we can deduce that, in the increase of The French population, the foreign element between about half. But foreigners pay, like owners and as people, the ratings are based on tangible, personal and movable property. Therefore, there are high probability that the increase in these the odds are due more to foreigners than to the local population

Consequently, we would be in 1881 in the presence of of a significant number of French taxpayers equal to that of 1835.

Pushing the investigations further and comparing both the number of voters, the number of taxpayers for the personal property tax and the number of annuity registrations, between 1864 and In 1881, I obtained the following figures:

MILLIONS

AND,

Number Number

of voters, of taxpayers, of registered voters registered bles(coteper- tions of sonnelle- mo- rentes bile.)

1864 (average) 10.0 1.1 1.2

ESST 412 * 10.6 8.3 3.8

GENESIS OF SOVEREIGNTY 93

The number of registered voters does not vary.
possibly; but its increase is just the half of that of personal odds (600,000 for (some, 1,200,000 for others); and still, it is necessary note that the services cover more than 3 million men, and that statistics reveal that two-thirds are reduced to payments in kind. During At that time, annuity registrations had more than tripled, and it's impossible to believe that the carriers of these registrations are not voters, otherwise he We must conclude that they are mostly foreigners, this which is by no means implausible.

Furthermore, we have as a point of reference the number of registered names, which exceeds barely 4 million.

It is understood that this refers not to the units of rents, but of the number of entries recorded on the ledger, their total assuming, moreover, an average of approximately 195 francs of annuity per registration.

prevents an accurate count.

Nevertheless, by drawing a parallel between the previous figures and the total amount of the suc-taxed transfers at the same times; noting that mutations due to death, which totaled by 1.5 billion in 1835, 3 billion in 1865 and 5 million

24 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

liards in 1881, have increased by a proportion of plus dutriple (that is, 333 0/0) while, in During the same period, the number of deaths did not increase.
that from 5 0/0, we will arrive at the conclusion that, what whatever the capital gain from inheritances, 1l
It is undeniable that the figures obtained reveal a considerable concentration of public wealth.

Thus, in 1881, he died, in round numbers, 871,000 people, and the changes due to death in-they mention a value of 5 billion.

Of the 5 billion, half is in real estate:
So there is a trace to be found in the movement-land valuations. In addition, it is necessary to take into account account of the indigent, married women whose husband survives, stillborn children, children unrecognized natural elements; a distinction must also be made between urban deaths and rural deaths, between deaths from Paris and those from the provinces, and, that done, we we will find that, out of 5 billion inheritances open:

3,500 represent on average 1 million

each that is 3.5 billion
100,000 represents 10,000 francs each. That is, 1 - 106,500 vary from 3 to 5,000 francs each. That is, 0.5
200,000 inheritances representing 5 billion,

This result, which is obviously at its maximum, is...

the blatant inequality in the distribution of wealth and leads to this other result, which is what France actually does, despite its 10 million voters, is absolutely under the control of a million capitalists or proprietors, at the head of whom are Miss Acca—the latter representing, by their fortune territorial and movable property, perhaps ten times more than the total annual number of changes by death.

These are the ones who hold sovereignty.
These are the ones I called the KINGS OF THE REPUBLIC, these are the ones who are soaring high high over all acting powers.

These are the ones who, under the pretext of feeding the France, have seized all external trade laughing, having reserved for themselves, through credit, the means of starve her at will; these are the ones who push her, through the fragmentation of land, and the mobilization of ground, towards the system that lost the old empire Roman; for the transformation of all of Italy into pleasure gardens, had made her dependent on all the peoples.

From the day France, disgusted with work, devaluing austerity, seduced and softened by the promasses of the traders, will think only of living by speculation at the expense of foreigners, from that day forward

II. 2

26 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

she will walk with frightening speed towards the decadence which, for nearly eighteen centuries, had erased Italy from the map of Europe.

That is why I denounce the sovereignty of THEOCRACIAL PARASITES and that's why I want the to follow and unmask her in all her functions from the highest to the darkest.

He

The Sovereign Functions.

Triumph of the Jews. – Trinity, unity. – The deified calf. – Laws and customs. – Civil code. – Traffic. – Justice and the Pope. – Strength. – Nobles and mercenaries. – Mo- Heruism last. – Public opinion. – The struggle. – Brutality.

The sovereignty of metal grew slowly until the discovery of America.

But, since that moment, I have recounted it in the
The first volume, the Jewish quarters, which are the expression of theocratic parasitism in its instruments the most odious, marched in triumph triumph.

Despotically governed France had already I have long heard the cry "war on "iyrān" pushed by Étienne de la Boétie, in his famous Discourse on Voluntary Servitude plus _known as Against One.

The tyrant held all the power; he reigned:
his whim was the law; he ruled: his good

98° ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

pleasure made justice; it compelled: its good Pleasure guided strength.

As for the people? It mattered little what they thought.
He knew; he was forbidden to say so. But precisely
This defense enlightened him.

One of the ways to soothe suffering is to... see her say it.

The imposed silence having increased the burden of the yoke, the peoples sought to shake him off.

The kings then understood that to reign, to dominate, and to compel, vicious trinity in one person, had to take on a new form.

Since enjoying oneself had become impossible, since "against one" had served as a rallying cry,
One had to change his skin.

Faced with the people's anger, he put on a mask and It tripled. He generously relinquished the title of those which he kept.

It was then that modern society saw three shine.
separate powers, but graduated and grouped under the Synthetic words: laws, justice, force.

However, behind these words lies an army of Lyranas organized themselves into bureaucratic kings: parasites of theocracy.

On the surface, the people were being charged with governing themselves.
himself; the function was sovereign, not

SOVEREIGN FUNCTIONS 29

Man. Prestige, authority, and the royalty of the masses had accumulated on the individual, but for the time being of the function only.

Dream, in a mirage!

Theocratic parasitism in the form of God has retained sovereignty and the tyrant is remained truly ONE.

In any case, the three powers are subdivided
They were themselves and were embodied in the functions.

The positions were entrusted to men.

The army of civil servants thus appears to be... in view of the royal insignia; she acts in the name of the people and recruits from within its ranks.

Only this "breast" of the people is strangely constituted; the castes flourish there as other-times; the new rulers no longer have, it is True, the Marquis's silk ribbons, but they have the metallic embroidery on the uniform.

Do they inspire respect for their social mission?
at least ?

Alas, neither dignity nor prestige! They appeared, at
On the contrary, as if dressed in livery and, far from affirming sea, by their attitude, that they are the delegates of a humanity where the independence of the individual exists only to safeguard the interests of the masses, they put on a display of despicable vagrancy

2:

30 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

from some temple or other where a deified calf sits enthroned.

The foregoing is sufficient to indicate that the memories
Social groups had to divide themselves into divisions.

First, there are the lots.

To them, it seems, is devolved the true royalty; it is, in fact, the specialty of the form governmental called "republic" of not proto claim any supreme power other than that of the law.

Each generation, upon reaching civilian life, has found in the presence of a cluster of provisions dictated by the previous generation; also, for
To establish the starting point, should we go back in order?
centuries; and that's when we arrive, infallibly-ment, to the original decrees which are none other than the expression, supposedly revealed, of a divine will.

I have already indicated how paralysis has inspired in man what is called the idea or the cult of a God⁽¹⁾; it is therefore hardly necessary to to note here that the codified laws have not been something other than the organization of parasitism. This The organization took on various forms, following the times and according to the places; in France the will the master relied on the clergy and engendered the custom.

The whole set of customs, which one dared to call

(1) The Kings of the Republic, first volume, pages 17 to 68.

SOVEREIGN FUNCTIONS 31

"Customary law" was nothing other than the enuncure of the vicious habits of servility and proof of their penetration.

This penetration was such that the reformers, incredible taunts.

Nothing less than the great explosion was required.
revolutionary from 1789 to 1793, so that one day the
The French nation could believe it was finally endowed with a a veritable collection of social conventions, under the Civil Code name.

This Code was an immense step forward for its time.
the object of universal praise and, without considering that almost a century has passed since its creation-ration, it is claimed that he still has the last word on the organization of social progress.

This is a fatal mistake.

Codified laws and new laws, far from being freed from theocratic parasitism, they impose it in all their provisions.

However, struggles have been attempted since the beginning of this century, which saw, for the pre-For the first time, the people appointed delegates having its function is to legislate; but, alas! one cannot not to say that a spirit of progress, truly liberating chi of parasitic domination, has won a real triumph.

32 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

The making of laws, instead of being the exercise of an investiture stemming from the general interests,
It has become a cult; it is this trafficking that I am obliged to qualify as a "sovereign function" and to studydier, in that capacity.

After establishing the laws, it was necessary to entrust to men were entrusted with the task of applying them, hence the great corporation of those who dedicate themselves to the 7useice.

In theory, it was about recruiting a certain many very honest people, having no passions, no personal interest, being well acquainted with all the texts and capable of applying them fairly to those who came before them to express their grievances against each other proques.

In times of absolute power, acts of justice
These were a manifestation of the Divinity.

The king, God's representative, had as his prerogative the right to administer justice; by delegation of the king: the marquis, the count and the baron.

Above kings: the emperor; above
The emperor: the pope. He judged the disputes kings, appointed them, or deposed them, because the
The Pope was like the arm of God, in flesh and blood.

The progressive elevation of the modern spirit has destroys this privilege.

Among themselves, the kings shook off the yoke of God,
But they preserved it against the people; also, despite the revolutions, has the justice system...

SOVEREIGN FUNCTIONS 33

perpetuated in clerical routine; if the popes,
Having become servants of kings, they enslave the people to them.
the magistrates, servants of the sovereign, collaborate with him.

Hence, a double hypocrisy: justice, remaining theocratic, affects independent tendencies;
But, servile beneath her impertinence, she does not adorn herself of a majestic device that is meant to make one believe in a loyal suppression of interests or passions, before the divine investiture from which it originates,

The guardians of justice therefore come immediately directly after the lawmakers and compose the second section of sovereign functions that I will have to study.

When the legislator made the law, when the the guardian of justice applied it and when, all two, acting in the name of theocratic parasitism, want to force the people to obey him piously,
They resort to violence; hence a third section of sovereign functions, in which I will include all those who wield power.

The use of force has always been the final word of the brutal struggle, the existence of which I have observed, in the first volume of this work, at the cha-a comedy entitled "The Night of Time."

Nations, considered as individuals, have always

J4 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

needed to organize their defense against the appetites of their neighbors; but defense implies also the attack: but these two acts of brutality were exercised, in turn, by the same nations. However, the necessities of food, that is to say... that is to say, the care to be given to agriculture, have not delayed in bringing about the birth of a special—a way of fighting; hence the profession of weapons.

Without going too far back in the history of peoples, we find, in the Middle Ages, unc omplete training of men-at-arms, in the service large landowners.

It was natural for the masters to defend their serfs, that is to say their wealth.

The entire French gentry drew first his nobility in the exercise of this specialty.

In the eyes of the poor devils, who, attached to the soil, they toiled to preserve their lives, the master, who did not hesitate to expose himself to death swift and bloody, he appeared like a hero; He was so high up that the serf could not to appreciate in a healthy way how narrow the solidarity was existing ritual, for his master, between random death on the battlefield or in ruin by devastation tation of its properties.

For the people, therefore, the prince's greed...

SOVEREIGN FUNCTIONS 3

seemed completely overwhelmed by the valor of his attitude.

Later, this same people would imitate its leaders. will give rise to mercenary troops, and will show valor at the price. But the modern era only, and especially the republican era, will make known true heroism, that of the obscure soldier who, without interest and without personal fortune, he will throw himself in the thick of it when danger strikes and will risk commune.

Besides the army, for defense against external threats, it
There's the army, maintaining order inside.

Here, those who hold power are divided:
Special forces are created and if their heroism is Although less frequent in battle, it is no less abundant.
to danger.

On these two orders from those in power
I will study the influence of theocratic parasitism and I will investigate to what extent the kings of the republic find there blind worshippers of their god.

The times, justice and strength, have long was enough to govern the human masses; but, since the great dazzling effect produced by the philosophical spirit pique, in the eighteenth century, since the
The French people have risen up, on several occasions, to

36 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

to acquire one's free will and defend one's freedom, since, in short, sovereignty was denied to divine absolutism, to royal autocracy, to the the dictatorship of a coalition, was restored, in principle a guide at least, to the entire nation, a qua-The third power has risen, judge, without appeal, of the acts of the other three.

This power is called, today, public opinion.
blique.

It can be said that France invented it and that It was from France that it took off to expand its reach.
to focus on Europe and the world.

From this emerged a fourth function, souveraine and I group those who practice it under the name from: directors of public opinion.

It is on this new function that the para-Theocraticism rushed headlong with the most of relentless struggle. Here the fight is great, it matters victims and heroes, and his study will be thrilling-aunt.

*
* +

This is the organization of the four branches of sovereignties whose actions are staggered and coordinated aimed to supplant the preponderance of the brutality; unfortunately, theocratic parasitism erodes this organization, tends to destroy its equilibrium

SOVEREIGN FUNCTIONS 31

free and threatens to re-establish, definitively, the brutality in all the hideousness of its savagery.

The study of the functions themselves will demonstrate this truth. But, as these functions borrow secondary competitions, made necessary by the number of citizens and extent of jurisdictions, I Before going any further, I must say a few words about what I call auxiliary functions, which, they They are also, in reality, "sovereign".

ti. 3

II] Auxiliary Functions.

The irresponsible. – The magistrates and the legal profession. – The subordinates. dull. – Army and police. – Money changers and newspapers.

The larger the scope of sovereignty, plus those who exercise it are obliged to resort to to auxiliaries.

Therefore, everywhere, the staff is countless.

Strange thing! However, it's due to manufacturing laws that employees miss the most.

Indeed, when the list of leaders of File: Ministers, MPs and senators, we discover that the preparation of laws is, most often, the work of some department head summarizing the Ministry staff.

I will therefore have to worry about this category.
of auxiliaries, more important by strength than by the quantity.

Alas! Why must we add, immediately, that the ve-

AUXILIARY FUNCTIONS 39

Their real effective power is in their hands, well more than in those of the minister, the member of parliament or the senator, that most often the attempts to re-In form, the most intelligent ones only fail faced with the hidden agenda of a junior official-dull, from an auxiliary without public responsibility, of a simple office manager?

has

* 7

Unlike lawmakers, the custodians
the justice system has countless staff.
Lè, after listing the presidents, the judges And the prosecutors, we'll get straight to the orderlies, clerks, bailiffs, arbitrators and experts, liquidators, trustees,
to notaries, to solicitors and finally to lawyers.

It is not without intention that at the head of the memories
I placed the auxiliary rains, the servant, then that I closed the list through the lawyer.

The boy is the irresponsible direct intermediary.
and obscure between the leaders and the subordinates, and I have noted that, in functions of this kind, more
The smaller the role, the greater the power.

I will also have to explain that, in criminal matters...
In general, as in civil matters, it depends absolutely-the ability of a simple waiter to weigh, effectively

40 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

cement, on interesting solutions and fortune and the lives of citizens.

different; the major divisions of power, according to whether these concern the exterior or the interior, summarized in the general and the prefect; they have all responsibility and all the honors; they deserve them— They often try, but they usually absorb more
What a reasonable outcome, the result of good deeds which The accomplishment belongs to the officer, to the soldier.
to the commissioner or the officer.

The influence of theocratic parasitism on these different auxiliary functions are among the most curious to study and the priest-kings of the god Gold direct their the most cynical attacks.

*
* #

However, this will be nothing yet, and when I arrive—
I will see to the assistants of the opinion directors, when, after examining the journalist and the ora—
As a lawyer, I will research how landlords are recruited.
their funds from written propaganda and pro—Pagans spoken, I will have to report the trafficking

AUXILIARY FUNCTIONS Ai

the most terrifying, the most shameless and the most savage banditry.

And then we will understand how it can happen that laws, justice and force, distorted in their essence meaning, diverted from their natural purpose, regimented, fatally, under mysterious orders of the Moloch-Baal of the Jews, constantly upsetting all the healthiest aspirations of The honest man who works, throws despair in his soul and foment the revolutions which devour humanity.

Digitized by Google

IV

The Lawmakers.

Desires. – Moses and Justinian. – The popes sanctifying the Perpetual annuities. – Pawnshops. – Falsehood of law, –
Doctors. – Financiers. – Hypnotism. – News

Mortgage. – Imprisonment for debt. – Divorce. – Redemption of Railways. – Transactions. – Anonymity. – Morality modern.

The Deputy. – Provincial and Parisian. – Solicitor. – Old monk. – Man and the idea. – Palinodics. – Financial scandals cers.

THE SENATOR. – Invalid. – Academician. – Reactionary. –

Cabinet rescuer. – A blank report. – compromise-financial issues.

The minister. – Enrichment. – Laughingstock of the offices. – Serf of
The upper echelon. – The guardian of the seraglio.

These are the legislative functions; they consist of both to monitor the old laws and to to provoke new developments, either from the point of view of general principles, or from the point of view of the facts individuals.

Therefore, two duties are imposed on these functions–

41 ETIOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS naires: vigilance to improve and solicitude to create.

Alas! if I examine both the quantity and the quality–
the nature of the changes introduced into the legislation Since the beginning of this century, here I am discovers only a frightening persistence in maintain the theocratic principles of the codes past and a dangerous eagerness to promote, by new provisions, all the covetousness of individual interests.

Nowhere do I see a revealing clue– among legislators, a notion of transformations social interactions.

The old Roman law still dominates the legislation and, remarkably, the only exceptions that were introduced there were either borrowed to the Israelite Bibles, or to the Catholic Bibles.

I will first give an example taken from the subject matter purely financial, that is to say in what appears to be furthest removed from the precepts of pious morality which is believed to be the specialty of religious dogmas. Here it is:

In Roman law, lending at interest was permitted; the _ the Law of the Twelve Tables had fixed the rate at 12 0/0. The subject of numerous complaints, interest was prohibited. reinstated, modified by successive laws.

Jusünien had the singular idea of setting rates

THE LAW MAKERS A5

various, according to the quality of the people: the people illustrious figures could borrow at 40/0, the merchants cants at 8 0/0 and all other citizens at 6 0/0.

I'm drawing attention to this bizarre system because

I'll come back to that later.

_ Now, at the time when France was under the complete domination of the Church and where the Jews were not In favor of this, lending at interest was prohibited by ordinance. royal finances and in particular by the declaration of Philip the Fair at Poissy, in 1302, then by the ordinance- Nancy of Blois.

Hence, great commotion among the Catholic capitalists liques, because, according to the Gospel, lending at interest was to commit a sin.

But this good Mr. Tartuffe, who, for not having not yet sung by Molière, did not exist less in all its splendor, suggested the ingenious Next idea:

You shouldn't lend it out, you should sell 1 liter.

"He is in league with the heavens."

First and foremost, let's get rid of sin!

Let the borrower become the seller and declare that he sells 5 francs of perpetual annuities to a certain The price is negotiable; but, of course, with rights of redemption, at any time (the right of redemption is (The Jewish Jubilee, see Volume One, page 38). From 3.

46 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

At that point, it was no longer the prefecture defended by the Church. It was a sale with right of redemption.

"Who wants a 5-franc annuity?" said the borrower. fake seller.

– Me, replied a pseudo-buyer lender. I'll buy it from you for 50 francs.

And the deal was done.

And the gentleman, who gave 50 francs from an annuity of 5 francs was not a 10% lender! Oh no! Great! Jehovah! He was the buyer of an established annuity. with the option to repurchase. That's all! It must be believed that the pious people who had borrowed at 10%, they had, afterwards, a scruple of conscience, for good priests wondered if the matter "was lawful." The Pope was consulted and, at 32 years later, Pope Martin V, by his bull of 1423, and subsequently, Pope Callixtus II, by his bull of 1455, ahead of Loyola, reassured the lenders bold and timid borrowers, by declaring perfectly safe, the annuity schemes that I have just described; thus they became of use general. And that's how the Catholic popes have fostered the emergence of PERPETUAL ANNUITIES, including Modern governments make such good use of it.

On this point, the Catholic code had triumphed. struggling with subtlety in relation to the Israelite code; this one soon took his revenge in concert with the old man

LAWMAKERS 47

Roman law and, in 1789, lending at interest, until then outlawed, he was reinstated, so that he then penetrated, under number 1905, in the Civil Code today in force.

They went even further: just like the emperor Justinian, our legislators created a rate for traders and a rate for individuals; They did not, it is true, dare to favor a rate especially the "illustrious people", but everyone knows that in fact our high and illustrious bank Get money very cheaply, to lend it out then very dearly. As for the poor, the mountains- They lend their piety at 10 and 15 0/0.

So I was right to assert that our codes had drawn inspiration from all the Bibles and had distilled all the Jewish secrets, to put them under the service of theocratic parasitism. Also the Escobar-Derries met there so often that the the science of law, which has itself become a true religion, had its priests qualified as legal experts, and its schisms, including a kind of council, called the Court the Court of Cassation, infallible like the Pope, seeks constantly erasing disparities, by manufacturing a body of doctrines qualified as jurisprudence.

However, this case law is nothing else. than a mask adjusted, after the fact, to the deformities many of all our laws: fitting together with deformities, the mask itself became deformed; so much so that one cannot imagine how much inequities, misconceptions, and implausibilities and foolishness.

48 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

*
* +

It therefore seems that, in order to improve our legislation-lation, it is necessary to choose the representations many in the country, not only among the most enlightened, but, again, among the most independent, that is to say- to say, among those who, having seen up close all the errors and all deformities, they never wanted to bow down before them and accept them as dogma.

That's not the case at all, and it's purely by chance. the intrigue that brings the names of the elected officials out of the ballot box.

They thought they were doing the right thing by choosing solicitors, lawyers, notaries; but precisely these men, living off right and having established their budget on vices and the deformities in the legislation, have no desire to eliminate the causes of their benefits nueles.

They would need a dose of generosity and a nobility of spirit that the profession quickly stifles in them.

I will explain further below, when I deal with the auxiliaries, how the intelligence of the lawyers is invincibly depressed and the rectitude of their inevitably flawed judgment.

LAW MAKERS A9

Apart from the legion of legal professionals, the legislators
The staff are still recruited from among former magistrates traits tainted by the same defects; among officials, steeped in administrative routine administrative, they do not want to leave because This routine is the reason for their functions.
tions.

Legislators are also recruited from among the big owners, those are judged; then among the merchants and industrialists; there would be a breeding ground for useful innovations or reforms; by Unfortunately, those that are waved around almost never have one general character and the struggles they engender have, as their original brand, combinations of shop.

Here and there, one finds a few professors, what-priests of different faiths; finally, we find a fairly large number of doctors.

Those who study nature, which is reality, have the more straightforward than those studying religion, which is the fictional; a kind of expert on the human body, renowned psychologists and, certainly, dissectors, they seem-at first glance, they therefore appeared to need to possess the the most serious skills in diagnosing social wounds, caused or neglected by the legislationlation.

Some, it is true, have not deceived this Waiting, but why are there so few?

The method of election favored the rise of illustrations of the bell tower; however, it is unfortunate-
It is quite true that scientific depth and broad-
The number of views decreases in direct proportion to the distance from the place where the government is located; of
There are shortcomings and exaggerations, the point of which is the starting point was, almost always, found between the presbytery and town hall.

Hovering over these various categories teeming the legislative candidates, small in number, ter-Riddled by its strength, the sect of financiers appears.

These people are almost always profoundly ignorant.
and of immeasurable vanity, embody the avi-injustice, greed, and corruption.

The most foolish among them buy, brutallytheir college; those who want to appear learned
They call themselves economists.

Under this name they pretend to speak
a bizarre jargon, deliberately obscure, incomprehensible-Understandable in fact, but very loud in its words:
all the more audible because there is always, at the bottom of their words, the clinking of a gold coin.

The few speakers in this group are from

LAWMAKERS 51

true sleep-inducers; skilled acrobats at juggling
With the numbers, they overwhelm their audience and When he no longer understands, he calls himself naivevement: "Ga, it's in the public interest!"

Then, in his half-sleep, he thinks he glimpses, at the celebrant's fingertip, the yellow host of Moloch-Baal, the mystery of the gold coin; sleep
With that help, the room sparkles like a diamond and, Hypnotism arrives. Suddenly, a jolt shakes the sleeper; it is the end of the speech and the

Baal! |

This victory is commonplace for the financial speaker;
she always broadened the gaze of the mass of listeners.

To be a financier! To get involved in a financial business!
to sign attendance tokens in many places!
to be in the know about major stock market deals!
What a dream!

Immediately, very quietly, confessors, lawyers, notaries, former judges, former prefects, professors, priests of any kind, and even doctors,
It's all bubbling over.

All this is causing a fever and all this is being said only at Alongside the billions of the state, there are the millions of public limited companies.

And then, go and talk to them about the big ones.

52 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

social reforms, go tell them that not everything is not for the best, in the best of pos- codes Able, you'll see how you're received!

Ah! If it's a question of creating a bank and if, by by chance, the existing laws made the mistake to conceal an obstacle? We'll reform quickly; the old mortgage procedures, perfect and solemn yesterday,
Are they preventing a dance of millions? Immediately...
He observes them to be rotten and ridiculous. In the name of Progress, down with routine!

And quickly the old code is rejuvenated!

A long-standing abuse, imprisonment for debt, which had withstood centuries of complaints, he threatens.
to populate Clichy with all the government's pimps government in office (I have sufficiently designated the Empire)? Quickly, in the name of humanity, we reform
The Code and the abuse disappear like a dream.

I would never finish if I wanted to list the modifications dictated by hidden interests, who, nevertheless, put an end, by chance! to abuses and injustices.

I'll skip over the divorce, which, responding to a public need, no serious difficulties were found as regards the division of property between husband.

Because, let's face it, sexually, everyone admitted to the divorce.

LAWMAKERS 53

But, from a financial point of view, corn with regard to the change that divorce brings to Ja real-the sation of "expectations," a pretty word concealing the Greed to inherit, all interests were on high alert.

The scrupulous, the devout, those who had the hythe hypocrisy of invoking dogma, even in not practicing when not, had not, in the end, I hold it to certain, other terror than that of losing a coveted inheritance.

As a husband, one throws the wife out, but,
As a father, one reserves one's rights to the fortunes.
Coming soon.

However, financially, divorce alone deprives the spouses, not the separation: |

Let us leave these ignoble calculations to the hypocrites who, marriage traffickers, have prepared in advance the scandals within their own ranks.

Let us hasten to traverse history, neglecting the petty acts of pettiness, to arrive at the big one infamy of that era, the one we knew best to cover with the mask of general interests, by envi-ronnant of all the Jesuitical PAR sE of the economic jargon:

THE RAILWAY REGIME.

For a time, the republican chambers
Caines had unanimously and loudly proclaimed that he
It was necessary to put an end to the despotism of the Companies.

54 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

to restore to the State, that is to say to the nation, rights that a coalition of hoarders, led by the Empire, had odiously confiscated.

For months, the echoes of our palaces subdued Verains had resounded with the most convincing, the clearest and best studied in in favor of the buyout; members of parliament and even senators had gone to war!

What! It was staring us in the face!

The iron-grooved roads where you can go faster, like roads with simple stone paving where the
The course is tougher, just like the canals, these automated roads, like paved streets, macadamized or wooded, were a property essentially national!

In writing this last word, I must say, all of next, to the Jesuits of the law, who will contest my expression of national ownership, that the street managed by the municipality, the road or the canal, subject to department, are classified only by delegate-national tion: that in short, an autonomous nation, as France is, has its own means of communication communication, directly or through intermediaries, but always fully, and that the names administrative changes make absolutely nothing
By the way.

LAWMAKERS 39

Therefore, the French nation owns all its ways.

One day, we conceived the strange idea of choosing the better, to perfect them through the railway system, and to say to a coalition of men: You will reign
On these paths, no one will escape your power, all of France will pay you the tithe and, by this medium, you will concentrate all the public wealth.

A simple comparison:

What would become of the mayor of the humblest commune, if it gave, to a society, the right of high and of low perception in the public square and on the planted trees, placed benches and bordered the Sidewalks?

Obviously, initially he was booed excessively, he would shamefully expelled from his municipality, otherwise recognized-Produced with blows from sticks!

Well, something a mayor would never have dared to do,
Two sovereigns were found to accomplish it!

Some twenty-five years later, a republic
She wakes up; she observes the spoliation and declares... high, through its agents, that it will to put an end to it.

So, a strange phenomenon! Discussions arose... wind; speakers and writers, economists at

56 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

at full tilt, without shame in contradicting themselves at short notice valley, they suddenly discover a pile of rubble impossibilities and tear from the dust case the old economic principles of the large science.

Have the bandits confiscated the nation's property?
It would be immoral to take it back from them; and as, given in that milieu, immorality was not yet an ar-
This is a fairly topical argument, the economists added,
Suddenly, how ruinous that would be for the country!

Many senators were already crying over
The economic disorganization of France!

But all the MPs had promised a way railways to their constituents; no railway, no of re-election; that was the main argument in favor of the takeover, because the companies were not showing points willing to build the mass of the small electoral pathways.

The most serious thing is that, in reality, accomplishing the buyout without paralyzing the financial feudalism regnante, it was exposing the country to a terrifying crisistable. And to take all paths without carrying out the buyout also led to imminent ruin.

Ultimately, what did the crisis and the ruin matter?

Through an extraordinary phenomenon, our elected officials...
Verains arrived, curtailing their pretension

2

LAWMAKERS 57

First, to get the companies to accept it fairly railways to save face,
And so, we witnessed the great rout of the principles, to the great campaign against opportunism from the acquisition to the most unprecedented consolidation of Ja financial feudalism, and all of this in the form, simple, seemingly, new conventions with the companies.

The deputies, for a small fee, have obtained a travel pass; the senators have applauded and the Republican parliament, just like

The Empire had done it, and sold France to the priests. of Moloch-Baal.

*
x *

How was this possible?

The thing is quite simple: a prescription and a laws, purportedly in the public interest, had everything pre-ready, from the very beginning.

The decree was authored by: the king of speculation which, in 1831, created the anonymity of the bearer title.

The law is owed to the Empire and its legislators who,
In 1867, they added anonymity to the anonymity of the title of the association.

All the demoralizations of our time de-flow from these two anonymities.

People who would have thought they were falling from grace simply by being seen behind a financial counter, threw themselves at body lost in all the tinkering.

The old nobles and the new ones, the upstarts those of yesterday and those of today communed under the same species, at the altar of Moloch-Baal; under pre-credit text, they seized all the the nation's vital forces and, under scientific- formulas In their technical ways, they organized labor servitude at their expense. exclusive profit.

From then on, a whole world of abusers and pimps emerged. recruited, powerfully combining anonymous flights names with nameless fortunes; and I shall be reduced to it to explain, further on, why it is necessary to attribute to the law of 1867, on public limited companies, defaults growing spears that have fallen even on the sacred phalanx of guardians of justice.

In fact, modern morality rests entirely based on this strange principle: anything goes, provided that we don't know.

For a time, the case law had added: damn what the law does not defend is pernicious.

But, little by little, the legislators have let passing the passes through the defenses, and the case law, imitating and aggravating this error, in turn favored the most extraordinary.

I am obliged to limit my observations here, because, before verifying them through the study of the depositories of Justice, I must go through the list of the highest functions that revolve around the manufacturing of laws.

LAWMAKERS 59

THE MP.

Is there a citizen in France who, by putting himself forward for election of the country?

I would not want to explicitly endorse the negative-live, not having been aware of the intentions; but what I can affirm, having knowledge of the facts, that the a patriotic member of parliament, solely inspired by the desire to reform All social ills are still in the realm of myth.

Generally, the provincial deputy arrives in Paris with the firm intention of obtaining, for his constituency, all the possible advantages; to obey, if possible, all the clauses of his program; to land a portfolio, if he feels the necessary composure; or, at the very least, to maneuver so that it perpetuates itself in its seat in a series of re-elections.

From the neighboring constituency, from the neighboring department, from the the entire country, he is careful not to worry about it in advance; that will come. In due course.

Once inside the legislative palace, he forms relationships; he takes on, as they say, the air of the office; then, when it has sufficed—had learned the art of being appropriate in the corridors, at the Whether at the refreshment stand or in his seat, he feels around the commissions and surround the ministers.

Then begins the siege of demands; the ministers, knowing that the provinces make up the numbers, grant them, generally, more favors; also, apart from the elected officials who have a label far too hostile to the established government, the Is the majority recruited from among those who, of undecided political leaning, can be described as unofficial without too much scandal.

60 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

This is how the vast majority of voters are formed. people generally silent, but assiduous in voting for the mid-minister who has listened or will listen favorably to their requests elections.

When the minister agreed, he said he could no longer agree. Moreover, it is worn out. At the first opportunity, and regarding of a question, a bit broad in its wording, but whose Voters never know the substance of the matter, they will vote against him and the public will witness, with astonishment, a so-called "mid-nislerial.

New ministry, new assault, because of the requests

New ministerial wear and tear, new random question containing jarring words; new reversal, New crisis, and so on.

And that's how, over the past four years, we've used up seven ministères, the one that lasted longer having lasted eighteen months, From this we can conclude that this ministry, which fell in March 1885, likely had to grant the most favors.

Indeed, this is what emerges from certain reported facts. and noted, in particular, on the complaint of the deputies from Paris.

The deputy from Paris is a unique individual; it is not specified— It is necessary that his electoral college be in Paris; it suffices that, through his relationships and frequent stays, he acquired this which is called "the Parisian foot".

Moreover, the Parisian deputy readily presents himself in all the colleges in France; it's still the Parisian deputy who most often takes the floor (the big talkers, even those elected in the provinces, belong to the Parisian type); He is the one who organizes the oppositions and who, ordinarily, shifts the majorities

He is extreme in every way:

LAWMAKERS 61

Either skeptical and pleasure-seeking, or austere and convinced.

This last category is rare, often ridiculed, and it happens, Indeed, conviction and austerity are worthwhile to those who dare to practice them, the epithets of pontiffs or old monks.

When, by chance, a conviction develops at the tribune, in opposition to the ideas of a certain majority, The generator can only be guaranteed in advance once it has been lowered. It will be welcomed, in the corridors or at the refreshment stand, by this question:

— But what's gotten into you? What the hell is bothering you? So, why are you doing this?

If the MP thus questioned is jaded, he will respond transmuting:

— Ah! my dear fellow, I spoke for my constituents.

To be re-elected, that's all.

If, on the other hand, the MP is a believer, he will seek to accentuate his attitude and, then: if he is young, we will call him dreamer or utopian; if his age and appearance inspire respect, People will whisper, in hushed tones: He's ambitious.

It does not occur to him that, without a personal motive, a the country's representative goes to some lengths to sup- reward abuses and push for progress.

With such an arrangement, it is, so to speak, impossible- It is possible to see a meeting of MPs become passionate about a idea.

A high-ranking socialist deserves to give me RSA one day, to my great delight. Confusion, I admit:

– Don't be fooled, the yeahs are passionate about a man, never for an idea.

Crowd or assembly seems to me to be one and the same, and the story quo- Tidiane of the Chamber of Deputies justifies, singularly, this strange opinion.

But, if this is so, and if it can never be otherwise- This is yet another clear sign of the depression of the

LL 4

62 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

Brain in denial, warped for centuries by habit of religious worship.

To be passionate about a man, a statue in the flesh, resembles strong in the idolatry of a marble statue; idolatry is a worship; every worship implies a clergy, every clergy presupposes a caste or a selection or a coalition.

It is still theocracy, and consequently, parasitism.

Does this mean that one cannot find, in France, a Excitement for an idea? Must the idea, then, be embodied? nating in a man, creates a clientele of which he will be the servant?

But this leads us straight to the monarchy, and that is the

In any case, this appalling theory, whose application-tion is observed, explains, abundantly the votes con-milking majorities applauding, in this case, the same acts that they have condemned in others. This is for the man they vote for the current situation and not for the proposed idea.

*
SS +

I don't intend to focus on personalities here, but I I cannot help but point out the strange disturbance of the moral sense of a certain member of parliament who spoke, during several years, on the budgetary situation and which, depending on that The ministers in office were either friends of his or not, he found.
in turn, the wonderful budgetary situation in 1879 and 1880; deplorable in 1881 and 1882, excellent in 1883, deplo-reliable in 1884 and very reassuring in 1885.

This shameful about-face is all the more astonishing given that the
The MP in question has always been a member of the Commission of the budget and always knew that annually the situation becomes
It is becoming increasingly serious.

==

LAWMAKERS 63

* SS

When, for one reason or another, the MP is tired of going through election periods, or afraid of
If he is not re-elected, he transforms his ambition and seeks to deto become a senator

In the Senate, we're quite peaceful, we're less exposed to voter solicitations and we run the chance of being added to a ministry that needs to have a foot in both rooms.

Faced with these aspirations, the MP becomes moderate.
affects the airs of a conscripted father and, often, it is to him having arrived, while still in the chamber, to defend the budgetary prerogatives sought by the Senate.

Either they feel the electrified ground tremble beneath their feet total, or that their personal fortune seems insufficient to them health to satisfy their appetites, or, finally, that the same Because it hinders their ambition, they aspire to another kind of senate and throw themselves headlong into financial affairs.

How many have I seen in the last fifteen years, climbing the peaks? steep and disappearing into an abyss |

For, from time to time, a chasm is opened by the magistrature, and it must be acknowledged that these are not always Neither the most reckless nor the most criminal are thrown Down.

Generally, it's the small fry that get caught; the more da- The few remain glued to their seats and it seems that the few The scandals made public have the sole purpose of creating illusions. that those who are unattacked are truly unattackable.

Alas! I could say so much more about this chapter if I wanted to quote Names!

But why bother?

The problem lies primarily in the social organization that ensures the triumph of theocratic parasitism. This is Moloch-Baal. that must be crushed, because deleting the idol is much simpler and more practical than decimating his worshippers.

64 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

THE SENATOR.

In theory, the Senate should be nothing more than a a sort of council of elders, an assembly of seasoned people to the practice of public affairs and having no other party taken as their own, based on their old experience.

The idea of irremovability, generous in a sense, had a disadvantage stemming from humanity's fatal march; it me- the plan was to transform the Senate palace into a home for the disabled.

It had become necessary to infuse new blood into the old institution and, for this purpose, several modifications have were introduced, but not without some trial and error.

Currently, the aspiring senator is well aware that the
The Senate is not the final rest, unless it is accompanied by... a retirement pension, and this circumstance gave to his aspirations a more adventurous character.

Between the dangers of decrepitude and those of the spirit of adventure
In practice, a middle ground could not be found; so that, by its very constitution dictates that the senator is destined to disappear.

This will not happen without difficulty and struggle.

The senator is, ordinarily, a worn-out statesman, a elderly general, an award-winning magistrate, a large landowner lovers of the past and mad about conservatism; more rarely a great scholar, and even more rarely a great illustrator-tion of letters; in short, the defectors from universal suffrage, that is to say, all those who exile themselves from the progressive movement, easily vie for a seat in the Senate.

The senator, who did not first go through the Chamber of the deputies, he makes little noise about himself and he himself speaks little;

LAWMAKERS 65

seat, however, by affecting a certain pretension to I do not
I know what superiority is more or less justified.

Full of prejudices, steeped in clerical traditions, he has all the trouble in the world not to constantly break down visor in the Chamber of Deputies.

The senator, in his seat, has only three passions: his pre-financial responsibilities, respect for the Concordat and traditions of government.

If he has any energy left, it's to save the ministries; in that he is seeking revenge for not being able to overthrow them.
– The rest matters little to him.

He is, in fact, completely indifferent to the interests of the citizens.
that he is not afraid to resort to shameful deceptions to escape the severe blame that would be inflicted upon him if one managed to realize the enormity of his indifference.

Here is the proof:

A bill, passed by the Chamber of Deputies, had regulated the relations of the railway companies with their Commissioned agents. All that was missing was the sanction.

In 1882 a senator from the Oise department had been tasked with writing the report. For three years, he kept it in wallet.

However, on June 26, 1885, the Official Journal finally announced the submission of this famous report and, although it was a little late, It was hoped that a solution would be found before the end of the session. Pure illusion!

The days go by and the session ends without any result. So we worry, we search, and we discover that the The rapporteur had handed the President of the Senate a simple sheet of paper of white paper.

Thus all those concerned – and there are many – se- Senate members and the Official Journal itself have been deceived by the sham deposit made by this strange sena- teur. This Jesuit had to contend with the overcrowding of the popes-

4.

66 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

he made it seem as if he had done his job; but if, at the first moment, he was able to mislead just- As for the President, what can be said of his silence? – In In all cases, the duration of his error implies negligence. guilty; and if I say negligence, it is simply because I have not to write the word complicity.

The example I just gave may seem strange, to At first glance; deep down, there's nothing surprising about it.

The bill submitted to the Senate was very unpleasant to the companies. The rapporteur was at the same time a sena- engineer and engineer; it is important to know that the corps of engineers is divided into two camps, one devoted and the other hostile to companies.

It goes without saying that the senator, whose story I have just told the great feat, was not hostile, otherwise the sheet of The paper handed to the President was not blank.

However, the considerable leisure time that the Senate allows its members, allow them to delve deeper into the advantages that they offer to idle the boards of directors of public limited companies. Despite the ridicule heaped upon the council of elders, he is certain that:

Being a senator doesn't make one any less of a man.

So man uses his freedom and, in the meantime, he begins to sponsoring large and small financial companies; in the large, he incurs, in a way, the obligation to defend to the Senate, all the encroachments of feudalism (we come to see how) and he boasts about it; in the small ones, he covers His name has given rise to a host of more or less avowable speculations and he compromises himself shamelessly.

Indeed, just like the deputy, the senator had some— Sometimes, if I were to be subjected to legal intervention, I could... even, give quite a few examples.

However, much less than the deputy, he finds himself involved in minor scandals of Parisian life; he reigns less in Paris than in the provinces; it goes from the Senate to the Institute and from the Institute to board of directors.

LAWMAKERS 67

In short, there is more pomp than action in him; little—to be more meritorious than useful and, ultimately, less repugnant republic rather than monarchy.

For those who are subject to election and whose mandate is renewable, the election campaign is extremely easy; the The college of delegates, few in number, has the kindness to move; the program is generally simple: the base The main point is, almost always, the assertion, that is, the denial of the very existence of the Senate.

Less inclined to petition ministers than a member of parliament, The senator confines himself to a few postscripts; that is why the ministers are almost always assured of being supported by the senate.

I would add, in closing, that I will not, here, make any personal— ality, for the same reason I expressed with regard to the deputies.

THE MINISTER.

This one is, almost always, either an open-minded or ambitious person.

Essentially, it is the expression of the majority and today his slave.

Exposed to making many enemies, he has, in some way, the obligation to prepare oneself, for the day of one's fall, a fortified asylum in which he could defend himself against rancunes, under the all-powerful protection of gold.

The minister is usually rich when he takes power. see; more generally, it is very rich when it comes out.

High-ranking officials in power are rare, very rare.

68 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

who, during their tenure, saw their fortunes diminish; Those who have entered, poor and almost impossible to find, and The poor have come out.

From the perspective of lawmaking, the minister does not do almost nothing by himself; he has, for this task, a legion of office managers, whose only concern is rather than misleading him.

Placed, overnight, at the head of administrations complex, of which it is impossible for him to know all the within the system, he is forced to rely on subordinates. data.

He rarely takes the initiative for general legislative reforms. complaints, except those related to the budget and its department.

We count those who, having come to power, took advantage of it to implement a social reform plan; some gave substance to and sanctioned some innovations special, but they soon saw, even when successful, in what a peculiar way their work has been mistreated.

In the presence of the deliberative bodies, I have already said this under a In other words, it is not an idea that triumphs, or that is combatue, it is a man who is supported or overthrown, followed before the cases.

Most often, and this is a strange phenomenon, the ministers Those in power are induced to do precisely the opposite of this that they had announced, being either members of parliament or senators.

Where does this phenomenon originate?

There is a big difference between the elected representative and the same elected official who became a minister.

In his new job, he is put in possession of a certain number of secrets, the existence of which he had not suspected, at least in terms of their severity or their power immediate.

A ministry's primary concern has always been to secure the support of the major banks.

LAWMAKERS 69

The French economic system is so stupid that if a ministry is praised for a large decrease in public funds in the country's main markets, it is, so to speak, Discredited from day one.

The big bank, which can do what it wants, in such a way matter, never fails to give what it calls for: a warning, to those about whom it is not certain. That is how it is that she killed the ministry which was designated by the name of great; that is how she proceeded, on many occasions, to provoke crises that have become social and, then, revolutionaries.

Whether it involves long-distance expeditions or commercial exchanges commercial, industrial work and even religious issues gieuuses, every ministry with its eye fixed on the Stock Exchange.

The French people are so ignorant that, in the During moments of ministerial crisis, he questions the movement state funds to determine if the solution to the crisis is good or bad,

The gang of theocratic parasites knows this, they know it abuses it excessively, and that's why the ministries that are Those responsible for events they did not cause tremble incessantly before Moloch-Baal, who devours them without mercy despite their submission, because its voracity is immense and that he will not be satisfied until he has devoured the entire people entire.

A sad sovereign function indeed! Isn't it? That of these

They are carrying weapons!

Poor lawmakers! Poor gatekeepers!

V

Auxiliaries for the laws.

Bureaucrats. – Grumpy servants. – Exchange of kennels.
The pelute. – The bourgeois.

Each minister who, either through the initiative of the speaker-commentary, either through government initiative, or, Finally, on his own initiative, he is tasked with the e-amendment or control of a bill, recourse to the staff of his ministry.

Taken as a whole, this staff can be divided into two main categories: archivists and editors.

Regardless of the name we thought duty to perform its functions, this staff has to the mission of summarizing the files, that is to say gather all relevant legislative documents to the proposed law, and to prepare, either the drafts, i.e., text modifications.

The editors have, so to speak, a job

LAWMAKERS 71

modest; but the archivists look down on him towards all new developments and with all their authors and, if the former readily mock the re-of the actions that are transmitted to them, the latter do not They don't hesitate to call everyone ignorant. who are not them.

The worst part is, they're not always wrong.

The staff of all ministries, like that from all state administrations, is recruited, computer-pairing, among young people to whom one imposes to demonstrate their ability, or at the very least,

the commentary on these proofs equals or even surpasses those that the nation completely neglects to demand to those whom it makes its legislators.

As a result, these auxiliaries, after having passed a few years in offices, added to their entrance diploma, taken only as a certificate studies, a dose of experience that practice only one can give.

On the other hand, as the salaries are always weak, the advance very slow and absolute-limited to a subordinate service – for he is without for example, that a simple civilian employee is never de- He came to be a minister, through hierarchical channels – he arrives that the needs of existence take precedence extreme sensitivity in their entire attitude, so much so that

792 ETHOLOGY SYNTUESS

Their undeniable science takes on an envious air. and servile, which ultimately makes them domes-grumpy ticks.

For the leaders, who are called directors, and for all those they represent, such as a minister, such as a member of parliament, or such a senator is nothing more than a gentleman completely ignorant of where one can find the back-sier 3824 and unable to discover the Z box, series 12, 30° radius.

And that's it! They're ignorant, and if they find a way, without being "caught", to do to make a blunder in front of the minister during parliament Lies, rest assured they will never leave any miss the opportunity.

This opportunity presented itself often, not only-for about fifteen years, but still, under the previous ministries; nevertheless, as, under the pretext of political opinion (and, in reality, to because of the need felt by the newly elected officials (to house their clientele), there has been, since that same fifteen-year period, many changes within government departments, these have, more than never, made their tyranny felt by putting in their work is incredibly slow, leaving dangerous gaps remain in the files

reuses,
After which we saw these peculiar French people

LAWMAKERS 13

rubbing their hands together joyfully at the thought that they have their leader was a bit "stuck in there," without them having took care that at the same time they had "stuffed in" in their own country.

Yes, there are bills that have been sitting idle for some time. years and even entire legislatures in the boxes belonging to a simple office manager; there are others which came out of the same boxes so strangely dressed up, they couldn't bear the discussion public.

The same spirit of teasing, which I point out offices for legislators, exists from ministry to mid-Ministry.

Leaders exchange information for months. communications having no other purpose than reciprocity of "niches".

How many have I seen sending a file back to a colleague, without frankly pointing out a shortcoming (often intentional itself) and laughing, in their beards, when the office boy left with the wallet, adding:

– "Too bad for him! He'll look for it."

He will search! And, meanwhile, a widow who Claiming his pension will see his children die from farming.

He will search! And in the meantime, a treaty of The most urgent trade will suffer months of re-

It will be late and will ruin twenty or thirty industries. he

714 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

He will search! And, meanwhile, a column of 2,000 or 3,000 men, in a dangerous march

And when, later, history seeks to... in turn, behind the minister having covered up similar acts, the name of the Almighty who has, thus, suspended
She will find nothing in the government of a country.

I found your name, I, the servant who plays the "king",
You're nothing but a wretch!

So far, I have not dealt with any baseness.
even bigger.

The need to move forward and increase appointments ments, had been enough to engender the spirit of service-lism, going so far, I attest, Balzac! to the point of sully-ing the marital home.

The skepticism that I observed in the functions legislative elections, he added the spirit of trafficking; also, the Have staff changes affected the old domesticity of a new corruption.

The senior employee, threatened, like a simple minister, of losing his portfolio, and not having, Behind him, only a retirement pension, often random, seeks, as they say, to "do his "Peel".

LAWMAKERS 15

Let us judge what a pa- can produce reille disposition, in front of thousands of projects of laws of particular interest that are being developed, annually-lying, not to mention the mass of those who are included under the general heading of Laws budgetary.

This is where maneuvers are best practiced.
underground dwellings of the priests of Moloch-Baal; it is there that the parasites of the gold theocracy, of which I have I have drawn and will draw the monographs, they manifest their omnipotence.

Examples abound, and an entire volume would not suffice.
would not be enough to exhaust the story (1).

But, alas! what can become of them in such a middle class, the sons of bourgeois families who, in their families, have already seen adulterated wine or counterfeit weights round off their sister's dowry and pay for their own exams;

learned how a conventional justice system has super-planted eternal equity; which, at last, see triumph constantly around them and above them the the most cynical audacity?

(1) Yes, indeed! for I have deliberately omitted the "pelits attachés", a new kind of ministerial parasite, who thereby undermine the hierarchy and block the path of the elders civil servants.

VI

Reforms.

The budget. – The electorate. – Schools. – Age limits.

It is too easy to see that the first come, illustrious scholar or immense ignoramus, from From the lawyer to the concierge, they are all capable of making a deputy, a senator and, consequently, a minister.

Also, how many of them have a clear understanding? of what is called the government, that is to say the art of putting the synthesis of interests into practice generals?

If we look at the facts, the answer will be disheartening.

In the early days of popular emancipation, rarer and more vividly withered were those who abused their political mandate for the benefit of their personal enrichment.

From 1830 to 1870, scandals were cute despite the infinite care that the parties took to to conceal the failings of their members.

REFORMS 77

Today, we've lost count of the falls and we cannot open a newspaper without encountering formidable accusations.

The left accuses the right; the right accuses the

as he can by insulting all his opponents.

It's the story of loans and concessions mines, railways, lighting, paving, military and civilian supplies is, really, lamentable and that, simultaneously, lamentable to The same degree of indifference is shown by legislators to with regard to the general interests.

Here is an example chosen from the concerns budgetary ones, those which, precisely, seem to dominate minds more vividly:

We know that despite all the accounting tricks—
The revenues are insufficient to cover the annual expenses. We also know that outside The Treasury has funds available for taxes.
borrows from depositors without their authorization, and that he is obliged to return them to their first request.

These indirect loans, along with other public—. ly regulated, make up what is called the floating debt, which amounts to one and a half billion.

Repaying this debt is also a wish universal as it is platonic; yet, in case

18 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

political unrest, it contains a danger threatening.

Thus, for many years, the balance of The budget worries everyone; for four years Above all, this balance serves as a platform for all attacks against the Republic,

Some deny it, others affirm the lack of money; in fact, it is claimed that the monopolies that, for lack of having had enough money to delete them and, while saying that, we have borrowed, in the shadows, under onerous conditions.

However, apart from taxes and borrowing,
there is a metallic reservoir of a wealth unprecedented and fueled solely by a series of abuses:
First, it is the despotic greed of the property owners buildings which, as we know, guard, pen—

the merchants and collect, in advance, the quarterly payments very small tenants by treating the latter with all the more ferocity because their furniture is less luxurious; it is, then, the greed of all the monopolistic administrations which, like the gas and water companies are being paid sums of money. operations; it is the dishonesty of those who, under color of sureties, steal the honest man-bent over to which they always promise fortune through his work.

REFORMS 79

In all these cases, the enormous, abusive sums-if harvested improperly, they are of no productive interest.

From April 1883 onwards, using only the means that is available to ordinary citizens, the Following a petition, a bill was drafted and submitted to the Chamber of Deputies.

This project was designed as follows:

Art. 4%. – “Any sum whose deposit will
"with the aim of guaranteeing the performance of an obligation"
"Verbal or written guarantee."

Article 2. – “Any guarantee shall have no value
"legal only if the sum representing it has been "deposited, with special allocation, at the Caisse des "deposits and consignments who will pay the interest on it"
"Holder at a rate of 30/0 per year.

Article 3. – “The following shall be required to be deposited at the "Deposit and Consignment Office:"

"4° Any rent paid in advance and chargeable to "the final term of a rental agreement or lease."

"2° Any sum paid in advance to the compa-
"gas and water engineering and attributable to the last-
"Final deadline for a subscription."

"3° Any sum paid to an employer,
"by an employee, as a guarantee of its management."

Article 4. "Any act, lease, promise, commitment,
"acknowledgment which, signaling an advance deposit,
"will not mention the payment to the Caisse des

80 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

"The consignment will be null and void, and all its signatories will be affected."
"will be liable to a fine of 50 to 300 francs.

Article 5. "For the six months following the "Upon promulgation of this law, any person
"Holding a surety bond will be required to operate it"
"the deposit as stated in articles 2 and 4.

"Additional provision."

"The resources created by this law will be "applied:"

"4° To extinguish the existing floating debt at moment of its promulgation.

"2° To balance the budget.

"Any available balance must be used for degrading degrees"
"clothing."

The adoption of this bill was intended to provide 1.8 billion at the pair costing, as interest, that 54 million per year, while, in their Together, the 1.4 billion of the floating debt cost 84 million; therefore, the repayment could be made floating debt, having 400 million in liquid assets and savings to invest 30 million in annuities.

Despite all the efforts, despite the intervention-Despite very favorable press coverage, this project has been dormant for more than two years; it was only in May
It was in 1885 that a petitions committee welcomed him while making, however, some restrictions in favor owners.

REFORMS 81

Everything stopped there; neither the finance minister nor that of justice, seized at the same time by the commission, did not take care of carrying out this an absolutely moral and readily available resource, moreover-their, to undergo parliamentary review in its form of the bill.

lions! which was very pleasing to the high bank;
And what about the taxpayer? Who really thinks about him?

The proposed reform had one flaw: it was offensive—know the big owners and many companies anonymous; that was enough for the session to be the the legislature itself ended in a Complete silence.

+

I could add a whole host of examples to this one.
others, so much so that parliamentary indifference towards the general interest rather than his culpable complacency regarding the control of finances. — But it exists already a kind of nomenclature of these abuses, including The author is a former State Councillor, Mr. Treasury de la Roque; I therefore refer the reader to his book Title: The Finances of the Republic, which would deserve some praise if it didn't reveal a biased in choosing, among the moral depressions,

5.

82 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

than those that could be used to slander the principle republican.

It is certain, in any case, that reforms are necessary; unfortunately, this is precisely the case.
to correct those who alone have the initiative of the cor-reactions; the difficulty is therefore great, especially at cause of the profound ignorance in which is maintained the mass of voters.

Hoping that, all of a sudden, it will absorb sound doctrines capable of defending its true interests, would undoubtedly be risky.

Therefore, we must appeal to the conscience of elected officials.
begging them to enact it themselves, in a
A moment of generous momentum, the laws intended to hold restricting their own training.

Can we seriously discuss whether a self-

the right to vote only to those who can prove a Is basic education sufficient? I don't think so.

Objections of form or opposition will be raised against me.
portunity, but the bottom will remain standing.

All the more so, therefore, for elected officials; all should have has proven that they have studied the function in detail.

REFORMS 83

operation of all interests in their industries and in their external relations.

In short, they should demonstrate a high frequency tation, first summarized by a written thesis, then publicly supported, to something like the school of administration that the republic of 1848 had instituted and which would be constantly held to level of improvements born from experience.

All of this, of course, free of charge so that the
The question of money does not favor, at the threshold of political mandate, the works of theo- parasitism cracy.

It would be wrong to claim that the assemblies Freemasonry periodicals are sufficient to to test the worth of men.

Freemasonry opposed to Freemasonry
The Jesuit system had its merits: it degenerated into a corporation.
secret, understanding mutualism only as While it facilitates trafficking, it becomes a danger.

As it functions, masonry is a a syndicate of interests concealing its true activities under humanitarian pretexts.

The MPs she helps to win in the election arrive at the room imbued with the idea of returning to their t.*. c.-. f.". services for services. Co n'est That's not the role of a French MP, and it's a statistic.
would be terrible.

84 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

public, of capacity which I have just noted sum-the design.

With this reform, the voter would be certain of choose from among "capabilities" and, then, he would not have more to consult than his personal sympathies.

Currently, nothing like it exists and the
The chamber serves as a school for the deputies; as a result, taxpayers pay, very dearly, and their their ignorance and inexperience.

However, if indeed, among the legislators, there is any finds who, acknowledging in good faith, at the end of their mandate, the gravity of the mistakes committed by
They are once again seeking the voters' support.
It is usually too late, because these dissatisfied, they do not re-elect them and choose to... very schoolchildren who will also cost them dearly.

This is the vicious cycle that would end the creation of a solemn event opening to citizen the doors of eligibility.

To summarize the other reforms:

1° A good law on incompatible job combinations, put in place in practice by the voters even before she be voted on; 2° some changes in the electorate and eligibility.

I will say nothing about the infamies of accumulating wealth.
place, because that is the thesis of my entire work;

REFORMS 85

But I will add a word about electoral reforms:

Eligibility before age 35 is absurd.
that the French citizen be deemed fit to govern his country when, and rightly so, he is not judged capable of choosing his wife on his own.

No voters before 30 years old or after 70.

It must be admitted that education, more or less elementary, only acquires its real value through experience; or choosing an agent is more Choosing a woman is difficult.

Marriage took him at 25. After these two ordeals,
His judgment must be formed, otherwise there's madness. I I must point out here that the statistics reveal a strange increase in common crimes up to the age of thirty; after that age the proportion-tion decreases significantly; therefore there is a period of moral disturbance.

As for the extreme limit of seventy years common to both the voter and the eligible candidate, it borrows Its reason for being stems from two different considerations.

First, statistics prove that this age provides the largest number of abstentions in the election; Next, it is demonstrated that in the decline of life the espris is weary and, consequently, hostile to all progress.

Old age is hungry for supremacy and parasitism. I have established elsewhere that the first

86 ETHOLOGISTIC SYNTHESIS

The old man was both the first priest and the pre-first king (1).

Finally, it is always by moving towards death that The frightened man clings to mysticism, hence the frequent occurrences of conversions that contradict this the acts of manhood.

No doubt, after 70 years, one can find old men still spry, strong in mind and spirit Ham hock; so much the better! Those will devote themselves to works, whose functions do not always leave days of leisure for men who are in strength of age.

But the social organization will gain in validity and In clairvoyance, what she will lose in gray hair, and progress will not be slowed down.

However, one should not believe that this plan of reform significantly alters the number of elect-authors.

Here, in support of this assertion, is the figure of voters at different times:

Legislative elections of 1857.. . . . (6,136,664 –
Plebiscite of 4870. 9,044,703 –
Elections of 4817. 8,000,000

However, the number of French citizens aged 30 to (4) Volume 1, page 21.

REFORMS 87

70 years amounts to 8,500,000; if we want to add the young people aged 25 to 30 will obtain 40,000,000. figure closer to registered voters than to voters voting. Finally, if we remember that there is no a point of voters among the soldiers under arms, we will see that the proposed modification, while increasing the guarantees of wisdom, does not diminish not the majesty of numbers.

Through this reform, one can even conceto see a social state in which honor would have its con-solemn statement, no longer in the form of so many pros-adorned with an enameled gold star, no longer under the a commercial form of a priced reward, a kind of shameful redemption of a devotion sold in exchange for re-knowledge, but only in the form worthy of the man is worthy of the honor.

Indeed, extending the electorate and eligibility period – five or ten years after the extreme limit, not scrathis step does not eloquently testify in favor of a vice wise, balanced, honorable, truly fulfilled
What about human honor?

Rewarding the man in his full role
His manly service is to buy his conscience and cm-poisoning one's free will.

has ,

88 _ ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

On the contrary, to observe, when the day comes, the austerity that here and according to the established disorder, the decrepitude takes it upon herself to sign an authentic certificate a tic of debauchery and dishonesty, that's the example; So this is justice, this is the law, this is honor.

neur |

VII

The Guardians of Justice.

The infallibles. – Tonsure and moustaches. – Personalism. – Wigs. – Repeat offenders. – Cult of the rich. – Juries. – Contradictions of the law. – Breaches of trust. – Deviation The morality of justice. – Examples. – Anonymity. – Strange Case law. – Forgery no longer exists. – Solicitations. – 1860 and 1867. – Zeal of the young, lukewarmness of the old. – The Background. – Advancement. – Speculative magistrates. – The complaints. – The legal scam. – 23 million against zero. – Finance and the Court of Cassation. – Discipline.

The PROSECUTOR. – Skepticism. – Staged.

The 6th. – On commerce. – On civil matters. – Independence and generality. redness.

THE PRESIDENT. – Supervisor. – The escapades. – Characters. – Various examples.– Jews and Christians. – Chance and the advances– cements.

The magistrates are veritable priests; they have the black robe and austere duty; if one has the One takes a vow, the other an oath; for the rest they... They are equally valuable and get along wonderfully.

How could we expect that, as custodians of justice... These solemn officiants do not appear

90 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

a little bit to the priests, sacred custodians of power divine, whose justice is itself a pretense emanation?

For them, the comparison is so close that they do not hesitate to They shouldn't think they're infallible!

Indeed, while the Pope is ex cathedra, the judge is not it is no less ex sede; and it is commonly said, with that schoolboy rage to fuck, in slang Judicial, as in religious slang, I don't know what a distortion of Juvenal's language (who in would pale, if he heard it): «Res judicata pro veri-tate habetur. »

Is this not to boldly proclaim the infalliblelability? |

Moreover, everything: pretensions, ceremony, ornamentation-
In matters, everything is reminiscent of worship, and consequently of the clergy, Consequently, the coalition is against the interests of the masses.

Even outside of his seat, they wanted the
The magistrate retained a distinctive appearance; Island
The priest had a tonsure; the magistrate had to cut off his mustache and beard; at most allowed-
We have the favorites.

In 1859 the man who kept the seals published three circulars. By the first, he ordered the magistrates to no longer wear neck-neither their black tie; the tailcoat, the black trousers and A white tie was the required attire.

THE KEEPERS OF JUSTICE 91

Secondly, he urged them to refrain from smoking in public. By the third, finally, 11 imposed on them to justify the legality of their name, even that they would have neither title nor particle.

These various prescriptions, tyrannical in the form, clerical in their spirit, were, in some of their parts, an act of wisdom.

All those whose certain effect was to be uto standardize the appearance of a functioning court, to em-sin that justice, rendered by him, appeared as the embodiment of MX.. or MY.., president or judge, instead of being, merely, the expression of the all these rights arising from the facts examined prescriptions obtained a high mo- result reality.

But those who, even on public roads, pretended to imprint on man the stamp of function

These prescriptions are contrary to the democratic spirit.
were bad and deserved to fall into disuse.

I know very well that they also had another purpose:
they were used to restrain the magistrate in a cer-self-respect and to facilitate surveillance launched by the supreme leader or his delegates.
Oh no! The respectability of the judiciary has
This surveillance system always loses more than it gains.

92 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

and, thanks to the principles of irremovability and advancementhierarchical structure, which are absolutely unconsciously liable, the hallmark of the function, perpetuated in the civil life, above all, contributed to the corruption of the cons-sciences and the political servility of those who do not should never distinguish between the parties.

The government in place since 1870 gave magistrates were given greater latitude; but until-However, he fell into the opposite extreme and we we have witnessed, since then, despite the alleged judicial reform, towards a personalism outraged, intended to highlight a particular judge rather than such another, which the uprightness of the 1HASpENeCe suffered deeply.

In France, people made fun of wigs.
solemn robes that were worn under Louis XIV and that is still worn in England, in the world of functions. Beneath this uniform wig, all the heads appear the same and, deep down,
Nothing is more conducive to the prestige of a court, because, by completely erasing the personality of man, only the prestige of the is highlighted _ function. In France, wearing a wig is no longer possible, Fine, but then let's look for something else!

THE KEEPERS OF JUSTICE 93

*
X +

of the judiciary; I believe I have quite clearly indicated that before 1789 she was rightly accused of all venals, having herself had the habit of buying, with a good deal of cash, the right royal prerogative that Louis IX exercised at the foot of his oak tree legendary, and which she proudly displays in a room sufficiently decorated with woodwork and benches . quettes.

Therefore, I will only concern myself with the judiciary. organized at the same time as the Civil Code, dominated by him, and which she must apply without it having collaborated; hence she feels I don't know what foolish jealousy against those whose responsibility it is to care to amend or augment the laws.

On many occasions, moreover, she gave herself the malicious pleasure in highlighting inexperience or the inconsistencies of a number of provisions new situations.

I could cite numerous cases; but I I would be afraid of imposing too great a burden on the reader fatigue; therefore I will limit myself to fairly simple facts present in everyone's memory, so that the The conclusions I intend to draw are as follows,

94 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

without resorting to dry compilations of texts.

We know that a recent law on repeat offenders has replaced the surveillance of the high police by the prohibition, imposed on convicts, from appearing in certain places must be designated to them by the executive power, under a regulation provided within the law itself.

* Difficulties of a material nature were the because the designation of the locations has not been brought to the attention of convicts.

These, whose very situation reveals them as being endowed with mediocre refinement, also have-early on took advantage of the loophole, to escape the over-vigilance, that is to say, to break their ban.

The courts have been notified.

However, three courts were found to rule that, According to the law, the offense of breaking the banishment does not exist. was more; only one had enough common sense to acknowledge that surveillance would not be permanent ment removed, that the day the ad- regulation The public ministry would have been promulgated.

This solution was so natural and so in line with fairness that any divergence of opinion regarding him is astounding.

A law is never anything other than a protection public interest; police surveillance is essential protection and the same public interest commands its maintenance as long as what replaces it will not have been applied.

THE KEEPERS OF JUSTICE 95

But here's the thing! The law on repeat offenders has raised the disapproval from a certain party of which she was not not the work.

Ridicule its author and those who voted for it For him, it was a "political" act; therefore, forget it. The public interest! Repeat offenders are suddenly people who had become sympathetic to them; people who would not have They didn't extend a hand, they opened their arms to them, with the arms, the case law; conclusion: the mass citizens, disturbed in their security, see, no Unsurprisingly, the judiciary ruled in favor of ex-convicts

In fact, the law contains no deletions, but only the substitution of one punishment for another.

But, have we ever heard it said, when the President-tooth of the Republic common in forced labor a capital punishment, that is to say, substitutes, by thanks, one punishment to another, that between the moment where the commutation is pronounced and the one where it is notified, then ratified, the condemned man must be free?

No one, surely, would dare to articulate such a thing. enormity.

However, we dare to do so in the case of repeat offenders.

=

96 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

since some astute magistrates claim, without concern for common sense, that between the promulgation of the law abolishing the monitoring and the meaning of Regulations designating relegation, there is a suspension full payment of any penalty.

What can be said after that about the delay in the signi-Fiction of this regulation?

Surely, he must have gotten lost in some file used in its preparation.

In any case, it is impossible to do better to catch in the act of collaborating with indifference .professed by the auxiliaries of the laws, with the false-set of judgment (not to say more) which they Proof: those in charge of justice.

*

*

I will not address the attitude of the judiciary in with regard to decrees on religious congregations.

In this case, the theocratic origins of our codes have combined wonderfully with the confraternity of the judiciary and the clergy.

I want to get straight to the ferocity with which the guardians of justice apply famous Gospel maxim:

"To each who has, more will be given, and to him who does not have
"Nothing, not even that, will be taken from him."

THE KEEPERS OF JUSTICE 97

If ever an evangelical precept has dominated the cer-
"Velles magistrales," that's the one I just...
report.

The cult of the rich and the presumption of righteousness that wealth monopolizes her is one of the prejudices inherent to the judicial profession; she leaves it burst forth in all his actions and in all his institutions; it is not even in his manner of assisting the indigent people, to facilitate their access to the court, which not to be, at once, a bitter irony and a horror-Table of hypocrisy.

I will have the opportunity to explain myself in this regard at chapter of the Auzouillaires, when I deal with Legal aid.

For the moment, it will suffice for me to note that The entire justice system is based on Payments are subject to fixed rates and are meticulously regulated. The unfortunate thing is that the intervention of money is passed from the state of defective design in the theory in practice becomes legal prejudice; that consequently it is necessary to write on the pediment of its palace:

No justice for the poor!

In criminal as in civil matters, this formula is a axiom; in civil matters, it eliminates the exercise of any right; in criminal matters it creates a presumption of guilt.

voracious for the accused.
It 6

98 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

For a long time, it was believed that juries would be found a welcome obstacle to judges' training. That was a mistake.

The poorly chosen jurors, sitting in insufficient numbers fisant, and unable, to any degree, to represent public opinion, "the sovereign judge of the great "crimes," the jurors, I say, allow themselves to be drawn in increasingly by the prejudice of social caste and especially through the novel of the antecedents.

Ten times out of fifteen, they admit it more easily the murder committed to steal 400 francs (often less) than the forgery or breach of trust committed to steal a million.

However, in the logical order of probabilities, The assassination is a thousand times more likely than the fake of being discovered and, moreover, it reveals a harsh part: one hundred francs or one thousand francs against the guillotine— These are the stakes of desperate people.

Poverty can sometimes explain the assassination, but the thirst for millionaire pleasures is as admitted by the great forgers or the great breach of trust.

In any case, here's how jurors and magistrates— These traits testify that their conviction is formed and This is how they measure guilt.

In August 1885, the jury of Seine-et-Marne, re-based on a death sentence pronounced by

THE KEEPERS OF JUSTICE 99

The Seine jury convicted a watchmaker named Pel, to hard labor for life for having murdered his servant, Elise Bæhmer.

No evidence, no body, disappearance
From Elise, that's all.

That being said, the public prosecutor's office, represented by Mr. Quesnay de Beaurepaire, had to, according to his habitually, use the antecedents system. Those— They were, I confess, not very likeable; not that The watchmaker had a criminal record! — He never had was condemned; — but his appearance was repugnant, her life was closed off, and gossip had proliferated; he had committed the crime of adorning himself with titles, or of diplomas, or decorations to which he was not entitled to carry; his mother having died, he had said: "that's it "It is!" He was a widower, remarried, separated from his second wife. woman; finally the servant, supposedly killed, had I think it was lent for 1,800 francs.

So, lawyer Quesnay indulged himself wholeheartedly, that is to say, he gossiped so much that it made others pale with envy. all the doormen of the capital.

For him, there was no doubt: Elise Bæhmer was dead. And it was Pel who killed her. — Forced labor at per-pettiness.

translation.

Mr. Quesnay de Beaurepaire, Advocate General in

100 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

The assize court may also be called upon to conclude in a civil trial.

Now, imagine that Elise Bähler's heirs... present themselves before the civil court to be "en-sent into possession of his estate and listen to the same lawyer Quesnay:

– "Do the heirs produce the death certificate?"
"No, gentlemen! We lack this proof. From the outset"
"So, do I know if the succession is open?"
"Do I even know if Elise Bähler is dead? Don't re-"
"Will it not appear tomorrow, in a year? In such a way"
"In cases where the law allows the appointment of an administrator-"
"teur, but not the opening of the succession;
"For me, the death of the deceased is not established.
"I conclude that the application should be dismissed and that the con-"
"Damnation at the expense of the court."

Thus, with the same voice and the same gesture, the lawyer Quesnay will be able to declare to the jurors that he is certain that Elise is dead, and, to the heirs, that he knows nothing about it Absolutely nothing.

And this unfortunate creature, quite dead to to result in a man being sentenced to punishment capital, then, as a precaution, to the works forced, is no longer sufficient when his heirs want-slow to enjoy his possessions.

Logically, Pel should have been condemned to the monitoring, for the period fixed by law, of

THE KEEPERS OF JUSTICE 401

to declare the absence of a missing person except, at to decide, after this deadline has expired.

In any case, the aforementioned murder would have had for mobile the cancellation of a debt that can amounting to approximately 1,800 francs – or a sort

Let's now see how the jurors punish flights not accompanied by alleged murders or observed.

Towards the end of July 1885, the Assize Court of Alpes-Maritimes issued two rulings, two days apart. interval.

The first ruling sentenced him to 60 years in prison an individual guilty of stealing three sausages and a cheese.

The second ruling acquitted an individual who, having been invested the functions of mayor and borough councillorment, was accused of embezzling 88,000 francs.

In both cases, there is no doubt, the accused having confessed.

Here is another example:

A stockbroker, having ruined several fa-thousands, through diversions amounting to nearly 400,000 francs, had been sentenced, by the same Assize court, to four years in prison.

He appealed to the Court of Cassation and the case returned to the lower court. the Var Assize Court. This one, two days ago-

6.

402 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

Ravant had sentenced two individuals to imprisonment guilty of issuing twenty francs of counterfeit currency naie.

But the stockbroker, who had stolen 400,000 francs. in a neighboring department, it seemed probable to him-lying, less guilty or "more deserving of consideration", because the four-year prison sentence was re-duite at eighteen months.

I could multiply the examples; the observations-the tions would be the same and would lead to this Conclusion: that petty theft is severely punished and that the great theft calls for all indulgences.

that financial trials, ceasing to absorb the tri-civil or correctional courts, addressed the court of assizes.

This move is almost a new phenomenon.

For a long time, the jurisdiction of the assizes had only ever experienced brutal or com-involved in assassinations. The embezzlement and abuse of trust, entrusted by the high lords of the bourgeoisie, aspiring to financial feudalism, were either rare or easily stifled.

Where does their current frequency come from? Is that to say that the public prosecutors are more aware of their duty? or that the cries of the plaintiffs are more resounding-sants?

THE KEEPERS OF JUSTICE 103

A difficult problem to solve! But, given the results of these trials, it would perhaps be better, their suffocation, that sickening example of impunity or of indulgence which they provide an opportunity.

The departmental juries take revenge or par-give with equal excess; they are lacking, in In all cases, the judge must possess the necessary composure; and he It is not uncommon to learn that prosecutors generally Raux are requesting the postponement of certain trials to a another court, due to legitimate suspicion. It is what the Attorney General of Aix did in October 1882 in a counterfeit money case, having had some impact; 11 gave as his reason that the accused possessed, in Marseille, a high influence of relatives and friends and that the local press had not-swayed public opinion,

It's a sad sight to see depression The morality of finance is invading even the most vulnerable localities and even go so far as to dishonor independence dance of the juries.

The evil comes from afar and from above; the example has been given by the judiciary, even when it functions functions alone, that is to say, when it judges without a jury and applies the punishment at the same time as it establishes legitimacy.

entire, in the necessity in which the magistracy has found to interpret and apply the law on the public limited companies.

104 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

Anonymity brought her such surprises, she found names so resonant at the bottom of the seats health-conscious and, until then, so respected, that she was appalled losing, at the same time, the notion of good and of just, which she had devoutly grown accustomed to taking the measure on the quality of people (1).

Without going back to the scandals of the Directory, of the Restoration, of the monarchy of 1830 and even of the Second Empire, didn't we see idols of the aristocracy brazenly meddle in affairs plunderers and lawbreakers? Don't we have

(1) It is still the same: here is an example dating from October 6th October 1885:

Several newspapers, including L'Intransigeant and La Ligue (dated October 8 and 7, 1885) announced the arrest from a financier, apparently highly regarded, who, thanks to his connections, had been able to defraud large sums of money from numerous victims: the latest was a simple cashier.

Here's how these newspapers, reproducing identically the same text, of official origin, undoubtedly ends their brief article:

"Despite all his efforts, he (the cashier) could not be "Paid. After personally returning the money to the
"The cashier filed a complaint."

"A VERY HIGH-RANKING person who also formulated
Another complaint, THE PROSECUTOR'S OFFICE HAS DECIDED TO ACT (!) »

As we can see, it's pure cynicism; and it's unconscious, too.
to the point where my pen falls from my hands |

THE KEEPERS OF JUSTICE 105

seen from the princes of Broglie in the General Union and, in the shameful affair of the Reinsurance Company general rancidity, created by the cynical Erlanger?

However, it seems that this last case, still fresh from the humiliating court decisions of commerce, had the gift of bringing together all the high-ranking complicity.

Among those condemned in July 1885, we find here:
a former Attorney General, Mr. Clément Simon, a former State Councillor Mr. Alfred Blanche, one year-former prefect, former member of parliament, former state councillor,
Mr. Léon Chevreau, and finally a former solicitor,
Mr. Petit Bergonz; all KNIGHTS OR OFFICERS OF THE LEGION OF HONOR!

And these people were ignorant of the law! And they admitted-founded or established a void company, because the ac-subscribers' fees were either insolvent or Imaginary beings! – and the capital was 35 million
lions!

Some have claimed that this insurance company
The rances were, in essence, hiding political propaganda;
Politics would therefore have mitigated, in the eyes of the administrators, Administrators, the inappropriateness of the methods employed?

106 ETIOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

It was, moreover, a matter of imperial policy; but,
Honestly, that excuse is pathetic.

In any case, their civil liability has been initiated by a judgment issued by the court of trade.

Unfortunately, in most cases, the liability recognized by civil courts, lack of sanctions, and dishonest speculators Nets escape it very easily. That's when that the need for criminal jurisdiction becomes apparent.

Now, I'm going to show how this one works.
his intervention:

It is understood that, in a public limited company,
Capital alone is responsible, but the administrations traitors are culpable within the limits of their management.

or losses, are charged to the fictitious social entity.
except when assessing the actions of the administration.

But this happens: the social being is ruined, but the Administrators are getting rich.

In the event of a claim, these agents take it comfortable with their constituents and content with to resign, "deploring the inevitability" circumstances." However, they lost the capital, "they have squandered money, goods,

"etc., to the detriment of their owners, who do not

THE KEEPERS OF JUSTICE 4107

"they had handed them over only to make use of "Determined." Article 408 of the Penal Code may well To call it breach of trust is very rare.
the magistrates agree with the Penal Code.

Stock market practices, agent practices of exchange, the Jewish trafficking, the rise and the decline, all of this comes between the spoliation and the plunderers.

Examples abound; I will limit myself to choosing the most recent one; the events having taken place before the correctional appeals chamber of the Court of Paris in June 1885.

I will specify the circumstances to avoid the There's a wide range of interpretations, but I'll put some arbitrary first names so as not to mislead the attention-
tion:

A certain Pierre was, at the same time, president of the Comptoir industriel de France and principal owner-silence of a company called Transports. The Counter.
French industrialist had bonds in his portfolio gations of the Cochinchina River Shipping Company;
the transport company had in its portfolio shares of the Comptoir industriel de France.

Or Pierre, as president and administrator delegate of the Comptoir industriel de France, is to deliver, by an employee, 3,200 bonds river transport companies, under the pretext of paying a a certain Jacques, advertising salesman; the discount Titles were recorded in the books.

The same day, Pierre, this time as principal owner of the transport company, registered on his books a purchase made to Jacques for 3,200 obligations of the Messageries Fluviales, in exchange for 800,000 francs; on the same day, again, the Society of Transports, in turn, sold 4600 shares to Jacques. from the Comptoir industriel de France 'for the price of 800,000 francs.

All this tinkering boils down to this:

The administrator of the Comptoir industriel de France takes, from the till, 800,000 francs worth of securities, i.e. saying to pay a social debt; the individual who is supposed to have received these 800,000 francs worth of securities is also supposed to exchange them for 800,000 francs of shares in the Comptoir industriel de France, possessed— designs by the Transport Company; as a result, The court ruling states that this double operation and these mendacious writings impose on the Comptoir industriel de France reports a loss of 500,000 francs while the Transport Company was earning the same amount; that is to say, the same person— swimming was enriched by what it caused the other to lose company he managed.

The investigating judge had seen in this operation a scam; the criminal court of pre—

THE KEEPERS OF JUSTICE 109

The first instance court had seen it as a breach of trust; but had declared himself incompetent, this crime belonging to The Assize Court. Well, the Court of Appeal, judging In the correctional court, they saw neither two skulls nor any crime in that.

However, the rulings of the Court of Appeal serve to form the case law subsequently enshrined by the Court of cassation. Therefore, it rules by adding to its general considerations.

This is what was done on June 24, 1885, under the pre—

The president innovated nothing, he simply applied the current case law, which, once again, will manifest itself in all the splendor of its moral depression.

The ruling will argue about the meaning of the word trust; he will find that the titles have not been entrusted to the administrator, to make special use of it indicated and that, consequently, there is no abuse of confidence in the sense of article 408.

He will simply forget that if, materially, he no qualifications were awarded for a particular job. to link, a mandate was entrusted to manage the matter common and that breach of trust is, here, an abuse of the mandate entrusted, that is to say, exactly the same thing; he also forgets that, according to art. 1992 of the Under the Civil Code, the agent is liable for fraud. that he commits and that this same article refers to, for fraud, specifically the breach of trust detailed in Article 408 of the Penal Code.

It 7

110 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

Thus, absolute truth, inspired by morality; even that conventional truth written in the short numbered paragraphs, which make up the code, are in complete agreement here.

All of this did not prevent the Court of Appeal from to declare that the preceding act, "so indelicate and so "Reprehensible as it may be, do not fall under "The application of no article!"

We strongly believe that the judges did not... tempted to formulate impunity; they are forced, Moreover, to justify their decision; and here are the specific reasons they cited:

"The specified maneuvers did not have to "effect of determining the delivery of values, because "The employee delivered them without difficulty to the administrator who had the authority to obtain them" "against discharge."

the administrator, the employee's supreme leader, did not didn't say and didn't have to tell him what the operation was. the ration he combined; the mere fact of using his qua- The ability to receive the titles is sufficient to qualify the maneuver; consequently, the very statement of the court is enough to refute his conclusions:

Let's continue:

THE KEEPERS OF JUSTICE 111

"The false writings have rather had the effect of..."
"but to prepare further justifications that
"To obtain the delivery of the values."

Preparing justifications for later is a pure Masterpiece! But to invoke such a consideration-ration to mitigate the maneuver, while at On the contrary, it reveals the most absolute premeditation. read of fraud, spoliation and deception towards Society is about transcending the limits of the implausible. white.

However, the two preceding considerations have had with the aim of ruling out the offense of fraud.

That's not all; the court adds:

"The values were available to the administrator:"
"Delegate manager in said capacity, but they "were never handed over to him, to make him a "predetermined employment, within the meaning of art.
"Article 408 of the Penal Code."

I apologize to the court, but the administration- A traitor relying on his own values, that is absolutely the company handing them over to its agent to make use of it, essentially determined, which consists of not dissipating them to one's own detriment; el, Far from ruling out breach of trust, this same statement It fully justifies it.

Here is the bouquet. The court also says:

"Finally, the transfers, recorded in the accounting records,

112 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

"Having existed in a certain way, there is no falsehood."

Thus, writing in a journal, produced in justice, a transfer found to be false does not constitute It's not a fake!

I am well aware that sound legal precedent requires, generally, a counterfeit or alteration of material-rielle, to characterize the forgery; but article 147 He nevertheless declares that the "manufacture of conventions, provisions, obligations or discharges, "in commercial or banking records" coxs-
THEY ARE FAKE.

However, registering imaginary transfers and operations fictional rations in a book intended to give them a characteristic of truth is, essentially, /shel- that of agreements, obligations, etc., otherwise, it is necessary to say that the French language, as used in the Code, is simply Tonkinese.

The case I have just dealt with contains, in Furthermore, the same actions as those noted in the famous trial of the General Union and who have earned their perpetrators the maximum fine and five years in prison.

How is it that they only ended up here?
to a reduced fine?

There's something better: the administrators of Crédit Général-French politicians did, absolutely, what we have reproached to those of the General Union and to those from the Industrial Counter, and they were acquitted!

THE KEEPERS OF JUSTICE 113

It is true that, since then, it has been noted against what-Some of them: Messrs. d'Erlanger and Berthier, exactly the same offenses as those having endragged out the conviction, in the first instance administrators of the Comptoir industriel de France, with the same formidable reserve of a qualified fact crime and involving, not the correctional court but the assize court.

It is true that the commercial court has put at Erlanger's account, particularly in the case of the General reinsurance company, facts of fictitious subscriptions, even going so far as to draw up lists

Bottin, and implying the nullity of a company at Capital of 35 million!

But all of that is secondary. The condemned-Civilian tones don't frighten people who know what they're doing.
disappear everything they possess that is visible France, and, provided that the court of appeal correctstional generalizes, to their benefit, the considerations of mitigating circumstances or innocence that she applied, June 24, 1885, to certain deputies and financiers from the Comptoir industriel de France, all the Erlanger
People in the world can sleep soundly on their two ears.
They will not be imprisoned, nor, for that matter, will they be.
their victims will not be compensated.

414 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

Thus would be verified the prediction that I had made.
mule when I took special care of Erdiaper (1).

*
* +

These disparities, these strangenesses, these di- justices Would verses therefore constitute a general rule of which Will the future never set us free?

Are all magistrates therefore demoralized?

All of them? No, thankfully.

There are still loyal hearts in France, upright natures which, even through prejudices of tradition, feel their indignation erupt.

What's there? Here it is:

There is, in fact, hidden pressure on the courts.
powerful, serving, for them, as the influences of families that fascinate the jurors.

There are constant requests.

I'm not the one saying it. I'm not venturing a bold statement or, merely, a slight one.

tooth: Mr. Ruben de Couder, who is speaking:

In the middle of the hearing, this honest man wore the following formidable accusation, in a trial relating to a man named Lepelletier, described as "former" advice from Crédit de France.

(1) Volume I, page 279, note.

THE KEEPERS OF JUSTICE 115

"The court," he said, "regrets that action was taken."
"influences and recommendations"
"actions which, far from being useful to the defendants, do not
"could only harm them, because they seem to be too
"An indirect admission of guilt."

What to think when you realize that this meme magistrate is the one whose court of appeals correctionnels has just destroyed, three-quarters of it, the judgement in the Comptoir industriel case, at based on the considerations I have outlined above,
The surprising economy?

Faced with these diverse principles and these subtleties interpretive frameworks, with the help of which we operate, between guilty parties of the same order, truly selections, the moralist is appalled and feels unwell comfortable enough to draw his conclusions.

I refuse to believe in an es- degeneration essential to human consciousness, affecting, specifically Specifically, those responsible for administering justice.

But there is, obviously, a psycho- phenomenon logic.

Before 1989 and the subsequent social liquidation, Arbitrariness was an established habit and the cult of Moloch-Baal wasn't even trying to disguise his brutality.

Since then, there has been a desire to reorganize, and above all, sought to erase all traces of everything that

has

reminiscent of the regime of free rein. But the para-Theocraticism was watching and, from then on, it imprinted I don't know what hypocritical character to all the regulations, to give them the appearance of a great scientific concern for the general interests.

Also the theorists of political economy Are they officially true Jesuits whose supremacy gradually asserted itself during the first half of the nineteenth century and triumphed definitively in 1860 and in 1867.

In 1860, through the famous economic reform of Second Empire; in 1867, by the addition of This reform: the law on public limited companies.

As for those responsible for administering justice, they are remained awestruck by these innovations; instinctive-They searched for their way; unable to recognize amidst diverse interests new-created, they naturally referred back to their old evangelical compass of which I have, so many Once again, the maxim is repeated: woe to me!
to the poor! But the reverse is striking:
Happiness to the rich!

From there to looking with admiration, then with envy,
The orgy of millions was about to unfold; there was a step there;
was crossed: to earn a lot of gold without it know, it was a terrible cleft!

The magistrates succumbed to it; the prosecutors

THE KEEPERS OF JUSTICE 417

generals or first presidents, like the others;
the trial of stockbroker Barraïa, held in Nice, at the beginning of August 1885, gives one New evidence; the testimonies gathered have overwhelming evidence on this particular point; but these revelations-
The actions horrified the magistrates.

Hence the alternatives of anger and indulgence.
for men in finance and, instinctively, a great veneration for success, whatever it may be those elements had been.

The judiciary is getting angry at the financiers.

However, if you look at it closely:

If the one condemned by morality is also a loser definitive of the god OR, his case is clear and the severity-
The wit will be unheard of. But, if the condemned by morality remained of the last good with Moloch-Baal,
Then, the indulgence will be maternal.

However, sometimes, young magistrates,
Full of life and devout, they attack a colossus depending on the degree of appropriation. This one, for a moment Surprised, he looks, says nothing and bows with a smile.
In this case, the solutions are never serious.

For his part, the young magistrate moves forward, then he
He grows old; then, he enters into the masterful unity and embodies all the prejudices of the corporation; well Better yet: when he gets out of it, somehow,

7

118 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

he will himself join the public limited companies and will give its name:

Thus: Mr. Cazeaux, a former magistrate, is an administratortracur of the Société des Immeubles de France.

Mr. Clément Simon, former Attorney General, has administered by the General Reinsurance Company.

Mr. Numa Baragnon, former magistrate, admitted Minister of Credit de France.

After what I've just written, would anyone suspect...? today, only high-ranking lords like Roths-Child, Biesta, Decaze, Cibiel, etc., were convicted to compensate certain people harmed by their
How to manage the Decazeville forges?

Would anyone suspect that a substitute would be sent to their address?
a man named Vaney dared to utter the following words sales:

"I acknowledge the best intentions of the "part of the defendants (Rothschild, Decaze, etc.), but

"covered by a public limited company, an essential company-
"capital element, it is possible for a council "administrative tasks to be carried out, without responsibility"
"none, the acts and expedients that the law
"absolutely forbidden to all debtors, and who "expose them to attacks and in their persons
"and in their possessions."

The acts and expedients attributed to Rothschild

THE KEEPERS OF JUSTICE 119

and others by the deputy Vaney, consisted of to have created a circulation of paper, to have cu recourse to indirect loans, thus jeopardizing the fortune of others in the vagaries of a business a capture to which they sacrificed nothing, because they They were fully aware of the dangers. – They were condemned; only – there is only – the Those compensated were not, as one might think to believe, mere titleholders; they were BANKERS! So that the judiciary had deigned to protect bankers against others bankers.

The eloquence of Deputy Vaney therefore loses, however, his worth, and his meaningful prose, which I I just tried to do better, and in short, I only manage to do better.
to bring out the fierce prejudice with which a Vaney, Having become president, he presided over the proceedings of a case famous, known as the Neuilly drama tried by the Seine Assize Court in February 1871.

This concerned a debtor named (Godefroy, accused of having killed his creditor with a gunshot cierge named Courtefois.

No witnesses were present at the scene; the accused claimed that his alleged victim had committed suicide.

Here are the beginnings of the interrogation conducted by the President Vaney:

"On September 8," he told the accused, "an honest pistol, »

The magistrate has no doubt; for him, the accused is guilty; also, like, a little later, this last-nier, constantly mistreated, believed he could prove it by saying, "I am a man of honor!"

Vaney interrupted him twice, telling him saying, "No!" and as the protesting defender tait, in turn, arguing that his client was not Although one of the accused, the astonishing Vaney, replied:

"— I say and I repeat, with all the authority of "My character, that the accused is not a man"
"Of honor."

Is it necessary to add, after that, that Godefroy was judged far less on the fact of the murder, at which no one could have attended, except on the pro-skills that were drawn from his background.

Among these precedents, there is one so extraordinary, that the mere fact of having formulated it This led to an explosion of indignation in the press.

President Vaney, searching during the hearing, the life of the accused, dared to reproach him for having been the product of an adulterous affair committed by his mother.

The entire genesis of the antecedents is there; Godefroy He was a proletarian upstart, a wheeler-dealer, not very likeable, if you will; and his private life... knows certain debaucheries; but none of this matters—

THE KEEPERS OF JUSTICE 191

explained the ferocity of an assassination which, deep down, was useless, because it did not relieve him of any debt.

Physical evidence was lacking, however—
The sentence was reduced to ten years' worth of work.
forced.

I reported this criminal law episode because that the moral transformations of the substitute Vaney as president of the same name, it seems to me of a certain nature to give an accurate notion of the morbid state to the—which is afflicting the magistracy. — This state has two distinct phases: one that develops at the point The starting point of the career is the ataxia of advancement.

that is, when the progress is so close to the retirement, to the point where he almost merges with her; it is the as-thenia of ambition.

This final phase opens the era of the impertinences, containing, much more than one could know the to believe, the sum total of small disappointments and minor humiliations suffered during the ascendant period.

But the thirst for advancement is not only the work of an acceptable ambition, it is also the resulting from the pressing needs of material life.

Here the dangers of military fascination become apparent. lioness.

It is certain, in all cases, that, single or married, the magistrate has the absolute will to possess-

122 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

to amass enough fortune to be forever at sheltered from hazards and, above all, never to be at grappling with the difficulties he faces daily, knowing himself that no one knows what he is worth the measure of his justice.

No one escapes this financial necessity; also The magistrate was recruited from among the wealthy. than the rarer one recruited from among the wealthy diocre; the reason is simple: the movement the speculator had the direct result of increasing the price of all things, from bread to shelter; and such a magistrate, who was considered wealthy thirty years ago, if he has honestly remained conservative in his returned, is, today, in a relative state of difficulty; if he He has daughters, he is poor.

From then on, a feeling of greed was born within him. the appearance of these players who, in 48 hours, know to earn several million on the stock market. From then on, invintargeted and even unconscious respect takes root in his mind: respect for the speculative happy teur; a cult is necessary: the cult of the omnipotent billionaire, who, materially at less, can never again sink to mediocrity.

Therefore, and as a perfectly logical consequence, he feels a deep contempt for the speculator who

I said earlier that the magistrates had,

THE KEEPERS OF JUSTICE 4293

Like other gullible people, taken in by the bait of the big anonymous profits, strained, by the makers, to public greed.

But when a writer dies, his books are seized. reveal names; and one cannot believe how many the lists of priests and magistrates are endless trats having been seduced by the promise of be-profits at 30 0/0.

There is, even now, at Mazas a speculative the author was punished as justly as many others should be. thousands of others having escaped justice, and which had a specialty in attracting capital from magistrates and priests.

I had, moreover, designated him in the documentary on the first volume, as a summary, quite perfectly, the ideal of speculative processes whose practice needed to be eliminated.

He had chosen the Jewish bank as his adversary or For a victim, that very fact had earned him a good part of its clientele.

However, upon witnessing his downfall, I cannot help but to bring it closer to that of the General Union; that—this was described as a Catholic bank and fought against the Jewish bank; now the Jewish bank counted, among its most powerful members, the financier Erlanger; strange things! Justice has been turning for some time. years around the latter, as if she didn't dare touch him, while, in a flash

124 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

But she crushed all her former opponents!

Where does this come from?

Why do prosecutors hand over such a defendant to

And what about those known for their leniency?

Why, finally, is this other accused person excluded from
The public hearing is reserved for confidential investigations.
Who exonerates her?

Because, we must know, the citizen wants to use the right of direct quotation to speak in the public eye public education – (and he generally resigns himself, to take this path, only after having experienced inertia parquet floors and their disposition not to give (following the complaints brought before them), – this citizen,
I say, is still obliged to have his assignation by the public prosecutor's office which, alone, can designate him otherwise the room, at least during the day.

Therefore, at the threshold of any correctional debate, we meets the prosecutor's office, which represents, as one public action is known.

Also, apart from indulgences or acquittals scandalous acts, judged in public, it is up to the parliament that the responsibility for impunity lies granted to thousands of thieves.

THE KEEPERS OF JUSTICE 195

I'm willing to admit that, placed opposite countless complaints, many of which do not are not serious, the substitutes experience some fatigue and give in to some negligence.

However, every time a well-known financier, is the subject of a complaint, the prosecutor's office is on alert;
We can be certain that these kinds of complaints are read carefully and that, if it is not given
The next step is that there is a pre-existing opinion.
a kind of prejudice, which is never the consequence of a contradictory discussion.

Woe to the plaintiff who dares, after that, to try of the direct summons! The public prosecutor will be or hostile or indifferent, and as, in both In this case, he will not have had the opportunity to bring any evidence that the public prosecutor can obtaining it alone will not be able to assert its rights.

It's even worse when it involves a crime;
there, the citizen can do absolutely nothing without the con-

the assize court is in motion.

It therefore depends entirely on the prosecutor's office, power hidden and not controlled by the citizen or by public opinion, to remove from the public eye the discussion publicizes the most fraudulent financial activities them and the most dangerous to the public interest.

Furthermore, the courts have a habit: they con-

126 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

insists on decriminalizing the acts that serve as the basis for the complaint.

90 times out of 100, when, by chance, the plaintiff was fortunate enough to be called up, he understands to say: "Apply to the civil courts."

However, for those familiar with civil procedure, the inconvenience, delays, bureaucratic hurdles and obstacles of all kinds with which it surrounds the production of evidence that it will allow to be offered for examination by court, the prosecutor's response amounts to a denial of justice.

Indeed, scams and breaches of trust are... falsehoods, committed in financial matters, cannot be prove, in most cases, that by means of a seizure, carried out unexpectedly, of social books.

However, the mere fact of being notified by a bailiff's writ-sier, gives the guilty party all the time necessary to destroy the evidence of his wrongdoing.

Much better: thanks to the slowness of the civil justice system, The thief can disappear with the money with impunity. stolen, even while taking his time and defying his victims!

*
+

What I have left to say is appalling. Subtleties, selections, carelessness of those entrusted with justice Tice, all that is nothing! They do more: in the name of

They dare to inscribe, alongside the law, case law... twisted dences which allow, more or less, to legally commit all the offenses that the legislators-
The perpetrators had wanted to reach and punish.

Here is a doctrine professed by the chamber of correctional appeals, presided over, on June 24, 1885, by Mr. Boucher-Cadart - (the Comptoir in dus- affair triel of France).

This doctrine skillfully condenses all the doses of indulgence that the guardians of justice will be able to hold reserves to save the financiers which would be "recommended" to them.

These are still public limited companies and, all particularly, strangely easy to constitute a share capital without spending a penny.

In other words, the lawful method will consist of not to pay metal to acquire securities and to keep these only for as long as necessary to to excite the Stock Exchange, in order to resell them at a profit;
it's the game of chance in all the beauty of its pa-racism.

The famous law of 1867 requires, as we know, the payment-actual amount of a quarter of the subscribed capital.

According to the case law I am citing, here is how-Therefore, from now on, it will be possible to establish the capital of a public limited company:

I want to build up a capital of 4 million, of which

198 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

a million paid. To this end, I agree with eight or ten people and, together, we subscribe-We have all the shares; then we draw from installments, at three months, for example, to obtain, by the discount, the sum of 4 million; it is this million that we submit to the notary and, at the founding meeting, we can declare that the quarter was paid in cash.

This is the moment to remember that the ano- society nyne is, essentially, a capital company, solely responsible.

But this responsibility is only real if the Capital is free and liquid.

Now, by the method I have just described, the _ capital paid in is fully deducted, even before the company functioned.

It will be objected that the founders are not still the social being; masters Jacques, they only have the cook's apron, and will only put on after the coachman's jacket.

It will also be said that the subscriber is committed for four-quarters; that, consequently, the first A million may be owed and lost, it matters little. because there are still three million to pay; I I will reply that the capital to be paid is a simple hypothesis; that in this case, I only have to start again, for a second million, my retirement program, Alin to be able to say that my shares are half freed are in bearer form and, consequently, in order to trade them in Sotck exchange.

THE KEEPERS OF JUSTICE 129

Therefore, using known processes, I create what we call a market, and I manage to sell in public, with a bonus of 50 or 60 francs, shares on which no payment has been made.

So, eight or ten of us carried out a charity- a fee of 60 francs per share, or 480,000 francs, and this The profit didn't cost us a penny; we rem- Let's buy the tickets and that's at most if our 480,000 francs are reduced by discount fees.

At first glance, the moralist would find that there is This is a gigantic scam; it's nothing of the sort. because the correctional appeals chamber said, the June 24, 1885: "It matters little that the payment of "a quarter is absorbed in advance by the payment of "drawn drafts prior to the constitution of "society; the law only wanted to require the existence" "of a payment, without worrying about its use "Later."

There is something even better; again, thanks to jurisprudence-caution, I can absolutely do without pay the drafts drawn: |

130 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

All I need to do is slow their circulation for two years and one month, provided that I had the precaution to create, from day one, actions half released and issued to bearer.

The first drafts drawn to constitute the companies are reimbursed using a second a series of drafts drawn, this time, by insolvent individuals, but bearing the backing of society.

We need to know, in fact, that in Paris, there is everything an army of people without any fortune, including the The only social position consists of making tickets to order with renewable circulation and to play the role of shareholders on the day of the general meeting. That is what I would call title truckers and promissory notes.

They are given a salary, they are warned of the move where those concerned will no longer repay; to this at the moment they moved, separated from their possessions with their wives, who went to Tonkin, etc...

But, at that moment, it is the moral being: society, who became responsible because of her endorsement.

Also, when the installments are not paid, She is the one who will be prosecuted. But for two years and for a month, under the pretext of various matters, he will have It has been possible to support circulation.

Let's clarify and push the figures further, to reveal the enormity of the profits.

THE KEEPERS OF JUSTICE 131

We are ten members. That's enough for the law; capital: 40 million, of which 20 million was paid up. thanks to drafts drawn before the constitution ct replaced, subsequently, by other drafts having the social signature, but created by insolvent people.

For two years and one month, the discount fees and traffic costs will have cost us 2,400,000 francs. But, when the time came, our title truckers sold on our behalf on the Stock Exchange all our shares for the amount paid, plus 100 francs bonus, i.e. 350 francs; so that, two years and one month after the general meeting, having both formed the company and issued the bearer shares, we no longer own a single share. We therefore received 28 million. At the time when the last series of installments is coming due, we do not we are no longer shareholders or directors; a new layer has replaced us; on our 28 million, we were able to withdraw 2 million for to cope, for two years, with the overhead costs and to appear as cash in the balance sheets. These 2 million lions and the 2,400,000 francs discount, that is, at Total, 4,400,000 francs, plus the truck drivers' wages neurs, or finally, 5 million, we make it the sacrifice.

Then disaster strikes, the company stops paying, it is declared bankrupt, the trustee calls the second half; that makes absolutely no difference to us: the Court of The appeal to the Court of Cassation absolves us of all responsibility. There The share has been in bearer form for more than two years.

139 | ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

As for us, we received 28 million. minus 5 million, i.e. net 23 million, i.e., per per- it amounts to 2,300,000 francs, which is the product of ZERO franc paid at the origin; we can enjoy it quietly, without anyone being able to claim them to label.

Deus nobis hæc otia fecit!

This god, or rather these gods, are the courts of appeal. and of cassation.

The latter, on June 29, 1885, had indeed just to decide in its infallible sovereignty: "that "The essence of a bearer security is to establish no "link between successive bearers; the transmission" "which is done with it simply has the effect of making "the new holder member of the public limited company" "and to oblige him towards her; the rights that he con-

"the obligation it imposes on him; but from the moment
"where, by a new cessiou, he himself trans-
"He cannot, by bestowing this quality of associate upon another,
"no more to be sought by the transferor than by the
"the company itself due to obligations which have "ended with the holding of the securities; it follows that
"the transferor, in the event that he is obliged to release

THE KEEPERS OF JUSTICE 133

"his shares transferred by him (which no longer exists)"
"after two years of being issued in bearer form), there is no recourse
"that against the current holder on whom it relates, in
"Right, the final responsibility for payment."

And that's how ten skilled, sheltered people under the credit of a company, supposedly formed in capital of 40 million, can, with impunity, pre-raising, in the public's pocket, 23 million net, by "two years, without work and without expenses, by the sole abuse of a fictitious loan.

After that, people will still say that the Court of Cassation is the safeguarding of public morality!

The Court of Cassation is uninterested in the matter; its intervention is effective sometimes, often even if you will, in matters of civil procedure, but,
In matters of criminal law, it is, quite simply,
like a fifth wheel on a carriage.

I certainly won't insult him by believing whether she sees or does not see the violations of the "form" in criminal trials, depending on whether it finds the jury's verdict more or less correct;
but, as it rules by way of provisions general, to establish the interpretation of the laws, while leaving it to the judge to assess the "intentions", In short, she only manages to entangle prodigious-the civil courts within the jurisdictions criminal and vice versa.

11 8

e

In the area of financial law, which is real-a separate right, to be completely remade and created
The Court of Cassation is floundering with all of this.
the most perfect good faith, but also with the most complete ignorance.

Respect for parasitism, which dominated it by a in a latent way, it invades him ostentatiously and brutallyment; the ruling I just reported above in is clear proof; I could multiply the examples if I were not afraid of transforming this An ethological synthesis in a law course; I believe, Moreover, having said enough to highlight the flaws in the judicial system.

I will only say a word about the Court of Cassation taken as a disciplinary chamber for the judiciary.

In this role, she brings a certain indulgence fatal to the moral interests of this country. She obeys, I I know, it's about the desire not to create more scandals.
in order to infringe as little as possible on the respect due to those who administer justice.

But this goal is best achieved through indulgence.
or abstention, which leaves the facts to stand, of which Public opinion takes hold, with varying degrees of competence, which through a series of capable severities to reassure this same opinion, deeply moved rightly or wrongly, as soon as she becomes aware of partscandalous practices or maneuvers?

THE KEEPERS OF JUSTICE 435

Finally, isn't there, on the rare occasions when we see the action of the court manifesting itself, more than Political theory versus practical discipline?

What becomes of morality in the midst of all this?
How can the people, whether more or less enlightened, to rise to the cult of honor, when he sees the crime impunity and probity are sacrifices, in a crowd of judgments issued by the civil and penal courts Nales? When he finally sees, in matters, at the bottom of which looms the sinister shadow of the guillotine, a childish form, demolishing an entire procedure lasts, while, in those where it concerns the means of subsistence for his family, the fruits of his resorting neither to the knife nor to poison, triumph of his honesty, without that honesty being able to benefiting from the supreme court, thanks to the barriers without number, which are accumulated between her and him.

Don't I have the right to say, after that, that the justice, in the hands of its custodians, far away to ensure social equilibrium, foments its disorganization station?

*
+

After studying the community, in its jurisprudence-prudence and his mind, it is necessary to traverse quickly the main incarnations of his so-active veraineté, that is to say, the Prosecutor, the Judge and the President.

136 ETHOLOGY SYNTUESS

THE PROSECUTOR

Head of the prosecutor's office at the first or second level, he is on-all the uncontrolled appraisers of "facts and intentions." continues or does not continue. His mistakes, more or less unconscious-These events can completely paralyze the application of laws.

One becomes a public prosecutor just as one becomes lawyer or judge, that is to say, by entering law school of all the precepts of theocratic parasitism, tending to to create justice from the debris of equity.

The future prosecutor enters the prosecutor's office in the form of a young, fun-loving, and skeptical student: the modern bourgeois, imitating the ancient lord, he quite willingly distributed his gar-lessons between the bank or the Church, the justice system or the army.

These novices are testing their ignorance on the parquet floor. the most important ones; citizens of small countries pay Therefore, the costs of their education.

The deputy prosecutor's dream is to plead in a major court. The few workers are, at first, filled with great zeal; they are almost certain to move forward and receive their fees of prosecutor. Once there, their zeal waned; in a In large cities, however, they are more alert; in Paris, their Triumph is a political trial. That is what decides the advancement. This advancement has two outcomes: one becomes president chamber or attorney general.

The higher a civil servant climbs, the more power he has; the more he has The less power there is, the less fervor one has. When, by chance, one de- When the Attorney General at the Court of Cassation arrives, it's all over.

It is, above all, in the functions of the public prosecutor's office that the insufficiency

THE DEPOSITORS OF JUSTICE 137

the issue of salaries and the dangers of advancement make the most sense.

This organization is a reversal of logic. Putting at the very threshold of the application of the law, the youngest and the more inexperienced, instead of placing the most enlightened there by Study and experience both prepare us for injustices. and the scandals; consequently, it shakes the social balance.

The major problem plaguing the judiciary is, precisely, the personalism, the dangers of which I have already pointed out above.

This is obvious to the audience. The prosecution is constantly on stage; he is no longer a man who has elected- He's playing a part; he's an actor fulfilling a role.

It is not uncommon these days to learn that a The young magistrate stood and exhibited himself for the first time at eyes of the woman he wants to marry, in the exercise of a beautiful indictment.

Ridicule truly is eternal, and if Molière were alive, he would repeat on the judiciary what he did on the medicine, by showing us a substitute Thomas Diafoirus, graciously inviting his fiancée to come and see, "to to entertain", the dissection of a crime "on which he must raise the curtain".

There's no need to say "no," our young priests of action. The public perform graces with their lorgnettes and their long sleeves, and one shudders to see them blossom above the tears, ruins and dishonor, or the silence of their smiles or the ironies of their eloquence.

from among these smooth talkers who will one day be chosen as judges.

138 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

THE JUDGE

The judges' staircase has several steps; first there is the e— first the substitute judges; then it's the stepladder of the regular judges; Finally, it's the chair of the judge assigned to the investigation.

— At the commercial court, the judges are full of timidity boldness on legal issues and full of audacity in the factual questions; in general terms, they respect better equity; but, as they often offend the law, the judges Civilians often say of them: "They don't understand anything about it."

Although not without some shortcomings, the college consular judges have given evidence of common sense to regarding many financial questions. In this matter, the Civil judges rarely overturn their decisions; if he manifests himself
A disagreement arises, rather, when the same actions occur financial matters are subject, separately, to the jurisdiction of the courts. lionnels and to the commercial courts.

The consular judge generally has a commercial fortune. independent commercial; its ambition moves between the Chamber, The Senate or the decoration; he has rather broad ideas; no exempt, however, from the theocratic parasitism of which they rather accuse the Jewish nuance. Its great weakness, as I will explain this later, and it manifests itself through the auxiliaries that it employment.

— The civil judge has little initiative; whether he works or No, he is absorbed by the president's personality.

Moreover, he is chosen from among those who have the least gift of speech.

However, since the reform of the judiciary, the judge seems to aspire to importance; in court he takes on Notes, he speaks in the president's ear, he leans on his elbow or squares with intentions in the pose, to listen to the substitute or the lawyer; in short, he's doing what he can to attract attention.

instruction, because there he will be able to find some means—rather than simply making oneself known and hoping for a seat,

Immediately upon his appointment, this judge, formerly silent and nodding, a hat adorned with the president's kind words suddenly becomes a petty despot; willingly, 11 mel in their wrong, and the parchment which and the police headquarters.

An extraordinary thing: out of 100 cases, burglary, assassination, political crime, he refers 90 of them to the chamber of accusations.

But, out of 100 cases: financial crimes or offenses, having their source in the interpretation of the law on social security anonymous, it's barely 145 or 20 that are retained for to reach a hearing.

Despite this, the investigating judge provides great services; but, like the commercial judge, he suffers from an infirm—moth-eaten; he almost always uses poorly chosen auxiliary verbs, and he places excessive trust in them.

— In general terms, and despite his desire to distinguish himself, The civil judge is a serf bound to the letter of the Code.

Justice of the peace, judge of first instance or appeal, he does not He will never happen to underline, through ingenuity, benevolence— It is harmful to the poor, and highlights the many flaws in the law it applies. He reserves the sweets for the financial criminals; for their he deigns to torture the texts.

In politics, his independence may not be entirely... equals that of the German judges (those of the time when reigned the prince, a friend of Voltaire); but, in jurisprudence, his generosity appears to be less than that of the English judge.

I don't know if a miller from Sans-Souci would find, at— Today in France, there are judges capable of protecting him against the demands of an owner named Grévy; But, for sure, it would be difficult for me to cite a judgment as spiritually level as that of an English judge whose I will report the case:

440 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

English law permits usury, at all rates, even at the one of 130 percent, which a certain lender had chosen for Calculate the annual interest of 20 pounds sterling. Cited before The judge, his debtor, was asking for time; the latter was of the debt, the evidence being undeniable. Hand over this poor man The devil to his creditor was, in the short term, to condemn him. to die of starvation; however excessive the interest, the sentence could not be avoided; the judge had only one discretion: it was to dedicate time.

He used it: he condemned the debtor to pay six pence per months up to the amount of the principal and interest. At this He took into account that he granted a period of approximately seventy years. for interest and fees.

Ultimately, this judge left it to the vagaries of life to decide. reduce to normal proportions the depreciation and the in-interest on the loaned capital.

But what would a French judge have done in such a situation? He would have condemned the debtor without worrying about the extra or less ferocity in his decision, eLil would have fallen asleep tran- 'keel, in the placidity of duty fulfilled.

THE PRESIDENT

Deputy prosecutor, public prosecutor, civil, correctional or investigating judge Lion, he passed through a small number of cities and a large number of cases; finally, he's president!

In the first instance, only one is actually president: all civil and criminal courts are required by vice-presidents; likewise in the courts of appeal and In the Court of Cassation, there is a first president and presidents of rooms.

As for the assize courts, they are presided over by a con-

THE KEEPERS OF JUSTICE AA

a judge at the Court of Appeal, specially appointed for this purpose, and therefore a candidate for a higher rank.

The presidents of civil courts and the first presiding judges Course materials are therefore, purely and simply, master-high-ranking officers, effectively performing the functions of commissioners-reporters on the conduct and qualifications of their inferiors.

Similarly, the vice-presidents, having the leadership of a chamber, are delegated by the holder and, with regard to their assessors, they fulfill pretty much the same role as

I will primarily be responsible for this function insofar as concerns the direction of debates in public hearings.

It is especially there that it takes on a personal, mer-vigorantly served, moreover, by the discretionary power-the number that the law assigns to him.

In court, the president is an absolute sovereign; everything is his is permitted and, if I were to cite the numerous transgressions presidential elections, I would have to reproduce, in this place, everything the volume entitled: The dossier of the judiciary, to which my
The very witty colleague Aurélien Scholl added a preface.
in the dazzling style for which he is known.

I will simply point out this particularity of Human nature, by virtue of which all defects and Human flaws suddenly manifest themselves, as if despite He, every time he feels in control, that is to say, in possession-sion of absolute sovereignty.

The deputy and the judge manage to maintain themselves fairly well in a fairly uniform tone.

The president almost never succeeds at this; that's why Accused, witnesses, or litigants may have known presidents rogues, good children, jokers, ironic, impetuous, be the whole range of characters which, ordinarily, do not develop pent than within the family and between the four walls of private life.

In civil matters, their verbose activity is evident less; moreover, the dialogue is limited to people of

149 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

dress: some more or less dry observations on the duration pleas; discounts granted or refused, not without some mischief; a particular way of saying:

– "The case is closed; in two weeks, for the judge-
"Lying."

And that's all.

Things change for both petty and serious criminals; there the the president questions and is in direct contact with the ordinary citizen.

I have already had the opportunity to show a prejudiced president, the only example because it indicates the existing antagonism, more than ever before, among magistrates, since the so-called reform accomplished in recent times.

The event took place in Corbeil towards the end of July 1885.

An investigating judge, Mr. Birague d'Apremont, presided over the Correctional chamber. The only inspection of that name recalling this Birague, cardinal (an Italian), who, said Voltaire, strongly inciting minds to the massacre of the Saint-Barthélemy, predisposes one to discover, in the person who... currently carries, a deeply rooted clerical figure.

On the other hand, the magistrate representing the ministry The public had a name of "Cahen", accusing, without mincing words, an origin-Israelite gine.

He was a fourteen-year-old child accused of having demolished a Cross.

The public prosecutor's office itself called for indulgence. agency in these terms:

– Ah! If it were a work of art, a valuable painting, I I would demand a sentence accordingly.

Then the president interrupted him, saying:

– Yes, if it were an object of art, like the one that is at-above your head, isn't it?

Above the speaker's head was the bust of the Republic; Cahen was not disconcerted and replied:

THE KEEPERS OF JUSTICE 143

– It is not my habit, Mr. President, to do to degenerate my indictments into dialogues.

After which he gave his conclusions.

It is likely that it is on the back of the young accused that the storm, thus rumbling, was about to burst.

I admit that the public prosecutor's office may not have was not very happy with his choice of comparisons; by the art object, the Jewish bric-a-brac had shown a little too much tions; youthful carelessness or poor education who hardly choose between an art object and a bollard-fountain.

But what about the president's allusion and his opposition? tion of the cross to the official emblems?

There is, in this short dialogue, a narrow-mindedness that is not made to give a high idea of the current level of our judiciary.

In any case, the example I just cited confirms my previous observations, and I would readily bet that the president of the Corbeil criminal court will not arrive not quick to be advised.

It would have been better for him to have to judge a beautiful contra-intervention in the 1867 law on public limited companies. It is in such a matter that one can point out; not that there exists a definite course of action; but, with a little flair, one unexpected results can occur.

Therefore, I will conclude this study of presidents by recording-simply stating the facts that follow:

A former public prosecutor in Toulouse, author of a draft law amendments to the Code of Criminal Procedure were, well, a beautiful one day, sent to Paris and appointed president of a chamber correctional. His name destined him for the study of crimes: he was appointed-Bagnéris was peeling; as we can see, the prison is in this word.

He had barely settled in when he found an opportunity to make his presence known.

444 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

loudly; for it was he who, in December 1882, had to condemn the two wrongdoers from the General Union.

Less than a year and a half later, another uproar; the same Bagnéris signed a judgment proclaiming the innocence of the directors of Crédit Général Français and, among others, by Messrs. d'Erlanger and Berthier. A year passed and the roul-The report on the judiciary, published in August 1885, reveals that the Even Bagnéris, already promoted to councilor, is currently doing part of the indictment chamber.

No other president has experienced anything like this. whom I have already mentioned: Mr. Ruben de Couder.

solemn constants, some financiers of Crédit de France very well regarded, it seems, in the Republican party; not content
In addition to this, in September 1884, he was still condemning administrators Zodiac architects, among whom were elected representatives as Republicans. However, the same rotation of The magistracy, published in August 1885, informs us that this
The magistrate remains vice-president of the court of first instance.
instance, but passes to the eleventh correctional chamber to the third civil chamber.

Thus, finance does not bring happiness to everyone equally.
world, and I wonder what the reflections might be magistrates who, with a personal interest, much more attentiveness and investigative spirit that I bring to this work, witness advances or delays which, even if attributable to chance, they are no less extraordinary dinars.

VIII

Auxiliaries for justice.

The waiter. – The clerk, – The bailiff. – The referees.
– Liquidators. – Trustees. – Civil and legal experts.
Criminal. – Notaries. – The solicitor. – Legal aid.
– A gunshot. – The auctions. – The lawyers. –
Money matters. – Council of the Order. – Tolerance. – Various scandals. – Ambitions.

Here is the endless sequel of the auxiliary em-bent by the sovereigns of justice:

– The most powerful of all and the most irresponsible
Sand, as I announced, is the waiter; Ultimately, it depends on him, without appeal and without cassation, the opening or closing of the door behind which is the substitute or the prosecutor the person you need; the president or the judge whose files he carries.

Anyone: solicitor, bailiff, lawyer, expert, trustee or commissioner, everything passes through his hands.

It depends on him whether a file is forgotten by A careless mistake on Monsieur's desk; that a letter either delivered exactly, too early, or too late;

that a citizen, in pursuit of his right, may or cannot reach the official who, often,
His life and honor depend on it.

Go ahead, to a boy who says to you: "Mr.
The public prosecutor has left, » reply:
"You're lying, he's in his office."

The president himself, who had charged his son with transport the files he is going to examine or that he will examine; this leader who lives amidst chaos, What can he reply to this subordinate, when few calm, himself, in perfect order of his documents, he questions him under the circumstances
following:

– You didn't touch anything on my desk?

– No, Mr. President.

– But I asked you to take this bundle to such a place.

– It's done, Mr. President.

– You haven't lost anything, at least?

– Oh! (with a smile) Mr. President
I know that word is true, I never lose anything.

And yet an important piece has disappeared; and It is the honor or fortune of a family that is in play |

Do you believe that this magistrate will resign himself to con-spanking for negligence, whether he is the author or

7 →+

AUXILIARIES FOR JUSTICE 147

No, he's still responsible, isn't he? But, for
To get to the bottom of such an accident, it would be necessary that he receives, and the waiter knows so much things!

Well, it's dreadful to have to declare that, in many cases, on the "skillful" advice of a intermediate, important parts are, or unpublished, or found too late.

Generally, the service boys are honest: but, in an era where public conscience is so deeply troubled by the actions of finance; at a time when old servants, Having grown old in the harness, they disappear one after another. the management of all positions of trust; at one time, Finally, where the choice of civil servants is almost entirely at the mercy of chance and intrigue, which therefore would dare to consider with a calm eye the formidable threats that can be hidden behind the Negligence on the part of an office boy?

And then, who will dare to tell these other mysteries? still buried between the bailiff and the same boy, when it comes to this routine operation: The fee tax? Who will tell how, thanks to certain indulgences, the poor debtors Are they paying fees they don't owe?

Who can say how the delays in au-

148 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

Discipline, pleadings, and judgment? How? a matter, coming in a useful order, will be found Suddenly relegated to the back row? How? year after year, a trial, after having suffered all delays by the bailiff, the solicitor or of The lawyer may still face significant delays. capable of making it last four or five years Again? – Let's move on.

– Above His Majesty, the waiter
The clerk sits on the throne.

A very important, highly educated person; always tough to the petitioner, still protected by the president, to which he owes the frequent subsidiary functions estate liquidator and other work lucrative.

The clerk is, above all, haughty in attitude when He is in court; in his office, he is... mant. It is subdivided, moreover, into numerous fragments The offices and the registry offices are almost like ministries. Generally, the clerk offers little leverage to the critical; a few cases have occurred of disposi- hairs, truncated in the decrees or judgments, but are quite rare, fortunately, and, most often, we manage to keep them out of the public eye audience.

– Here is the Aiusster; it comprises three classes: the court clerk, the member of the trade union and the simple bailiff. Those of the first two classes have a very great circumspection; at most if, in exceptional cases, they seek "Advantages" for the tax on their expenses. However– at the very least, they have a particular respect for their profession. sion, the nature of which is often very unpleasant.

AUXILIARIES FOR JUSTICE 149

The vulgum pecus contains: the brutal bailiff, the bailiff-banker and the bailiff-business agent. It is among these latter that we find the least scrupulous; these never stop in front of a procedural trickery increasing their profits; the An ignorant public is incapable of warding them off. effects, which are, almost always, the loss of a trial; these bailiffs, the disciplinary chamber knows well.

All of them, whatever class they belong to, have bought their charge; in Paris, the price is very pupil.

Despite the oversight of the chancery, which more than once, demanded reductions, the bailiff seller and the future 'buyer' bailiff agree between them to conceal the true figure, at means of long-term secret treaties; from then, their profession becomes a form of trafficking, like a other whose profits they are forced to exploit.

These facts were discussed ten years ago, when The bailiffs sent a petition to the Assembly national, to obtain an increase in their prices.

That said, it must be acknowledged that there are certain- in Paris and even in the provinces, bailiffs austere yet benevolent; who, far from treating with ferocity the people they deal with, their are often gentle, and even helpful.

Bailiffs are not recognized as public officials; that, at least, is what results from a ruling of the Court of Cassation of July 47, 1885; according to this ruling, they are neither "depositories or agents of public authority nor "those responsible for a public service or mandate, "even when they act at the request of the party- "Question." |

This legal precedent, which arose during a trial where proof of the defamatory allegations was offered toires, is difficult to justify; in fact: is fonc- public official "any man whose function is imposed by law and subject to oath.

However, it is well known that no procedural act has an official character if it has not been served by a bailiff. The Court of Cassation undoubtedly wanted to... to treat the bailiffs at the jury's judgments, and to She preferred to paralyze the defamation, because she knew It is very good that direct action by an individual, against a bailiff, for actions related to his duties, is admissible not only before the chamber of discipline of the corporation, but, again, before the criminal courts.

AUXILIARIES FOR JUSTICE 151

Its jurisprudence is nonetheless very da- manager.

This is yet another example of the cases where this council of interpretations alter the substance while maintaining the appearance to respect the form.

It would have been much more honest to declare that the

before the jury; lacking this candor, she posed in principle a falsehood, which can be misused to violate, once again, the defamation law as amended by the press law. If this case law only concerned the bailiffs in Paris, perhaps it would be tolerable; but as it also applies to the huis-siers spread across the entire surface of the country, she leads to appalling results.

A very large number of municipalities have for The mayor, a bailiff. The voters have likely-wanted to honor this civil servant (badly-(according to case law), and perhaps also, to have some rights to his good graces.

However, in small towns, the bailiff is A power and a scarecrow. Just imagine. the bailiff-mayor acting in his dual capacity, and you will see how abuses of power are added-teront to the abuses.

1459 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

So, go to a court and ask to prove wrongdoing committed by The mayor-bailiff? In most cases, the The mayor will cover for the bailiff, and the bailiff will defend the mayor; it will be very difficult to separate the two pou-SEE.

It is unheard of that moral authority, attached to the municipal function, was not deemed incompatible tible with the ministry of the seizing bailiff and selling a debtor.

A large number of municipalities are thus suffering An intolerable tyranny. (In the chapter on the Holders) of the force, I will tell how, in a small town in Calvados, the mayor's son was able to to award a citizen's factory, after having taken it from him, previously, his wife and having him expelled as a foreigner.

The intellectual level of the bailiff Large cities, with Paris at the forefront, have a relatively high rate of [taxable income] that of the provincial bailiff is just as low, established bli in small towns.

Facing the ignorant peasant, the bailiff is like a light "in the dark den of justice." He has replaced the medieval clerk, so that this name remained with his employees; in short, he sums up the whole

AUXILIARIES FOR JUSTICE 153

legal background, but, having less education, he exaggerates its distortions and Jewishness.

And now, where is it recruited from? Everywhere! – We requires no diploma from him, as is done for – court clerks. Bailiffs don't even have

You don't need to have a high school diploma.

All the dried fruits of intelligent work can Therefore, they aspire to acquire an education; it is enough for them, being twenty-five years old, having satisfied the laws on military recruitment; having worked, at a minimum, i.e., two years with a notary, a solicitor or a bailiff, or three years at the registry of a court of first instance; after which, on a certificate of good character, issued by the trade union chamber They pay a deposit and take an oath.

– Between the bailiffs and the other officers nisteria, the choice of which is left to the litigants. position themselves, as auxiliaries of justice, arbitrators, experts, liquidators and trustees.

These various parasites are imposed by the judges. As for their recruitment, it is implausible to negligence. Anyone can apply and obtain one of the four titles I just listed– to mériter. |

These people are, however, among the most formidable. because, officially or unofficially, the judges place absolute trust in them.

9.

I know very well that there are lawyers among them. failures and ruined lawyers, especially in the category-category of arbitrators and trustees, but it is not There's a guarantee there.

In any case, they prepare almost all the The work of the commercial courts: how? They alone know, and also the unfortunate justice-ciables.

– The referees tax themselves and do not work-slow passant while they do not have their provision. This provision is presented by one or the other of the adversaries, They don't care; the payment decides the summons. assembly of the parties in their chambers; then they draw-feels a relationship of which it is extremely rare that The commercial court does not accept the conclusions. siions. We can judge the abuses that are the conse-consequence of this organization, especially for the poor The devil who cannot pay the provision; there is no Not even legal aid is possible here. as before civil courts: the unfortunate who, after having been able to spend 7 or 8 francs, for pay the bailiff needed for the summons, then 2 or 3 francs deposited with the clerk's office, in the hope to personally handle his case and defend it, in order to avoid the fees of approval, there is, all of a suddenly, thrown off balance when, eight times out of ten, and despite Despite his protests, he was sent back before an arbitrator.

AUXILIARIES FOR JUSTICE 455

He is even often given the advice to acc-accept this path to go faster; for, in the Otherwise, he will be at risk of losing four hours. every two weeks, for at least six months, before arriving at the hearing in a timely manner. If accepts the referee, he is suddenly in the presence of a required payment and, if he cannot meet it, His claim will remain dormant for years. Jus7ee that he found the money.

Let's apply this case to a poor, destitute complainant more than the justice of the peace can judge, by Example: 500 francs.

Imagine that he is counting on the sum to eat that we owe him, and you will see by what terrible means

What remains for him is to voluntarily reduce his request for one hundred francs, because then the judge of peace will be able to give him, within a period of approximately 40 days, a final and enforceable judgment. This Jewishness is, as we can see, perfectly suited by our codes.

– Let's move on to the trustees. Here, it's a completely different story. This is a case! Their existence as a corporation is an abuse. incomprehensible; they have no reason to exist legal; however, they are and act as little kings, sharp, cutting and, exceptionally, paying the creditors. Covered by the judge consu–

156 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

The one who appointed them, they do what they want and That would be a very bad trick to play on the judges. of commerce than to seek, one day, their res– Written responsibility in the law, to redress abuses committed by these strange parasites.

In the legislator's mind, the trustee should to be one of the creditors charged with acting for the good common; it is only through tolerance that the courts in some major cities have admitted professional trustees to whom they entrust, Usually, it's about managing bankruptcies. Nothing is more harmful to the interests of debtors and creditors. The mere fact of seeing a same trustee Managing multiple bankruptcies should open one's eyes justice regarding the countless dangers to which This accumulation of information exposes public integrity.

– Remove the bankruptcy, and the trustee is called administrator or court-appointed liquidator. In both cases In this case, their story is full of horrors. Suicides Judicial proceedings involving citizens are frequent. newspapers from July 14885 recounted one, vera– Absolutely heartbreaking! Yet, this is just one case ordinary.

– Let's move on to the experts.

These are specialists.

A doctor, an accountant, a linguist, make a demand; if they have support and are actively scheming–

ment: after some time, they will see each other registered on the list of sworn and certified experts. The expert does not charge a fee, 1 liter is paid by the court; This represents, at a minimum, 500 francs for him. per month, whether he works or not.

They came out of nowhere, they're still belching from the day before. the next day; kings poorly paid, it is true, and, by the Human morality, all the more infallible. It is the expert chemist who finds poison where there is none He doesn't have it and can't find it where there is some. He's the expert. doctor who criminalizes or decriminalizes acts.

It is the handwriting expert who pontificates on the jambs and imperturbably attributes to Pierre this that Paul wrote, or vice versa. He's the expert. accountant who sees or doesn't see the tricks of accounting.

I would gladly add to this list the expert-charlatan, as Rochefort would say, if all do not did not seem to fill this wonderfully last job.

The most serious issue is that the entire criminal justice system, and often civil justice is in the hands of those people.

Prosecutor's office, investigating judge and even jurors of Assize court, hasten to accept their conclusions-sions; they seemed happy to unload their responsibility for irresponsible people, because the expert is irresponsible and unassailable.

158 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

Justice covers him with its majesty; the fact material being admitted and judged by him, the Court of Cassation, As a formalist, he will have to limit himself to investigating whether he has not, by chance, sworn an oath with the right hand or the Left hand. If it's the left hand, everything is... Start over. This is really ridiculous!

As for the unfortunate ruined, as for the incarcerated

For them! The expert, earning 500 francs a month, gave orders were given and justice bowed down.

– I will move very quickly through the subject of notaries, legendary provincial magistrates and dandies high places in Paris; their corporation has seen multiply the number of disasters, at the same time that the number of public limited companies was multiplying.

The notary's long-standing integrity has become more even rarer, and I attest to this in the Gazette des Tribu- In the same way, the delicacy of the notary profession has declined. at a time when rents were rising.

Notary fees are very expensive and, Normally, their clientele has decreased as that finance has become more popular.

However, at a time when income is increasing Its sole purpose is to motivate an exaggerated inflation of power. of capital, the real income, is the series of

◦

AUXILIARIES FOR JUSTICE 159

Sales based on increases in this capital. – A study

Was it worth 50,000 francs thirty years ago? It is listed

150,000 today; therefore, it must produce

Three times more. From then on, charging became an industry.

with as much monopoly as that of the railways iron and less control, again, if that's possible. The conclusion is easy to draw.

Here now is the lawyer.

He, like the notary, pays a very high price. its burden; its monopoly is even more direct, because, in civil court, the role of the solicitor is mandatory.

The true merit of a lawyer is to be reliable.

traps, ruses, and snares, including those set by the Jews who have Inspired by the Code, they have sown the seeds of civil procedure.

As, strictly speaking, all the ma-

The lawyer's duties are written in the law; he practices them. tick with absolute security; be a scoundrel with The law is about being honest. To deceive, with the Code in hand, it's putting the opponent in the most legal way possible of the world!

Some lawyers say, good-naturedly, when the exposition of "their skillful tactics" makes a high-

160 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

le-corps to an honest customer: - "What do you want? "It may be a bit roguish, but it's "Absolutely regular." They then proceed to... The dazzled eyes of the customer, the thousand methods that the advers-saaire employs or will employ; he explains how it will paralyze one maneuver, thwart another; will warn this one, provoke that one, and he shows Finally, how the opponent will get himself into trouble.

The lawyer is a fencing master who practices swordsmanship. crime with a roll of paper. Unfortunately, this The roll sometimes unhooks the sword of justice whose point, made of good steel, is very capable of killing "in the form of a trial".

Consequently, the lawyer has no other concern-tion than to bias by deceiving one's opponent. He He thus acquires the habit of duplicity; he brings in all matters a spirit of petty-mindedness which, for a man of honor, in the highest and most generous sense the word's treachery borders so closely on dishonesty that it has it's hard not to confuse them.

There are, however, lawyers of a rigidity and of impeccable delicacy; I'm not talking about The professional delicacy which, for them, consists of to practice all the dishonest acts of the procedure, but with absolute delicacy, that which I will call: generous and chivalrous.

I know some of those; they are, generally, their father's successors; in their inheritance they found their study all set up and often...

Respectable traditions. These are the ones that the Modern jobs disgust the most; they are the ones still others who confided in me.

With a few honorable exceptions, the lawyer modern is, in fact, very different from what it used to be thirty or forty years ago. He, too, is turning to finance; he has become ambitious; he dreams of the mandate municipal or parliamentary; it's expensive; too He is fierce when it comes to fees.

I said his ministry was mandatory. One the only way to break free from it, or at least to not having to pay for it means asking for assistance. legal proceedings.

A committee was created under this name, composed of a registration officer, prefectural agent, and three other people chosen from among former magistrates, and among lawyers, solicitors or notaries, practicing or no longer practicing their profession. The The choice is made by the civil court to the jurisdiction to which the dispute will be submitted.

Unfortunately, the cases where this assistance managed not to shirk its duty; for sc Stealing is his constant preoccupation!

In criminal matters, she agrees quite easily-lying; moreover, she could not abstain, because

162 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

one of the parties involved is always the ministry public, that is to say one of the members of the corporation tion, which must act in the very interest of its progress.

But, in civil matters, she is reluctant to accept the post-possible. It is restricted, almost exclusively, to essential aspects of social law, such as: separation, divorce, alimony disavowals of paternity; in short, it is limited to personal actions, in which poverty the individual offers no hope to the appetite

But if, unfortunately, it is a citizen ruined, precisely because he is not paid what he deserves
He owes it to him, and is powerless to obtain justice, because he cannot afford to pay for it, all sorts of difficulties difficulties are raised.

Legal aid is empowered to reach an agreement or to refuse. She is not required to provide a reason.
her decisions. Ordinarily, she prejudges the case whose files she was given; she decides thus, without hearing anyone, the unfortunate
The claimant will either win or lose their case. In such a way so that, for the indigent, there is no discussion nor contradiction, neither judgment nor justice.

"To him who has, more will be given; and to him who does not have
"Nothing, not even that, will be taken from him."

AUXILIARIES FOR JUSTICE 163

To compile a list of the countless acts of plunder thus favoring is almost impossible.

However, a portion of the
The magnitude of evil will be revealed when we know that, in the committee making the sovereign decision on refusal or approval Dance, the opposing counsel is present. He has the right to discuss poverty; however, 99 times out of 100 he proves that the claimant is a millionaire disguised as poor, otherwise a furious and malicious litigant faith; for, know this, to the reader who has affirmed your fortune by buying my book, we do not fill the conditions required to receive assistance only by proving that one is not subject to taxes on movable property.
_ So you pay 2,000 francs in rent; a mise-
Your landlord steals from you and ruins you;
not having reached its term, it pursues you and will You sell yourself. You request assistance to obtain what is owed to you and also to delay the sale of your furniture.

It's a lost cause! The tax collector will claim that you
You are taxed, so you will be sold immediately.

But as soon as that's done, when you have been expelled, when you have become a mere vaga-Bond, not imposed, and for good reason! Oh! So, you will fulfill all the conditions and if your debtor

BE able to obtain assistance in order to plead your case against him. This could last two, three, four, five years, during which you will have the right to die of hunger, and him, the ease of hiding his fortune under the name of a third party, if he prefers flee abroad. Such an organization must have to provoke a lot of anger.

164 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS.

In fact, the persecutory methods of some
Their confessions brought reprisals upon them.

We will see, particularly through the following example, that their devious nature adding to the difficulties of which the
The code of procedure surrounds the rectification of errors committed in civil matters have, sometimes, pushed the victims of these errors to commit a crime solely to gain the favor of judges.

The case was sensational and unfolded before the Seine Assize Court in June 1884.

Here's the fact: a man, the victim of a mistake judicial authorities had been exasperated by the actions of a lawyer and had ended up shooting him gun.

At the hearing, there was no ambiguity about the mistake made;
Everything is going smoothly regarding the attempted murder.

The prosecuting attorney did not no other way to incriminate the accused than to pre-to be seen as "exploiting, in order to enrich himself, the error "committed by the justice system against him."

The man is ruined by an erroneous judgment; he

AUXILIARIES FOR JUSTICE 165

proves the error; the accused counters with "res judicata";
He has a title, he uses it.

In fairness, the error is irrelevant; for
The lawyer, on the contrary, counts twice.

For him, there was only one way to have judges: com-
He commits a crime. He does it.

This is the man whom the public prosecutor calls a exploiter; he depicts him, according to the theory of upstart bourgeois, like an individual who has done all the trades "without prospering in any of them", and He ends by hurling the epithet "de-" at him.
class ".

Having failed and, moreover, having been robbed,
These are the first two crimes of this man;
Therefore, his attempted murder constitutes a repeat offense and
He deserved the full severity of the law.

But the jury was composed of defendants who had, presumably, knowledge of what the weight of the civil procedure; he took pity on the accused and delivered a verdict of acquittal in his favor.

The case I just mentioned was known to public under the name of the drama of Rue de la Paix;
The accused's name was Pagot and the public prosecutor was
Mr. Quesnay de Beaurepaire.

If I have recalled this lawyer's criminal theory,
Firstly, it's because he himself holds a high position.

166 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

in the minds of legal professionals, and that, consequently, it represents the psychological state quite faithfully of the majority of our magistrates.

If, instead of addressing subordinate judges to a jury, his indictment had been addressed to judges responsible for sentencing and enforcing the sentence (which is the case for the correctional court),
It is certain that Pagot would have been convicted.

So far, I have only examined the solicitor acting in view of a trial; but his ministry extends well beyond the audience.

In consultation with the notary, he has, in a way, monopolized real estate sales and we can say that these auxiliaries of the law are truly the Real estate brokers. Also,
Like their counterparts in the Stock Exchange, can they,

Apart from sales negotiated by private agreement and which are the least numerous, every time he the aim is to construct a building, to satisfy a for a debt or for the division of an inheritance, it is necessary to hire a lawyer.

The law itself prohibits any agreement by which a creditor would reserve the right to do selling his debtor's properties, without fulfilling The formalities of real estate seizure. Produced in In the eyes of the law, such an agreement would be declared null and void.

AUXILIARIES FOR JUSTICE 467

"So everything takes place under the watchful eye of the court and by Attorney's office.

I will not go into detail about the thousand tricks, made possible by the law, regarding real estate sales; I would say, only that the prosecuting attorney sets the stake at price, drafts the specifications and that, failing of bidders, he remains the successful bidder.

The treaties that comment on this part of the procedures even have the cynicism to record the The following thought:

To the question posed by the professor:

– What if no bidder comes forward?
What do we do? The treaty answers:

– The plaintiff will be declared the successful bidder for the starting price specified in the terms of reference; which IT IS OF NO INCONVENIENCE TO HIM, BECAUSE, IF HE DOES NOT DOESN'T WANT THE GOOD THINGS OF THE SEIZED ITEM, HE CAN SET SUCH A PRICE THAT HE SHOULD NOT FEAR THAT IT WILL BE LEFT TO HIM.

I would like to know what sign an honest person has
A man can recognize the price capable of not giving it Inspire no fear? Obviously not a high price or just exceeding the total _of his claim. Because, then, the creditor would have to a payment. – So it's a very low price and, generally, well below the amount that one
* He owes it. That's the price that gives him complete security.
However, one only needs to consider the Jewish community of this circle– consistency, to anticipate the maneuvers which one can, in order to avoid competition, engage in auction day; one also shudders at the thought of abuses that could occur, if only with regard to the operations of Crédit Foncier.

Real estate sales are one of the big profits lawyers; they are, so to speak, sewn to their monopoly and, if the law has imposed some responsibilities, in exchange she granted them so many privileges, for the recovery of their costs, that this responsibility rarely finds the opportunity chance of being exposed.

And finally: the lawyer is very often elected MP, how can we hope to obtain through him either useful procedural reforms, or Egalitarian laws on real estate ownership?

Let's move on to the lawyers.

L
++

The lawyer in his robe is one of the most sovereigns important members of the judicial system.

In fact, it is he who inspires judgments and, provided that it remains within certain limits as provided by the regulations, he enjoys, in court, of complete immunity.

The legal profession is free. Every citizen

AUXILIARIES FOR JUSTICE 169

French citizen who, enjoying his civil rights, justifies possession of a law degree, can be registered on the list after three years internship.

Despite this apparent liberalism, one must not to believe that in Paris, for example, every law graduate to be able to practice law. It happened organic regulations, certain prohibitions have blocked the path for licensed players.

In any case, for the lawyer, there is no charge. to buy – (except in two cases which I will deal with) (perai later), no license fee to pay; a simple right, very minimal, during the provision of the An oath, and that's all; by law, therefore, it is the a liberal profession par excellence.

Thanks to two sentimental expressions where one took pleasure in bringing together "the widow and the orphan", the pro- The profession of lawyer has always been considered as having a particular character of nobility and of generosity. Also the offspring of the old aristocracy- cracy, invoking in hushed tones the "ceding arms" "Togae," took the robe without degrading themselves; for the offspring of the bourgeoisie, the toque was an elev- tion; for the sons of merchants, industrialists and For farmers, it was a dream come true!

The history of lawyers justifies this prestige, because

it's 10

470 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

She is rich in traits of loyalty and generosity. and of grandeur.

Unfortunately, what are called the "progress of the "Modern society" is clearly tending to transform History in legend.

Our lawyers may try to cloak themselves in obscurity today, in the solemnity of their guild; they may well, perpetuating a name borrowed from the ancients states general, wanting to be an order in the na- tion; they may well be proud, and rightly so, it is true, of the austerity of their governing board, the dreaded contact of the money question is risen up to them and threatens their ancient prestige.

I will not attempt to write a com- complete of the corporation; I will be content with si- to gnaler that it is, above all, in the aftermath of the major speculative fevers, like moral depressions invade the most respected classes.

after the plundering by the Allies in 1818, and that is what which explains the strict requirements of the decree of 1810 regulating the legal profession and those of the 1822 ordinance which left subsister almost all the provisions.

The most relevant of these provisions are the following:

"We expressly forbid lawyers."

AUXILIARIES FOR JUSTICE 471

"to make treaties for their fees or to "Forcing the parties to acknowledge their care before
"The pleadings."

"We want them to refrain from any support-"position in fact, of any surprise in the "Quotes and other misguided paths..."

"We want the lawyers to tax themselves-"
"the same, their fees with the discretion that one "must wait for their ministry. In the event that the "taxation would exceed the bounds of a just moderation-
"ration, the disciplinary board will reduce it"
"given the importance of the cause and the nature
"of work; he will even order restitution if he
"There is a need. In the event of a complaint against the decision"
"From the disciplinary board, we will refer the matter to the tri-"Bunal."

It is clear that this regulation has been made necessitated by recently observed practices.

There are few examples cited of lawsuits brought by lawyers to their clients; nevertheless, in February 1860, a case of this nature, brought before the court the appeal from Paris made some impression in the world of the palace and in the world of the press.

A lawyer from the Troyes bar had defended, In the Assize Court, a young man accused of rape and assassination; he had done it in the interest of this defense, a trip to Paris to consult a me-forensic pathologist. The accused was sentenced to hard labor forced.

The lawyer had received from the father of the latter a sum of 500 francs; he asked, as a supplement-fee and travel expenses, another _ sum of 2,500 francs, based on a correspondence-prior weighting before the debates, to demonstrate that The fees had been agreed at 3,000 francs.

The Court of Appeal unanimously declared that Such trials were regrettable and expressed the wish that they will not happen again in the future; that, if, in Troyes, the first judges had believed having to accept the lawyer's claims, these claims were contrary to bar- customs Parisian reau. That said, and, as it was necessary to resolve Having posed the question, the court rendered the following judgment based on the concurring conclusions of the Advocate General:

"Considering that the agreement articulated by
"X... is outside the honorable customs of the bar-
"reau, and that it is not established; that in fact it is
"It is well acknowledged that he proposed it, but that, far from it
"It is true that it has been accepted, the opposite
"results from the letter sent by one of the sons of "defendant to X... at a later date;

"Considering that, in this situation and in "the circumstances surrounding the case"
"which is the payment made by the defendant"

AUXILIARIES FOR JUSTICE 173

"to X... and accepted by him was sufficiently "remunerative; dismisses X's claims and
"He is ordered to pay costs."

The court didn't even need to search Whether or not the agreement was established, it was sufficient that the lawyer wanted to "force the party to acknowledge its "care before the pleadings," and that the council of discipline, which was within its rights, issued the opinion that The additional demand was excessive.

almost unique, and our French lawyers are demonstrating, generally, a great deal of loyalty and selflessness ressement.

The regulations of December 10, 1810 and of November 20, 1822, regulating the profession lawyers declare it incompatible with all the functions of the judicial order, with the exception of that of the deputy; with the functions of prefect, sub-prefect and secretary general of the prefecture; with those of notary clerk or solicitor; with the jobs to hire and those of accounting officer; and finally, with all kinds of trade. They pronounce even exclusion with respect to any person exercising the profession of business agent.

These regulations, however honorably severe, have to be the object of the concern of the council of the order.

Unfortunately, the financial blow that struck

10.

4174 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

on France and which, from 1815 to the present day, never stopped its invasions, caused, especially since the war, and especially also since the the great speculative vertigo of recent years, of disorder and even scandals within the order lawyers.

To the great detriment of professional dignity and in violation of incompatibilities, at least moral ones, that the profession entails, we have witnessed this astonishment a spectacular lawyer who stepped out of the painting to to address politics and being, not secretary general, sub-prefect or prefect, but deputy president-in a deliberative assembly, to get down from one's seat to plead, before the civil judiciary and in solemn circumstances, a simple trial commercial, rolling, it is true, on many millions.

The pleadings concluded and, presumably, fees related to the case having been Having received the receipts, this lawyer resumed his presidential seat.

His name was Jules Grévy.

Certainly, I do not intend to incriminate, here, the loyalty of the man, who has since the first magistrat of France, but I note that, for him, decrees and ordinances remained "letters dead.

This example, coming from above, may not have contributed little to relaxing the discipline of the order, and, as we go down the scale of fame, The more comfortable the actions are in their Obscurity, we eventually discovered that the arms trafficking These fees had been added to the existing ones. in a number of financial trials.

AUXILIARIES FOR JUSTICE 175

The facts I am referring to are still entirely recent and have caused some emotion.

Lawyers, having noticed the number of more in addition to the growing number of shareholders defrauded by the financiers thought that there was, for them, a fertile field to cultivate; so they decided to to carry out preventive conciliation, after having syndiqué with the help of "business agents", a certain number of shareholders and having been intimidated by a rather drastic procedure, the responsible administrators targeted companies.

Already, a fairly well-known lawyer who has been practicing since for a long time, had managed to reach, by this means, from very large compensation payments, without pleading.

Enticed by the success of a former lawyer, a young lawyer who, having been born into finance, dared to go further and, not content with the official compensation he receives—wait, he took a third of what he had obtained for its clients.

The disciplinary board had to take action; he was coming, Moreover, to discover what he was not looking for,

476 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

because he was then, only, on the trail of a a kind of lawyers' union, whose purpose is to acc—

The entire organization was functioning; subordinates were its agents, and were advertising, no disinterested, certainly, towards criminals, in favored by certain lawyers.

These various maneuvers in which finance had always-days, for their part, also tended towards another goal; lawyers with electoral standing hoped to find, in a famous case, a kind of platform-form in which they would be better displayed to the attention of pu-republic, thus giving to the works of justice, a the character of staging and theatrical performance, which I have already mentioned in relation to substitutes.

Of course, I'm not putting forward anything that isn't already proven. literally accurate, and for those who want details Those with more detailed information only need to read certain newspapers. not suspected of anarchism or hatred towards the magistracy: Le Figaro, June 5, 1885.

This need for publicity, this sort of histrionics, However, much more honorable means possible ways to be satisfied.

We know that the judiciary, in court, requires a great respect, while leaving the lawyers entirely latitude, with regard to the case that is the subject of their plea.

Rarely, in civil or even criminal matters

AUXILIARIES FOR JUSTICE 477

Nelles, he sometimes got seriously angry.

But, in political matters, he doesn't always have it It has been like that.

Under the Empire, a sensational affair stirred public opinion.

It was in 1860: Mr. Émile Ollivier, who was not again the shipwrecked man we know, and who, on the contrary, He was then holding the republican flag very high, had dared to say it. In defending Vacherot, author of the famous the work Democracy, which the imperial lawyer had delivered an indictment containing parts irritating, an appeal to passions, and that this was "BAD".

these words: –

– “You just said something inappropriate, re– Pull it.

When questioned, the lawyer declared that, not believing Having said nothing inappropriate, he had nothing to re– to tow.

Reading today's endless debates which took place in the Court of Appeal regarding this matter, mentioned solely for the purpose of punish Émile Ollivier for daring to qualify the language From the imperial lawyer, one is astonished to see that this same magistracy, so delicate, fifteen days Previously, regarding a lawyer's fees, and

178 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

The professional dignity of the bar is lost, all at Suddenly, his composure whenever a question arises political and now only offers the spectacle of a remarkable obsequiousness towards the established power.

Émile Ollivier was suspended for three months.

of the exercise of his profession.

Here are some of the reasons for the shutdown of the court:

"Considering... that in no capacity could he to allow lawyers to act as judges of the conduct of the public prosecutor's office and of arrogating to itself the right to censor either its actions, or his words, or, above all, his intentions for their to inflict a public censure.

"That it is judicially established that, speaking of an appeal made, he said, by the public prosecutor's office, in his indictment, to the most irritating, Mr. Ollivier added that this was bad-

I am going; that such an expression contains, obviously-ment, a reproach addressed to the organ of the minispublic order; that, by this, Mr. Ollivier has deviated of the respect due to the judiciary and failed to duties of his profession.

The conviction follows,

Today, a stop of this kind, where the impertinence and puerility vie for dominance, is happy-

AUXILIARIES FOR JUSTICE 179

sedition has become impossible; but can we assert that the servility of which it is the indicator has totally disappeared ?

The political subservience of the judiciary has not never succeeded in anything but diminishing his own authority and to destroy that of governments.

This was also the case for the Empire during the trial
Baudin, who made Gambetta's electoral fortune;
This was the case during the seven-year term, when the magistrats of the coalition of May 16 condemned the even Gambetta and 3,249 of his colleagues, that is to say at the prison, or a fine for the famous dilemma:
submission, resignation, presented to the face of the country, to loyal soldier who, a mediocre statesman, held then the reins of government.

Since the constitution of 1875 came into effect, Political trials, which have become somewhat rare, have not had this characteristic that gives the lawyer the air of a leader party.

This stems from the fact that the established power has a little condemned the defiant attitude of the judiciary affected towards him.

As for the lawyers, they have managed to worry much less to save their customers or even to af-to establish a political line, rather than to parade their eloquence in a courtroom overrun by the crowd

Despite this, it is surprising that the character of nobility, imposed, by its statutes, on the order of lawyers, did not give rise to the emergence within their ranks of a reformer who is both convinced and experienced.

Alas! Neither reform nor conviction, when the expé-
Nothing serves only to create skepticism.

Between youth and senility, the generation
The current one can no longer find its way: it seems dead Virility!

On the one hand, the lawyer with a large clientelebreuse, rarely agrees to abandon it for exchange his earnings for the meager reward allocated to members of parliament.

On the other hand, if he takes this side, it is, most importantly, wind, because he is nearing retirement and, in this
In this case, he can no longer devote himself to legislative work.
factors that a decreased activity.

The electoral mandate is therefore, above all, sought by young people, that is to say, by those whose clientele is not yet made, whose fortune is yet to be built.
whose experience is yet to come.

Fresh out of school, imbued with all the flaws of our codes and fueled by all prejudices, they are incacapable of breaking free from parasitic traditions, whose penetration is frighteningly universal.

Elected as members of parliament, they plead for their constituents.
the same way they would have argued for a client

AUXILIARIES FOR JUSTICE 181

to fees; and since, therefore, the slightest em-prunt, the slightest railway lifts, around of them, the anonymous financial criminals, they end up absorbing into "business" an aptitude-study at work and an intelligence that reforms social services would have been wonderfully used.

#

» +

To put an end to the use of court auxiliaries,
I only have a few words to say about the approved and the lawyer at the Court of Cassation.

– A certified lawyer is a lawyer who is, at the same time, special advocate at the commercial courts where the in-intervention of this last official is not OBLIGATORY.

The ministry of the accredited, itself, is not, in theory; but it became so, in fact, because the Numerous delays in the hearing are tiring and discouraging.
certainly the litigants; now a man who, by profession, attends, every day, all the sessions being occupied himself with several matters, greater practical and material facilities than the common run of martyrs.

Their fixed fees are minimal, being calculated abutted in isolation, but, as all matters are called at least fifteen or twenty times before

182 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

To achieve the desired result, this is the number by which you must multiply. their paid services. That said, I would add that they have, at the same time, all the qualities and all the defects solicitors and lawyers.

– A lawyer at the Court of Cassation is also a lawyer at the Council of State; he handles legal proceedings there as a solicitor.
and 11 speaks there as a lawyer.

This is the highest judicial or administrative court.
transaction; their mandate, generally free from all a kind of suspicion, exercised with little loyalty common. They have no choice but to know the Islands the intricacies of the procedure, in all their secrets, but, since they only study them in one direction of reform, they always end up being the enemies put the most convinced of all abuses.

It is among these officials that one could to draw widely on enlightened collaborators, the
the day when we want to reform our codes.

IX

Reforms.

Examples of honor. – Comparisons. – Uniform treatment.
– Age limits. – Patent and election.

My reviews are finished. Here I am now—not at all comfortable declaring that, despite their numerous flaws, the guardians of justice and their auxiliaries in France undoubtedly deserve—to be placed at the forefront of all those who,
In Europe, they hold the same positions.

As long as the ideal of absolute justice does not dominate plus my comparisons, as long as I measure humans among themselves, I experience great joy in to assert that the greatest sum of probity, of Jewel, independence, and honor are found among the French who serve justice.

Great acts of devotion have heroes among them.
magistrates; professional delicacy is involved.
numerous, and I could cite many more, which

184 STUDY SUMMARY

like Mr. Saillard, advisor to the Court of Cassation tion, have given evidence of tact and delicacy tesse, which I will report briefly.

As Advocate General at the Court of Appeal of Orléans, Mr. Saillard had spoken in a famous lawsuit brought by Mr. Parent for illegal arrest gale, and had concluded against the latter.

Having lost his case, Mr. Parent appealed to the Court of Cassation.
In the meantime, Mr. Saillard had been promoted Supreme Court advisor.

But he was part of the chamber in front of which The appeal arrived. After reading the report and the lawyer's explanations, which, as we know, have taking place in public session, the court withdrew to the
The deliberation room. Mr. Saillant remained on his

This gives rise to the desire to take part in the decision, because he had previously expressed his opinion in a lower praetorium.

This attitude was noticed and earned him praise.
press reports.

From the top to the bottom of the ladder magistrates, it would be easy for me to find some similar examples. I would also find some among Auxiliaries of all categories.

As for lawyers, not only their disinterestedness resentment is notorious in France, but also, in their large number, one does not encounter these weaknesses such as those reported abroad; by for example, that of this English lawyer who, reduced to the In his extreme poverty, he resorted to stealing and for sale a precious book belonging to the library of the order; this Englishman was, for this In fact, he was sentenced in April 1873 to six months in prison. It is also unprecedented in France that, Taking advantage of his immunities, a lawyer apparently... to steal several million from thieves for which he had pleaded and which had indicated to him their hiding place; but that's what an Italian lawyer did. arrested in Rome in June 1885.

REFORMS 185

Solicitors and bailiffs refusing to certify "Skilled" wools, experts pushing back against Offers of corruption, all of that exists, but this It also proves, by the mere fact that gu'2/ it must be pointed out, that honor is not universal and that an evil Secrecy is eating away at the organization as a whole.

Can it be reformed?

Certainly, I would not go so far as to say, like Mr. Grévy, that the best reform consists of eliminating the judiciary.

But, assuming we agree on the the need to overhaul the codes, and to revise the legislation; it being admitted, also, that Moloch-Baal is truly the all-powerful destroyer of the probity, it would require that all judges and all prosecutors, regardless of rank, receive identically the same treatment, and this since from the justice of the peace to the President of the Court of appeal.

That would eliminate progress in all of this.
that it is disruptive.

Are certain high-ranking officials bound, by their residence, and certain representation expenses? it would be very simple to attach a limited credit, to residence, not dignity; no sum would be paid to the holder on this account, but the latter . would target, purely and simply, the invoices for to be paid by the Treasury, up to the amount of open credit.

Regarding the setting of common fees for all the magistrates, an easy calculation based on the the necessities of life would likely lead to to a sum of approximately 15,000 francs per year.

As proof of ability, the school I already attended indicated in the chapter on lawmakers.

No function of the judiciary could to be exercised before the age of 45 or after the age of 60. We can see, immediately, that by setting it at 45 years the duration of the duties and the age limit of 60, one can, through a damping system, ensure retirement pensions and even, taking into account from the current state of the financial economy, to create, at after a certain time, a fund from which would emerge automatically the total of the treatments of the ma registration, thus reducing the annual budget accordingly.

OF

REFORMS ' 187

As for recruitment: the election; as for eligibility-Literacy: the proof of capability I've already mentioned.

tralure of the ideal to which the moralist should aspire;
It even has the advantage of not being irreconcilable with the entire existing social organization whose fundamental bases, however, must to be changed.

As for the rest, and so as not to overload davan-
In this chapter, I will summarize the reforms in what-a few words:

Justice must be free; therefore, it is necessary eliminate bailiffs, solicitors, notaries, etc.:
In short, all the expenses that can be bought.

The loaded letter would replace the feat: and a only one class of civil servants would give a date certaine to actions.

What I could say, in addition to what is already stated... cedes, directly concerns the reform of the procedure hard and that of the laws; to detail it would require a vo-light; or the broad outlines that I have drawn to The preceding chapters are quite sufficient for my current summary.

Digitized by Google

X

Those Who Hold the Power.

Weaknesses. – Military duty. – Brutality. – Sailors.
GENERALS AND PREFECTS. – Regions and departments. – Ambitions Miscellaneous. – Money matters. – Women. – Scandal from 1875. – Wasted cartridges. – A limited company. – Legislators' carelessness. – Prefectural transfers.

These very active rulers have no initiative
tive; they are absolutely passive; without their majesty
I could have categorized them as auxiliary items.

Their only merit lies in carrying out orders;
Also, in the series of functions, they are rather a an expression that is a principle.

I will not speak of the wars; of those of the ex-

I will limit myself to summarizing very briefly the weaknesses of the force.

The national army, too often reorganized, has 11.

190 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

certainly suffered from indecision and trial and error legislators' actions; as it is, it seems to have lost in momentum all that she gained in numbers and suffer, in this form, the backlash the flaws that I pointed out while studying the two previous functions.

It is unfortunately true that, if the feeling rights have become more vibrant than ever, in contact social injustices, on the other hand, it seems that the The feeling of the devorrs is dead.

Military duty, to which we are bound trained by the attitude of the nations that surround us nent, appears unbearable to the French citizen. Rightly so, he was deprived of the means to free himself from it. surgery for a fee, but, simultaneously, we have given to this same money such supremacy in all the facts of civil life, that the comparison comes naturally to the soldier's mind and inspires him the hatred of this exceptional obligation placed outside the power of the God of the Jews.

However, once enlisted, the soldier is always other; emulation takes hold of him, the old French blood He reasserts his rights and, should danger arise, he will be brave!

On the other hand, if the scientific processes of Modern warfare has shortened the hours of danger, – while aggravating them, they have, on the other hand, singularly– The frustrations of waiting were considerably prolonged. In

THE HOLDERERS OF FORCE 491

This agitation makes the soldier look less composed. than when facing the enemy, and it is then that discipline suffers from the comparisons suggested by memory habits of civil life.

We must dare to say it: the new recruitment method—
The military believed it could put fraternity where the social distinctions persist in seeing only the pro-miscuity; hence, two contrary extremes, according to the Respective positions of the officer and the soldier:
their militarization.

Never before had we seen, as in our time, populations have the opportunity to express their outrage over acts of brutality committed by an officer against a soldier, such as than those whose newspapers have printed several reefs.

Could there be, then, between the officer and the soldier, more
More antagonism and less camaraderie?

How is it that despite discipline much more severe, the captain's reports to Sailors have almost never caused scandals Similar to those of the army? The answer is simple; it is not, as one might say to believe, in the devout submission that one attributes so free of charge to the sailor, but firmly within the identity and the continuity of the dangers faced in common by the commander and soldier.

The navy, moreover, continues to be a car—

192 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

behind, while this is no longer the case for the army. There perhaps we should look for the cause of certain de-courage.

Some highly respectable theorists, to be sure, wish and preach the abolition of permanent armies nentes; the current soldier listened to them and, in his Heart, cherish this beautiful dream.

As a voter, he gradually gets used to going to the army, like our senatorial candidates, will go to senate, that is to say, by promising to vote for its suppression; and this suppression is the nation
The army in times of danger!

Alas! I fear that, in order to find the heroism of the soldiers of the Convention, he did not we must traverse, in symmetrical eras, the bloody preambles that marked the great

GENERALS AND PREFECTS.

Military force and civilian force have two kinds of leaders: the generals and the prefects. But, while the leaders The military are divided into 18 regions, the civilian leaders are re-departed from 87 departments.

This inequality in numbers has moral consequences; conflicts sometimes arise – the most recent being that which occurred in Tunisia in connection with a court decision. In France there are also examples, but they are hidden from public opinion.

This is what generals and prefects do with the direction and the justice; one has courts-martial, the other councils of prefecture.

THE HOLDERS OF FORCE 193

Although the responsibilities are clearly separated, the meaning the authority that emanates from it dominates all their actions respective power.

From a technical point of view, the general has a superiority: he has progressed through the lower ranks, often the most subordinate. and his training has proven its worth.

The prefect is appointed somewhat randomly. LS teuebon théo-Risk is usually good, practice almost nil.

The general is unable to approach the electrified corps. to prepare an application to the ministry. The pre-fet, on the contrary, has this single concern.

Both have battles to fight. The general has more of peril and less hope.

Moloch-Baal watches over them both; almost always Despised by the general, he is often adored by the prefect; the The Jewish plague is a serious problem for the prefectural body.

The army, however, is not immune to its contagions; But then we must acknowledge that the general, personally, is rarely achieved.

Dance has multiple functions. That's where the coat comes in. the trafficker rubs up, more intimately, against the uniform of the soldier.

The history of the administration in 1870 is appalling. The markets Military personnel from Lyon, the national defense investigation have revealed appalling facts.

The traffickers use all means, even the inter-median of the woman.

Who doesn't remember the great scandal that erupted in 1880? around the Ministry of War and concerning a former minister. It was less about supplies than about state secrets, surprised by a woman who was dealing in it. A whole scheme— A wave of accusations has arisen against the underworld, including Attendance was permitted at this ministry. Many The trials took place before the criminal court. But as, while acknowledging the fact, I do not want to stray from it in the stories, whether founded or not, that have been produced, I find myself... I will attempt to transcribe in this place a few pro-stated by a lawyer pleading in October 1880 and winning his case:

194 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

"I would like to remind you," he said, "that in 1875 a certain lady..."
"abused his relationship with a French Minister of War"
"She managed to gain the trust of the senior official."
"to the point of stealing his most important secrets"
"that she was selling to the German authorities."

"In 1875, she had an influence at the Ministry of War."
"Enormous, deplorable... She has money, lots of ar—"
"Gentle! It's not love that brings in so much; gene—" "
"French people don't have the means to throw money away"
"Windows. Where did it come from?"

But the lawyer who spoke in this way is now a senator, and His name is Mr. Allou; as for his words, they are enough to re-to reveal the existence of a painful situation, more or less general.

It doesn't matter after that whether I give a list, more or less shorter, other scandals, or other accusations or other trials.

Have the Jewish monster's strengths been blunted by contact with rigid military authority?

Alas! I'm very afraid not.

Indeed, for about a year now, a story has been circulating about damaged cartridges and millions wasted, of a character Strange. Parliament, newspapers, pamphlets, everyone's talking about it. are busy.

THE HOLDER OF THE FORCE 195

How is it, wrote a de-

Mr. de Janzé, that, from 1874 to 1884, that is to say during For ten years, the war administration failed to notice that the cartridges, supplied to her by monopolists, were a- They laughed with frightening speed? How is it that only after ten years and only after having gas- looted of hundreds of millions, it was discovered that the brass of These cartridges oxidized, causing the powder to lose a a good part of its expansive force?

They even mentioned a foreign war where these cartridges employees had brought about an absolute inferiority in shooting. terrifying when you consider that the French army could have been exposed to experiencing its effects. And, moreover, can we be certain that Has nothing like this ever happened?

You don't need to be a graduate of Polytechnique or a chemist. to know that even silver, sulfides or oxidizes in the presence of... tact of certain vapors or certain salts; now brass, /e more hydridable of the alloys, is in contact with the powder, me- a mixture of diverse elements not combined with each other and preserved thus highlighting their particular properties; per 100 grams of powder, there are 75 grams of niter; half the weight of the Nitrate represents oxygen; everything that, in order to oxidize, the Brass will absorb oxygen from the nitre, the powder will lose it in Strength! It's elementary!

And it took us ten years to discover the effects of this principle extremely well-known. And during the experiments, an officer de- asked a metallurgist what he meant by red copper. And as early as 1869, an artillery captain had published "that with "metal cartridges, supplies were "impossible, because chemical actions act to "Destroy the envelope."

And the supplier of the brass thus used, reduced to expeditions dients at the time he obtained the supplies, is current-

In 1881 he established a limited company of metals at capital of 25 million, including 24 million in contributions, and borrowing also— as soon as 20 million in bonds, — it is true that since 1884 his company's profits suddenly fell from 3 to {, and he cited the fall in metal prices! Strange coincidence, we com- threatened to uncover the flaws in brass! Only we had already spent 350 million francs on redoing our supply viewing.

196 ETHOLOGICAL SYNTHESIS

When anonymity is added to a thriving industry,
We can be sure that it serves to conceal past manipulations.
or to prepare ways to shift losses onto others in perspective.

The brass supplier began its supplies in 1874, spreading his debts over eight years among his creditors four years later, in 1878, the creditors were paid.
and he devoted 8,250,000 francs to acquiring or expanding factories.

Why then, one year before the expiry of the eight years,
So, in 1881, did he need to create a public limited company?
that is to say, ostensibly, to share one's earnings with shareholders?

And why 24 million in contributions, or 12,000 shares of 500 francs each, released without any payment? Admits—tones that, by impossibility, officials attached to military supplies received from these actions and that they
They inquire about their origin; they have the answer ready: I I bought them on the stock exchange. And, indeed, they could have... buy and resell them. The stockbroker is required to keep secrecy surrounding the operations to which he lends his ministry and, if one checks his books, one would find no trace of—before demonstrating that the sellers of the shares did not have any, originally paid for the property,

Such are the strange trafficking that creation can foster.
and the circulation of anonymous securities; also admit an en-quest tasked with discovering: 1° why we continued pen-eight years of receiving cartridges, all the more often renewables that they deteriorated faster; 2° how one was able to pay for brass at a price that increased the values by a third current practices in the metals trade? And it will turn out that the investigators, the Minister of War, generals or prefects do not—will cover absolutely nothing.

As for the legislators' indifference, their impassivity the budget committee, they are truly implausible—blables,

*
SS +

The demoralizing work of finance that torments the generals also train prefects.

These departmental chiefs, who centralize all the powers They, too, have been the subject of numerous accusations.

But they were caused much more by the needs of the personal politics of the MPs and their electoral interests toraux, than by the desire to save state resources or to paralyze certain expensive markets.

Prefects have been reported to be experiencing financial difficulties. easy transfers; we even witnessed this surprising spectacle—nant of a prefect, placed on leave, in circumstances such as one might have been justified in believing, up to a certain point, that he was being punished for having revealed irregularities to his superiors I must say that since The truth has come out.

The psychological situation, highlighted by this detail, me avoids the need to use other examples.

However, I must add that if the light has been shed, this is not to do justice to the unsung civil servant, but because of brutalities committed in another department—ment, under the responsibility of the said predecessor, raised public discussions about his background.

This leads me directly to talk about the prefect, head of the public force, that whose sole purpose is to ensure the or—Dr. and peace among the citizens.

XI
Auxiliaries for the force.

Officers and commissars. — A heartbreaking story. — The soldier of order. — The mania for rank insignia. — Instructions. — Acts of probité. — The policeman. .

The prefect can call in the army in case of unrest.

Most of the time, he is content with his army.
special which he directs, as he sees fit, as prefect of police.

In Paris, prefectoral power is divided; in the departments it is gathered in a single hand.

What the general is to the officer, the prefect is to the police commissioner. In turn, what the officer
The police commissioner is to the soldier, the police commissioner is to the officer.
Only the commissioner, like the prefect, has multiple functions where administrative matters and justice come alongside the direct employment of the strength.

This union of the two powers brings about some—

AUXILIARIES FOR THE FORCE. 199

sometimes appalling abuses; even with forms Legal acts of plunder are carried out.
in broad daylight, thus renewing, in the nineteenth century, the lettres de cachet which flourished so well two centuries ago.

I will not speak of the eternal question of the insane.
arbitrarily sequestered; this story is so computer—
so well known that it is even superfluous to mention.

But here is a fact where it is neither a found nor a criminal; it all boils down to a clever maneuver influential people who, wanting to take, at the same time, the woman and a citizen's factory, succeeded there with the competition from the minister, and therefore from the prefect, then of the police commissioner.

What I am about to reproduce is the result of a report made by Mr. Leconte, deputy, to a committee parliamentarian seized of a citizen's petition named Gillebert; now this deputy, assisted by one of his colleagues, conducted an investigation which explains the validity of the output:

– The story is heartbreaking:

“€ Pursuant to an order from the Minister of the Interior, On July 1883, Mr. Gillebert was expelled as a foreigner, for these reasons: that he lived in idleness, indulged in drinking, and by the me– the threats of death and fire that he uttered, was a a source of terror for the inhabitants of Carentan. While he was in Belgium, as a result of this illegal expulsion, the Caen court, which had declared French, authorized his wife to sell to those which had caused his expulsion, to the son of mayor of Carentan and his associate, lover of Mrs. Gillebert, her ceramics factory. Now, Gillebert, as the courts have recognized, the the French minister who expelled him, Mr. Constans, and the Belgian Minister of Foreign Affairs, was French, born in France to a French father and having enjoyed his rights as a citizen. One could not so expel him as a foreigner.

200 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

"The numerous statements collected in Carentan, by the two MPs who conducted the investigation On site, Messrs. Leconte and Lagrange observed that the reasons given in support of the ex- order These accusations are slanderous. According to these depositions, Gillebert was not idle, since he had taken up and brought the factory he had bought to full prosperity dilapidated; far from being a drunkard, he had left to Carentan, the very affirmative memories of a man Extremely understated. Far from being a subject of terror, He was naturally very calm, even in front of the incessant provocations he received from his enemies mis. A police commissioner further states.

AUXILIARIES FOR FORCE 201

"that he was offered five hundred francs to do a "False report" on Gillebert. None of these certificates are not legalized, says the rapporteur, and This is understandable since Mr. Gauville is the mayor of Carentan, that he was notoriously Mr. Gil-'s enemy from the factory.

"According to the report, Gillebert, made to the prosecutor's office from the Paris court, two complaints that were unsuccessful to no avail; when he addressed the warden of seals, no one answered him, and when he wore his cause to the Council of State, requesting assistance In court, he was told that there was no need to to rule on his request.

"Gillebert died at the Pitié hospital, on On May 3rd, before the petitions committee... tions would have finished his work, but as he leaves a thirteen-year-old girl, interested in seeing the washing machine his father's memory of false accusations the accusations leveled against him, which led to his downfall, The commission did not believe it had been divested of its authority by death. of the petitioner.

"She therefore refers the matter to the Minister of the Interior." Gillebert's petition demands fair compensation for the losses he suffered as a result of the expulsion order sion, asking him to give her the sanction she merit.

202 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

This unbelievable story, which was nevertheless officially reported... heavenly recognized as true, contains within itself everything a lesson.

A police commissioner was offered 500 francs. to make a false report about the victim of the most despicable plot; the report does not say that they were accepted, but he notes the expulsion; Moreover, a ministerial order covered the subor- given.

He could know that the order was unjust; but he had to carry it out, disobeying being the loss of its function.

And yet, when one considers that in doing his duty, this official was committing an injustice, one feels a sense of legitimate indignation!

There are therefore cases where the selflessness of the soldier The order is exposed to appalling alternatives.

Indeed, maintaining order within has its dangers, just like repelling the attack outside.

In fact, it is established that courage and probity are common among the humblest civil servants police officers and that, in their case, the cases of Venality is extremely rare.

Why are the popular masses in almost permanent hostility with what the Prefects call it "their army of order"?

AUXILIARIES FOR FORCE 203

Why this antagonism?

When it comes to examining this problem, I need to remind everyone that the permanent insurrection-Citizen opposition to the officer is a fact that is not widely accepted. special attention to France.

The Frenchman finds a way to rival the love of his own authority to the hatred of the authority of others; he has a mania for braid.

The braid has many names:

It's the red ribbon, it's the toque, the ermine, The embroidered collar, the gilded trim; it's the barrette of the cardinal, like the purple cord of the bishop.

Let no one think that this list ends to the wealthy classes, or the bourgeoisie; the mania of The braid is all the greater the more the man is smaller or more modest in function. It exceeds the limits of plausibility: it exists in the infirm and it exists in the infamous.

Have you ever overheard a conversation between two of these unfortunate people begging daily for mercy Public? One is a legless man, the other has one arm. However, in the beggars' brotherhood, the braid is to the cripple, because he possesses a far superior means-laughing at that of the penguin, to soften the heart of passerby.

In crime, there is even vanity; whoever has been enabled to hear, without being seen, the conversations

204 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

what do criminals exchange at the depot recently arrested, or in the courtyards, the prisoners after their conviction gives the impression that The bigger the crime, the more the fellow inmates have out of respect for its author.

In the penal colony, of course, the rank insignia is rightfully one's own. to the one who was the victim of a triple assassination, carried out by him alone, would have been sent to the scaffold, were it not for the clemency of the chief of the State.

Everywhere, then: in the horrible, in the sad, in the joyful and the ordinary, in the small and In the big leagues, the Frenchman is chasing after the stripes.

How many times does an ordinary citizen, without any official position, as if without a mandate, but driven by the heat Didn't he threaten his opponent with a quarrel? to "get it wrapped up"!

The funny thing is that, in many cases, yes, by. By chance, the wish-threat is fulfilled, it's on the executioner, who shouts the "haro" (uproar), and the Frenchman, like Sganarelle's wife, readily declares that he "enjoys being beaten" by anyone "except by the police."

Well, that's the whole story; there's no quarrel. in reality, only between the agent's material rank and the moral standing of the citizen.

However, most uniformed officers, the only that I want to deal with here, the only ones that are in official contact with citizens in their public civil life, have, generally, done part of the army. They acquired the habit there of obedience and respect for instructions; limited In their ambition, they are merely changing service, without hardly changing their fatigue. Dressed For the fight, they are ordered to be peaceful. By against, in his moments of exaltation, the popular is combative.

AUXILIARIES FOR FORCE 205

In a multitude of circumstances, the agent, who is the embodiment of the law in action in the form of instructions, is in immediate contact with the author of an offense; his intervention passes quickly from tongue to hand; it is, therefore, what the pawn is at the schoolboy's; the crowd being always eclectic and essentially childlike: that's the antagonism.

More instruction and education among some as with others, they would round off the edges; more attention from those giving the instructions would reduce conflicts.

In any case, I cannot help but have a high regard for the peacekeepers republic, at all levels, because in their country, well more than anywhere else, statistics have shown me revealed the existence of robust probity.

How many examples do we have of officers arresting

: 12

206 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

millionaire criminals and being seduced by their offers of money?

Do you believe that this high-ranking official was arrested there? a few years in the Champs-Élysées, at In the midst of his lewd exploits, he didn't try everything. to escape the agent whose hand he could feel his collar?

They number in the hundreds, even financiers of high lineage who, having been arrested, offered bundles of banknotes to law enforcement officers! How many of them accepted?

Only the great chiefs, or the high-ranking officials, verains who are capable of helping Bazaine escape; They are the only ones who know how to give uselessly the order to seize a lord to appease.

We sang about the policeman; come on then, to the last-to deny one of them, to offer a thousand francs note for that he turns a blind eye even to a simple offense of hunt, the discovery of which may bring him some benefit One hundred sous!

recruiting his recipe boys?

Alas! How many bankers and agents are there?
of currency exchange, notaries, senior civil servants and Even MPs capable of bribery and theft?
And how many of these modest agents can be found who, satchel at his side or arrest warrant in hand, have

AUXILIARIES FOR FORCE 907

experienced a failure upon contact with gold? addi-Calculate the value and percentage, and you will find { per 1,000 _ in the humble and 20 per 1,000 in the great.

And after all that, they expect me to be ruthless?
For brutality, or a mistake, or a stupidity! Oh!
No, not at all!

In this vile era where dishonesty is commonplace rale, we must respectfully salute honesty
A man who does his duty.

XII Reforms.

Military education. – Pitfalls for decorated soldiers. – The career. – Active army. – Reserves. – Permutations.

We must conclude.

Regarding those who wield force, their actions
Corrupters only act reflexively.

The humblest subordinates are the purest;
Going back up the ranks, we find more of hesitation.

So reforms are needed: but, in addressing this
On this subject, I will no longer concern myself with the prefect who, by his instruction belongs to the classes already studied.

Militarism alone and the frequency of its shipwrecks frages as soon as discipline loosens the absorb my attention.

It is well known that army leaders punish

How many examples do we have of sergeant majors who have,

REFORMS 209

as they say, "ate the frog", but having
They were able to reimburse her, which they do not retain from this episode of their military life, only a playful memory remains, like
It would be that of a fleeting romance!

In the old army, as long as he was under the uni-
In this form, the soldier "joked" with the money and didn't take it.
Not seriously.

Once he was out, and especially when he was retired of a rank or the cross, the financial administrations
The humble devwere boys from the recipe office or supervisors; simple Sergeants became bankers and continued to "Eat the frog."

As for the higher ranks, they were offered fauseats in the boards of directors.

There are many sounding names in the army;
to this sound is added a command title whether a member or an officer of the Legion of Honour, the clan of financiers surround them, seduce them, and turn them into an ensign.

Weighed down by fatigue, often stitched with wounds, old brave men suddenly find themselves, opposite a service consisting of sitting on the council once a week or once a month, in in exchange for such remuneration that, never, they They could not have dreamed of a thousandth part of it, even in risking their lives in an assault on a fortress.

12,

210 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

Judge for yourselves! Aside from the attendance fees ranging from 10 to 20 francs per session and representing the modest sum of approximately 1,000 francs per year, an administrator receives a share of the profits so-commercial. Generally, there are ten per company; one A self-respecting company always has a million a year they barely amount to 100,000 francs, and, by administrationteur, 10,000 francs.

Five companies and five trading days per month
They therefore bring in 50,000 francs per year: how could they not Wouldn't we be tempted!

Besides, being good children, not harboring any malice, ignorant as carp when it comes to legislation-financial tion; not suspecting the wrongdoing, or, even suspecting him, having retained from the regiment the tolerance of "gobelotage", they sleep thus a few years; then, one day, they are quite bewildered to be asked to sit on the police benches correctional. Yet that is what happens and their Decoration has only served to emblazon frauds.

And that's how the business launchers...
They sing on the chests of brave soldiers the five-pointed star branches that they print on their leaflets.

If the old army was preparing proics in this way doomed in advance to the caverns of Moloch-Baal, let us judge what she, whose soldier, can prepare

REFORMS 211

is burning to get out; where he has been associating with the "disgusted" and the cynics," where he hopes for no career, where He sees, finally, only a hateful form of servitude, a kind of an unwelcome interruption, likely, at best, to hinder his future plans!

Make no mistake, the "replacement" had its good points; its only fault was relying on a
It's a question of money.

But it's easy to find something else, especially in a country where free education is the dominant concern; but it is seriously important-security for its first army named breuse has no other occupation than to develop-without ulterior motive, his science and his strength.
peacetime, public works and agriculture they would find there what they so desperately need: arms disciplined, educated workers, whom they paid-would largely resume without interrupting the military profession silence, which would in turn find an interview of its strength and validity.

Nothing would then prevent a second army to be recruited for short periods in order to-Going online in times of great danger. Nothing.
would not prevent the existence of a third army, and the division already agreed upon would continue in the active army, equipped with a reserve, and in territorial army with other reserves.

912 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

11. There has never been a serious objection to a such a military organization if not that drawn from the fear of the praetorian cohorts too linked to the person of a head of state.

The Republic, which abolished personality from the leader, also eliminates the dangers of what one In Spain, this is called pronunciamientos. But it's on the condition that she does not give herself up, as she the fact, bound hand and foot, to the idolaters of gold, anonymous tyrants to whom I have given the name of Kings.

XNIII,
Opinion Directors.

The forum. – Public opinion. – The power of the newspaper. – Statistics tick. -- Girardin. – Moloch-Baal. – Four lies for A truth. – Subsidies. – How public opinion is deceived. – Various testimonies. – The Kaulla affair. – The repti- press lienne in 1866. – The Havas agency. – The hand of Germany, – Internationalism. – Finance and the press. – Genesis of a newspaper. – Editors and farmers. – Figaro. – Gil Blas. – Debates. – Leroy-Beaulieu. – Édouard Hervé. – The Messenger. – The Lantern. – The Review. – Financial press budget: – Venal habits. – A union. – National bank. – Le Petit Journal. – Testimonies.

Absolutely new power, – although the Rome of the Caesars was worried about the forum and Rome Popes invoked the vox populi, – the opinion that could- The republic only truly became sovereign once since the day when people's communications to people, from province to province, from city to city and of citizen-to-citizen exchanges were able to take place in the most small unit of time; therefore, fifty years ago penalty.

214 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

But, alas! this power which had believed it had found at the both the instrument and the consecration of his sovereignty clarity in the means of rapidly circulating the printed word, was not long in coming under attack serious. |

I don't mean to imply, therefore, that the opinion is a dethroned queen or the newspaper a weakened power; I just want to say that between the opinion that believes to express oneself through the newspaper and the newspaper that claims To control public opinion, a terrible monster has crept in.

The power of the newspaper is undeniable; the book, since Printing has existed for 400 years, but it only began to... it only became widespread in the eighteenth century and it took him all this time to "barely" shake the prestige of the 36,000 orators in cassocks who, from their pulpits parish church, had owned for fourteen centuries all the ears of the town and even the most small hamlet.

The newspaper alone had the possibility of to retrace, in fifty years, the path that had taken four centuries to the book and, as it is equipped to- Today, he can obtain it with ten lines and in forty-eight hours, the effect that the book will achieve perhaps after ten years of incessant propagation.

Like the book, the newspaper was subject to all sorts of vetoes. all coalitions of obscurantism and theocracy: Is he free now? He certainly is numerous; as for its independence, I will speak of that earlier. In any case, nowadays, the The whole world reads newspapers.

THE DIRECTORS OF OPINION 213

A statistic tells us that it exists in the universe of 35,000 periodical publications.

France occupies the second position which it shares rank.

The total number of periodical publications is of 4,092, including 1,586 in Paris and 2,506 in the provinces. Of this total 1 liter, there are 360 daily leaves. In other words—By taking an average between all the draws, we can to say that, per week, at least 4 million copies Pleasers are thrown into the public, or a little more one copy per inhabitant.

By only considering the daily sheets, we can state that, daily, 18 million copies Pleasers are launched into circulation, either 1 for 2 inhabitants; but, relying only on the number voters, we find that everyone can read all two different sheets of paper each day.

It is clear that the communication thus established between the writer and the reader, has an unknowable influence testable, and the Tartuffe who went by the name of Émile de Girardin knew this well when he published his pali-Noses on the impotence of the press.

216 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

In a country with universal suffrage, public opinion, by The voter holds supreme power. Therefore, before her, the old trinity: law, justice and force, did it have to to bow down first; only, a very courtesan Accustomed to royal prostitution, she quickly he had built his plan.

I said, at the beginning of this summary, how the The trinity of powers had been rebuilt and condensed. in metal; supporter of the trinity, Moloch-Baal could certainly not tolerate the appearance of a sovereign, unconventional, who came, so extraordinary—ment, to disturb the ancient symmetry of frinus et unus.

He made it perfectly clear to him, and the struggle was short; he... soon dragged himself into his infernal laboratory and, When she came out, it was over! The sovereign's opi-Nion had become a slave. She had taken communion!

Reader of goodwill who sees shining in your views all the colors of the prism in the form newspapers, so please be so kind as to fix focus your attention on three or four of them, and

At the same time, the journalist found the LOS in color the same fact.

Whether it is, for example, a session of the

THE DIRECTORS OF OPINION 217

Chamber of Deputies where Messrs. Paul and Pierre took speech.

The first newspaper prints this:

"In a concise and eloquent speech"
"Mr. Paul has completely elucidated the great question-"
"The agenda was then put forward; after him, Mr. Pierre..."
"imposed on the platform to spout his nonsense-"
"usual dews, in dull and flat language"
"whose secret he holds."

Now, open another newspaper of a different color.
Their difference, you will read the following there:

"Mr. Paul's ridiculous speech, delivered on a
"Your bland and monotonous tone cannot be counted in the "debate; it is impossible to display one's ignorance any better-"
"the stinginess of the big question put on the agenda of the "day; also Mr. Pierre, in an eloquent improv-"
"visation, had no trouble reducing to push-"
"To dismiss the pitiful argument of his opponent."

And yet, Peter and Paul were what they have been, and the newspaper is powerless to change anything.
By the way.

But, it will be said, these are interpretations, and the Interpretations are open.

Fine! Let's take another case: here's a short article:

"The minister of... has just launched the strange circum-"
"The following cular (text follows)."

Another newspaper immediately replied:

he 13

"We are authorized to deny, absolutely,
"the sending of the circular that our colleague attributes-
"drank to the minister of..."

A third newspaper appears:

"Both of our colleagues are right and wrong at the same time:"
"The circular in question was indeed prepared, but
"It hasn't been sent yet."

Then, a fourth newspaper solemnly takes speech:

"That kind of talk is absurd gossip, it doesn't exist"
No circulars!

For those unfamiliar with the secrets of the shop, Admit that upon reading these four pieces of information, he It's enough to drive you crazy.

Well, I will probably greatly surprise the reader by teaching him that, very often, : the four pieces of information above report, by various resources, large sums to each of the newspapers; that, in some cases, they originated from the same hand, paid for by her, and that's what we call it:
"To do politics."

Misleading public opinion is a principle, and I can, at
In this regard, recording such a poorly disclosed testimony cutable as unexpected:

A famous trial had called for action in France, towards the
At the end of July 1885, an Italian statesman who is at the same time a distinguished lawyer: Mr. Crispi.

OPINION DIRECTORS 919

It was a delicate matter. A building covered by postal immunity, and belonging to an Italian company, had been seized by a creditor. In a state of agitation, maintained by the Italian and French press, between the two countries the affair quickly degenerated into a quarrel international. Moreover, we enjoyed representing-to perceive Mr. Crispi as a rabid Gallophobe, no not only in the current circumstances, but for many years now.

less aggressive than his future plea, Mr. Crispi protested vehemently against the reputation he was given had done and explained it in the following terms:
fronts: |

"In 1877, at the time when, in France, the start of the academic year..."

"in the power of the party of 'moral order', sem-

"He was a threat to Italy's interests, I "had to make almost official trips to Germany"

"Magne, in Switzerland, in England, etc. I received,

"among other things, in Berlin, a reception that was both solemn

"and cordial, which the European press took notice of."

"I was portrayed as a bitter enemy of

" France. "

"Upon my return to Paris, I bitterly complained-

"lying, to my friend É. de Girardin, about the hateful role"

"that I was being lent."

290 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

"-Let it be!" he told me, "we have

"I need to treat you like this, to warm the "elections."

"- But I object to that, it's a falsehood!"

"-I know that damn well! But, one more thing

"Finally, let them talk, it's a necessary maneuver."

The testimony of Mr. Crispi, appearing in at the time when, for a trial, he needed the sympathies of France, could be suspected; Therefore, I will leave out intimate feelings. of the statesman, to retain only the ma- work attributed to Girardin; and again, would I have I might have hesitated to admit its reality if I hadn't found in newspapers from 1880, written and signed by the wife of a French MP, a very net of the attacks that they could have committed, against public opinion, not only the same Girardin, but also a part of the French press.

We remember that the Prussian specter was strong agitated in 1877 and 1878; that Mr. de Girardin and, With him, a number of journalists had taken In this regard, a peculiar attitude.

Imagine their astonishment when, at the oc-

(alluding to the previous chapter, we learned that a) Prussian espionage was organized in Paris by... women; that a certain Baroness K... had overtaken state secrets from a brave French general, to sell them to Prussia; that Mr. de Girardin should give him it even encouraged the creation of cosmopolitan salons of which the said Baroness K... was the ornament.

THE DIRECTORS OF OPINION 291

These disclosed facts led the lady to question tion to bring a lawsuit against several newspapers Defamation. Strange thing! The newspaper that took his most determined defense was /a France, then headed by Mr. de Girardin; the latter entirely-times claimed not to know the aforementioned baroness.

The events were taking on such a serious character. that a parliamentary inquiry had been decided upon:

Witnesses were summoned, and among them, figured Madame Georges Graux, wife of the deputy of that name. I don't know how his deposition is became public. In any case, I have it under the eyes; it bears the date November 22, 1880 and I extract the following sentences, which concern a lady from B... a friend of Mr. de Girardin like the. Baroness K... already mentioned.

"She (Madame de B...), said the deposit. voya-"was acting on behalf of Mr. de Girardin. At this
"At that very moment - April 1879 - she arrived from "Berlin. She had spent a week there and had "saw Mr. Bismarck several times, to whom she had "handed over, on behalf of Mr. de Girardin, a statement
"Confidential information regarding the state of our army." She added

229 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

"even if the reorganization of the army is to be"followed too actively, Mr. Bismarck would know
"To prevent it effectively: there are 100,000 men ready to "cross the border."

"In April, May and June 1879, you will find
"in France, articles by Mr. de Girardin"

"the East by 100,000 Germans, and perhaps well
"also in the Zélégraphe sold in secret, to this
"At that time, 40,000 francs for three months at
"Mr. Portalis."

Such were the revelations; as we see, the maneuver attributed by Mr. Crispi to Mr. de Gi-Garden is very likely, and she reconciles herself,
Moreover, it goes very well with the one my mother is talking about.
Dame Graux.

These same revelations also give a ca-extremely serious character to those of an ana-longer, although less precise, carried out in 1867, by A member of parliament, Mr. de Kerveguen, at the podium of the Corps legislative. This deputy made known a letter coming from Berlin; the author noted there a rapprochementstrangely enough between the sudden increase in Prussian secret funds and the Prussian attitude from a large number of French newspapers during the war of 1866, between Austria and Prussia;

THE DIRECTORS OF OPINION 293

the newspapers were named in full and the figures cited.

A criminal trial in which the MP was acquitted and a jury of honor proclaiming the innocence of newspapers, have not managed to make a complete light, and the doubt weighs all the more heavily because we were able to read in 1884, seventeen years later, in the work of Victor Tissot: The Prussian Secret Police, of details extremely consistent with the allegations-tions of Mr. de Kerveguen.

Tissot recounts, among other things, how the Havas Agency which, for a fee, carried The Khedive, who was ecstatic, had sent one of his translators, Mr. Wollheim (who was, in 1870, in Reims, during the occupation, journalist at the balance of Germany) in order to solicit subscriptions comments to Mr. de Bismarck; these subscriptions were taken and paid for, the author says, by Mr. Bamberg.
Tissot, great dispenser of the reptilian manna.
He also recounts, in the same work, that Mr. Bismarck had notified his parliament of "the
"the need to give the press a direction"
"Foreign." And this was done on many occasions, which Bismarck himself said in his own words to Dr. Busch, his agent, that it would be good to into suggest that "the government's loan of the De-.

294 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

"National defense may well not be recognized"
"by the government with which we would do the "Peace." This was the operation best known for later under the assumed name Morgan, and against the-which I remember very well having read about attacks very vivid.

++

This latest maneuver by the Prussian chancellor This naturally leads me to study the role of the finance in the press, from the dual point of view of theories and practices.

It is sometimes difficult for French newspapers to outright support political ideas capable to offend patriotic sentiment. But by means of
'of political economy, waving the flag of internationalism and the brotherhood of peoples, the same newspapers can spread with impunity theories most likely to lead to dismemberment the development of our country.

If, under the pretext of developing theorems
Scientists, journalism gets subsidized Largely, he at least has the decency not to to admit it; but in the form of financial matters Everything is changing; the subsidy system is undergoing a transformation.
general application; modesty is no longer necessary

THE DIRECTORS OF OPINION 295

The paid advertising, publicity, and announcements are acknowledged.
publicly.

"Now, let it be clearly understood, every financial matter,

"Even the most innocuous-looking can conceal
"a work that is both an attack on independence-civic.

Having written this, I shudder to realize that No newspaper can be created without having provided itself with of a properly formed treaty with contractors financial advertising.

Here the vicious cycle appears in all its force.
which is killing the integrity of journalism.

The more widely the newspaper is distributed, the higher the rents.
financial claims are richly paid; and, reciprocally, Indeed, the less well-known the newspaper is, the less its firmage, reports him if, even, he finds one, so that the advertisements of the financial Jewish community
These companies have the best-accredited bodies.

The entire ambition of newspapers not endowed by the Finance is making enough noise, no matter what.
to be able to claim the blessed manna;
and if, by chance, one of them wants to lock himself in Its rigidity allows it to rely on approximately 700 to 800 readers, while his colleagues count them hundreds of thousands.

This, then, is the genesis of a newspaper:

LS

13,

926 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

Some sort of dealer wants to have an organ to boost sales of its merchandise – the most often a sticker paper of dubious value.
– He knows that this will cost him, first of all, in pure
A loss of 200,000 or 300,000 francs. He carries this sum in the books of his office under the account Profits and Losses, advertising costs, because, for the moment, it considers it lost.

He then converses with writers; general-those whose name is known through works previous.

These almost all possess an instinctive horror and the trafficker's absolute contempt; so they hasten political and literary section and the announcements section and advertisements. The trafficker agrees. The editor in The chief exclusively directs the newspaper's policy; As for the trafficker, he manages his advertising or puts it under control.

But the political leadership also includes, the major economic issues and, by virtue of this In principle, the editor in charge of financial matters Cières publishes a daily stock market bulletin and a weekly financial review. That's in the person of this editor who will manifest himself the first conflict. In his periodic studies he is subject to the editor-in-chief's control, but as his articles also contain appreciations on the practical results of the economy financial, that is to say, on bearer securities and the companies that issued them, it is also found under the authority of the administrator in charge of the advertisement.

THE DIRECTORS OF OPINION 297

He, in fact, promised, for a fee, to recommend certain financial values to the public ceres; therefore, there must be absolute agreement between the advice and the assessments of the bulletin financial.

In this conflict, the political editor-in-chief It always ends up giving in, sometimes because, for lack of In his study, he does not attach importance to the questions financial, sometimes because it is pointed out to him that, Subject to agreement, we will relieve its budget of drafting the payroll of the bulletin writer.

This continues until the day when, about of a question of peace or war, or of the law budgetary, the handler will take it from a position of superiority, will give orders to the editor, who will either submit or will resign.

Or do we want to know the great interest that this arouses? Conflict? It's that the newsletter and the weekly magazine-Madaire can provide the newspaper with an income annual revenue of several hundred thousand francs.

Thus, for example, Le Figaro alienated its editorial staff-financial information, stock market bulletin and review, versus a fixed annuity of 175,000 francs paid to him by a public limited company, which, as we think well, is obliged to have this editorial staff produce at least double the annual payment, i.e. 350,000 francs.

Gil Blas receives an annuity in the same way. an annual salary of 105,000 francs paid to him by a named B..... who only used anonymity in signing Don Caprice. We think that this negotiation- The finance manager does not give 105,000 francs per an to please Gl{ Blas; therefore, he buys in large-scale advertising which he resells in retail.

I could cite many other newspapers which, all, regardless of the announcement sheet-card, or admitted claims, not only do not pay plus the writers of the financial section, but, Again, they get paid by them.

I cited these two newspapers because, thanks to Their lighthearted style and their hazy politics, they have been able to leave to finance, which pays them so dearly- more relaxed, in a freer manner.

However, one should not believe that than reputable, serious newspapers, such as Les Débats, Time and the French Republic do not exploit not their financial writing.

The Journal des Débats, in particular, is the embodiment of finance; everything in this newspaper is designed to serve-

THE DIRECTORS OF OPINION 299

looking at the interests of his bosses, who are none other than the high bank itself.

Leroy-Beaulieu, editor-in-chief of Écono- miste français, an indigestible mix of finance and saving money, doing the campaigns himself if necessary high-profit chains, also displays its heavy prose in columns of the Journal des Débats.

Other political newspapers, affecting a certain air financial, where the bosses, under a different title, execute all the traffic which, if necessary, they denounce immorality in the blatantly published leaflet led by them.

For example, everyone knows Mr. Edward Hervé, the friendly editor-in-chief of Le Soleil; We know he is an Orleanist; the frankness of his opinions has earned respect for both the man and the writer; in short, He's a puritan.

But there is another Édouard Hervé that few People know; there's Édouard Hervé who has very close ties with the Paris Messenger Financial newspaper only. That's where things can happen. all the successful campaigns of which Mr. Hervé would be ashamed to pocket the profits through the So/eil, but which, according to the Messenger, are entirely natural.

From the top to the bottom of the daily scale—
In the future, we could discover the same phenomena.

230 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

That an Orleanist might have a weakness for speculation, This is understandable and is the very essence of those who dream of a return to the regime of 1830.

But only Republicans or people who call themselves They engage in the same practices, that's what we It's hard to imagine. Yet that's what it is.

Thus the Lantern, which from time to time displays vigorous indignation against certain tripostages, the Lantern has a lining dedicated to speculation, and this is called Financial Reform.

In Girardin's time, France had for outlet the Financial Week; corn, since the introduction of trafficker Charles Lalou, a dislocation occurred; part of the former staff of La Semaine left him in a blaze of glory and founded La Revue.

Shall I now mention the countless Weekly or bi-weekly sheets excluded tively devoted to speculation and whose subscription— How does it vary between 4 francs and 4 francs per year? How— We assume that a 16-page newspaper contains, For 4 francs, 52 issues per year, and thus achieves, the newspaper being counted as nothing, because the postage—that alone costs £1.04?

It is certain that the owners of these leaves they don't print them just for the pleasure of spend their money. Where do they get their profits?

THE DIRECTORS OF OPINION 931

if not outright exploitation of their clientele and the subsidies they attach to financiers?

In Paris, as I mentioned earlier, there are 360 sheets of paper... daily newspapers to which I add 100 financial newspapers ciers. On average, each of these newspapers receives 50,000 francs per year from finance; a simple Multiplication leads me to a fantastic sum 23 million!

This is, at a minimum, the maintenance budget that all the kings of the Republic dedicated to journalism.

The figure I just wrote is the minimum, right? said. The state budget takes care of showing us—to what dizzying sum can they amount the secret funds used to maintain the press French, with the sole aim of "making successful" national loans.

— Thus, I find in Mr. Trésor's work de la Rocque, that Mr. Thiers, for the sole expenses of issue, was able to distribute, without being subject to the audit by the Court of Auditors, 253 million to the occasion of the two ransom loans, including the The total amounted to 5 billion.

And that is the case every time a loan is issued; and when some newspapers cannot find not having enough money, they are "wearing them down" the operation that did not satisfy their greed.

232 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

And so the naive reader wonders by what phenomenon— He names his newspaper so furious? And he com— takes less and less of the entanglement of the politics and finance.

These venal habits did not arise spontaneously she contracted them in the press at the same time as the imperial regime, continuing the traditions of previous governments, he had imposed the obligation of a guarantee, that is to say the supreme arbitrariness of the capitalist.

Once freed from this tax obstacle and even from the stamp, she continued, for, having drunk from the cup poisoned by subsidies, she wanted to drink from it Again.

Furthermore, publishing a newspaper implies essential expenses; nor the paper merchant, neither printer nor can give for free their work; a daily sheet somewhat like-
The complete package costs 100,000 francs per month. As we have seen...
You see, the printed word is the most expensive of means to communicate thought, and one can say that The absolute independence of the journalist will not exist that the day when the capital hoarders will have ceased to confiscate for their benefit the symbol of the exchange. |

The reader, it is true, could speed up this emancipation, by focusing, preferably, on the or-

THE DIRECTORS OF OPINION 933

Gane, the most frank, the most honest, and the most accurate.
By sheer numbers, the individual offering can suffice.
contribution to the prosperity of a newspaper.
But by what sign will he recognize the triple quality
That I just mentioned? Who will reveal it to him?
As you can see, there is another circle here.
vicious, from which it is very difficult to escape.

*
+

From time to time, however, truths emerge.
Cruel accusations against financiers are emerging in the press.
but it is particularly with a view to something personal combination, and never for defense impartial in the general interests.

In order to give a sense of the truths published, I exclusively republican malfeasance, and, Conversely, the republican newspapers, exclusivelyvement, too, the malfeasance of their enemies policies: in such a way that, in order to have knowledge-the infamy, whatever its origin

Nancy, you need to be able to read almost everything assiduously the newspapers and yet, despite this, some kings they easily manage to impose silence everywhere.
Among those who have best achieved this muteness
The Prussian Erlanger is among them.

234 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

When Le Figaro feels the need to make itself to be worth or to obtain the forgetting of some of his dealings
He alone is responsible, he deigns to explain to his readers the functioning of financial agencies; 11 se
He believes, moreover, that he is perfectly independent because instead of drawing an annual sum variable from his financial page, he receives a fixed sum.

When the trafficker Gibiat died, he was condemned for his actions regarding the railways of the Vendée, and author of numerous ruins, the Figaro was seized by a fine zeal and under the title of "Fragments of Financial History" he printed the following lines:

"With Mr. Gibiat, the last survivor disappears"
"of the famous triumvirate: Girardin-Jenty-Gibiat, who
"for several years and until 1879 exercised
"A real power in financial matters."

The newspaper I am quoting then lists the daysunionized by the triumvirate; these were: the Financial week, France, the Constitutional Council and the Country; the Little Journal, the Universal Correspondence saddle, having a financial statement inserted in 200 provincial newspapers, and Belgian Independence;
Then he added:

"They would have liked to strengthen the group by ad-"Joining of Figaro, Le Temps and Le Moniteur"

"and Paul Dalloz were, on several occasions, the subject"
"of requests, but turned a deaf ear.

"They then conceived the project of founding a
"a bank with a capital of 30 million, which would have for
"based on the exploitation of the advertising tool"
"which in their hands became a source of wealth."
"That is how the National Bank was founded."

So, that's clear; financiers, already gorged with gold, they dared to ask the public for 30,000 lions to better continue their job of depre-daters.

The National Bank soon passed into the hands of a man named Lalou, a charcoal burner, it is said, by his first profession and Auvergnat by its last ortho-graph. For this manipulator, it was a way to have the newspapers and fishing among the millions.

As President of the Bank, he too dreamed, like Girardin, to collect the leaves; Lalou after Girardin! That was strange! They were both quite nice. men of great skill, but Girardin had at minus the feather.

What more can I say?

I would have to tell the whole story of the Little Journal and what a story! A struggle for salvation...
Waves! Why this greed?

Ah! Well, Le Petit Journal! That's 800,000 readers!

236 ETHOLOGY SYNTHESIS

Testimonies! Do you know? For a trafficker, what a field
And what a harvest!

It was with great difficulty that, after having been raped-wrested from the sole survivor of its foundations authors, Alphonse Millaud (an Israelite who had forgot to be Jewish, otherwise we would never have dispossessed); it is with great difficulty, I say, that this the ever-growing leaf was able to escape definition-fortunately for its whiteness.

What more can I say?

Shall I recount how and why certain im-the firstfruits gave one hundred thousand francs, without batting an eye and without imposing any conditions on the writers who, out of disgust, left the newspaper La France, were going to found the New Press?

If he were still alive, what would Camille Farcy, former Editor-in-chief of France?

What did Mr. Judet say in a letter that has remained unpublished?
famous, and which Mr. Ch.-L. Limousin also said in a letter to Mr. Gustave Rivet, dated June 20, 1884?

What's the point of insisting?

They all cry out against the venality of the Jews, absolute masters.
journalism, and their complaints became banal from being repeated so often!

THE DIRECTORS OF OPINION 237

*
* +

The feudalism of gold, which I said, in 14865, by a circum-signed cular: Couche, engineer, and addressed to supervisory commissioners, responsible for identifying
The causes of railway accidents:

"You will only inform the justice system after being
"They came to take my orders."

The feudalism of gold, which, in 1885, told the journalists...
lists:

"You will only inform the public through my-
"orders and for my interests; you will lie following-
"before my will and you will insert, because I
"You pay, the same lying short article to the same"
"hour and, simultaneously, throughout the country, for
"To deceive public opinion."

Jewish feudalism! Voracious Moloch-Baal! Paying the orators who write and writers who speak, paying the priest, the rabbi, the senator, the member of parliament,
The minister, buying and paying for everything, who then will have
The power to punish your crimes?

XIV

Reforms.

He

MONOGRAPHS

FERDINAND DE LESSEPS. — BOCHER. — ALBERT CHRISTOPBLE. —

HENRI GERMAIN. — SEILLIÈRE. — BEOUNT. — EPHAUSSI. — HOTTINGUER, — BAPST. — BERTHIER. — BUSSIERRE. — CAMUS.
— DAVILLIER, — DEHAYNIN. — DENIÈRE, — OF EICHTAL. — DELESSERT. — DREYFUS. — GERMINY. — HACHETTE. —
HALPHEN. — HEIN. — HENTSCH. — MAGNIN. — OPPENHEIM. —

PILLET-WILL. — VEIL-PICARD. —WADDINGTON.

Digitized by Google

Ferdinand de Lesseps.

This great international player, who is wrongly called,
"Great Frenchman" is, above all, a humanitarian.

French? He would be in a strange way, because he has threw his country into all the Euro- complications Europeans by executing Suez and by patronizing Panama. |

International? It is, both by nature and by his former diplomatic functions; although Knowing nothing about economics, he...
However, one day he was discovered to be a free trader.
and 1la made free trade like Mr. Jourdain was speaking prose.

Humanitarian? It certainly is, to a very large extent.
high degree; I appeal to all sailors who,
Thanks to him, they can avoid the cape, so strangely named "of Good Hope".

praise, "is crowned by a supreme virtue: her complete ignorance of the intricacies of finance.

This man, who has stirred hundreds of thousands of lions, like Rothschild, and heaps of ideas, like Pereire, is truly the most strange thing about this century; I can say it now: even though all his detractors would have charged with the most abominable financial crimes and the most established, Ferdinand de Lesseps, to my eyes, would still be an Arislid, by comparison with the Rothschilds, the Cahens, the Sterns, the Ca-Mondo and other Jews of the agio. The reason is Simply put: all the millions set in motion by will have endowed its future with a usefulness; while the The birds I just mentioned will leave, after them, uu immense iron through which French gold will have flowed And what about French dignity in place of what? They will have pile of sticker paper, where the portrait of The flight is called credit.

Say what you will: behind Lesseps, future generations will find dangers avoided, closer distances, fertility exchanged.

Despite what one might say: there are certain-somewhere on the globe, a place by which a ship passes from the Mediterranean to the Red Sea; whatever one does, between Gibraltar and the

FERDINAND DE LESSEPS$ 243

In India, we no longer have to reckon with the threat from the Cape. Storms: finally, most likely, in a In the near future, the two oceans will mingle their waters through Panama.

I am not examining the political consequences here. geographical works of Ferdinand de Les-seps. A judgment in this regard would entail me to criticize all the governments of the globe; and if,

This book argues that free trade is a continuous threat.
The war effort is the fault of the leaders.
more than to those under their control. I therefore call upon Ferdinand to Lesseps not the great Frenchman, but the great humanitarian, because in all conceptions whose execution he adopts, there are savings of human lives, more or less dearly bought,
It is true, like everything that we discover in nature,
But we must not forget that America also has its storm cape, which is called Cape Horn.

How did the little boy who was born one day, to Versailles, in the year XIV of the Republic and the 28 Brumaire, did he become a piercer of isthmuses, sim-overseas transport planner, promoter
Geographical, international agitator?

Nothing in his paternal family foreshadowed the adventurer. There is, however, something of Egypt in his father; Mathieu Lesseps is qualified, in the act

244 MONOGRAPHS

Ferdinand's birthplace, Commissioner General of foreign relations in Egypt and member of the Legion of Honour; he was on leave in Versailles and lived on Rue des Réservoirs when he had to invite at the baptism of his son, one of his friends, a tax collector General, named Ferdinand D... This receiver general, who gave his name to the child, is all that there is a financier in Lesseps.

From the age of twenty, the young man ran the world; his father had thrown him into the career of consulates. From 1825 to 1835, he moved between Lisbon, Paris, Tunis, Algiers, Cairo and Alexandria. In 1836 His humanitarian temperament earned him the cross of the Legion of Honour on the occasion of his courage during the plague. When the plague ended, he became diplomatic again.
mate and facihte the relations between Mehemet-Ali and the sultan; he leaves Egypt, he goes to Rotterdam, to Malaga, in Barcelona. There, in 1842, his instinct humanitarian makes his mark again: he saves the city the horrors of a bombing; he is made an officer of the Legion of Honour.

From 1842 to 1848, it was in Spain: Barcelona and Madrid.

famous from the Saint-Simonian school, who, in 1846 and for twenty years, had studied all the ancient projects related to the tunneling of the Isthmus of Suez,

FERDINAND DE LESSEPS 945

had just succeeded in creating a company composed of three groups: Germans, English and French; the On April 30, 1847, a brigade of engineers was established... knows in Tineh Bay, to make the first studies. One of the French engineers was called Paulin Talabot, and it is he himself who recounts these facts in the Revue des Deux Mondes of May 1855.

The 1848 revolution destroyed all the beautiful Enfantin and Talabot's projects; as for Lesseps, replaced in Madrid by Napoleon-Joseph Bonaparte, In 1849, he had just been appointed to Bern, when Shortly before the siege of Rome, the Assembly The constituent assembly sent him there as chargé d'affaires.

Strange thing! Ferdinand de Lesseps had not He took sides with the Pope and he was less key-ricial than the republican government.

It was at this time that, for the first time, he had to reflect on the role of finance in the affairs of politics and omnipotence Jews.

The stubborn old man named Pius IX, although having given that his power was restored by the republican army French, was flirting to return to In Rome, he was short of money. Where could he get some?

I glean from the work of a clerical historian the answer to this question, answer which is, moreover,

a true gem:
14,

246 MONOGRAPHS

"The Emperor of Russia," the historian says, "offered Pius IX..."
"to lend him a considerable sum; this offer, emanating
"The head of a different faith was not accepted. The cardinal"

"Onerous conditions."

Ferdinand, who knew all the details of this singular borrowing, must have caused some astonishment. It was difficult to see the Pope accept money from a Jew. That he refused to accept from a monarch whose cult had, however, it bears much more resemblance to the his own.

I don't know if the future isthmus piercer became one of them. even less clerical, but, for sure, I find in choosing its financial resources, when it takes care of the Egyptian Bosphorus, with profound disdain of the Jewish financier. It is certain, however, that the even Rothschild, who was quick to lend to the papacy, that leech of Catholic money, would have refused, with such eagerness, to lend to Lesseps, even if it cost a million to pierce the isthmus of Suez.

In any case, Ferdinand demanded his release. availability; but, frowned upon by the government, whose politics he had not served, he disappeared suddenly removed from the diplomatic scene.

Extremely careless, a big spender, and not counting never, he went through, at that time, a rather long awkward period; I don't hold it against him; On the contrary, I find that his lack of wealth, after the high positions he had held in the diplomacy, is entirely to his great credit.

FERDINAND DE LESSEPS 247

Meanwhile, France had given itself a master and The Saint-Simonians, who were not highly regarded by the Empire, and Moreover, being scattered, they could no longer be of much use—how to deal with the great Egyptian affair; in In any case, I don't believe the idea came from there. to Pereire. The same was not true of Talabot, who he once said to Ferdinand de Lesseps:

— You who know the viceroy and who have nothing to You have better things to do right now, you should dedicate yourself to them. to the success of this great idea.

Ferdinand jumped for joy.

"And above all," added Talabot, "don't go and do like..."
Félicien David, who, for any geological study, went to compose {The Desert at the end of the Orient.

This took place at the beginning of 1854. Napoleon Leon II had recently married Eugénie de Montijo, Countess of Teba, cousin of Lesseps.
It was an asset in the latter's game.

He was therefore able, with some authority, to pay a visit to the Viceroy of Egypt and to act usefully with regard to him.

He succeeded. Certainly, neither Enfantin nor Talabot could not have done what Ferdinand did. Some

248 MONOGRAPHS

Critics claim that upon returning, equipped with the concession, after a thousand hardships, not exempt from dangers, especially after crossing on horseback entrenchments of the viceroy's camp, despite the guard who was blocking his path, he had stripped his an-his fellow believers by having it placed in his name the concession agreement for the Suez Canal; I don't want it Believe nothing. The concession was indeed given to Ferdide Lesseps himself; but I know that his an-Former collaborators did not for a moment consider leaving.
to complain, to such an extent that Talabot, in his the author of the Revue des Deux Mondes, speaks entirely of nature
rel. of the concession made to "Mr. de Lesseps by Mohammed-Saïd-Pacha.

I will not follow Lesseps to the end of his car-behind: she is, moreover, too well-known to have been-Careful commenting.

I will simply note that the high bank-that Jewish, domestic servant born of the English octopus, was,
From the outset, hostile to the canal, and that Ferdinand,
a simple diplomat, not at all an engineer, and barely lawyer, by the sheer force of his conviction, energized the the force of his will and his warmer speech eloquent, spirited, and without the help of financiers, 200 million subscriptions to start the work; I also note that he never has triggered speculation on securities created in the following, and that after Suez was completed he had not acquired a substantial fortune.

Now he has triumphed in Egypt, and he wants to conquer in America.

Was Panama for him an aspiration?
not only to a new glory, but also to a fortune capable of adequately endowing the nom-
The beautiful generation that Mademoiselle gave him Autard de Bragard, the charming Creole woman he has married in Ismailia in 1869?

That's quite possible! Given the current state of our customs.
For French people, it would even be natural.

Unfortunately, the issuance of Panamanian securities has was poisoned, at its origin, by this single fact that she had to invoke the support of the major bank.
She abused her power: the entire army of the tripoteurs descended upon these titles, and Ferdinand, after having discussed, as equals, with most European ministers suffered the humiliation of having to kick out one of these scanning entrepreneurs Dales, who sell their silence to unsound societies fortunately adopted by speculation.

There's something even better; public scribes who... economists claim to have undertaken, against Lesseps and his Panama, a lynx-wolf campaign.
The hypocrisy they display under the pretext of Saving public savings revolts me to such an extent that, willing to be somewhat severe with regard to some details regarding the handling of the Panama affair, I'm diverting my criticisms to focus them on the speculators whose veracious aims I know very well-table.

250 MONOGRAPHS

The campaign organized by Leroy-Beaulieu and other Jewish scribblers, has no other purpose than to lower Panamanian stocks in order to to allow Lebaudy to supplant Lesseps at the chairman of the board of directors.

Lebaudy! Great Jehovah! This devourer of raffia-neurs, that shadowy agent of the 1882 crash, whose the first volume of this work, would dare still

To continue his series of exploits in Panama?
Leroy-Beaulieu dares to claim that he wants to save public savings, when it is meant to be given to devoured by the ogres of Rosny and Bougival?

Enough of the speculators, enough of the Jews! And even then that Ferdinand would have become, later in life, something I'm not financially inclined, but I prefer him a hundred times over to those who are briwatch his succession.

Lesseps is not a parasite; there is in his life
the struggle and the work; his green old age runs still the universe; at the age when others, for a long time-time, savoring the pleasures of luxury and the Laziness, he schemes and fights.

FERDINAND DE LESSEPS 251

We think he's in Paris, but he's in Cairo; one evening, at six o'clock, we meet a gentleman on the boulevard-
A man from the Madeleine district hailing a cab; he is wearing a coat.
grey on the arm, a top hat on the head and a small travel kit in hand; that's A Parisian going to sleep in Saint-Cloud? No;
It's Ferdinand: he's leaving for Egypt!

This active lifestyle reflects a deep conviction;
If the man made a mistake, it will be in good faith.

Suez was able to give substance to the eternal conflicts Easterners; Panama could change the face of our relations with America; what does it matter! if wisdom rulers do not sacrifice commercial interests France's businesses with the sole aim of enriching foreign countries through deplorable trade treaties-organized; Suez and Panama will retain their humanitarian use, and if ever their trafficking were to not to feed the capital employed, that will not be It's not Lesseps' fault, but the players'.
eternal ones who fiddle with the titles and remove any proportion to the distribution of profits.

To bring these incorrigibles to their senses, one does not
It will take nothing less than a social liquidation!

He

Bocher.

The phone book says:

Bocher, O., administrator of the family's assets d'Orléans; senator.

This man dared to insult France by place the valet's livery higher than the embroidered coat from the senator!

Loyal manager, scrupulous accountant, perfect hon-
A clean man, according to the law, Bocher is still a of these unconscious parasites to whom it will be
It is impossible to ever persuade anyone that they are neither neither French citizens nor workers.

Indeed! This dual-purpose civil servant of the reigning national sovereignty and sovereignty-A fallen family man is not ignorant. I don't I wouldn't even accuse him of a crime for distorting his brain.

Bocher is the son of a stockbroker; Corvetto, mid-Minister of Finance, admitted Bocher, the father, at the same time

BOCHER 253

time as Demachy in the famous corporation.

The young Henri-Édouard Bocher was then five or barely six years, since he was born in 1811. He made his classes at Henri IV brilliantly, it is said, and went on to complete to corrupt one's moral sense by doing one's studies by right.

I] was, therefore, to make an auditor at Council of State, held various prefectural positions torales, thanks to which he found a good marriage in finance, adorned with a particle, and married, when he was a simple sub-prefect of Étampes, the daughter of Count Alexandre de La Borde, deputy of the same place.

By his origins, Edward belongs to the func-tionaries of the Restoration; through his career, he belongs to the ruling world of 4830.

lippe, and I don't need a long examination for guess how he became steward of the estates of the family of Orléans.

Steward, that's her real career; it's a good one. apparently, because he prefers it to all others, by adding, however, the benefits of the situation administrator of the Railway Company Southern iron.

Apart from that, he has been seen refusing many times. ministerial portfolios, for health reasons,

1 15

254 MONOGRAPHS

he said; basically, you only have to look at the list of incompatibilities and we will realize that, in order to be Minister, Edward would have been forced to renounce his steward's functions. This is the standard by which one can measure his selflessness and modesty.

He almost always got on the right side of the government-established institutions, while loudly protesting, against the decree of 1852, by which Napoleon III confiscated the property of the Orléans family.

The enormous fortune of this family of speculators was, I admit, placed in safe hands and I understand very well that d'Aumale and all his family they expressed their deep gratitude to him.

As early as March 4870, Edward, who felt the end of the Empire, was lying in wait to take advantage of the first incident capable of either restoring, in in fact, only to compensate his employers.

The method he usually uses in such cases, consists of writing letters and waving the ghost Orleanist. That's what he was doing in March 1870 with a view to of the plebiscite.

Events abruptly cut him off from the word, and fairness compels me to say that, pen- During the war, members of his family behaved They sired valiantly.

In France, we have the unfortunate habit of not to balance the assessments and, from what Bocher and

His people have shown themselves to be patriotic, we want to conclude that they possess all virtues.

The virtues of bourgeois embodiment are accommodated much of the chauvinism, but, with regard to the genuine French interests, these same virtues turn-lead to foolishness.

It took, indeed, quite a bit of nerve for Edward Bocher, while Prussia was demanding 5 billion, to dare to ask the French nation for the restoration conservation of the property of the Orléans family and of the in-compensation.

The National Assembly had the cynicism to vote this alleged restitution. It has been argued that, by means of-covering this expense, we bought the help of the or- . Leanists to the Republic.

Nice acquisition |

The Jewish Orléans, the Jewish Bocher, the Roths-Jewish children were holding hands, and when, after the vote on the famous constitution In 1875, Édouard was a senatorial candidate in the In Calvados, he dared to tell his constituents that it was necessary-to have confidence in the Republic, which returned to the country "under another name and under a "new form, the essential guarantees of the "Parliamentary government."

Another name for Orleanism is opportunism:
The essential guarantees: these are the valuable assets.

236 MONOGRAPHS

paid to the Orléans family; and as for the government Parliamentarian, it's a fine series of corruptions and scandals which, for fifteen years, have been ruining our country.

The Orleanists, big eaters, especially for adversaries the Bonapartists, no less man-geurs; but both readily vote against the Republic.

Well, I ask you, what do we have to do?
in the government councils, of this defense-sister of property ownership in its most extreme form directly sovereign: the monarchy speaks-Comment?

This man is a danger because he has no control over his actions.
ceases its attacks against the Republic.

One foot in the army through his brothers and allies, Bocher, with both feet firmly planted in finance on his own one of his parents is still a representative in France
the Northern Telegraph Company.

This company, we need to be clear about this, is a Danish company with an entire network in China through which all dispatches have passed which, since three or four years, panic the nation by a a series of strange contradictions. Nowadays, we He knows that the telegraph is the golden key that unlocks the Stock Exchange locks.

What wouldn't we discover if speculation were to...

BOCHER 951

Does he know he's anonymous? Bocher would never associate himself with anyone.
to this extent.

So, what need do we have for this so-called reformer, this interested critic of our spending public?

What is the purpose of Édouard Bocher, tax collector, eternally?
of the Orleanist tithe, having himself become strong rich and providing resources for journalists who work-slow for its bosses the same windfall that the Busch and Bamberg families distribute for Mr. Bismarck?

Corruptor of consciences; not employing his pre-presence in Parliament than to obtain, under color of general interest, legal amendments that may to increase the fortune of his employers; hypo- defender criticism of small landowners, eaten by the big ones; Let this parasite leave us alone and... devotes, in the shadows, which suit him better, to the management entrusted to him, until the day when the Future reforms will make him unavailable.

III

Albert Christophle.

At first glance, and without the two letters that, In French, they replace the Greek +, one would think one had business with the silver and cutlery manufacturer silvered, let's cut to the chase: to the manufacturer of ruolz; However, this is not the case. In Paris, Albert Christophle is alone by his name, as, in Tessé, he is alone lord of Gné-aux-Biches.

But, on second glance, one realizes that the pre-Mier was the right one: lord of the manor, politician, legal and financial expert, which dominates in Christophle is still from ruolz; however 1 is very suitably silvered and even gold-plated, especially since he joined Crédit Foncier.

Before resorting to electroplating, Albert-Silas-Médéric-Charles Christophle was destined to high destinies; to begin with, the high Normandie saw him born in Domfront, but he went to do his right in the lower part, that is to say in Caen. This

ALBERT CHRISTOPHLE 259

The change of level contains its entire story.

Silas thus learned about legal wrangling in the worst of countries. I have often said how the study of law perverts—knows the reason: that the result be judged, in a middle of Lower Normandy! Albert distinguished himself, even among the strongest; he was a laureate of the faculty of — Caen and at twenty-two he was a doctor.

Were the ordinary struggles of the bar insufficient for his self-esteem? I couldn't say. to say. In any case, in 1856 he bought a office of lawyer at the Council of State and the Court of appeal.

But there's little talk in this role, and Médéric sought expansion; so he searched and found a journal in which he was able to compensate, by writing, the

From 1858 to 1859 he can be found collaborating with /a Presse;
He saw Girardin's end there, and the beginning of the Jewish Polydore.
Millaud, and he seems to have left her a little before the time when a correct police judgment-tional led the same Millaud to put his Newspaper for sale.

The spectacle of speculation must have left its mark.
in Médéric's mind; I'd even bet that his brief stint in journalism, at the time of the great speculative whirlwind of 1857-60, a, slow-ment, prepared its latest financial incarnation,

260 MONOGRAPHS

a kind of fall, for someone who, soaring at the pinnacle of the law, will soon find itself in the midst of struggle beneath her.

To finish with Christophle the writer, I mer-I will use his Treatise on Public Works (two large volumes) and his collaboration with the Revue pratique and Critique of jurisprudence (1862).

The natures that studies have twisted and that Experience has corrected them, they hardly desert the Court of Cassation, if not to run towards destinies higher or to situations in which the instinct for reform, developed through contact with -imbecilities of the practical procedure, can be exercised with more freedom.

Now Albert had obtained all the honors:
From 1865 to 1869, he was a member of the council of the order;
Nothing, therefore, forced him to abandon his practice.
of a lawyer, to surrender to the vagaries of the prefectstures. Was it the war that derailed his career?
Nevertheless, I find him to be the prefect of Orne.
that is to say, the chief of his own department-original date, September 6, 1870.

Charles, obviously, had sucked on the principles reactionaries, in his family, in his studies, and in his functions under the Empire. But, in accordance-This relates to the old proverb: No one is a prophet in their own land.
in our country, in Domfront we hadn't taken it in Seriously. To be a prefect and to preside over the prefecture, to pose as master of Alençon in Domfront, what a stroke of luck!

The proclamation of the Republic is shaking things up. his ambitions have been waned. The lawyer at the Court of Cassation still shows a little bit of its ear when, anticipating a future law, he takes the initiative to submit the nomination of mayors to the council municipal. But who will say if it's the patriot, the ambitieux or the future financier, who inspired the prefect the idea of obtaining a loan from the general council 2.4 million to equip four battalions of Mobile units and three legions mobilized?

In December 1870 he resigned, when the republican government would have dissolved the con-general councils and charged the prefects with constituting departmental commissions. It was beautiful and This is clearly an act of hostility towards the Republic. Obviously- Charles did not have the repulsive temperament blicain.

Moreover, under the Empire, almost all lawyers at the Court of Cassation were making opposition; but the Court itself was governmental in devil. When you know the judicial organization well-ciaire, we are not surprised to encounter this antagonism between the judge and the defendant. But there was two kinds of opposition: that of the salons and that cafes. The latter was a republican, not 15.

_d

262 MONOGRAPHS

he didn't mince his words and sometimes he went down in the street.

The one in the salons, perfumed, formal, was taking readily the Orleanist color; even she It would require a little legitimacy.

The winner from Lower Normandy was too fond of gloves. yellows to protest in cafes; he preferred that of the salons; in which he aimed at two

"kneaded" with what is called "the good Company ",

When he saw that the Republic was definitive-established, loyal to Royer-Collard, it became center left; then, soon understanding that, as it This Marianne was a streetwalker, a real-life Dauphine. he surmised that the good girl must like a little too much the gentlemen el that, if he knew how to overturn the roles, he would obtain all her favors; he therefore publicly rallied to her cause, a little more than Bocher, a little less than Ribot.

Appointed deputy for Domfront, he quickly became President of the center-left; Dufaure, in 1876, in one of his grunts, the minister of works public; and there's my lawyer pouring out a new of reforms and flooding all the engineers service heads.

From then on, her ambition grew, but she took an increasingly practical look; it gives wages; he resigned on May 16; he is among the 363: the only way to be re-elected.

ALBERT CHRISTOPHLE 263

That was too much! Grateful Marianne, the bombard governor of the Crédit foncier de France (February 13, 1878); and Silas accepts. He doesn't care-will now be subject to the vagaries of the election; it is becoming more consol-he would even gladly have failed in the Senate in 1882 and to the Chamber in 1885, provided that he retains the rich inheritance with which he was endowed.

Until now, civil servant or politician, Christophle is utterly useless; at the Crédit fond-I only quoted him, I told him, because he doesn't suspect it. No, he will have the opportunity to be a great man.

But I don't want to anticipate anything.

It's not exactly a series of hours of joys that have rung for him, since the day of his installation at the large pawnshop of the property French.

The imperial official, whom Silas was chasing defiantly...

easily his party.

I will not deal with this predecessor here.
having sufficiently qualified his career in the previous volume. Now Christophle realized everything following Jean-Marie-Georges Girard de Soubeyran was a formidable enemy. His astonishment appeared

264 MONOGRAPHS

when he noticed the sudden about-face of the few newspapers which, like La Zuberté, La Lanterne and Land reform had, in the past, greatly struck over the management of his dismissed predecessor.

These same newspapers began, against him,
'a knife war, advocating the new Girard's companies and exhausting the slightest act of Christophle.

Crédit foncier being incorporated as a company anonymous, the battleground was located principally-element in general meetings.

Girard, who knows the art of composing perfectly a shareholders' meeting, had taken its measures to cause a scandal.

So, there you have it, my poor, bewildered Silas! com-
He's lying, the former minister! The former reformer!
to the Court of Cassation! directly confronted, with the petty villainies he so often had to
To study procedural manifestations! What Downfall! And now the Lantern is accusing him!
formally of having created shareholders,
To be sure of their vote? The funniest thing is which Girard's henchmen attributed to Médéric, precisely what their leader had done.

I will not descend into the consciousness of the an-former minister or former lawyer; I don't want to know to what extent the need to defend

ALBERT CHRISTOPHLE 9265

a just cause, especially compared with the claims of the dismissed official, did not

In any case, the civil court, called upon to rule, has with the common sense to render, under the presidency of The honorable Aubépin, a judgment of incompetence, perhaps a little weak from a legal point of view strict, but fundamentally very fair, because it paralyzed the vicious attack by a ousted employee, tending to whitewash his faults by blackening the g-tion of his replacement.

Things escalated to the point where a complaint was filed. a defamation lawsuit was filed by Christophle against the Lantern and Evening.

I have never heard that this complaint has was followed, no more against the Lantern than against Girard de Soubeyran; this is not the first time, Moreover, I would like to point out some shortcomings in equality. of justice; however, the trials between the two Rivals occupied the civil hearings.

But Soubeyran, very well regarded by the upper echelons of banking Jewish, had managed to create a sort of void around of Crédit Foncier and its governor.

I explained in the summary that, even if one were the Crédit foncier, we are unable to get them to take out a loan. public the rag with stickers, at a high price, than in making him believe, first of all, that this same

266 MONOGRAPBIES

The rag was in frantic demand by a large number of people. The small capitalist is so loyal and so sheepish, that a financial value doesn't matter to him appears "habitable" only when another has "es-
"Swept the slate clean."

That is why the shrewd Jews immediately invented trade unions. Read the financial newspapers. cers; it is unprecedented that the most Ridicule has not been covered fifty times!

But the cronies who serve to maintain the illusions of the public, are none other than seven or eight credit institutions, considered the most powerful.

Those people, not with their own funds, hear me good, but with the money deposited in cover accounts

They write the shows they want to make successful.

As for the public, initially wary when Seeing this "great success," he said to himself quietly:

– How stupid of me! Everyone has under-Everyone else, except me! I missed out on a great deal!

Also when, some time later, the establishments-Credit agents tell him:

– I was prescient on your behalf, dear customer, and only because it's you, only Because you have money at my place, I want
I will gladly cede this value to you, settling for a small profit of fifteen to twenty francs per share.

ALBERT CHBISTOPHLE 267

The gullible man falls into the trap; he absorbs 1 liter immediately.
the values, which credit institutions do not have never wanted to take on as subscribers con-defeated and serious, but simply because they knew full well that by using subterfuge and feigning
By taking everything, they would wrest from savings a money that she would never have given spontaneously nement.

I am certain that Christophle, a lawyer, having to breaking a financier's lawsuit against a gullible person would have discovered that in fairness the unions were per-petuellement depending on breach of trust; and he would have cursed the jurisprudence, which, at the Court of cassation, would have left him no hope of success.

Yet, it was in the midst of this chaos that he is agitated, having become governor of the Crédit fond-steel!

How many times has he not felt the impossibility to effectively seize the criminal justice system! It is up to to the point that if his friend Andrieux, attacked in turn by the Lantern, and the people of Soubeyran, not him had not provided the opportunity to vent his spleen and to drag through the mud those whom he had not could obtain the punishment {which he did in fact in full chamber of deputies, in July 1879),

We would never have known by what despicable means Finance manages to deceive public opinion.

Who would believe after that that the attacks having continued, and an exasperated Christophle obtained from his friend Boucher-Cadart an arrest, perhaps just at Fundamentally, but arbitrarily in form, motivated by "Attacks or threats"!

Finally, who would believe that Crédit Foncier was involved?
reduced to saving his former villain from shipwreck genius, by collecting the wreckage of the Hypo- Bank library, whereby, henceforth, the great the union of credit institutions would sponsor the issuance of its bonds?

This is what finance does to the law, to justice.
and its interpreters!

From now on, Silas will feel dizzy; he will borrow,
He will lend; the hundreds of millions will follow.
to the hundreds of millions. Oh! he won't lend to Khedive, like Girard de Soubeyran, but he will lend to the French treasury; which, to be less blameworthy, but not statutory.

Dare I admit it? I'm counting on everyone the disgust that Christophle will have suffered by feeling, every time, what is just, true, fair, even ill-equipped by case law, to evade under his steps, to awaken the reformist instinct of the lawyer for the Court of Cassation, and, when the time came, suggest to him-

ALBERT CHISTOPHLE 269

managing the idea of letting Crédit Foncier accomplish its role as a major instrument of liquidation social imperative.

I will say, later, in the conclusions of this second volume, how will this liquidation be carried out?
donation and the mission that will belong to the Credit land.

In the meantime, what I'm writing here is going to seem enormous.

Silas-Médéric-Charles, facilitating a liquidation so-commercial and revolutionary?

– And why not, my dear sir?

Anything can happen! And when you've been an absolute conservative, then relatively conservative, with an Orleanist tinge then rallied to the Republic and was one of the 363, one can Well, to save his own skin, try a little to save his country.

IV

Henri Germain.

Invasive! Invasive! Invasive!

His name is all we see in the newspapers, on-all during budget discussions.

However, he professes, in matters of the press, to financial, Girardin's opinion on the press politics; – perhaps with the same conviction.

11 declares her powerless: he is wrong; he despises her Self-serving attacks: he's right. But why Doesn't the devil reconcile his theories and his actions? Why is a journalist like Kergall, to make his teeth chatter? Well, where from? It is because he owes a reputation of competence, as undisputed as it is few Justified?

These are strange contradictions.

Deep down, Germain knows neither more nor less than the first money changer who came along or the last grocer of

HENRI GERMAIN 971

Ja rue des Lombards. Good bourgeois, completely unaware of his financial misdeeds, strongly scandalized Dalí would be a fool if we ever proved to him that we could be a Erlanger, without having on his back: Bingham, Char-Rhineland bonds or other cotton loans, I believe-his intentions are so honest!-everything

But here's the thing! We'll never manage to... prove it to him.

Germain is simply a small-time banker who, having first of all, as he himself says, founded a Crédit Lyonnais "in his room" on the corner of the rue de Choiseul, experiences a stunned silence having managed to reign, under the same name, at the boule-
The Italians' villa, in a stone palace! And he
He stares, and he squares himself and he is like an old man.
having only one daughter through whose eyes he sees the entire universe.

His beloved daughter is Crédit Lyonnais; and he re-keeps France out of the window of his office.

Is the annual inventory fraught with profit?
France is happy and the Republic is beautiful: The;
Are profits diminishing? Are deposits becoming-
Are they rarer? All is lost! Fie! That wicked Marianne!
Alas! Poor France!

His eyes would open wide if I told him that the more prosperous his Crédit Lyonnais is, the more the

CS

979 MONOGRAPHS

France is unhappy! Yet, if he wants to ins-Truire, on this point, he only has to read the present work.

Let's take a closer look at this physiognomy.

Six years after starting to do finance, he sought political office; natural-how, as it was in 1869 and as business
They weren't going to do it, so he formed an opposition group. That's why
He was elected deputy for Ain.

Nothing exceptional about his family; his name is Germain, like everyone else; there are 60 of them in Paris;
The largest are cloth merchants; but there
He also has a member of parliament from Haute-Garonne, a lawyer,

a bunch of wine merchants, caterers, and finally a factory Chinese lacquerware, decorated, just like Mr. Crédit Lyonnais.

Mr. Crédit Lyonnais's real name is "Antoine-Henri-Marie. The city of Fourvières and Brotteaux
He was born in 1824; he was therefore forty-five years old. when political ambition seized him. He had moreover, a castle in the Aïn, and he was the son-in-law from a high-ranking imperial official: Mr. Vuitry.
He is estimated to have a fortune of fifteen to twenty million; he is a good family man, he frequents electoral dinners
He speaks willingly and pontificates there, especially at Trévoux. |

THE" to

HENRI GERMAIN | 273

I don't know if the famous Jesuit journal left the air of the country with an "Escobarian" scent However well analyzed by Pascal, the fact remains that it is most often from there that palinodies originate,
The newspapers address this in the following terms:

"The political world and the financial world are
"are moved by the words spoken by Mr. Henri
"Germain, etc."

But what do these words contain? At eight years old
From a distance, I was curious to bring them closer together.

In 1877, Germain had submitted a project for the repurchase of the railways. At that time, he mar-
He had a meeting with Wilson; only, besides the buyout, he had placed exclusive exploitation by the large companies. It was truly worthy of Trévoux!

But in 1885 everything changed: the state network was
It is dangerous, it costs taxpayers more, and _ adds the newspaper from which I borrow these lines, the Mr. Germain's remarkable speech is very applauded. If I wanted to bring all the variants together-tions of this bizarre economist and this astonishing Financially, I would need a volume.

It will suffice for me to condense his actions and...
draw conclusions.

The great fortune of Crédit Lyonnais dates back to the loan of three billion in 1872. We know that this loan included staggered payments

274 MONOGRAPHS

very minimal; one could free oneself in twenty terms 3 francs 50 centimes each; discounting of payments was 3.84 0/0 and the public had the right to release in advance; but a payment of ga-
A rent of 44 francs 50 centimes was demanded. Now, for 44 francs 50 centimes, we were subscribers to 5$ francs of annuities, except to be released at the prescribed times. In such a way that by paying approximately 57 million, one would secure the the entire subscription. Crédit Lyonnais was a of the largest subscribers; therefore, not only- through market speculation, and through the commissions that the prodigal Thiers spread to abundance, but also by provoking payments anticipated, while he delayed the longest-
As much time as possible for his own liberation, he made it rarefied. liter and benefited from the funds for a time considerable.

We will be able to see the pro- benefits bables, remembering that, during the subscription herself, the loan issued at 84.50, made, course Extremes: 85.80 and 85.15. In 1874 it had reached 100 francs.

The profits thus realized amount to hundreds tens of millions, and they are taken from the purest the country's productive forces.

In short, and all things considered, in order to be able to France had to pay 3 billion to Prussia.

HENRI GERMAIN 275

nearly five billion, not counting of course the loan of 1871.

Of these five billion, two billion are entirely These were lost revenues for taxpayers and have enriched them. & or 500,000 people, including the elite bank, and among them Crédit Lyonnais. I estimate at around fifty million, the gain of the latter

Germain, very proud of his success, had already com-began to infiltrate a multitude of financial companies
It is found, simultaneously, in the Che-Austrian mins, in those of northern Spain in marine insurance, the coal mines of Montrambert, the Châtillon Forges, the Gas and Blast furnaces of Marseille, the Omnium of Lyon, that is to say adding 200,000 or 300,000 francs to his income.
per year, as a share of profits allocated to administrators. He belongs to all the unions; he had a little bit of a hand in the General Union. At the fall Madame Germain de Bontoux said to her friends:

– Finally, my husband will be able to sleep!

Germain added the agio on paper on the land; Foncière Lyonnaise has not brought good luck; and as for Crédit Lyonnais itself–

Indeed, how can it pay interest on its deposits, when
The entire industry is suffering; when papers, worthless, stuffed safes; when

976 MONOGRAPHS

One sudden drop is all it takes to turn things into losses
The profits recorded on January 1st were enormous.
Is Ja watching until December 31st? After that, Henri Ger-Maine calls himself a utilitarian republican when he is alone– parasitic of metal, parasite of paper, parasite of the stone, parasite of the soil and parasite of its rep-tation!

He aspires to be Minister of Finance. All his discontent draws its bitterness from its perpetual disappointments.

One of his friends, when questioned by me, replied:

"Minister? Him? Never! His political opinions–"
"These questions are too elusive for any party to..."
"that he can have confidence in him; he is both
"everyman's man and no one's man,"
"And everything depends on his latest performance."

Public ignorance makes reputation dangerous.
This financier's overrated lion. Let the voters...
dreamenti

A still hesitant center-leftist, destined to lend the hand to the first suitor who came along, who, lying in ambush at Henri Germain, at the corner of the Stock Exchange, will be watching for power. would be much better off liquidating Crédit Lyonnais, in the two or three years that separate him from the cataclysm, and to retire peacefully to the midst of his estates. while France floundered in convulsions famine symptoms. If he does not follow this advice, I

HENRI GERMAIN 9277

He encourages him to consult the Trévoux newspapers; there will find, I warn him, the shadow of Blaise Pascal who will recite these two maxi-Escobar and Lessius's:

"Those who do not have enough wealth to sub-sister honestly, and, all together, to pay their debts, can lawfully put one partly under cover by declaring bankruptcy to their Creditors."

And also this other one by the great Vasquez, cited by Castro Palao, namely that, "when we see a vo-their resolute and ready to rob a poor person, one can, in order to divert him from it, assign him something person 72che, in particular, to steal it from The place of the other."

I am bringing this last point to Germain's attention in particular. precept of the journalists of Trévoux, so that if, By chance, some determined criminal was preparing to jump on Crédit Lyonnais, he can quietly... to whisper in the ear in the name of the great Vas-question:

– "Excuse me, my good friend, but you would do well "You'd be better off going to Rue Laffitte!"

It's 16

V

Seillière.

always found, at one of their colleagues in in place, a kind of retirement pension in the form of duchy or county, with high and low rights pillaging their unfortunate inhabitants, the duchies of Lorraine and Bar were given to a poor devil dethroned and appointed Stanislas Leczinski, former King of Pologne and better known as the father-in-law of Capet who, Numbered fifteenth, Louis, then exercised the profession of king of France.

Stanislas, the chronicles say, brought happiness to his little people; I cannot appreciate to what extent
The chronicles were right. But it is certain that, very low pierced at that time, this king was not re-came from Poland, without being accompanied by any good Jews. So, as soon as they arrived, they searched-They explored the country and soon made contact with a cloth manufacturer who had settled in Pierrepont, just a stone's throw from the Luxembourg border. This

SEILLIÈRE 979

The region, heavily wooded, was then almost deserted; also the idea of choosing it to create a factory was at least strange.

As for the weaver in question, his name was Seillière.

Naturally, there was understanding between a merchant and a Jew was quick; so much so that, thanks to the protection of this lastly, at the side of the father-in-law of the King of France, the draper obtained supplies for the regiments of Alsace and Lorraine. It was the beginning of a fortune.

Supplies have always been the most quick to reach a million.

The Seillière family understood this well, and their generation devoted itself to it. Their very methods did not They don't vary much: and we will find them again, at Some one hundred years apart, linked by Jews to Mr. Son-in-Law, to obtain as before by the Jews of Mr. Stepfather, the supplies of the army.

But let's not get ahead of ourselves.

very good deals with the regiments of the time;
Naturally, having sampled the supplies, 1 liter was taken the vertigo of hoarding and wanted to manufacture

280 MONOGRAPHS

also weapons; that is why, at the end of the reign of Louis XV and at the beginning of the following reign Previously, he was at the head of a cannon foundry.
for the navy.

If it weren't for the detestable reputation which, historically rarity, focuses on suppliers, this point of The departure of the Scillière workers would be a sign of nobility.
which would be as good as any other.

Unfortunately, in the world of trafficking, moral sense is... perverted, and I will be saddened to note that their offspring quickly turned into a parasite ism: the first step from work to traffic was crossed by the supplies; the second step of the
The barony crossed the threshold of honors.

Indeed, we will soon find Napoleon I.
who, not without some irony and so as not to prodi-to fight the cross he had reserved for his brave old men, readily bestowed titles of nobility upon his tax collectors as an honor, granting to one of the Seillière the title of baron.

Meanwhile, the cannon foundry had prospered;
one of the Seillière family, named Nicolas, had even founded a banking house in 1807, at Paris, to help its industries, because the factory de Pierrepont was not abandoned.

In 1814, another Seillière, named Florentin, reigned supreme in high finance and, with it, cares-

SEILLIÈRE 281

He knows the Restoration after having licked the Empire.

The Restoration had, moreover, welcomed the
With eyes closed, the claims of the infamous arrears supplies; to add insult to injury,
She confirmed to Florentin his baronial swagger.

Later, another Seillière, named Alexandre, bought, thanks to the works of the black band, the beautiful Mello castle.

Finally, in 1829, François Seillière, head of the bank house, charter of sailing boats in View of the Algiers expedition.

As we can see, the Seillière family had walked with giant strides; everything that concerned the army stirred up their desires and they absolutely obtained this that they wanted.

A few years later, that is to say in 1836, François partnered with an ironmaster named Schneider, who later became president of the Corps legislative, under the Second Empire; with him, he acquired Creuzot for 2 million lions 1/2, thus subtracting this large foundry in the hands of Fould and Aguado who, under the Restauration, had been the owners.

From this arose the relationship between the Seillière family and... Schneider; also when in December 1875 this last- If Nier died at Le Creuzot, were the Seillière family seen? in the front row, on the day of the funeral.

16.

282 MONOGRAPHS:

So far these suppliers have managed to increase their fortune, under the benevolent eye of the monarchs, without ever having a scandal that was too resounding could have reached the public's ears.

It must be believed, however, that too long A string of successes broadens awareness and encourages to imprudence. That's what happened.

In 1860, we find a Seillière in a association of Jews, admittedly dodging the legal-correctional court proceedings, but being sentenced, However, by the second chamber of the court civil of the Seine, to reimburse the subscribers of Nassau Railway shares, to have initiated by means of leaflets tainted with fraud and having received shares without authorization having paid the amount.

Here we find Seillière coupled with Po-Lydore-Moïse Millaud, who directed the newspaper /a Press, and, if we remember that roughly at the
At the same time, the lawyer Christophle frequented this journal, we will understand how these two high Money dignitaries were able to establish relationships.

It is also worth noting this intervention by Seillière, manufacturer in Pierrepont, border of Luxembourg, in the trafficking of roads Nassau iron.

Approximately nine years later, another scandal

SEILLIÈRE 383

rises; this time it's more serious; there is still Jews were involved in the case, including one named Louis-Isaac Cahen, known as Lyon. It was naturally-supply of materials for the army and also of the Pierrepont factory.

Seillière had been declared the successful bidder in 1868.
the supply of sheets and other fabrics access-evenings necessary for the clothing of the gendarmerie of the Paris guard.

Numerous cases of fraud have been uncovered, legal proceedings had to begin as soon as the pre-First month of 4869. In 1870, an investigating judge instrumental. The war interrupted his work.
then, subsequently, the municipality and, also, circumstance Extraordinary and sad for the memory of the baron successful bidder, the file and the documents & evidence related to the pursuit, were consumed in the incenday of the Palace of Justice during the week of blood-glante.

Justice, however, did not believe it should or-forget the abuses that had caused the State a considerable damage and, on July 22, 1873, she them mentioned before the criminal court of the Seine, in the 7th chamber presided over by Mr. Gérin.

However, during the investigation, which lasted from-
Then in 1872, Baron Seillière had died.

From then on, the matter was of only one importance secondary and I will not dwell on recounting the details of the hearings and pleadings.

Besides, guilt matters little to me, this
What I wanted to point out is the existence of fraud.
passed, so to speak, into habit, in a a multitude of markets with the State.

There are four current Seillières;
Only one is described as a baron in the directory; the others are referred to by their first name.

In accordance with the habits of financiers millionaires, almost all the girls in the house
Seillière were given to sons of titled families.

One married a Marquis d'Hautpoul, another married a Count of Boisgelin, yet another one has married a prince of Sagan. Finally, what explains—would do many things, the Galliffets themselves would—would have been allied with the Seillière family!

Meanwhile, Baron Seillière continues to occupy himself... per of supplies; not that he needs to com—Mercer is immensely rich; but he has the trade in the blood and he obeys invincibly his atavism.

To succeed, he allied himself with the one known as the "heir apparent of the Republic"; regarding this character I mentioned in the first volume, the Seillière's participation in a sand company gold miners of Cambodia, as well as those who had, moreover, their story, as told by Le Clairon and Le Pays. Since then,

SEILLIÈRE 285

Many other cases were cited: notably a fight supplies against oo which, it is said, conceals Erlanger.

It's very good to fight against Erlanger; it's very good, even, to be, probably, one of the causes of the very apparent awakening of justice with regard to of this great evildoer; but, then, one must give the example of all perfections, it is necessary that the never have anything to complain about.

Is that the case?

As for the moral means that the Seillière current methods are employed to win at auctions,
Who will ever be able to tell them?

Who will ever say why, one fine morning, cer-Some newspapers launch a campaign against such and such such a minister of war who, yesterday, was praised By them?

Who then will be strong enough to know and pure enough?
for drawing?

How sad! A family of producers who had distinguished herself through her work with fabrics, as in metallurgy, which could have made so many services and to acquire such beautiful glory, to have

286 MONOGRAPBIES

involved in finance, having associated with Jewish circles, having mired in trafficking, and deserving that until His intentions are suspected based on his alliances!

Indeed, alongside French names, more or less Illustrious people, why the Prussian name Sagan?
What has this alliance achieved? What example has it set?
Seillière and Sagan give us their employment of Their immense fortune? Why this pursuit of me
I know what unhealthy celebrity, by means of parties bizarre, organized by a single woman and placed in sumptuous palaces whose living leader is absent

What a disgrace for this country! When you travel the list of the world's so-called selected frequenting
The salons of Princess Sagan! What was that Animal festival where Seillière dressed as Buffon –
as Jester – enthroned paternally?

Read the accounts of this orgy, even in "distinguished" newspapers like Le Figaro; you will see there that the beautiful people – and What a fine crowd! The whole Jewish community! – se com-
It pleased him, as a supreme distinction, to make shouts

Do those people really think that we're making a living room out of something?
short, because the bottle from which the cork pops
Is it labeled Moët or Clicquot?

And yet, beneath this mask, in these pre-

SADDLER 287

tense celebrations, it is said that all the ambassadors were recognized Sadists and a bunch of princes!

As for me, I cannot believe in the unconscious-science of so much futility or so much sloppiness. In-I deliberately recall the sinister stories which have horrified the patriotism of this country, and Involuntarily, too, I wonder if, behind These masks and these orgies do not hide international meetings from which might emerge
Will France one day be destroyed?

VI

Blount

This English surname, compounded by an equally impressive first name.
English – Edward – recovers the personality of the chairman of the board of directors of a large French railway company, which, just-
He lays out the rails of his network on a good part of the French coast facing the British coastfuck.

In August 1884, Le Figaro expressed itself thus with regard to from this financier:

"We are pleased to learn of the appointment"
"by Mr. Ed. Blount, Chairman of the Board of Directors"
"Interministerialization of Western Railways, at the rank
"of Commander of the Legion of Honour."

"Mr. Blount is very well-liked in the world of "business, where he has held positions for over half a year"
"century, an exceptional situation. Interested in
"the largest of commercial enterprises, 11

BLOUNT 289

"is one of the founders of the railway industry"
"of French iron, and it is, in large part, to its "initiative and its persistent efforts that we
"we owe the remarkable improvements made
"for some years now in the exploitation of "French lines.

"Mr. Blount was a member of the Legion of Honour-
"Neur for over forty years. The distinction, "of which he has just been the subject, seems to us a just
"reward for exceptional services he has not "ceased to return to the commerce and industry of the "country. Regardless of its high position at "The Western Company, Mr. Blount is also "vice-president of the board of directors of "Paris to Lyon and Mediterranean railways"
"ranée."

Such is the dithyramb! It is, however, a little incomplete, and Le Figaro was quite moderate in the number of functions he assigns to Blount. No only he is president of the company of Western Railways and Vice President of the P.-L.-M. railway company, but,
Furthermore, he receives benefits from Société Générale.
to promote the development of trade and industry in France, to the railways of the South of Austria, to those of Madrid-Zaragoza-Alicante, to the Royal Portuguese Railway Company, at the nl 17

290 MONOGRAPHS

General Company for Railway Operations iron from European Turkey, to the Société Générale of steam-powered maritime transport, to the Company general waters, at the Acclima- Zoological Garden
lation.

I'm probably forgetting some, but it's certain that this
The pretty accumulator has the foot, the hand and, above all, the pocket, in ten companies, whose capital so-combined, these make up the modest sum of one one billion three hundred and two million! And that's outside shares that he might own, that poor devil cashes in as a share of the profit, for the good the care he gives to these ten administrations, approximately

The calculation is easy: the average dividends, established on the even, varies from 8 to 10 0/0 (and I am moderate); at 10 0/0 the 1302 million represent 130 million in dividends; generally the Directors take 1/10 of the net profits. which constitutes a profit share for them 43 million; however, on average, there are ten administrations members per company, which makes one hundred directors for the ten companies, i.e. 130,000 francs for Blount, earned, as we can see, "by the sweat of his front".

Apart from that, Blountest is legally obligated to own one hundred shares of each of the companies including

BLOUNT: 291

He is a director; therefore, he owns a thousand shares of 500 each. francs each, totaling 500,000 francs committed, of which The dividends contribute 50,000 francs, to the 130,000 francs already mentioned, which makes 180,000 francs! Add- tones to this figure the president's salary, and We will certainly exceed 200,000 francs.

Here, then, is a man who, on his own, benefits from not to do nothing, – for it will be granted to me that, if he con- coronation at the Western Company, he has nothing left It's high time to take care of the other nine companies. – twenty times what the most intelligent worker- gent, barely manages to earn a living ten hours per day.

And that's not all! I haven't even mentioned Blount's personal fortune; he owns a splendid hotel on rue de Courcelles; it also has- lying in England, in the county of Sussex, at Imberhorn, a vast property where he was a cons- to build, in 1880, a church for the Catholics of the country.

The worst part is that this man isn't even French !

There is indeed, it is true, a Henry Blount, known ct meme loudly complimented, for having orga- organized a charity raffle to benefit the hos- work-related disability; for having also been part of a urban ambulance committee, tt Henry would be naturalized French citizen.

Did Edward do the same? It is claimed that he did, but he
 It was impossible for me to verify this physically.
 In any case, at the beginning of his financial exploits, when with Laffitte, Rothschild and Hottinguer, the
 On September 9, 1845, he obtained the concession of Northern Railway, neither Louis-Philippe, nor his ministers, did not for a moment consider searching, if Rothschild and Blount were French. But they were not They weren't; James always remained German and Austrian consul, and I have recounted elsewhere that Al-Phonse was naturalized in 1848, thanks to the terrors from his father.

This is the man whose services Figaro sings about!

This is the man who was made commander of the Legion of Honour!

The minister, who thus honored Edward Blount, wanted to make sure that his protégé had never Having been transferred to the correctional police, he was right;
 Indeed, despite all my research, I have not discovered no scandalous trials, either civil or otherwise criminal, where the name of Blount has resounded.

With my usual impartiality, I will add that This is an excellent score; for among the handlers of money, for which roguery is called speculation, and parasitism is called work, ll y a a kind of unconscious dishonesty, which qualifies only by a court ruling.

BLOUNT | 293

At the Blount's, there's a charity parade; gives 500 francs for the poor and, as a result, the millions of speculation become the sacrosanct product saint of useful labor!

However, honest Blount! you had, there's no not long, a great opportunity to show off of your honor: you know, as well as I do, that one discovered, at the Ministry of War, 30 malions overpayments, by the railway companies iron, for transport on behalf of the State; you know adding, however, that he accepted the verification

FOR THE FUTURE, But would never agree to give back sums unduly received in the past.

He added to this enormity a theory of errors,
From which it follows that with regard to the State, ERROR MADE ACCOUNT.

This trustee spoke for all the companies, and You did not protest, O Blount, commander of The Legion of Honour!

It really is mind-boggling, and makes you want to... to lose all sense of what is right! Yet I have not not everything said and if, from the president I went down to the company, to the scandal of preferential rates, to everything which, in her case, takes care of English interests in the pre-Judgment of French interests, I would still have to fill volumes.

No, sir, no! To find it good that we keep

294 MONOGRAPHS

unduly 30 million belonging to the State, ruining French commerce to enrich commerce English, give 500 francs to the poor after their having taken millions, building churches for the Imberhornians, put in restaurants and gas in your carriages, sometimes crushing the passengers and, to please the Jews, prohibit the sale of my Kings of the Republic, in your stations, all This may well be worth the Legion of Honour, but,
Certainly not the one of honor!

VII

Ephrussi.

Imagine a square room; on the panels telephone devices and telegraphic devices.

In the middle: a table; seated near it and a griffinnant, a kind of gnome with shining eyes.

The devices chime: it's to the right, it's to

He runs to the devices; he speaks, he listens, he answers;
Then he returns to his table, scribbles down some numbers.
He looks at the time and whispers softly: the boss is going arrive !

Almost at the same instant the door opens: what-that one between, that at first glance one would take for a man; he is dressed like you and me and he speaks French.

Silently, he approaches the table, takes the paper that his employee hands him; it is the summary of all the dispatches from around the globe.

296 MONOGRAPRIES

As she reads, her face lights up; her eyes shine.
of a strange brilliance; a sneer escapes from his mouth and here is what he said:

– Good! Fine! No harvest, France is going to be forced to turn to a foreign country.

Then he does some numbers, places the paper on the table and, pointing to lines that its
The employee listened attentively, he said:

– Buy there, there, and there, all the wheat, all the cargoes, departing ships: if France
She wants money, she'll pay dearly for it!

Then, after a short silence, he added:

– The oils, now!

He runs his fingers over the paper again, murmuring as before, "good" "well", shows to his employee gives numbers, names, and repeats:

– Buy here, here, and here; if France wants She'll pay dearly for that oil!

Having done this, he rejects the papers, assures his chaskin on his head, and turning one last time to the employee, he said in a curt tone:

– And quickly!

Then he disappears.

This man, to add a few dozen

EPHRUSSI 297

millions to the hundreds he already owns, comes Perhaps to starve a country!

In a less Judaized nation, such a man would already have been brought before the Assize Court! But modern political economy, in the name of freedom, dubbed hoarding "speculation"; therefore,
There's nothing more to say, the hoarder is a being honorable, to which the rulers grant "the honors," to punish the morality of refusing them
"Honor."

The operation I just staged, more high, in a fantastic form, is that to which Jews from Odessa, known in France under the names Michel and Maurice Ephrussi.

Their sole job (?) is to load arbiartificially lowering the price of things by creating artificial-their rarity.

This is Jewish trafficking in all its glory and, Therefore, it's parasitism in all of this that which is most hideous and demoralizing about it.

But what use are the millions they amass?
Is that how it feels?

The answer to this question will not be found in the list of public utility works large agricultural or industrial operations, nor in anything that represents work 17.

298 MONOGRAPHS

useful; but if the reader carefully scans the List of holidays, sports chronicles or theatrical evenings, he will encounter, at each

This is, in fact, agreed upon by the columnists. they overuse epithets and hyperbole so much that I am ashamed to note that in 1885 the ideal of French elegance is called: "Ephrussi".

It's only about their toilets
"ladies" and the carriages of their "gentlemen", of their festivals, their raffles, where the love of bric-a-brac is given the pompous name of "cult" of the arts.

However, what the public doesn't know and must Learning is that he is not one of those diamonds, not one of those prize horses, not one of those cars of state or of those splendid houses, which are not the product of vile speculation, where mixed Oil, wheat, and sometimes blood! Do we remember?
of the strange suicide of the man named Biedermann?
Well, Michel Ephrussi took his place and continued-revealing its operations.

In Paris, there are many Ephrussis; one found associated with a lot of other Jews; excellent a way to quickly form trade unions, to expand their landholdings.

This is how, among other things, there exists a house

EPHRUSSI 299

Ephrussi and Porges. As for the Ephrussi, they-
They are themselves constituted as a limited partnership, having Michel as manager with full powers, by renewed deed of Persil, notary, dated
May 9-10, 1883.

Michel married K nigswarter's niece, a widow Merton, the financier who died tragically, there several years, completely ruined, during that his wife kept her fourteen million dowry;
The Ephrussi family definitely have the successions.
disasters.

Michel, moreover, is the same one who, in Trouville,
On August 17, 1872, he tried to provoke a small riot against France, where he received asylum. I don't-Nothing for sale; one only has to read Le Figaro from that date and everyone knows that this newspaper is not note, only in passing, that an Ephrussi has They've found a way to scandalize even Le Figaro!

Too cautious to get involved, personally, to the boards of directors of financial companies
However, they almost compromised themselves with Erlanger, Oppenheim, Lebaudy, a certain Coronio, – a little-known Levantine Jew, – Eugène Pereire and Léon Errera, in trying to establish a mobile credit-Belgian company, with a capital of 40 million.

This beautiful project, absolutely based, like the Mobi-

300 MONOGRAPHS

linking French and Spanish and so many others, on the agio-
The tage, does not appear to have succeeded.

Ultimately, the theory of Jews of the Ephrussi species consists of not exposing oneself to the risk of the commercial function.
ciale, that part of their fortune; they follow
Thus, the example of Rothschild, who dominates them all.

These, in fact, by an act dated October 44th-October 1880, which took place between Alphonse, Gustave and Edmond, extended their association until the September 30, 1905; however, the social fund, provided by third, amounts to only 50 million.

The newspapers that mentioned this fact have swooning with admiration at the cost of the recording
The amount of the said deed: 62,500 francs

They didn't consider that, with these 62,500 Frankly, the three voracious men made sure of everything quite simply-granting an UNLIMITED right of appropriation over the nation French, in the name of their social responsibility recognized in law-
tice, but by LIMITING THEIR RISKS |

For, let us note this particularity: if Rothschild and company lost 100 million, too bad for the creditors. Rothschild and company only have 50 million! As for Alphonse, Gustave, and Edmond,
They owe nothing to anyone!

Thus, when their company issues a bond,
For Egypt, for example, the public imagines to have the Rothschild billion as collateral;

A grave error! Even morally, the guarantee of these Bankers is an illusion; they didn't hold back. to suspend payment of the Egyptian coupon, _6 placed at their counters, without worrying if those those who had subscribed had, or had not, counted on their solvency. I explained, moreover, in the first volume, in the Rothschild chapter, by a an example taken in 1848, that these good people did not hold- They only fulfill their commitments when it suits them Please.

The Rothschilds' possessive temperament and The Ephrussi family was supposed to end in an alliance; it had taking place in the form of a wedding.

One would have thought that all the Rothschild girls would become princesses or duchesses, like Simple Seillière? Another mistake! It was even a disappointment; the Rothschilds probably wanted try a proletarian demonstration in accept- so much so that the very rooster Maurice Ephrussi. He is one of them. as a result, at the wedding of Miss Beatrix, in June 1883, many days- They talked about the wife and very little about the husband.

Grand display, moreover, traffic prohibited on the street of Victory; thanks to the onlookers and the police, the the Jewish tribe of Paris was able to indulge in the illusion of a ma-princely marriage, minus the prince; in St. Petersburg the the honeymoon was less than brilliant: the empress having refused to be introduced to Mademoiselle de Rothschild "only in passing".

302 MONOGRAPHS

But what does it matter in Mauritius? It's no less important. of the family; and he has one more way to expand the Michel's unions to combine deals with Porges. e

Even better, an Ephrussi was able to afford the luxury of to protect Alphonse and to support the candidacy of this one at the Academy of Fine Arts.

The sponsorship was not successful, and I congratulate them for it.

who, valiantly and loyally, has shown that art true had nothing in common with science bric-a-brac.

Finally, to complete the illustration of the family, he
There is an Ephrussi who is a commander of the Legion of Honour.

Is this cross due to his great merits or Did he pay for it in full, with good cash? I don't know
I couldn't say; only I find in the supplement-comment from Le Figaro dated February 11, 1885, under the Gazette of the Courts section, Eighth Chamber, the following small mention, which underlines, once Furthermore, the silence of this newspaper regarding the husband, at the famous wedding.

The eighth chamber had to assess a traffic of decorations attributed to the Buret agency, Sou-dry and Co.: or the editor of Le Figaro, rendering

EPHRUSSI 303

In the account of the audience, he wrote the following lines:

"Mr. Millerand, Buret's lawyer, informs "that negotiations have begun with "Mr. Ephrussi, the well-known banker: for "100,000 francs, we were supposed to get him the cross of "Commander of the Legion of Honour! Mr. Mille-"Rand adds that Mr. Ephrussi was indeed
"Appointed commander."

Coincidence! Pure coincidence! If it weren't for... the honor of Ephrussi, let it be at least for that of the government!

VIII

Hottinguer.

The Hottinguer family belongs to the Geneva school;
They are comparable to the Mallet, although less anciens than them. Indeed, the royal almanac of 1764 con-it bears the name of the Mallet family, bankers on rue Quincampoix (which was also written rue Quinquempois, - d quinze campanis, because of the five parishes to which the

At the same time, no trace of the Hottinguer family can be found.

These men, like the Mallets, have a reputation—a sense of integrity; I can even say that, if they have done
They probably don't have any problems with this country.
no awareness.

However, just like the Mallets, they have a little too susceptible to the bank's speculations Ottoman; finally, as if to emphasize the resemblance—white at the extremes, 1 liter turns out that they have were simultaneously made baronies by the Restoration ration.

HOTTINGUER 305

Ennobling financiers had become almost a a custom since Louis XV; indeed, this king wishing to console the Paris mint, at which he had just given Lyon a competitor, decided that the nobility, "in the first place", would be de-surrounded, not personally, but as a privilege accompanying the rank, to the first president of the court of coins and other high-ranking positions.

The Hottinguers, moreover, would not have done bad appearance at this court, because they agree with their to recognize "gentlemanliness", at least for the quantity compatible with the profession of
financial.

Even under Louis XVI, people spoke of "rigidity"
"that the Genevan threw in the middle of the rounds and "dances, like a muted sound on the instruments"
"ments," when he gave the parties to which his
His position compelled him to do so.

At the same time, the same was said of Mallet
And, apparently, to find entertainment, one had to go to Greffulhe or Rougemont, who received the court, the Count of Artois and the Duke of Berry.

These two princes, as I have said elsewhere, died out thrown into speculation, and Hottinguer was not then than to the cold and measured speculation of his school; we even called it #mide, so much so that a little Later I find him letting himself be abducted by Rothschild a state loan; hence a sulking against the Jew German and also against the Villèle ministry. This the sulking intensified to the point that, among the financial backers of a newspaper created by Saint-Simon and Augustin Thierry, the Industrialist, I read in all letters the name of the Hottinguer in good company Besides.

Clearly, the financiers of Geneva were moving on to the enemy. A circumstance awakened them. The newspaper Saint-Simonian had just published a bold manifesto—heavens, it was said there among other truths: "that the "emperors, kings, princes, priests, "Even the owners could disappear" "without society being particularly affected, while "that the death of an industrialist, a chemist, would be "a public calamity because he was a "Capacity." Immediately, Hottinguer and his colleagues, not without some cowardice, they began to declare well at the top, "that they had only subscribed to the sheet at "a title of relief and announcement, without hearing or "Neither support her nor patronize her."

This small retreat did some favor to the Hottinguer tribe.

Moreover, reversals characterize politics from the house; about twenty-five years later, after having weathered the crisis of 1848, more bravely than Rothschild, but with some unease nonetheless,

HOTTINGUER 307

Rodolphe, reconciled with the Jew, not only together with Blount, he founded the Northern Railway, but, again, publicly associated himself with works of imperial and Catholic charity, whose initiative—The early move was official! It was listed in the "Moniteur".

However, the National Assembly, on February 16, 1857, mentioned Hottinguer's name among the founders authors of the work of Notre-Dame d'Orient — (it is We begin with Notre-Dame and with Constant— (Tinople, let's finish!) — insert in the next column this minor news item, which today is becoming a A true gem. I'm transcribing it exactly as it is:

"to decide that all third-class cars
"Classrooms will, in the future, be closed off by glass partitions."
instead of simple curtains.

Thus the philanthropists Rothschild, Hottinguer and Blount, who sometimes gave to the poor, had started by driving taxpayers French, a little less well than today they
They do not transport foreign livestock!

The financial function of the Hottinguer family consists of
to be, through currency exchange and paper, intermediaries trade between France and other countries, in particular North America, where they have many correspondents.

They are getting involved in major international purchases

308 MONOGRAPHS

national, for example cereals, and that is,
even, thanks to this specialized aspect of their role, that after having considered liquidating, in March 1848, they were completely reassured in September and resumed all their activities.

Today the Hottinguer form a tribe; the chief, Baron Rodolphe is a knight of the Legion of Honour and Regent of the Bank of France.

The directory lists a total of six Hottinguer; in Furthermore, they are very widespread in financial societies.
cières, they are found in insurance companies Frances: the National Fire Brigade and the National Life Brigade; at the Ottoman Imperial Bank, at the Crédit foncier from Austria, to the General Match Company chemical, water, and water commissions the vetting of the five colonial banks, to the coal-railways and railway of Épinac, to the railways from the North, to the Austrian railways, and to the Paris-Lyon-Mediterranean railways.

That makes twelve companies, including the Bank of France; Rudolph alone has nine for his share;
So he's a job-hopper.

The Hottinguer family are immensely wealthy; they occupy several splendid hotels; the small Posters give us an idea of the value of

and also, an overview of their alliances.

HOTTINGUER 309

Some time before the wedding of one of them Henri-François Hottinguer sold them to the New-velve-Union a plot of land located in the 15th arrondissement, having an area of 24,796 square meters, medium-nant la somme de 1,983,726 francs.

This land belonged to the former convent of Minimes of Passy and that of Nigeon, known as "Good men."

We also learn, on the occasion of this sale, that the Hottinguers are allied by the women at Henri-Samuel-André-Philippe Conquéré de Monbrison, former cavalry officer, knight of the Legion of Honour; that Jean-Henri Hottin-Guer, now deceased, had married a de-Miss Stéphanie-Madeleine-Caroline Delessert; finally, that Miss Anne-Caroline-Madeleine Delessert married Henri, Baron Bartholdi.

The alliances which, thanks to our civil code, have of paramount importance in the actions of financial matters should be the constant study of all those who seek to explain how the con-high-level banking perceptions are resolved in a perpetual hoarding of public wealth.

In summary, the Hottinguer family, with the exception of a few pale-nodies towards established powers, which is such-financial element that I wouldn't know how to give them one crime, and except, also, their oriental speculation, are, despite their flourishing parasitism in their A fortune of 150 or 200 million, worthy of being put away among those whose direct actions would lend themselves less open to criticism.

310 MONOGRAPHS

However, I have a serious criticism to make of them. and, at the same time, to the Mallets, even more guilty as they are. These financiers, whom I have declared relatively honest, they joined forces, in their puts, to an unqualifiable irregularity: is or AVOIDED FROM PROVIDING THEIR MANAGEMENT ACCOUNTS, FOR EXERCISE 1884 (THE LAST OF THE MONOPOLY), LEAVING THUS PLUNGE A REGRETTABLE DARKNESS OVER MORE THAN FIVE MILLION OWED BY THEM TO THE STATE, SINCE 14875. On,

THEY DID THIS AT THE VERY MOMENT THE STATE HAD JUST...
TAKE MORE THAN TEN FROM TAXPAYERS' MONEY
MILLIONS, TO BUY BACK THEIR EQUIPMENT AND STOCK AND WHERE THEY DISTRIBUTED PROFITS TO THEIR SHAREHOLDERS
EXCEPTIONALLY HIGH FIXES |

This shamelessness and, perhaps, this complicity, where I I no longer find the old rigidity of yesteryear, they make me fear that in times of social catastrophe, these financiers do not seek to fight, through Unspeakable means, the renovation towards which the
The French nation marches invincibly.

HOTTINGUER 311

The further I progress in my monographic work, the more the res-Similarities accumulate and less and less detail becomes necessary.
to the men.

I showed Putilitaire, occupying both worlds, more or Less fortunate, more or less controversial: Lesseps.

I showed the bourgeois, having made a kind of domesticity of his servants of nobility and placing the livery above the uniform: Bocher.

I showed the jurist, initially inclined to reform, then falling into the promiscuity of finance: Christophle.

I showed the financier of the new school, constantly floating between conservatism and reformation, swollen with pride and Incapable: Germain.

I showed the supplier, perpetuating himself in the intrigues, flattering all powers without offering the guarantee required by a service vice of state; associating with Jews and not afraid of compromising to put one's patriotism into contact with internal mysteries: Scillière.

I like to show English, more than German, the traditional enemy of France, having control over most of our industries, and mainly on railways: Blount.

I like to show the hoarder-speculator, a foreigner in France, and, moreover-their, without a homeland, devouring everywhere and happy as long as he

I have shown the finance sector, which is reputed to be austere, sometimes even timid. weak often, without any social conviction other than that favoring the methodical operation of the exchange between paper and gold: Hottinguer.

In the first volume I had already grouped together the political financiers ticks, cosmopolitans, orientals, Germans and others, the corrupt officials

And I haven't told you everything!

319 MONOGRAPHS

Among the hundreds of names still lined up before me, So I have to choose. They are legion: I must disregard the decurions and only concern themselves with the centurions.

Even among these, some could have been added to the individuals dualities of the first volume and the others could be confused with those I just dealt with.

Because everywhere I encounter morals that are more or less lax, awareness of varying degrees, examples of varying degrees scandalous.

The least bad are the unconscious or the distorted by atavism; and, moreover, it must be said of them, like shipwrecked survivors From Virgil: "Apparently rare in Nantes".

So I'm going to take the most well-known ones and group them randomly. of their alphabetical letter.

IX

Bapst. – Berthier. – Bussierre. – Camus.

Bapsr. – The diamond kings. Germain is administrator of Cape Town diamonds and interested in Journal of Debates. Their tribe is numerous in Paris; their immense fortune is stirring in several syndicates cals and their person in diplomatic jobs questions; in short: great occult and anti- influence social. |

Bertuier. – There are 56 in the directory, among

I am taking great care to put in writing, Charles-Louis Berthier, for fear of being confused with the Berthier brothers, worthy companions of Erlanger and, like him, threatened by the justice system. Charles-Lours was a judge at the commercial court; currently he is president of the Compagnie générale omnibus; corn he accumulates; it is found at France, insurance company, at the Counter discount; he was at the Commercial Circle; at

ll 18

314 MONOGRAPHS

Eastern railways; to the Bank of Paris and the The Netherlands.

In short, he is an honest bourgeois, who does not will never understand that a monopoly, applied to a public service, cannot, under any circumstances, be assisuitable for a commercial or industrial enterprise ordinary triella; he will be a useful man the day he will suggest to the municipality the idea of monopolizing officially the general omnibus service, at means of a company, neither owner nor tenant farmer, but MANAGER, operator at cost price, that is to say-saying not adding to the operating costs themselves said, that the management fees; for only randomness: a reward, proportional to the development recipe calculation, based on a revisable standard every two years.

Bussierre. - Another baron; we can only count-four Bussierre in Paris; they are widespread in some financial companies: Bor-gas deaux, to the Orleans to Chdons railway, to the financial company of Paris, now in liquidation donation. Unfortunately, they can also be found at the Credit. Algerian with the Jew Léopold Sée, behind whom still hiding the Prussian Erlanger; Gustav and Edmond de Bussierre, who were administrators of the Gas and Water Company, since its formation, submitted their resignations in 1885; they have, perhaps-to be, to act wisely; the two barons of Bussierre

CAMUS 315

one an officer and the other a commander of the Legion of Honour landlords. They are large landowners multiplying and accumulating, through finance, the royalties they take a cut from the workers' production.

Camus. – It's the Paris Gas Company made man. Is he descended from one of the six great industrials ennobled by Henri IV? or the lawyer at Parliament which, in 1785, resided on rue Guénégaud? I don't know.

Whatever it is, currently, his entire family is in the gas industry. One, the company director and industrialist; the other is a machinist at gas and answers to the name Jules. Apart from these two gasmen, the Camus family abounds, without however to form a single family; the phone book records them 63; the dominant professions among them are those of baker and wine merchant.

Émile is a power, because the Company Gas is another; never an anonymous community no longer had any ramifications in republican politics blicaine.

Camus is convinced that Paris was founded simply to enrich its shareholders, and that the Parisians were brought into the world, first and foremost, to be subject to arbitrary taxation and forced labor by him and his council and, secondarily, to be lit and heated by gas.

316 MONOGRAPHS

During his tenure he had to learn what is worth precisely the measure of human consciences, and His reptile enclosure is well aware that there is a way to attack its monopoly, which it appreciated market value!

The gas company and its director profess, like the trustee of the railway companies iron, the doctrine that with regard to a municipality "Mistakes count."

Through culpable negligence, it was failed to consider, when the time came, at what number reduced the cost price of gas, as a result of the

Thanks to this serious mistake, the Parisians are in grave danger. Their interests were harmed. The procedure, a slave of legality, but taking it at ease with fairness, has sided with the monopoly against the public interest. This monopoly must therefore be radically eliminated; If this is not done by agreement, it will be the work of a company liquidation.

X

Davillier. –Dehaynin. – Last. – From Eichtal.
– Delessert. – Dreyfus.

Davizcrer. – The baron, Jean-Charles, is careful
It is good to have Mr. Vapereau say that he is a financier;
This modesty is commendable. Mr. Vapereau tells us

He recounts that Jean-Charles, Baron Davillier, is –French art lover and historian; that he was born in Rouen in 1823; that he is the grandson of a peer of France; which he studied at Stanislas and Saint-Louis;
Because he was very rich, he made many trips having as its aim art and curiosity; that it has been “member of special exhibition committees universals of 1867 and 1878; that finally it is com-Commander of the Order of Charles III of Spain; only-Vapereau is silent regarding the Legion of Honour French speaker, and he carefully avoids recounting, that in days gone by, a Davillier, a banker, after having protected with Hottinguer, Delessert and Casi-

Mir Périer, the famous journal of Saint-Simon:
| 18,

318 MONOGRAPHS;

The industrialist publicly disavowed him, as did the other cronies, in the circumstances I have already narratives.

That said, the art historian, who has done work remarkable, inspires in me a great indulgence for those of his family who had invested in finance;
These are: at the Bank of France, at the Society
French and Belgian Banking and Discounting; at the Inter-

fire, at the National Life; at the railways of to the East, at the Sambre-Orse junction canal, to the Société de la Sambre française canalisée, to Docks and Warehouses of Le Havre and, finally, at the Saltworks of Noon. These ten companies are distributed as follows: one Davillier has nine and another has one.

These individuals holding multiple positions of power are all the more powerful. formidable, that the literary and artistic side of Baron Jean-Charles absorbs attention and misleads the investigations.

Why on earth doesn't the baron travel? with his entire family, taking with him at the same time The ten companies listed? That would be much better. for us |

Dexaynin. – Yet another industrial tribe and, especially, charcoal burner. You can find them in Paris. four, which, associated in several ways, four- They are listed in the phone book at eight different addresses.

LAST 319

an industrial side and a speculative side; like Industrialists produce agglomerated coal; like speculators, they do, with coal what Lebaudy focused on sugar and Ephrussi on oils. Félix is a member of the chamber of commerce. Gabriel is a banker and Le Figaro handles his business dealings. investments; they are found as administrators at Industrial and commercial credit, to the railways from the North, to the Loire mines, to Belgian gas, to the former Cail and Company company, at the Warehouses and general stores of Paris, to the railways Portuguese, and finally to the insurance company the Mid; one of them is, moreover, a contractor of tra- public assets. The Dehaynin family has an immense fortune. and, as can be seen, an enormous power of hoarding, which constitutes a monopoly for them Done. Felix and Gabriel are members of the Legion. of honor.

LAST. – A financial industrialist, commander of the Legion of Honour. He is a former president of the Chamber of Commerce, on Boulevard Malesherbes, but bronze merchant on rue Vivienne and manufacturer bronze on rue Charlot. The Denières can be found at board of directors of the following companies: to the Algerian General Society and also that of Steam-powered maritime transport, then at the Crédit Fond-

320 MONOGRAPHS

colonial cter, to the magnetic iron ores of Mokta-el-Hadid, with its blast furnaces, forges and steelworks naval and railway companies, at the establishment-Vichy thermal baths, at the Urban Fire Station, at Urban Life and, finally, the Bank of France. Ten companies, a factory, a store, and the good life
Parisian; what a disruptive combination!

D'Eicaraz. - One of the twelve apostles of Mr. En-Fantin; a fanatical Saint-Simonian, who put many-
He softened his stance, but he was a very civilized Jew.
and of a fairly liberal persuasion.

Although reformists, the Saint-Simonians were Positive people; Enfantin himself was a secretary of the board of directors of the railway Lyon, and his apostle of Eichtal had a brother named deputy under the July Monarchy, in his men of a happy speculator on the Stock Exchange!

Vapereau says that Gustave d'Eichtal spent all his fortune for his ideas; that he went to Greece
after the dispersal of the Saint-Simonian sect, and published several works there; that in 1848 he col-worked at the newspaper /e Crédit, and finally in 1861 he was tasked by the Acclimatization Society with ex-to mourn, with Mr. Menier, Siberia and the province of Love.

If Gustave spent his entire fortune, then it is necessary to acknowledge that he rebuilt it quickly; current-

DELESSERT. 321

he owns property on Boulevard Haussmann; Alongside him are two others from Eichtal: Georges who is an engineer and Adolphe is a financier and com-Commander of the Legion of Honour.

He is the family's master of multiple roles; he founded with the Pereire family, the Maritime Society, with the dream

The dream was shattered; by 1859, there was only Ruins... for the shareholders. In compensation- At the station, Adolphe became vice-president of the council at Crédit Mobilier, which he later left; he was also administrator at the Sub-Accounting Department for Roads of the railway, to the Eastern Railway, to the old canal . of the Ebro, to the Paris real estate company.

The societies in which it is currently found- the fire brigade, the life brigade, the fire brigade Southern railways, Austrian railways, the The acclimatization zoo and finally the salt marshes from the South.

It is unnecessary to mention here the enormous grasses. which resulted from Crédit mobilier and Compa- movable property company. ;

Through so many misfortunes, the d'Eichtal family have had The wisdom of preserving their wealth. Definitely. Saint-Simonianism has its merits!

Dezesserr. – In 1785, de Lessert and company listed in the Royal Almanac as bankers for the bills of exchange, rue Mauconseil. The particle disappeared during the Revolution and the First Empire, but fortune increases, so much so, that we re- we find, around the Count of Artois, the following of the evacuation of the territory, the Delessert brothers disengaging a baronial title. This title, probably, was not not hereditary, since today we don't see it not to appear next to their name.

3929 MONOGRAPHS

Despite their nobility and because of their profession Financially, they form what is called the liberal opposition; they even preparing for 1830 with Casimir Périer, give more sophisticated and luxurious parties than those of the Mallet family, but having the same color of Geneva protest, strange thing: as and when As Rothschild's fortunes rise, the opposition of the De- Lessert grows, she reaches the point where they too patronize the Industrialist of Saint-Simon, even if it means... to disavow as soon as it is in their interest to do so. – What they make.

that they had abandoned the bank. In 1832 they don-
They are undermining the issue of sugars, but they have rallied to the cause.
completely in power, because they helped its rise-ment.

In 1837, François Delessert established himself as a banker
Philanthropist, that was the tone of the time; in con-Sequence 11 pushes for the large movement of the crates

DELESSERT | 323

savings; corn, having shown its tendencies too much monopolists, it soon arouses the distrust of its voters; also the same ones who had appointed him, in the sixth arrondissement of Paris, they take away from him their trust. And so, François fell in the reaction.

Delessert, who had been appointed prefect in 1836 police, to be largely responsible for the returns authoritarians of the family. In 1844 an amendment which remained famous and was presented by a Delessert, had for the effect of ruining the entire small sugar industry in profiting from the great one – theirs – thus comforted,
They arrived in 1848 and crossed roughly as Mallet and Hottinguer at the critical moment.

Under the Empire their somewhat diminished role left them
the leisure to silently increase their wealth;
They are not lacking in this regard; one of them, Edward-Alexander-Henry, officer of the Legion of Honour and of several-gentlemen foreign orders, imitates, in 1862, Bussierre and d'Eichtal, in writing travel accounts, works on archaeology or geography, aspir-thus hiding finance behind literature.

The phone book reveals that currently in Paris
There are two Delesserts: a painter-artist and a
financial.

The financier is a jack-of-all-trades: he can be found at the once at the Bank of Indochina, at the Franco- Bank

324 MONOGRAPHS

Egyptian, to the Western Railways, to those from northern Spain, to the general company of teur (marine insurance company), at Houillères and railway of Épinac, at Crédit mobilier Spanish, finally, he is vice-president of the Bank national of Haiti. This parasite, which no longer has anything to do with the rigidity of his fathers, which affects a certain disheveled, now regrets the absence of the particule and the title of baron; also, he willingly tells people in the west that he comes from a noble family, having suffered misfortunes because of the Edict of Nantes; if this innocent mania could Distracting him from financial grabbing would mean:

all to France's advantage; I nevertheless believe that he can be satisfied with the mention and the ortho-graphs that I found in the 1785 almanac:
Blount can't show as much.

Dreyrus. – It is very difficult to study the Dreyfus, because hundreds of Jews bear this name;
The directory lists 67 of them: bankers, lawyers, deputy, grain merchants, municipal councillor;
a newspaper owner-director (sic), then a a bunch of commission agents, hosiers, butchers, bailiffs, lamp merchants, ribbon merchants and silk and especially "credit sales", finally a "rabbi",

| DREYFUS 325

Those about whom I intend to say a few words, are famous for ongoing trials and which have suffered every imaginable hardship. He.
This concerns Peru and the guanós. In 1877, Dreyfus brothers managed to get their case heard in court, the president of the Chamber of Deputies himself,
Mr. Grévy; there was talk of the Peruvian loan.
The Gazette of the Courts of February 21, 1883 another trial of the Dreyfus, having Waldeck-Rousseau for lawyer, against the Finan- Company Pacific shipping and commercial, having for Lawyer: Slow.

Finally, on November 18, 1884, the lawyer Barboux
he still pleaded against the Dreyfus family before the court of commerce of the Seine, in the interest of the Company general; it is, as always, about the guanós of Peru, as the report states, dozens of millions!

I couldn't do better than to reproduce it here.

the words he spoke within the tribal hallnal, beneath the robe and the ermine, having a character-official title to which I, a humble writer, will not have not the audacity to claim.

During his plea, lawyer Barboux had to recall a passage from an old plea by Mr. Grévy, speaking for Mr. Dreyfus, added:

19

326 MONOGRAPHS

"...The person whose words I am quoting here is a lawyer."
"consumed, a friend of Mr. Dreyfus, the confidant of all "His thoughts, the partner in all his designs."

"It is the same man who, guided by his old friendship, consented "to step down from his seat as Speaker of the House, to
"to cover Mr. Dreyfus, in the dock, with the authority of his word and "the prestige of his name."

"He was the one who, if we were to believe the promises, assured-
"lying lies, from a correspondence that I find repugnant to
"to deliver to the public eye, would continue to give its "COOPERATION with Mr. Dreyfus's businesses and would take charge"
"to designate for him, for outside, advice that the correspondent-
"Weight calls for appearances..."

After having so finely and so clearly ex-
Awarded for his thinking, the skillful lawyer turns financier, Next portrait:

"I do not consider Mr. Dreyfus to be an ordinary man. He "possesses to a prodigious degree that audacity which seduces the "fortune and that stubborn perseverance which holds her back and which "He chains him."

"Add to that an uncommon strength of temperament,
"a violence, which sometimes goes as far as insult, a perfect
"Disdain for the 'timidities of conscience,' and you will have"
"the main traits of this original and powerful man."

"In the sixteenth century, he is said to have conquered and exploited Peru"
"in the manner of François Pizarro, by sending the Indians"
"To die by the thousands in the mines."

"In the nineteenth century, he proceeded in a different way:
"He understood what gold could be extracted from this soil"
"a society that deceptive prosperity had corrupted, and that "may perhaps overcome the harsh punishment she has just received.

"My opponent was talking, a few days ago, about the omission of the omi-

DREYFUS 327

"Mr. Dreyfus's gallows. He was right. And, far from it..."
"At this moment I offend him, I know him well enough to know that "I tickle the proud weakness of his heart, by rapping-
"publicly recounting the great adventures of his life."

"Under Pierola and Gous Balta, he was, in a way, the "Master of the Peruvian Republic. Then his power"
"has fallen, as always happens, through its very excess.
"But, believe me, gentlemen, one does not cross impu-
"Naturally such an existence! One did not know how to do it with impunity."
"The price of all consciences! We bring back a taste of "insatiable domination and a contempt for men which "translated by formulas like the ones I found, there
"For fifteen days, on the lips of my honorable adversary-
"author:

"The government can do anything, even obstruct the actions of the people"
"See judicial. |

"I understand that my opponent was thinking about Lima."

"But his client believes that he is in Paris as he is in Lima.

"Well! You can tell him that we are not afraid"
"his actions, because we are sure of his impartiality"
"Judges, because we are pleading before their successors"
"of those consular judges, who, in the past, did not hesitate to con-
"To damn, first of all, other princes of finance who
"They, too, were friends of those in power!"

I will add nothing to the wonderful tirade of lawyer Barboux; he was both incisive and courteous;
He showed the judges baskets of flowers.
the abyss of venality and corruption.

His outburst of sincerity as a lawyer inspires me.
only, the regret of remembering that with Ja
With the same eloquence, the same Barboux defended the Soubeyran's financial misdeeds, and that, except Peru and the name of Dreyfus, the portrait that he has just drawn applies exactly to this large corrupter of the financial press.

The legal profession inevitably creates skepticism. Cism, and skepticism is far more anarchic than all revolutionary doctrines.

XI

Germiny. – Hachette. –Halphen. – Heine. – Hentsch. |

GErmixy. – Financiers essentially monarch-chiciques; one of the Germinys had collaborated with the Finance Minister Villèle; another married a young lady Human – yet another fusion of the nobility with finance.

The Germinys held high positions under almost all governments. One of them was governor of the Crédit foncier, and, subsequently, of the Bank of France.

Adrien, Count of Germiny, is administrator of the Northern Railway, Western Railways, of the United States mortgage bank and the Ottoman Imperial Bank.

Very wealthy landowners, they form a group in Paris closed clan. The Avenue d'Antin, the Rue de Vigny and the Boulevard Saint-Germain contains, in three hotels, the six family members. Generally Considered, they are parasites by atavism; if the Clericalism had not narrowed their minds, perhaps. Would they, out of simple honesty, submit to social reforms.

HacaerrTe. – This bookseller-publisher has become “king”, expenses that he had the power to annul a law of the State restoring freedom to the bookstore, to the im-fruit and vegetable sales and peddling.

As a simple publisher, its monopolistic tendencies... perhaps felt surprised; unfortunately, in the Hachette, there is the depressing influence of finance. Therefore, with the help of atavism, everything is explainable.

In the midst of the republic, Louis Hachette the father was one of the founders of the Discount Bank, that who was a national and not a foreigner, like the one which we enjoy today.

I consider it unnecessary to recount certain struggles which have left their mark on the existence of Hachette.

The one who currently reigns, Jean-Georges, is the courtier of all millions and the flatterer of all powers.

His smuggling instinct never leaves him; Even in Vapereau, I find that he indulged himself in beautiful classifieds pages, with a distinctive character barely disguised advertising; he was not afraid to add-ter his father's motto: "Sic quoque docebo"

HACHETTE 331

to a sort of inventory of its goods in store, to teach the public the way to its House.

Non erat hic locus, and Georges had at his disposal enough newspapers would tremble at his presence to be unpleasant for not having needed to in-to fliger, to this poor Vapereau, three columns, des-which it appears that all of Georges' glory lies limited to being his father's son: everyone, he is True, the same cannot be said in a century where, more Marriage is more than ever a business.

Jean-Georges Hachette holds a law degree, this which further explains the perversion of his judgment; He was a judge at the commercial court, and was decorated. in 1874, on the occasion of the Vienna exhibition.

The Bottin lists twelve Hachette stores; by a sort of strange coincidence a number of them pleated paper for the kitchen, the other of the patterns in paper, and finally another one makes "napkins" hygienic." Not being Rabelais, I will not enter in more detail.

However, I will not finish this short notice. without doing justice to the excellent organization of the Hachette publishing house, with its considerable services returned to public education, by formulating the hope that it will make even more considerable ones by-core when its leader shows a little less servility.

332 MONOGRAPHS

HazpHen. – One of the most formidable Jewish tribes, by its monopolizing power, and by the number of tentacles at her disposal, in her capacity as octopus, stretching them out in all directions to aspire gold in all its forms.

There are 21 of them in Paris. One of them, Germain, was judge at the commercial court. I find him equally-ment in financial companies: at the Société générale-Algerian role, at the Franco-Egyptian Bank, at the General Maritime Insurance Company, at the Confidence-fire, at the Compagnie générale française tramway company, at the Union and the Spanish Phoenix, at the Belgian coal mines, finally he was administered owner of the French-Italian Bank before its merger. In addition to the Discount Bank, he is a knight. of the Legion of Honour.

One Halphen (Eugène) is a lawyer; another (Julien) is a sworn broker. The widow of a another (Charles) has a cutlery shop a/fenide; two others are diamond dealers; then there commission agents, printers and lithographers, "clothing and garments", institutions Israelites, rentiers, and landowners. The major alliances of the tribe place the hand of its leaders in all the speculation that is ruining France.

HALPHEN | 333

Thus Salomon Halphen, who was already the nephew of Pereire, daughter of Eugène; Georges Halphen, officer of the Legion of Honour, owner, former member from the chamber of commerce, had married a Miss Stern.

In the large tribe, a few, more obscure, perhaps distant relatives, were less happy; I find that in November 1875 a Halphen was condemned, along with other Jews, to one year imprisonment and a fine of 1000 francs fine, for violations of company law anonymous, on the occasion of the transformation of the worker's omnibus in General Credit, following the law of 1867.

This minor misfortune seems to be the only one that has tarnished the brilliance of the diamond-like name of Halphen, for I do not Don't count Al/fassa's last jump, son-in-law do Camondo.

Under the Empire, the parties given by Madame Joseph, wife of the diamond merchant, occupied The press was very vocal; it was said that the hotel on the street Lepelletier was a veritable museum of art objects... High-smooth carpet folding and May paintings very.

Finally, so as not to neglect all branches commercial, Georges, former student of the Central School-| 19.

JJ4 MONOGRAPHS

trale, dealt with refiners, and maintains, affirms-t on, the head of this industry.

There is no need to elaborate further; the Halphen they practice, energetically, the Jewish theory which marched to conquer the world.

Hein. – This name, made famous by Hein Heine, who died poor man, after having lent a little wit to Rothschild (who never returned it), does not shine with brilliance gold, thanks to the two brothers Armand and Michel. They managed the house of Fould bank and took over from it; they have tried to- a victory won in the supplies of the expedition of official statements provided them with the opportunity to con-to forge alliances which will certainly end up erase the remaining traces of Jewishness that still survive in their family. Even existing Heine families do not incur serious accusations, apart, of course, from the parasitism, entirely unconscious, of their function financial operation; I would even compare them, quite willingly, to the Mallet and Hottinguer families, were it not for their unfortunate idea of attaching themselves to the Cahen d'Anvers for the broadcast of the famous pseudo-Hungarian Land Credit.

A Miss Heine married a Duke of Riche-place; this name is a bit jarring next to those of Furtado and de Fould, who also married

HEINE 335

Heine sisters; other sisters have called Ney d'Elchingen and Murat; finally, the widow General Ney, who died so mysteriously, married the Duke of Rivoli.

There have been good deeds in this family and Adoptions worthy of praise. If, financial-
They are lying, and outside of their bank, they are in They choose companies with caution.
since the case I mentioned; currently we don't finds them mixed up only with the insurance company on life, the Sun, and the Copper and Lead Mines Silver-bearing deposits from Padern and Montgaillard. These are metal monopolizers, and also owners fine wines. The Château de Beychevelle in Saint-Julien-Médoc belonged to Armand, who died there.
some time ago; Armand had bought it from the son from Baron Guestier, Peer of France, in exchange for 1,660,000 francs, and spent more than two million there.
How did this castle, in a pure Louis XV style and princely residence, had it fallen into the hands of
By Guestier, a very commoner despite his barony?
the same cause, no doubt, that caused him to fall into the Laffitte's hands, the Château de Louveciennes; this castle, acquired in 1794 by a wigmaker who lived there ruina, was then resold to a fur peddler of rabbits and ribbon of thread; now, it is by this way that he happened in Laffitte, - then, to a very lady launched. The Heines, although involved in some major speculations, practiced more than their coreligionnaires, and, with less ostentation, alms and good works.

In a balanced social order, almsgiving does not should not exist; it is indeed the most insidious expression of parasitic sovereignty, and It is most often used to compensate for the eyes of the public, the odious aspects of certain land grabs. The Heines, not having to be forgiven by scandalous financial ruins, therefore obey a natural goodness, which belies their origin. It is especially through their wives that they practice charity; Moreover, it often happens that the Jewish woman is better than man.

It is usually said that wherever the Ladies Heine, the suffering is alleviated. In the Gironde as in Seine-et-Oise, in Saint-Julien-Médoc as in Roquencourt, recognition The public is favorable to them. Their clericalism milestone in the construction of temples, entirely feminine form nine and more poetic than philosophical to se prostrate yourself before a god. Here is something on this subject A detail that I do not want to let go unnoticed: Just recently, newspapers announced that a Israelite temple built under the care of the Heine-Furtado and Baron de Hirsch had been inaugurated by

HENTSCH 337

Oppenheim in Versailles, on the occasion of the festivities of I sincerely apologize.

The very next day, the newspapers inserted a correction; the Heines insisted on this point that he this temple should not be confused with the one they had not collaborated with the one they had just to raise and which, rather, had the character of a bad-sole; they added, moreover, that later They would offer it to the Israelite faith.

I am not displeased to see a [system] being established in this way. slight demarcation between the Heine on one side, the Hirsch and the Oppenheims on the other.

Therefore, not everything is absolutely bad in the

to clarify that I am not waging a religious war, but an economic war.

Henrschu. — This name, undoubtedly of origin foreign, is, at the same time, that of a house of bank, under the corporate name: Hentsch-Lutscher and That, and that of the president of the council of Administration of the Discount Counter. |

Paris contains four Hentschs; Edward is the better known; he is a Knight of the Legion of Honour;
In addition to the Discount Bank, he presides over the bank of Indochina; he also manages the Crédit Foncier colonial, the Algerian General Society, the bank of Paris and the Netherlands, the Fire Union, the Life Union,

338 MONOGRAPHS

the General Railway Operating Company iron ores from European Turkey
The magnetic mines of Mokta-el-Hadid Soumah and Tafna. Two of his people are still holding out: to the Geneva Gas Industry Company, to the Geneva Commerce Bank, and to the association
Geneva financial center.

There is a real danger in letting foreigners in,
who do not have, at least, two generations of naturalisation, thus, to get hold of establishments credit statements, which we are under the illusion of believing French !

XII

Magnin. — Oppenheim. — Pillet-Will. — Veil-Picard. — Waddington.

Macnix. — Diminutive of Magne, say the wicked-great languages; great territorial wealth in Côte-d'Or, according to the land registry. Despite its origins monarchists, Magnin did some opposition under the Empire; he was applauded on August 11, 1870 in requesting that the loan be increased to one billion 500 million previously voted by the Legislative Body
Latif. President of the General Council of Côte-d'Or
In 1873, he refused to allow the prefect to speak, before the resolution concerning the appointment of mayors. It seems well seen by all parties; however, 1l had some complacency, which earned him a dissimilar mention agreeable in the trial of the stockbroker Barraïa, in Nice, in August 1885; it was Mr. Gendre who... It was worth it, and he will remember it. Minister of finance, 1l authorized the advisors to the court of accounts for wearing moustaches; he himself is richly endowed in this respect and, moreover, 1l carries a superb pair of sideburns; hence his sympathy for Bethmont, who was recently appointed president of the court, spoke of sacrificing his function for his hair.

340 MONOGRAPHS

This circumstance, a reform plan aimed at centralize all services through the Bank of France treasury defects, entrusted to the general receivers; his status as a member of the supervisory board of the newspaper Le Siècle, and, above all, the excellent-The leisurely dinners he knows how to host have earned him the governorship. the Bank of France's management, and the applause-sations, on the day of his appointment.

Magnin is an honest civil servant with some bourgeois prejudices, but likely to to perfect; he will have rendered a very great service to his country, the day he abolishes shareholders of the Bank of France and contributed to making this establishment, a credit regulator operating 4 cost price.

OPPENHEIM. – A tribe as powerful as that of the Halphen; they enclose, like them, a very large a number of professions, where, of course, the dominant ones are... bric-a-brac, diamonds, and the bank. In 1856 there was a Fould-Oppenheim and Co. house, which caused quite a stir, on the occasion of a fake committed to his detriment. These Jews are, moreover classified in the high-life scene. Their parties and Their movements. They have a multitude of associations. financial figures in name, and are also involved in the com-Anonymous companies.

OPPENLEIM 341

In name, they are with the Pintos, with the Alberts: ; these latter, Florentine Jews, for a very long time established in France; they are also with a Farcy, who certainly doesn't look like an Israelite to me.

The Oppenheim company itself is composed of posed, according to the Petites-Affiches of January 1883, of Henry Oppenheim, of London, Martin Alberti, of Paris, David Oppenheim, and Antoinette Chabert widow Hermann Oppenheim, also in Paris. It is the individual internationalism.

The public limited companies where they distributed themselves Some roles include: in France: Gaz de Bordeaux, the General gas lighting. – In Belgium: Belgian Gas, the Brussels bank, the inter-bank national of Luxembourg. Finally, in Germany, eight or ten Prussian companies, whose names were barbarous would frighten the reader, but which accuse no less their collective internationalism.

Great octopuses according to Moses, the Oppenheims are very attached to their faith; Judaizing Jews at the highest level, they solemnly officiate in their temple, on the day of the great pardon, as they have made in 1885 in Versailles in the new construction of Hirsch.

342 MONOGRAPHS

One of them, Alexandre, is an honorary consul of Belgium, which explains how the idea could have taken root in their to have just founded, with the Greek consul Erlanger, Belgian furniture.

The phone book lists eighteen Oppenheims and not one The Legion of Honour cross, that's very strange!

Purer-Wizr. – Another foreigner, half Swiss, half English, whose immense fortune is made with our commercial ruins, and whose comital nobility, not aggravated by the Legion of honor, is the prize of the most Outraged. The old Canals and the famous Shares their enjoyment has rounded off the millions already possessed; then the Orléans to Corbeil railways, with State guarantee, they added millions more. Meanwhile, he is the owner of Château-Margaux, hotels, forests, castles, among others, that one d'Offémont. Sometimes a Paris hotel is sold to a happy trafficker, for example in 1874, to this singular manufacturer of brass cartridges, named Secrétan, whom I've already mentioned.

We are at the Bank of France, at National Life and fire, at the Northern Railway Company chemical matches, and finally to the bank

VEIL-PICARD 313

Ottoman. Millions upon millions are piled on top of each other, we play to the tax farmer, old regime: we adore Rossini, one has one's last mass performed at home; one throne, we covet, we do nothing, we monopolize, we believes it to be very useful, in fact, we are quite scandalized, when a moralist of the social economy severely qualifies—What a parasitic situation!

Veil-Picard. — These financiers, Jews from Besan—immensely rich today, and pierced bottoms yesterday, they embody the new breed of politico—bankers tics, created by the Orleanist republic of which we Enjoying it since 1875.

The Veil-Picard family, owners of the castle of Saint-Ferjeux, near Besançon, have exercised their father in sons the function of lenders, not to weak interest, one can assume. In this game they had acquired an enormous fortune, which the father never ceased to round off, but the sons were burning to devour it beautiful teeth.

I don't know if the neighborhood of Mont-sous-Vaudrey inspired in them some ambition, or if the laurels Kohn and Reinach prevented them from They slept, but in any case, they became very Parisian. They went so far as to buy the newspaper. "Le Paris" in March 1884.

They had "political" needs. In 1879, we learn from a judgment of the commercial court

444 MONOGRAPHS

merce, dated January 9, 1882, they had taken a later Crédit foncier de l'Est; then they took care of-actively participate in the Algerian Land Credit; with two other people: Mr. Oudet, who looks quite right to me to be the senator, and a Mr. de Andreïx, they obtained 12,500 shares of the latter company, that is to say a subscription that may result in a payment six and a half million! It seems that the participation-did not work on its own and that the court the trade was forced to deal with its liquidation donation. If we now make a connection between the interference of Besançon financiers in the handling of credit papers and this clause introduced into the act of purchasing the newspaper /e Paris: "Messrs. Veil-Picard reserve ownership of the bul-financial Latin of the newspaper; however, for remuneration-to manage the work and the participation of ML, these "Gentlemen agree to hand over ten for "one hundred percent of the gross profits of said bulletin," on will find, caught in the act of practice, the process advertising, which I discussed in the chapter dealing with opinion leaders.

I don't know if fortune has crowned the efforts of neo-financiers from Besançon, I only know that they were granted entry into the Legion of Honour. "And "Now, let's learn!"

WADDINGTON 345

WappixGrox. – Large person, senator, plenary-nipotentiary to the Congress of Berlin, Minister of Information public education, then foreign affairs, that's So, a staunchly patriotic Frenchman? Oh, what a joke! No, not! He's a naturalized Englishman, he only recently became one. of years and to whom France, always a good girl, has lavished all his favors.

That's how it is! When the foreigner doesn't impose on us its grains, its cloth, its products of every kind, He sends us his citizens; we take them, We pamper them, and we make ministers of them. plenipotentiaries, which allows us to assume that The other sons of Ja France are idiots.

Meanwhile, other strangers are informing us-tooth, without any apparent claim to govern us; only those who devour us when they don't They don't betray.

of his first name – and his fortune – major industrialist from Rouen (opposite London), and decorated for having defeated against the Prussians during the war of 1870. If we had decorated all the French people who... but Let's move on. He proclaimed himself a republican and fought against the railway buyout project presented by Germain in 1877! That is to say, he supported the companies that so effectively promote English trade to the detriment of French commerce.

346 MONOGRAPHS

The other Waddington, brother of this one, de-William is named. Hellenist, numismatist, educated half in Cambridge and half in Saint-Rémy sur l'Avre (where he was born to English parents), then in Paris, where he studied; he opted for French nationality.

Immensely wealthy, Protestant, that is to say more Although clerical, he was the most zealous Israelite, and he entered the Academy in 1865 and to the Chamber in 1871.

He immediately began to extend favors to the Republic, vote for the strange constitution of 1875 and, two years Then, there he was, a minister.

We will never know how he understood, in In reality, neither French interests in Egypt, nor its veritable but in its claims for Serbia and the Romania and Greece. In any case, after Having refused the ambassadorship to London in 1879, he accepted since, and currently, 2 there is, there is gives parties attended by the Rothschilds, 1l continues to take care of our affairs in Egypt, more obscure as ever; but for example, if he accepted Senatorial and ambassadorial fees: if all the ribbons from Belgium, Austria, Greece, of Portugal cross on his English chest, in However, Vapercan expressly states that he has not did not receive the Legion of Honour cross.

Don't tell me that if he only had it. If she had been desired, we wouldn't have rushed to give it to her.

WADDINGTON 347

to give! This gap makes me thoughtful, and, involuntarilywhich consists of "not using salt when eating" at an enemy's house!

I'm stopping.

Will it be necessary, one day, to continue this sad nomen-Closure? I don't know.

Parasites multiply, functions proliferate. Finance invades everything; where the official almanac in 1764 and in 1785 does not count taint in Paris qu'70 « bankers for market drafts in "Place" in the 1885 "Bottin" almanac lists more than 800!

With a population that quadruples, funding increases tenfold!

And everything else follows suit!

I will therefore skip over the Gunsbourg series, the Reinach series, and the...
Kohn, I'm even forgetting Demachy, so closely linked to Seillière; I'm forgetting some nouns ending in -er, -off, -ef, a host of French endings...

Finally, we must conclude!

Digitized by Google

hit Remmeeneres «= Re en bn

He

CONCLUSIONS

LIQUIDATION. — CATASTROPHE FORMULA. — REFORMS
GENERAL

Digitized by Google

Liquidation.

The psychological hour. — Hoarding. — Needs. — Diff-difficulty of living. — Land capital of France. — The devorants. — Wheat. — Jewish theory. — Legitimizing theft. — Mortgage loan. — Execution. — Movable capital. — Surcharges.

– Monetary circulation. – Land and buildings. – Other Fiction. – Vital necessities. – Property tax and the budget. – 45 billion in trade. – Foreign securities. – Invasion,

Submersion – How many are there? – The burning chamber.

Our social constitution and the men who, at the times, they dominate and destroy it, leading the France, that much is certain, is heading towards a catastrophe.
froyable.

Its due date is not far off; an en-seems to be a collection of social facts, a set of economic facts mics, and the psychological state, which will result from the the combination of these two sets determines it-rings.

In the nation's psychological state, it is pro-that the centenary of '89 will give to the suff-

352 CONCLUSIONS

Frances displayed spontaneity in their demonstration; the
The corollary will be a revolution.

Four years separate us from the phenomenon moral; I still need to study under what conditions
The physical effects will erupt, and if 93 will also its centenary.

It is no longer a question of taking into account of moral evolution as the predominant fact; this These are the material results that need to be studied; however, from the
The moment it comes to matter, the whole problem lies.
in a question of measurement, therefore in a question-tion of figures.

From all that has been said above, I have demonstrated that the pro-privacy, understood in the sense that it confers upon man a right of perpetual sovereignty over the land, has been the starting point of all the land grabs committed to the detriment of the mass of the nation.

Between France in 1789 and France in 1884 there is no not, as territorial area, a difference

Millions of hectares.

Area of France in 1789..... 52 5/10

– 168 ua 52 8/10

The increase in area is therefore barely 300,000 hectares.

The territorial properties it contains have not, either, increased in area: because a large number of roads, streets, continuation of the works towns and the fragmentation of the countryside have underrelates to individual property a quantity of hectares flaws roughly equivalent to the increase that I just indicated.

CLEARANCE 353

This was not the case for the population; here is evidence :

Millions of units

PAT sde nine uen 24 8/10

At D 0 M He The RS 37 6/10

As we can see, the increase is 12,800,000 units.

As in all eras of humanity, 1l man needs a given quantity of matter nitrogenous, to maintain its strength, and like the wheat can be taken as a standard for raw materials tritives, 1 liter will suffice for me to note that all the Statistics reveal a minimum average of 142 kilograms of wheat per year per person; that being said, the increasing needs of the French population can be calculated by increasing its wheat consumption, which, in turn, will serve as a basis for calculating the proportion of other needs.

The population of 1789 required 3,521,600,000 kg of wheat.
The one from 1884 requires 5,339,200,000 =

Increase..... 4,517,600,000 kg of wheat 20.

354 CONCLUSIONS

However one goes about it, to convert these kilograms of wheat into money, he is certain that, for a sensitive territorial area—
With the needs of the population remaining equal, they have increased by about a third.

Let's see, for the same period of time, how—the capital value attributed to the has increased property :

Between 1789 and 1826, a period in which the re—censuses, and statistics were not, as They have since become so, the object of particular care.
to link, we find that if the land possessions property ownership has not changed significantly in over—However, this was not the case with their value.

The law of November 23, 1790 had fixed the value total territorial revenue amounted to 41.2 million, and, as in those days calculations were made to the twentieth or to 5 0/0, the taxable material can be valued at 24 million Jiards; however, this income was subject to the deduction of the quarter, representing overhead or maintenance costs, Consequently, the actual sum must be definitively fixed.
30 billion.

Having accepted this starting point, we will see that, while the needs of the population were growing of a third or, if you prefer, 33%, the capi—the property's value, during the same period, rose in infinitely greater proportions:

CLEARANCE 355

Increased needs..... 34.04 0/0
Increase in the capital of the owners
LOS sh nine cesiaueee 73.26 0/0

It is almost elementary to conclude, in pre—
In light of these figures, the fee demanded by the high, like capital itself, that is to say of more than double the increase in needs; so that they are forced to give themselves two times more effort to achieve the same result.

To make this demonstration tangible, I feel I must summarize it using simplified figures. trusted.

Given that the land royalty required by the owner, as tribute paid to his sovereignty, is one of the obstacles, if not the main one, placed between the need and its satisfaction, I say that the need has grown by $\frac{1}{3}$ while the obstacle increased by $\frac{3}{4}$. To compare them more easily, I reduce these fractions to same denominator, and I find myself, then, in presence of $\frac{4}{12}$ for needs, and of $\frac{9}{12}$ for the obstacles; hence it follows that the difficulty of living has high, for the mass of the population, from 4 to 9.

We must not believe that capital increases tales of the property are drawn from figures taken arbitrarily. The statistics published by the The Ministry of Finsuces provides a statement, very detailed.

336 CONCLUSIONS

pruned, annual changes in ownership by following a death.

It is therefore easy to compare annually the number of deaths with the capital value of properties that they displace; and as it is not possible—It is possible that the annual deaths are more related to the rich population versus the poor population (I would even say that the balance could, rather, lean—dear to the poor classes and that the insurance tables take into account very precisely (given this condition), I can affirm that the figures The figures I am going to give are more like minimums than maximums.

The question of capitalization remains; it is such, of course, the tax officials accepted it; and as there is always a struggle between the zeal of the agents and the interests of the heirs, we can consider that the compensation has been established and that the capital registered as the basis for inheritance rights is indeed that which results from the practice of transactions.

owners have subjected their capital to this caught red-handed; and, without further ado to ask them, more than I have done, by virtue of What logical principle determines the value of 52 million? The area of hectares comprising France has increased by more From 73 0/0 in 94 years, I will place before your eyes the the development itself of this land capital such that I extracted it from the succession tables of official gine, and beginning in 1826.

CLEARANCE 397

Here is the table:

Years | Billions Millions

1790. Land capital of France 30,000.0

1826 ER 35 495.6
1840 = = 40,630.0
1831 = a 48,708.0
1870 ee a 65 801.0
1882 > - 119,452.0

In the first period (from 1790 to 1826),
The 5 billion increase took 36 years; in the second (from 1826 to 1840) the same increase only asked for 14 years; in the third (1840 (by 1851) a more considerable increase has asked that 11 years; in the fourth (1851 (by 1870) an increase exceeding three times carried out over 19 years; finally, for the last period (1870 to 1882) in twelve years the capital itself, and no more growth, it has almost doubled.

The arithmetic progression that results from the development
The development of this capital obviously recalls the Malthus's theory; he seems indeed to accept it, as a normal fact, the fictitious increase in capital, charging for its product, since it offers, not without ferocity, to compensate for the decrease in subsistence, through the actual suppression of the number mouths; but then, and if it is necessary to use the ferocity in economic matters, I will ask why would we choose as a field of application The proletariat rather than the property class?

358 CONCLUSIONS

Moreover, why the ferocity? The capital found—the crier is not a human being; reduce his pretensions—tions does not have the savagery that reduction entails existences. Why then the Kings of the Republic—Wouldn't they understand that they're walking? they themselves towards suicide because, not being the In number, they are the devourers.

To assert that the development of value attributed to land capital is a sign of the prosperity is one of the most hypocritical forms of hypocrisy. odious acts of which the economists are guilty modern mists.

I understand, up to a point, that a circulating value carries within itself the increase of his unspent interest; I understand equally—the fact that at some point this value asserts itself through its realization in exchange.

But let us admit, in thought, a single proprietor of French land capital, and that we are looking for—how and by what means he could ever see his capital represented realized through the exchange through the ground?

It will be found that the exchange in such a case cannot

CLEARANCE 359

to take place man to man, but from hoarder to foreign people.

Without this assumption, what can the proprietor—sole owner that I have just assumed, if, after having absorbed all the living forces that make To produce the soil, he finds himself all alone, in turn. having grown old and helpless in the face of his immense fortune ?

Capital, taken as accumulated labor, cannot to exist only on the condition of circulating; buried, it is nothing.

However great the scientific improvements may be üfiques, it would be absurd to believe that the prothe conductivity of the soil has no limits. That, by the Through mechanics and chemistry, fertility is enhanced.
That's one possibility; but there are two things that Human science cannot dominate, that is to say,
To manipulate at will is time and space.
there are only a certain number of days in the year and only one number of hectares in France; these two elements the elements of work are interdependent and, if one can Expanding the territory through conquest is not possible to lengthen the year, or to change the seasons.

So, how many hectares of arable land are needed?
to produce annually the 5,339,200,000 kilograms of wheat or (to facilitate comparisons) reasons, assuming 75 kilograms per hectolitre),

360 CONCLUSIONS

the 71,189,000 hectoliters needed to feed the French population?

Statistics taken from 1815 to 1873 show as an average yield, for the good years, 14 hectoliters per hectare; therefore, it is necessary 5,100,000 hectares of land to supply wheat necessary.

French wheat, the only kind I want to take care of me, sells on average for 25 francs per hecto-liter, so that, for this reason, the yield in
The money from the higher-value hectares amounts to 4 billion 780 million. The owners have the ha-habit of capitalizing this income at 10%, which gives the cultivated hectares a value of 17 billion 800 million.

But what, in fact, is this same owner asking for?
to his farmer to allow him to work on his 501? What, consequently, does the nation ask of him?
Ownership?

He is asking for 30/0, not including charges, this which is sufficient to establish a royalty of 534 million francs which are actually 32% of the product raw.

When wheat became bread, the mass of 0.35 francs per kilogram, 1,858,720,000 francs, then that, without the pre-emption of the domain, it would not have paycf that 1.324 million, at a rate of 25 cents per kilogram.

CLEARANCE 361

This is the triple tithe that the owner demands of each consumer.

But this is also true for everything else, for bread is not the sole source of food, nor even human needs; however, it can to serve as a benchmark and confirm this conclusion that "not all human needs are met" "that by means of a threefold effort of their utility "Real."

Effort must equal utility, and this... could not be distorted without seriously weakening the au- the effort, that is to say without shortening the duration of human life; from which it follows that, thanks to the order In today's social context, the life of a Frenchman is three times more shorter than it should be.

So it's quite clear, the Malthusian principle is Applied: we live less and we notice it through the very noticeable slowdown in the increases- periodic changes in the population.

But why this arbitrary increase in the Land value? Why this obsession with discounting? the future, which for man is a hypothesis and An illusion?

Ah! It's because the Jewish theory of vente has blow to the property owners.

21

369 CONCLUSIONS

He doesn't just watch them grow up and to increase the production of his fields; it's too much It takes years to enjoy it; the per-capitalizes its annual product and receives in exchange an equivalent value in metal; with this metal, it will tamper again, buy, inflate, resell, and, "A rock that always rolls," it will gather moss that the adage denies to the proletarian stone.

What's the point of resorting to work when one can live and get rich without effort, by reselling very Is it expensive what we bought cheaply?

Unfortunately, this operation, logical in the supplier who distributes his profits across the mass of supplies, once applied to the ground, are no longer part of the Honest business, but theft.

So it became necessary to legitimize the theft. Then appeared the grand theory of capital mobilization; through a confusion that was both skillful and inept, the The kingship of the land was called capital because one had given it a monetary representation.

The capitalist landowner sells the land, but he he takes it back by means of the mortgage, and all the more so more surely than, by its demands, it makes life increasingly difficult.

The aim was to moralize the usurious practices of lenders; apparently that's why we have founded the Crédit Foncier. But how could one believing that by appealing to capitalist lenders to form a society, they would be forced, under this a new form, to change their despicable practices?

CLEARANCE 363

This was all the more ridiculous given that the new The supposedly moralized lenders were the same. that the old ones were using a false name, that's all.

The most curious thing is that, by asserting the ease of realizing securities (stocks or bonds), we ended up enlisting, without As they suspected, a crowd of citizens in the clan of usurers; such are the bondholders tions of Crédit foncier.

The tempters, moreover, proceeded with the ef-naive frontier that their confidence inspired in them

You are mortgage lenders, they said—they to the bondholders; that is to say, the owners of a piece of the ground and, to sell or buy your property, you don't have to go through any of the formalities which the law foolishly surrounds the transmission of the ground itself. You touch your It's back and nobody knows anything about it!

That's the spiel.

I have no complaints about how it works of Crédit Foncier; I even wish it would increase tenfold his loans; I wish he had already lent to the whole

6

364 CONCLUSIONS

French property, because I see it as being the most powerful and most peaceful instrument fique of the social liquidation. Perfectly inutile to national work, he can aspire, however, to a particular use; thanks to it, we will perhaps be able toto avoid bloodshed in the revolution.

Indeed, let the ultimate crisis erupt, on the day where, having lent to all the owners, he will have transformed its loans into circulating paper.
and it will be easy for resolute and intelligent men,
to reduce the annuity to a third or even a quarter, no, but the capital of the annuity, since this capital will entirely in the hands of Crédit Foncier and that the
The swings of speculation will be charged themselves to produce his degradation.

But if this hypothesis were to prove true, we would see to burst forth, in all its splendor, the folly of the pro-priétariat; indeed, author and victim of abuses of his own speculation, he would bow his head: "Iltrou-would see that as natural.

The State, owner of the bonds and holder of the pledge, would dispossess and expel him in the name of the law; for this law was made by the owner:
Dura lex! It's possible, sed lex, and it's too easy to add "patere legem quam fecistil" to appear docile and resigned, would scream in pain and

CLEARANCE 365

rage if, today, through a legal reform, that I indicated at the beginning of this volume, we deprived him of the right to dispose of the land, did not leave him-that of having the products. This re-In this form, he would call it spoliation; he will prefer to put the country in flames and bloodshed rather than competing in a gradual improvement.

Is reform therefore impossible?

– The philosopher, a spectator of so many contradictions-sayings, but truly in love with humanity, can rest assured.

That our sovereigns should rebel against a reform proposed or that they continue their speculation, one of These two attitudes will be sufficient to reduce the fictitious value.
which they attributed to the various circulation documents.

The reform will therefore still happen; it's a
It's a matter of days and hours, and the country will be saved.
if sincere reformers are watching closely and seize the opportune moment with vigor.

Furthermore, to those who would believe my predictions marked by exaggeration regarding the price increases securities or negotiable instruments,
I will counter with figures.

For these kinds of values, as for pro-Land ownership, I followed the same procedure, and here is how, since 1826, they have progressed (1):

(1) See page 370 for the formula used.

366 CONCLUSIONS

Years	Billions	Millions
1826.	Movable capital of France	18,427.4
1840	– –	24,756.0
1851	– –	33,413.0
1870	– –	59,939.0

The movable capital that I have just indicated con-holds financial values mixed with other values that inheritance statistics do not reveal They don't cut them; but the tools are obviously there.
of any kind.

In 58 years, therefore, while land ownership has roughly tripled in value, movable property has more than five times.

Is it necessary to point out that these successive increases come mainly sales, constantly depleting products futures; that they do not represent only accumulated savings, that is to say, the undistributed effort thought; also the enormous increase in royalties that they demand carries a profound disturbance in the organization of work, thus adding a burden new to that imposed by ownership.

*
++

And now, I'm going to free up some mobile capital.
to link, which particularly concerns the values

CLEARANCE 367

financial funds of all kinds, French state funds and foreign, French and foreign industrial companies gères, owned by French people, according to statistics inheritance issues.

Fiuan values - Other values Total Furniture years
Billions Billions Billions
1851.... 3, 8710 29, 543 33, 413
1870.... 6, 343 49, 596 55, 939
1882,.. 35, 572 70, 4 106, 388

This table allows us to distinguish between capitals so-called spared, which includes The tools have obviously been improved since the steam engine has penetrated applications industrial.

I certainly admit that movable capital have increased through the creation of new machines; the The unfortunate thing is that, in the capital evaluation, one does not does not sufficiently take into account the loss by usage. A machine that has been used fifteen or twenty years is less valuable because it has lost some of its productive force. Now, all industrial societies and financial resources are careful not to reduce efficiency. their assets are subject to losses due to "wear and tear", because that, by doing so, they would be forced to confess that the profits distributed by them are fictitious, from the outset or, they would no longer be able to sell their shares to higher rates, or, like the railways, they could not have demanded, for the buyout, a The price was such that the operation seemed impossible.

368 CONCLUSIONS

However, as these profits were distributed when Indeed, they must have been taken from somewhere. and that somewhere is simply "the portion subsistence necessary for the maintenance of life general.

By examining separately the two kinds of securities, we realize that in the same period 1851 to 1882, that is to say in 30 years, the values Securities, other than financial ones, have a little more than doubled, while financial values alone have increased tenfold, thus absorbing half of the capital furniture (35 billion financial assets, 70 million (liards securities). |

I'm told it's savings, fine; but then I have the right to examine where it was taken, in order to de- to determine if it is actually the PPS of LOPORSULE worker's voluntary contribution.

Here again, examining the figures leads to con- terrifying exclusions.

Taken as representing savings, the values financial institutions were, in 1851, about the tenth part of the total movable capital; currently they are the irons (1851 3/33; 1882 35/106).

Once again, we see emerging calculations, the reversed proportion of 4 to 3 as ascending scale of capital requirements and 3 A as in descending scale of means of to subsist.

How were the supposedly 35 billion obtained? spared?

Thirty billion have been collected over twelve years, from 1870 to 1882, and this figure is equal to the amount of the twelve annual budgets added together others.

Who will ever believe that savings from a country that has just paid a 5 billion ransom of war could, in twelve years, have achieved such things proportions?

It is also possible to search for savings by calculating the minimum number of exchanges which are done annually in France.

There are two ways to do this:

One involves establishing the amount of metal monetary in circulation at the beginning of the year we study and to triple it (1).

The other option is to take, at the end of the year The total amount of the inheritance capital, if left undisclosed, to bring them closer to the number of deaths that occurred in the year, and, by a proportion which has, for third

(4) See page 371 for the reason for this way of operating.
21.

370 CONCLUSIONS

In the long term, the population living at the end of the year, we obtains (with a large approximation) a sum equivalent to the capital of the transactions or exchanges of all kinds that took place in the same period, and which are net products representing one-fifth of the nominal capital itself; we shall see pages 403 and 404 explain this proportion and

Expressing monetary circulation by N , by S represents inheritance capital, M represents deaths, P the living population; by expressing the pro-net proceeds from the capital obtained and calling, finally,
 B . This exchanged product, we have the following formulas:

$P \times S_s$ $N \times E$

In normal times, that is to say in those where the exchanged utilities do not relate to in fictions, this formula is verified with an exact-mathematical titude.

Two circumstances can nevertheless trouble herbler; these are: an excess of indigent deaths or a abuse of stock market speculation. These two causes always walk together and they translate, compared to monetary circulation, of two different ways.

Calculating based on successions, we find

CLEARANCE 371

that the exchanges obtained and divided by 3, are lower than circulation when individual deaths gents dominate; that on the contrary they are superior to him laughter when stock market values have no purpose based on speculation.

The relationship between monetary circulation and the One-third of the needs exchanged can logically be explained, when we closely examine the acts that constitute the exchange; one quickly realizes, in fact, that,
For every two exchanged utilities, there is never more than one payment, that is to say a single performance in money. It is therefore understandable that, if the currency the amount in circulation is less than a third of the needs exchanged, that is* that there were fictitious exchanges; and that, if, on the contrary, it is superior to it, it is that there have been fixed assets by means of a concentration of public wealth in a small number of hands. |

Applying the previous formula, we find that it is verified by tangible equivalences, particularly in 1829, 1841, 1847 and 1867, and by 1876–1884.

Of course, this does not imply any more prosperity—neither of the two was harmed, nor was misfortune fall fall fall fall either of them. periods; this simply means that there have been, at these times, a time of general work;

373

but it would be a gross mistake to think so to conclude that there is a more real equality in the distribution wealth; the work of concentration is accomplished constantly through what is called credit and if, in absolute theory, the necessity of this is talestable; its very rare and very minimal usefulness appears in This fact was largely offset by its appalling abuses.

That said, and in order to discover the following mode from which 35 billion were collected over twelve years of financial values that I mentioned above For 1882, I will take from these twelve years the first one that ushered in an era of material calm, that is to say 1872.

I then compared it to the year 1882, after which makes it easy to draw the consequences.

CONCLUSIONS

PRODUCTS or REVENUES (1) BILLION

As of December 31: 1872 1882

Product of buildings..... 3,912 5,574

Land revenue..... 2,608 2,389

TOUL nes dre 6,520 7,963

Furniture products..... 29,455 37,205

Total trade..... 35,915 45,168

Of which one-third..... .. 14,992 15,056

Monetary circulation..... 12,250 413,949

Differences...,.....

(1) The products of the buildings and the land are calculated according to taxes included in the budgets.

Total exchanges or products are established at 20 0/0 or 1/5

40,258 – 1,107

CLEARANCE 3173

The year 1872 revealed a surplus in the circulation-monetary tion (4); looking at the immobililiers (buildings and land), which, as we know, are exchanges, of which currency is the only means (because The rents and lease payments are always stipulated. payable in cash and not otherwise), one realizes-see that they represent almost exactly half of the metal in circulation. It therefore remained, for the 29 billion in securities transactions, only the other half. It is clear that a large part of these exchanges have been subject to markups, regardless of the quantity of foreign currency that we had,
Moreover, to note the presence. As for the dis-
The proportion that exists between the income from buildings and the income from the land, she doesn't need to comments.

By examining the year 1882, we notice that the monetary circulation is well below a third exchanges; proof that these have resulted in the following A lot of fictitious transactions: this is not surprising when we remember what happened in 1881;
I must even point out that the years 1880, 1883, of capital assessed according to inheritances (Stat. of the Min. of finances).

Monetary flows are taken from published tables.
by the Yearbook of Longitudes.

(4) See page 393 for an explanation of how this surplus results from borrowing.
ransom.

374 CONCLUSIONS

1884 are the only ones, since 4795, where the minting of The currency exchange has been suspended. It cannot be found a more obvious sign of the absence of any trans-

The 35 billion in financial assets that I mentioned a few pages earlier (see page 367, table), compared to 70 billion other securities are not something else that the fictitious portion of total labor income in-industrial

To clarify:

Billions

In 1882, total securities by capital value..... 106,388
For the same year, total furniture products or

RÉVODUS LS nine niet sous v nee 31,205
Capital of securities not having a character-

10,816 tons of paper in circulation

Capital amount of financial securities..... 35,512

It is evident that the true industrial product and commercial activity is represented by 37 billion 2/10, because this figure is approximately 33% of the total of movable capital and approximately 50% of the capital industrial, non-circulating, i.e. 70 million 8/10.

However, if we subtract the 2 million from the 37 billion 2/10 approximately half a billion that the State pays concurrently with the Bank of France, the Crédit Foncier and the railway companies, to the bondholders, the remainder, up to approximately 6 billion

CLEARANCE 375

can represent the true exchange of movable property, because It should not be forgotten that the income from buildings amounted, in 1882, to a sum equivalent to the de-traffic tax, which it has also absorbed more than half (1).

- So I was perfectly within my rights to assert that the major-the rations had been scandalous and had not the aim being to conceal the beneficiary fictions in order to provoke the unhealthy works of the agio-stage; I was also right to say that the 'distribuvital sites for the mass of citizens, accentuating, by there, the state of crisis, aggravating misery and provoking as for the crimes.

But how much has been sacrificed to the necessities of citizen? We have taken precisely what is inconceivable for living expenses, that is to say, a representative sum felt by the difference between the total of the products from 1882 and the capital of financial securities:

(1) Indeed, according to the table on page 372:
Ea 1882, total real estate product (buildings and land). 7,963

In 1872, — = 6, 520

DIHETONCE ns rames tnihihs dities 1, 443
Deficit between one-third of the exchanges and the polishing.... 4,4107
Circulation—from 1882: isnmsssurss siemens 13. 949

Royalty paid in metal to the owner..... 1,963

376 CONCLUSIONS

Billions

Total products for 1882,.....,..... 45,163
Capital value of circulating papers.... 35,572
Differences very sr 9.596

This sum is approximately 2/3 of what the 10 million registered voters, considered as having only 3.50 francs for themselves and their families per day (i.e., the bare minimum of bread, meat and wine) are obliged to spend, because this is necessary absolutely requires 12 billion 600 million.

The annual deficit was therefore approximately 3 billion for 12 years.

I also note that this same deficit is equal, at the same time, to the taxable property income and to the total state expenditure; consequently I say it doubles in power because, in deficitive, the tax burden still falls on workers and Not on parasites.

These last considerations lead me to determine—to undermine, on the one hand, the progressive march of budgetary expenses, in their relation to taxation paid by the owner, and then to be cleared reducing the number of parasites as much as possible.

*
++

Ownership, I said, whether capitalist or

LIQUIDATION 311

land, is always reimbursed by the proletarians the tax that the State demands of him; also when ordinary budget expenditures equal the figure actual taxable income, we can say with a It is highly accurate that there is an additional charge exceeding the forces of labor and that, consequently, the country's economic organization is on the eve of a calamity.

I will give, in a table starting with 1856 (four years before the inauguration of the free-exchange), and extending until 1884, the report for one hundred that exists between the total of the three contributions (real estate, doors and windows, personal property) and the total of the ordinary budget; I will add to it, in a special column, the actual/taxable income land, and finally, in a last column, the total of the ordinary budget. I take the ordinary budget, alone, firstly because, for the contributions directes, ilsserve d'standard au budget special, secondly because that what remains (budget for special resources) is taken, as for revenue, from licenses, taxes consumption, and loans, which constitute other disruptive levies overwhelming the products of labor.

Furthermore, what is true for the ordinary budget is even more true for the other one, and, as I only studies proportions calculated on their standard, the final result cannot be changed.

378 CONCLUSIONS

Report of the three Total Land Income

{actual contributions subject to budget

Total years budgeted – ordinary tax silence (Billions) (Billions) 1856..... 15.23 0/0 3, 333.1 4, 473.1
1868..... 13.91 0/0 3, 932.1 4, 784.1
1876..... 10.86 0/0 3,945.5 2,573.0
1884.,.... 9.22 0/0 3, 624.4 8, 103.7

I would like to point out, first of all, that the report of three contributions to the total budget confines of close to the ordinary amount of agricultural income (40 0/0) and that this state of affairs has lasted for eight years.

Well, when the ordinary budget total will have reached the figure of the actual property income, subject In terms of taxation, the social crisis will already be intense; When it surpasses it, there will be an explosion, because that, then, the royalties from the property owners, capital– both socialists and earthlings will have grown in such proportions that the proletarian mass will no longer have no means of subsistence.

The trend revealed by the decline of ratio between the three, contributions and the total of The budget shows that taxation is increasingly requested for the exchange of movable property, and less so in less so on land.

We believe we can achieve this by creating a tax on securities; we are mistaken, we are not al–

CLEARANCE 3179

The effect is that the traffic on the increased and mobilized capital which is supposed to represent the value of the land; on pro– therefore evokes a new increase, which does not could only be a fiction, and a violation of the e– equality of exchanges.

It follows that recreational lands, parks For leisure, the palaces of the cities are multiplying. leading to this consequence: that the population of rural populations migrate to the cities; it also follows that that the fertile soil is increasingly neglected and We console ourselves for this move by saying:

– Bah! It's the devil himself if, with our 45,000 annual exchanges in billions we cannot buy wheat from abroad.

We're mistaken again.

– The international movement has been going on for a long time national has begun; under the pretext of providing our manufactured products for the whole world, we have asked the whole world to contribute to our food.

Economic internationalism is the worst of dangers, because it places the exchange system outside the power of the nation that supports the inferiority. It also facilitates the concentration of capital and, consequently, the suction power parasites.

I will demonstrate below that France possesses

380 CONCLUSIONS

in arable land, enough to more than suffice for its consumption. summons; in the meantime, I note that the movement—the importer dominates; that it has made its appearance at the same time as foreign bankers during the invasion of 1815; that it slowly worsened; that from 1816 to 1855 wheat was in demand abroad amounted to approximately 83 million kilograms per year, that from 1856 to 1875, it rose annually—amounting to 254 million kilograms and that in 1879 It reached 290 million kilograms.

The financial corollary was not long in coming; The influx of foreign documents was immediate; Succession statistics allow us to calculate their value in relation to the total movable capital: In 1870, this proportion was 37%, but in 1882, It rose to 60%. More and more, therefore, the holders of French capital immobilize them at the foreigner.

It will be said that, if these revenues are deducted from economic functioning in France, they are not there come back no less; so be it, but that's not for to promote agricultural production, but only to attract more capital, multiply the land unproductive and give speculation an impetus

We will have made significant progress when, following a (almost famous expression) France will have become

CLEARANCE 381

"The caravanserai of Europe" or of the world!
Converted into rental properties, receiving a rent on Le Monde, landlady in furnished rooms, she will be at the Thank you for the slightest political panic or passion.
nelle and epidemics which, in an instant, denudedsmells of gardens and palaces, which eliminates their income, for this sole reason that the house of The traveler does not carry within himself, like the earth, an inexhaustible power of reproduction.

As for attracting foreigners to settle permanently?
How can we forget that a so-called sovereign nation
Raine must first live her own life before doing Live for others!

An armed invasion dispossesses and destroys the natives; a peaceful invasion produces exactly-the same result. However, if we must arrive at the same destruction, if, in short, we must choose the
As far as death goes, I definitely prefer invasion.
army, which, at least, I have the right to resist by force, to peaceful invasion, a kind of tide rising, slow submersion and slow agony to slumberundermining by engulfment.

Make no mistake, this system of invasions foreign intervention is put into practice; the process Capitalist privatization is pushing for it with all its might.

Certainly the prey is beautiful, and one can understand that it _excites desires! Judge for yourselves, stirring up thousands-

382 CONCLUSIONS

liards on the heads of a people, who know neither how to neither pity nor resist, when, through sophistry odious and vile lies, one persuades at his naive ignorance that he is mistaken when he believes suffer !

Let's recap the immense burdens that national wealth has been concentrated:

I presented several charts during this chapter, it is useful to combine them into one, the here is :

BILLIONS

EE

YEARS Capital Capital Capital Capital Exchanges financial, movable, and real estate total annual

1790. 3 » 30.00 » »

1826... » 18.43 39.49 53.92 10.78

1840. » 24.175 40.63 65.38 13.08

1851 .. 3.81 29.54 48.71 82.00 16.40

1870... 6.34 49.59 65.80 121.74 24.35

1882.. 35.91 70.81 119.45 225.84 45.17

The progression of capital gains is frightening, and she went, as Malthus would have said, much faster than the population, much faster too than his work.

Malthus said that the means of subsistence would grow more slowly than the needs of nations; here it's the opposite, and yet it's the same thing; man's needs do not ceased to grow, like men themselves, and On the contrary, these are the obstacles opposed to the satisfaction of their needs, which have grown much more faster and much more powerfully.

CLEARANCE 383

And now, who did this? How many are there? these sovereigns, as in the first chapter of this ou- vrage I claimed to be barely one in number million ?

I will not revisit the considerations already developed on the occasion of this figure; I bore- I would only say that it contains, at the same time, criminals and public movable property and also small owners.

Do the math! If the 419.5 billion of real estate capital was equally divided between the The million I mentioned, that wouldn't be 120,000 francs per head. Concentration, as I've already said, is much more strong.

The owner who lives in his house and lives in Renting half is to be pitied.

He who cultivates his field, in order to live off it, is almost comparable to the proletarian, so much is done to him to pay dearly for what he cannot produce himself.

All of them are to be pitied, for they are accomplices unaware of the large landowners, they contribute to maintain their illegitimate prestige. Far from their To harm them, a liquidation would benefit them.

384 CONCLUSIONS

In the million large capital- lists I therefore count those who, through metal, the credit, mortgages, and usury are contained within their hands all the vital forces of France.

This million is itself divisible into three orders, as they say: the nobility, the clergy, and the third state, capital concentration of varying degrees.

Most certainly, the proportion of the number of Borrowers at Crédit Foncier can lead us to discover one of the stages of this concentration.

If I compare, in fact, the number of loans, and their value, distinguishing between urban loans and loans rural people, I discover that the million is made up of a a general staff of 300,000 property owners at the head of the- of which 3,000 are found. It is from this latter number that the true perpetrators of the collapse that threatens us. These 3,000 have 150 billion in the hands (at a rate of 50 million lions per capita), out of the 225 billion that make up France's movable and immovable assets, according to the table I summarized above. What about it? a-1] improbable? Are the individualities at a number of about 40, which I dealt with in these two volumes do not represent on their own

What, then, is so strange about declaring?
that 3,000 people hold two-thirds of the fortune

CLEARANCE 385

from France? Besides, we can count them;
But it is not for me to do it, and I do not I wouldn't want to turn my book into an index for a burning chamber.

– A burning chamber!

Are we therefore still under the old monarchy?
How dare anyone utter such a word?

I don't know if, noble or plebeian, a vigilante... will rise; but what I do know is that the cat-
The clysm is approaching.

What I do know is that, without resorting to or Neither spiritualists nor hypnotists can be used to calculate the day and almost the hour at which it will burst.

Because everything is numbers, in this century of numbers, and Algebra itself takes care of giving us a
A recipe for disaster!

II

[HAS

©

He
Formula for disasters.

The Fatalists – Coded Logic – Formula for Life – Be-France's care. – Cosmopolitanism. – Free trade and The war. – Quadruple effort and deficit. – Revolutions. – Tra-Reduction in figures. – Balance of trade. – Credit. – Formula for catastrophes. – Composition of terms. – Fixation and origin of the numbers. – Verification of the formula in The past. – The monarchy, the Empire, the Republic. – Application-to modify.

There is no shortage of fatalists who believe in the official economy. never try to act tough when they declares that the established social order is absolutely the contrary to logic and common sense.

If the revolutionary need is staring them in the face, They cry out against perversity, they push for destruction of a certain number of beings and "order reigns "In Warsaw!" That's their triumph. Then, when, at the end of a more or less long period, the The same needs are appearing again with the with the same intensity, they are stunned; they accuse the popular monster and do not notice or do not do not want to admit that they themselves have... meticulously prepared the final explosion.

CATASTROPHE FORMULA 387

When questioned scientifically, they respond with an army of beautiful numbers aligned and claim, however, that a division or A multiplication is neither an exact reason nor precise, but simple explanations of leaving to do and freedom.

These number-obsessed individuals need to be given some figures: to these fatalists of revolutions we must give a formula by means of which, three or Having made four official observations, they will be able to determine the day and time themselves which society will collapse under the pressure of their lies.

First of all, let them allow me to... to indicate that there is such a clear formula for life and as precise as the ones in mechanics are the for-Gravity mules.

Human life consists of four needs main ones that summarize all the others. In order The important ones are:

4. Food, including absolute deprivation leads to death in a short time:

388 CONCLUSIONS

2° Shelter, the absolute deprivation of which leads to died by a longer route;

3° Clothing and its accessories, including privacy-absolute tion shortens life more slowly than the two other elements;

4° The refurbishment, in which the rest is grouped and distraction, the useful and the pleasant.

All these needs make up life; and if I give to the latter A as an algebraic expression, I can write:

$$A=1+2+3+4-10.$$

By calling death 0, I can write:

$$A-(+2+3+4)=-0$$

From this it follows that life is defended against death, that is, $A - 0 = 10$.

Whatever value it may have in civilization or in its original state, this number is given 10, the relativity that exists between its components does not will not be disturbed.

But 1 liter is not enough to defend life against the dead; it is still necessary to ensure the reproduction of beings; nature gives us, in this respect, a lesson and a piece of advice, and the farmer knows very well that, the a grain of wheat producing 5 grains, he only has to put in reserve 4/5 of its harvest for sowing

CATASTROPHE FORMULA 389

The next ones renew its consumption.

I must therefore add to 10, a symbolic number of existence, 1/5, for reserves; this will give 412

0:

(tx it)
10 10 10

Therefore, human work or effort must always exceed by two tenths the be-vital care, which will in turn need to be in the following proportions in relation to life:

Food... e.%90.....0...0.. 4.8

ADR ne era es 3,6

Comfort and clothing..... 2.4

_ Rest and recreation, ..,..... 1,2
EXCLUDING 12.0, i.e. 2

But if the goal is 10, the effort is no less 12;
Therefore, its product must be equivalent to it.
the final proportion becomes 12/12 again, which we reduces to a percentage or to 100 0/0 (1).

Once that's established, we need to find a unit of nitrogenous matter equivalent to the diet of a to be human for a year. Here the statistics and the

(1) We can also introduce the RESERVES into the formula;
It would then be: 4 + 2 + 3 + 4 + 5 = 15. This changes nothing.
to theory and practice would be more accurate, but the deci- fraction male seemed easier to introduce into the reasoning.

22.

390 CONCLUSIONS

chemistry agrees to equal the satisfaction of nutritional needs for the consumption of 150 kilos grams of wheat per year. So, without worrying about-to cup of any kind of money, and, taking this 12,

Total per unit of food, I say that the 10 d make up the needs of existence and reproduction the reduction will be represented by 450 kilograms of 150 x 10 2)

So the man who produces 450 kilograms of wheat or their equivalent, can exchange the portion that exceeds its diet against all other species products.

Leaving aside the individual and focusing on the nation whole as a living being, I must search if its territory can produce enough wheat for represent 450 kilograms per head.

A very simple calculation tells us that, for the entire population and to satisfy all needs wheat (

42 included in T0' wheat production must be annual production of 16.252 million kilograms, or to speak in hectolitres, at 226,037,000 hectolitres.

If all needs were called /roment and if the The division of labor did not exist; I would say that in devoting itself solely to wheat cultivation, the

CATASTROPHE FORMULA _ 391
France has enough arable land for FATHER this quantity.

142 120 48
But in – 10 °ÿ 100 of total needs, 100 are

72 |
100 are of a different nature;
These have caused other branches of work, and brought about exchanges.

solely for feeding and 48 100

226,037,000 X48

– 4108,497,800 hectoliters, that is to say, in figures round 109 million hectoliters, to obtain the food land of the entire nation, reserve of seeds understood.

This figure has been achieved in practice; and we found varying from 1857 to 1872 between 407 million and 121 million: if the surpluses had been put into additional reserve to balance production annual calculations, we would never have resorted to the foreigner.

Seven million hectares sown and six million of workers (men and women), – that is to say the seventh of the territory and the sixth of the population – were sufficient for the production of the year 1872 (1872 census, general statistics). But what does not obtain–

So all I need to do is ask the French soil higher-numbered hectoliters (

399 CONCLUSIONS

Wouldn't that be better by popularizing agricultural machinery? It must be said here, a reform that would impose this popularization, while eliminating the abuses of pro–The prietariat would definitively save the country.

It is for having disregarded these principles and de–left the agricultural work that France had to do in 1879 requesting 290 million hectoliters from abroad, that is to say more than the theoretical total of 10 representatives

12

so much the sum of life's necessities.

Speculation, cosmopolitanism, Jews of Odessa, Jews Jews from America, Jews from France, they all came to an agreement. with our railway companies, also ten–dres to foreign transport than to ve– consciences nationals, and it is to the sound of the songs of economism official ceremony, which was suddenly followed by the tolling of the death knell from 1884–82.

An orgy of millions, seemingly! The bread is good A market, in appearance! In reality: paper! Hence life is three times more expensive than what is normally included man's strength.

The demonstration is easy to do; I will cal-to increase at three different times the increase that im-placement per kilogram of wheat, taken as the unit of _ of existence, the value attributed to exchanges carried out during the same periods: I calculate the exchanges,

CATASTROPHE FORMULA 393

as I have already said, on the capital of successionraux; I add, to fully clarify my de-demonstration, their capital amount, their reduction at 4/3 (to be able to compare them to traffic monetary alone) and finally the figure of this circulationtionelle-même. |

	1841	1879	1889
1 kg of wheat (nominal value).	0.917	2.214	2.471
- (monn. value 1/3)	0.305	0.738	0.823
Amount of trade generated - billions	billions	billions	billion
FALSE Lie sis coute seit	14,128	35,975	45,168
One third	4,709	11,992	15,056
Monetary circulation	4,108	12,250	13,949

We realize, by reading this table, that the third nominal exchanges are remarkably equal to monetary circulation in 1841; it was indeed a year of work; in 1872, he became in/é-laughing. However, it was also a year of work, but a metallic concentration was taking place at because of the war ransom; finally in 1882 the in-The inferiority lies with the metal, and the exchanges with it-pass; it's the fiction of credit values; we increased them by everything that came out of France, in metal, to go abroad, and no counter-tie could not take place, because the manual production
The billing company no longer found the same outlets.
This is the effect of poorly combined trade agreements.

394 CONCLUSIONS

of excise duties, which hinder domestic trade, and encourage foreign trade; this is the effect of free-trade practices, which are entirely powerless to influence the mode of production of foreigners, unless they resort to war and defeat to wrest commercial advantages from the vanquished ciaux.

Free trade is therefore a perpetual threat.
of international war.

That said, let's see, in the same table, what monetary value emerges in the three periods for the 450 kg of wheat representing what a man exchange annually to satisfy its right to

to live and reproduce ($x \approx$), a simple multi-

10

This plication is sufficient to give us the following figures:

For 1841 (per year and per person) 87.25 francs in metal
For 1872 – 332 10 –
For 1882 – 310 35 –

Thus, the same effect of living, which cost 87.25 francs.
in 1841, cost 370 francs. 35 in 1882, that is, more than a quarter-double. Is the metallic circulation therefore qua-Double in 1882? Not at all! It's barely triple.
From which it follows that the human machine wears out four times

CATASTROPHE FORMULA. 395

more to get 2 less as a means exchange.

These are findings that are impossible to refute.
and everything the official school will say to cover it up,
In the eyes of the people, the deficit of life will not serve rather than further accusing him of hypocrisy.

What do I care about the low price of bread, if I pay Double my accommodation? It is not possible to mo-Modify a single term of the formula $14+2+3+4 - 10$ without disturbing life more or less profoundly;

3 itself absorbs everything else, leaving no more
With neither rest nor clothing for the individual, what becomes of the
A phantasmagoria of cheap bread?

I prefer to pay double the price for my bread, if this prize, fitting into the harmony of the formula of needs, do not change any of them, and if my effort is to both proportionate to its usefulness and to the means of exchange it.

All of this is childish in its simplicity, too.
Don't economists have any other concerns?
than to muddy the waters, by diverting attention-tion of everything that demonstrates the balance of life dictated by the very laws of nature and invoking every time, the fatalism of the inequality of men.

The social organization thus maintained by the economists, moreover, have done their part wonderfully.

396. CONCLUSIONS

artwork.

Let's take a look at the range covered through trade only since 1829, on the eve from 1830, this bourgeois masquerade which had no it seems to be a movement designed to better deceive the people.

Because 1830 was a small 89, and I may surprise you-be strong, my readers, by pointing out to them that my current work is a very demonstration clear from this fact: that in reality the immortal principles are purely and simply the product of an evolution the revelation of the Jewish ogre, who dressed himself as "the people", in order to devour it more easily; which the monarchy could not to last in France for so many centuries, that because that the kings dared to express from time to time the golden oil by crushing the Jew; that in 89 it was over,
I am a Jew who was emancipated.

That for a moment unsettled by 93 the Jew facilitated Brumaire, then employed the Empire and the Restoration to heal his bruises, so much so that in 1830, he triumphed fully; that finally 1848 was a movement-symmetrical to 93; that he aborted by the Jew, and that the latter, having rebuilt the Empire, lived off it and the
He killed; it must be added that today he acts the same way

We let him do it.

CATASTROPHE FORMULA sn

Everything I just said is written in this brutal and sharp language, which is special to figures; indeed, here, grouped in a table, are the exploits of the Jewish community from 1829 to 1882, in selected—particularly the years preceding and following before political movements:

EXCHANGES

YEARS	Movable	Real Estate	Total	Their Capital
	(Billions)	(Billions)	(Billions)	(Billions)
1829.....	3,930	7,283	11,213	56,067
READ D PRE	3,693	6,715	410,468	52,341
RE CPE:	6,538	10,599	17,137	86,685
1851...oc...	6,672	9,128	16,400	82,003
LIN {1 SRE	14,574	17,463	32,034	160,173
A DER	16,390	19,625	35,975	179,878
1881.	21,920	22,196	44,116	223,564
To: Fe PAPERS	21,278	23,899	45,168	225,804

The biggest movement took place during the period marked by 4851; a partial liquidation was carried out there. done, but, after the popular suppression, the march The upward trend was able to begin again.

However, if the nominal increase in trade is When considering this, it is especially important to monitor Îcur proportion between the movable element and the immovable element billier.

Every time the mass of real estate transactions billiers is moving further and further away from the prapori- ee La ' . . Ü L tion that I established above, i.e. Ti) 11 23

prouuits

real estate and 22 for other exchanges, total

The problem becomes apparent and a liquidation must be carried out. to carry out. However, since the aim here is to measure the efforts between them and no longer the ve, I must resume the percentage which, moreover, facilitates comparisons sounds.

The formula therefore gives: 70 0/0 for exchanges real estate, 30 0/0 for movable property exchanges; but here is how the facts violated this proportion natural tion:

PROPORTIONS

D

YEARS EXCHANGES Resulting Resulting facts of the formula

1847 Furniture ...,..... 38 0/0 30 0/0
""°° { Real Estate... 62 07/0 10 0/0
Furniture ne 40 0/0 30 0/0
1851... To Real Estate. 60 0/0 50 0/0
1869 Furniture 45 0/0 30 07/0
* { Real Estate... .., 55 0/0 70 0/0
yg1 Furniture + 46 0/0 30 0/0
°* { Real Estate... .., 54 0/0 70 0/0
igsi Furniture,...e 49 07/0 30 0/0
* { Real Estate... 51 0/0 70 0/0
1889 Furniture,....., 41 0/0 30 0/0
* ? Real Estate... 53 0/0 70 0/0

The meaning of this development stems from the facts. is quite clear: on the one hand, the satisfaction of needs, food and housing, represented by 70 U/0, is constantly in deficit, a circumstance which causes crimes and offenses; and on the other hand, exchanges furniture, heavily inflated, has no representation in cash, because real estate exchanges billiers, who demand their payment in metal and not in- Tremendously, absorb traffic. :

CATASTROPHE FORMULA 399

We need to understand this clearly: traffic monetary is always sufficient, and whatever its mon- so much so, in relation to the volume of real trade within a country, but interior partitions.

I must repeat: taxes, income, and rent are required in cash by privilege.

But if, through their excess, they absorb three-quarters of the traffic, only a quarter remains for to meet wages and all other needs vital.

It is claimed that credit compensates for this insufficiency.
session.

This is a heinous lie: credit, at the con-Milking is a new way to monopolize the last a quarter of the available circulation. Through credit, one creates a currency whose value changes as that it circulates; it's twenty francs in paper money at its starting point and often 30 francs at its point of arrival riveted or vice versa.

[I] This is not the case with currency.

400 CONCLUSIONS

Transmitted in exchange for estimated utility
No matter how much the 20-franc gold coin circulates, it will have, at its point of arrival, no more value than at its starting point.

What I say about cash applies to banknotes from the Bank of France; but this note must not to be taken as a supplement to the metal; its usefulness must be limited to facilitating transport or circulation tion of large sums; and, except in cases of force major, it must be, in relation to the metal, only its equal representation in numbers.

Whatever anyone says, the bill of exchange is an abuse because of its successive increases, and the Jews Those who invented it knew very well that it would the most powerful tool of their land grabs.

Thus, credit is added to taxes, to rent, to the rent, to deprive the worker of all his resources of exchange; so he pays with his work, with his life
He pays tithes to the capitalist, and he thinks he's in a republic because, instead of one king, he feeds a million.

Such principles! The only immortal principle consists of to be eaten with Jewish sauce rather than with sauce Christian; oumeme, as today, in the style of concentrated Jewish-Catholic, and this 2n perpetuum, That's all! An unforeseeable fate? some will say. No way! Here's a formula that announces in advance

CATASTROPHE FORMULA 40?

the danger and leaves everything to honest men
Time to ward it off.

The accumulations and disproportions of exchanges have a rational formula.

As long as the Civil Code and the official economy regnant, ils génèrent deux progressions arithmé-tiques growing in the opposite direction and leading us to a shock; as for the explosion, it is the governments-the elements themselves which determine the timing.

These two progressions tend towards establishing equality, then the reversal of the two terms ns and a

Also, when we observe: real estate transactions
50 0/0 and 50 0/0 securities exchanges, the crisis erupts.

At that point, a budgeted increase would suffice.
silence to determine the reversal.

Example, 1846:

Real estate transactions amounted to 7 billion.

Trade in movable goods,.....0... 5 billion 6
Budget of 1847,.....osssee 1 – 6
Total follow 1 billion 2

Two years later, the 1848 revolution broke out.

402 CONCLUSIONS

Another example, 1869:
Real estate transactions amounted to 17 billion.

Trade in movable goods... 14 billion 5
The 1870 budget was added 3 – 58
Total. 18 billion

Real estate transactions are outdated, the proportion tion was reversed and we arrived at 1871.

These are conclusive results.

All that remains for me is to give the general formula-rale which, applied to any year of this century, will mark the era with rare precision of upheaval to which, in one way or another
On the other hand, a violent intervention is attached.

To be more certain of the accuracy of the figures Statistics, it is necessary to operate only on census years, for example 1834, 1841, 1851, etc.

Let us study the causes of the upheaval of 1848–51 and to look for clues in the figures compared from 1831 to 1841.

I call P the population in 1841, C its force productive, that is to say its calculated capital. according to Pxs

M
(as indicated above). I call P' the population of 1831 and the successions of 1841 (c = formula plus

CATASTROPHE FORMULA 403

Its capital is calculated based on the inheritances of the same year.

By writing:

F expresses the increase in productive force in capital between the two periods. (F will be the reason (of the first progression.)

On the other hand, I call B the consumption of the productive force, that is to say, in other words, the net product of national capital expressed above by GC; finally, I call D the budgetary expenditures

When writing: |

?

A expresses the progression of obstacles which are opposed, from 1831 to 1841, to the balance of life. (Bet D belonging to the year 1841, B'et D' appar- referring to the year 1831, A ser has the reason for the se- conde progression.)

This balance, it must be reiterated once again, consists of the fact that the effort equals 42 (which contains life equaling 40, plus the reproductive reserve equaling 2), must obtain a result equal to 13, that is- that is to say, equal to the effort itself; or, in other words

404 CONCLUSIONS

in terms, because one cannot be too precise in sem- Regarding the matter at hand, 1/ the effect must be proportional to the cause so that both progressions work by equal reasons and balance each other infinitely.

The productive force, we must not open it either. blier, is what makes one grain of wheat; this grain is the capital, the 5 grains are income (consumption and reserves), so that, in the normal state, if one wants to measure the the value of capital relative to its output - the capital being zero if it does not produce; just like A non-acting force is zero, that is to say, inertia. or neutral in mechanics, we must say that the capital is worth 5 times its income; by writing algebraic- brickly:

$G = 5 B$ or, which is the same thing, $= = B$.

However, it is clear that if these two terms increase- sent annually in the same way ($F - A$), if in I can write and obtain a word, for a given time x :

$c\{ : +5 \} = sB(: Fe D)$

æ will be infinity; everything will be for the best; the work the concentration of productive force will be proportional to that of consumption and reserves, and that year after year and perpetually. Unfortunately, in fact, 1 liter is not like that and our current social organization is constantly growing—ment, to the reversal of this proportion, that is to say—The formulas for jet are as follows:

CATASTROPHE FORMULA. ed

C 3B

52? $-2=2B$;
and finally |

CC

Or, to put it simply:

$C-11/2B$; $C-10B$; $C-:5LC$; $C-20B$;

which means that annually the capital force absorbs, gradually, all the products and that it It no longer takes 1 grain of wheat to produce 5, but $7\frac{1}{2}$, then 15, then 20 to get the same Quantity of 5. As you can see, it's exhaustion. and death.

Well, this result is due to the fic— bounds tives with which capital was charged and to the increases inverse elements of F and A, the first going incomparably slower than the second one, then that they should go hand in hand; for if 1 grain in 5 products; 2 must produce 40; 3 must produce produce 45, etc.; apart from the bargains during the good harvests and, also, deficits during the bad—vaisses; although these two hazards cancel each other out extraordinary reserves.

23.

466 CONCLUSIONS

And now why do F and A have this reverse and threatening march? Because the legislation promotes unnecessary withdrawals and that the eco-both nomie preach parasitic speculation leading to the monopolization of productive forces to the detriment of consumption.

Change the legislation, correct the doctrines economics, and everything returns to normal; then, at place of the continuous deficits created and imposed by For man, only the vagaries of chance remain. nature; but those are known and studied, they are, moreover, as if marked out and spaced out; consequently, they can be nullified in their effects; in one In short, the fight against them is possible; it's even a It is a scientific duty to combat the varia-natural tions.

This is not the case when it comes to hoarding. artificial elements combined by man; here all Jutte is impossible: it is a crime, it provokes the established powers and suddenly, laws, justice, force, gather to crush the innovator called revo-Autionaryl

FURMULE OF CATASTROPHES 405

But let's be clear, it's not about here are human passions; these, free in their expansion, should only be limited to their effects.

Torrents if you will, but torrents that are contained.

They are to societies what bad harvests belong to agriculture; therefore we can comp-to beat and mitigate them. Moreover, passion is a spontaneous damping core that the organization-social order can accept without resorting to ferocity Malthus's theories; for, in reality, passion is not that a slow suicide and man is, in soram, responsible _ sand of what he does.

Let's go back to the formula.

Three crises of different kinds occur daring:

: 3B

TZ or 2B or 3B;

that is to say when, annually, the capital force will absorb one-third, one-half, or two-thirds of the needs.

Of course, they are in ascending order; the the most acute being that in which the greatest loss of needs are absorbed,

4GS CONCLUSIONS

This series of crises belongs particularly during periods of international peace; they are united-quickly generated by the functioning of the laws emanating from the Civil Code, through social organization that they imply and the economic theories that the result.

Left to their own devices, these crises are not stopped. than through internal upheavals.

Nevertheless, it sometimes happens that, despite these upheavals- and because of their repression, the charges and needs continue, conversely, their march upwards. Then we observe that the productive force- the annual tive becomes insufficient by a third, of the half, or even more, that is to say, in other terms, which the annual needs require, to to satisfy, sometimes a third more than the pro- force total ductile force, sometimes double that same force, sometimes finally $2\frac{4}{2}$ and even 3 times that same force.

So, 4. International war is necessary, because the The people, who no longer have enough to sustain themselves, tend to become alienated. to lie to the detriment of other nations.

And, indeed, left to the mercy of progression. inverses F and A, the normal formula in which C-5B quickly becomes C - B; then it indicates- that annihilation and we arrive at C - B - zero.

In this case, all the needs and all the con- summations being absorbed annually by the

CATASTROPHE FORMULA 409

Capital force, there are no more reserves, no more scattering no more reproduction.

Here is the equation in this form:

AT 1\z

$c(1+) - B (: +3)$

By continuing to allow the progressions F' and A to take effect, we arrive at the reverse order in a very short time and we obtain:

In this case, whatever the capital lacks, it is necessary to take him out of the nation, that is to say by the war of conquest.

And now I'm going to apply the formula to different eras and see how it justifies itself in the past.

*
++

I imagine I am living in 1841 and I ask x
In how long, thanks to economic management under the current regulations, the country's needs will absorb half of its productive capacity, which will lead to acute crisis, riots, etc. |

Here is the calculation (1):

(1) The reader who wishes to verify this calculation will find it on page 433 the complete development.

410 CONCLUSIONS

50,639 The
 $= x (14 \ 0.28409) \times 14.128 \times (1 \ 4 - 0.33717) 7$

"Indeed, if I add 7 to 1841, I get 1848, period of the fall of the July Monarchy.

We were then heading towards the great cataclysm, the
The formula reveals that $\frac{2}{3}$ of the capital would be absorbed by needs after 9 years (– B hence $z - 9$), that is to say in 1850.

Two more years and the formula for destruction will be in place.
national (C – B) was applicable; at that time, it was necessary to liquidate; instead of liquidating the capital,
The men were liquidated; after the epidemics and the famine, the gunshots took charge of balancing
To meet the needs. It was a 93 in reverse. The man December therefore saved the property, scule couguilty of all the evil, and a new period of accusation mulations put s'ouvrir.

The figures from 1851 to 1861 lead to more serious findings.

For this period, the formula is as follows:
sells:

$14A - 14 + 0.20538$; $14 + F - 1 + 0.12935$; $C - 96.9$; $B - 19.4$.

In 1851, the total destruction (B – C) was to for–

CATASTROPHE FORMULA 4ii to arrive in four years ($x - 4$). This leads– knows the Empire in 1855.

Instead of changing the laws and the organization social, we simply reduced a part of the annuities through conversion, to traffic in the recoinage, and, as all this was Insufficient, men were consumed by war from the East and through fighting in Africa.

Thanks to this method of operation, in 4855, it was possible hoping to develop trade. Unfortunately and Nevertheless, at that point it was necessary to add to the needs ($8 = C + ;$) and under these conditions we could reach 1860; the formula's answer is $5(x - 5)$ which, added to 1855, makes 1860.

The economic reform was carried out; but to pay for this that we bought abroad, 1 liter had to be plundered by someone part. The Italian War was waged, the consequence of which was the annexation of Savoy, then of Nice; they went also to plunder, in China, the Summer Palace; they consumed men; but where land and metal.

If questioned regarding 1860, the formula would have said that, In 5 years, annual needs would exceed the 'double the productive force ($B = 2C; x = 5$). In 1865, it became necessary, in fact, to create an internal production.

419 CONCLUSIONS

rieure; major public works were undertaken, one held the world's fair; nevertheless, we were going to fighting in Mexico. Peace, which has become a political necessity The tick, had also become economic death.

The formula questioned in 1865 answers that, in In six years, the annual needs will absorb two one and a half times the total productive force of the country ($B - 2 \frac{1}{2} X CG; zx - 6$); if I add six to 1865, I get 1871.

War, essential in essence, to governments French Nantes, appeared to be, hypocritically, a war defensive; it had a twofold result: it undermined the population by the loss of Alsace-Lorraine, and by the battles – on a much larger scale more considerable than by the reduction of the territory-toire – and she required a ransom in money; Moreover, the civil war eliminated a large number of mouths, so that, all things considered, the official economy, steeped in Malthus' theories, could rub their hands together and hope from the year next, start again with fresh ingredients to devour human lives.

We have now arrived in 1872.

Everyone remembers the fierce struggle which was surrounded by the drafting of the 1875 constitution. Clearly, the question was whether the Jewish community Christian or Israeli Jewry would have the upper hand.

FOLMOLE THE CATASTROPHES 413

The latter won; therefore, we should expect to a frightening progression.

The lessons of the past will have been for nothing.

The Jewish community will want, at the same time, the political means Louis XIV and those of Louis-Philippe [°"; she will want a formless mixture of commercial freedoms and Financial concentrations; at a certain point, Not daring a continental war, she will dream of the colonies.

It's always the same system: looting outside to compensate for the looting inside; a double means of stopping the increases. of the population.

However, as early as 1872, the financial organization had to inevitably negate the effects of the splendid harvest which marked that same year.

By considering only the period from 1872 to 1876, we could already predict 1881. The figures given by These two periods are as follows:

(C-204.082; B-40 216.4; 44 F-140 09351; 4+ A-1+ 0.14033),
If I ask the formula how long

C
one third of the productive forces (3) will be absorbed by

Regarding the annual needs, she replied: 3.17, that is to say in 3 years and 8 months after 1876, which tells us—due to 1879–1880. Indeed, at that time took place the largest import of cereals: 290 million of hectoliters, as I have already said.

414 CONCLUSIONS

half of the productive forces (C) will be absorbed based on annual needs, meets the requirements in 6 years ($x - 6$), which gives us 1882: intense crisis, financial crash, cement, partial liquidation, theory of expeditions. These three circumstances, though distant, combined have... the completion of the formula of final catastrophes ($C - B$) that the figures of 1876 indicated for 1886-87 ($x - 10.7$).

I will now consider the two extreme periods: 1872 to 1881; the figures given by these two. The following are the periods:

($C-223.584$; $B-44.116$; ($14F-1 + 0.1928$; $1+ A1 + 0.2266$)). I ask them how long it will take for half to arrive.

: C productive forces 3) will be absorbed by the annual needs.

They will reply in 7 years ($x-1$); 7 years added 1881 gives 1888, very close, as we see. It seems, from the centenary of 1789; on that date, let us repeat, the social organization, based on the Civil Code, on our economic theories, based on our financial theories, will have generated this situation that annually the needs will require, in order to be met, half of the capital which represents the productive force of the country.

FORMULA OF CASTROPHES 445

I'm still questioning the formula: on what date? Will two-thirds of the productive force be absorbed? By needs? In 9 years, the formula replies

3

Another centenary: that of the forced circulation of assignats. Finally, I ask for the same formula in how long does the total productive force not will it no longer be enough to meet the country's needs? And she told me... The answer is: in twelve years!

1881 +419– 41893]

No reliable data exists from 1882.
particularly for the population, but, approximatelyvement, it is possible that epidemics and crashes financiers extend the first stage by one year: 1888; Unfortunately, budgetary charges will compensate presumably the liquidation of lives and of-tunes, so that the extreme date will always remain threatening and terrible days.

*

– *

And now, who should I turn to? Who should I have What recourse is there to prevent the calamity?

416 CONCLUSIONS

It is certainly possible! Legislators and government officials hold the salvation of France in their hands.

Some have the power to change the laws,
Others have the option of obtaining modern speculators, without resorting to the barbaric methods used by The kings of France, a gradual liquidation, but radical.

But, alas! our legislators, our magistrates, our journalists, all are guilty of negligence and em-marked by skepticism.

Moreover, hovering above them are those that I called them: the Kings of the Republic.

Also, when I talk about cataclysm, it's in the context of... mainly that I am addressing myself, it is to them that I say :

Be careful, your parasitism weighs on the mass requirements; your absorption capacity increases much faster than the productive force can grow
tion.

frightening impassivity, they tell you the time at almost exactly where your oppression will cause the more pressing demands.

So you still have three years ahead of you, to understand your mistakes and stop resisting to the reforms.

And, as for the administrators of this country, I

CATASTROPIES FORMULA 417

I told them straight up, if they let this last one through period without vigorously resorting to means the most radical ways to counter the evil, the catastrophe will become threatening.

The early signs are already intensifying; the revolt of the Suffering manifests itself from the bottom to the top of society.

All those whose social distortions have per-green nature and which, consequently, have undergone a repression, they bear witness in their own way, that is to say through recidivism, that punishment is not a remedy. Others, not affected by justice, but affected driven by necessity, they have exaggerated both the ferocity of the propertied classes and the fraud perpetrated by the oppressed, hence the major crimes, long hidden and now erupting

AT A BLOW.

Never before, as much as in our time, have the great murders, major robberies and major abuses of Trust has not been so widespread.

Food counterfeiting is rampant.

When the court is called upon to rule
She betrays the criminality of some and others.
in turn, a profound disturbance; indulgent
For the adults, she is ruthless for the small; and when, by chance, the most fraudulent vulgar people were punished, they still find in political ambitions, a ready-made protection to exonerate them.

418 CONCLUSIONS

offenses committed by wine merchants for due to falsification, in order to inflate the number of influential voters?

Fortunately, among the oppressed, among the suffering, among the proletariat, a whole legion of honest and devoted men managed to understand—to silencing his revolts, to silence his anger in the hope that, peacefully and legally, Reforms will be achieved. This legion is growing.
constantly revolving around a core group of reformers, Having the law on her side, she has the strength; to the refusal of Right, she can use it.

Over a three-year period, his organization revolutionary work can be completed; consider So, O Kings of the Republic, let this deadline will coincide with the anniversary of 1793.

IT]

General reforms.

The god of honor. — Economic reforms. — Social reforms.
— Political reforms. — Summary by article.

We can still avoid the catastrophe and put back France in the care of the Honorer, the only royalty respectable, the only god if one is needed.

Therefore, I do not want to conclude this work without indicate the most urgent remedies for ailments which he had to reveal.

I won't elaborate; I want to summarize thoroughly.
the possible conciseness of what two other volumes would barely suffice to expose.

It will suffice for me to recall that by studying simply official figures, that is to say the budgets, the monetary flows, annual successions and the populations surveyed, I have drawn up a law general law that governs the productive forces and the consuming forces of a country.

This law, which results from the facts, and that the facts absolutely verify, as in chemistry, in physics And in mechanics, the laws of gravity are justified. I condensed the movement and the affinities. in a formula whose two terms are:

+} « +}

We have seen that by applying this formula to all the crises, since 1831, have constantly given the precise date of the upheavals up to 1881-82; thus verified in the past, there is no doubt that, if its elements continue not to be modified, if, in short, we do not perfect the eco-current social economy and its political means, the catastrophes that she predicts will occur in the near future. will in turn verify.

Well, since I have demonstrated that the disorganization-social tion which manifests itself, periodically, at over the fifty years I have been able to study, with controllable elements, is the excluded work-sive, annual and desired of a functioning system like a pump of exhaustion and royalty of certain men acting like a machine compression, since all the trouble comes from this, Incessantly, the balance between forces is destroyed productive forces and consuming forces, that is to say, everything that is essential to life and reproduction In this regard, it is clear that any reform must have with the aim of restoring balance, of destroying the system theorem and to paralyze those who put it into practice.

GENERAL REFORMS 421

I have demonstrated that a force that does not act is equal to zero; that the official economic had arbitrarily treatment added 4 to the left of zero and had said: Now zero is worth ten and it is called force; by Therefore, whether she acts or not, she will produce, that is to say we will pay her 2 and that It was still a life sentence.

Once this fiction was imagined, it was called law of the rentier-owner-capitalist.

The reform is therefore entirely appropriate: it is necessary to s-to prioritize the fictitious value assigned to the neutral position absorb at the licu to produce.

I have demonstrated that the greater part of the numer-the raire was annually absorbed by the rent, the rent and tax, because the state and the owner require it.
their payment in cash and not otherwise; that he
This resulted in a huge deficit in resources.
to carry out all the exchanges necessary for life.

The reform will therefore aim to equalize the exchanges by removing the privileges of the capitals-lists, the fictions of speculators and by limiting the maximum tax.

4

422 CONCLUSIONS

I have demonstrated that the productive and fecund-Dante of the earth was abandoned because it demands a job that parasites abhor.

The reform will aim to make mandatory land development by distributing equally the products between collaborators.

Finally, I demonstrated that, when the system ap-
He suddenly found himself facing a rupture of fact and undeniable vital balance between the productive forces and consuming forces, it contented itself with reducing the latter by means of bloody destruction, both internal and external.

The short-term equilibrium that followed the mas-the consecration, served to create the illusion of a supposed increase in productive forces.

The reform will consist of reversing the current situation.

In peace, she will apply the theory of Mal-Thus, by concentrating its depreciation on the passionate parasites, whose sphere of action scar circumscribed by laws; in the struggle, it per-will see, through parallel destructions, the annihilation-system integration, which will not have been possible to obtain the modification, through peaceful discussions fiques.

These are the results aimed for by the reforms which

SUMMARY OF THE REFORMS

1. Abolish the right to dispose of the land and everything which follows in the Civil Code: defining the pro-land ownership, right to enjoy the land; qualify Furniture, everything that is not the floor.

2. Rewrite the laws on exchange.

Eliminate perpetual interest, give it a lifelong and temporary nature.

3. Making laws about saving: worthless cannot be anonymous: all negotiations must be done publicly, to the complaint and to the peer.

Prohibit the public sale of foreign securities.

& Removal of anonymity for companies: personal responsibility of the individual.

5. Elimination of heredity as it transmits a right of ownership over the land. – Nullity of any testamentary provision having this character.

6. Redo the land registry in order to classify the land according to their nature and fertility.

7. Facilitate the cultivation of plots that can be grouping for work, while respecting the old property rights under their new denomination; to promote a shared culture and, in this plan, equip each agricultural region with a sufficient number of machines and all the necessary tools scientific necessary.

221 CONCLUSIONS

8. The tax must be emphyteutic and bear on itself, its amortization with regard to expenses other than maintenance. It should never exceed $\frac{1}{20}$ of the exchanges calculated on the circannual monetary value, based on an average taken from the previous five years.

9. Invariability of ordinary tax during twenty-five years, except for its annual progression by

10. Eliminate the grants, defer them to the border.

11. Equality of trade, the basis of any treaty of trade; neither protection nor free trade.

42. Eliminate all monopolies granted to individuals.

13. Allocate all public services to the State, with the right for the latter to employ managers responsible, placed under his direct authority and revocable by him.

14. Elimination of court fees and all judicial offices.

15. Freedom and regulation of the game. Imposing it of a third of its capital; to concentrate on its para-Passionate sites, depreciation and discounts of Malthus.

CRT

GENERAL LEVORMES on

16. Taxing foreigners at double the rate of self-Chtones. The protegers as well, except with regard to the political rights, which alone confer the use from the ground.

17. Universal suffrage based on education; electorat, eligibility by patent; jobs, judiciary, etc., by patent and suffrage, but with age limits; equal treatment for the judiciary without consideration demotion; making military duty a career survival, with replacement by substitution between the activity and the various reserves, without compensation no kind of uniformity.

48. A chamber and a president.

A president elected by the chamber without conditions of time, but with age limits (50 and 60 years) and revocable, in case of conflict, by the municipalities gathered in assembly and deliberating at the cantonal level.

426 CONCLUSIONS

Alas! When will we cease to sit down?
Miller, voluntarily, like a brute?

When will we understand that, posing in The principle of the "struggle for life" is to imitate the cruelty of wild beasts? that, to establish as dogma the "venathe principle of doing good," rewarding or punishing, that is To govern the human by the methods of the tamer?

Let's stop learning like dogs, to "show off", for the piece of sugar or for the lash that man calls God!

Come now! Humans! We differ from the brute
by a single point: reason:

From reason arises the feeling of rights and of Solidarity duties, and that's called: The HoxxeuR!

Well then! Here is your god, people; from this one the
A citizen can be a priest, the nation: clergy and the France: church!

March! Trample the fables underfoot, crush the Impostures, have only one goal: HONOR!

This is the true "salvation"!

*
++

This book is a cry of alarm.
May it be heard!
In the meantime, whatever happens, the author will have done his duty.
Auguste Crrac,

DOCCONS

I

The elected officials of October.

In response to what the author said in the chapter on /shelter-elected members of parliament:

LAWYERS laughter waves osetalests 135
Landlords.sesssssssoose 100
Industrialists and traders.....s 10
Journalists. sss.sssssssssssscsessesécseuces 40

Doctors..... State dedosate uses tive | OR People of justice...sossossosseooooe 30
Magistrates soso sossescmsensssessiess se. 28
Farmers..s.ssssesedescnees Sasatesose. – 20
UDIVERSHÉS will be sentesenauenecs 20

PIM00 ds ss deuteiis esse Siren.. 20
OUVHETS ns dossiers a sets 9
Finance people...ss.sossossssssosecose 8
Diplomats.....:..... Mi ideas 8
Priests of different faiths...oese 3
VÉLÉFINAIPOSs isa denis week 2
Economistsssooossocses Sweden 2
DiINVOLS ses sd raisin er aise 8

The first three professions have the majority; only it
It should be noted that many judges and lawyers are also
owners.

Where will the agreement be found, both for economic reforms?
what about the norms that apply to political theories?

128 DOCUMENTS

He

Servility in positions of power.
(AN EXAMPLE)

We know that in France the monarchy is abolished in fact and in law:
consequently, it is not permitted to take qualifications royal, without excusing themselves from committing a seditious act and a usurpation of title. Offenses defined and punished by the Penal Code.

During October 18th, Mr. Waldemar Oldenburg, known as Sonderbourg and Glurksbourg, of Luthfrienne religion.

Capet, also known as Bourhon and Orléans, of the Catholic religion, residing in France, without a profession.

The future spouses appeared before the mayor of the 8th arrondissement. rounding,' so that the celebration of their marriage.

Mr. Kæchlin-Schwartz, mayor and government official republican, qualified and allowed to be qualified, in the civil status document, The future French bride: royal joy.

Strane caused a stir in the republican press and angry complaints ics!

Le Figaro, groveling more than ever, declares that Mr. Wal-Demar Oldenburg, Prince of Denmark, pushed the conquest-dance until she deigned to marry at the town hall, at the urging of the father of his future wife; he adds, moreover, that a qrince is not not like other men!

The mayor provided explanations which revealed that The Danish minister insisted that the King and Queen of Denmark Newak also insisted that the title of highness royal was mentioned in the civil status document; the queen of Denmark apparently took great care to ensure that this was clearly established that his son was marrying a princess of royal blood.

The mayor felt obliged to make a courtesy call; but this court-Toisie, whose real name is courtesanerie, completely made him forgetting that he could observe the royal blood without using words royal rejoicing, and simply inserting into the document that: Mademoiselle Marie was the granddaughter of Philippe d'Orléans, during his lifetime King of France.

Those who are procedural experts will undoubtedly add that the mention of a false quality, since it does not exist in France, vitiates the civil status document and could become a cause for annulment. of the wedding.

What can be said, now, about the singular ambition displayed by the Queen of Denmark to have it recorded in an authentic document the royal blood of his future daughter-in-law?

From the perspective of racial atavism, it's not an enviable thing!
The ruling parasites marry each other, just like the Jews, and nothing is less French than the series of kings of France.

As for their morals? Alas! History is still there, even that written by the courtiers of kings.

Let us simply read the following extract from the Memoirs of Saint-Simon (1), I is Frederic IV, king of Denmark.

"Frédéric, a longtime lover of Lille, from the com'ee of "Rouenclaw, Chancellor of Daucwark, from whom he had received a
"Bastard, in 1709, gave in 1712 the title of Duchess of Schleswig
"to this mistress and was not ashamed to declare her marriage"
"with her on April 4th, that is to say eighteen days after the death of "the queen his wife, and married him in public in Copenhagen"
"Hague on the same day (2). The 7th of the same month, that is to say three "Days later, the prince and princess, their wives, withdrew to "Jaurespries in Jutland. 'Fcl's are the funcest effects of love"
"Kings; would to God they were the greatest!"

Saint-Simon also recounts the following about the same subject:

"Having a strained relationship with his wife and mother, he had taken to traveling... 1]
"stopped for quite some time in Montpellier, coming from Italy, and did
"The lover of a lady whom Broglie also loved. He (Broglie)"
"commanded in Languedoc by the credit of Bâville, traitor of his
"Woman. He decided to find it wrong that the royal prince turned "around her and that she would receive it well. Her jealousy got the better of her until-
"to disrespect the prince, even to the point of threatening him." His
"The government, in turn, threatened to have him thrown out by the "windows... The king suspended Broglie from all commands and..."
"ordered Bâville to take him to ask for forgiveness in person"
""terms to the prince (3)."

Broglie's fate may have intimidated the target of the Ville arrondissementa statement that dared not disrespect the prince; as for Mr. Grévy, he is quite capable of doing as Louis XIV did by not not dismissing such a "respectful" official.

This is what history says about the royal saug of Denmark.

As for the French one, it is much more verbose and much more complete.

In any case, it is not the one who bears the name of which is
This book is signed, and who could ignore the value of royal blood?
of the Orient.

The same story, either in Fénelon's correspondence, or in Montesquieu's commentaries, seen in the gossip

In Capefice's accounts, he often places the name borne side by side.
by the author of this book and the name borne by the Orléans; now, this

(1) Memoirs of Saint-Simon, volume XI, page 385.

(2) Luckily this prince wasn't a florist and didn't know colchicine.

(3) Saint-Simon, volume IV, page 279.

430 DOCUMENTS

is never to the advantage of the latter; and while these only the cynical up-and-down (the regent) represents there, the other there represents regenerative science, universally recognized and respected

Should we ignore atavism? No, if we are considering communities.
Personally, we often have an interest in denying it and to admit it. The Orléans can deny atavism because of the RES and a large number of other characters from their family.

Those who count illustrious scholars among their students have,
On the contrary, it's in our interest to admit it. But we must admit it wholesale.
Or not. And then the one writing these lines begins to tremble.
that the writer who, some forty years ago, narrated in a Journal d'Auvergne, the history of the Brabançons, did not tell the truth in ra-containing that, under Philip Augustus, a certain Bertrand had abducted and married an illegitimate daughter of Richard the Lionheart.

But this Bertrand had the author's surname.

It's sad, but one thing can console him: that Lord Bertrand, fighting near Limoges and defending the castle
This Chalus, against Richard, had the good fortune to kill him
in 1199.

Bertrand definitely didn't like the English.

III

Regarding property seizures.

All the newspapers told the story of a woman who sold herself giant of a business agent in the middle of the auction house.

an entire family.

Le Figaro, ever so kind, hastened to add that the a woman like so many others who had been acquitted. He thought obviously-dementia in the Pagot case.

According to the Lantern, the woman, questioned about the cause of her "Attack," replied the business agent.

"He had my husband's house seized for 6,000 francs and he "had 15,000 francs on hand to settle the debts"
"Ciers." (Lantern of October 25, 1885.)

On the other hand, Le Figaro reports that the business agent had attended this hearing to oversee the sale of a small house worth 3,000 francs belonging to the perpetrator of the attack. Figaro, October 23, 1885.)

Finally, the Lantern speaks again and recounts the explanations. of the business agent.

Gelai-ci admits that he had been in a relationship for five or six years with the defendant's husband, who was then a boy; who made her re-

DOCUMENTS A31

read a mortgage loan; that he was not involved in the sale of the building and that if he happened to be at the auction hearing, it was simply to know the result,

Finally, the business agent adds:

"She's a woman who's lost her mind, I think she's crazy. Besides
"This matter is of no concern to her, as she has been separated for some time."
"a few months from her husband and can't touch anything from the product"
"of this sale." (Lantern of October 25, 1885.)

*
ss #

The business agent's explanations are extremely obscure, and if He was actually a stranger to the sale; what interest did he have in it? to attend?

Moreover, the way of speaking contains all the reservations of legal professionals and his eagerness to declare insane the one who cruelly...

It is surprising to learn from the debates that under this procedure of A real estate seizure conceals a very real and fitting drama, from the remaining, regarding the actions described in the chapter on Auxiliaries For justice.

IV

Rents and deposits.

Report of the Fourteenth Committee on Petitions,
Mr. Alicor, rapporteur.

Petition No. 1246. (Filed on April 9, 1883, by Mr. Louis) Guillot, Member of Parliament for Isère.)

Mr. Anguste Chwac, a publicist in Paris, submits to the Chamber a set of measures aimed at making mandatory deposit with the Caisse des Consignations, of all guarantees serving as a guarantee for the performance of the obligations of any whatever their condition may be.

Reasons for the commission. — The author of the petition proposes to assimiler to the guarantee and to submit to the deposit, the sums paid by the tenants or fermiers: in the hands of the owner—silence, at the moment of entry into enjoyment, that is to say the scmes—three Lovers who, according to the üsaus, are focused on ivance to be imputed to the last pericia of the Jocation.

These sums, which the owner has free disposal of from that they were paid to him, would be deposited at the Caisse des Consi—

432 DOCUMENTS

cuations ct could only be issued to the owner at the expiration of the bad, that is to say when the owner would have We fulfill our obligations towards the tenant.

Mr. Chirac also proposes to reinstate the mandatory deposit for all sums paved in advance by gas companies and caux ct'impulables sur la eruieie eenénuce d'un abonnement, Il would also like us to import the Wime Otlicgation for all Jes payments made into the hands of a j'atios by an employee in guarantee of its management

By means of these Jeoales prescriptions worded in the form double gross:

40 Ensure taoralite .lca coutrates by preventing cau-functions are distributed by c:4x which receive them before CeUx-et aient reLipit tous lecrs er gasgciuvuls;

20 Provided to FEtsl of considerable financial resources in
"hettant at the disposal of the treasure of the sums which, according to the
Mr. Chic's calculations, which should be valued at {809 million billion-lions, with the responsibility, under the authority, of paying the owner of the cau-currently a rate of 2 0/0 per year.

The Commission did not think it was possible to submit by a dispositios .egaie, the owner of a given building to bail, at the obhwätion ce deposit at the Caisse des consisnatiuous les se-mostres annuities paid in advance to the tenant. The principle of the freedom of convents Ini appeared incomplete with a also restrictive provision of the right of co-contractors; corn, in Regarding the actual maintenance, she has thought there might be advantages to protecting the deposit-protections against the insolvency or bad faith of individuals or Companies that attract depositors and abuse the system too much often of their confidence.

The commission did not examine the serious question of would there be any drawbacks to making it available?
from the treasury these new resources coming from the dev- deposits mandatory nus, for Island property owners and the com-water and gas companies. She also did not verify the figures-results produced by Mr. Chirac in support of his assessments, but she believes that the petition deserves to be brought to the attention of several parties.

the government's attention, and consequently it proposes to the
The Chamber orders the referral to the Minister of Justice and to Mr. Minister of Finance.

The fourteenth committee decided to refer the matter back to the ministers.
justice and finance.

DOCUMENTS 433

V

Formula for disasters
(calculations).

Here is the breakdown of the calculations listed on page 97.

The following calculations are those whose elements were taken in the period 1831 to 1841. It goes without saying that all of them Other calculations are performed in the same way; only the data changing, depending on whether different periods are examined, for example 1851, 1860, 1881, etc.

DEVELOPMENT OF THE CALCULATIONS ON PAGE 97.
(Period 1831-41.)

How soon will the needs absorb half of the Capital? In 7 years.

Abbreviations.

P', population counted in 1831. C', total capital of France in 1834.
P, »opulation id. 4844. C, id. 1844.

M, death of 1831. B, product of capital or exchange-
M, id. of 1841. gs 1831.

S, estates of 1831. B, id. 1841.

S, ibid. of 1841. F, increase in pro- force
D', budgetary expenditures (1832). | ductive between the two periods.
D, id. (1842). A, increased needs between the two eras.

Statistical data.

1831. P- 32,569,223 hab. (Annuaire des longitudes 1885, p. 500).
1841. P - 34,530,178 inhabitants. (id.).
1831. M' - 800,430 deaths (Comparative Statistics, Maurice Block, 4th vol., 59)

sh. M'=- 794,908 deaths these 1831. S' - 1,286,371,015 fr. (Statistical Bulletin of the Ministry of Finance, May 1884, page 548).

1841. S - 1,640,409,974 fr (id.).

41831. Of - 1,174,350,197 fr. (Comparative statistics M. Block, 1st vol., p.397).

1841. D. - 1,440,974,148 fr. (id.).

In addition to statistical data, the following must be obtained through calculation:
C,C; B',B; F and A in order to solve the final equation.

Let's find C' and C:

It is clear that, for 1831 as for 1841, the same ratio exists between the number of living people and the total capillary than between

434 DOCUMENT 13

that of the deceased and the total of inheritances. Therefore, we can write:

For 183: M:S':P':r And nour 1841: M:S::P:2

This c J'où SXP

hence ag vonC'omparls jp ZT where Con by logarithmee lou S' + log P'+ log [carithmes log S + 1og P Dormouse M

M'--loc C'. = log. C. i

Here's the calendar: Here's the calendar!

beS-9,499.36 log S-9,913:972:9

HlocP'= 7,512.89537 + log P=- 7.53%,10969

+HlogM' = 4.096.67660 log M=- 1.099.68310

loo C-10.715$.55021 whose n. log C-10.819.0%159 of which nel.

e. is 52,321,986,000 fr. c. is 70,659,145,000 fr.

As for Pet B, the income for a year being one-fifth or 20 07, from the eastern, an easy calculation gives us B'= 10,468,597,990 fr.

and B - 14,127,829,600 fr.

C x P'

For EF, the formula ESP F actually gives us the unit of productive force plus the reduction it has undergone between the two eras, therefore (4 + PF).

Using logarithms, this formula becomes:

$(\log C + \log P) - (\log C' + \log P) - \log(F + 1);$

$\log (= 10,849,04559 \log C' - 10,718,5\%021$

$+ \log l' = 7.512.90137 + \log P = 7.55:.10:09$

$\log (CXP) = 18,361.85196 \log(C' XP) = 18,253.25930$

$-\log (C'XP; -18,253,25930$

$\log (F+1) = 0.105.59266$ of which nc-1.284052.

All that remains is to investigate the increase that the needs, either A or (14 + A) whose formula, $pp = 1 + A,$ becomes in logarithmic form: $\log (B + D') - \{\log BR ,$ $= \log (1 + A)$. Here is the calculation: $8(B+D') - (\log B + D)$

B+

B-14,127,829,600 fr.
+D- 1,440,975,148

15,563,803,748 whose log is: 10,192,25510

B'-10,468, 397,20)
HD 1,174,350,197

41,632,747,397, where the log is: 10,066,05419
Log A or $1 + A = -0.126.20091$, of which the n. ©

is 1.331214.

DOCUMENTS 435

We can now solve the main formula which is

1x 1x
Cti1+-) --B[1+- G+5)=0(+)

but, since it is a question of knowing how long the annual needs will absorb half of the capital, instead of C.
You must write =,

The logarithmic formula will therefore be:

$\log C + \log 2 + \log P$

$\log A + \log (1+F) + \log F + \log (1 + A)$

Here is the final calculation:

log GC -10,849,04459
+log 2— 9,698,97000
Hlog B- 9,819,92488

0.397.93947 (dividend of the equation)

log A -9,527,90560

+log(1+F)-0.108.59266

$H \log(1 + A) = 9,873,19,909$

0.056.89.935 (divisor of the equation)

39793749 | 5689935

56543370 SR ane;
23300880 %0 aus 99, or T years

2130135

So in seven years the annual hesoins will absorb half of the total capital

436 DOCUMENTS

VI

Codification of reforms

The general summary (page 423) contains dis-all transitional positions in paragraphs 17 and 18.

Here, in the form of draft laws, with their Statement of reasons, the three major reforms that it the goal is to achieve.

The first draft indicates how it would be carried out
The transformation of the property ownership system.

The second indicates how the assessment would be carried out.
of the tax or common contribution towards the col-activity, by establishing the liquidation budget.

Finally, the third indicates how modified the main books of the Civil Code, as that they regulate the relations between citizens and organize the exchange of their utilities.

I warn that these laws are interdependent, that they apply
In isolation, they would be more harmful.
qu'uliles.

I also warn those who will study them that they must, above all, completely detach themselves old habits imposed on them by their bodies in force.

DOCUMENTS 487

$ I. – PROPERTY REGIME

AMENDMENT TO ARTICLE 54 OF THE CIVIL CODE

EXPOSED

The relentless increase in the price of everything has been a concern

all the reformers, without, until now, any of them has found a practical way to remedy it, unless resorting to a violent liquidation, similar to that of 1793, which believed it had found its way in the dispossession of property owners:
old ways in favor of a legion of new owners, and discover a formula in the prescriptions relating to maximum.

_ For many years, what we call capital has ceased to be a means of measuring the source of products which serve periodically to satisfy the individual's needs.
On the contrary, the product is artificially forced to move to exaggerate the capital value. As for living off a Periodic income is currently an insufficient method and Outdated. They prefer to inflate capital, manipulate it, and obtain... through speculation, variable resources that serve as income.

But, through these actions, it came to pass that the means food and shelter, these two essential needs of life, are absolutely disproportionate to each other, and that While the price of food may seem moderate on the surface, this Moderation is largely offset by the exorbitant price of accommodation.

However, these two needs have an impact on the preservation of human life.
maine, a considerable influence, and, however, our inst-Civil protections have placed the individual in this alternative or to reduce his food intake to pay for his housing, or to deprived of housing, if he wants to eat to his heart's content: free, Moreover, by not eating or limiting one's food intake, he becomes a slave devoted to the maximum, as soon as he occupies the lodgement or that he works on the land provided by the owner—to be silent. On this point, he is never in a position to reduce his consumption or his fee in proportion to his means. There It is therefore absolutely urgent to restore the balance between these two situations.

438 DOCUMENTS

No one can deny that land prices throughout the France has not experienced continuous price increases for the past 90 years. His real estate assets, which were valued at 30 billion, in 1790, based on the capital of taxed inheritances in 1889, to 119 billion 4/2. The rule governing this series of increases the mentation is such that these must progress infinitely; so the moment is near when it will be impossible to satisfy to the income required by real estate capital, whether it is represented per hectare of built-up land or per hectare of unbuilt land. The capacity the royalty rate per agricultural hectare has limits that have already been exceeded and, as for the tenant's strengths, they are already well above—below are the means of obtaining the enjoyment of one hectare of built land.

A careful observation of the past clearly demonstrates that the development of real estate capital is parallel to that of revenue budget. It is, so to speak, mathematically—proportionally. If, for example, we take as a point starting in 1826, the period at which, according to the inheritance records Taxed, France's real estate capital amounted to 35 million 4/2 liards; if we take the ordinary receipts of another any year (for example, 1840), by decreasing them supplementing the annuities created in the interim and which make up the Consolidated debt, we will obtain, by a simple rule of three, the value of real estate capital in 1840; however, the figure thus the one obtained will represent almost identically the one we will have calculated based on inheritances taxed for the same year, that is to say, by means of completely different data; in operating over the period from 1870 to 1882, a period during which the—

DOCUMENTS 439

what the real estate capital, calculated on inheritances, has having gone from 66 billion to 119 billion 4/2, we find, by the same system, that is to say by comparing budgets, the same increase and the same agreement between the values of the real estate capital obtained through completely different calculations rents. At first glance, it seems impossible to stop this a series of unlimited increases, because it has as its author each seller who is reimbursed by the buyer 4882 pays the land at the cadastral price of 4790, plus all the islands taxes that this land has borne in the meantime, even more so profit for the last seller. This profit alone, would further exaggerate the increases already observed, without the judicial sales that provide a kind of counterbalance; but This counterpart, increasing budget revenues, loses a portion of its strength and leaves the simple proportion which was indicated above.

We need not look elsewhere for the causes of our crises, the causes that have paralyzed agriculture, the causes of the exaggeration-housing price adjustment; therefore, the economic organization Once the problem is known, it becomes possible to find a remedy.

It is certain that the French nation has been reduced to this alternative: or to declare bankruptcy and undergo liquidation by violence and perhaps by blood and fire; or by demanding—to estimate the value of its real estate assets, as if it were a simple public limited company, forced to reduce its capital social in order to be able to continue its operations and to withdraw from it sufficient means of subsistence.

The excesses of real estate capital have, moreover, another A serious drawback is that each new buyer, in awaiting resale, it demands a higher royalty on its capital raised, in order to legitimize the price he will demand; hence it follows. that the country's metal circulation has become insufficient to to satisfy the exchanges of each citizen; the reason for this is Simply put: every property owner demands their rent in metal and nothing else; for its part, the State (abstraction aside) services, which are insignificant compared to the budget total) requires the tax in metal and not otherwise. In both In this case, no credit intervention is possible. In 1882, by For example, the royalty paid in metal to the tax and capital real estate has amounted to more than ten billion: however, the total of coins minted and in circulation at the end of 4832, did not reach not 44 billion. The mass of the nation therefore had before it less than £ billion, to satisfy the demands of securities trading annuals, which, for 1882, were calculated at over 37 billions. The deficit is therefore enormous, because the exchange capacity The unit of currency is like 4 is to 3, hence it follows that, To cope with 37 billion exchanges, free circulation was necessary. a figure of approximately 42 billion.

440 DOCUMENTS

The crises, which are worsening every day, demonstrate that The cash is accumulated in a small number of hands, absolutely to a number of others.

Liquidation is therefore necessary, and if we want to avoid it...
if it is to be done by violence, it must be done by peaceful means.
facts available to legislators.

Since the problem stems from the constant price increases and the
The frantic mobilization that was carried out on the ground, it is necessary to immobilize it in the current hands, to eliminate harthey maintain the right to dispose of it, by modifying it in this way Article 544 of the Civil Code.

Here, placed side by side, is the old editorial staff of Article 544 of the Civil Code and the proposed wording:

Drafting of the Civil Code { Proposed drafting

Art. 544. – Property is the right to enjoy and dispose of | the right to enjoy French soil; things in the easiest way to enjoy and dispose of absolute, provided that one does not make of it movable or fungible things, in not a use prohibited by law|in accordance with the law.

or by regulations.

DOCUMENTS A41

We can see immediately, from the difference between the two texts, that
The former division into buildings and personal property will be modified;
the land alone will be immovable; that the buildings will become furniture and finally that land ownership will simply be a usufruct, to which all means of transfer will be retained and transmission, without the ground being counted as a value capital.

This devaluation of France's real estate capital, being common to every citizen and to every landed property, will not disrupt established situations in any way, for this reason that lowering a level over an entire surface does not destroy the balance of this surface. We will enjoy the soil through its natural fruits.
natural or artificial; the constructions being considered as Artificial fruits will be freely available, just as in the past.
fruit being a mobile and fungible thing, as is all work by the hands of man. The mortgage system will undergo, it is True, a few modifications, but, as it is entirely based on periodic royalties and like production will be favored by the new system, the mortgage creditor-Cairo will only receive its interests and its amortization.

land use. For this purpose, the old property titles will be exchanged for long-term leases issued by the nation, conventionally considered as sovereign col-reading of French soil. The duration of each emphyteutic lease would be twenty-five years; this duration having no other purpose than to assure the usufructuary that, during this period, the tax that he will have to pay annually cannot be increased, at all by being liable to be reduced. Moreover, the long-term lease-The theotic will be transferable and transmissible by all means ordinary.

As for the tax, it would be established as follows: the The land registry of French territory would be revised, the lands would be- would be divided into two main categories: 4° land

u 25.

449 DOCUMENTS

built; 20 unbuilt plots. Each of these categories. The geodesic would be divided into different series, according to the nature of the land. and the cube of constructions, number #4 marking the most High productivity and number 40 the weak pile; in the productive capacities will be taken into account, as will population density and this is done by department and by municipality.

On these grounds, assuming that, after deduction of all the public roads and all property without particular owners of the land, France comprises 49,389,570 hectares which could exceed to bear the tax; if, for example, it is recognized that the expenses budgets cannot be less than 2.250 million per In a year, this sum would be distributed over the number of hectares for- before bearing the tax, which would give, for each hectare, an average fee of approximately 37 francs per year; but it The categories and series above would be taken into account indicated; the ten series of each category would pave by hectare following a decreasing proportion from 40 to 4. As for to the categories, they would bear the tax in the following way- Sale: 6/15 for developed land and 9/15 for undeveloped land unbuilt, finally the series of each category would be established by department, and by municipality, taking as a basis the population density, with number 4 corresponding to the den- the highest density and number 40 the lowest density.

It is hardly necessary to emphasize how much this organization sation would promote the development of municipalities and en- would encourage agricultural work, since everything would be based, hence- but, regarding the development of the land, and that such owner who wanting to leave it unproductive would be forced to pay

Make way for another.

These various observations are summarized and applied in the following provisions:

DOCUMENTS 443

DRAFT DK LAW

Article 4 – Article 44 of the Civil Code is amended as follows next: : |

"Property is the right to enjoy French soil; to enjoy and to dispose of movable or fungible things, by conforming to "Subject to the laws."

Article 2. – The land alone shall be classified as real property; shall be classified Furniture, everything that is not the floor.

Article 3. – The existing land titles at the time of promulgation of this law will be exchanged against emphyteutic leases of a duration of 25 years and re-newables.

Article 4. – Possession of an emphyteutic lease entails, for the holder, a guarantee from the State of the enjoyment of the land mentioned therein subject to the annual payment of Pimpôt y attached.

Article 5. – The tax stipulated by each long-term lease cannot be increased for its entire duration. But it may be reduced every five years.

Article 6. – A special law will determine the categories and the series according to which the lands will be subdivided and the quo-the tax burden they will have to bear.

Article 7 – Leases shall be assignable and transferable by all legal avenues; all capital value attributed to the land is prohibited; any transfer or transmission that mentions it would be null and void by operation of law, and would entail forfeiture of the lease with respect to both contracting parties.

Article 8. – All provisions of the Code are hereby repealed civil, all laws and regulations that would be con-to treat under this law.

Article 9.— The Council of State is charged with revising the following: verses prescriptions of the existing legislation and in particular Book 1 of the Civil Code, to bring them into harmony with the this law.

444 DOCUMENTS

$ II. — TAX BASE AND BUDGET CLEARANCE

EXPOSED

There seems to be general agreement on the necessity absolute abolition of indirect taxes, to establish a more equitable e.g., and consequently, more equitably, the basis of contributions goals annually necessary for the nation's expenses; to eliminate all monopolistic concentrations for the benefit of—the identity of individuals or particular companies by attributing to the state monopolies which exclusively concern services of public interest.

The elimination of existing monopolies, resulting in the removal of... session, can be carried out, depending on the case, either by a liquid—violent dation, either through economic liquidation. This The latter type of liquidation is, obviously, the most desirable. manageable, and it is possible if one wants to enter frankly into the the path of major reforms.

Among the monopolies concentrating public wealth in in the hands of certain individuals, there is one whose majora—The amounts are so excessive that direct repurchase is impractical. cable; this refers to the monopoly which consists of the Code Civil law refers to: property or the owner's right. All Financial and social improvement is impossible, as long as we will not have put an end to the automatic and per— increase petuel of the value attributed to the land. This increase is the primary cause of all the concentrations that prevent equality of exchanges between citizens of the same country, hence—organize the normal circulation of wealth, and increase budgets.

Therefore, the property system must certainly be modified. but, for the sake of peace, it is necessary to avoid dispossessing the pro—current owners, and to disrupt the transfer of their property, This result is achieved by now immobilizing the ground, at means of limiting the rights attached to its possession.

In the proposed system, the land alone would be considered real property; all The other assets would be movable property. A right of enjoyment or of usufruct, transferable and transmissible, would be attached to the land and One could only dispose of other goods classified as movable property. The full explanation of this amendment to Article 844 of the Code Civil matters are the subject of a separate bill; but it was necessary— It is important to clarify, at the beginning of the current work, that the capital France's social fabric was weakened by the suppression of all market value with regard exclusively to the land.

Therefore, it remains to establish an applicable revenue system. to a period of twenty-five years, for example, and by means of the— which, while spending three billion annually, if it is If necessary, it will have been possible to repay, through annuities of a value at least equal to that of the expenses, a total capital of more of 80 billion; however, larger islands of capital at to be repaid are: the consolidated debt: 25 billion, and the Railways: less than 45 billion. That's quite enough. that the liquidation budget must be calculated in such a way as to to reach 6 billion £ annually, and this by having sup— awarded all exemption taxes, the four contributions direct taxes, all other indirect taxes, while retaining only— some of the recipes recorded in the old budgets. |

The proposed liquidation budget would essentially include two types of recipes: one, fixed at a maximum and for a period of twenty-five years, which would represent a per— a certain annual reception; the other, composed of variable elements riables, which will be listed below, would serve not only— to fully reimburse all the monopolies taken over individuals, but still to be relieved, by five-year periods nale, the annual revenues set at their maximum, as well as has been said above.

h L,
446 DOCUMENTS

The first type of revenue would be called a contribution on the lands regulated by emphyteutic contracts of twenty— five aces.

The second type of recipe would include the product of public services placed under state control and various taxes which will be discussed.

LAND TAX. – The idea of distributing on the usable surface area of France the total contributions necessary for the expenses of the national community is not new; however, it had not been seriously studied, mainly due to the difficulty of communication between the regions or cities.

This is no longer the case today; the cadastral revision is an extremely easy operation, and we shall see that, even in adopting the figures from the terrier book, published in the bulletin from the statistics of the Ministry of Finance, we arrive at results-statements as simple as they are logical.

According to this book, the total area |
taxable in France, amounts to... 49,389,570 hectares Including: undeveloped land..... 49,444,677
Laid surfaces..... bone... 244,893 –

The aim is to distribute proportionally between these two last areas the total of the annual fixed contribution for twenty-five years, but which can be reduced every five years, with the option to renew it during the five years following without being able to exceed the set limit.

We acknowledge that the maximum annual contribution for the whole of France, i.e. 2.25 million.

Here is what the distribution method would be:

According to a formula that would be too lengthy to explain. here (4), the total of Ja's life needs being designated by 45/45. shelter, that is to say the enjoyment of any construction, to various points of view of tools and housing, occupies a proportion of 6/15. Therefore, assuming that the population France must find satisfaction throughout its entire territory of all its needs, it is evident that the contribution to demand– The last part must be fixed according to the same proportion. Therefore, 6/15 9/15 of the total annual payment will be allocated to the developed land.

(1) See page 388.

DOCUMENTS | 447

will be distributed across undeveloped land; thus we find the Number of hectares. Contributions in francs.

Developed land .. 244,893,900,000.0 0
Undeveloped land. 49,144,677 4,350,000,000
Totals..... 49,389,570 2.:50,000,000

This provides a general average for all of France of 27 francs #7 for the undeveloped hectare and of 3,655 francs for the built-up hectare.

To give an idea of the average share that would amount to each house measuring 40 meters by 40 meters, or one are, note that each hectare supporting 3,675 francs would contain one hundred houses, or 36.75 francs per house; likewise the average share the price of an undeveloped area would be 27.5 centimes.

Each of the major divisions into built-up and unbuilt land would give rise to ten classes or series, to proportion the distributions, according to the nature of things and the density of populations.

For built-up land, the ten classes would be established in taking as the basis for each of them the population density-communal tion and the cube of the construction.

For undeveloped land, the ten classes would be established.
based on the density of the municipal population,
the nature and state of cultivation of the land.

It is good to give an example of the disbursements.
mental from which one can derive an idea of the distributions com-municipal which would have been too meticulous to introduce into the present presentation:

448 DOCUMENTS

EXAMPLE OF ALLOCATION FOR EACH DEPARTMENT

NAMES TAXED BY AREA

A's

DEPARTMENTS BUILT UNBUILT

fr. oc. fr. c.

AIN sua 24,93.40 0,24.930

PVC D ee 32.51.65 0.22.043
Alps (Basses-)....,..... 34.04.30 0.07.3:53
Alps (Hautes-)..... 36.36.60 0.08.4K«49
Alpes-Maritimes.....,..... 62.89.60 0.23.540
Ardèche: esse 49.44.90 0.49.300
Ardennes... bone... 47.99.00 0.24.723
AFIOGO Shen moon 37.25.06 0.18.928
Dawn..... RE ee 24,39.54 0.46.630
AU: 58 cn 87.59.84 0,20.0:0
Aveyron series k4,78.20 0,48.1445
Bouches-du-Rhône .,..... 80,81.48 0,48.435
Calvados uses esse: 56.21.90 0.30.910
Cantal ,..... 39,37.70 0,45.827
Charente. ess geese 21,39,64 0,24,048
Charente-Inférieure..... 19.85.70 0.26.414
Dear... Re 35.97.70 0.18.930
Corrèze...: its 42,77.40 0,20.,857
Corsica (no land register) Hess » »
Côte-d'Or és. 29.28.23 0.47.005
Côtes-du-Nord.,.... 7" 40.26.50 0.35.238
Creuse..... see 44,74.40 0,19.308
Dordogne ,..... 27.10.92 0.20.896
DOUDS ssséanenssssansess. . 48.88.20 0.22.837
Drome: samir 51.82.70 0.48.523
FUR0:: in sae ut 256.55.82 0.24.032
Eure-et-Loir AND 24,14.51 0,18.588
Ro e coin endows 37.88.19 0.39.151
Gard... ideas 61,84.40 0,27.444
Garonne (Haute- .. sise . 32.09.90 0.28.697
EE 44.76.90 0.47.496

Gironde. ses use . 27.23.25 0.29.900

DOCUMENTS

NAMES

of the

DEPARTMENTS

Héraults ss: ts

Ille-et-Vilaine..... Se

LAS TS LE A

Indre-et-Loire.....

LOT0: prhiosunieuus

SKIRT Think mis two

Landes.ssise sus a

Loir-et-Cher..... =

Loire (Haute)
Loire-Inférieure
Lotrélaihssesscesss

Marne (Haute-).....
Mayenne.

ee 0%. teste. 0 tn €

Meurthe-et-Moselle (no ca-.

dastre)..... RE

Puy-de-Dôme.....
Pyrenees (Lower Pyrenees)..... |
Pyrenees (Hautes-).... ..
Pyrénées-Orientales of Rhône secrets

449

TAX PER AREA

BUILT

fr. c.
85.76.40
34.34.80
28.61.60
25,45,35
32.93.50
36,47.00

19.74.30

27,33.80
68.56.90
57.97.70
40,40,30
29.58.40
29.94.90

46.30.00

23.37.00

2444.00

35.38.00

31,64.33

23,28.45

»

43.45.80

35,86.43

37.75.72

80,53,57

22,34.81

24,31.81

38.21.68

45.59.89

34.97.73

29,27.55

76.60.20

102.08.37

HAS",

NOYX BATI

fr. oc.

0.27.334

0.35.664 .

0.46.230

0.28.984

0.21.524

0.22.032

042.371

0.19.622

0.48.999

0.24.709

0.35.232

0.20.887

0.20.8386

0.22.426

0.40.:96

0.28.722

0.34590

045.831
0.2 5.986

»
0.4%.444
0.29.847
0.49.705
4,09540
0.26776
0.24.026
0.48.139
0.27443
0.22.036
0.20.444
0.49.634
1,03,095

450 DOCUMENTS

NAMES
of the
DEPARTMENTS

Saône (Haute-)
Saône-et-Loire Sarthe AND
Savoy (no land registry)...
Savoie (Haute-) (no cadas-

(tre) ds 2:
Seine. ..

ee "+. e

Sum.....
Tarn-et-Garonne Narreagus:
Vaucluse
Vendée
VIEN sn ts nie Vienna (Upper) Vosges.,...

ee

TAX PER AREA

BUILT

fr.

36,39.75
35.26.40
21.92 23

neither € 1v

M 19 © o0 (© © ©
€ = ©

(=)

19.57.40
27.95.20

fr. c

0.214.256
0.23:58

0.33.672

»

27.83.4100

0 18.563

2

EXAMPLE OF DISTRIBUTION BY CLASSES AND CATEGORIES FOR THE DEPARTMENT OF COTE-D'IVOIRE

ARE BATI

ee 20 22000

housing

fr. c.

Are class..... 58,56.1:)

DrCIASSC ele udane 46,85.16

3rd class no. 35,43.87

RU Class s crates 93.12.58

DECO. een des 41.74.29

Are moyen bâti...

LOCAL

of industry

{rc

39.04:30

31,23.44

2.,42.58

15,541.12

17.80.56

29 28.23

DOCUMENTS 451

ARE NON BATI

{re category Z category 3rd category

fr. c. fr. c. fr. c.

4th class.. .., 0.39.996 0.26.664 0.13.332

2nd class..... 0.26.664 0.47.756 0.08.888

3rd class. .,..... ; 0.143.332 0.08 888 0.04.444

4th class... .,.,. 0.06.666 |

me "©

Are moven non bâti 0.47.005

EXAMPLE OF DISTRIBUTION BY CLASSES AND CATEGORIES FOR THE 20TH ARRONDISSEMENT OF PARIS

{Ménilmontant)
ARE BATI LOCAL = "TT — industrial habit
ir. oc. rs 6
dre class... _ 343.42 288.15
2nd class... ,,,..... no. 248.50 167.00
3rd class. 187.87 125.25
4th is enough. ...,,..... 125.9: 83.50
5th class,,,..... 62.62 41.75

Overall average for the 20th arrondissement... | 456.56

Note, – For buildings, taxes are obtained according to the height of buildings, that is to say proportionally to the number of floors it contains.

We can see from the preceding tables that the department the Seine bears the heaviest burden; but, if one wants to calculate all indirect taxes, all the excise taxes that the new system eliminates, we discover– will prove that, far from constituting an increase in expenses, it produces a significant tax relief.

459 | DOCUMENTS

Moreover, the distribution of the land contribution between The built-up and unbuilt land is established in such a way that, the more one builds, the more the proportion of the built-up area will decrease without, however, resulting in a significant increase for the undeveloped area. In fact, the more buildings there are, the more... The more it grows, the more the number of owners will also increase. directly enjoying their dwelling; therefore, ceasing to be tenants, they will be relieved of the annual payment representing their rental (depreciation and management fees), as we will see the draft law relating to exchange agreements between private individuals.

increasingly the type of construction where the inhabitants are superimposed; hence a general sanitation and conditions hygiene that is more conducive to life.

These considerations, applicable to the Seine department, This will also apply to the whole of France. The departments, however different—Population growth will tend to balance out, which will lead to a more equal distribution of departmental responsibilities.

Furthermore, the much-pursued goal of tax equalization would be achieved, because the new system that introduces density of the population in the calculations, corrects the provisions cho-quantities and unjustified ones that are noted when examining the contingent of each department. Finally, the owner of the largest land area, built upon or unbuilt upon, of in proportion of his fortune, much more truly than by means of God vs on income mixed with personal taxes.

VARIABLE PRODUCTS

Customs proceeds..... 400,000,000 fr.

In the proposed system, the grants would actually reported at the border, the equality of trade would be applied trade agreements and customs duties on entry would be higher. However, we are maintaining the forecasts budgets of 1886 which confine 400 million.

DOCUMENTS 453

Tobacco and powders..... 400,000,000 fr.

This is roughly the figure projected in the 1886 budget.
Post and telegraph. 465,000,000 fr.

These are the budget forecasts for 4886.
Estates and forests..... 40,000,000 fr.

This is roughly the total projected for 4886 minus the revenues
Nudes removed by the new system.

Miscellaneous budget items. 80,000,000 francs.

These are the forecasts from the 1886 budget with some additions and deletions resulting from a difference in the grouping of chapters.

Gas or other lighting other processes..... 400,000,000 fr.

The new system allows the repurchase of all concessions gas lighting systems, because they use the piping-underground construction or the use of public roads themselves and constitute a public service.

The total lighting revenue for France has been assessed. entire on the basis of ten times the average net profit of the Com-Parisian gas company. This figure will certainly increase. The exercise of this state-owned monopoly would be organized, Moreover, through managing and responsible companies of their staff; the same would apply to all monopolies of public services that would be bought back, as it will be explained in a separate project concerning railways, Railways, canals, etc. 44,000,000 francs.

194 DOCUMENTS

This figure represents 37% of the gross product of the mass of the French railways, 63% are left to the companies managing companies for operating expenses and indemnities of management. A special bill will determine the organization railways.

Bank of France..... "40,000,000 fr.

This figure is lower than the dividends distributed; the Bank of France attached to the State would be responsible for all services cash flow, Insurance rights....., 40,000,000 fr.

one insurance per rating, mandatorily paid by the adults of 24 years until the age of 45. These payments constitute a compulsory insurance fund, which will be managed by the Bank of France in order to ensure, by adding other levies across the entire budget, either the validity of minors, or the disability of adults according to an organization which will be the subject of a special bill.

Gaming tax,..... 4,600,000,000 fr.

The games would be subject to state oversight; the forward transactions carried out on the stock exchange, that is to say any operation that would not end immediately with a payment or by a formal obligation, such as knowledge or a ticket will be classified as a stock market game.

The brokerage fees collected annually by the agents of exchange rates on forward transactions alone amount to 400 million lions; they are the product of a tax of 425 millimes per 400 francs of nominal capital committed to the game. A simple proportion-
. tion indicates that the sum of the stakes amounts annually to 80 billion; by taxing this sum at 2%.

Net, we get 4.6 billion. A special project will organize the collection of this tax and stock market legislation. It is

DOCUMENTS 455

It is worth noting, however, that the yield from this tax will only operate fully during the liquidation period. that is to say, 25 years; after that time he will be noticeably modified; it is essentially a transitional tax.

Tax on foreigners.... 225,000,000 francs.

This figure is the result of distributing it across 500,000 odds. of foreigners from the land contribution reduced to the unit of taxpayer and multiplied by? That's the consequence, elsewhere developed, from the absolute right of the State to demand, from the foreigner coming to reside in France, a tax double that of indigenous peoples, without, however, this tax giving them no right to become holders of an emphyteutic lease, right absolutely reserved for citizens of French nationality.

In conclusion, let's say that the expenditure budget will be... dually reduced, not only by the reimbursement of

It will even be necessary to replace the budget for religious affairs with the medical budget, that is to say, shifting the burden onto doctors organized as a public service, the sums currently paid to the clergy.

BILL

TITLE I

GENECAL PROVISIONS

Article 1, – All direct and indirect taxes, all the excise taxes, but excluding customs duties or taxes, are abolished.

Article 2. – The annual revenues of the budget of the French nation
The French will now consist of two income classes, know :

4. A fixed contribution, calculated on the land, including the Island
A maximum figure will be established for a period of twenty-five years.

456 DOCUMENTS

with the possibility of reduction over a period of five years and following before the distinctions that will be established below;

2. Variable products, derived from qualified taxes of national interest and the functioning of public services according to the distinctions that will be explained below.

Article 3. – Each year, the expenditure budget will be drawn up.
and arranged to use the surplus revenue to remto settle all debts, in accordance with the regulations which will be established lower down.

Art. &. – Once the debts are repaid, all excesses annual income from variable products will be used to re-to conduct, for periods of five years, or, if applicable, for periods of twenty-five years, the contribution provided for in Article 2, $1, without However, that the liar of this one can never descend below 500 million. In case this latter figure would be reached, the price of public services, included in Article 2, $2, would also be proportionally lowered.

as provided for in Article 2, paragraph 1, an amendment will be made to Article 544 of the Civil Code, with the aim of regulating rights of property, henceforth referring to buildings, with the exception of all other property, built or unbuilt land, and movable property all other owned objects, including the buildings built fixed to the ground. A special bill will determine the terms of this modification (project g 1).

Article 6. – The collection of variable income included in Article 2, Z 2, will be regulated by special laws, as will to be said under the title HI.

TITLE II

LAND CONTRIBUTION

Article 4, – The land register of France shall be revised and amended Completed.

Art. 2. – A law shall determine the taxable area in distinguishing between built-up land and unbuilt land.

Article 3. – The fixed and indispensable contribution to be ensured annually the operation of national services will calculated to a maximum figure and for a period of twenty-five years, as stated in Title I, Article 2, paragraph 2, point 4,

DOCUMENTS 457

Art. #. – In the event that the variable products, after having allowed the planned five-year reduction, would cease to authorize the maintenance of this tax relief, the amount of the five previous years can be applied again, without however, never exceed the established maximum of twenty-five years.

Article 5. – The total fixed contribution will be borne in the proportion of six-fifteenths for built-up land and of nine-fifteenths for undeveloped land, and this by department-by municipality.

Article 6. – To distribute the total of The fixed contribution will be taken into account based on the number of hectares. taxable income and population density; after which one will divide the resulting quota between the built-up areas and first and nine-fifteenths for the second.

Article 7. – The distribution among the municipalities will be made of a-following almost the same rules,

Article 8. – The built-up land will be subdivided into ten classes, the first five including residential premises, the five others including so-called "work" premises. The contingent communal will be distributed proportionally to the cube of the cons-instructions, so that the tax on residential premises is equal to one and a half times that of the "work" premises.

Article 9. – Undeveloped land shall also be subdivided in ten classes: the first four comprising the land of large-scale agriculture, the three seconds containing the forests and the medium-sized farmland, the last three including the uncultivated land. The municipal quota will be distributed proportionally between these three series of ten classes, in a way to ensure that the tax per hectare decreases in the proportions of 3, 2 and 4.

TITLE III

VARIABLE PRODUCTS

Article 4 – To ensure the collection of variable products
he 26

408._ DOCUMENTS

as provided for in Article 2, paragraph 2, the drafting of laws will proceed
The following special cases:

4. Law regulating foreign trade and setting taxes customs, classified as matters of national interest, based on equality of trade,

2 Laws granting the following monosols to the State:

A. Transport by rail, canals, etc.

B. Air and ground communications, telephones, etc.

C. Lighting by gas, or by electricity, or by any other means discovered or to be discovered, and water service.

Art. %. – The following burger products are maintained:

49 Tobacco and powders.

20 Posts and telegraphs.

3° Products from forests and estates.

&o The products currently listed under the pro- category various products reduced by all revenues eliminated by the ar-Article 4 of this law.

Article 3. – A tax will be created on stock market gambling and others, which will be placed under the direct supervision of the State. A special law will determine the amount and method of collection of this tax, which is classified as being of national interest.

Article 4. – A tax on foreigners shall be created: a law special will determine the quantum and mode of perception of this tax is described as being of national interest.

Article 5. – An insurance tax will be levied for 25 years.
annually, on all French adults aged 21 to 45;
It is and remains fixed at one franc per person. A special law will determine the use of the sums thus collected, their management by the Bank of France and will determine the following proportions before which the disabilities of children will be insured nurses and old people.

TITLE 1V

PROVISIONAL ESTABLISHMENT OF THE LIQUIDATION BUDGET. RECIPES

Article 1, – Until the cadastral information is corrected

DOCUMENTS 459

The current matrices will serve as the basis for calculating the contribution on land.

Art. %. – Budgetary estimates calculated for 4886 are maintained for the chapters listed above, except the reductions motivated by the new legislation and which will Further details will be provided later.

Article 3. – Consequently, budgetary revenues are assessed as follows: 40 Fixed contribution, maximum established for twenty-five years: 2,250,000,000 francs; 2° Pro-Variable products valued at 3,774,000,000 francs; a total of 6 million 24 million liards, according to the table below:

Contributions on undeveloped land..... 4,350,000,000

_ = built... 500,000,000 | 2,250,000,000

Products of the wanes (Estimate of 4836)....., 400,000,000

Railways, canals, etc..... growth 444,000,000

Gas or electric lighting and CAUX service.,+,° 400,000,000

Bank of Franteeus. assist lasts 10,000,000

Tobacco and powders.....,..... Sierre TT ë 400,000,000

Posts and telegraphs (1886 budget), telephone (memorandum)... 165,000,000

Revenue from forests and estates (budget of 4886)... 40,000,000

Miscellaneous products (1886 budget).....,..... or. 80,000,000

Tax of 2 0/U on stock market games, etc. 4,600,000,000

Tax on foreigners (500,000 shares).....,,:.....0....,e 225,000,000

Insurance rating (10,000,000 odds).....,.....,.....0..., 10,000,000

Toaliisuiisee 000.00. 6.02%. 00. UU0

Article 4. – Throughout the liquidation process, the budget Expenditure may not exceed a maximum of three thousand liards annually; the annuities available as a result of the Extinguished capital will be added to the surplus of revenues, in order to be able to repay, i.e. forty billion in twelve years and a half, or eighty billion in twenty-five years, conformed according to the statements that will be drawn up based on the indications following:

Article 5. – The debts to be repaid are: 4° All the annuities or rents recorded in the general ledger, except for annuities life annuities and pensions; 2 the sums representing the redemption of all monopolies granted to the State under this law.

Article 6. – A special law will determine the capital amount debts to be repaid will be collected and repaid.

Interest will be paid until the date of repayment.

Article 7. – The distribution of the maximum contribution plus high figure at % billion 250 million, on 244,893 hectares of developed land and 49,484,677 hectares of undeveloped land, gives the following averages for the whole of France:

For one are of built-up land...ssoscccs.s 36 fr. 75

For one are of undeveloped land...,..... Its 0 fr. 2747

Article 8. – Algeria and the colonies shall be governed by laws special.

Article 9. – The following are repealed: All laws, all decrees and all regulations contrary to the requirements of the pre-sente loi.

S IT. – ORGANIZATION OF APPROPRIATION AND EXCHANGE AGREEMENTS BETWEEN THE PRIVATE INDIVIDUALS.

EXPOSED

The Civil Code, entirely based on the principle of pro-
The state-owned property only provided for the cooperative association between the capitalist sovereigns; the mass of the proletariat is doomed to salaried employment.

As long as this organization exists, the levies parasites and disruptors, the capitalist prelibation rebuilt-will incessantly bring about the hoarding and accumulation that ruin the individual and jeopardize the lives of nations.

French citizens are now considered no longer
as sovereign owner, but also as a shared user, It has become essential to define rationally the principal contracts which are the subject of Books I and II of the Code civil.

The law, the text of which follows, focuses on the fundamental principles mental and completely outline the plan according to which they will all ancillary provisions may be modified.

It regulates: 4° perpetual use; 2° temporary use; 3° the individual work; 4° random operations.

Wherever the state acts like an individual, it is subject to provisions of the said law, which are combined in such a way that they are consistent with the forecasts of the liquidation budget-tion above exposed.

BILL

TITLE I.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Art. 4. – Appropriation is the right to enjoy French soil. Spanish, to enjoy and dispose of movable or fungible things and in complying with the laws.

Art. 2. – The right to enjoy the land classified as real property the exclusion of everything else belongs only to the French citizens; it is established by a long-term deed issued by the national administration.

Article 3. – The act by which one or more citizens tend Balancing their social utilities is an exchange.

Article 4. – The means of exchange is metallic currency. imposed by the State; the stipulated quantity is called the tax.

Article 5. – Exchange contracts or agreements are instruments stipulating and fixing the obligations of the contracting parties; they have the force of law in everything that is not prohibited by the general laws.

Article 6. – The French nation does not grant recognition, sanction and legal protection only for exchange contracts having for the purpose of:

40. To regulate the perpetual use of a movable thing or the acquisition of a fungible item;

20 To regulate the temporary use of a movable thing;

3. To regulate the temporary cooperation of individual work individually or collectively.

Article 7. – Coinage minted by the State is neither a thing

al 26.

269 DOCUMENTS

movable property, nor fungible goods, therefore it cannot be the main purpose of none of the contracts listed above; Its unique role is to serve as a means of exchange.

TITLE IT

OF PERPETUAL USE.

Article 1, – The contract that governs perpetual use of a movable thing or the possession of a fungible thing is a sale; the sale includes the free disposal of the property stipulated.

Article 2. – The sale is only perfected when the contracts They agree on the nature and price of the thing sold.

Article 3. – Any movable object, any fungible thing may to be the dog of a sale.

Art. #. – Land, the only legally valid real estate, cannot be sold due; however, the emphyteutic title that governs the usufruct is treated like movable property, but its possession is inseparable from real and personal enjoyment, barely nullity; it is therefore forbidden to temporarily transfer, that is to say- to say to lease a long-term lease.

Article 5. – The sale of a long-term lease entails The tenant has full right to substitute themselves for the tenant in the burdens, expenses advantages of the transferor. The price will be calculated based on the number of annuities of the land contribution previously paid to the State, counted from the first year of the emphyteutic lease without, however, ever being able to exceed seven times the amount of the annual contribution

Article 6. – The sale of a building will always entail the transfer of the leasehold title relating to the land which supports.

Art. 7. – Transfers of possession may be made as an inheritance or free gift.

"Ta u TH

DOCUMENTS 463

TITLE IT

FOR TEMPORARY USE:

Article 4. – The contract that governs the temporary use of a Movable property is called rental.

Article 2. – The law expressly prohibits the rental of a movable property for an indefinite or perpetual period and that of things that are fungible in any capacity whatsoever.

Article 3. – The lease agreement obliges the lessee to return the thing rented at the expiration of the time for which custom has been conferred. The user is only liable to the lessor for damages classified as abusive by law.

Article 4. – The price of renting a building, whateverconch shell: house, factory, hangar, workshop, arranged or equipped tooling any other movable and non-fungible object comprises two elements comments:

40 An annual sum representing the repayment of cost of creating the rented item;

20 An annual sum representing the cost of maintenance,
the management or administration fees for the rented item,

ART. 5. – When it concerns a building, dwelling, etc., the annual usage price will be calculated in such a way as to amortize
the original cost over a period of 25 years at a rate of 4% per annum (annuity 6.4042 0/0;.

Article 6. – Maintenance expenses remain the responsibility of
of the lessor; the land contribution established by law on the built-up areas will be distributed among all users of a construction, in proportion to the rental price paid by each of them.

Article 7. – Any lessor who, by means of annuities plus as stipulated above, will have received reimbursement for the cost of Ja cons-rented construction, will no longer be able to receive for its administration fees administration, management, etc., that 30% of the original cost and this by year. | |

Article 8. – Every user shall always have the right to stipulate that after twenty-five years of regular use and payment:

464 DOCUMENTS

to bind, possession of the leased building will remain with him acquired. In this case, he will be ipso facto subrogated to the rights and The landlord's responsibilities will be covered, and the long-term lease will be transferred. The contract thus stipulated is transferable by inheritance in the direct line, but cannot be transferred without consent from the landlord.

Article 9. – The rights reserved to the user by the preceding article tooth are only applicable when he uses all of the rented buildings; in no case will the tenant of a fraction will be able to become the owner of the leased portion after twenty-five years. However, if there is an agreement between all users of a under the same construction, a collective act can be drawn up and the the community will be able to exercise the same rights as if the lease had been granted to a single user for the entirety of the cons- In this case, the contract relating to the fraction will be trans- miscible by inheritance in the direct line, but not may be transferred without the landlord's consent.

Article 40. – In all the cases mentioned above, the right acquisition is inseparable from real and personal enjoyment. neat and this under penalty of nullity.

Article 44. – When, as a result of collective intervention as above, the ownership of a building will have changed of the holder, the community will automatically become responsible towards the State of the emphyteutic contribution stipulated by the law, without the transferring holder ever being able to be sought both with regard to the contribution and with regard to the costs.

Article 42. – The lessor has no lien on the furniture of its user based on their annual claim. However, the usu. ger who will have missed more than one of the stipulated deadlines in the lease agreement without paying the stipulated sum, will be forfeited of his rights and may be summarily expelled by the courts. Under no circumstances may the expelled person be executed for a sum exceeding the value of two installments, regardless of the duration of the rental.

Article 43. – When the lease agreement relates to movable property other than buildings, excluding by As a consequence of any long-term lease, the rental price The annual report must include the depreciation of the leased item in three parts. years at least and five years at most, at a rate of 2 4/2 0/0 of its original value (1). In this case, the depreciation is complete will automatically grant the user possession of the rented item by him. However, he is forbidden from transferring his sister without the landlord's permission.

Art. 44. – To establish the creation value of the ebiete furniture that could be the subject of a usage agreement, a certificate of origin will be drawn up establishing their cost price; this certified act, under the civil and criminal responsibility of The holder will be verified and stamped free of charge by the chamber. trade union of the competent and integrated professional body within the con- lease agreement under penalty of nullity.

Article 45. – Movable objects whose use is authorized by law Rental properties include: buildings of all kinds, houses, factories, hangars, workshops, machines, tools, trolleys, cars, boats, musical instruments, furniture, books, motive power natural, strength derived from domestic animals, and gene- Generally, any object whose use can last more than five years Without necessarily leading to its automatic destruction.

TITLE IV.

INDIVIDUAL WORK

Article 4 – The act of contributing, through personal work, to the realization of a social utility constitutes an exchange ct gives rise to a cooperation agreement.

Article 2. – All cooperation gives, to the one who provides it, the right to demand in return a minimum price representing its proportional share in the totality of the means of exchange existing at the beginning of the year in which it contract. This proportional share has the day as its unit. The legal workday contains 7 hours; each additional hour contributes to forming 4/7 of an additional day; the month contains 256 working days and 300 working days per year.

Article 3. – To establish the proportional shares, one subtracts chera of the census population, miners and the elderly whose disabilities are the responsibility of the social community and Furthermore, minors not yet subject to compulsory labor; the The number thus obtained will serve as the divisor of the total expressing the quantity of money minted and in circulation at the beginning of the year; the quotient will express the minimum average of e-chance to obtain by the worker in compensation for his annual work. This annual minimum divided by 300 will give the daily price.

(4) Annuity: 3 years; 35 fr. 01372 0/0.
» 5 years; 21 fr. 52469 0/0,

(For example, if the population counted as described above the top gives a useful balance of 45 million and if the total of Pre-market currencies amount to 45 billion, the minimum of The annual means of exchange will be one thousand francs per person, or 3.33 francs per day).

Art. &. – The holder of an agricultural emphyteusis who will Those who use someone else's labor must always pay the minimum as stated above; he will add the expense of this item and its other expenses in the figure representing annually the contribution-Earth's contribution. The total thus obtained will represent its contribution. From the gross product generated annually, he will deduct all first the advances represented by his contribution, then a share equal to one third of the net products: the remainder, i.e., two-thirds, will be distributed equally among all cooperative members in proportion to their working days.

Article 5. – The holder of an industrial emphyteutic lease or his the tenant will, as has just been said, make a large portion of his contribution annual calculation, its industrial costs and the minimum reserved to the Co-operators to obtain their annual contribution. After which from the gross product, also annual, he will deduct the amount of this contribution: plus an amount representing a quarter of the product net; the remaining $\frac{3}{4}$ will be equally distributed among the cooper-raters in proportion to their working days.

Article 6. – The state, acting as manager or having managed the monopolies granted to it by law, will be subject to same regulations regarding the minimum price and the profit sharing; however, as he does not pay himself- Even if he made no contribution, he will still be no less bound by it. to include in its annual contribution a figure equivalent to half of the contribution that would be imposed on individuals and to calculate as mentioned above.

Article 7. – When businesses, works, operations, etc. of whatever nature they may be, will require a supply prior arrangement of means of exchange or currencies in proportions deemed to exceed the strength of a single individual, he It will be lawful to provide for this supply by creating a Company.

Article 8. – Under no circumstances shall the metal supply thus combined will not constitute the company that owns the exclusive rights to the profits; consequently, the distributions between the cooperatives Noi-societal tors will be made in accordance with the articles &, 5 and 6 of this title and according to the distinctions there indicated.

Article 9. – Companies may create securities worth representation of money collected for a social purpose; These securities will be registered, transferable and transmissible by simple endorsement and strictly at par with the sum therein expressed, barely, for offenders, of legal proceedings Rectional. |

Article 40. – The titles just mentioned in Article 9 are considered by law neither as movable property nor as fungible goods; their negotiation is only lawful in accounting, without the price reproducing the marked value, As has just been said, it includes neither amortization nor rights of use. Their possession only confirms the right of the titu-current area to participate in beneficiary distributions,

OF THE GAME

Article 4. – Any negotiation that does not have as its object the-change of a movable thing or fungi or transmission The enjoyment of an emphyteutic lease is qualified as a game.

Any trading in securities or instruments created under the Articles 7 and following of Title IV, and which will not end at at the moment, either by a payment in cash or by an obligation The formal agreement signed with the seller by the buyer is qua-Lified game.

468 DOCUMENTS

Any means of distributing money among individuals originating from combinations due to chance is qua-Lified game.

French

English

Full text of " Historical banditry; Speculation under the Third Republic 1870-1887 "

See other formats

1a111111p11

The AGIOTAGE

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC

WORKS BY THE SAME AUTHOR

The Kings of the Republic, a history of the Jewish quarters

(New annotated and enlarged edition, 1888), 2 volumes, 7 francs.

The Next Revolution (1886) 2.50 francs

High Finance and Revolutions (new edition, revised and enlarged) (1888), 1 volume 3 fr. 50

Letters from a Marseillais on the Universal Exhibition from 1867, with engravings (1867), 1 volume 5 fr.

Venality in Journalism (brochure) » » 25

In preparation:
HISTORICAL BRIGADES

A FOURTEEN-CENTURY HISTORY

Divisions of the work:

I. — SALIC PERIOD.

II. — FEUDAL PERIOD.

III. — MERCANTIAL PERIOD.

IV. — AGIOTIC PERIOD.

This last period includes the following subdivisions:

Speculation under the Bourbons (1610–1774).

– during the REVOLUTION (1774–1804).

– under Bonaparte and the Restoration (1804–1830).

– under the Orléans (1830–1852).

– under the Second Empire (1832–1870).

Coming soon:
SOCIALIST ANALYSIS (Elementary Lectures).

the iris. – liiip. V. Levé, rue Cassette, 20.

HISTORICAL BRIGADES

AUGUSTE CHIRAC

FINANCING

THE THIRD REPUBLIC

1870–1887

VOLUME ONE

"In a monograph
"centuries, the 19th century" should
"to call itself the century of the es-
"Croquiierie."

Kings bind the Republic.
Volume 1, page 19.

PARIS

NEW PARISIAN BOOKSTORE

ALBERT SAVINE, PUBLISHER

18, RUE DROUOT, 18

(BONE/

NOTICE
TO THE IGNORANT OF THE OFFICIAL WORLD

a few types.

To those ignorant of the genre:

Paul Leroy-Beaulieu, Jules Simon, Léon Say, Ribot, Jules Ferry, Edouard Hervé, Frepel, BuiFet, Chesnelong, JolinLemoine, Passy,

And so many others whose names I have scattered to through this work...

All, or sub-dervishes of Moloch-Baal, or assistant veterinarians of the golden calf.

I recommend meditating on this book.

"When it came time to give the go-ahead for printing this opinion, I was points to an article in Le Figaro, entitled "Israel's Money".

It says: "The banker is Jewish, but the bank is French (!!)" It also says: «I don't believe that one "may be an enemy of the Jews passionate enough to pont- to see you assert, against all evidence, that the power of "Capital mobilized since the re-emancipation of the Israelites has been

"ANTI-NATIONAL!"

And this is signed Henri Fouquier!!!

Oh! Fouquier, is that really you?

Would the shock of the present moment have therefore made you... titled the strange psychological state in which I have found in Marseille, "at the prefecture, in 1871, when, at the mo- where I was going to return to Paris and wanting to take charge of a commission, you had to confess to me that "you had "I've even forgotten your apartment number."

NOTICE

Yes, indeed, the great freedom of my adjectives appalling these esteemed gentlemen, inspired in them the thought of declaring me "ill-mannered" ^ by pre-saille, I warn them to please not to rush.

Placed in Falternative to denounce them, or a vice or an infirmity, I leaned towards intimacy; but otherwise, and if they insisted on

"Ignorant"—I would be forced to write "deceitful!"

Some, reading these lines, will not fail not to be alarmed by what they will call my "Arrogance".

"What!" they will exclaim, "Do you really think so?"
to have a monopoly on science?

We need to come to an agreement.

Of all social wealth, the only one that he
It is impossible to monopolize, that's Science!

So, have you currently forgotten to the same degree?
the history of your country?

Now listen: I've written a good part of it.
In this century, I am no one's enemy and I do not of racial war; well, I assure you in the name of the evdence, that "the Israelite capital, for more than a hundred years, has never been anything but anti-national and anti-French.

I now understand your care to avoid all my books. I don't believe you intend to be... unpleasant (and why would you like it?), but it must be done that the Jews have terribly subjugated you to you to have inspired both your article of June 3rd, and the perpetual forgetting historical evidence that I have provided in response to your thesis.

m

Every man, energetically selfless,
Whoever wants to seek and know will acquire certain knowledge.
He will reveal the truth; having it, he will divulge it.

So no monopoly is possible!

But the search for truth is arduous and the dangerous propagation; these are things that individual selfishness always discourages.

That is why the pontiffs, the leaders,
The privileged members of society are unaware.

That's why, when they see a
In truth, they cynically stifle (and I know).

And that's why, while pointing them out
I deny them the right to contradict my book.
if, previously, they did not, like me,
com/pté the 'posts of the long and arduous road'
at the end of which I, myself, found the truth.

Certainly not! I don't claim a monopoly. of science; but I want to state loudly my prophecy of not wanting to domesticate his Observations; therefore, far from trying to direct it /lQ On the contrary, he humbly declares to me his obedient servant!

His domination, that is the only Caesarism, the
the only dictatorship I accept; and if it supports me—
So, it's that, alone, she gives me the the notion of why and how; it's because that it formulates laws that have never been used

IV NOTICE

care^to be inevitable, nor to be acclaimed, nor to suffer the insult of a parliamentary vote.

Finally, it is because the whole of nature and The entire universe obeyed, without the concourse of the lowest policeman, for example, at:
f = '7ri/jL, synthesis of pendulum oscillations, well before this summary was translated thus by "the mere vibration of the diaphragms"
"from this reservoir of ethereal electricity that we
"It calls for the brain of a scientist."

However, I also know that I am from a material subject to deterioration; it is therefore It's possible that a hardware failure, a "loss to the land," had the opportunity to proto conduct "into the interplay of guiding threads which,
"From my brain, they go to my pen."

That is why, if another brain, having past where I've passed, points out a missing post in my counts; an operation, a erroneous formulas, capable of destroying my conclusions, oh! then, but only then, I I will bow down, because it will still be the SCIENCE itself will order me to do so.

I challenge anyone to contradict me and I remain at their disposal Position, pen in hand, words on the lips!

The Author.

TO BENOIT MALON

To you, my dear friend, comes the idea pre-the beginning of this book, which was initially the sequel to your striking account of the pillaging committed from 1715 to 1870, and which has, today, become very developed through your fault...!

Indeed, while, in the Revue socio-list, you had abandoned me across the immondices after 1870, while, on the way made-health, I found all those I had elsewhere monographs, and suddenly, the chain-
The unfolding of events has made my eyes the solidarity of actions and that the syntheses shortened versions of my other works have made me

TO BENOIT MALON

to glimpse the possibility of "detailing" this historically, what I had only summary.

From this emerged a plan encompassing fourteen centuries, that my life may prove insufficient to execute, and which, prudently, I begin by the end, that is to say by the contemporary period raine ^ .

However, in writing this book, something happened... something strange to me: an im- disgust
A profound, invincible power invaded me; and I finds decidedly that anyone with a sense of honor must escape from this mi-place of leaders^ where some are crystallized in their race and the others in their vice.

Whether a hardened brute or an aspiring brute, all the Modern leadership is contained in those two words.

I don't know how the Darwinists managed-will manage my case; I don't know which that I deny all my origins.

Some people are already claiming that I am Jewish;
Why? You'll laugh! Because there are Persia, a city called Shiraz

To which I will simply reply that I am Aryan and very Aryan; that there are in Lozère and in

- See pugcs 18 and 19.

TO BENOIT MALON

Corrèze, two small towns bearing my name; that the cradle of my family was the ancient Rouergue; that Chirac means in Greek 7nai7i of rescue (Xelpa/.o;); that, if I am to believe an archivist of I don't know what rank, but who wrote a novel historical title: The Brabcinqons, one of the mine would have killed Richard the Lionheart at seat of Chalus; that Saint-Simon, five hundred Years later, another described him as a great scholar of my family who lived in the intimacy of Fénelon, de Montesquieu and Philippe d'Orléans; that just yesterday all my people were stuffed,
who in the Church, who in the magistracy, who hold civil service positions or work in consulates and that all of this should have made me a reactionary tionary, a cleric, an inveterate capitalist, while I am a "socialist".

The strangest thing is that I apparently was.
long before I knew it, astonished, alone-
"lying, in my contempt for the golden belts" that I was constantly offered^ to hear to call me "imbecile" because I refused them!

Rref, you're the former shepherd who became the learned writer who have decidedly fixed me then, assuring me that I was real-ment ((a socialist).

For me, the name doesn't change the thing and it

TO BENOIT MALON

this society where, to become infamous, it suffices, not to be, but to aspire to be undirigiant and that rare, infinitely rare, are those who, venturing into this environment, escape from contagion.

I have demonstrated this in this new book;
He will also be attacked, that is to say, stifled.
perhaps even more so than his elders.

I'm placing him in your care; defend him.
Just a little, please.

Yours sincerely.

Auguste Chirac.

June 1888.

SECULAR SOLIDARITIES

CENTURIES-OLD SOLIDARITY

1. – The historical routine.

Summary. – Stock trading. – A thesis. – The scientific mind Science. – Conservation. – What is governing?
– The finger of God. – A hero. – Art! – Life Normal. – Brutal and cruel.

Make no mistake: although, by its title,
This work may seem special, doctrinaire or Although choral, it is nonetheless a story, in the sense the highest of the word.

I intend, in fact, to analyze everything historically.
a diet and if, instead of writing, as on the computernaire, at the beginning of my book: History of the Third Republic, I wanted to highlight the word Speculation, because this word characterizes all the era of which I will be studying one of the periods.

i) Moreover, as I will show in chapter

THE AGROTION

Next, each evolution of humanity has a characteristic, that is to say a particular formula, according to which the great system of parasitisms.

However, although over the centuries this system has created a sense of solidarity, I don't believe that, so far, we realized to what extent the series of events denounced the link between actions.

From this arose a false notion of historical work. We compile, we chat, we get lost in useless digressions and, imitating the ridiculous litigant-cooked by Racine:

We say very calmly things that we don't care about. And the big gallop runs when one is at one's best.

So that after having devoted one hundred pages to narrate the minute details of a battle, one gives two lines to the study of its true causes and its true results, unless (which happens more often) (dinary) one cannot absolutely avoid them to research.

With this approach, we can easily come to present a story, memoirs, or tales, but not a story following the true meaning of the word and the serious scope of the idea.

If history is a narrative, as Voltaire said, it is necessarily something other than a simple nomenclature—the nature of the facts, which would be chronology.

Now, a story implies a picture; but, as soon as it There's a size, there's a point of view, and as soon as there's From a point of view, there is a perspective, a goal. a will, a thesis.

That is why, simply by reading a history book

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 3

story, we can describe its author, discover it royalist, republican, religious, secular, etc., and we can thus follow the entire range of political systems ticks, like all the nuances of beliefs theological without ever being wrong.

scientists, which have this immense advantage not to vary with political or religious sects gieuses, nobody thought of it.

Also, even assuming perfect probity of historical processes, even admitting, as being practiced, Cicero's precept that "the historian
"I dare not speak a falsehood, nor hide a truth," I argues that, without the help of science, we cannot will produce only incomplete stories, therefore which are false and therefore incapable of illuminating the new generations.

But what good is writing history if it doesn't have to not to be a teaching /

What would be the point of preserving the souto come from human ugliness or beauty, if these beauties, like these uglinesses, should not serve-warning message?

We must, that's certain, have all our discussions social issues, all our internal squabbles, and selfishness, to the partisan spirit that has dominated historians.

We do not have a true understanding of the past.
The same fact, materially accurate, was invoked, poof! to support the most opposing doctrines.

Blaise Pascal owes his scientific mind to having struggled against the invasion of dogma purely religious: he had ancient stories, a me-fiancée, whose thought he let out:

THE AGROTION

"Any story that is not contemporary is "Suspicious."

Alas! What would he say, if he were living today, in this century of telegraphic and telephone electricity, in finding himself powerless to acquire, at the last minute of a day, the absolute certainty of a fact that would have passed by first thing in the morning?

The fact, insofar as it consists of attributing an act To a man, it is insignificant. What matters is the result.

Whether told or not, published or not, they exist; they are: because, at the same time, without a slogan, without prior agreement, a mass of people to which he it would have been physically impossible to blow simultaneously consistently the same inspiration, the feelings, the cons-tate in each of its units.

That is the starting point of historical truth.

It follows from the above that the historian must to have a criterion constantly present in one's mind.

While reviewing the sequence of events, he must to be concerned with continually extracting the link apparent and invisible link and, to achieve this, it He only needs to draw inspiration from the following dilemma:

"Is the goal of conscious man to disappear?"

"as quickly as possible in the Universe by giving way to the "Unconscious animal nature"! Or, on the contrary,

((to ensure its reproduction and perpetuation, by em-and using its scientific faculties to balance, between "them, the natural forces and the human forces"

"Who are united in solidarity in the universe?"

• My socialist analysis. 'Socialist Rë.yiE of July 1887 (page 6.)

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC

The answer is not in doubt: man is con-servant of his life; therefore, the total number of humans, that is to say, humanity is conservative of its existence-tence.

From then on, everything that, in successive facts-recorded, appears linked to partial destruction specific or general, is contrary to the goal of humanity nity and the cause of these destructions, being careful-The researched and highlighted ceremony must be signaled to the horror and revulsion of generations futures.

What I say about humanity in the universe is true by narrowing the frames; I can lower the range of spaces, examine successively: Europe, a nation, a province, a city, a family, an individual and, step by step, related-singing about the links, denouncing the solidarities, going back up, to the thinnest of the elements from which they were composed its causes.

History, written under the light of this criterion, leads to unexpected conclusions. It doesn't take long not to discover that most of the stories are well known were written as if by savages; that all That which has tended to destroy humanity has been exalted there.
while everything that, on the contrary, tended towards the to perpetuate, while improving it, has been either hidden or denied-killed or vilified.

Constantly forgetful or even ignorant of this truth: that "governing a nation is, sim-Simply, organize the solidarities of man and
"of nature, within a given number of hectares,
"for the benefit of a given number of beings," the historians

THE AGROTION

nothing has gone to great lengths to deify assassins, to ho-to arrest the thieves, while the robbed and killed were condemned.

Let's take France as an example:

In how many different ways have we not dressed the material fact of the Saint Bartholomew's Day Massacre, the the material fact of the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes, the material facts of the 1993 massacres, the facts ma-Materials from December 1851 and May 1871?

Religious fanaticism, political fanaticism, the Vordre fanaticism, those are some sonorous names
These acts of ferocity have been celebrated!

With the criterion of human conservation,
Everything changes:

The Saint-Barthélémy festival becomes a liquidation.
social^ Y ruined state and half the population exhausted, they sought to create resources through the murder and pillage, and, after reducing the number consumers believed in the existence of more of supplies!

The Revocation of the Edict of Nantes? Even reductionconsumption figures; not to mention the deaths, 200,000 men, some say; 500,000, say the

Shortly afterwards, as the workload decreased, so did you, the Provisions were insufficient; hence the wars which more killings followed!

The massacres of 2003? Another suppression of consumers; wealth had become concentrated In the treasuries, famine was among the people; liquidation by the destruction of property and land grabbing of their property: a social catastrophe.

1851 and 1871? Same procedure: in the name of order,

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC.

of religion, family, and property!
Same causes: same effects.

And I can continue like this, reviewing all the eras: national or international, the Liquidations will be called revolution or war. and the further I progress, the more the documents are becoming... tains, plus the scientific processes of parasitism will spread out clearly, eventually even being able to to be measured with mathematical precision; but then the finger of God, or Eternal Providence ^dence, the usual clichés of historians, appear what they are in reality, that is to say, an ima- fable ginée by a few thousand bandits who had found the means of living off human flesh, thanks to the igno- rancid in which they systematically hold Peoples and individuals plunged into it!

So far, I've had to generalize my examples by summarizing vast periods.

However, like the lies of history are less impressive in their recounting of great events general than by that of small particular facts, I I want to show how they often manage to do from a vulgar criminal to a magnanimous hero.

The process here is elementary; it consists of narrating acts of bravery, to be called spoils of war, a series of pillages without excuse, and to be silenced, carefully, the peaceful flights, skillfully pra- targeted by the same hero.

Thus, taking France as an example, only after Clocis, it would be easy for me to demonstrate that his pre-consisted of transforming the brutal flight on the large routes of skillful scams in the cities.

1.

10. Speculation

I could even take the big ones one by one kings, great captains, and great lords, tear off the mask that all have put on them
a horde of sycophantic historians and thus exhibit, to the reader's astonished eyes, a whole series of ban-said, murderers, thieves and forgers, some of whom-
Some are venerated in churches, where, as saints,
They have a statue.

I cannot resist the desire to give an example particular :

Around the middle of the sixteenth century, at the time when Luther exposed religious greed, the masters France, gorged with plunder, smelled the soil trembled beneath their feet. Fear made them, no repentant, but more cautious, these brutes, for to soften, they had the idea of civilizing crime.
a means of hypocrisy.

Indeed, as much as the lords had stolen open-compared to previous centuries, they experienced as much as they did, Suddenly, the need to hide their looting.

Among these converts, I must mention a famous hero, or, at least, presented as such by historians: Constable Anne de Montmorency. This honest mansonnage, endowed with a royal fortune, and possessing, among other properties, the famous Château d'Ecouen, built on his orders, had employed all means to increase his wealth. Now, I'm going to quote one of these means, that a public prosecutor today would describe it as: theft preceded by blackmail.

A governor of Brittany, the Count of Chateau-Briand had been tasked with directing the employment of funds from an extraordinary tax, stolen by the province, to carry out work could go all the way back to Rennes. That was a considerable and highly useful work; what does it do? The count? He collects the funds and uses them for his own purposes. profit and, for twelve years, he supplemented his income area instead of widening the river.

The first president of the Parliament of Brittany, named La Pommeraye, became aware of this inlamie. Immediately, like a worthy magistrate, he went to de- to announce, not to parliament, but to the constable Anne de Montmorency: no to demanding justice and punishment, but to explain to the constable how, with a little skill, he could, sui- before the columnist's expression, to withdraw one "Huge profit."

The great warrior understands without a word being spoken; he gave the king the mission to control the acts provincial governors, while, from his On the other hand, the president will intimidate with threats Governor-thief Count of Chateaubriand. On imagine the terror of the latter upon Mont- Morency. The groundwork was therefore well laid; the province awaits further expansion of the Vilaine, but Montmorency was established, by authentic act- Tick, the governor's sole heir. History does not say not if the latter lived a long time*.

'Anne de Montmorency, this heroic-handicapped man, must have his statue in Chantilly, thanks to the Duke of Aumale who did not dare revoking his order due to exile. But isn't he striking to see the beneficiary of the "espresso key" Saint-Leu » choose, for their favorite hero, this master trickster and spend a large sum in his honor (1), - Which is typical for someone from Orléans. - What a connection! strut 1

l'a l.'AGIOTAf.K

I took this story from Eugène Bonne's beautiful book-mother: V History of the by/without, and it would be necessary that, for the whole series of French pseudo-heroes, we could re- likewise seek the true causes of facts either through ignorance or complacency.

We understand how much history is written in this way was able to mislead imaginations and distort the judgments.

in this way, and we would have to go back to Montesquieu to Tacitus to find serious exceptions.

What will I say if, from the scribblers of the historical chronicle...
Toric, I move on to the writers of the brush, of the ci-bucket, lyre, whether sung or spoken, all admitted
Are the historians of Fable any good?

How great is their responsibility! How much Haven't the poet, the painter, and the musician committed crimes?
Not deified? How many lies haven't they told?
accredited, making them penetrate, by a vibration delicious, in the most intimate depths of The conscious being?

Art! Art! Art! And with this exclamation, with This pretext, with this seduction, we have noiixi des light and whitened from darkness.

Art, that something through which man feels truly distinct from the beast, was invoked especially by the most foolish, wanting to make people believe that they were the most men.

Then, through malicious hypocrisy, where freedom of the artist, that is to say his right to innovate in the way of painting", was mixed with the freedom of the citizen, that is to say, the right to live that this one must possess, we have managed to unite these two

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 13

ideas, which, socially, have nothing in common between
They: the art and freedom!

And then it was enough to realize that a great artist shone under such a regime, to cleanse that regime of all his infamies.

Thus the century of Louis XIV, thus the century of Augustus, thus the Renaissance, thus the Middle Ages.

And swooning over Corneille or Benvenuto, before Michelangelo or before Raphael, the great brilliance of the work putting a felt vibration-mental space above cold reflection and the Overwhelming, we forgot all the destruction, all the thefts, all the murders, all the infamies committed during the time when the artist was thickening the shadows by centralizing the light within himself.

Are art and freedom interdependent? But the art of Pharaohs were made of slavery, but the art of Aesop And Phaedrus's life was made of servitude! But the freedmen of Augustus and those ennobled by Louis XIV are of the same servitude, gilded by the majesty of the sovereign god or man!

Horace and Virgil? Two courtiers.

Didn't Racine die from a smile forgotten by Louis XIV? And isn't Boileau simply a subtitle of King's Prosecutor?

However, two men stand out: Molière, Victor Hugo.

What made Molière was the century of Louis XIV; Does this mean the perpetrator of the massacres must be exonerated? The Cévennes? What made Victor Hugo... was the The end of Voltaire and the beginning of Napoleon III: Should we canonize the century because of him?

There is more:

14. Speculation

_ _ -i

All modern palinodes are condensed in his work!

With the Legend of the Ages, with the Punishments, vibrates, for the first time, within him, the need for as-to highlight historical traditions. His major moves have shaken some legends, but how many have not Didn't they create others?

No! Art is not an excuse; splendor The existence of art does not imply the existence of social freedom, and, whatever one might say about songs that are more or less ob- Described as biblical poems, whatever one writes on the architectural wonders of the pointed arches and the steeples of ancient cathedrals, I will not forgive never, to the churches, these banks of the past, to holy books, these financial reports of the churches, the lies and the slavery, the destruction and the flights they deified.

Art, a means of grasping minds, has not no other superiority than that of having discovered the of men; but from the fact that a vibration is commune, it does not follow that it expresses the truth.

The sublime is an ardent caress of lovers;
but it was with ardent caresses that they were made,
First, they were glorified as heroes; then, most wars were portrayed as such.
civilians.

A life of passion is not a normal life:
Let us therefore no longer make the exception the rule and not let us not transport, in the cold calculation of the in-common interests, the selfish passions of the beast human.

But that's what almost everyone has done so far.
who wanted to recount things from the past.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 15

It is in this state of historical routine that I dare to undertake to recount a contemporary period period comprising 17 years (from 1870 to 1887) and to write what I call, in reality: a History of the Third Republic.

If we compare my book to those entitled Contemporary history^ are executed according to the using ordinary methods, my function will be challenged of a historian.

Some will call me a "pamphleteer," others
They will accuse me of having supported a thesis. Others Finally, not finding, in my work, a a complete list of the facts usually cited historians will accuse me of ignorance or of bias.

I will turn the accusation back on them, I am certain, moreover, that nothing that should serve to enlighten the nation on the cause of his ailments and the means of remedying them, will not have escaped my investigations.

Let others stray into uselessness, and pa-see their sentences; I, on the other hand, will be brutal, cruel Maybe, but I will definitely be truthful.

Without worship and without idols, denying the reason for being of what we call politics, which I consider-dère as the epitome of parasitism and the A summary of all the ignominies, I will follow everything leads me to the truth!

2. – The characteristics.

Contents. – Parasitism. – War. – Banditry
lic. – Feudal. – Mercantile. – Speculator. – The speculators tages. – Jewish science. – Proudhon. – Oscar de Vallée.
– An unknown island. – The chalets. – The machines. – They're devouring each other! – The archaeologist, the monkey, and the per-dog.

Each evolution of humanity, I have said more high, has a characteristic.

Given the general system according to which,
from the beginning of time to the present day, have evolved the incessantly organized struggles between Regarding men, it can be noted that, if these struggles were perpetual, there were, nevertheless, mo-modifications in their form and their instruments materials.

In other words: the destruction was cons-aunts, but their tools varied.

In reality, therefore, the eternal evil of humanity has not changed in nature; it still is and has always-days have been parasitism.

Some historians, more or less superficial, having noted the existence of this same parasitism in all of nature, having seen that since the infusoria from the blade of grass to the elephant

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 3 17

giant cedar, a whole series of "devouring" de-showed that "the smallest was always absorbed" by the largest," they concluded, referring to naturalness, then to the legitimacy of these acquisitions, and, finally, did not hesitate to invoke this legitimacy to to apply it to human organization.

But these observers didn't notice.
Strange! That animal parasitism is unconscious, that its function, entirely mechanical, consists of ensuring formation and, consequently, the perpetuation of beings, while, transported into human nature conscious, this same parasitism tends incessantly—leading to the destruction and disappearance of humanity.

They saw no more than the more civilized
The more the sation (?) expands, the more the peoples who are part of it "Affected" become devouring, and that, in their case, the art of war, benefiting from the discoveries of the science, reaches this point: that it will soon be possible to wipe out an entire nation in space.
of a day/

Parasitism is therefore exercised primarily through the destruction, that is to say, by the banditry carried out by A few against the masses.

However, one only needs to reread the nomenclature of historical facts to realize that all the national catastrophes were due to the triumph of a minority.

So that, since Clovis, for example, that is to say—to say since the time to which they go back, with more clarity or more certainty, qualitative narratives Based on historical records, we find that pest control has

18. Speculation

taking the following four forms which are characteristics of each period.

First form: Salic banditry.

The entire period from Glovis to Charlemagne, that is—that is to say from the fifth to the ninth century, is dominated through the anarchy of conquests by armed force!

It is a question of who will take the land so that it may be allodial, becomes salic and thus places its possessor above the vulgar by allowing him "to answer only to God and his sword, without having to pay tribute or homage owed to anyone."

This violent parasitism led to parasitism gentler; the owners of allodial lands yielded to benefit, that is to say royalty, a part of their lands, then little by little heredity getting involved, the gold-presents the second form.

Second form: Feudal brigandage.

There, everything becomes a duty: so many lords, as many kings. The battle, less individual, in-son-in-law, the profession of warrior and product the armed companies.

This period includes the end of the ninth century and culminates at the beginning of the fourteenth century.

Feudal anarchy tends to destroy its own system. the system and the people with it. A concentration of... A beginning based on the bourgeoisie; history calls This refers to the modern era or the era of the States General. But, in reality, it is the merchant who rises; also we see the third form appear.

Third form: Mercantile banditry.

This system developed during the fifteenth and the sixteenth century.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 19 •

England has gone online. The printing press has makes its appearance; America popularizes gold and the Florentine merchants reign in France with the Medici.

Little by little, everything is mobilized: land, houses, tra-industrial or artistic work, positions and professions, Everything is bought and sold, traded and blended together. theory of value and, consequently, of surplus-value, is established and prepares the incarnation of the qua-triem form.

Fourth form: Speculatory brigandage.

The entire seventeenth century, with Louis de Ri-Chelieu, along with Golbert's, will live by speculation and He will die the same way.

The eighteenth century will analyze evil, the acc-will be scourged for his curses, but will worship him with Philippe d'Orléans, with Louis de la Dubarry and that of Marie Antoinette, with all the farmers gé-nerals... and will die with them.

will also declare that speculation is a crime,
But, since this crime is agreeable to some leaders, it will kneel before him. Speculation will feed on all the wars of the Directory and the Empire, of all the royal cowardice, all the servility republican, of all imperialist cynicisms, to flourish in the blood of France and of Germany and tarnish the peace that will follow this last-new massacre.

The king, the emperor, the God: it's GOLD! The reli-
The theory of gold must be a science; it must be formulated.
First, says the 19th century, and it does: there is science of speculation.

20. Speculation

From then on, it was over! The century was poisoned with love and, in the most learned manner possible, he will die...

So, for three centuries, speculation has reigned in France.

Boldly exercised by kings, kings in are dead.

Cynically practiced by the subjects, the subjects are executed.

Currently, the bourgeoisie has formed itself into feudalism of metal; also it works, like the feudalism of the land, towards its destruction.

In summary, modern banditry can be subdivided into three periods, roughly spanning centuries:

Royal speculation.

Bourgeois speculation.

Financial speculation.

I only have to deal with the latter, that's why
I need to dedicate a specific analysis to it.

One of the Mamluks of high finance, not of the less fanatical, answering to the gentle name of Courtois (which would be better company if he weren't in his book entitled: "Elementary Treatise on stock market and foreign exchange operations, » the following sentence-sale concerning speculation:

"To speculate," he said, "and to add have a family resemblance."
"which has perhaps not sufficiently struck the lexicographers-
"graphs, especially remembering qnagio comes from "Italian, where it is written aggio, and what more can be added, in the {(same language, written: aggiungere. »

That's right! To speculate is to add a value, either

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 21

to a measurable thing, or to a thing that is not not.

Examples:

– I buy wheat or gold, which I then resell immediately one hundred francs more; I added a value of one hundred francs at the original value and I realize this an increase for the sole reason that wheat or metal have passed through my hands '• I speculated.

– I am becoming a dealer for a company under conditions that leave me with a profit of one hundred thousand francs; I surrender my deed of concession upon payment of two hundred thousand francs:
I speculated.

– I buy or sell, for cash or on credit, for 5 million shares, which I resell or buy back, on credit or cash, with a bonus of one thousand lion: – y'ai agioté.

– The costs of the first acquisition of an item represent five francs; this object changes hands in hand and reaches the consumer at the price of Twenty francs. – That's speculation.

So far, I have admitted the existence of a first a measure serving as a starting point; but there are numerous cases where this measure does not exist.

Examples:

– We are going to create an industrial or financial company-candle; almost immediately, on the Stock Exchange, there is a dispute promises of action, that is to say "hope

Indeed, this hope in exchange for money: – speculation.

An event is expected; if it happens, we believe on an increase; otherwise, on a decrease; I sell or I–

22. Speculation

The risk of this event in exchange for payment of argent: – I speculated.

The examples I have just given are such– common things that, certainly, the reader will open your eyes wide and exclaim:

That's speculation! Speculation? Never! That's just speculation.

And speculating is not the same as speculating!

Pure hypocrisy of language, my dear sir, pure legitimizing parasitism, as is easy to prove it.

You add: We have condemned speculation, but we have not Speculation is not tarnished!

I beg your pardon: the name has been tarnished of speculation, much speculation; indeed, As Courtois repeats: "Until the First "Empire, the subject of speculation in determinism– "The reprehensible character is born" "... was agio– "tage)): any transaction, whether cash or cash /(that eventually, on commercial paper, molières "Gold or silver, foodstuffs... "the little one "many of those who defied public opinion" "or the fury of the populace, only indulged in it" "Lured by the prospect of a considerable profit."

Let's not forget: the one whose work I'm quoting is a friend of those whom I still call today– today's speculators, whom he calls financiers and who are, in reality, kings of France!

Ho! the fury of the populace! ho! the danger! ho! Public opinion 1 But where are the snows of Autant as Clément Marot would say!

The populace? They are on their knees, begging before The Stock Exchange. Public opinion? It's mapped out, at the

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC

These are now replaced by an apotheosis!

Moreover, as I said, this century has formulated Science. And so, speculation has become beautiful. Noble, great, fruitful! Listen to Courtois:

"We find," he said, "in an Israelite author-(k lite of the last century, an appreciation of the specu-
"a manufacturer that is too close to ours for that "We did not reproduce it here": "A merchant-
This dealer is a man who trades in speculative goods.
"lation... its operations: ... trade in merchandise-
"Paper sales and trade are not base at all,"
"nothing mechanical: on the contrary, everything about it carries
"V imprint of grandeur, like that of the ge-
"No! ... he must know all nations, know
"the moment when the course of events leads there "Variations, to take advantage of them;... anticipate the "Political revolutions, in order to be ready to..."
"to take advantage of them the moment they arrive..."
"Large-scale trade therefore requires large "lights. He who does it with distinction therefore has "right to the greatest consideration; for the
"To refuse him, we must not be of our

"CENTURY AND STILL CLINGING TO PREJUDICES BARELY"
"Forgivable in centuries of barbarity."

What do you think, reader? Is it comprehensive enough?
The author of this fine program – an Israelite, as Courtois said, – wrote to Amsterdam in 1781; his name was Samuel Ricard.

However, Courtois and his friends celebrated in a fitting manner,
In 1881, the centenary of this Jewish system; result:
The crash of the Union Générale! Are you surprised, after 'Basic trailer for stock market and foreign exchange operations;

p. 152.

24. Speculation

that, to see him defend speculation, even the speculation-the incriminating act, which he defines as follows:

"So we will call, along with everyone else:
"Speculation, forward transactions made with the m-
"Attention to liquidate them only by a difference,
"whether or not we are in a position to settle them" ((otherwise. "

After that, everything is fine! And the author I quote demonstrates in many pages, heavily written:

1° That speculation is irreproachable to the point of economic view;

2° That speculation is irreproachable to the point of
from a moral standpoint, except for the potential abuses that could be made of it to the detriment of minor children.

A charming philosophical thought! False, moreover.
because here the crime is not of agiot'T but "of a-
"To exploit the weaknesses of the miners"; Courtois forgets that the governed peoples are in reality mi-nurses unable to defend themselves, against the march ascending taxes, a direct result of the works
It's all about speculation!

In any case, the breathtaking hymn composed by Samuel Ricard, the inflated praises that he Address to the man afflicted with specious leprosy, in reality constitute the best enumeration of combinations constantly pondered by the bandits that I have elsewhere in monographs.

And when I have demonstrated, in my turn, that... parasites can live on human flesh, in full France, and in the heart of the 19th century, we will look at, etfaré, this book on the Stock Exchange where Courtois explained Juda-systematically all the methods of theft and fraud.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 25

We saw that Samuel Ricard spoke about grandeur, of genius and science, in speculation; this evil-
The happy Jew believed that by decorating evildoers in this way...
He would convert his sances into virtues.

It's just like awarding a prize.
Monthyon to an assassin, under the pretext that, out number 1 at the École Polytechnique, he committed his crime by applying the Thomas Simpson formula

In this regard, I must add that the worst thing is to see "Well-intentioned" people themselves fall into a similar error.

Proudhon and Georges Duchêne, his collaborator, Did they not think to write, in the Manual of
As a stock market speculator, the following outrageous statements:

Above, they say, labor, capital, and (trade or exchange, and their inno-"Brittle varieties, there is still speculation... it is
"the intellectual design of the different processes, through which labor, credit, transport, (exchange, can intervene in the produc"tion."

I will pause my quote here to point out that of this "intellectual conception" the true name is "science"; that the initiative of the works which in the result is a "social duty" stimulated by the increasingly growing needs refined, as, perfected by science, Man rises in the hierarchy of beings. I repeat
My quote:

"By its very nature," our authors add, "specu-
"The aflation is therefore essentially random."

Yes, I would add, like lifespan or the 2

26 f/ahiotage

maintenance of human health; but this is insufficient which is necessary to justify the rationale for parasitism.
The randomness here is "natura rerum" and not a system-theme "order or ratiōne."

However, our authors add further on:

"Thus, speculation is, properly speaking "Speaking, the genius of discovery, it is the faculty "essential to the economy!..."

"Its action is universal..."

Politics itself is a variety of " production!

"It was a grand and beautiful 'speculation' that "the one who had the rice of Macedonia named gene-(('ralissimos de' of Greece against Persia... and pre-"Through the paths to Christianity!"

It's unbelievable!

It is only when we realize that this document trine, as false as it is dangerous, has been popularized under the name of Proudhon, with the assistance of the ta-slow and undeniable knowledge of Georges Duchène, that we can understand why parasitism has, even today, powerful allies, even among those who outright reject him
ment.

The only restriction that the manual deigned to include doing this involves distinguishing between legitimate speculation time and abusive speculation, f

And then, but only then, he falls with a rare energy on stock market games, strictly speaking and on the complications of scams, classified or not, which result from it.
* Speculator's Handbook, page 8.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 27

At least Proudhon, by signing his book and in Does he have an excuse for appointing his collaborator?

Yes! Maybe? It depends: if there is an excuse valid, when one is the author of the initial masterpiece-Tule: "What is property?" However, Here is a "mitigating circumstance": I find it in the preface to the third edition, under the date of December 1856 and it consists of this: that Prou-dhon states that he worked on The Order of MM. Garnier brothers; "repugnant and arduous work," he admits; after which he draws a few elin- pages celantes where he stigmatizes with his usual vigor
V. Exploitation of labor by capital.

But that's all! And the apology for the parasiticism nevertheless remains written in the rest of the book; so that having signed a work that same is equivalent to having glued to the pediment of the "temp-

The Truth.

Proudhon's signature and his preface had nevertheless, a result; they provoked a sa-
It's a very literary and academic style, but very in-sufficient, against money handlers, due to the pen of a magistrate Oscar de Vallée.

Nourished by legal conventions, having meditated Servan's speeches, having absorbed the famous In Daguesseau's memoir, this writer was concerned... cut off especially from the immoral consequences of the agio-stage.

For him, work was solitary, slow, arduous, and useful. must bring wealth.

The great wealth accumulated in a family a thousand through heredity appear to him not only devoid of any economic danger, but yet another necessity for the prosperity of nations.

28. Speculation

He doesn't see the strange resemblance between to have only the trouble of being born in order to possess ipso de facto an estate worth 30 or 40 million, and not having than an order to be placed on the stock exchange, to carry out "a "A coup" also yielding 30 or 40 million!

Chance, however, lies at the root of both fortunes.

Despite this, Oscar de Vallée is scandalized, indignified, he is carried away by the whirlwind of speculation. unhealthy practice: creating fortunes "over the course" immense.

I do not doubt the sincerity of this indignation. tion: I am even convinced of the honesty of his intentions; but this man is a magistrate, a civil servant; he noted the inferiority of the law of- before the works of speculation...

Relating Law's venality, converting to Catholicism to be appointed comptroller general, (an essential condition at the time), and, recalling that the

the judiciary, he highlights in italics the Next sentence:

"This Scotsman already knew France quite well"

TO KNOW that the guilty are hardly ever punished there WHO HAVE HELD PROMINENT POSITIONS.

That was Oscar's main concern.

Valley. He stigmatized the excesses of capitalism.
anarchic; and of anarchy? Good God! when Was socialism rumbling? When Proudhon frightened it by putting bourgeois society on trial? No, he

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC

he wanted to defend this society "that he loved," he said.
he, and save her through wise warnings.

He was well aware that the Empire, of which he was the defender-sister, would succumb if the law remained trembling et inappliquée devant la omnipuissance de l'agglomateur.

The collapse of the regime, that was his terror!

Almost at the beginning of his book he writes that speculation "constantly provoking revolutions"
This is what prevents them from succeeding and is of no use.
"Basic rather than disorder."

Further on, he says:

"That's how the allure of a fortune, more "Easier to do than to imagine, because, in the most (noble part of the State, a revolution of feelings)
"which is often, not only the present, but the (source of an eccentric revolution that changes
(the face of an entire kingdom and who decide the fate (of an entire nation.)

This sentence is by Daguesseau and Oscar de 'Vallée'
the quote, noting sadly that "Proudhon said
The same thing happened to the bourgeoisie in 1857.

As for the rest, he defines speculation roughly like Proudhon. For him, everything lies in excess.
otherwise, it would involve fraud.

Now it's my turn to define speculation.

tage is "an arbitrary system of bounds" ((incessant, distorting the relative value of work, (organizing its fictitious value and leading the "peoples to their destruction, either by abbreviation" (of life, whether through internal wars)
"than external."

2.

30. Speculation

To be more precise, I will give an example—
ple which will target, at the same time, the conditions of the speculation—Proudhon's productive function and those of speculation legitimized by Courtois.

On an island unknown to geographers, ten thousand primitive men lived there; and natural—united with each other.

No roads, no rapid transport; like Dwellings: huts.

Medium of exchange: gold-bearing sand from the river main.

One day, a speculator "invented" the island. I
"I will," he said, "give these good people some housing." comfortable accommodations in exchange for the gold they find in their river.

There he is, having arrived, he first builds his own house. We are dazzled; everyone wants to enjoy this comfortable stranger; the whole island begins to at the capitalist's disposal.

— How many measures of gold do you extract per
"An?" he asked.

"Well," said the inhabitants, "about what to replace the ones that are lost; our ENT circulates between us; we trade very little with the outside; we have, in reserve, at the end of each year, about one hundred measures each to start again;
cer the following year, and, that, proportionally!
to our individual work.

— Well, said the speculator, each of you

If this costs me 50 measures of gold, I won't tell you!

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 31

I would ask for 5 measures of gold per year as a prize depending on how you use it.

"Accepted!" they cried in unison, "but it is necessary..." to count; we are grouped by family, that will make approximately 4 inhabitants per house.

"I'll count," said the speculator.

We set to work; the speculator had landed—that a strong supply of iron cottages and made of wood; the crew members were themselves assemblers and fitters; in six months, 2,500 chalets were ready to receive the 10,000 inhabitants. This therefore amounted to 20 measures of gold for the speculator. at a rate of 4 inhabitants; each of the chalets costing, as he had announced, 200 measures of gold.

It was enchanting during the first and the second year.

The third, some old men from Fîle pensè—wisely assume that, at a rate of 20 measures per year, In 10 years we would have paid back the builder; that therefore it might be better to give Immediately take the 200 measurements and then nothing more. pay afterwards.

Indeed, it had become apparent that it had been necessary to re—laughter at more gold sand washing, because, before In the chalets, we didn't spend anything on sleeping; for the island it was a new consumption of 50,000 measurements; therefore, they also had to be extracted. as if we had lost them; that being the case, and then— Since we were at work, it was better to extract, from a Suddenly, everything you need.

In short, all we had to do was find 160 measure by house; it was possible.

The capitalist was consulted:

32. Speculation

– What? You draw a winner every year tenth of your initial expense!

"That's possible," replied the speculator, "but I took on the maintenance myself; if my capital is Placed at 10%, it is subjected to 4% of the load; let's calculate,
Please, at 6 0/0.

We calculated: 20 measurements at 6 0/0 made a capital of 333 gold measures per house.

We sighed; it was as if he had climbed again paying the rent for over 16 years and we had
It was only over 8 years! Nevertheless, we resigned ourselves to it.

As for the speculator, he had spent 500,000 measures and, after having received two years of rent, or 100,000 measures, he was still receiving some 832,500, so a total of 932,500 gold measures; he had almost doubled its capital!

On the island, people worked hard; but each adding to his expenses the new housing costs, Trade increased and, where it was thought ex-to extract enough gold with three times the work, he
It turned out that seven times more work was required.

We were becoming exhausted, we were dying more often, because the ma-
There were many ladies.

Moved by this situation, the speculator addressed back to the islanders.

"You are exhausting yourselves," he told them, "let me..."
help. Here are about ten machines for extracting and... to wash; they are each worth fifty workers.
I rent them to you; you will give me a quarter of that that they will return, and you will still have a profit.

It was accepted; the ten machines worked.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC

Firstly, since each of them was worth fifty workers, the exhausted among them
They found it pleasant to rest.

In fact, with two men per machine, it was sufficient cents.

So four hundred and eighty rested pro-putting, moreover, the task of relaying the other twenty.

But, in the meantime, it was still necessary to provide for the lives of those who were unemployed. We read it.
It was fair; nevertheless, it was a new expense.
new, in addition to the rent of 1/4 of the product that had to be paid to the capitalist. It wasn't long before... to find that this quarter would have been more than enough to defila yer les quatre cent quatre huiters en va-cancer. Much better: it was discovered that, despite the machine competition^ we produced less.

Before their introduction into the construction site, five
One hundred workers produced 15,000 measures per month and, all expenses paid, 7,500 remained for the community. But, since the introduction machines, it was necessary to take, from the raw product of 15,000 measures, a quarter for capital, i.e.
3,500 measurements; therefore, 11,500 measurements remained.
On the other hand, the old pay system had been maintained.
to the five hundred workers , otherwise the machines would not have brought any improvement. Therefore, he of the remaining 11,000 measures, it was necessary to pre-levy 7,500 (five hundred workers at a rate of 15 measurements per month), but then we realized all of a sudden the community, which was receiving men-only for the general needs of the island, 7,500 measures (a large part of which was absorbed by

34 i/speculation

the fee relating to new houses), not of received more than 4,000!

It was a revelation; we had initially thought to increase the number of machines, but we had soon understood that it would be turning in a vicious circle; the capitalist would not take it less for him almost all the difference that for-control the deficit, and, unless the compensation is cut, no payment was made to workers who were resting; one does not might be enough for everything.

However, there was no room for hesitation; it was necessary.
to uphold the commitments made to the capital-list; in short, we resigned ourselves to halving the share

Meanwhile, the high cost of necessrisks to life had increased; indeed, the means trade volumes had not grown in proportion to the be-care; the work of the machines resulted in a deficit for the community and, moreover, facing of the same needs, five hundred workers had half as many resources.

Disorder, brawls, and diseases accumulated
They were. Five years later, the population had been reduced by Half, half of the houses were uninhabited.
The machines were still working, but the sand was running out; it was necessary to dig mines, crush some quartz; consequently, new tools were needed sare.

We turned to the speculator

"How simple you are!" he told them, "you are-" metal content? I'll give you some values.
lands on your lands; you will exchange them between you, while waiting for the mines to produce.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC

Gela was done.

So, on the island, as everywhere and always, the
The fever of gambling seized the men.

We played, we bet, we overbet!

It was raining: price rises! It was snowing: price falls!

11 even happened, in another form, which happened in Europe under the First Empire and which was narrated by J.-B. Say.

"At stock market time, a distant storm had "Some thunderclaps were heard. People thought..."
"that it was the cannon that announced the winning of a
"At war, the funds immediately rose." We know the rest.

Well, on the island whose story I'm summarizing, the
The sound of thunder was also mistaken for that of a cannon.
not announcing a victory, but simply,

publicly expected by the speculator.

The entire population rushed to the stock exchange and bought cash.

But the speculator was selling! He had been ready for the first storm, scientifically predicted.

Madness! Debacle! Ruin!

When things calmed down, we looked for the speculator.

He had disappeared, taking with him, quite legally Moreover, 3 million gold measures, that is to say ten years of work, and even then, if the mines weren't Not exhausted?

Thus, ten years after the island had received the benefits fruits of speculative capital, she was dead, ruined born in metal and reduced to a quarter of its population First!

36. Speculation

Then began a terrible anarchy; attempted armed incursions onto a neighboring island in order to to seize the gold-bearing sands that were lacking from then on... Gela lasted for years, at the end of the-which the people, in the rage of hunger and exasthe operation of the ruin, killed each other and devoured each other.

As for the speculator, the man of genius, the Great man! He lived luxuriously in Paris...eking with 3 million measures of gold, that is to say a%ec 30 million francs in capital!

"Et nunc erudimini."

Fifty years later, the island was once again discovery; but, this time, by an archaeologist.

This scholar walked through it; it was almost deserted.
One day, however, they were trapped, twisted in a forest deep, some dwellings of a civilized appearance-
The sights struck him with astonishment; he explored Carefully.

Nature, however, had not slowed down for a moment.

summoned, produced, reproduced, fertile mother and eternal.

The impassive, verdant trees, bursting with sap, had lengthened their leafy branches, entwining-gently but powerfully eroding the walls of planks and iron columns; under this embrace Jente, douce, enormous, the doorframes had cracked; inside the parquet floor had split under the a surge, at first timid, then indomitable, of

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 37

humble green stem launched by a neighboring oak; now this stem had the appearance of a mother branch; after the prosecutor's office, she had raised a table which once adorned the middle of the room; this tilted table and miraculously remained-naked, here against a chair, there against another branch, had thus been, for years, turning to its four feet, like outstretched arms towards a hoped-for visitor.

A monkey was nibbling while sitting on the edge of a window; a parrot, installed in a room painted in red, its cries pricked the sleeping echoes; and, Here and there, a rustling of wings, blowing in the void then suddenly falling silent in the dark, betraying what-that shy bird nestled in a dark corner-No one was frightened by the archaeologist's sudden appearance. On the contrary, the bird, the monkey and the parrot they greeted him as a friend; and what happened was that something reminiscent of the verse where Victor Hugo tells us learns that:
"The wretched pig and God looked at each other."
Only here the pig was in the guise of the archaeologist, and God was the trinity: bird, monkey and parrot 1

"What a find!" thought the member of the institute.

So he examined, calculated, searched, and surmised, then the notes lined up, small and close together, on the pages from a notebook with silver corners, which he had pulled from his pocket.

One year later, the academy of registrations and the synagogue applauded the learned report of a coreligionist, who demonstrated peremptorily that the hellish wooden constructions were already known as Ramses II

THE AGROTION

May the reader forgive me this fan-like conclusion taciturn and economic tapologist, which I have done to precede. It seemed to me that this simple form, a not very cheerful and quick was better suited to seizing his be careful not to tire her out too much.

Moreover, beneath this final irony, as in a very simplified picture of economic hardship that I attributed to an imaginary island, there are all the heartbreaking and terrible truths that I am about to follow development in France over a long period a period of seventeen years.

3. – Incubation of the Third Republic*

Summary, – Clearing. – Fruit market. – 1869.
– Regrets of the propertied class! – Imperial system. – Ter-
A remarkable discovery! – 1870. – Results. – A tour of Europe. – Between the Black Sea and the Caspian Sea. – Prussia. – Other nations. – A measure of appetites. – England! – The Vacoufs. –Hirsch. – International auction
national.

The Empire of 1852 was born of violent indignation.
slow center the parasitism of the monarchy of 1830.

She, in fact, had gone to extremes as if for pleasure Speculative passion; and so it had crumbled, stifled.
under such a mountain of garbage that clearing it had to absorb four years, that is to say the whole of the a period of hesitation that history has dubbed the second republic*.

However, the cleaning had been more apparent that it was real; large numbers had been shot or deported both accusers and victims; so that-one had to, simply, take to silence for cleanliness.

* See, in this regard, my book "Za Haute banque <» t les Révosolutions,

40. Speculation

This is so true that the speculator Moloch, who remained bloated in the capital, feeling revived by the blood popular, suddenly rushed onto the throne and went to sit next to Louis-Napoleon.

From then on, the dance of millions began again.
By 1856, things had already reached the point where they financial scandals occurred in 1837 and 1866.
stifled with great difficulty, they were bound to accuse their symsorted with those of 1847.

More cynical, if that's possible, than had been the monarchy, the Empire had poisoned all the social classes; the monarchy had its ban-
Quiers and the sponsorship system; the Empire encompassed everything within legalized anonymity; consequently, the slips of paper with stickers, where the scam is called credit, and abounded on all sides.

To give an idea of the degree of generalization to whom the passion for speculation had led, I picked up the following fact from a newspaper in 1856:

Kon, content with his ordinary job, an individual named R..., believing himself to be of high financial ability celebrants, received funds and valuables by various people and then negotiated them more or less equitably on the market. Natural-Complaints soon arose, and so...

My financier was brought before the criminal police.

I don't care about the theft or the crime; what I want The key point to remember is the observation that, among the witnesses, among the plaintiffs and even among the in-
Guilty, speculation had reached an unconscious state.

The witnesses are called; the first is an ebeniste.

The president. – Do you also go to the Stock Exchange?

V éhènistè [diVec bonhomie]. – But yes, I'm going.

The president. – Everyone's going, it seems.
seems.

The cabinetmaker. – Everyone goes there, yes, sir.

Another witness is called; this one is a charbutcher.

The president. – Say what you know.

The butcher. – Mr. bought me some docks,
He performed my operations.

The President. – So you do business at The Stock Exchange?

The butcher. – Yes, sir, certainly;
I have repeatedly begged Mr. [Name] to sell or buy
In my opinion.

The president. – So R... is a shady broker?

The butcher. – Oh no! He's doing it out of courtesy.

The president. – What is his condition?

The butcher. – HE'S A FRUIT MERCHANT!

There's no need to go any further. The other witnesses they all say the same thing; R... was considered very clever and, except for the plaintiffs, all the witnesses, who were Also, some of the defendant's clients did not seem to having lost their confidence in financial science the latter's candle, while seeing him sitting on the correctional police bench.

For them, this "incident" was persecution.
of power.

Hey! What? Couldn't we just leave them alone?
How could they make their fortune as they pleased?

"It's all about desire and competition!" ((Stockbrokers are keen to maintain their privilege; that's it)
"Everything! They were the ones who demanded prosecutions."
"Against the honest fruit grower."

How can we make these people understand that the Stock market trading is the most usurious and the most demo-Director? What, this fruit tree that's playing the downside game?
or on the rise, which sells or buys, for its clients, values like rudders – Fervor, the X radiators, the white, green, red docks, by depositing shares or bonds of che-
With a lack of iron, how will this fruit tree survive?
to sell underweight and adulterate foodstuffs?
because "that's still Vagio, that's for sure!"

And it's so convenient! You buy it for 10 francs and we sell for 100 francs^ without Hardship, without work; one lives well! But it is to the de-
If you think of others, you're a parasite!

It is clear that speculation could not thus to triumph without arousing either regrets or passion former supporters of the Orleanist regime.

Unable to bear it any longer, some rallied more or less overtly; it was so natural that the Even the patriarchs of the party were lenient.

"We rallied together, that's true; but deep down, it was "in order to penetrate the imperial stronghold and
"To be able to better then betray the garrison."

This was clearly evident in 1870.

In short, parasitism had developed so strongly that by the end of 1869, the official finances had been squandered and all sources of production dried up.

At that time, administering France was costly
as follows:

Approximately 38 million inhabitants live in a a little over 54 million hectares*, wanted to have

1 Exactly: 38,067,004 inhabitants and 54,300,141 hectares arcs.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 43

the ability to produce and consume, each according to his free abilities and material needs;
they also demanded that their collective security be assured against any possible incursion by nations

For people who might have been inspired by an honesty
Clear geometry, all of that was easy.

But, for politicians, incessantly preoccupiedcut to feed a coalition of appetites and Laziness, it was odiously complicated.

For them, however, the odious was nothing; it was the complication that was everything.

At that same time (late 1869) the capital of the nation, that is to say the sum of all means to produce: land, buildings, tools, vatheir subscriptions, etc., counted towards a sum 162 billion francs, in round figures.

But those 162 billion were entirely owned (by a tiny fraction of the population: 23 0/0 ^: of

[so that the entire burden fell upon them] to maintain the remaining 77%, that is to say the livestock

Human, by making him work for them. In 1869, îela demanded 4,250 francs per year per hundred hectares

"French soil defects."

So they looked back. It used to be Lighter! At the end of 1851, the same capital

1 Real estate capital 88 billion 213 million

– furniture 64 – Soo –

financial 8 – 754 –

Total at the end of 1869: 161 billion 822 million

2 The usual proportion is 1/4 or 25%. One can assume to ensure, through the examination of the final budgets, that annually 800,000 deaths only lead to an average of 200,000 successes.
sions.

44. Speculation

It is true, it was smaller in area; but No matter! The cost of maintaining the proletariat (the be(tail Iiumain that I was saying earlier) did not rise then and annually at 2.290 francs per hundred hectares of French soil.

It is also true that the driving forces, like the mechanical forces had increased; but the necess-Capital projects had moved much faster!
Proof: the budgets!

How on earth had they managed to increase the... roughly double the 82 billion of 1851 and the leading to the 162 billion of 1869?

So, it was no longer possible to speculate without risk?
It was truly disheartening!

There was something else too: in 1851 one was more people contributing among themselves.
had just inflicted a heavy burden on the proletariat:
Fewer consumers and more millionaires;
That went without saying!

But there was no point in saying no; no matter what one was richer, individually; it was hard, all of it.
even, to be alone in bearing the burden of maintaining the France!

And we continued to reminisce about the years gone by...
lées:

At the time of the last popular uprising
(1818-1850), there were only 18% property owners.

Fortunately, Bonaparte had, with rifle shots

i Real estate capital 48 billion 637 million

– furniture 29 – 501 –

– Liner 3 – ?G5 –

Total at the end of 1851: 82 billion,003 million

I

22 0/0; then soon, with the Eastern War, aided then by cholera, not only had he also liquidated men, which had made it possible to reduce the capital from 91 billion (1853) to 72 billion (1854), but he had also increased the number of property owners At 29 0/0; we were ecstatic!

Unfortunately, it didn't last! We had Speculated again, excessively; among the wealthy, In fact, we had plundered each other relentlessly.

Nevertheless, both capital and the proletariat had grown, some in value, some in number, and this translated by a figure of 107 billion in 1858.

But here is the Kabylie expedition, the China expedition and the famous Italian war. We're going to kill men-my and steal territory. Also, we will be able to ask-to increase the capital and reduce it to 91 billion; consequently, The number of property owners has reached 30%. is saved!

It's a waste of time! Speculation corrupts everything. It's a mad rage. In 1862, capital had risen to 124 billions; fortunately Mexico was tempering-to quell these enthusiasms and brought the figures back down to 121 million liards (1863); nothing worked! The following year the capital had once again been distributed to 132 million liards and the number of property owners reduced to 24 0/0; without the continuation of Mexico, without some "Beneficial" epidemics, we would have been in the worst possible situation; thanks to these and a few Jînancier jubilees, at At the beginning of 1866, the figures had returned to proportions from four years ago: 124 mil-billions for capital, 26% for possessions teeth.

3.

46. Speculation

Could we at least maintain the status quo?
No, alas! For peace was essential!

But, with peace being imposed, it was a complete surrender of the entire economic system that the Empire had lived so far and that it is easy to condense into what-a few lines:

Increase industrial production, impose, even by force of arms, from trade treaties to foreign nations; make them pay the costs of armaments, Guon was supposed to have advanced, and, in- Finally, to obtain territorial compensation, no to expand the agricultural estate, but to rem- to place men by the heads of taxpayers of weapons that the battles had absorbed.

Meanwhile, Orleanism kept watch through the eyes of the little Thiers. He even spoke through his mouth; one does not He didn't listen, no one dared listen to him. Too many women My women, decidedly, were dressed in black!

And one had to, while speculating, as a way of consolation, watching Austria and Prussia fight, hoping that this one, victorious, would pay off Napoleon III's inaction, by allowing him to "To annex Belgium."

Now, while the Emperor waited "under the elm » the promised Belgium, the deficits were rising; Indeed, nothing caused liquidations anymore. of men, the cannon no longer crushed the flesh proletarian, then the bourgeoisie had to devour each other.

She participated in the Universal Exhibition of 1867.

She sang of the greatness of peace, but in agony- always and putting surcharges on surcharges- lions; that is why, at the end of 1869, we were at the height of insane values and misery with 162 billions, as I said at the beginning of this quick sketch.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 47

At that same moment, while the distress and The taxes were rising, as was the number of property owners. was decreasing.

A terrifying discovery!

From 30%, the proportion of property owners in 1859-60, we had fallen back to 23 0/0, and the 77 0/0 needed to be fed. remaining, I, the proletariat, hungrier and more threatened- more than ever.

As I said, 4,250 francs per 100 hectares, and France
It covered more than 54 million hectares!

Nothing had worked:

Although births had decreased and Deaths are increasing, foreigners have come in large numbers.
had replaced the deceased and filled the gaps left by the newborns sants, costing, moreover, their maintenance and exports both their profits without any national compensationnale.

On the other hand, the suicides, which had been believed to 36% from 1851 to 1869, and which struck very frequently
The wealthy landowners, in their own way, were indicating... a profound demoralization.

This could not continue.

The Malthusian Jewish community had to repeat that, decideddemented, there were still too many outlets, in proportion-tion of the quantity of sustenance that his gods agreed to give up in order to keep their own fortune.

In this state, from the first months of 1870, it was necessary tomilk absolutely or spontaneously reduce exi-

48 speculation

agencies of the propertied classes – which would have been honest and, therefore impossible, – or to conquer the land inhabited by sacrificing a few hundred thousand men; or, finally, if nothing else, find a pretext for to shoot the people inside.

The pretext was prepared by means of the plebiscite.

And we tried our luck with the Franco-German war.
order.

Of course, I won't bother to
to summarize here all the lofty scholarly reasons, Judaically invoked for or against this policy
tick!

I will only say that the most denied unreason and, consequently, the most likely one, resides in certain projects for the annexation of Belgium, stu-encouraged by the Prussian chancellor.

Everything that will be said politically outside of
This will be either simple ignorance or double hypocrisy!

In short, war was declared.

Even less will I recount this war. The Heroes, moreover, have no shortage of poets.

As for the others, I prefer to forget them.

I will only present the results.

After 1870, France had only 53 million left.
lions of hectares and 36 million inhabitants \ and, as for to capital, they were reduced to the sum of 113 billion

* Expropriation 5-3,857,304 hectares and 36,030,865 inhabitants.
2 Real estate capital 61 billion 317 million

– furniture 46 – 216 –

– Liner 5 – 911 –

Total at the end of 1870: 13 billion 44 million

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 49

Imperial parasitism can therefore be summarized as follows:

1° 1,450,000 hectares of land lost;

2° 2,030,000 forces eliminated, both in terms of clothing-conquered as well as men read. The economy regnante simply recorded this double result in reducing the capital res- by 48.5 billion so many, and immediately organized the means to run to other adventures.

The mere fact of the war had already reduced the cost proletarians; where, before 1870, it was necessary to dedicate-
To create 4,250 francs, it would now only take 3,130 francs.
something like an average between 1851 and 1869. Indeed, the largest number of those killed had naturally focused on the poor wretches without to have .

As for the few deceased property owners, their dis-partition had simply opened up successions and,
Thus, some fortunes were liquidated; in short, instead
From 23% of property owners in 1869, the number rose to 27%.
at the end of 1870, deducting, from now on, the territorial losses and destruction of the war.

I make this conclusion more significant by expressing it-using the three graphs below which They also distinguish, among the non-possessors, the Wage labor and poverty.

The year 1861 served as the starting point for the comparisons; the difference existing between the two concentric circles of 1870 express the decrease of the territory compared to the years 1861 and 1869.

Here are these graphs (plate I): yellow expresses the proportion of property owners; red, that of employees; the black^ that of the destitute.

50 speculation

Thus, the first result of the war had been to to set France back ten years.

To go further would be to encroach upon the history of the new regime; however, this synthesis prepares-the ratory would obviously be incomplete if, from main-
Now, and to better clarify what will follow, I I didn't give any insight into the vibrations of interest.
existing in each of the European nations, among which France occupied a position particular.

In other words, I must, by applying the scientific investigation processes at the beginning cement of 1870, to establish a balance sheet of Europe, balance sheet that historians have never been able to compile, because that, for them, events are products mystical and not the results of combinations ferocious sounds of the prevailing parasitisms.

First, I note a clue:

At the beginning of 1870, an event had occurred in Paris, to which no one has attached the importance it deserved.

the imperial finance minister had given the order to the stock exchange commissioner to seize all circulars relating to the issuance of bonds grants to lots of Turkish railways, and even, all the notebooks of speculators who would make operations on this issue.

No one asked what the Empire, which had so largely lived off financial plunder, later in life, he became so severe or so worried.

Did he acknowledge his past mistakes?

Or was it simply an attempt to pressure, more or less openly admitted, from his administration

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 51

Management of financiers involved in business Turkish?

None of that; it was, in fact, the first "Phrase" of the car declaration of war.

To make this assertion acceptable, I must rap-peeeler that France and England had all both opened their financial markets to operations Oriental rations of wear and tear.

Especially in France, where cosmopolitan bankers had drawn from them, they had ended up contracting the habit-study of relying on the stock market as on a reserve-see inexhaustible.

And then, suddenly, they were forbidden from doing so. Access!

Had the Turkish railways affair therefore of such considerable importance?

Now comes the rapid study of appetites parasites, found in every nation, will allow me to extract the logic from the facts.

– We should start with England:

This nation, cramped on an island, insufficient to to satisfy the appetites of its capitalists, and not to-before increasing, territorially, because of its positiv-geographical tion, managed to live at the expense of globe by seizing the production of others thus in the universe, quite precisely the role of the speculator whose exploits I have recounted above.

Although, for centuries, it has been obliged to comp-to prescribe the revolt of Ireland, its phi- hypocrisy
The human-like nature of this has not yet given him the audacity to to destroy, brutally, this small nation; but by-everywhere else: in India, in America, in Australia

52. Speculation

ralie, in every corner where it plants its pavilion-lon' it corrupts, absorbs, poisons and destroys without delay, that is to say, she speculates.

In 1870, despite the emigration of its proletarians and the dispersal of its speculators, the metro-
"England-Scotland-Ireland pole" had to feed 102 letes per hundred hectares of land, instead of 89, figure observed twenty years earlier.

It is true, its colonial domains and especially its the Indian empire provided him with resources more than enough to reconcile the appetites of its parasites with their obligation to provide for the costs of the maintenance of the proletariat, without the work of which would destroy their wealth; but in 1870 the expenses budgetary measures had moved too quickly; while the human growth rate had been 14%, that Expenditure had been 47%, the balance was not no longer possible.

– At the other end of Europe is Russia;
This serves geographically as the border of the import Asian continent; politically; she chevauche l'Europe et l'Asie.

Its popular interests would therefore seem to require to abstract it from European competitions; it will be done in a different way.
would thus be without the corruption of diplomacy which at the behest of cosmopolitan finance, draws up cons-tamment aulou o the autocrat a wall of men-dreams.

Indeed, European by birth, Asian Through his expansions, the Tsar would have nothing to worry about.
neither Austria to the southwest, nor Turkey to the south, if England hadn't come to confront him in Asia.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 53

Butted against the West, leaning on the East, the
The misfortune of this colossus is to have his head in the... ice cream and feet in the fire, which earns him, according to the seasons, Germanic congestions in the heart.

Having to maintain only 13 heads in Europe per one hundred hectares, a figure from 1870, its charges should little could vary, because twenty years earlier, he had no reason to-see that at 11 heads per hundred hectares.

11 is not the case, and Europe, England in particular, force it to use very costly scientific armaments
so that, alongside human growth From barely 17 0/0, he sees an increase-budgetary amount exceeding 77 0/0.

– In the heart of Europe, two coalition leaders
Parasitic elements vie for precedence:

The King of Prussia, dreaming of the absorption of the con-
Germanic federation;

The Emperor of Austria, swinging his crown imperial at the end of his royal sceptre of Hungary.

It is necessary to examine the small one in particular Kingdom of Prussia.

Fighting against the obligation to maintain 61 head of cattle squares by one hundred hectares of barren land, he cons-was feeling, despite the emigrations, that in 1870 he had 69 positions to be filled; in twenty years, it was a pro-14-0/0 margin of victory.

Far from enriching its parasites, this ruined them.
because the budgets, during the same period, had grown
of 88 0/0.

This was, moreover, the logical result of the reforms of 1811, which had replaced serfdom by the proletariat, thanks to a modification of the re-regime of state property.

54. Speculation

Inevitably, therefore, the parasitic rulers had to, violent incidents, they preferred to modernize the ways of the burghers; hence the dreams of hegemony, hence the colonial tendencies, hence finally a system-organized theme of speculation on nationalities.

Through its emigrants, Prussia already had, for so to speak, populated the United States; by its classes average, going to work in Russia, Austria, In France and Italy, it permeated the habits of its neighbors, while constituting a reserve which, the if necessary, would swell the ranks of the rest of the proletariat sedentary and permanently militarized.

Also in 1870, already greatly enlarged by its an- Emboldened by Sadowa, she had no other the concern of monitoring the causes of conflicts that England constantly stirred up, in order to to his advantage.

Austria, further south than Prussia, but resembling him somewhat by the race of his governors Nantes, still bleeding from the great shock of Sadowa, in 1870, continued to let itself be devoured through Jewish usury.

11. She thus had a source of des- Automatic instructions which, with the help of unfortunate battles, almost arrived against- to balance the development of its population.

In a space of twenty years, one hundred hectares of his lands, which initially had 55 head of cattle to feed, had received only 3 more (58 head) in 1870), it was a human increase of 50/0. But the budgetary burdens were enormous and their increase, for the same period, had

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 55

summer of 1902; this resulted in a pressurization of the capital that ultimately became a hindrance to the capitalists themselves.

Reduced for the benefit of Italy and for the benefit of Prussia, inconvenienced by its Austro- dualism Hungarian, she naturally directed her gaze towards the Balkan Peninsula.

– I will quickly move on to the other nations whose appetites were not proportionate to large coalitions that I just mentioned; in this number, temporarily excluding Italy and the Belgium, I will only mention Sweden, Norway, Holland and Denmark, all quite specifically monitored by an enlarged Prussia.

– Italy, recently provided, thanks to the conference's course was still in a period relatively calm: one hundred hectares of his land supported 72 heads around 1850 and 90 heads in 1870.

Only its budgetary expenses had grown more quickly, and made her more eager for the Pontic territory. fiscal.

– Belgium, heavily burdened, nevertheless kept a certain balance, thanks to its damping industrialists; one hundred hectares of his land contained 149 heads in 1850 and 171 in 1870; but, on the other hand, although its budgets had grown by 50% in approximately in twenty years, the figure was still higher portable to the leaders of the reigning parasitism, who had begun to become more cosmopolitan.

– It is hardly necessary to mention VEs-Panagia and Portugal, ordinarily kept out European competitions.

56. Speculation

Portugal, deeply influenced by the systems of the ancients, English, had maintained his balanced position because of his post-Maritime sessions. One hundred hectares of its lands above-in 1870 they carried 48 heads, and twenty years before 12 heads.

Tied to Spain, like Spain to France, through a gigantic seam of mountains, it has not enough gaps in the railway lines seen yet. to have continental concerns.

– Spain, like Portugal, owes to its colonies maintains a certain balance between his parasites and his human charges. One hundred hectares of its land above-had 33 heads in 1870, and 29 heads twenty years later previously.

It is through Gibraltar that this country is of interest to England. land and through Morocco, which is of interest to France, in outside, of course, of colonial expansions

– I'm arriving in France.

His human resources responsibilities, over twenty years, had increased from 68 head to 71 head per 100 hectares, which represents an increase of 5 0/0.

But its budgets had been much faster, their development, for the same period, having reached 38 0/0.

It is true that she had colonial possessions niales, but what's the point? Since it's far from benefiting him, These only caused him expenses!

In short, in 1870, as I said earlier, the The parasitic coalition needed to run the avenues–tures, and, without going back over the comments already developed, I will limit myself to placing here the fifths–"numerical meaning" of the situation of the two peoples who were going to rush at each other.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 57

Within the same time frame:

Prussia's human burden had increased of U 0/0.

France's score was 5 0/0.

Likewise :

Prussia's budgetary burden had increased of 88 0/0.

France's score was 38 0/0.

To get a clear idea, you need to compare between they are the progressions specific to each nation; We will then find that, if the appetites of parasitism The French were measured by 7 1/2, those of the para–Prussianism was measured only by 6 1/2 *.

The figures thus corroborate this opinion, generally rabidly admitted, that France offered to Prussia a war that she couldn't have asked for better than to accept.

research, on the other hand, the acceptance of the conflict must-these can only be attributed to para- coalitions dominant sites in both countries. The war is not never fatal, never obligatory, never forced;
it is only an economic system at means by which the owning portion of a nation decreases its overhead costs and, consequently, increases the profits from its annual balance sheet.

Having thus identified the original causes of the con-

"It's good to specify the figures."

Increases Increases Ratio between 1852-70 human budget increases

France 37.59 0/0 4.99 0/0 7.52

Prussia 87.28 0/0 13.46 0/0 6.48

58 speculation

Ait, I can now move on to its occasional causessional.

It is important to recall first of all that the inau-
The construction of the Suez Canal had just been carried out.
cisément in 1869. That being said, one only needs to look a world map to realize that, the empire of the Indies belonging to England, the latter, under it would be difficult to lose a huge portion of his international trade and, consequently, of to go from the state of a billionaire parasite to the state of needy proletarian, must, at all costs^ hand-to maintain free navigation through Gibraltar, through Suez by Aden.

You also just need to look at the same map to note that if, by land, the traffic manages to concentrate towards Persia, between the sea Caspian and Black Seas, to then reach Cons-tanlinopia and, via Constantinople, the peninsula of The Balkans and Russia on one side, and Europe on the other.
central and also that of the far west will be able to benefit from all the advantages that England could lose.

Therefore, it is clear that the main powers-

Italy and Turkey also have an interest equal to making the dirt road faster by applying to it-regarding the railway system.

If, instead of being subjugated by para-coalitions sites of the kings of capital, these different peoples managed their jointly and at cost price international tooling, for a long time would achieved humanitarian and utilitarian improvement consisting of bringing the distances closer together in order to better

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 59

exchange the different products that only they create the different climates.

Unfortunately, that's not the case:

Under the influence of capital, the railways were a way to pile up men and to centralize to control transport, while he was going to the contrary, decentralize transport and disperse the men, so that greater benefit might come from a largest inhabited, frequented and furnished area.

However, England's system consists precisely of... to centralize things in order to have them available, then, for his own sole benefit.

With this aim in mind, better than anyone she has assumed that, since the ruling coalitions exercise their sovereignty through agents, buying those-that would achieve universal domination, because that it would be like holding on, anonymously but truly, all the ruling coalitions themselves.

That is why England is trafficking at the court of Constantinople, and, as a logical consequence, in all the chancelleries of Europe.

In 1867, Sultan Abdul-Aziz came to visit the World's Fair. There, in a deplorable through his association with kings, it had been demonstrated to him that the gloved corruption of Western palaces was far superior to the naive corruption of the harems Orientals.

The demonstration was not in vain.

drawn from the metal reservoirs of France and England, without these ever having been upset at receiving only refunds intermittent ments.

60 speculation

Their financiers, moreover, having taken the metal in the public's pocket, thereby realizing everything their profit, only wanted to continue lend, provided that the Sultan supplies them with the pretext.

Oren Türkiye, until now, the "dogs of Christians" and also the "Jewish dogs," could not possess Settle the land. The property of mosques (such as (formerly those of the Church in France), were sacred and inalienable; these were called the Va- è/ens Kufs. In 1867, the Sultan declared that in his eyes, he there was no distinction between Muslims and the Christians, and consequently, that the foreigners- Gers were allowed to acquire in Türkiye land properties.

At the same time, all European competitions pagan laws had just been decreed.

But, in this regard, it should be noted that Abdul- Aziz had only spoken about Christians, without suffering- The word of the Jews, who alone, however, were going to benefit benefit from the reform.

Meanwhile, all the honor went to the Angle- earth. She alone had brought about the triumph of Christendom, In the name of freedom of conscience!

This is what sonorous and deceitful words were used to describe it. universally praised, a measure which was, in essence, a simple Jewish wear and tear.

The very devout Belgium was not the last to to appreciate the religious and monetary interest of the inno- Eastern elevation.

She had already been nursing at her breast for several years... several years, a financial adventurer who emerged watched over the world through the audacity of its prosperity.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC thread

This man's name was Langrand-Dumonceau. I
I don't have to take care of him in detail, I'll do it myself.
How to sum up your story in two sentences, and then I
I will now address the consequences of his actions.

Here is the first sentence:

A major Belgian newspaper dated...
January 4, 1865:

"Mr. Langrand-Dumonceau, after having handed over "Gentlemen, visitors to the poor of the Léo-this polder, his offering for the benefit of the unfortunate, has "also sent a 500 franc note to the treasury"
"charity committee's statement ^))

Here is the second one:

A newspaper dated July 11, 1872* reported:

"We remember the Langrand-Dumon affair-((that, which almost led to a ministerial crisis in ((Belgium a few months ago; the court cor-
"The Belgian federal government has just issued a "default judgment that condemns Mr." Lan-((grand, Anatole Langrand, etc.. , at three years of ((prison, for complicity in a bankruptcy)
"Fraudulent."

Let's move on.

So, the capital adventurer, named Langrand
Dumonceau enjoyed prosperity in 1868 Unheard of. Abdul-Aziz, having recently gone to Vienna, to shake hands amicably with the Emperor of Austria, and Langrand-Dumonceau being very well regarded at this imperial court, where he operated in the stock exchange and in industry-financial sorting, straddling the markets of Brussels and from Paris, the result was a hot recommendation

^ Belgian Indi^pemiance, January 4, 1865,
2 The Pelil Universal Monitor.

62. Speculation

mandate aimed at obtaining the financing the concession of Turkish railways,
"this great idea that was meant to unite by force"

" heart. "

Langrand claimed to have lost a lot of money to develop Austria-Hungary and we can read in a letter, written by the Count of Beust, Chancellor of the Austrian Empire, at the advent of the Belgian killer and produced during the trials of which he was later overwhelmed that this concession of Turkish railways "was a way to compensate" ((the financier of the losses he claimed to have suffered.)

How was this letter produced? Can we be able to, in the course of this story, ask a qualified Jew, Baron de Hirsch.

Meanwhile, it is certain that in 1868, Langrand-Dumonceau held the railway concession to the Turks.

This concession had barely had time to develop to become official and to start motivating a broadcast which, some historians* say, "the fate" ((fell upon this modern knight of happiness).

And who succeeded him? The Jew already mentioned. At the time, the baron described as Hirsch, whom I have already 'studied them closely'.

Knowing the methods of this parasite, I do not doubt there is no doubt that he is the author of the debacle of the site of Langrand and that Hirsch is the real name of the "fate that befell" him.

'Paul Dehn, Municipal Council 1883; Germany and the roads of oriental iron.

2 See my Kings of the Secular Republic.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 63

We will see later that this man had not become concessionaire only so as not to build the roads of Turkish iron, so much so that they were unfinished in 1887.

For him, the company had two options: to have it looked like doing something – because it was a pretext for broadcast – and then, not to do – because This served England's interests – and, since For twenty years, he had the talent to maintain unpunished– This dual attitude.

Now, Hirsch is Prussian; moreover, he boasted to Bleischröder, who repeated it to Bismarck, "to hold "(in his hand, Austrian diplomacy." In addition, he had, as a broker, Ralph Earle, secretary-'Lord Beaconsfield's private silence'.

Finally, he held in his hand, Davoud-Pacha^ mid-Minister of Abdul-Aziz. We have also read, moreover, some time ago a few years in the Cologne Gazette, three letters dated from Vienna, Spa and Paris, of May 26 to July 26, 1870, which leave no doubt about the minister's venality and the power of the cor-financial disruptor ^

'Paul Dehn, Munich. Loco citato.

- These letters were reproduced by the author of the l>ro-- German church that I have already cited; I believe I should irse-- rer here:

"Vienna, May 26, 1870."

"To His Excellency Davoud Pasha, Minister of Public Works"
"publics. Istanbul.

"Your Excellency,
"I had instructed Mr. de Laveleye to deliver the spell to you."
"2,000,000 francs, to settle various contributions from the
"(to the?) union, which you were responsible for handing over to the "interested parties from the union in Constantinople, to whom I had "Directly transferred shares. You have just declared to me"

64. Speculation

Well, this is Hirsch's paper and that of his brother-Brother Bamberger, whom the impe- Finance Minister riales had just seized on the stock exchange in the pre-First days of March 1870,

Let's compare the facts; let's remember
Russia's inaction, Austria's indifference, England's cynicism (I'm not talking about, well-tense, due to Turkey's impotence) at the moment disasters that struck France in 1870;

"that, out of this sum, Mr. de Laveleye has not given you
"that 2,100,000 francs, the sum you have just returned to me-
"tiluer. I come to declare to you, for the sake of good practice, that "I received this refund and you are, by conso-
"Quent, decliari;é of the sum of 2,100,000 francs. As for "The count goes directly to Mr. de Laveleye."

"I beg Your Excellency, etc."

"Signed: Mr. De Hirsu."

Your Excellency,

"I have the honor of sending you, enclosed, a letter of

"MJ Springer to your address and

"Read 27,896 as of October 8 on Anglobank s/London.

"Mr. Springer, on the other hand, is demanding restitution of the amount paid."

"From the letter of August 19, 1869, from the Anglobank. By this "letter, Vki\g\oha.xik you are abandoning a participation of "ten percent in the Railway Operating Company

^ Ottoman, and the aforementioned delivery of Lire 27,896, the part-Kicipation of 10 0/0 has been bought back at a fixed price. Please, etc.

"Signed: IVL De Hirsch."

"Spa, July 10, 1870.

"To His Excellency Davoud Pasha, etc. Istanbul."

• Paris, July 26, 1870.

"Your Excellency,

"In response to the explanations you gave me—" a dées about certain malicious rumors that one

SOD THE THIRD REPUBLIC 65

Let us recall the European congress project, decided in the Council of Ministers the day before day when, against all expectations, our official documents adopted a provocative attitude; that one might recall—shovels the venality of some, the treachery of others, and especially the financial certainty that the defeated people Whatever it might be, it would require enormous loans.
before, during and after the war.

Let us consider the role that roads have played

"seeks to spread in Constantinople, I hasten to

"I hereby declare to Your Excellency that I attach

"It is of great importance that you take energetic measures"

"Against these maneuvers. To this end, I will depart from the

((in the most formal way, which I would never have allowed myself

"to offer any sum whatsoever to Your Excellency at a

"neither directly nor indirectly has Your Excellency received the
"a smaller sum."

"I make this declaration authorizing you to..."

"make whatever use you deem appropriate, and I repeat"

"that, for my own consideration, I attach great importance"

"Importance to see people prosecuted

"who believed they could launch such insinuations with impunity"

"nuances. Please, etc."

"Signed – Mr. De Hirsch."

"To His Excellency Davoud Pasha, etc."

The author adds:

"Davoud Pasha never took advantage of the opportunity that presented itself to him" ((was willing to undo and rehabilitate his honor by means of "The false testimony of Baron de Hirsch. He was, later,

"on several occasions, invited by the Turkish government to

"to come to Constantinople and have the condition of his "business; but he carefully avoided responding to this invitation–

"tion and died abroad. Through the intermediary of the Aïujlo–

"Hank, almost all the major newspapers in Vienna have been

"Acquired and paid for."

66 Speculation

Turkish iron in the Treaty of Berlin in 1878, origin, himself involved in all the Bulgarian entanglements, in all the Anglo–Egyptian, Greek, complications Tunisian, Italian, of all kinds of speculation on the Suez and, consequently, on the Panama Canal;

And then we can appreciate how speculation international national parasitism, was the only the cause of all the damage, as well as all the massacres which, placed at the threshold of the Third Republic– republic, subsequently engendered the immoralities of which She is dying as I write this.

II

ANARGHIC PROGRESSIONS

Anarchic progress

THIRD REPUBLIC

I am now entering the very heart of History contemporary, whose scientific analysis I have undertaken-factual; I will strive to bring to my work all the cold precision that I admire in the chemist or the surgeon, but I will not give up, however-less, to employ more or less vivid forms, by means of which the writer seeks to do better to understand the impressions he himself received, from his own observations.

In no case, moreover, will this story be
I am not making any apology for a man or a policy;
I don't want to be specifically the historian of property owners, as all the his-Toriens, than that of the proletarians; it is true, here, the
The route is less traveled; but choosing one, which-conch, of these two divisions of the nation, entail-
That would give the appearance of bias, and I have none.
nor do I want to be suspected of it.

I am and want to remain the historian of the beast hu-Maine, with this precise goal: to prove to man that he
It is possible for him not only to cease being

70 i/speculation

silly, but still, to climb higher in the order human.

Having said that, I will now turn to the Triosiema.
Republic, the history of the progression of poverty:
I would describe these progressions as "anarchic".
because they are the uncontrolled and deliberate work of a bestial parasitism.

II ANARCHIC PROGRESSIONS

1. – Wrestling over corpses.

PERIOD 1870-1871-1872

Summary. 1870. – The Plebiscite. – Eternal Parasitism.

– France gutted. – Peace. – The Speculation of Seat.

1871. – Assembly of Bordeaux. – Gambetta. – Thiers.

– Paris is burned. – All is saved! – The Maggots.
Dedication of capital. – Railways.

The plebiscite of May 1870 had, it was believed, consolidated the Empire by granting it more than 7 million of yes (7,358,886) out of more than 8.5 million voters (8,653,200), with more than 10.5 million registered voters (10,535,000).

However, at that time, French fortunes were focused in the hands of the 23 % of his population (as I have already explained), it is
It was easy to calculate that the affirmative votes had recruitment had to take place in the following way:

Voters owning 4,420,000

– non-owners... 2,939,000

Total yes votes: 7,359,000

But we can also calculate that, if all the

72 % speculation

non-property owners had voted (and there were more of them) (Graillions registered), the negative votes would have imported, which might have peacefully undermined the imperial period.

Nothing of the sort happened, as we know, and France came– Having been mired in mud and blood, she had to witness the advent– from another ruling coalition.

At the first disaster, the Orleanist property owners had launched their campaign; moreover, they hastened to associate with the people and skillfully flatter his fury against the vanquished, whose comrades they had been accomplices; then, while awaiting a very discreet monarchy they had dreamed of, they gave him an oligarchy that one could– would, strictly speaking, call it a Republic; this one, therefore,

a result of imperial speculation.

The empire was born in monarchical filth;
In turn, the Republic was emerging from an immense cataclysm.
perialist.

Solidarity is all the more logical given that, in all these successions, parasitism had never counted one hour of vacation.

In any case, when the rulers of
On September 4, 1870, they had to negotiate peace, and, in-Following this, they were able to convene the voters, the
The wealthy had seen their power grow; indeed,
I mentioned earlier that, already at the end of 1870, their the proportion had reached 27 0/0.

Therefore, in the February 1871 election, the reactionary majority tionary could be all the greater as death had mowed down many proletarians.

It is true that the [status] have never been officially noted.
overall results of this election; but, in the character-

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 73

monarchist land of the assembly that emerged from it, we can measure the perfect accuracy of the proportion that I have just revealed.

However, everyone was then dominated by one single concern: peace, that's what it was about to ratify.

Others, the historians, will say who signed this peace and how it was stipulated

For me, this detail would be of no other importance.
than to link the intrigues of a political party tick, which I have no concern about.

That some property owners were supporters of the war to excess, in an attempt to build their influence on a hoped-for victory; or that others might possessdants were supporters of immediate peace in order to to establish their dominance by wielding them even the official instrument; (the latter component (moreover, the majority that had overthrown the empire);
what difference could that make to the evil doing?

Nothing, certainly; all, from then on, are to me equals, whether their name is Jules Favre, Thiers or Gambetta.

Therefore, I only retain this:

We were at peace and we said we were in a Republic-blique.

The people, who are always satisfied with words, believed, him, sincerely, that having scratched, on the monu- the imperial coat of arms, to replace it with the The motto was: "Liberty - Equality - Fraternity." everything and that, from now on, he would be able to work and live!

He had already forgotten how many, during the siege, we had speculated on his blood', the magistracy, however- dant, was supposed to remind him of that some time later... (1873), establishing that, among other bandits, a banker, named Huguet, had taxed as ((his best year, 1870-1871, because "that he had made a profit of 800,000 francs" "Net."

5

74 i/agiotage 1570

Why haven't we similarly investigated the operations of other financiers?

The people had also forgotten that, during this same In the seat, no less speculation had taken place about his stomach; now, He had known this so well, in an hour of exas- operation, he had rushed to the markets where the provisions emerged from the ground all by themselves, long before the doors were reopened to supplies.

But hey! Why look at it in years!

We were at peace, the past was already far away? What? The cannon no longer thundered, and the bread was white! Hey! Okay, then?

0 nature of peoples! nature of the mother who, per- petulically forgetful of the pains of her fertility healthy and resigned, her eternal function.

Speculating on this goodness, happy to have "done" their assembly, relying mainly on the epa-newing backs bellies, the people from the Orleans school-

'In this regard, it is worth noting the variations tui-Practices on the stock exchange in 1870:

Higher, more lias, difference

3 0/0 French 74 fr.50 50 fr.80 2 i fr.

Turkish....! 370 » 2;i0 » li0

Egyptian \ i 4 » 332 » 1 12

Tunisian 230 » 120 » 110

under IA TUOISIEJIE RÉPUDLIQL'É, t0

Theists could believe that they had definitively held the France is in their hands.

For their part, those from the Bordeaux assembly, staggering in their newfound sovereignty, had the naivety (others say skill) in not dissip-to bolster their hopes for a monarchical restoration.

Some wanted to write about the palace of the agio-The official tag is the name of Ghambord, others that of Orléans, others still dared to dream of Napoleon Leo III. It was a feeding frenzy of vultures, or white ones, or blue, or green.

There was still a little bit of red, but that circulated only in the veins of the people of Paris – too fast, people said. Nevertheless, no A throne is possible, as long as this red continues to circulate.

For the people: the king, the emperor, or the prince, it was, more than any other word, the embodiment of parasitism, which he had just settled with his life, long and triumphant pillaging.

It was therefore truly necessary to have this specific goal to exasperate him, so as not to immediately make the hypocrite constitution of 1875.

Paris rose up. A "commune" was organized.

The people had risen up en masse, convinced that he defended a sacred cause; it was not me who Say, it was Marshal MacMahon who recognized him.
himself, before the commission of inquiry:

"There are some," he said, "who, with their red flag at the
"They were killed on the barricades; they pa-
"they would have believed they were defending a cause"
"Sacred: the independence of Paris."

* Inquiry into the matter, session of August 28, 1871.

76 Speculation 1871

As we can see, the insurrection had not been instigated;
she had left alone in the face of the a-'s bravado seemed.

As for those who have taken the lead in the movement,
They were full of good intentions and I don't see
I don't know why they were accused of the same crime.
acts for which other governments have been praised ments, – which succeeded; – however, their initiative had the serious drawback of acting alongside the occupation foreign pan.

To succeed in such a situation, it would have been necessary, both power in decision-making and unity in the views; but that is precisely what has been Completely flawed!

How could it have been otherwise?

Even the most influential leaders were also ignorant of the true causes of social ills and of means of eliminating it, which they were bravely convinced of the need to resort to ba-size.

Fight? It was about time! That was in 1869.
that, prepared, the bearers of the starving proletariat should have rallied their troops, Oz'ganized them and marching to seize power.

But what? Did we even know which way to go?
To understand the organization's functions?

We wasted precious time chatting about useless things and that the main concern seems to have been to preserve all the temples of the agio, their safes and their archives, in order to return them intact to those of whom, without daring to admit it, we predicted the victory.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 77

Neither the people nor the leaders knew each other; nothing was ready, nothing was prepared', so that the Paris Commune was, truly, a movement stillborn child.

A man seemed to have understood this; he was told has, moreover, been criticized quite a bit. Blaming Gambetta or the Renting is not my business. My business is to constat.

What does his intention matter anyway? I take here man as the result and the expression of the sentiment of a majority; he had already consecrated this feeling upon leaving Paris through the air to cross the Prussian lines and to try to organize the defense of the territory; he will create again by moving away from the movement communist.

Should we regret it? I don't think so.

If Gambetta had been able to make the commune a success, certainly the "opportunistic" system would have been appointed a few years earlier; but nothing proves that this system would have been better in order to have less delayed in birth.

Meanwhile, Thiers, the former minister of Louis-Philippe, the same one who had built the fortifications from Paris, burning with the desire to give to the Prussians a lesson in siege warfare.

Moreover, finance, that is to say the heads of institutions, questionable practices of the wealthy, he had clearly declared that she would not provide a single cent for pay Prussia, if Paris were not reduced to silence.

* See in this regard the very remarkable courage of Cluseret, entitled: Memoirs. – Second Siege of Paris.

Thiers; official emanation of the possessive masses—
Dante, therefore, had only to bow down; to be his liberator—
The author flattered his ambition all the more because he had,
As I said, I dreamed of taking Paris by force.
Prussians who, for their part, had not taken it?

So, here is my civilian general beating the fortifications—cations and swearing he was going to take them. — He doesn't he only managed to surprise them, which was enough for him.

After that, obeying finance to the very end,
He shot, imprisoned, and deported without shame, without Pity him, the parasite he was.

Then, on the capital, blackened by fire and reddened by blood, triumphant he set foot; but i!
did not dare to take another step, and neither he nor the assembly
They did not sit in the volcano, which may have been poorly extinct.
they thought, having, after the intoxication, suddenly experienced the terror of victory.

It so happened that the insurrectionary initiative ob-two negative results, unfortunately.

One: to prevent the immediate development of a white parasitic constitution.

The other: to prepare for the success of a constitution blue parasite.

It is in this last result, and only in this last result, that revealed the intervention of the Gambettist community.

There is nothing strange about that, because those who had taken pay t — I'm not examining how — to the suppliers tures, financial operations and other "business" regarding national defense, were natural—doors open to rallying to a system that harks back—milk again the famous "get rich".

And then it was in context, because of the defeat of "The insurrection" had provided the propertied classes with the opportunity miqua of the capital god, another * Revocation of [rp]dit de Nantes », by systematically removing-the "protesting" workers.

Through their shooting, they fertilized the soil with corpses – funereal fertilizer, but sweet to Moloch-Baal; – through courts-martial, they deported some of the living on the other side of the world and, through terror, they scattered the rest to the four corners of the universe.

This was the action of King Louis XIV.

But all of this can be quantified:

I would like to remind you that the war had increased the number of the owners by increasing it from 23 0/0 (end of 1869), at 27 0/0 (end of 1870). The internal gunfire, at its turn, pushed it by 27 0/0 (end of 1870), by 30 0/0 (end of 1871).

Everything was saved!

All the more saved as capital, imitating the Possessed Jants, had regained (!?) 29 billion ' to the end of 1871.

So, the infernal march had begun again...
She was going to continue.

Isn't it true that, in the presence of such observations... events, the things that are usually dealt with
The story appears small and petty?

* Jllilliards^

Late 1870 Late 1871 In addition

Real estate assets... 613/10 75 4/10 14 1/10

– furniture 46 2/10 59 5/10 13 3/10

– financial 5 9/10 7 1/10 12/10

Totals.... 113 4/10 142 0/10 28 6/10

80 Speculation 1873

What weight does ambition or tra-

The oath of a Napoleon? What do the tears of a Jules Favre, the ferocity of a Bismarck, of a Gallifet, from a Thiers?

Are all the parasites and pimps of Parasitism is not called indifferently Bazaine, Napoleon, Jules Favre, Bismarck, Gallifet And Thiers?

Faced with a destroyed humanity, what are these Pygmies?

What even is Gambetta?

Nothing! Their glory? A gust of wind; their strength? a machine.

And time, the merciless equalizer, always ends by mingling, underground, the executioners with the victims times, same prey destined for the same maggots.

– Parasites of nature, will we say of these? Certainly! But, unlike heroes, they are at less than life-reconstructors!

Historians have written that in October of In the year 1871, France began to breathe again. calm.

No sooner had they won than the parasitic rulers, after immediately repealing the laws of exile against the Orléans family (June 8), they showed themselves honest payers and were thinking of settling, in all its details, the ransom of war; they were saying even to shorten the foreign occupation. He was fleeing so that the working anthill could re- to put to work and produce, so that one could pay.

The Stock Exchange, naturally reopened and triumphant–

under the Third Republic 81

phanle, was the breast where everyone hoped to find– to the restorative milk.

The government having passed a loan of 2 billion (June 21–28, 1871), of which the advances were do, under the guise of public subscription, speak Credit institutions. Discount bank.

general, Crédit foncier), and especially by the Bank of France, that the government of the Commune had returned it intact, and they immediately took care of to search the pockets of the public.

However, he had returned to "order", violently
It's true, but profoundly.

The financial sector, satisfied, was therefore just waiting for this moment to resume its function as a suction pump-rent.

As a creditor of the state, it would dictate more strictly its conditions; moreover, it will suffice to browse the list of the boards of directors of its various establishments changes to determine what weight they carried, in the following, the names and persons of those who they were composed of.

In any case, it must be noted here that, at the occasion of this loan, Thiers distributed by /aoear, and to build strong support, 118 million, both to bankers and journalists.

Some historians, in this regard, have dared to praise the dedication to finance; speaking of the Bank of France, forgetting that it is simply a reserve-to see where the entire nation's money is deposited, they did not hesitate to praise him for his cooperation ration, which was really just a restitution', and, to add insult to injury, to report the whole thing

5.

M L'ÂCIOTAGE 1S7I

Glory to one of the regents: Alphonse de Rothschild, that Thiers made a commander of the Legion of Honour for this occasion!

The truth is that finance held its market; she paid the head of the executive branch for the bloody he-the massacres of May 1871, and thus secured the means to resume his speculations on the mass of other property owners freed by her from occupation foreign, what she would point out to him and also him would make them pay dearly.

Indeed, we immediately set about increasing

For example: the tax on receipt stamps, then on to the matches (first step taken towards a general farm); then on the path tickets of iron, and it was announced everywhere that business would resume—were born.

But, at that moment, a peculiarity arose highlighting the financiers' dedication: one notices—knew that the currency had disappeared.

So what had the bankers and the changers?

What they had done was quite simple:

Here's what the newspapers of the time reported:

"The Small Car Company, they said—((they, who necessarily make their daily recipe—
"It produces money, profits from it by reselling it"
"advantaging foreign bankers. That's his right."
"Certainly," the editor humbly declares; —
"Then he continues:"

"— She recently sold twenty—"Five thousand francs to the Ilirsch house. An industrial—"triel, who had been aware of the fact, pre—

Release THE THIRD REPUBLIC 83

"sent to this banker and asked, in turn,
"to buy some money."

a — Impossible, they replied, we have a "Treaty with Belgium and we owe it to him—((see this money.

"So," the editor continues, "it is useless"
"that the Bank speaks of issuing cash,
"since it is immediately absorbed for the benefit of
"foreign spillways".

And he adds in conclusion:

"The government can strike all it wants"
"millions, billions of small change,"
"if speculation can continue shamelessly its "unusual drainage operations. The small "commercial transactions are becoming increasingly ((more difficult, and we had yesterday, at Les Halles

"How to buy? How to sell?"

"Selling and buying, if speculation is finally "Repressed, will naturally also be impossible"
"Either one nor the other."

This was the situation in November 1871

The "dedication" of bankers, money changers, etc.
Having thus stated, it is superfluous to say that at the Stock market, we had started up again with renewed vigor. [Tou] was rising, but: except, however, for the French annuity'*

Why this exception?

* Here are the course prices from 1871:

Higher Lower Difference

3 0/0 French 38 tr. 50 fr. 8 fr.

Egyptian... 452,332,130

Turkish 345 230 95

Turkish 192 120 72

Italian 69 42 27

84 Speculation 1871

simply, because, in order to pay the ransom
From the Prussian war, there were still loans of state in perspective, and that, the more the rent remains-
It would be more lucrative in the lower courts, the more usurious it would be.
the interest at which the high bank lends its money.

Indeed, buying 3 francs of annuity for one
A payment of 50 francs is, exactly^ to invest 60% equity. That was the aim of parasitism
financial.

Before concluding with the year 1871, I must record-Record two facts:

The Mont-Cenis tunnel had barely been inaugurated (September 17) that people began to talk about the the piercing of the Saint Gotthard, that is to say of a a way to promote German and Italian interests to the detriment of French traffic.

I will have occasion later to point out the importance of this
f) articularity, but I must say, from now on, that the interests, supposedly national, that are being put forward, are, above all, those of financial companies or of railways, and that if, in this, something something is capable of affecting the majority not possessing
The country's unique feature is the possibility of adventures.
in which it can be launched by its di-leaders, always ready to use her, to deto first divide, then increase, their wealth, or to put it better, \e\iv force of appropriation.

Summary. 1872. – Repairs are underway. – Swelling on the massescres. – The Liberator! – Newspaper bonuses. – The gold of whole world. – Colonial Prologue. – The Orléans. –
The Magistrates.– 'The wealthy are growing.' – Summary of the period.

By firing on Paris, Thiers had obviously aimed the chair of the President of the Republic, all like William of Prussia, by machine-gunning the France had aimed for the imperial crown. – Now, separated by a few months, they had both successful. In August 1871, Thiers had therefore become the official leader of the French parasites.

Once the initial appetites were satisfied, we had considered repairing the material damage caused by the war.

From the beginning of 1872, preparations were underway to distribute 100 million allocated to the departments invaded; in the other departments, the work things were starting to pick up again, but in Paris, they were in delay, because the more moderate ones recognized that At least 50,000 workers were absent and On the other hand, it was noted that many May-Rich sounds were uninhabited.

Gradually, however, the sales of buildings appeared, then multiplied; almost immediately

86 Speculation 1872

the work of demolition and reconstruction mon-tra of the activity.

At a short interval the high priests of the agio

again presided over the traffic of built-up land or no, and the stockbrokers' union had inaugurated a clearing house that the newspapers claimed to be an imitation of the Clearing-English house.

The tools of the speculators have now been handed over. At nine, I will not surprise my readers by their learning that at the end of 1872, the overall value of French capital had recorded an increase of more than 38 billion*.

But what is the? What's more interesting to note is that the capital real estate had, on their own, and in twelve months, benefited from 22.5 billion:

Thus they had already regained 14 billion in 1871 and here, the following year, they increased another 22.5 billion: a total of 36.5 billion.

Eraser, as we can verify a few pages later on, the war had only depreciated them by 27 million francs; therefore, of all the massacres, capital had to remove a bloat of nearly 10 billion!

Let no one deny its fertility!

Obviously, these values were artificial at the 1

Billions of franc

^

Real estate capital...

– furniture

– financiers

Late 1871

75 4 10

59 5 10

7 1 10

98 0/10

73 9/10

S 3/10

Differ.ce

+ 22 6/10

4-14 i/l0

+ 1 2/10

Totals

142 U, 10

180 2/10

+ 38 2/10

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 87

from the point of view of their realization in cash; but from the point of view of the taxes that would weigh uni-Regarding work, they were very real.
because every time real estate capital increases
They lie, and we immediately observe a worsening of the budgetary charges.

Naturally, these were bound to grow, since,
In July, a loan of three billion was approved;
but, like the biggest landowners, that is to say
The bankers were certain that they would, first of all, be obligated
They were careful not to make any advances, so they took their precautions so that, without having Vair d'augby changing the interest rate, they could just as easily wear down the working mass.

Indeed, it is elementary to calculate that .3 0/0, on a capital of 1,000 francs, only produces 30 francs, but that same 80/0, on a capital
10,000 francs, produces 300 francs of income.

However, we know that with each change of ownership, the seller...
having the buyer reimburse the costs and taxes,
It sometimes happens that the more an item is sold, the more, by this
The only fact is, he believes in value.

Therefore, by overloading by twenty-two financiers were simply looking to increase their resources of approximately 700 million, that is to say Specifically, the cost of the loan and a quarter of its normal interest.

In fact, finance has certainly provided these advances; I find proof of this in the following: that at the end of In that same year, inheritances only showed a decrease of one meager development of purely financial values candles, contrary to what always happens when the liters were actually placed in the mass of menus possessing.

L'AGIOTAGE 1872

Because, it must be noted: finance is the feudalism of the propertied class. It is on this that it first carries out its raids in capital; but it is always on the proletariat that she perceives the periodic income.

The 3 billion loan was, nevertheless, like half a kick given to the speculative passion of entire country.

This can be judged by noting that the simple ver-
A deposit of 14 francs 50 centimes ensured the possession of 5 francs of annuities, provided, however, that the other installments, divided into twenty monthly payments suels. Gequi means that, for 14 francs 50 centimes, one was certain of possessing, as of July 1872, 5 francs of annuity, the registration of which would not be entirely released only in April 1874.

But the issue price was 84 francs 50 centimes. Well, For nearly two years, the lowest price was 85 fr. 25 c, in 1872, and the highest: 95 fr. 10 c. in 1874'.

It is understandable that such a margin being thus left- Thanks to the game, financiers were able to double their strength tune just with this operation'-'.

* The 5 0/0, during the Si fr. 110 c, gave a real income of 5.90 0/0.

Meanwhile, the 3 0/0, priced between 52 and 56 francs, did not rcprosenlait qu'un revenu irel de 5.50 0/0.

All other stocks were up sharply;
French funds alone remained crushed until the moment of the show.

^ Enlr'autros, Crédit Lyonnais. See my Kings of the republic, 2nd vol., page 274.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 89

This will be even better understood when I-Rai specified that with a payment of 570 million, we secured the entire loan.

Regarding this operation, what crowns
"Were they not woven into the liberator's name, a name which was given to Mr. Thiers, even by Gambetta, who did not I have never been more Genoese than in this circumstance.
- And yet the thing was truly not worth it
No need!

It will perhaps be said that the newspapers, all the Newspapers celebrated Mr. Thiers in unison!

What a great deal! They were all getting paid.

Listen to the adorable bourgeois who signs himself "Fidus," in Le Figaro, and in his books:

"We're starting to talk a lot," he said.
"in the 3 billion loan that Mr. Thiers would

"To pay the Prussians, it would be at such "conditions that he would have in his favor the majority of the "nation; at a low rate, which would allow

"Large benefits; giving generous bonuses"

"TO JOURNALISTS OF ALL COLORS (AS MUCH

"AS possible" (sic).

And Fidus finds this perfectly natural, the honest man.
man !

Listen now to a former State Councillor*:

"I have proof today," he said, "that, under ((under the pretext of publicity, Mr. Thiers lavished his ((largesse to the supporters of his policy) (page 179).

"Mr. Thiers was therefore able to distribute to the bankers"

"quiers, to the Press, the total sums ins-

"criticisms under the heading commissions, the largest

'The Treasury of the League: The finances of the Republic.

00 i/speculation

1872

"portion of those carried s'^i^ the mention indemnity-

"Your various expenses and costs, etc. (135 million); and he was able to

"to do it without him or his ministers being "exposed to giving an account ^ (page 184).

This is how Thiers obtained that the newspapers, the bank and the assembly awarded him-

one day he will be called "liberator of the territory*"

Such ways of acting are truly monstrous trueuses!

Especially since in 1870 the newspapers had, without any shame, thanks to the subsidies of Mr. Bismarck, a^zmé the Morgan loan which, if he was too thin to pay off consciences, had

However, all things considered, as many uses as there are uses

more than that of 1872

Now all that remains for me is to give one last blow to the legend claiming to make people believe in a national subscription success, fueled by enthusiasm, to evidence of the distribution of wealth.

I have already indicated that by paying 570 million, we secured the total of the subscriptions of 3 billion.

So, by paying 5 billion 7/10, we ensured ten times this subscription, or 30 billion.

Well, across France, out of the 4 million approximately the number of owners I mentioned above, he only 934,276 subscribers were found, of which 107,615 foreigners.

And do we want to know in what proportion?

Ricluse operated in 1818.

– See TissoT: Prussian secret police.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 91

Here are the figures:

826.6G1 French people offered... 17 billion 7/10 and 107,013 foreigners offered. 26 – »

Total bids: 43 billion 7/10'

Regarding the 17 billion offered by French However, I must point out that at the end of 1872 and throughout France, the total number of coins minted peses and in force did not reach 13 billion; and regarding the 43 billion offered by the masses subscribers, that this figure far exceeds–
This disrupts the circulation (of gold and silver) worldwide.
which, according to Ad. Sætbeer, is approximately 26 mil–
31 billion liards and, according to Ottomar Haupt, 31 billion (Including China, India and Japan) •.

In any case, the foreigners certainly wanted–
nement, to have their account on the general ledger,
An excellent way, especially a Jewish way, to hold the France held tightly in their hands.

Among these foreigners was the entire Jewish community.
rie whose exploits I have recounted elsewhere: the Nirsch, the Boimhergers, the Cahens, the Sterns, the Rothschilds, the Carnondos, the Erlangers, who, for the most part, exchanged their offer for Legion of Honour crosses
of honor!

They did, in fact, receive the Legion of Honour! And they they pocketed nearly a billion on the two loans.

* Public debt, by SM Gorges, Deputy Director at Ministry of Finance (page 271).

2 SætBEER: Materials for Erläuterung and Beurteilunn der ivirtschaflichen Eddmetallverhältnisse und der Währungs– Frage (2nd edition 1886). – And Statistical Bulletin of the Ministry Ministry of Finance, December 1SS7.

3 The Plois of the Republic.

i) i2 speculation iai-i

This is what both the big business and the great triumph of 1872!

It was indeed, as one might expect, a takeover cosmopolitan finance on the government French, and this in the person of the comedian, he said patriot, who answered in the name of Adolphe Thiers!

I want, however, to mention the excuse that*. a found in his conduct:

He was reportedly tasked with leading an entire island peatland. greedy landowners, whom he could not truly in- To invoke neither honor nor probity, what did you want? What did he do? If not speak to them in the golden language, the only that they could understand.

The argument is specious, I admit; however, I can simply answer this: that being placed facing such criminals and having already shot An entire city, Thiers only had to start again, against these bandits, what he had done against the Com- Paris municipality; or else, submit one's resignation. explaining why!

My answer is obviously too simple... by- Blue! It's in a straight line, and the policy is done. of curves and broken lines. Let's move on.

Besides speculation on land or buildings which, as they developed, promised ruins for the future; alongside the speculation that borrowing had just boosted the stock market more than ever, the com- Retail businesses were bustling, as were restaurants and cafes They were always full.

On the other hand, large-scale trade seemed to be preparing itself Prepare. The supply industry was on high alert in view of the military law which was before the Assembly' and that she discussed in July.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 93

It was, in fact, about a speculation on the rubber that the noise of the Tama- bombing tave spread in April 1872; and it seems that, there, may have been the beginning of all future bad business

It was said that a merchant from Bourbon, having having acquired a very large quantity of rubber, it became apparent- It was known, after paying, that the goods delivered was defective and contained, among other things, "nia- "Foreign third parties increasing its weight."

The seller was none other than the Queen of Mada-Gascar, to whom all the harvested rubber belongs, It was to the queen's steward that the merchant owed adi-esser ses plaintes.

Apparently, he was poorly received and appealed to the vice-consul of France in Tamatave. In short, things seemed to get complicated. to scramble and demanded the dispatch of two ships from war.

The incident did not escalate further, and it was announced, Some time later, that satisfaction had been given born to the representative of France.

I reported this incident because, placed at the de- The goal of the new regime I'm describing is that it has a particular significance, especially in the presence of financial interests that developed later in the colonial sense and where they found themselves mixed credit institutions of a certain size rebuke.

In any case, the loan was made, the military law- The vote was in, and the year was about to end.

Encouraged by the billions that had been raised around her and eager to demonstrate her service Royal against the conservative Republic, the As-

94 Speculation 1872

seemed to have decided to vote for the restitution of the property of the Orleans lamille.

The effect was appalling, but the millions they were nonetheless received.

This propertied bourgeoisie was truly stu- wary of exhibiting her need in this way, at every opportunity. of a royalty.

Moreover, I find his state of mind mer-

I have already mentioned, and who is indeed the perfect example of the prud'homme "having more income than literature-erasure. » I will also often consult his "Ten years of the Republic," a title he gave to one of the his works.

So, Fidus himself points out the stupidity to us. his caste, by telling us his impressions of a visit to the National Assembly; – it was about princes:

"The Duke of Aumale and the Prince of Joinville,
"He writes, they are sitting next to each other."
"You had to know that they were princes (!); we "would never have suspected it, seeing the Duke of Au-
"Mayor shaking hands with her neighbors"
"sins, who bowed no more than before"
"The first person who came along (!), treating all the members of parliament"
"t(as equals (!), etc., etc."

This piece is already quite nice; but here's something better. Again: this is about the mindset of the judiciary. We had seen, in March and April, the trials more or scandalous inoins of Janvier de la Motte and of the gé-General Troc.hu, and, to demonstrate (which was inu-(He also denies that the judiciary was Bonapartist,) Fidus recounts the following small incident:

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 95

"Yesterday, an officer questioned as a witness re-(t pondu: – "Such a man, a major in the service of the emperor-reur..." The Court didn't breathe a sigh of relief (!); presi-"The tooth, the advisors, they're all imperialists (!)."

Finally, the same, demonstrating, unintentionally, the perpetual subservience of power to finance, tell this further:

The government seems determined to act vigorously "fortunately against the Empire... He eliminated the "Gauls and the Future; the Fatherland had to be also "suppressed; it only escaped thanks to Vinter-((vention of Mr. de Soubeyran, who has an interest in it, "near Mr. Pouyer-Quertier, with whom he is " related. "

It's complete, isn't it? Well, the state of es-taken from the wealthy Parisians or provincials, is

As for the rest of the people, for whom one had only prepared a law aimed at reducing the priority of the owner's property in case of bankruptcy (so much so that (thinking of him!), he simply watched silently predicting the future, seeking to guess what might happen might well emerge from these multicolored appetites, at in the middle of which, from time to time and for appearances' sake, A white flag was being waved.

Nevertheless, with the influx of millions, the speculation Having expanded its scope, the concentration of riches had already followed a rapid march.

It is clear that, during the year 1871, the banks had mainly dealt with the first em-war loan; but, from 1872, the press made the sticker paper had begun to function. In short, in two years, the State had borrowed more than 6 billion they Companies byLi:u-approximately 500 million lines.

96 the speculation 15r2

It is understood that these movements had not not carried out without profit for the owners, no not so much by increasing their number, but by concentrating further increasing their wealth.

At the end of 1871, I had indicated a proportion of 30 property owners per hundred inhabitants. At the By the end of 1872, this proportion had been reduced to 21, but these 24 0/0s nonetheless had all the capital, which had reached, as I I said it, 180 billion.

However, it must be taken into account that the year had had been fruitful in births and that deaths had not not too drastically reduced the number of new newcomers to life ^.

However, since the end of the war, especially Since the end of the commune, a swarm of foreigners had descended upon France to live there as French people, but by evading the charges national; that is what the census of

* Here are the details of the issues in 1871 and 1872:

1871 1872

State and city loans 2,508 8/10 3,500

Cretlil establishments (jn=; c/jn 280 /10

Railways and industrial companies »"^ o/i" 193 1/10

Totals 2.6714/10 3.97J 6/10

CG'is Millioni Set

8 In 1872:

Births: 966,000

Death 7'.i3 . 1 '6 V

Increase 17:2, 'JoG

SOL'S THE THIRD REPUBLIC 97

1872, which reported 733,000; this number, we will see, will increase steadily.

However, this already resulted in inequalities and difficulties. as a result, discontent intensified and that, even among the wealthy, people were beginning to... quarrel. Also, next year will see, born-incessantly, or reduce capital, or reduce the consumers.

For the moment, we must summarize as follows: this first three-year period:

Under the threat of war, systematically sought by them, all the property owners had found themselves They agreed to send the masses into battle proletariann(3.

Having been defeated, they had also tacitly acted roped together to subdue the anger of the people.

As soon as the question of who would govern was raised would, that is to say, who would collect the tithe on the national work, the pretexts, that is to say the for-various mules of parasitism, began to re-calf in competition.

The king's pretext had two faces, but the pretextsedentary people took the opportunity to propose a trial of the meadow – Republic text; but a new Tartuffe, having used of his mandate to subsidize a kind of 1 hierism, all those who had held out their satchels to him pen- while the millions had lasted, they protested at first payment delay and started again the struggle.

It is precisely this struggle that we will to assist in the coming period.

e

98 speculation

In the meantime, here's how the situation had evolved. respective classification of owners, employees and destitute:

Percentage

SalariZô owners, destitute

End of 1S69 23 54 23

1870 27 63 10

1871 30 67 3

1872 24 70 6

I make these various proportions more noticeable using graphs in which I can, in Furthermore, introduce the "development of requirements of capital, monopolized by the owners; such is the meaning of the "triangles" contained in the upper part (yellow). (Plate IL)

2. – Multicolored Vultures.

PERIOD 1873–1874–1870

Summary. 1873. – How many landowners? – The vacu- towers. – Bad luck! – Financial groups. – Chambord. – Guarantees! – Two names. – The Seven-Year Term. – Other Colonial preface. – Seillière the fraudster. – The banker Cynical.

180 billion were, as I said, at hands of 24% of the inhabitants of France, and the 76 0/0 remaining, proletarians, workers, livestock, beasts of steel, fire, and blood, docile, asked nothing than to live on the crumbs of these billions.

They were peaceful among themselves, too peaceful. even; they marched to the flattening, to the noise of the monarchical fanfares that were played for them in a large number of departments.

The gang of vultures, meanwhile, was in a frenzy. The Legitimist, Orleanist, or Imperialist propertied classes lists, looked askance at the "new cou-

100 speculation 1873

"ches", those from which the neo-possessed had emerged teeth, which either cannot or will not recommend none of the old castes, they had, quite simply, adorned themselves with the cockade republican.

These people were gradually gathering around Gambetta, for the reason that every owner needs a chief – It's their rage 1 – Napoleon III, being that of the imperialists; Gambord, that of the legitimists; d'Aumale, for Philippe, that of the Orleanists; Thiers, that of the Thierists, the true party of Harlequins; wouldn't there also be gambettors?

We got them and, in front of the ministry where the budget, all appetites began to howl.

Nothing is more entertaining than reminiscing. the combinations, the dream pairings between these various bands.

One day it was the imperialist-legitimist fusion, then the Orlean-Legitimist one, then the Orlean-imperialist.

Gambetta's index, Thiers' index; that, even sometimes unites them, and from this union came the opposite. Tunisianism.

imperial prince by the Count of Chambord; then one had been looking for a daughter from a royal family for Give it to him and replace it in this way, or at least make it easier. the desired adoption.

Suddenly, misfortune befell the impe-Nationalists: Napoleon died at the beginning of January 1873.

He heard moans and cries:

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 401

The emperor is no more! The emperor is dead!
some seriously believed they had started again the famous: "Madame is dying! Madame is dead!"

Consequently, the imperialist property owners were appalled. Possessing is good, but hoarding, who is better, requires prestige, a cover-veraine mitigating the odiousness of "taking too much". The With the sovereign dead, prestige vanished. Although hidden in the railways, in the insti-official and unofficial credit guarantees, they had need for the favors of those in power.

For their part, the Orleanist and Legitimist propertied classes The mists also had their citadels: their financiers ciers were installed in the insurance companies rancid, already numerous, in some paths iron and some banks, but the most powerful were masters in their own house, that is to say, bankers under their own name.

Between these two factions, a mixed staff float-was; this staff was distributed among the various houses that I mentioned: administrators Commissioners here, commissioners there, authorized representatives elsewhere. In this class were the corporation of stockbrokers and the allu- company mettes, which has become a general farm for some months and where, alongside the old names of the bank monarchist, the newcomers appeared of bourgeois finance.

Both loans had found reserves.
well-funded. The ransom loan, in 5%, con came admirably to insurance companies
This is due to the high rate of his income. Maio

6.

10. Speculation 1873

long held in their portfolios and they needed the rise to sink it, with a bonus, into the hands of audience.

Finally, there was something else:

The newly wealthy were restless; unable to core to settling in financial companies, they dreamed of businesses; they had noticed the foreign or colonial tendencies of certain institutions: of the Discount Bank, of the Credit industrial and commercial, of Société Générale, of the Bank of Paris and the Netherlands, of the Credit colonial land, even from the Crédit foncier de France; The latter had, in fact, operations underway. with Egypt. I'll talk about that later.

But everyone was scrambling to get the pre-session, that is to say, the assured success of his speculations.

Well, the secret of the 1872-1873 competitions is conleim entirely in the situation I just described to reveal.

Public opinion? The people's interest? The pros-France's peril? Nonsense! And we'll see about that soon enough.

Meanwhile, Thiers, for whom the fair try is called-milk increasingly the Tliérism, judged that death Napoleon's would allow him to more easily discard the Imperialist finance out of its positions and to house in his place all those he could, or separate beyond Orlean-Legilimist fusion, or attracting them to him in their providing them with what they lacked, namely a refuge financial in exchange for their docility in voting.

Meanwhile, the Count's manifesto Chambord (February 8, 1873) came to set things in motion to the monarchical financiers of both schools; those-They immediately resolved not to leave Thiers the time to turn around and, while helping him to hit commentary, by means of a staff that functioned since the end of 1872 and which was politically called: the Commission of Thirty.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 100

The ultimatum had been given to Thiers, since some time ago, the Rothschilds, in December 1872, had succeeded in pushing for financial their factotum Léon Say.

Shortly before the payment of the fourth billion of the ransom, Alphonse (who, no doubt, was already administrator of the Prussian Central Land Credit), had come to offer to take charge of this operation under less onerous conditions than those of foreign bankers who carried out the previous payments.

Thiers had agreed, but Alphonse added:

– 11 we need a guarantee.

"Which one?" asked Thiers.

– 11. It is important, for our operation, that we let us be assured of a fairly long period of security; we ask that, for a few months, you govern with the right wing.

– Oh! Not for that! was Thiers' reply. and the matter was not concluded',

It is worth repeating here that all these intrigues of money, who dominated power and the assembly, these things only happened between the wealthy and for their own benefit. exclusive interest, that is to say, for the interests of 210/0 of the entire population.

The 76% non-owners watched peacefully.

- Memories of an Imperialist. A Ten-Year Diary.

104 speculation 73

blement, not without some contempt however, when the election of a member of parliament provides them with the opportunity to make to express their opinion.

The assembly had abolished the central town hall of Lyon, after a stormy discussion which, by parenthèse, illuminating Grévy, then president of the association-

Sion (April 1873). Now, the holder of this mayoral office was a schoolteacher named Barodet.

Gambetta took this schoolteacher under his protection. and, despite the attempts made in Paris in favor of Rémusat, a friend of Thiers, Barodet was elected to a vast majority.

What a wonderful pretext! Thiers himself was disbordered by radicalism; it had to end!

Broglie, drowning in debt, was burning to reach the power; Decazes, in the same case, had a thousand combinations in international affairs.

Note these two names clearly: Decazes, in particular, a long-time financial manipulator, condemned along with Rothschild, under the empire, for having The Decazeville forges were poorly managed, and involved in a... dubious mining affair in Spain, administrator of the Spanish Crédit Mobilier, very far ahead in Eastern affairs and a supporter of all capitals Egyptian or conscience-based practices. Decazes will playing for many years, under several ministries, a truly extraordinary role.

In short, the parliamentary comedy had its denouement—Thiers submitted his resignation, which was accepted. and Mac-Mahon was elected in his place.

The government requested by Rothschild to Thiers, some time before, was going to operate.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 105

The people were stunned, but there was nothing to do; he remembered Mac-Mahon's entry all too well in Paris in May 1871.

The imperialist property owners were more consternated than ever.

The new rulers immediately began the prologue to a monarchical restoration, that is—that is to say, a religious restoration.

Under the guise of devout pilgrimages, they wanted—They were counting themselves and there was much talk about the crowds. from Paray-le-Monial (June 29), then songs from Sacred Heart (July).

Meanwhile, they were surrounding Ghambord.

"A man who knows how to do something quickly becomes a master."
"of the budget," they told him, to soften the blow.
lementarism and we added: "Whoever has the budget, it's-"
"That is to say, money is the master and mocks the "Parliament".

But alongside that, "the Duke of Audiffret-Pasquier,
"For the Orleanists, 40 prefectures were asking him for..."
"Money for some needy people, etc..."

If only this man had a shred of sense Morally and honorably, he should have been disgusted; he was.
and demonstrated it, moreover, with a sharp, sudden movement, once again, his flag and by sending, by Thus, the proposals of the speculators to join their hopes (October 27, 1873).

Some were put in a difficult position; for example, the sub-Governor of Crédit Foncier de France, Soubeyran which was on the rise and committed for several million
lions ^

< Ten-year journal, page 234.
2 Ten-year journal, page 229.

106 Speculation - 1873

The province also suffered; in Lyon, the syndic of Stockbrokers disappeared, for a time afterwards, leaving a huge deficit. The stock market had recorded considerable discrepancies and, yet another
At times, one part of the wealthy had dispossessed the other.

The ruling appetites did not give up, for This, to all hope and while awaiting others combinations, they conferred a power of seven years to Mac-Mahon. This was called the seven-year term (19 no-November 1873).

The year had been, in any case, deplorable: it
There had been serious cases of cholera; the re-Colte had been bad; we had to allow the entry of duty-free cereals (September). From-
On the other hand, all the essential items had increased their bids, because of the increases in im-jars on sugar, on coffee, on chicory, on spirits, beers, wines and ciders.

colonial activities. Dupuis had left for Sang-Haï, Delaporte for Cambodia; Lieutenant Fi-ancis Garnier had gone to support them when he unfortunately-fortunately assassinated (December 21, 1873).

This is all in its embryonic stage, but the future will tell. amplify the consequences.

We had speculated excessively throughout the year, in taking advantage of every opportunity: April, May, October 'Bre, November, everything had served as a pretext'.

'The 5 0/0 match alone presented the following discrepancies:

Higher Lower

April 90.35 87.80

May 89.90 85.75

October 93.00 91.43

November 93.15 89.00

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 107

Or, he had, nevertheless, created companies, issues for the year 1873 amounted to 84 million lions. This is just the beginning.

Finally, we will be able to judge how much the stock market games have been fruitful in differences, by taking only the "guiding" values (so called because that their rise or fall leads to that of other values of the same origin), and by referring thereto d(?d discrepancies of 11 francs, as on the Italian and of 5? francs, like on the Turkish one ^

Numerous defeats also occurred; officials had also speculated; a sub-prefect de Saint-Mamers was convicted of bankruptcy fraudulent; a general councillor, mayor, no-silence, etc., of the department of Vaucluse, condemned in the correctional police, then went to court of the assizes; a considerable theft was committed at Discount Counter.

Apart from these vulgar trials marking only the moral level, it is necessary to indicate what I will call them executions, that is to say, inter-

'In 1873:

State and city loans: 6 million 8/10

Credit institutions 10 – 6/10

Industrial Societies 66 – 4/10

Total 83 million 8/10

2 Here are some lectures from 1873:

Higher Lower

3 0/0 59.10 53T25

5 0/0 ,... 93.60 86.40

Egyptian 487.00 452.00

Italian 68.00 57.00

Turkish. 367.00 315.00

108 Speculation

of duty that by the necessities of politics do-damaging. This, moreover, in no way lessens the ind-notorious gentry of the defendants.

First, there was Seillière, a high-ranking baron of the Empire, a fraudster in the contracts it passed with the State.

Seillière committed suicide in 1872. The facts concerning him the accusations dated back to 1869; information had It had begun, but the war had interrupted it. and "in 1871 the pieces of evidence had been..." Trout in the fire at the Palace of Justice. In 1873 (July), the magistrates no longer had before They were just supporting players. But we hoped, during during the trial, some of the government's misdeeds were uncovered. previous nement. A certain flavor was attached at this trial, especially at a time when the Assembly National had just discussed at length an en-search in the military markets of Lyon; there again it was hoped that some polite adversaries would be found to have a fault-tics. Otherwise, if the sense of honor had doon the wrongdoers...and the corruptions to which had given rise to the two liberal loans teurs-

Another example: it was only in 1873 that the Justice dealt with the banker Huguet. Why?
People from his own party say it clearly: he was a Bonapartist; he had had in November 1871 some entre-Views with Thiers. Two years later, everything had changed:
He was bankrupt for two million. One misery !

His story can be summed up in four lines:

Former head teacher at the college in Châteauroux,

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 109

He had founded a banking house and, later, bought a newspaper: V Avenir libéral. He was getting deto issue titles without a guaranteed number and to was then used for playing the stock market. Having been Secretary to Prince Napoleon, he had created for himself... certain relationships and, in 1809, the 1,000 franc note that he had brought back from Châteauroux had multiplied folded, so that in four years, he had achieved in Net profits 553,000 francs.

This unfortunate landowner had, as we can see, the unfortunate hand and if he had plunder at least around thirty million, he wouldn't have been willing to... followed, would have been decorated and perhaps would have become Minister of the Republic!

Finally, amidst all this meddling, everything nature, and, thanks to unacknowledged subsidies, the ones sparingly measured by the princes returned in millions confiscated under the Empire, the others lavished by Thiers eager to to form a party, the property owners were in addition large number.

From 24%, the proportion at the end of 1872, they were reached 28% by the end of 1873, and on their own ap-the 165 billion were leaving, which at the time the value of the nation's capital.

Between the two years, there is a reduction in 15 billion.

Billions of francs

Real estate capital 98 0/10 88 3/10 – 9 7/10

– furniture 73 9/10 58 1/10 – 15 5/10

– financial... 8 3/10 18 8/10 + 10 5/10

Totals 180 2/10 165 5/10 – 14 7/10

7

110 speculation 1573

This reduction was fatal, meaning that it things had to be done, and faced with these realizations—their excesses had fallen away.

Indeed, in 1873 there were many sales and of building executions, many sales of objects and securities, but all of this benefited to finance, which, through speculation, has seen the value of its capital will grow by 10 billion.

The leaders she had inspired had not
Besides, she has no more conscience than she does.

Beulé, who was a minister, himself summarized the tendency of his caste:

"We will stifle the imperialists," he said.
"We will strangle the radicals, we will let (trade will lead to misery, and then we will be—
"We will elect the government we want."

However, it seems that nature intended to support these cynical dispositions: alongside political crises incessant, she brought cholera and the bad harvest.

But finance thrives on what kills others. Also Has its metallic concentration improved significantly?
successful was the famous conjunction of the centers.

And that's why we will soon see the birth of
and to increase the triumph of the most honest parasitism teurs, the one I have called Jewry, and, through him, gave rise to the beautiful Constitution of 1875.

"My voters!" – Spies and bribes. – Chassepot and fusillade. – Crows at Rothschild's. – Spain. – Egypt. – Turkish Roads. – France vassal of Prussia. – Venality. – Honduras. – Dreyfus and guano. – Erlanger. – New concentration.

To shame the financial feudal system, some jacobins, usually referred to under the name of radicals, had "done something" in favor of the proletariat. Of their own deniers, Tolain, Edouard Portails, Cantagrel, Crépet (I'm quoting the most striking ones), had paid the expenses of a large delegation of workers who were going to visit the Vienna Exhibition.

These delegates, upon their return—ironically, re-knowledge or ignorance? – drew up a report which contained, among other means of sheep farming: mutual credit and savings, that is to say everything that X^ejuiverie rejoices more.

Savings alone, widespread among the non-the possessions, would be enough to kill an entire country, because, the day when everyone would have "put aside" and "capital—" "Having read his reserve," it would inevitably happen that To live, we would first have to resume with one hand his saved capital, in order to see it again—to serve, on the other hand, as an interest, and then to resume enclose all or part of this interest to satisfy the basic needs of existence.

M 9 L AGITATING 1874

However, like financial parasites charged with organizing periodic jubilees, he admitted. It follows that saving has no other result than to ensure—to enrich the wealthy and kill the proletariat.

In any case, the radicals' initiative, after to have inspired a few "ha!"s from the owners of power declaring that this "maneuver was a "a means of corrupting universal suffrage," he said. finally at the ministry the idea of reacting immediately con—to the latter.

Indeed, Broglie soon appeared at the podium with an electoral bill that eliminated at once 3.5 million voters (May 15). If we're willing to accept that refer to the figures that begin the cha—electoral frameworks a good portion of the non-teeth.

However, the imperialists, who always dreamed of a appeal to the people (their prince approaching his majority), and who, moreover, were annoyed by their Having suffered previous setbacks, they voted, this time, with the lefts and tumbled the imprudent Broglie. But they were not good merchants, for the the following ministry, presided over by de Gisse and undermined by the Orleanists, he inaugurated against them the more intense persecutions (inquiry into the election of the Nièvre).

They subsequently sought revenge, either by exacerbating the controversies surrounding the in-tempted by the supplier Ferrand, mandated by Gamhetta, to supply Paris, or, later, in pushing towards the discovery of the particularities pushing before giving a measure of the strange corruption of official world under this so-called government ((of gold-moral dr.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 113

We thus learned that the Ministry of War was openly frequented by a number of spies and spies; that a woman having the foot, the hand and the heart in all worlds, had managed to captivate the head of the ministry and to remove from him, for the Vend-documents of interest to Germany national defense security.

Then they talked about bribes.

Some were scandalized and outraged. In 1874, as today, these indignations were hypocrites. The wealthy find venality sublime when it serves their interests, infamous when It harms them.

The mindset of the ruling class is, moreover, clearly described by Fidus; a little before the vote of the Wallon amendment (February 24, 1875), he contained the following:

"Someone told me, scandalized:

"-Do you know that we dared to make offers

"millions?"

"— Alas!" I replied, "I am very sorry about that;
"It wasn't a general who should have been treated like that."
"Offers, but at twenty, not today,"
"But for the last four years!"

My interlocutor, somewhat surprised, replied:

"The fact is that this can be arranged in this way."
"Whenever we want to."

After this admission, anything is possible; pots—

* Imperialist DHM Memories, Volume One, pages 309–310.

114 speculation 1574

Direct bribes and indirect bribes are all the same.
The latter should, in fact, often be preferred.
because the beneficiary can imagine, then,
to be nothing but a speculator!

That being said, I have no difficulty seeing clearly in the intrigues that surrounded the abandonment in 1874 of the Ghassepot rifle and the adoption of the Gras rifle.

Who knows, perhaps these intrigues weren't for something in the resounding suicide of the ban-Quier Larivière (March 1874), founder of a so-the company known as Union métallurgique, which was hunted down at The prosecutor's office, which is hunting him down in the commercial court, and facing bankruptcy?

In any case, and according to what we have known about—
Then, it is certain that, from the fall of Thiers, of the
With Barrail being Minister of War, we had passed huge markets, with a young metallurgist almost ignored, named Secrétan, assisted by a deputy better known, named Gévelot, both being, at surplus, guaranteed by the Rothschild family.

For Secrétan, it was a matter of delivering strong quantities of yellow copper and, for Gévelot, of con-to manufacture metal cartridges^

However, these metal cartridges, already offered to Thiers and Gissey, who had refused, were implicitly accepted under the ministry of the second (1874), so that, far from admitting their deterioration on gunpowder (known effects) (the 1870s and subsequently scientifically demonstrated), on preferred to abandon the Chassepot rifles, having cost < See my Kings of the Republic, second volume, page 194 and following.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC

198 million, and spend 200 million po^~:? cons- to destroy another model (the Gras rifle).

Thus, as one specialist put it: "Instead of thinking about rsL- ((tionnelleraent to make a cartridge for "Our rifle, our ministry had made, in 1874, "the Gras rifle for using the brass cartridge^", which caused the powder to lose a large part of the source of its explosive force, but enriched the speculators authors.

Could it be, by any chance, for this metal operation- lique that Rothschild, the king of all metals (gold, silver, copper, nickel, mercury, etc.) had come ask Thiers "to govern for what- "What months on the right?"

Am I not entitled to believe it, given that I observe that all of this happened under a right-wing ministry and with Rothschild's guarantee, properly and duly noted during a trial between Secrétan and his associated with Laveissière in 1879?

Finally, should we assume that this was as a result serious confidences that Le Figaro, not daring to speak openly, in April 1874, inserted the following parable sells:

"Everyone who passes through Lafayette Street could If you notice that the garden of the Rothschild hotel "is haunted by crows, which have their nest in "the branches of the tall trees..., the most curious ((The thing is that, in none of the gardens of In Paris, you will not notice the presence of this

A kind of bird. – Can we know why? said a gentleman with long hair, whom Ton mistook for "an ornithologist."

'The Waste of the War Budget,' by Albert Hubner

116 Speculation 1874

"– Yes! yes," said the onlookers.

"They have money at Rothschild and they
"They are monitoring their capital."

Sinister, isn't it?

Well, during that same year 1874, the me-wars with Germany persisted in a strange way.

And please note, reader, that each time that the weaponry is being repaired, that is to say, chathat once the trade is exerted on metals, these
The same threats are recurring – real or false.

In short, not content with ruining the Treasury and the contribution vulnerable to fraudulent supplies, the odious Speculation shook the Stock Exchange in order to extract some millions more in the pockets of small property owners.

It was on the Spanish side that, it is said, the black spot, and they were speculating on Spanish funds.

Amédée had abdicated (November 11, 1873), a
A coup d'état followed (the Pavia coup d'état, January 2nd).
(1874), leading to the dictatorship of Serrano, and everything
This was happening in the midst of the Carlist War.
At some point, the discussion turns to the recognition of a Spanish Republic.

Two Latin republics? That was too much! And we announced, in August, the dispatch, by Prussia, of a squadron dre on the coasts of Spain, a kind of intervention recalling, in reverse, the Hohenzouern candidacy, which had muddied the waters in 1870.

Alongside the Camondos, the Oppenheims, the Comp-discount house of the Bank of Paris and the Pays-Bas, it was Pereire who led the grand game of the sotck exchange.

Pereire had old Spanish connections; he had, in the past, lent money to Marshal Prim; threatened by the justice system because of certain operations dubious actions, he had been protected and saved by Napoleon III; the latter had remembered this fact and, in 1870, he had charged him with going to offer Prim 15 million to abandon the Hohenzol candidacy the latter maintained, having apparently received, 10 million Bismarcks.

Pereire was therefore in a position to be well informed; also a Spanish imbroglio and a complication French culture was a double boon for him.

Spanish funds then registered a gap considerable: from 29 francs, the exchange rate of the previous year-tooth, they fell to 16 francs in 1874, then they went back up.

We will return to the consequences of this later. this speculative gamble, but in the meantime, the newspapers in the pay of various financial interests claimed and each in turn denied sending the infamous Prussian squadron on the Spanish coast, this of which, as always, the public paid all the costs.

It even seems that, throughout this entire year, he there may have been a bias towards attracting public attention on foreign matters, to divert it as much as possible of the inner turmoil, because one was brewing, on one side: a definitive constitution, of The other: a monarchical coup d'état.

In July, regarding the foreign affairs budget- The assembly discussed the capitulations. the serious issue was judicial reform Caire in Egypt.

'Memories of an Imperialist, first volume, page 43.

7.

118 i, 'speculation

1874

Egypt, already targeted by Soubeyran, who had sensed all the international importance that he

by the Rothschilds, whose concerns were English.
are no mystery to anyone

To these, Decazes was loui ipvoué yo.w ôtr
Minister, he had left the post of ambassador.
London, where he had been able to learn about combinations English.

Moreover, the plans for hegemony ju.'v s'accevi killed as France advanced from the day when, definitively, the monarchy would no longer exist could be restored.

In England, Disraeli, the man with the meaningful nameficatif, had come to power (February 20, 1874); the
The Eastern Question will soon become more volatile.
For the moment, the focus was on establishing a presence in Egypt.
through judicial reform, a way to prioritize Financiers take precedence over all other creditors.
Gela was directed against France and was supposed to take advantage at Rothschild, only in a few years;
But in such a matter, one must act in time.
and take advantage of the time when a friend is in position to act.

That is why the National Assembly was concerned surrenders.

Alongside Rothschild, Baron Hirsch, who had not wasted his time, he arranged his bat-ries.

Turkish Railways' lot bonds, more commonly known as Turkish lots, prohibited at the beginning of the war, were quietly appearing streets, since 1872, according to the official rating; for the last three years,

r

SCUS THE THIRD REPUBLIC 119

they carried out raids on the stock exchange
*blique.

The stockbrokers' union acknowledged thus the services that Hirsch, Bam- had rendered him shepherd and the Bank of Paris had the Netherlands at the time of war loans.

had allowed itself to launch on all markets of Central Europe in the 1870s; 1871 and 1872; he had thus borrowed, in the name of the Turquie, approximately 400 million to execute check-iron mines; he did not execute them, bought some functions-tionnaires and, thanks to them, was able to pass on to Turkey itself bears some responsibility which was his sole responsibility. Turkey did not pay. Neither did Hirsch, but he won (?) as a result, approximately 200 million.

To what extent could Turkey have been so easily deceived by This Jew? To understand him, one must resort to an anecdote.

After the Franco-Prussian War of 1870, Mr. de Vogué had been sent as ambassador to Constantinople.

At his first hearing, he remarked, with a touch of irony, taken, that the sultan received him seated and him (Vogué) standing like someone who doesn't matter; finally, Seeing that he was not offered a seat, he took a armchair and sat down.

Fury of the sultan, who consults his dragoman...

* Here are the prices for Turkish lots -.

Higher Lower

1872 100.25 151, T0

i.S73 • 184.50 1(19.30

187i 135.00 96.00

120 speculation

1874

telegraphy... and finally learns "that France exists-she was still silent and that she was by no means a vassal of Prussia.

This is how, in 1870, the friends and the slaves sold to Hirsch had explained to the sultan, ignorant like an old Turk, the result of the war Franco-German*.

This is how Hirsch deceived the rulers;
Now we want to know how he deceived the audience ?

Listen to the author of the German pamphlet that I have already had the opportunity to quote:

"The Financial Review, which is here, has," he said,
"statement, offering to prove it in law-te tice, that the Anglo-Bank, when it issued cel
"Turkish buccaneering, had, to bring
"Public opinion, in line with these values, paid for silence"
"or the recommendations of seventy-three days-
"Anals of Vienna. Thus, in the Tagsblatt, 32,000 florins;
"at both presses (the Neue frei Presse and the Alte
"Press"), each receiving 25,000 florins; to the Gazette
"From the suburb, 16,000 florins; to the Monday receipt
"and to the Gazette des étrangers, to each ((12,000 florins; at the Tages press, 10,000 florins.
"Even the German Gazette had to content itself with..."
"ter of 800 florins (Wuttke: The newspapers alle"mands, Leipzig 1875, page 376.)"

Having provided this information, the author, who wrote in 1883, adds:

"Even now, the aforementioned leaves"
"including the \N iener-Algenieine- Zeitung, of crea-((more recent tion, can be purchased medium-
• Memories of an Imperialist, volume 1, pages 311-342.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 121

"Nant finances, wholesale and retail, for all
"a kind of aim and euniploi; with this single exception-
"tion, which they now treat at a better price"
"I know that's the case then. If anyone doubts it, let them..."
"Try it out properly."

These last lines are extremely instructive.
and should inspire great caution in the reader whenever, especially in international matters, the newspapers publish a sensational new story about-before leading to war.

Meanwhile, other speculations related to foreign affairs sometimes ended in scandal, sometimes were preparing for complications.

Towards the end of the empire, the American republics

In 1869, two Jews, Dreyfus and Scheyer, had tasked with issuing bonds at 225 francs, including the funds were intended to be used to build a road of transoceanic iron. The payments made, it There was no railway and there was no more money. As we can see, the processes in the manner Hirsch's methods hardly vary.

Prior to 1873, the titles had been listed at 300 francs; in 1873, they had fallen to 20 francs; in 1874 they were registered at 40 francs.
then to 16. Finally they reached zero.

This case has brought together the most astonishing complicity.
Nantes; not all of them arrived in broad daylight the audience, but the interminable trials, which were started in 1875 and lasted until May 20th 1881, sufficiently shed light on the actions

'Germany and the Railways of the Orient.' Paul Dehn, Munich 1883.

122 T, ' AGIOTING 1874

so that the reader can measure the abyss of irapro-bitédans into which French finance rushed.
The loans contracted by Honduras had raised to 159 million. Of this figure:

The works that served as the pretext for this have employed only 18 million

Commissions, advertising, bank transfers that, etc., have absorbed 70 -

And it is impossible to find a replacement for it. 71 -

Total 150 million

As for the transoceanic railway that was supposed to to be executed, the thin section that existed was not neither exploited nor maintained; it has even entirely disappeared.

We had borrowed money using bonds.
guarantees by mortgage on forests and estates of the Honduran government!

The lawsuits were unfavorable to the bondholders.

in 1881 that the Court of Appeal ruled and condemned the issuing bankers, Dreyfus and Scheyer. Furthermore, there were others involved in this affair, more or less directly, a plenio- minister tenant of Honduras, Mr. Herran, a consul Mr. Pelletier, a banker, Mr. Bischoffs/ieim.

A long and arduous investigation demonstrated The following facts:

In collusion with the bankers, a certain Lefèore was responsible for negotiating the non-securities placed. Huge commissions were promised. we even made a commitment that a certain name- bonds, to be placed in the clientele of

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC

123

intermécliaii-cs, would be drawn and we pro- gave in to fraudulent printing.

For three years, the interested financiers the placement of the loans maintained prices artificial, both through controlled insertions and paid for by them in the press, than by the creation from a fictitious market to the Paris stock exchanges and London.

One of the main agents of these investments was a man named Neymark, a banker and director from the newspaper Le Rentier.

In short, the newspaper Le Droit, from which I borrow these The sickening details, summarized by the following, are part of the device. of the court's ruling, even on television, of the complete judgment that he publishes:

"He who makes people buy, at a simulated price, the "stock market values, for the purpose of obtaining prices"
"Fake, is responsible for the losses experienced"
"those who buy outside of any market"
"public based on these courses."

"It is inadmissible, both legally and morally."
"that such practices are inherent to
"financial affairs: these are fraudulent acts"

From this summary, we can see what the system might have been. theme of the accused. They claimed that everything was permitted in ra^ilxèvQ àe finances, that finance was entitled to a separate code, which was neither conform in accordance with the law, nor in conformity with morality; and it was necessary that the court dot the i's and cross the t's in order to arrive to characterize the fraud.

Do we now understand how a title does •300 francs could drop to 16 francs, then to zero?

124 speculation

iiSli

The court, albeit belatedly, has done its duty;
But have the missing millions been returned?

I do not hesitate to say no; and, at the moment where I am writing these lines, there are certainly people who enjoy these millions, peacefully, as of a legitimately acquired fortune.

The bondholders won their case; the bankers Quiers were convicted; what a fine thing! Let's Therefore, ask the Franco-Egyptian Company^ who, for a time, was in charge of financial service {\) of these loans, which is what happened to the reimbursements made, thanks to the decisions of the court, and let it say (for it must (knowledge) how many millions have been returned on The 159 million obtained from the public?

Another Dreyfus was the hero of another affair, American too, but not yet qualified as Your summer was in Honduras.

This is about Peru and guano. This operation, born in 1870 shortly before the war, has been incubating almost in the shadows until 1874, its main The visible political effect was to provide France with a president, businessman, and then to have, for one part, caused the downfall of the same. I will have to there to come back.

Regarding the year 1874, only the preface to future plots. In March, the newspapers, dier the guanos of Peru, including the Dreyfus brothers were concessionaires; at the end of that same year, Le Temps recorded on page three a protest-signed statement: "Dreyfus brothers, financial agents of the government of Peru" against information

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 125

having announced "that the Peruvian government "recently sold liters of his "last loan to meet the payment of the "next service on its external debts" (December 11, 1874). Six months after this protest-lion, the Peruvian government, after having, it is? True, one last time, paid the coupon of July 1875, permanently suspended its payments.

Amidst these external things, only one colonial affairs seemed to have been settled: that of Tonkin.

After the assassination of Francis Garnier, we had gave the order to immediately withdraw the troops and to evacuate the country (January 1874); then, to In form, a treaty had been concluded (Saigon, March 15). After that, the main explorers had resumed their journey to France, where their grievances did not take long to awaken covetousness among the gold nugget enthusiasts, as well as I will have to Tell us about it later.

In short, the year 1874 had stirred up passions financial; many companies had been founded ideas, especially small railway companies iron'; small companies had also been formed gas companies, coal mines, insurance companies rances: this created opportunities for neo- politicians property owners blacklisted by the old financial system.

It was also during this period that one of the most

* Lille to Valenciennes, Mézidon to Dives; Nan- roads Tais, Saint-Étienne to Saint-Bonnet-le-Cliâleau, Bondy to Aulnay-lès-Bondy; which were added to Picardy and Flanders, Orléans-Rouen, Frévent-Gamaches, etc., all of recent existence.

126 speculation

cynical instruments of speculation, the General Credit French, was formed by the Prussian Baron Erlanger, who, moreover, like all his cronies, had already dabbled in the liberating loans.

In short, the total emissions for the year could amount to 228 million'.

It is therefore not surprising to have to point out a increase in the valuation of national capital nals, alongside a sharp reduction in the number of the property owners; at the end of 1874, instead of 28%, there are only 25 of them left; but they are par- tagent the property of 175 billion ^

Also, those who, during this year, have They traveled throughout France, and rightly so, could have concluded... to feel more comfortable among the wealthy bourgeoisie.

"(I've come," said one of these travelers (an imperial-"list), to take a trip to the provinces; the bour-
"C/eoisie is rich, at least comfortable, but soft and,
"Therefore, selfish, asking only for
"not to be disturbed in her tranquility."

It is the proletarian who will pay for the comforts of this tranquility; taxes will rise like the < State and city emoluments 5 million 5/10

Establishments I credit 4 - 3/10

Industrial Societies 218 - 2/10

Total "228 million 0/10

Billions

End of 1873 End of 1874 Difference

Real estate capital 85 3/10 92 5/10 + 4 2/10(t

- nioliiliers 58 4/10 63 5/10 --5 1 '10

- Iinancieis 18 8/10 19 4/10 -f 0 G/li)

Totals 165 5/10 175 4/10 -{-9 9/10

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 127

income from real estate capital; at 30%, these amount to 2 billion 7/10: this will also be the figure of budgetary expenditures, and these weigh-r-ont more heavily than ever on the 75 0/0 no landowners who vegetate on the land of France.

Summary. 1875. – The Jewish Party. – Spirit of the Constitutiontion. – Fears of war. – The capitulations. – Crash Turkish. – Disraeli buys Suez shares. – Role of Rothschild. – Jules Simon, matchmaker. – Role of Decazes. – The horrible amnesty! – Haitian loan. – Philippart. – The wealthy always concentrate their resources.

Rksimé of the period: Life and death. – Wealth. – Misery. – Republic!?

So far I have only had to distinguish three groups of the propertied classes, describing themselves as: some as legitimists, the other Orleanists, the other imperialists, sui-before the political pretext chosen by each of them.

However, I had indicated that it was in progress.
of training, a fourth group having taken, for any qualifier, the very title of the governing form the general rule that was supposed to be applied. To those people, who called themselves republicans and even republicans Conservatives, Thiers first, then Gambetta, served as a derailment point.

Torn in various directions, sometimes dislocated then re-
This group, once formed, had often displaced the majority-Assembly order.

When it becomes impossible to obtain a monarch was demonstrated by the facts, a fifth group constituted; until then it had been scattered throughout the ranks of the other four, but in 1875, judging that

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 129

The situation was ripe for him; he resolutely adopted-the republicans and even provided them with the armament someone they had always missed.

nation, had long aspired to become a state
'In the State, it is the Israelite party, that is to say a terrifying embodiment of parasitism, knowing to exceed skill to the point of wearing down wear itself even.

Under the monarchy of 1830, this party was already powerful; he had brought about, then devoured the Republic of 1848, because he had been unable to seize it; but,
Then, impatient for the empire of 4852, he had known first, to bribe him, around 1860, by pushing him to economic reform, then to complete it, after 1867, in infiltrating him with the parliamentary virus.

From September 1870 onwards, he had taken advantage of the anarchy to create, in Algeria, a coreligionist electorate naires (Grémieux decree on native Jews); Finally, with the war over, he had pushed himself into all the meaning and always seducing, always usurping, was having risen, through intrigue and corruption, to to have real influence.

Also in 1875, feeling more powerful, he sounded was trying to create an anonymous monarchy with a charter qualified as a republican constitution, under the patronage of which, regularly instituted, it does not would be more afraid of letting himself be guessed.

He will, it is true, cry out against the label "Jew", which has a derogatory, popular meaning; but it will be for the sake of appearances, and it will still work; but its acts will cause the transformation of the various monarchist groups in a very Catholic party

130 speculation

187 days

compact and very clear (the old historical parasitism) absolutely determined to regain the upper hand.

Then he, impassive, will slip into Yov-Poitou-Tunism, which he will flood without uttering a word; then he will raise Gambetta without the latter being aware of it-science, but it will break it at its first resistance.

While awaiting the development of this struggle, he
For the moment, the focus was on manufacturing

But this instrument was a parliamentary regime very JNDaized, a kind of seesaw system by means of which one could demonstrate to the layers end^—first geological strata, then, if necessary, to the popular, which, under the name of changing ministers each of them could, in turn, "taste—"verner," that is, to plunder the country; but Judah himself reserved the right to plunder later on all the dOuoHQ?, governesses.

Moreover, I could not better summarize the spirit of this constitution, which by relating here an amendment rejected without discussion, it was so contrary in the immoral sense of the deliberative majority; this, The amendment was worded as follows:

a The following cannot be elected as members of parliament: {" individuals "responsible for a supply, concession or undertaking "for the government, with the exception of those who "They obtained them through public tender;

"2" Directors, administrators or agents, to "any title of industrial companies or ((financial, when they enjoy a privilege, "of a guarantee or a subsidy from the State.

"Any decision which, during its term of office, incurs ((one of the incapacities stipulated above, will be re—

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 131

"resigned and declared as such by the Chamber" "Members of Parliament."

"Any contract entered into by the government with "a member of parliament, within six months of the expi—"The term of his mandate is null and void by operation of law."

These measures, proposed by Hervé de Saisy, were perfectly honest. "Reading them is enough, "A newspaper said, 'to make them grow back.'"

So, indeed, four-fifths of the Ace— it seemed they had become ineligible!

However, the people, who watched all this without He understood it too well, and was, on the other hand, frightened of threats of war which, from time to time, emerge newspapers were being geeked.

They pointed out to him that, since the month of February (immediately after the vote on the amendment) (Wallon dement), the Germans and the Jews were returned to Alsace in droves.

Furthermore, and specifically since the end of the year Previously, they also told him, every morning, the incidents of the trial that Bismarck had brought to of Arnim.

It's an old habit of the Prussian chancellor to im- to be prioritized, in the form of judicial reports the "stories" that he would not know, "according to the rules of art", to introduce into a diplomatic protocol- tick.

The masses thus learned that d'Arnim was "put to the bag "for having been, or too conciliatory with the French powers, or not soMp/e enough with the pou- Prussian views.

All of this kept minds in a sort of of nerve irritation.

132 speculation

Furthermore, since December 1874, the Republic- The Spanish republic had ended; Alfonso XII was mounted on the throne; more or less it was said that the in- German influence had not been foreign to this restoration; this gave rise to inter- articles pathetic on Alphonse and on d'Arnim.

These two "copy topics" charmed the agio- tenants: with Alphonse, they were shaking up the es- Pagnols; with d'Arnim and the belli- commentaries "They were stirring up the French funds."

It was in the midst of this chaos that the Assembly had was called upon to draft constitutional laws.

From the very beginning of the discussions, that is to say- to say on January 30, 1875, the amendment of the professor Wallon definitively established the label republican bl- tre 352), but the label mattered little to the Jewish community; It was the organization that concerned her; however, this the organization was supposed to last until December.

dage, an unnamed and unacknowledged trafficking of consciences, interests, positions, to such an extent that a great The number of life senators did not owe their election to tion than to his docile votes.

Here, chronology is a torch; it is for-
What needs to be noted is the sequence of events:

January having "named" the "Republic",
The organization of the Senate took place in February.
recruitment of this body, initially entrusted to suffrage

< Here are the extreme courses

Further down

Spanish Explorer 2', 00 15, (K1

5 0/0 French 106.40 99.00

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 133

universal, by a "first vote, was removed from him by a second, on the orders of Mac-Mahon himself recommended by Broglie.

In May, the electoral law (district ballot-(ment) was adopted, then in July the law on the reports from public authorities.

After which we voted to create several railway lines, decided their allocation to the companies railway engineering (among others the line of great belt), then adopted a host of laws fis-wedges, established the definitive monopoly on matches, Finally, we had organized a regime of dessîtc/^es, this eternal preoccupation of property parasites agricultural; I'm leaving some out, no doubt, and not the least interesting, to arrive at the most relevant vote
- taken away at the last minute, in the very middle of the senatorial election, the supreme act of the constituents - and which concerned judicial reform in Egypt.

I have already said a few words on this question; he
It is important to complete them here by summarizing the situation.
international tion.

From March onwards, Léon Say, the man of Jews (along with Decazes) had infiltrated the Ministry of finances, despite Buffett's visible reluctance and of Dufaure who feared in him the influence of the Rothschild.

Almost immediately, in May, the Times had teased French patriotism, by revealing the machinations of Germany, but in such a grave tone that it was dangerous seemed real; all the more so since the Ministry of War continued to be surrounded by spies, both male and female. copper and cartridge merchants, of whom I have signaled the danger.

8

134 Speculation 1875

However, Russia was paying close attention to the intrigues. English and it seems to result from documents emanating from various sources, that she intervened with the Prusseel prevented any aggression against France.

Public opinion, barely calmed on this point, was once again... A moved calf: the Eastern Question had just been reborn. in the form of a double insurrection in Herzegovina Govine and in Bosnia.

Almost immediately, Turkey cut in half the payment of the arrears of his debt; this hurt a lot of interest and the effect produced on the Stock Exchange was considerable'.

The very day before the liquidation that the Bour-siers make, every two weeks, on Turkish funds (September 30), the Marquis de Plæuc, sub-governor-head of the Bank of France, but also administrator trader of the Ottoman Bank and, in addition, member of parliament, member of the tenure committee, request it was necessary to question the government about "the false news " :

"I believe," he said, "that fake news does not "are not sent by the military belligerents, "but rather by the stock market belligerents, that is to say-" "To say, by speculators. i>

Four days later, bankruptcy was a certainty. sky!

Anglo-French, whose profits are almost ex-
Here are the prices in 1870:

Plus liaut Plus lins

6 0/0 Turkish (bonds) 350.00 130.00

5 0/0 Debt (noral 44.75 22.70

Lots tiiiTS 13;), 00 55,00

Egyptian 1100.00 380.00

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 135

comprised exclusively of Turkish bankruptcies, is always in communication with London and Gons-tanlinople.

As a result, a multitude of small landowners were ruined.
for having believed the tall tales of the newspapers sold to financiers and reassuring statements from Marquis of Plæuc, came to considerably expand-the number of the non-property owners; double dan-because these outcasts still form the majority more venal than the people.

However, the English, who collaborated with the cosmopolitan finance (Hirsch among others), had brought about the cataclysm, managed to give themselves the appearances of having saved Turkey and, consequently, defended "savings"!

On this occasion, they put into practice a veri-Jewish jubilee table.

"A distinguished member of the British Parliament-
"nice," the newspapers said, Mr. Hamond, considering that a temporary reduction in service of Turkish debt had the flaw of allowing to persist an "illusory hope of being paid one day", proposed quite plainly to Turkey to make definitive its reduction. "The Gate," said Hamond, "has not actually received all the money she owed,
"The issue price of the securities has rarely reached the-
"Above 40 to 42% of the borrowed capital."

As a result of this reasoning, Hamond calculated a commission of 10% and permanently limited at 52 1/2 0/0 the capital charge of which Turkey at-ment, too, would be reduced in the same proportion.

136 speculation

1875

But what Hamond didn't say was that the difference, thus cancelled, had been paid by the public and had remained in the hands of financiers, as of benefit; Hamond himself established that these the sums amounted to over 44 million pounds sterling, that is to say more than one billion francs! In short, the arrangements were made.

I must add here that it is precisely in the conventions imposed on Turkey on this occasion, that Hirsch subsequently drew his main resources to evade the execution of his own.

As if to encourage him in this direction, a castragus (to which I do not believe he is unrelated), suddenly erupted in Russia. A financier named Strousberg, who ran a bank in Moscow ready for trade, but having large interests engaged in the construction of Russian railways, towards the Balkans, was bankrupt, then imprisoned for delte=^. This financial catastrophe shook the propertied classes of Russia and Germany, but served Hirsch's purposes wonderfully and those from England.

However, she hastened to take advantage of these disturbances—almost simultaneous and perhaps deliberate actions, for to pull off a major coup against Egypt, that is to say on the Suez Canal, its most direct route towards his Indian empire.

Indeed, France was soon learning, with a profound astonishment, that Minister Disraeli had acquired, for the English government, him—mcme, all Suez Canal shares including the The viceroy had, it is true, alienated the coupons (delegations), but which represented no less its company.

To fully understand this, it is important to remember that the annual tribute paid to Turkey by Egypt had been assigned to guarantee one of the Ottoman debts subject to reduction by half.

Now, it just so happened that the Egyptian Treasury—Yours was dry and the Suez shares were in the hands of the viceroy's resources were not available to him, because they did not generate interest, a circumstance which hindered their alienation through market processes.

Thus England was able to argue at the Khedive that she was doing him a real service by giving money in exchange for his paper, but, in the end, at the same time, she would be able to boast, to the sultan, for having "improved the credit of his tributaries." "Silence." Therefore, how could His Highness... resist "these excellent friends" when, through the intervention of Hirsch's mediator, they will prefer that the construction of the Ottoman roads will never take place!

This Jewish-backed move on Suez shares was commenced since the previous year and the disasters of financial factors, which favored him, were so important that one cannot help but denounce the concert.

Well, Decazes was fully aware of all this. He had even invited Lesseps to reduce transport fares, as the Government desired, which, of the same time, in turn, provided savings to English trade. This, in turn, could cause the canal's shares to fall; double a means of bargaining with the viceroy and acquiring to laugh at other stocks at low prices.

138 Speculation 1875

Decazes also knew that Société Générale and Even Soubeyran from Crédit Foncier was looking for to get ahead of the share purchase pursued by the Anglo-French; and Decazes had said nothing.

However, by a coincidence that was probably just as significant... to mention that the Turkish bankruptcy, and the bankruptcy of the Russian financier, and suddenly, Peru was going to suspend his payments. What does he have to do with this? "The error?" one might say. It's quite simple: the Society

Dreyfus was heavily involved in Peruvian finances.
Vienna, for which she was in charge from the sale of guano.

But this very service had triggered a quarrel between these various participants and this circle consistency, tightening its availability, dismissed its competition. As for Soubeyran, already deeply entangled with Egypt, he did not seem to be a threat.
until further notice.

Do we understand, now, how all these Promiscuities of interests may have contributed to the triumph-What about English land grabs? Do we understand that these land grabs, souring relations between the fewples and capable of pushing them into battle, established-feels the undeniable solidarity of speculation and massacres?

well-connected, Decazes knew everything and he read it;
!) resuming the shady attitude he had previously displayed in July of the previous year, when,

'Here are the courses:'

Pliif liaut broadcast further down

Peruvian emprinls 82 1/2 ii 77 1/2 32 1/2 2V »

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 139

citing pending negotiations, he declared he to be able to speak freely about the reform judicial.

First, he was questioned unofficially, then, on the occasion of his ministry's budget, we had insisted against any change in the capitula-existing tions.

Decazes had once again been biased, had conveniently entrenched in "diplomatic silence"; during At that time, the English, Rothschild and Hirsch acted-knew.

By December 1875, it was all over: there was no more than to deliver the final blow in favor of the foreigner, against French interests. Decazes gave it.
That is why, in the final days of the assembly,
he proposed a final agreement for his vote

As in 1874, he isolated the international question nationally, he spoke of diplomatic niceties and, He timidly requested a five-year trial. the agreement, he said, is revocable and it is "without hazard " .

Indeed, Rothschild needed less than five years. And we will see this clearly later in my stories.

So, this is clear: although at first glance This Suez affair seemed to concern only the her only property owners, on the contrary, were intimate-linked to the interests of the entire nation.

On the one hand, the more the wealthy divested themselves of their assets The more their appetites grew between them, and Therefore, the heavier the burdens became on non-possessors; on the other hand, in a question Internationally, there is always the threat of a struggle army; but the propertyless are almost the only ones to pay the costs, not only with their labor vail, but still with their lives.

140 speculation

That is why, faced with this double danger, I had to to severely criticize the attitude of Minister Decazes.

In any case, the discussion opened in the first days of December; the mass of the assembly The wheat was so unwilling to follow the minister, that-driven by a speech from Pascal Duprat, which, After Rouvier, she fought against the convention, she adjourned its decision until the second deliberation.

In the meantime, the election of the 75 senators in- with changes expected to take place, all desires are being sought. were in turmoil.

Here appears one of the leaders of the Jewish party: Jules Switzerland, said Simon. He was the one who became the broker. consciences and the great elector of the 75.

One historian wrote: "thanks to skillful negotiators "According to Jules Simon's recommendations, an agreement was reached." "with the far right; the Orleanist candidates" "were ousted and 60 seats went to the republicans" a political rivalry!

But the writer I am quoting undoubtedly gives to Orleanist and Republican words have a meaning special, because all you have to do is browse the list of elected officials, to discover such a mix of names, that in Apart from the qualification of Jewish detachment, one does not find no acceptable distinction.

Regrettable incidents also occurred, the voting operations;

It was so indisputable that the votes resulted

- Berthezéne, History of the Third Republic.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 141

of a deal concluded, which, in the open court, on December 15th-December, two days before the second Uberaiion Mr. [Name], judicial reform in Egypt, a member of parliament: Peris had to complain of intimidation and espionage. swimming exercises:

"Yes," he said, "at the bailiffs' bench, there was "MPs who were checking to see if their colleagues, "who had received lists in envelopes, put them- "Talent in the ballot box."

And finally, as the cancellation of the was being requested ballot, Gambella, intervening personally, obtained its validation.

In short, when, on December 17, the second deliberation- The ration was on the agenda, the seat of the assembly was done; few words were spoken, none of the The opposing speakers did not return to the attack, and Tirard having said: "The assembly can vote on the convention "If not with enthusiasm, then at least without regret." The vote was won by 445 votes against 144.

So, we had just prepared all the difficulties Anglo-Egyptian cults that were expected to clutter the following years, while having saved "the Re-public." We had saved her, yes! But like certain- Some cashiers "save" the till.

Without the combinations of the English and the two Rothschild of London and Paris, it is believed to be true- ment" that the usefulness (debatable, moreover) of a jurisdiction a more convenient diction for foreign traffickers in Decazes, the compromising tenacity he brought to obtain the vote of the assembly?

For many years, the capitulations have existed were with their flaws and qualities; how

142 speculation

1875

was it that, only from the day when the interests of Rothschild and the English were involved, we are told occupied with them?

I was quite right to say earlier that Decazes was to play an extraordinary role, and it is true—inexplicably, given his dubious past like his own, and actions that certainly did not This should not have escaped everyone's notice, the press venal, possessed by the Jewish community, could have been continual—how to praise him, adore him, even overdo it, without a A courageous writer who signs his articles, a only once unmasked!

Alas! How can we expect the non-pos- class to sedative, kept far from the mysteries of government, could ever understand the strange way in which one manages his life and his work?

She is deceived in every circumstance; if something rare bill seems likely to grant him a shadow of satisfaction, the press shows him this shadow as reality; it was thus with the discussions on teaching and on the treatment of primary school teachers – general electorate—poor man (July). This was also the case with the report, remained platonic, from the deputy Talion, on "the state "intellectual and moral of the working classes" (de-December).

Yet the property owners, even when they are rejected by the government, they always get what—at least moral compensation.

Thus, the imperialists, badly battered by the de-

* I must, however, mention the Corsair of 1876, which led, On this subject, a serious and reasoned campaign.

Pulé Savary – who became famous for it – had seen acquit one of their leaders, Paul de Gassagnac, prosecuted for a press offense; later they had the satisfaction of seeing restored, on the Vendôme column dome, torn down by the Paris Commune, the statue of Napoleon's death.

Everything changes when it comes to the non-possessing. – the people – here is an example:

At the end of the session, Alfred Naquet, deputy, had initial draft of an amnesty proposal (de- cembrej, precisely in favor of the men of the Commune. He had just learned that real He denounced torture that was being carried out on Yîle Nou. and further argued that the families of the deceased porters were dying of hunger in France; to which the police to see, brazenly lying (we found out later), responded by denying the reported torture and the Assembly whole wheat, howling and wild, crushing with its Disregarding the proposal and its author, he voted on the question. prior.

No one was mistaken about the true objective being pursued. by the deputy; they had shouted to him directly terms that "it was an electoral maneuver 9 (the general elections were about to take place); and those, who voiced such a reproach, did not even seem not realizing that the mere act of formulating it accuses knows their hatred against the landless masses calling only for a law of appeasement.

There was something even better: a member of parliament named Lepère, declared cynically, having himself signed with Naquet, two years earlier, a proposal that seemed to- blabable, he would have been willing to support it further, if that- this had not separated from its co-signatories, in acting alone.' So these are the deportees punished for the indiscipline of a member of parliament-'

144 Speculation 1875

This is how, in the year 1875, those who represented less than a quarter of the population, managed the interests of the other three-quarters, to-

Having thus "worked", the Assembly adjourned after lifting the state of siege (December 31, 1875), because of the election period.

As one might expect, these twelve months, difficult to people, but gentle to parasites, had benefited from the latter.

The Constitution and the Convention relating to E-Egypt had caused enough variation in the values listed in Scholarship so that they would have been spared from resorting to the shows, which always ask some preparation; also, the figure of these last did not reach 82 million throughout the year; However, if the quantity was small, on the other hand, Let's see what the quality was:

It is now, in fact, that the General Credit French is truly entering the fray; this year, its shares jumped from 000 francs to 1,100 francs; twice its capital.

But do we want to know why this increase?

Because at that moment he launched a hated loan—he is completely safe; at least, he shouts it, he affirms it. firm; even Auguste Vitu signs a two-part article columns in Le Figaro of June 26, 1875, where he dô—

* State and city loans 7 niillions 3/1(1

Credit institutions. 17 – 5/10

Industrial Societies 56 – 7/10

Total 81 raillions 5/10

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 145

declares that "financial operations include "higher insights than the simple notion of "pecuniary profits and that the Haili loan is "not only a very high-value investment,
"but, again, it offers a complete example of a contract"
"between a foreign government and the parliamentarians—
"links. y"

Six months later, the famous bond issued at 426.50, at 476.25, it was struggling amid difficulties inextricable and, the following year, it fell to 54 francs!

The outlaws of the French General Credit Bank did not were no less audacious, especially since the
The real operators were hiding, then, in the behind the scenes; they have hardly appeared in the public eye.
that, later, in correctional trials.

Meanwhile, they had guessed how much the
The new Jewish regime was going to be favorable to them; pen-
For nearly ten years, all the scams targeting them will be permitted; they will even be able to do so with impunity.
"hiring front men and disappearing at the time of "(pay their debts.)"

And while they, the property owners, are doing this, the parquet floor, "careful" not to see them, will discover easily some unfortunate Auvergnats, some pro-letaries, wanting, like their masters, to enter by breaking into the classroom which we greet and which, however-dant, will have done only on a much smaller scale what the "à'iQix'^ QncoYQ unknown to.\i General French Credit-
"They will have done it on a very large scale."

The (Breakers of Auvergne), such was the designation of a sort of black band), rented bou-
"ticks, to lend credence to their maneuvers,

9

44B Speculation 1875

"and, at the moment when the seller was demanding payment of the price of "his merchandise, he found himself facing an acquired-(. (. new reur who had taken the place of the first "buyer, on whom it was now taxable"
"To lay hands on..."

Those who had committed this crime were, one of them: mu-one: a technician, the other: a launderer^ the other: a carpenter^ etc.

Well! But! The people from the French General Credit-
The Americans had done nothing else, in full view of the prosecutor's office, which did not prosecute them!

Why this difference?

This example saves me the trouble of looking for others.

the fall of Swiss mortgage lenders (yet another eiablis-serenity of complete rest, pledged on land), then the
The first great achievements of a Belgian named Pkilippart, who, waving a Franco-Dutch bank, was burning to walk in the footsteps of Langrand-Dumon-ceau.

Given how eventful the year had been, I am not surprised-^ Paris; Criminal Court presided over by Mr. Lancelin.

December 14, 1875. (Indictment of the Public Prosecutor of the Republic)
blique.)

- Here is a summary of the main differences in the bear between-Registered at the official price during the year 1873:

Higher Lower

Honduras 30 11

Swiss mortgage loan 223 francs - 17.4 francs

Franco-L. Bank (old) 723,363

Dutch (news 893,286)

"... (old 190 73

Furniture credit | ^,^.,j^ ^^^ ^

Spanish furniture credit 1,530 .'io0

Transatlantic company 417 210

100 denarii of Aiizin.... 12,750 8,200

IWveyron Coal Mines 710 G80

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 147

I will not bind the reader by teaching him that the number the property had decreased further, but that the
Their fortunes had increased.

From 25%, the figure from 1874, their number had fallen at 23% at the end of 1875; but, instead of 175 million liards, as before, they had to par-tager 185 billion'.

All categories had won: the owner-

The industrialist has his tools, the financier his portfolio.

It is true, we had proliferated a lot during lately; but the wealthy had done anonymously, because marriages had dimmed; for them, the sacred act of fatherhood was not that a supplement to the hiccups of the orgy; moreover, death having destroyed more, thus balanced the A reckoning with the debauchery.

But that's not all; the propertyless have increased, alas! From 75 0/0 they are now 77 0/0, and The coming Jewish fever will make them even bigger.

It will thus kill work and the worker, that is It's possible, but capital will survive; that's enough!

SUMMARY OF THE PERIOD.

And now we need to measure all the Five years have passed. Speculation, I said, decimates the population.

End of 1874 End of 1885 Difference

Capital real estate 92 5/10 96 6/10 -f- 4 1/10

- furniture 63 5/10 65 9/10 + 2 4/10

- financial 19 4/10 22 9/10 - 3 5/10

Totals 175 4/10 ' 185 4/10 + 10 0/10

148

THE AGROTION

1873

I can prove it:

The following table contains the successive figures. of the annual population, deaths, and births and their ratios reduced to one hundred.

Report,

Report

Years

Population

Death

per 100
(1)

Births

per 100
(1)

Late 1870

38,332,029

1,139,472

2.96 0/0

1,013,102

2.63 0/0

– 1871....

36,030,865

1,271,010

3.31 0/0

826,121

2.15 0/0

– 1872....

36,203,801

793,064

2.20 0/0

966,000

2.68 0/0

– 1873....

36,379,277

815,425

2.25 0/0

990.901

2.74 0/0

– 1874....

36,555,604

819,377

2.25 0/0

995,704

2.74 0/0

– 1875....

36,732,785

823,349

2.25 0/0

1,000,530

2.74 0/0

This table clearly shows that the increase
The population has remained stable for three years.
born.

I also said that speculation diminished the number of property owners and increased that of the pro-letaires.

Here is the proof:

The following table contains figures, including the brutality leaves no room for denial: '

Late 1870.

– 1871.

– 1872.

– 1873.

– 1874.

– 1875.

Population

38,332,620

36,030,865

36,203,801

36,379,277

36,555,004

36,732,785

Chiles

absolutes

10,350,000

10,809,000

8,689,000

10,186,000

9,139,000

8,082,000

Rapp'

p. 100

Its owners

ChilTres Rapp

P

27 0/0 27,983,000

30 0/0 2.5,222,000

24 0/0 27,515,000

28 0/0
25 0/0
22 0/0

26,193,000
27,416,000
28,652,000

100

73 0/0
70 0/0
76 0/0
72 0/0
75 0/0
78 0/0

The percentage ratios are taken from the population from the beginning of the year, because it is on this one that the variations occurred, while the population in one year is only the result of these variations.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC

140

As we can see, the proletariat n^e in norabre as suffering.

Finally, here is the concentration walk of fortune:

The following table highlights this:

End of 1570

- 1R71,
- 187>,
- 1873

– 187:;. .

Average

Capitaus

Xorahra

by

(Iraocs) of owners possessing

113,440,300,000

10,650,000

10,961 fr.

142.002.:100,000

10,809,000

13,142 fr.

180,376, ;100,000

8,689,000

20,759 Ir.

165.092, 500,000

10,186,000

16,257 fr.

175,400,000,000

9,139,000

19,193 fr.

185,451,600,000

8,081,000

22.9 i5 fr.

It is clear that the stated average is unique.
designed to allow the eye to follow the Progression: in fact, the concentration of wealth, in 1875, for example, yielded 12,000 arch-mill-Lions, possessing a combined 95 billion; the menus possessing the 90 mil- dividing among themselves of the remaining liards, this last figure can provide a scale ranging from 10,000 francs, for some to 1,000 or even 100 francs, for the others.

As for the proletarian, he has nothing and, not only-
He lacks all reserves at the end of the year, but Yet, he was unable to satisfy all his needs.

Here, moreover, is the progression of the three categories:

Proportion for rent

Po

ssiiJants

Salaries

Doiu)

1870

27

63

10

1871

30

67

3

1872

24

70

1873

28

67

5

1874

24

70

6

1875

26

71

7

150 speculation

This process will be easier to follow by studying the following graph:

Black represents the proportion of the destitute;
The red one is that of the employees;
Yellow, finally, the color of the wealthy:
(Plate III.)

The upper triangles attest to V increase capital and its requirements.

As we can see, capitalist feudalism expropriates its peers, the wealthy, who are falling more and more or in wage labor or in destitution. This last—To deny, however, is a relatively slow process.

Besides, what would the people have to complain about? Is it that the owners did not give him:

The Republic?

3. — Evohé! Jehovah!

Period 1876–1877–1878.

SUMMARY. 1876. – The elections. – What was being said in the drawing rooms. – Electoral corruption! – The Socialist “DEBATES.” – Republican votes. – Pani-questions. – The Jubilee and the Academy of Moral Sciences.

– India. – Order reigns “in the Balkans”! –Almost Dupe! – Land registry. – Parliamentary milieu. – In Egypt. –Tunisian Dawn.– Song from the “Gazette”.

– The notary profession. – Finances for New Caledonia. – Philip-part and the railways. – Good ideas from Wilson. – Workers' Congress. – Flood of wealth. – The foreigners.

Finally, the people were going to give their opinion on the famous national assembly, which he had “elected in one day–of misfortune,” according to the general expression–element adopted by the newspapers.

A few weeks apart, the res- suffrage treint, exclusively reserved for the wealthy, was going to complete the Senate (January 30) and the unified suffrage–

152 Speculation 1876

universal, the prerogative of the people, would choose deputies tés (February 20).

The Jewish constitution would therefore be able to function tionner .

During the preparatory period, the psychological situation The chronology of the propertied classes is interesting to be studied.

The monarchical salons groaned over the “ma- “Rechal;” they said things like these there:

“It is absolutely led by three ambitious people” “skillful ones who want to continue to dominate under his a name: Mr. the Duke Decazcs, Mr. the Marquis d'Har- a court and Mr. Léon Renault, Prefect of Police; the latter,
“Not only is he skilled, but he knows a lot of “things and dazzled the marshal by the disclosure”
“of police secrets which also show him to be indis-“Thinkable that vigilant. As for the marshal, he does not

The salons were more right than they thought.
because these three men, not only ambitious, but also speculators, then got their hands on the worst "financial affairs."

Elsewhere, people were shedding tears over the monarchist party.

It was observed that "everything that was not legitimatemiste PUR had moved to Orléans*. »

But, curiously enough, one could also distinguish, between these latter, as if among the bundles of sticks: "the governor-
"parliamentary nement," it was written, "being the gov-
"government of mediocrity, everything that is me"diocre and hopes to arrive through parliamentarism"
"is an Orleanist."

"Memories of an Imperialist, Volume 2, page 2."

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 153

And that was indeed it; the propertied bourgeois, those that the par[^]iy[^]f/ had seduced, that is to say the class where ignorance was sharpened by appetites, had set out on the path to power.

As always, and especially in electoral matters, Money will play the main role. To be elected, the
The owner will flatter and deceive the people.

As for money, we won't hide it.
Not even.

Moreover, the bourgeois finds this legitimate; the the greatest crime he committed against Guizot (who nevertheless-dant had big ones on what served as his con-Science is not about having more than anyone else, France was demoralized; no! It was having a Jih to which the emperor had lent 77,500 francs! There you have it.
something that would never be forgiven!

The Orleanists themselves felt so well the the strength of this accusation, which they denied; to which they were told: Here are the receipts! And for-
What is this terror? Because, having borrowed 77,500 francs to the emperor necessarily implied, For these servant souls, a recognition is being worked leading by a change of political conviction (?)
tick.

Come on! First of all, it would have been necessary to lend some convictions to Guizot! Only there would have been the true generosity.

In any case, all of this boils down to a Accusation of venality, I could draw this conclusion from it—conclusion that at least, for the property owners of Orléans-nists, venality had something criminal about it; Unfortunately, I immediately found the proof.
that they themselves did not hesitate to practice it.

9.

154 Speculation 1876

The author of the Ten-Year-Old's Journal wrote what followed shortly after the elections:

"Count P... has become a deputy for the department-te tement of , where he has large properties. Now,
"To get appointed, he understood that the best
"The process was the American process, the frank and "Universal corruption. He was followed in his rounds by servants laden with bags (money, and it was distributed to all the voters)
"5 francs, 10 francs, 15 francs, depending on the value"
"of man. Every peasant who presented himself at his
"The castle received a hundred-sou coin. For the "people who could not be paid off in this way, there were (table open, every day. He fought like this)
"of magnificence with Mr. Wilson, the great elect-
"the leader of Touraine who, during his last election
"tion, provided a meal to more than 1,800 people.

"There were protests, and he..."

"It was only a matter of time before he (Mr. de P...) was invalidated; the electoral corruption was blatant and easy to detect.
(prove. He was saved by the Duke of Bisaccia,
"who is on fairly good terms with Gambetta, and him

"made it clear that it would be political to ad-

"to put a few more or less insignificant deputies in charge...;
"He convinced Gambetta, and Mr. de P... sits on the "Room, ready, like all the men of his "Party, to allow everything to the Republicans, rather
"t(than to let the empire return."

However, the American methods were not spec-

1 Memories of an Imperialist, Volume 2, pages 35-30, under The date: June 1876,

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 155

named Valéry, head of a shipping company, and sponsor of a due diligence company,
"had arranged for the transport and feeding, free of charge, of the "delegates on one of his ships, from where they had "returned, under escort, to the ballot; seats at the
"On the contrary, diligence had been refused to hostile voters*.

And that's how many hostile landowners had the popular interests succeeded? in making themselves the representatives.

While some were thus usurping the su-
In truth, the others, those of the Jewish party, threw smoke and mirrors for the masses.

The day after the Senate election, the Journal of the Debais, a proven organ of financial feudalism, being certain, now, of having at his devotion a legion of satisfied people, had inserted without blaming him (which scandalized Le Figaro) a manifesto described as socialist.

This was a minimum list of reforms extracted of the ancient doctrines, to which have been attributed,
since then, the name of garantiesme.

All one had to do was read through this manifesto and the program attached to guess following which The calculations the Jewish party highlighted, and also, what advantages he promised himself he would gain from it.

The Jabin Well disaster (February 4th) had just... to cause 200 victims in Saint-Étienne, and perhaps as many widows and three times as many orphans. Suddenly,
This posed a question for minds and hearts.
that is to say, in the most eloquent way, the famous and a formidable social question. It was impossible to 'Official Journal of March 24, 1876, cited by André Daniel:'

The political year 1576, page 87.

156 speculation

capital to feign indifference to this "inevitability" work.

Subscriptions, heartfelt phrases, nothing was missing. And to top it all off, precisely Two days after the disaster, the following was added: publication of the manifesto.

It is instructive to note some of its formulas, because the Jewish community will know how to use it, not for the people, but against him, and solely for her-even.

Here is the first one:

Freedom of association, workers' retirement: Indeed, the Jewish community will invoke them to multiply the companies a;?o»?/mes; to lend to corporatives, in order to encourage their savings, and then manage it; to prevent the takeover of the railways: for buying votes, because soon there will be almost no more industrial or even financial companies that do not had decided to create (illusory) pensions (moreover), in favor of its employees, workers, etc.

I still find:

Disappearance of unemployment; decrease in strikes:

Here the program only required the study of resources, which the propertied classes had never rejected since their inception; only the studies were never finished, and the reforms never opposed tunes Meanwhile, the proletarians mou- However, let us note, it must have appeared good for the Jewish community to show that some socialists were capable of renouncing the use of force and to the sycophancy of the strikes.

I then note:

Vocational, higher, and primary education.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC (lî)?

So many words that Jewish culture will know wonderfullynira skilled workers she does not ask better; as for the rest, she will forge excellent ones.

weapons of war.

Under the guise of higher education, she sought-will try to get rid of its Catholic co-parasites liques which, by law of the olfi-e and of demand, were his competitors.

And, under the guise of primary education, she will subsidize the proletarian schoolteacher, that she will believe that, in this way, they can transform into a docile voter.

Finally, we added:

Income and capital tax.

The program called for experimentation here.
partial, which was given to him: (tax on the coupons); but I must say that the Jewish community will not see never any objection to the generalization of this system-theme, because it implies the recognition of property and consolidates, by increasing it, its power See hoarder and hoarder. Only, the Catholic property owners, those who personally enjoy nelally of their domains, those which are uniquely-ment j7roprfé?'« landowners and, not speculators or Speculators reject it because they alone experience it.
would see the reducing effects, unless they resign themselves to selling their buildings, which is the secret purpose of the Jewish community.

As for the rest, there is no cause for concern because that, through speculation, she is certain to escape all taxes.

I would point out, in this regard, that the struggle on this Tax reform has always been a parliamentary matter and has,

158 Speculation 1876

above all, it revealed to the Jewish party that there were still too many of rural landowners in the Chamber of Deputies.

Rural people will, in fact, return to the language politics, and we will see this adjective used again.
rallying word.

The authors of this program were undoubtedly

They were carrying them, perhaps too generously.
to believe that the law could triumph by the only prestige of his justice; if they were deceived, it is not not their fault; but today, history has However, they will have to acknowledge that the publication of their manifesto, which must have filled them with joy at the time, has only really benefited the deceitful and those who...
They must not have long sentences lined up by them to maintain that the following one, because it is still true:

"It is undeniable," the manifesto stated, "that the "Misery is now the lot of most of the "French; not only does she reign within the a proletariat of the cities, but its empire extends "also on these rural populations, including
"We usually praise good fortune, under the guise of..."
"text that they are nominally the owners of"
"at least, most of the na-
"national."

Hey, good people! All the parasites knew that, as well as you; but, if there were no more of the poor, could votes be bought?
and to govern anonymously, that is to say, irresponsibly
Sahlement, by the will of the people

This is the psychological environment in which one mania "the electoral material".

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 1 09

In Paris, in the provinces, the people were taken away from means of anti-clericalism ^ under the mask of which Hidden within it was capital, that is to say, parasitism.

It was an easy task, because the people see and count.
what the Church takes from him to baptize him, to marry him and 1 bury, but he does not count, nor see what the octroi and other indirect taxes take from him on his daily ration.

On the other hand, the small landowner was equally duped ly; for, if he can easily put on his bill the tax or the excise duty, being able to acknowledge the payment of it ment, how would he go about justifying the ins-Description of religious expenses?

All of this was skillfully exploited; and, as the
The word "republic" was its summary for the masses

These people, being numerous, voted for whoever
He claimed to be a republican.

This is how and why the elections of fe-February and those of March (supplementary election), gave a qualified Republican majority.

But, I must make this very clear here: even
The republican label would have completely failed.
if previous speculation had not increased the number of proletarians.

Indeed, the masses are not fooled by the phrase-mongers, only when she feels unhappy with life, and I will establish, with figures, that the majority acquired in 1876 was a majority of non-teeth.

That this majority was duped, that it appointed
They are traitors, without a doubt, since,
Only the wealthy could cope with the challenges.

160 Speculation 1876

electoral thoughts; but what is important to establish, that is because the votes went by a large majority to the word: RéjMblleque, which embodies in the eyes of the people Hope for the better and reform for the worse.

Unfortunately, it is not possible to comto compare the votes of 1876 with those of 1871; I have already said, that the official documents relating to this last-last year do not exist anywhere.

But it is possible to focus the examination on the plebiscite of 1870; it is possible, also, to simply divide the results of 1876, by both Republican and non-Republican votes, which will correspond to the yes and no votes of the plebiscite-quoted.

However, this work, done and compared with the various statistiques that I have sown throughout my comments
In previous cases, I obtained the following findings: that I had to bring back to a common unit, for to facilitate comparisons.

Here is the table:

1570 1876

Sui

■Ifi00 voters i SulîVaqes.

registered:

820

759

Abslcation

i.000 voters:
MajoriLc

s

180

9.41

Total

l.dU0

l.fi00

On

850

Sia

L Li0

40 5

Tolai

1^000 majority:

Posodonts

I didn't own it! Ld

Total

...l.00;)

On

600

400

200

800

... 1,000

1.0110

I

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 161

I can express more vividly in view of the scope of these figures.

The following figures (Plate IV) reproduce
All L3 details are indicated in the previous table:

The two circles, of equal radius, symbolize the Electoral France; a smaller circle is framed in the largest; the white band that separates them represents the abstentions. A black line divides the area of the inner circle or two unequal parts: majority, minority. The colored sections above and below express the proportion of property owners (yellow) and the non-owners (red). Compare:
In 1876, the forces were almost equal! See how—Well, in the intention of the people, the propertied classes, who, in 1870, were in the majority within the majority, were repelled! Nevertheless, there is still, in the minority, a number of non-José-c?a??^s or ignorant or fanatical or hired servants.

In any case, the examination of the figures and the figures allow us to establish:

1» That in 1876 Electoral thesis was more larger than in 1870, which resulted in a more high proportion of abstentions.

2'' That in 1876 the majority was less compact than in 1870, which resulted in a spirit of revolt more powerful among minorities.

posed the majority of Republican voters, following a proportion that is precisely the inverse of that recorded in 1870, a consequence of the displacement of wealth generated by speculation and eloquent commentary moment of the triumph of the Jewish party.

Now, if I'm talking about voters, I'll move on to elected officials.

162 AGIOTING 1876

I discover there are 98% owners, that is to say, a almost unanimity of diametrical personal interests fundamentally opposed to the aspirations of those whose candidates captured the votes.

That is why, in assemblies (such as,
(Moreover, I will often have the opportunity to prove it), Everything is about competition, rivalries, to the point that the
The votes themselves are merely acts of comedy.
to entertain the public and deceive the country.

Nevertheless, the former parties defeated at these Sieclions were truly dismayed; even Those who had helped the defeat became frightened; "the
"The rich are leaving Paris," they said.

Naturally, at the Stock Exchange, they took advantage of the opportunity-sion to rake in a few million in a coup
'K' switch

The people, however, were truly joyful; they believed really that "it was going to work better".

From abroad, the Jewish party sent him messages compliments along these lines:

"Sunday's elections were an act of "Popular wisdom that should be of value to France"
<i the esteem and congratulations of all peoples "civilized. The French nation wants peace in "1876, as she wanted it in 1871; but in
"In 1871, the Republic meant war, while "that today it is the monarchy which would be the

> Memories of an imperialist, 2nd volume, pages 13-14.
2. Here are the public lectures from February 17th to 29th.

February 17th lesson (See below)

3 0/0 67.75 65.00

50/0 103.20 101.80

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 16.]

"War. Now, the Republic is peace."

"It ensured both externally and internally."

And who was speaking like that? The Berlin Post, the same one newspaper that had breathed life into the war a few months previously... and which will begin again.

Le Temps ' inserted all of this gravely, in pre-first column, for the edification of its readers ultra-wealthy bourgeois.

On the same day, the official sheet printed the minutes of a session of the Academy of Sciences these moral and political meetings, held the day before the elections (February 19th), and where the "scholars" had indirectly echoes certain concerns financial.

Since the previous year, there had been a lot of talk bankruptcy procedures as a means of settling state debts; the following was cited halving of Turkish funds, "arranged" by England; people were talking about Spain, they spoke of the Republic of Haiti, of Peru, of Egypt: some even claimed that it was This is an excellent application for the Mosaic Jubilee.

The Jewish party was worried; it was willing, without To speak of myself, to rejoice in others; but not to be rejoiced in. himself.

But it was about time; a professor from the faculty of Douai law had sent a memorandum "devoted to define and study the consequences of the legislation-mosaic structure with regard to land ownership" "A steel, the laws, slavery."

Gela could go further; the people were

'Issue of February 25, 1876.

164 speculation

1876

"unleashed"; it was therefore necessary, with authority, to demolish at minus the dogmatic majesty.

This is what MA Franck was tasked with.

After noting that the author of the memorandum had taking as its starting point the work of Moses Maimonide, the academician pointed out that this author The Jew had not made a historical critique, but of the theory, and that in reality the jubilee only had one utopian character; "it was never a question, "added Mr. Frank, to hand over the documents and to do "returning alienated lands to their original state" "of the family or tribe...; after captivity, "If there were some attempts made, they did not succeed" "not... Joseph speaks of the jubilee and the sabba- "tic... as a kind of archaeological curiosity- " logic. "

I do not need to correct the corrections of here.
My dear Franck, but I must point out: the
On February 19th, he engaged in "opportunistic" science.

Meanwhile, on March 4, a Dufaure- ministry
With Ricard-Marcère having taken office, the Cham-Bres were able, a few days later, to open their session, under the blessing of Jehovah!

This is no joke: the chief rabbi had announced to all of France "public prayers" solemn and religious services are held in all synagogues.
"to call down the blessings of heaven upon the Republic-
"French republic, on our dear and beloved "peerage"; but he had added: "Israelites and a Frenchman (the distinction deserves to be noted)
"You will associate with... etc..."

'See the newspaper Le Temps, issue of March 11, 1876, 1' page, News of the day. – Catholic prayers were,

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 165

Under such auspices, he could not escape
Versailles, what grand and beautiful things!!

Meanwhile, the prayers were not rather say that devastating floods were coming ruin the populations of the Seine basin and the Marne; later, at several points of the

This allowed "public subscriptions" to to parade the benefactors.

Apart from these ills, which affected far more the proletarians rather than the propertied classes, TinLérieur was calm, but the outside world held many surprises.

Disraeli, the minister for the Jews, had just demas-that its batteries; we were finally going to understand why-what the Prince of Wales had been wandering in Asia since the year-born last; a bill had just been deposited in London, tending to have Queen Victoria declared imperial-Princess of India! (March 10).

Like William gathering the Empire in front the ruined walls of Paris, Victoria wanted to belt-to place the imperial crown before the financial ruins world leaders, to become the equal of the Tsar, to eyes of the Indians, as this naively put it Jewish upstart: Disraeli, who was to be, for this reason, created Earl of Beasconfield * /

That being said, is it necessary to say that the in-Eastern intrigues were going to, more than ever, be com-
To complicate matters and lead to further killings?

Despite singing of republican peace; old, ferocious methods should not cease for also announced, but in two lines, on page 2, at the end of the supplementary report of the Chamln-e.

* Political year 1876^ page 137.

166 speculation

îSTr,

That's it; we'll dress them in the "fashion of the day," that's all.
Everything. We'll even put rosettes on the protocols.
and it is in the name of liberal reforms that we have-will murder people.

Already a lot of publicity has been given to a circu-Rashid Pasha's diplomatic circle had marked the step towards "pacifying" Herzegovina and Bosnia (February 13): This circular announced a whole plan reforms that, decidedly, France could not « Full and complete religious freedom » (this for the Jews, of course): "abolition of farm leases" (in order to facilitate the purchase of land for Jews); "improved-agricultural tion of the farmers)) (this is for the public ignorant, but, for waters that know, swindle certain).

How can a Republican minister be blamed?

Such a program? It wouldn't be Decazes, that's for sure. on: besides, he was too busy with Egypt and with the unification of its debt (May 7), too often questioned by "curious" people, as we shall see soon, to discuss "principles".

In the meantime, here's how pacification was achieved in the Balkans, to the great delight of speculators who, on each new piece of news (known in advance by them), were raising vast sums of money on the stock market:

At the beginning of May, we learned everything about blow, from Thessaloniki (city of 100,000 inhabitants, including 20,000 Jews), that two consuls had just been assassinated; one was the German consul, the other that of France, specifically the representatives of two powers that it was a matter of ostensibly training-blement in a general melee about the

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 167

Balkans. As for the English consul, no one had thought about touching it.

A few days later, the first announcement was made suicide, then the assassination of Abdul-Aziz, and people were saying: It's his fault! Why hadn't he, since February? "The promised reforms haven't been implemented yet?" He also read in the newspapers: "The fall of Abdul-Aziz produced the best effect in Constantinople, etc.

In short, in June and July, the situation was tense; In Serbia and Bulgaria, there is looting, theft, and murder. It's on fire.

England, asked to cooperate in the pacification from the insurgent provinces, responds "that she assists" and that it "only reserves its own interests".

In August, a new sultan, Murad V, was pro-

Abdul-Iamid; then and until the end of the year,
We fight, we debate, we muddy the waters...
tions, and one remains bewildered amidst the uncertainties the most intense with regard to general peace.

Such is the outcome of the imperial coronation of Victoria; her worthy minister, Disraeli, still had added to his glory a thick sheet of Turco- blood Slavic, to drown the corpses of starving Indians there which Great Britain had relied upon.

While these things were happening, everything!
between the Adriatic and the Black Sea, France sat-related to certain bourgeois developments of the most in-interesting.

The Jewish community was up to its old tricks.

We know that all human parties have, ordinarilyrement, a duped ally and a terrible child.

168 speculation 1576

But the Jewish party, being only almost human hand, was only entitled to an almost terrible child^
It was Alfred Naquet, and an almost gullible ally,
It was Gambetta.

The latter was beginning to frighten the pos-sedentary people of varying sizes; one could read in their newspapers "that we could very well get along with Mr. Gambetta.

What? Didn't this one have a very... program?
similar, moreover, to that of Rashid Pasha, of which Abdul-Aziz had died: "Secular education, autonomy, income tax, etc., which re-brought to mind the famous "socialist" manifesto
"List," published in February by the Journal des Débats, and whose Jewish party was beginning to play an agreeable role-ly. Here's what we read in the newspapers on April 15:

"A good example to follow:"

((A year ago, Mademoiselle de Rothschild obtained-
She received her teaching diploma three days ago.
It was Miss Oppenheim, the banker's daughter.
of that name.

"These two young girls, who nevertheless received or who will receive from their parents a dowry that is not These two young girls are not small, they are colossal—the wealthy, did not back down from the WORK required for the rank of schoolteacher; they They were not afraid to take an exam. That's where a noble example they set for young girls of the bourgeois class. Will this example be imitated*?... "

< L'Opinion, April 1, 1876.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 109

The only thing missing from this spiel is the address of the ins-secular institution (perhaps Israeli), where the demoi-bourgeois saddles will be able to imitate young ladies de Rothschild and Oppenheim.

"What admirable directors!" as Drumont would say.

And Gambetta, increasingly captivated, fell asleep on his hobbyhorse, stammered between two glasses of Château-Laffitte or de Moût: "Clericalism, that's it the enemy!

If the child from Cahors, adopted by the Jewish community, on the other hand, the bourgeoisie accepted the en-Naquet, the son of Avignon, stirred up terror, even among his own people, at least outwardly.

Naquet had a sniffed it out (and it was no longer difficult to do so). (at the moment), the conflicting interests of Rothschild and of Soubeyran, with regard to Egypt. Rothschild wanted to get the portfolio cheaply Egyptian Land Credit \ Soubeyran wanted the sell it for a high price, or, failing that, keep it and take action. for his own account.

Furthermore, for having lent too much to the viceroy and in order to conceal this anti-status operation to keep quiet, Crédit foncier had inaugurated, for a long time-time, to no longer make, in cash, his mortgage loans French librarians, or at least he levied a surcharge usury in %, taking the following steps:

He lent bonds at par, whatever the the price of these securities; but, like these bonds to make them out of metal, or, if they were given as payment, add a balancing payment equal to the difference between the quoted price and the par price.

10

170 Speculation 1876

Thus, in exchange for his mortgage, a borrower
For example, the lender received 100,000 francs in obligations on par, but it turned out, immediately, that those 100,000 francs were only worth 75,000 francs. Crédit Foncier then bought them from him and, alongside the the counter from which the 100,000 francs in paper, the public found another where, against this On the same paper, he was paid 75,000 francs.

These processes had two results:

On the one hand, Crédit foncier could put on his books, which he had lent out for 10 million, I suppose, when he had actually only paid 7 million 1/2.

On the other hand, the borrower, who only received 3/4 while owing 4/4, paying, moreover, on these 4/4 interest, amortization and commission, of- will try to make up for his loss.

However, like a borrower at Crédit foncier e5[, necessarily, a property owner, like property owners, They alone have the monopoly on providing accommodation, in exchange for payment. the non-possessing mass, it is on this last what was the ultimate burden of the wear and tear on mortgage loans? because the owner always gets reimbursed- ser i^es frais par le /oca^afre; d'où augmentation des rents; that if the borrowing owner could not to hold out, so it was seized, sold, ruined and al- milk will increase the number of the non-possessed.

All of this provided a great theme to develop. before the parliamentary public.

As for Soubeyran, he knew he was threatened and was aware that, if duty alone had inspired the judiciary, he would have been long ago translated before her, if only to explain to her how, lending to the viceroy at a rate of 18 to 24 0/0.' His books only recorded a rate of 7 to 8 0/0.

It was in these circumstances that Naquet, apparently-speaking from the podium on May 19, he requested the nomination of a commission of inquiry to examine the si-Mortgage Credit's operation.

Léon Say, the finance minister, was targeted directly. How! His control was not enough So not? The governor and deputy governor of Weren't Crédit Foncier under his control? What Did we want more?

And this new Baron Louis, carried away in his "Jewish instinct," he added.

"There is no more private or public credit, there is no more
More serious matters are possible if Parliament
thus creates commissions of inquiry to examine
to undermine the situation of companies.

And from various parts of the Chamber, cries arose:

– That's obvious!

Then, as Léon Say invoked "inspection
"and government oversight," Gambetta who was watching him, too, called out to him: under the responsibility-the ability of the minister, who made the man retreat convinced and suggested he let slip a Possible recall of current governors.

Rothschild did not want the ruin of Crédit Fond-cement – he would have lost there – he only wanted that his rival in Egypt, his colleague on the council of ad-Northern Railway Ministry, Soubeyran, was threatened enough to enter into composition.

There is a name, in French, for this kind of ma-

< Official Journal^ session of May 19, 1876 (Chamber).
2 Same Official Journal.

472 the speculation is76

nœuvre; but Soubeyran had the appetites and the robust shoulders; he also had a lot of pe-little papers of the governing world; also, during
For a long time, he offered strong resistance to the accrons.

Meanwhile, Léon Say had stated "that there is no
"had no values that were better guaranteed"
"that the obligations of Crédit Foncier and obtained
"the referral of the Naquet proposal to the commission-parliamentary initiative. It was a sort of of burial.

The bourgeois public, naturally corrupt at morally, he unleashed his fury against Naquet, immediately suspected of "attempting" to profit.

Soubeyran, curious or worried, had asked an interview with his colleague (because he was also a member of parliament).
But "faced with the insinuations of the newspapers etc."
"Speculators said that Soubeyran wanted
"buy Naquet*", he had to refuse all en-Trevue and made his refusal public by means of a letter inserted in the Corsair. Gela does not mean It's not much in the end, but it paints a unique picture.
moral level of the "milieu" and the "surroundings of the parliamentary world.

During his defense, Léon Say had, however pronounced the following words:

"I am now able to tell you "that a liquidation of the portfolio's assets is "company, which could harm I don't know
"which third parties, but which does not monopolize in any way
"The interests of Crédit Foncier."

'Le Corsaire of May 24, 1876, 2nd page, 5th column.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 173

This wallet was precisely the wallet Egyptian, on whom Rothschild needed to get hold of, and as for the "third party bearer" it was Crédit Agricole^

The Egyptian portfolio being thus more or less A journalist, directly indicated by the minister, came to dot the i's and cross the t's. According to this organ of the Duke Decazes, as another newspaper called him ^,
"Only Prussian agents were capable, in "attacking Crédit Foncier, ((to hinder the reor-
"Organization of Egypt's finances."

more relentless against Soubeyran, the bound/elm financial institution, whose director was indeed born in Cologne, was frequently given the epithet Prussian; – it was quite useless; but, by this means, “the attention- tion was found to be "diverted from Soubeyran" and carried about Duke Decazes.

He, in particular, was responsible for designating one members of the Egyptian debt commission yours, which was to operate near Ishmael, and his The choice had fallen on a former prefect: Mr. de Bli- gnières, which I will have to talk about later.

Naquet took advantage of this opportunity to demonstrate that he had never ceased to defend the interests who had suggested his first intervention alongside Léon Say.

He wrote Decazes a letter announcing that his aim was to obtain from him the declaration that this "commissioner would have no character of

'See Josseau's Plea, at Tequi's, bookseller, iSS'Ês-

2 The Universal Monitor.

•^ The Corsair.

10.

174 speculation

ist;

('. official, in order to avoid the responsibility of the "France was involved and the Egyptian operation..." K became a repeat of the Mexican operation.

Nothing could have pleased Decazes more and to the Rothschilds that the goal pursued by Naquet.

It was indeed feared that a commissioner official did not have to answer to the minister and that, if this minister were no longer Decazes... (the times were so uncertain), one was led to know of things that we wanted to hide.

However, it was necessary that this same clerk-with authority; and this goal was sufficiently achieved by ministerial choice.

I feel no embarrassment in unmasking here the
A comedy that France fell for, because all the resulting revelations have been, fromthen, solemnly confirmed by facts that he
It is impossible to deny.

It was therefore in a perfectly amiable manner (as well as as noted in the newspapers of the time, that Decazes came to deliver the desired statement.

"The government," he said, "is not sending any officials"
"French official in Egypt; therefore, he has no
"mission to be entrusted to him... he confines himself, conforming-
"lies in the desire expressed by the government"
"Egyptian, to designate him, I swear to be placed, with "other foreign commissioners, at the head of the "Newly organized cash register, a man offering"
"All guarantees of competence and integrity. That is "the khedive who appoints him; the responsibility of the
"The French government is therefore not committed to au-
"One degree." (Very good.)

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 175

So, as you can see, it's clear, we will be able to to plunder all titleholders, small landowners
In France, the government will not have to intervene.

The English, on the other hand, did the exact opposite; they defended their nationals; thus they became the masters of Egypt; and it is not I who reveals England's attitude; it is Decazes himself who Even so; listen to him:

"Mr. Gave's report," he said, "notes that the
"The English government has assumed its responsibility"bility."

Then the minister concluded with a few places diplomatic relations and "the incident was closed".

However, the minister had let slip a sentence ((next to)) and therefore imprudent.

In order to better demonstrate the efficiency of the clerks-international missions "without an official mandate", he had said:

"Foreign capital invested in Tunisia"
"were, ten years ago, very compromised. They have "were saved by a commission chaired by a a French commissioner appointed by the bey, on the "Presentation of the French government."

The allusion was truly unfortunate, because, at at the moment Decazes spoke like that, the noises
the most troublesome ones began to run on Khe-Redine, the Bey's prime minister, and the debt generated
The Tunisian market lost a third of its listed value.
In the shadows, indeed, the famous an operation that was supposed to lead us to the protectorate

* Analytical report of the session of May 29, 1876.
(Chamber of Deputies).
2 Same report.

176 speculation

1876

Did Decazes know something? Even if it was malice?
Is this irony or a threat to unsuspecting adversaries?

In any case, in the two weeks that followed his easy triumph, people started talking again about a another question regarding Egyptian affairs and Ottomans. This time, the names of Thiers were mentioned. and Pascal Duprat.

Gela had driven Lockroy crazy; at all Price, we must keep Decazes! Is Pascal Du-Prat might be targeting the ministry by any chance? From there, an ar-senseless article in Le Rappel, declaring that Decazes him was quite equal, but, worried about what would
He preferred to keep Decazes as his successor.

The "politicking" simply stemmed from to dictate nonsense to a witty man.

The Corsair, astonished, wondered why.
Instead of explaining himself, Lockroy sent his witnesses...
The matter had no further consequences, nor, moreover, that
The arrest was announced, but Lockroy lost there.
A perfect opportunity to remain silent.

I reported this incident because it still gives

As soon as we touched on a slightly sensitive issue
In finance, all sensitivities were at play.
awakening...

Were there not, in times past, wives of Caesars who prostituted themselves in public squares, and then,
"They didn't want to be suspected?" Well, since the triumph of the Jewish party, everyone wanted to have married Caesar.

If the truth in financial matters were
The speakers, on the other hand, trembled every time that a proposal, based on perfectly p/cx- advances

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 177

Whether invigorating or useless, it presented itself to them, they welcomed it-milk with open arms, because it filled hours at the podium, columns in the daysnaux.

Naquet, as we recall, had concluded with a "Firework" on the amnesty of the previous session; the
The firecracker was taken up again from the very beginning of the new (May); the
The Chamber even adopted a form of amnesty, which The Senate clearly could not swallow what had place.

However, something more po- was attempted sitif; a cessation of proceedings was demanded for facts relating to the communal insurrection of 1871.
Yes, after five years we were still continuing!
All that came out of it were quibbles and narrow-mindedness; the
The House once again adopted a bill (no-(vembre), ordering the cessation while authorizing the continuation... in short, a special Chinese-style thing-composed specifically for the use of the Senate, and which, this-Meanwhile, he did not find favor with his intellect-agency of bourgeois owners (December).

Result: a ministerial crisis; we had avoided it.
for Eastern affairs, because the public is ignorant-would reveal the hidden agendas; but the fact of the potential-
The sequels were too obvious, hence: no cover-up.
possible.

In light of this outcome, one might believe that it had been preceded by equally heated discussions that they had been abundant. No; as soon as he epigrams. It was like being back in the Fronde, with one more or one less Mazarin, depending on the way Dufaure will be judged

178 speculation

1876

The serious Gazette de France published things? like these, which Le Figaro hastened to reproduce :

I

"Marcère. – Ah, it's a difficult job,

"Christophle. – To be radically moderate;

"Marcere. – To charm the fields and the town,

"Christophle. – The schoolteacher and the priest I

"Marceres. – Twenty Christophles and twenty Marceres."

"Christophle. – That would hardly suffice."

"Marcere. – Ah! How sweet he is..."

"Christophle. – ... to be in business.

"Together. – But what torment it causes."

II

"Marcere. – To establish a republic

"Christophle. – Without republican principles,

"Marcere. – Yet, to prove that one is logical,

"Christophle. – Fighting with dummies."

"Marcere. – To tell the Communard: you are a brother,

"Christophle. – By putting him on trial."

"Marcere. – Ah! How sweet he is

"Together. – But what torment it causes."

III

"Marcère. – Still stamping his feet,

"Christophle. – To exclaim: Long live progress!"

"Marcere. – Say: Hope! to the populace,

"Christophle. – To reassure the old interests."

"Marcere. – To entertain a thousand chimeras;

"Christophle. – Anticipate a sad outcome.

"Marcere. – Ah! How handsome he is..."

"Christophle. – ... To be in business.

< Both. – But what torment it causes.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 179

It was quite gallant, as you can see.

It is nonetheless true that this contributed to to overthrow Dufaure and Marcère who, oh triumph of Jehovah! gave way to Jules Simon, Decazes and Say remaining in place, of course! (December 15).

However, while making this connection, I
I would not swear that the true cause of the reversal– Dufaure's actions should not rather be attributed to his circular of October, in which, moved by frequent disasters which the notary profession had been reporting since For a year the show, he had, as a guard of the seals, ordered the attorneys general to "re–
"to monitor and stimulate the severity of the chambers of "Discipline of notaries."

Indeed, this is because the great Jewish movement of public limited companies had started from the implementation of the constitution adopted in 1875;
if, during this last year, the emissions had not exceeded 82 million in 1876 had reached nearly half a billion!

millions would grow; the notaries knew it better than anyone, and, before this rising tide— Aunt of gold, their probity had... slipped... slipped like the virtue of a young girl. That was what had This makes Dufaure groan, who, moreover, in the middle of his bourgeois flaws, he showed, in a mood of a mastiff, I don't know what vague instinct, not both fairness and social cleanliness.

< In 1876:

State and city loans: 224 million 7/10

Credit institutions 45 — 4/10

Industrial companies 220 — 8/10

Total 490 million 9/10

180 Speculation 1876

The financial dealings were not elsewhere not designed to reassure him.

He had seen the Otto-style meddling behind the scenes mans and gypsies; he saw Spain ready to reduce its external debt service by a third (may).

He noted the suspensions of payments from governments of Haiti and Peru. The latter even, on the occasion of the guano and Dreyfus affairs, gave rise to scandalous pieces, the presi— Grévy, the den of the Chamber of Deputies, was and continued to be, publicly, the lawyer and the advisor.

He also saw Le Figaro lending its advertising to the Parisian bank for the Scanda— issue use of a Bank of New Caledonia (created in 1874) and of which Erlanger was a major shareholder; the issuer, after publishing a long study on the collective situation of colonial banks, after having detailed the composition of their council of over— watch (official functions), dared to add:

"This is not a show that we make;
a, it's a favor, a privilege, that we grant
"to those who will be the first to send their members"
"sion*".

as well as the feudalism of the landowners, which was thinking of replace the missing amnesty!

On the other hand, Philippart, riding his Franco-Dutch bank, and already flirting with the Crédit Mobilier where he sometimes met Pereire, Erlanger was sometimes the subject of much discussion; He had, during the year, filled the newspapers

- Figaro of December 10 and 24, 1876 (Suppléments).

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 181

of his railway projects; even, in In December, the parliamentary committee, which was... cupait de la ligne des Charentes, must have heard "The great financier."

Where did this admiration come from?

Simon Philippart had devised a crucial plan— Jewish in nature, because it consisted less in creating than in buy, mark up and resell.

To speculate in order to establish small lines, more or less artificially constructed, but existing enough to be a threat to the major companies; to dangle before the eyes of these latter— nières a large new network, made with scattered sections, and then sold to the highest bidder, Such was the conception of the financial showman who, coal mines in Hainaut, had jumped at the Bank Franco-Dutch.

Quite skillfully, moreover, Philippart cares— He knows the republican passions, declaring that he organized the battle against the major companies railway engineering.

This feudal system, which had had a hand in the cons— The constitution of 1875 was, for its part, determined to struggle, delighted that she was taking to the field financial, because, while attributing the catastrophe— a trophy to come to the agents of the established regime, she could once again take a levy on the nation that she wanted to save (!), all the millions necessary then to overcome it through misery.

Therefore, it is not surprising to note that in no— In November, the parliamentary brains had almost small lines granted or to be granted and that a u

182 speculation

1876 commission of twenty-two members, appointed on Daniel Wilson's initiative was preparing to re- to push two draft agreements proposed by the Minister of Public Works (Gristophle), for entrusting the Northern and Orléans Companies construction and operation of the Clia- lines rerdes and Vendée.

In the meantime, we had discussed the budget, strongly seriously for everything that was crushing the people; very cheerfully for everything that was a little reform- amateur.

And, first of all, Léon Sar/a\ah showed a perfect de- dear to the tax plans presented by Gambella, which he, moreover, had mocked by his newspapers. Therefore, this tax plan remained in the shadows.

Andrieux (who was then just a former Lyon player) nais), helped Naquet to support a law that would require- would cause the courts to no longer apply the exception of play in terms of stock market operations.

Wilson, whom I just showed organizing the struggle against the railway companies, had generous ideas:

Through an amendment, he requested that the soldiers could send 12 letters per year free of charge (!); In another, he urged the government to reduce the number of civil servants and employees housed in state buildings (!), *

All of this becomes exquisite when one considers that the even "Wilson, who became Vice President of the Republic- blique^ sent thousands of letters free of charge and provided, not free of charge, accommodation in the [lalais of the State!

While these amiable leaders deliberated-

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 183

would also wisely, justice continued to pale-nodier; for example, an offense against the army, was it supposedly relieved, she condemned when it was the Human rights, acquitted when it was the Figaro.

I won't go into detail about ordinary trials again.
previously mentioned, because they are still abundant and would unnecessarily lengthen this chapter.

In short, seeing so much incompetence, indifference, or Bad faith, the people were beginning to be astonished.

At first, he had believed in a change; his he-
The illusion had been short-lived. So he sought to use the little of the freedom he had acquired. First, he organized nisa a delegation of workers to the exhibition of Philadelphia (May). The City Council and the Cham-
They had voted for a subsidy; but Albert Giècy having wanted to make the choice" - the delegates by the mid-minister by entrusting him with the use of the subsidy tion, which, said the Constitutionnel, was a sur means "preventing the ferment of politics"
"and the poison of socialism comes to spoil the de-
"The legation," the workers refused and announced that they were going to resort to a public subscription.

In the provinces, discomfort appeared and, with it, the strikes; the most significant were those of Toulouse, Tours and Rive-de-Giers; this last-
The workers were sentenced to the Prison. That was social progress!

It certainly gave one pause for thought. The most active non-possessing thinkers summoned a workers' congress in Paris.

This congress, which we would have liked, but which we did not dare not to prohibit, functioned in the first quin-

484 Speculation 1876

week of October, with a dignity and a calm "that "Greatly surprised the wealthy."

However, I must point out that the Republic French, announcing the said congress, had recounted to allow, for the occasion, the workers to benefit of a 50% discount on the fare, all had refused, except for the one in the North and despite the \stances de Grémieux.

The name of the newspaper and the company name; we will find them all both when the feudalism of the railways will have defeated all his opponents.

In the meantime, it is important to point out the significance of the workers' congress.

"For the first time," said a journalist, "the
"The proletariat had been making its voice heard since the "days of May 1871; and yet, the first
"The delegates' words, their first act, were "again, to separate and distinguish themselves from everyone"
"existing political parties, excluding all this
"who was not a manual laborer."

This attitude will not surprise me. De-Then the first page of this story, I keep to recount the persistent antagonism of the classes property owners and non-property owners, and the betrayals odious things of which these are perpetually the victims times.

The year 1876 was one of the most fruitful in betrayals; therefore I will once again note an increase in the number of non-and a decrease in that of the wealthy

* Jules Guesde, The Rights of Man, October 13, 1876.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 185

The non-property owners were in a proportion of 78% the previous year; they are, at the end of 1876, in a proportion of 80 0/0.

As for the property owners, who numbered 22% per annum-Having passed away, they are now reduced to 20 0/0. But, as always their individual fortune is increased; 22% had to share 185 billion; the 20%
from 1876 have to share more than 209 billion'.

Would you believe this figure? The increase in buildings are valued at 18 billion; that of the year four months, a capital gain of 22 billion, that's—that is to say [calculating at 2.75% per annum], a new a burden of approximately 600 million that the proletariat had to deduct from his annual earnings.

But that's how it turned out: If you want proof,
Here it is:

Final budget of 1876 (revenue): 3 billion 187 million
— from 1874 (id.) 2 — 608 —

Increase 0 billion 579 million

And what could be argued in favor of these ma-frightening jowls?

It's very simple! We had talked about conceding some lines, to carry out expropriations and to give compensation; in addition, pledges had been executed,

Billions

“^ End of 1875 End of 1876 Deferred

Real estate capital,... 96 6/10 115 0/10 +18 4/10

— furniture 65 9/10 68 4/10 + 2 5/10

— financial 22 9/10 26 3/10 + 3 4/10

Totals 185 4/10 209 7/10 + 24 3/10

2 Statistical Bulletin of the Ministry of Finance, Vol. XXI, page 24 (January 1887).

186 Speculation 1876

that is to say, sold buildings and those who own them had bought wanted to profit from their acquisition tion and finally that we remember the circu-Dufaure's area of expertise in the notary profession!

Securities had risen only slightly, but the financial values had gained (?) 3 mil-approximately 1/2 liards.

Is it surprising when we remember the blows perpetual national and international speculation and sudden differences reported by the Stock Exchange*?

complete triumph of Jewry over the entire mass of the non-possessing and on that of the small possessors-teeth; no doubt, to celebrate this triumph, a
The congress was held at the Grand-Hôtel on December 5th.
Jews from all four corners of the world. – It was the counterpart to the Workers' Congress.

Moreover, the statistics showed more than suicides, more crimes, and the census of That same year, it reported the presence of 801,000 foreigners living in France as if they were 'Citizens.

* Here are some courses:

ilmission Higher Lower

3 0/0 French....., » 73.00 65.00

Franco's mortgage loan » 920.00 820.00

i.gyptian Bonds 500 410.00 190.00

60/0Turc 500 150.00 60.00

Ottoman Kùùérale debt 100 23.20 9.70

Turkish Lots 400 135.00 26.75

Honduras 3i)0 5.00 »

Haiti, ii0i) 2i0,rt» 5'. , 00

Franco-Dutch Bank 500,475.00 290.00

Furniture credit 51)0 87.50 55.00

Exterior cspaguolo 100 22.00 14.00

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 187

All of this can be summed up in two lines:

Proportion for c^nt Owners, Wage Earners

lS7r 22 71 7

1870 20 71 9

Wage labor has remained the same and that's possession that brought out the destitute!

Summary. 1377. – Revolutionary Comparison. – The Eastern Christians. – They are fighting. – Moscow and Rome. – The Egyptian portfolio. – A Rothschild stronghold. – Sad fate of Pereire. – The Philippart plan. – Guanos and Grévy. – Coup d'état! – MacMahon's epic. – Le Petit Journal. – The workers are being cared for. – Broglie. Saviors of Israel. – The forced mill. – Widowhood of the France. – The ballots. – Submission.

There was, in this end of the year, a kind of sense-revolutionary moment, inspiring to all those, including the ruling coalition had oppressed existence, the a very clear need for change, whatever that change might be nature.

This was almost the state revealed by the figures... tested in 1844 under the monarchy; but it was not not yet sufficient for there to have been, on the one hand or On the other hand, there is a recourse to violence, either internally, as in 1848-1851, either outside, as in 1870.

To better illuminate this historical parallel, it it is good to gather in the same table the proportions relating to each of the four years including I have just spoken; here is the table: (Plate V.)

At the beginning of the years
18H 1551 1570 1877

Owners

19

72

9

18

66

16

23

54

23

20

Employees

71

Stripped bare

9

Total equals

100

100

100

100

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 189

In this table, the year 1877 even appears, a slightly more favourable to the propertied classes than 1844 was; If we only study salaried workers and the destitute, we finds that 1877 presented itself much less harsher than in 1851 and 1870; also, despite the actions tations of all kinds, despite the provocations The more brazen they are, the masses will not budge; everything will will, moreover, pass between the wealthy, some dreaming of dictatorship, the others terrified by parliamentarianism, but all of them were ready, in any case, to deceive certainly, and to shoot, perhaps, the pro-Létarienne, if it resonated too loudly his demands.

The last weeks of 1876 had passed,
I said, amidst the uncertainties of the East.

However, from the very first days of 1877, the di-Plomatie tried to reassure public opinion; newspapers also had to comment on television-grams more or less clear about "the confé-
"the influence of Constantinople" and they did not deprive themselves of it not, to the great advantage of speculative banditry*.

However, when you look closely at the famous dispatches and when one considers the outcome-the ment of what was so pompously called, the Conference of Constantinople (to which all the powers "took part" (with the exception of Turkey), not, quite simply, made an accomplice of the financiers ciers, with the specific aim of beveling cards that These were thrown onto the green carpet of the Stock Exchange.

< The Turkish funds were quoted successively at 13 francs 115 centimes and 7 francs 75 centimes cash; a. term, the differences were much more concariaH'''^.

11.

90 speculation

1877

Indeed, at the very moment when peace was being discussed, a the newspaper, not usually illustrated, circulated-tion a placard depicting Turkish prisoners mutilated by the Bulgarians, but not (which was (also true) the Bulgarian prisoners mutilated by the Turks (January 26). Another newspaper demonstrated that if the Romanians did not want the constitution Turkish, on the other hand, they did not persecute the Israelites. What were the Israelites doing there? Then-that the war was undertaken "to protect the "Eastern Christians."

There's no denying it; that was the official pretext.
sky; the protocol communicated to Turkey (March 31), stated clearly: "the powers... affirm-
"Lying, once again, together, the common interest
"that they contribute to improving the lot of "Christian populations of Turkey and the ve-
"shapes..., etc."

However, these reforms were the ones I had already mentioned the Jewish usefulness, regarding the circu-Turkish military decree of February 13, 1876; the foreign powers their people reminded them of it once again, and declared "To take note of this."

All of this was signed by the representatives of Russia, Germany, England, Austria, France and Italy.

To which Turkey's response was essentially: "that ((Christian populations were not persecuted-"tagged by their own government and that the "disorders having disturbed the peace of the provinces,

This last assertion, perhaps more true, that the Gate itself did not suppose, is found

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 191

corroborated by the maneuvers of a certain oli-a group of Jewish financiers who had always been in control in the brutal acts which, like the massacre of consuls in Thessaloniki, provoked the interventions diplomatic.

In any case, the cards were back.
scrambled. In London, in the House of Lords, on a coordinated appeal, the minister declared that "England had offered its mediation" but that "when a power (Turkey) refused any conciliation, any mediation became impossible.
possible.

After this hypocritical response, the floor was given to cannon.

The Tsar took the initiative; he announced it loudly.
that he was going to "rescue the Christian populations" (April 12), Turkey merely repeated "that it de-"denied Russia the right to take sew^e in hand
"The cause of Eastern Christians." Lq Forcing Office
He couldn't have said it better!

But what is most curious about this exchange;^
The argument is that, in reality, the two can-
The sessions were right; the entire misunderstanding lay in this: that neither dared to say, loudly-ly, against whom they wanted to defend the Christians Look; Russia knew who the real oppressors were.
were the Jewish financiers, of whom Turkey could not-was going to get rid of it; and England was asserting to the Europe that the oppressors were the Turk and the Russian.

It is important to clarify this: while the para-
Jewish Islam had invaded Europe, two nations
Only Russia and Turkey had resisted him;
In both of these countries, indeed, if the Jew is tolerated, he is nonetheless reviled and despised; however, as the Jewish influence over diplomacy through undisclosed subsidies. bles, what's so strange about this one, in order to obtain the "Reforms" that should increase wealth and wealth to demand respect for his pimps^ constant breath-war, by invoking no less constantly- to deceive, the love of Peace and the worship of humanity?

192 speculation

The consequence of this was that, throughout the for the rest of the year (April to December), the peninsula of The Balkans was bloodied by the killings and the massacres swear words, which, on the one hand, provided newspapers with extraordinary reporting opportunities, thanks to dispatches emanating from the theater of war, but manufactured in the basement of their printing works, and, on the other hand, it offered stock market speculators a A series of rises and falls that ruined, to whom Better yet, the foolish, uninitiated little possessor to the secrets of Jehovah!

While the Pope of Moscow and the Pope of Constantinople Tantinople was destroying, thus, Christians for the to defend against the Jews, the Pope of Rome did not- He didn't die inactive; he spoke, the only way to communicate. to beat, which, to his great regret, allows him ideas modern.

The Roman pontiff had viewed with terror the party The Jew triumphed in France; therefore, he seconded him in every way. his power the ultramontane agitations which demonstrated: it was, once again, the struggle of a para-one ideology against another; but the Pope had, at least, the merit of publicly asserting his claims, which mitigated the danger, while denouncing the Jewish peril.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 193

Indeed, as Eugène rightly pointed out Liébert, in the 19th Century^ at every moment, in In papal speeches, these words would burst forth: propter meiumjudeorum: (because of the fear of Jews /)

At the same time, the Catholic party, already mentioned, and which was indeed, decidedly, composed of monarchs pure Christians and imperialists, feverish and

Before getting to this episode, I must quickly to expose the situation of capitalist struggles.

Léon Say had continued to pursue the conquest of the Egyptian portfolio coveted by Rothschild and defended by Soubeyran.

For this portfolio to be "acquired," it is not He shouldn't have been allowed to fall into the hands of Crédit Agricole and even less so the coffers of the latter, in the hands of "some rudimentary liquidator;" it was necessary, at On the contrary, paste the two credits together, then to choose a new, well-intentioned governor, which would save the first mortgage lending institution librarian, by finding a buyer for the door-Wreckage leaf!

That's what was done. Léon Say used it against Soubeyran a series of intimidations * having for the aim of getting him to agree to a guarantee of 15 million, necessary to operate a/itôion between the Crédit foncier and Crédit agricole, the only means of ar-to rescue the latter from bankruptcy, which would have been dangerous-reuse, especially because it would have revealed the schemes premeditated sounds.

* As I write this, I have the signed letters in front of me.

194 speculation 1877

Soubeyran had to give in, but not without having insisted on that, if the liquidation of the famous Egyptian portfolio-yours yielded a profit (and Rothschild counted on it). (well), the guarantee was returned to him. Léon Say vou-milk, on the contrary, that this should only apply at Crédit Agricole^ otherwise, that is to say if the wallet, the object of so many clever struggles, was subjected to an "accountability" there was no longer any A potentially lucrative combination.

These two swindlers knew each other well; in short, the The minister retained power, without, however, the The delicate point was quite clearly resolved for to avoid a further trial; but, in the meantime, Sou-Beyran was retained as sub-governor, even after January 28, at which time a decree had dismissed his colleague Frémy,

Meanwhile, complaints were arriving from Egypt, judicial reform. Bankruptcies were more common.

more than ever; payments were being recorded extraordinary things that "intrigued" everyone.
Moreover, since the end of last year, there hasn't been any...
He wasn't going to hold back, on the banks of the Nile, and the palace intrigues – for example, the imprisonment of summary of a finance minister – if produced them as if they were ordinary acts.

Given this situation, Rothschild could to congratulate: while inside everything was going well Outside, he hoped to make some progress.
made events in the East, specifically concerning Egypt, either on the Austrian side.

Léon Say, which were later produced in court, [Plea-Josseau's home.)

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC '190

As for Russia, he was determined to hinder its finances as much as he could, in order to play the game from Turkey, that is to say, from England.

Thus, in March, Ignatieff having gone to Vienna to take out a loan, Alphonse there rushed over under the pretext of attending the birth of his daughter; some time later, we learned that the em-
The Russian attempt had failed; it was to divert the public's attention was drawn to this coincidence loudly informed of the birth of a boy, on which occasion "a year's worth of treatment of household servants, without doubt including the newspapers. If the cash registers of Rothschild were closed to Petersburg, in However, they were wide open for Buda-Pesth; Hungary being a fiefdom of all those in Paris, London, Vienna and Frankfurt, they did not hesitate not to lend it to him; that's what happened in March, for the tidy sum of 200 million. The broadcast was done also in Paris (October).

In Paris, moreover, as everywhere, the Rothschilds were full of dignity; the whole family of Figuwould be in four art commissions appointed by Krantz in preparation for the upcoming World's Fair
from 1878.

The fate of Pereire was quite different; he... found himself under threat of a serious judgment for he could, by lambasting Minister Say, in the Liberty, that poor devil Soubeyran, whom he accused— knows he is solely responsible for the ruin of the Company real estate gnie. Pereire himself did indeed have a contributed little to this ruin; but, nevertheless, he was

1% speculation

187,

It is accurate to say that Crédit foncier, aided by Hausmann and the emperor had created competition for him. disloyal.

Soubeyran sent his witnesses to Pereire; but the Court nevertheless dropped on the ex-friend of the emperor, the former matchmaker to the Marshal Prim, as I said earlier, a The ruling, the substance of which is as follows:

"Considering that it is established by the documents
"of the cause that, through the publication of reports
"inaccurate, facts at the general meetings of disaction-
X 7iaires<, through the distribution of fictitious dividends y
K taken from the share capital, through a series of actions
K and maneuvers contrary to the truth and good a /oj, Emile Pereire, Isaac Pereire and Salvador,
"have deceived, all at once, the shareholders, the bonds"
"guardians and third parties, on the poor situation of "the real estate company of which they were the "Administrators."

This consideration shows that the maneuvers which I have so often pointed out and which are, moreover, of general use in finance, were solemn-facts established in court. However, this is not That's the main point I want to remember.

I didn't need a court order to know that finance operates through fraud. This What I want to emphasize will draw the reader's attention is the time when Justice deigned to discover and to investigate the frauds committed.

The ruling I'm referring to is dated February 9th. 1877; but, do we know at what time Pereire and others were robbing the public? In 1804, 1865, 1866 and 1867!

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 197

I'm not the one saying it, it's the ruling that He admits it; it must be quoted verbatim. Here is the paragraph that follows the first one considering that I have reproduced above:

"Considering that the error, which they (Emile Pereire,
"Isaac Pereire and Salvador) thus provoked
"and maintained, lasted from May 19, 1864 until"
"April 30, 1867, the time when the truth could be
"Finally known."

So it's perfectly clear! The truth has been revealed. in 1867; but it was under the Empire, and that's the only-lying ten years after the justice system, bearing the label Republican, has deigned to shed light on the matter. And, again, it would be a matter of understanding how and why justice
The 1877 law did what justice should have done from 1867. It would also be necessary to know if those to which the 1877 ruling granted more than 200,000 francs in damages, do not represent only a tiny fraction of those that criminal maneuvers were able to plunder; for finally the ruling, the main parts of which I am transcribing, made It is important to understand that the harm is of a general nature.
ral. Here, indeed, is the paragraph that completes the two considerations reproduced above:

"Considering that the third parties who, during this "period, and under the influence of the common illusion,
"were thus determined to buy shares of
"the said company and which, later, were returned
"due to a decline with a considerable loss, are ((as admissible as they are entitled to prosecute, against "the respondents, compensation for the damage they
"They have suffered."

This is still quite clear; the double game of raising

198 speculation

1877

and decline and the illusions maintained by the financial crimes, which in criminal law are called Purely and simply: scams, have not, assured

Court.

Therefore, I can say that its cessation is purely platonic and that he cared little about condemned Pereire and others to be less honorable rables, as long as, out of the hundreds of thousands lions stolen by them, they barely returned 200,000 francs.

I have the right to conclude that Justice, even when she appears to be doing her duty, is absolutely useless: that its existence never prevents anything; that its repressions always come too late; that his compensation does not compensate for anything; that, in short, even if she were above suspicion and of absolutely indisputable integrity, its effi- Its effectiveness is also absolutely zero!

However, this is not enough and we need to go further. far :

This belated "justice" falling on Pereire after ten years of impunity, but not falling on a bunch of other financiers who, at the same time, so many, who committed the same crimes, must be linked to another fact, a work of politics current economic situation:

The Parliamentary Railway Committee had just rejected a ministerial convention ten- and to be granted or incorporated into the Company several secondary lines from Orléans; then she had invited the minister to establish them into networks independents, or, failing that, to settle their acquisition by the State, with exploitation given to companies farm women.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 199

This decision was a targeted attack, less in an economic spirit, as in a spirit of political struggle against the Bonapartist propertied class who were established in the administrative councils Railway administration.

Pereire, along with others, was at the Company of Midday and, if the innovative trends of a certain clan of deputies were not hindered, the feudalism of its omnipotence is threatened.

To make the justice system complicit, by forcing it to ruling on the old Y real estate lawsuit was, certainly, entered into the design of some financiers, new owners, having bought securities with the express aim of acting like shareholders injured.

We will see, moreover, some maneuvers blogs will soon develop, no longer among those of the Jewish party, but also among those in the Catholic party alike.

In any case, we must already consider, among the Bigwigs in finance, two disgruntled individuals: Souheyran and Pereire, and one satisfied one: Rothschild.

The previous year, there had been a lot of talk about Philippart and his projects on the second lines daires. Philippart is a nuisance to Rothschild, as is also For large companies, bankruptcy did not affect to fall to her; it came to her from Belgium, under the double form of the coalfields of Hainaut and the Franco-Dutch bank.

Immediately, the newspapers say, Messrs. Christrophle, Wilson and Waddington, members of the committee railway mission, had left for the Belgium and the Netherlands, in order to try to save the financial.

200 speculation 1877

Another Jew was arguing before the court; it was The man from the Peruvian guano, Dreyfus. That one pleaded against the unfortunate subscribers of loans, about which I have already said a few words, that it is Please complete this section here.

the small state of Peru, which contains the population of Paris, unevenly distributed across a double territory of that of France, had found a way to em-Prunter, in two installments, both in London and Paris (1809-1872), 1.168 million nominal (representing 900 million real) on its guano deposits re-Inexhaustible pools of money. Once the loans are devoured, either by the country's officials, or by the ser-due to the lack of arrears, for five years, the State ceased

Dreyfus was the government's financial agent and also, with Société Générale, the consignee of Guano for sale.

What happened? Why were the Dreyfus
Are ultra-millionaires and Peru ruined? Com-
What about the scandals and even suicides?
came to obscure all the questions surrounding this A matter? Time will tell; but it is certain-that the Civil Court of the Seine, presided over by Mr. Aubépin (who has never left since), after having, on January 10, heard Mr. Jules' plea Grévy – who had been renamed the day before, President-tooth of the Chamber of Deputies – and, as such, should have abstained if he had had the slightest scruple

under the Third Republic: 50!

professional, – did not find the situation clear enough to avoid appointing a judge.
Mr. Manau – (who soon became President) – to settle Dreyfus's accounts with the Society general.

And yet Grévy had stated that his clients had made no profit'; to dare to say, in in full court, which Jewish financiers had put forward money without making any profit, it was necessary to have a singular self-assurance!

In any case, that was the case, as far as the ancients were concerned possessing various nuances, the situation of operations undertaken in the first quarter
from 1877.

Beside them, a few newly wealthy people swarmed around milks around certain city loans.

I will cite the loan from the city of Marseille, accepted by Crédit Foncier and on the occasion of which it was demonstrated that this establishment, continuing the traditions of Soubeyran, deemed it useful to "reserve "exclusively to the municipal council, two thousand
"irreducible obligations," which was fraud evidently the public broadcast and gave in at the same time a singular idea of independence of the municipal body.

Moreover, on all sides, the madness of the broadcasts subsidies, places or attendance fees in the new boards of the new companies.

At the end of the previous year, I had reported a half a billion dollars requested from the public; at the end of 1877,

Gazette des Tribunaux, no. 15,474, January 15 and 16, 1877.
See also The Kings of the Republic, Volume II, page 326.

202 Speculation 1377

it will be something else entirely, and the figures reached will...
will end up with two billion!

These billions of francs, these millions of deals were all ways to strengthen the Jewish party by attracting to itself all appetites in search of satisfaction faction.

Seeing all this, the Catholic party was furious.
His opponents, moreover, did not spare him.
The kicks. Weren't the prefects interfering? to dissolve Catholic committees? Is it a
The court had not just condemned Cassagnac.
(April 6). Hadn't they dared to say that "the embassy-
"Germany's leader had asked for explanations-"
"lions in Decazes at Catholic demonstrations"
"Lique?"

Gela was unbearable: it had to end!

But do we want to know which financial combinations
Then the candles were fermenting in their brains!
Here is one:

There was talk of opening a large "subscription to
"a public loan of 400 or 500 million intended "to buy back Lorraine," to give it to Clam-
"border, which would bring it to France, under condition-
"tion, of course, of amortization and repayment" ((sevaQXii by the people-! a

This was the psychological state of those who were calling for a coup! – Because that's what it was all about.
has!

Millions of francs

1. State or city loans: 100 million 9/10

Industrial companies 1,433 – 3/10

Total 1.170 million S/10

2 Le Figaro, April 11, 1877.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 203

Meanwhile, what were the non-possessed people doing? Sedentary? He suffered, remained silent, and, as always, gaping before the golden cascades of some and others-blessed by others, he waited.

In Lyon, 30,000 workers were dying of hunger. amidst an unprecedented crisis and unemployment (February); and if there had only been Lyon! But, in Despite the whirlwind of speculation, everywhere the worker was saying: "Will it never end?"

However, he had recently seen the astonishing Léon Say submit a loan application for 100,000 francs to rescue the populations of English Vinde, threatened by famine; and, almost at the same time, he had noted that his friend Leroy-Beaulieu, arguing about the Lyon crisis, he was content with the to call it "mere misfortune", and didn't budge mie.

It was in this psychological environment that he had to to break what was called the May 10th coup.

Bismarck had requested an extended leave of absence; Decazes had delivered an ultra-pacifist speech, affirming the absolute neutrality and abstention of the France in the face of the war in the East (May); the Chamber had just slightly broadened the freedom of the press when, on May 16, the marshal wrote to Jules Simon's letter of reproach that led to the his resignation, followed by a ministerial crisis, a Catholic, monarchical and imperial ministry-list, and, finally, the elections of October 1-1.

To the aspirations for reform, the Marshal opposed this:

I don't want to change anything in the present nor facilitate-I'm reading about change in the future. I have my own policy!

His Broglie-Fourlou ministry had only succeeded in to applaud, by Gambetta, Thiers the liberator and to to unite the clients of these two men under the name 363, an easy label for propaganda; also He rejected the Marshal's only option of dissolving the Chamber. on the advice of the Senate, which hastened to give it (May 25).

Then began an incredible epic.

Broglie had persuaded the marshal that he would not than to show up in order to win all the votes. The The marshal went on a tour of France.

On the other hand, the same Paris that had complained during the election of the permanent officials "who are spied on-" "The votes were born," having become a minister, organized by circular on denunciation and intimidation on the railway employees who would be responsible for political and would threaten to vote against the ideas of the marshal'.

The stockbrokers' trustee (a friend of the Rothschild) had, for his part, just organized a sub-description for the Conservative committee (that was the name that Catholics gave themselves); but someone having argued that the Company was not exercising its ministry that by virtue of a privilege, which could to be taken from her; that she had never been restrained, neither under the Empire, nor under the Republic, nor under the Common (I can't think of a more scathing reproach) (addressed to this government), trustee and synthose who were informed found that their duty was to abstain hold.

Soon afterwards, Rothschild had the an-

'Ministerial circular of July 9, 1877.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 205

denounced that he had subscribed 500,000 francs in favor of conservative committees.

However, the marshal was still travelling.

For his part, Fourtoul continued his intimidation tactics. from Paris, and Caillaux showered them with his promises, agricultural populations.

Finally came the turn of the war on the press.

One day, we noticed this enormous thing:
The Constitutional Council violently attacked men
May 16th.

Where did this come from? Here it is:

Gibiat, Genty and Girardin, owners of the Cons-institutional and of Le Petit Journal, sensing a failure, embroiled in the machinations of the Vendée lines, placed under sequestration specifically on June 9th, and finally, or compromises, or perhaps compromising by Their demands had been met with a refusal of their cooperation.

So, we came up with a plan. Having bought many actions of the Little Journal (it was the one (which we were aiming for more), we wanted to obtain the stake under sequestration by the editorial staff (August 5) arguing of the "danger it posed to the property of newspaper." It was absurd; we didn't dare go so far-than at the hearing, and they limited themselves to the correct trialstionals.

It was not through these methods that the people of May 16th could have destroyed the power of newspapers.
but rather through phrases like this one, that I note in Le Mot d'ordre (August 12), despite of the fetishism to which Republicans have always been devoted in the United States.

"In America," it read, "although everything could be done 12

206 speculation istt

"to say, paying neither stamp nor deposit"
"having no authorization to request to come
"In the world, the press only says what it allows it to say."
"Capital."

And that came from an American correspondent!

How did capital, which kept the Word alive, work?
of order, could he have let such a de-
An announcement? Obviously, it must have had some purpose;
He did have one, indeed; at the time, they were issuing, for the (cier)) of the newspaper had not received any publicity!

However, it was necessary to act on the people; for this The Parisian worker had been "treated"; several The work that had begun had been activated; thus: the new Hôtel-Dieu; and, this one scarcely finished, one had delivered the old one to the demolition crews; then we pressed—we know about the reconstruction of the Town Hall; finally, we was hiring for the work on the future exhibition universal.

But, alongside that, the old ruling leaven reappeared very quickly:

They refused to admit to the same exhibition a workers' commission to do collective work; And they, opening their eyes again, remembered the famous official delegation from Philadelphia, of which we awaited the reports, while the free delegation had published his own a long time ago.

Meanwhile, the psychological state of the wealthy bosses revealed themselves, in Le Figaro, through letters like this one:

"Sir, I have twenty workers who live off my income, from my business, from my work; when An election is coming, and these may depend on it.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 207

income, they vote contrary to my interests nets.

The owner was completely unaware that it was him. On the contrary, it lived off the labor of its workers. and that he, without them, would have been more unhappy, What? Without him!

At the same time, the judiciary, embodying the im-stupid leadership, spouting outrageous things, eloquent evidence of his mental dulling.

This was the time of the famous widow's trial Fat.

The public prosecutor's office, studying the future in the regarding the accused's past, she did not hesitate to say:

She sold gingerbread at fairs, which "foreshadowed the young girl's future." (!)

But, magistrate! when a Broglie was discovered in the financial scandals of V Union Générale, Has one of your people been found to say:

"He had worked at the Seize-Mai; it had been
"To foresee the speculative future of this man!"

No, isn't it? However, you and yours go even further; hasn't one of you re-accused of being the product of adultery?

Well, but, taking your Broglie again and his ancestor Broglie, of whom Saint-Simon recounts "that he was being supported by women," no-Wouldn't I have the right to conclude, like you, that the fatal degradation of his generation?

But no! Your property is sacred, and their crimes are weaknesses that you mitigate all-days. If I say all this about Broglie, it's that the same person drew up an extravagant report on 208 Is speculation?

Crime according to professions, and, naturally-hostile to the proletariat, whereas at the con-
The true figures are overwhelming for the owners.

For his part, Gambetta was travelling around France and,
despite the numerous lawsuits that were launched against He, in turn, spread his famous dilemma: to submit or resign.

Among the striking phrases in his diary, the French Republic, he emphasized, I re-raise this one:

"The pact of the 363 is made of a popular metal"
steeped in bourgeois freedom.

Poorly tempered, I would add, because it was bound to break on the backs of the proletariat.

Another opponent was in London: Léon Say; there, at a banquet, near Forster (of the Ottoman Bank), Lord Hartington expressed to him provisions relating to the Franco-English trade treaty. And Leon smiled at the common hope! (August).

Struggling with skill, the Catholics also spoke
A great deal. Cardinal Donnet said to Mac-Mahon:
"You are of the race of those through whom the Lord can and wants to save Israel.

Prophecy! For the marshal so well saved Israel that he ensured his triumph.

Meanwhile, the politically correct newspapers weremilked the sixteen and a half million of gifts that the Pope had received for his jubilee^,

'What a resemblance between 1877 and 1888! Here and there, jubilee' Papftl, exhibition preparations, Catholic unrest,

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 209

Finally, to better win over the people and get rid of-to reassure voters without property, the good daysnaux [\a Patrie) sang of the sweetness of the New Caledonia, where there was a bank - we remembers! - and where the Ministry of the Navy is was responsible for shipping, free of charge (even in the lo-giant and feeding them upon their arrival there), the families of the deportees. A way to bury the anistie.

In the midst of all this, we were approaching the fa-Meuse date: October 14th.

Catholics who have traveled through countries where,
as in Gastellane (Basses-Alpes), since 16.39, a mill owner had the privilege of force all the inhabitants of the locality to grind their wheat at home*, returned already singing victoir; but they were counting without chance, which tasked with giving their propaganda a stinging edge gigantic leg, focusing attention on the 363, through the death of one of them, the most well-known:
Thiers (September 3). Never have the opponents of Sixteen-May could not have dreamed of a better publicity quoted.

I wouldn't go so far as to say, for example, that this death and the posthumous program that followed their brought voters. Not; I would even say,
On the contrary, that she took away their possessive voices dants things they wouldn't have read otherwise and which encouraged them to abstain less.

Presidential trips, dissolution and elections in perspective-tive!

* Right recognized by a ruling of the Court of Appeal of Aix, 1877.

he.

210 Speculation 1877

The idOsthume manifesto was, in fact, the most involuntary, but also the most virulent satire of the hypocrisy of the assemblies^ and Le Figaro, in a of those crushing blows that Saint-Genest calls-milk of the "apotheoses", printed this:

"All French citizens must pay ho-magician... to the one who, to save society, did not fears sending 40,000 demagogues onto the bridges tons, to fill Nouméa with deportees, to pour in the streets of Paris more blood than ever before Neither Bonaparte, nor Orléans, nor Bourbon did so. to flow. "

Yes, that's a summary of this man's life, in-living embodiment of the propertied class, skeptical, bour-Reau, cynical; in short: a bandit!

Despite everything, his funeral, a grand expression These minor regrets were a curiosity, not a loss.

They were cheered up, moreover, by the phrases pragmatic arguments that erupted in the newspapers; some declaring, without any concern for an allusion incestuous, "that France was widowed of one of its "most glorious children"; the others noting, without fearing that a coffin might become a guillotine, that all 363 were beheaded/

It was amidst this uproar that the voters went to the polls; hence a majority, not of 363, but from 322, emerged triumphant.

As we can see, there was a loss and not gain.

By comparing this election with that of 1876, we indeed, it turns out that the majority of voters of even opinion⁷ⁱ was less compact this time; the property owners had increased in number k

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 211

the minority and abstentions had been less cons-staggering.

I have summarized all of this in a summary table-latif:

1876 1877

Out of f,000 registered voters ■■

Votes cast: 759,813

Abstentions: 241,187

Totals 1,000 1,000

Out of 1,000 voters;

Majority 545,540

Minority 455 460

Totals 1,000 1,00a

Out of 1,000 majority ••

Owners 200 97

Non-owners 800,903

Totals 1,000 1,000

(See plate VI)

These results are not strange; they are the logical outcome of the year's actions.

At the end of 1877 (October and November) (to be taken as the final period), there were more of the wealthy, thanks to speculation and subsidies, to electoral corruption. Here is the comparison between 1876 and 1877.

Out of 100 inhabitants

Owners • 20 21

iEmployees 70) T 71 employees

Non-owners^ . . . ^l 80 79v ^ , ,

^ 'Destitute 10 ^ (8 destitute

Totals lû0" 100

212 Speculation 1877

Moreover, there had been verifiable liquidations and capital movements between the Two powerful parties in conflict. The alternatives scholarship recipients had been numerous, and numerous also the fluctuations in prices'.

I must even record a serious assertion here. which corroborates all of mine, less so, perhaps, by the nature of the facts revealed than by the competence and the situation of the newspaper that became its publisher:

The Journal des Débats of December 3rd printed the following:

•.< A stock market transaction was carried out, in two "times, by the Treasury on October 14 (first round of "ballot) and November 7 – consisting of a ((purchase of annuities, on a certain day, with resale a "Another day."

The newspaper then explained that these operations were not normal; in fact, it was speculation Pure and simple.

By this means, they had intended to deceive the nation. whose stupidity usually measures its prosperity to the prices quoted on the stock exchange; then, we had wanted to generate uncontrollable funds, in order to be able to to pay an attack on the projected state.

However, the most curious aspect of this episode was that The Journal des Débats knew nothing about this. what had happened. Newspaper eraser, he had always fought the men of May 16th; but, as

* Here are the prices of the main stocks:

Plus liaut Lower

3 0/0 74.20 66.70

"0/0 108.40 102.15

Italian 74.60 62.50

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 213

He was a confidant of his friends in the Jewish party, he knew that in the two aforementioned periods, the latter had also wanted to play the odds; the two thieves had met! Now, this circumstance, which the Trésor was their counterpart, which must have bothered them, because The newspaper's note suggests a profit for the Treasury, therefore a loss for others.

Despite these blows from players, which were not The financial capitals were unique and had varied little. The biggest losses had been on the capital-real estate rates, these had been the subject of reanumerous readings or executions.

In summary, the 21% of 1877, instead of having to to share 209 billion, as in the previous year dent, had only 196 billion left ^.

Given that things were this way, it was easy to predict that the new chamber would be fraught with conflict.

No sooner had she settled in than she wanted to conduct an investigation about the men of May 16th, then she refused to enter in connection with Rochebouët's ministry.

Then the coup plotters panicked; They summoned the marshal to help them, and he... offered his resignation...

This period was dreadful; measures had were taken; we had worked on some of the leaders of the army; things were about to get worse when the pro-

- Here are the details:

1876 1877 difference

Real estate capital 115 0/10 105 9/10 -9 1/10

– financial 26 3/10 25 1/10 –12/10

Totals 209 7/10 196 1/10 –13 6/10

214 speculation

violent intervention by an officer (Labordère), made comto take to the conspirators that the soldiers do not follow perhaps they didn't truly believe their leaders, which disconcerted them the latter.

Mac-Mahon reiterated his resignation and submitted to sion by choosing a Dufaure ministry (13 de-December).

But the end of the year was no less tragic.

The economic crisis was more intense than ever.
but; the famous shows, which I mentioned above reported cases had, for the most part, remained in portfolio, without even having covered their expenses advertisement.

The Senate's pretense of investigating was in vain.
on the crisis; he had only managed to extract from the government bank governor (Rouland) this commonplace:
"Exports have declined," and the year ended amidst complaints, barely a mo-distracted by a decisive victory where the Russians in the Orient

I

Summary. 1878. – The tough Ismail. – Soubeyran held hostage.

– Calm by fire! – Rothschild victorious.
The Congress of Berlin. – Hirsch's Tariffs. – The people of Nuremberg. – Cyprus. – Waddington, king of the Jews. – The London grocer. – Outpourings of Gam-
Betta. – The Man with Curves. – Pope Say. – Com-Northern Company. – Everything has gone up. – Strikes and Congress.

– Blessed circular. – The Kanaks. – A gif Island. –
An orgy of billions.

However, this had not had a clear enough impact.
to divert attention from public grievances, in had enough to set the financiers who coveted Egypt.

But they had to act quickly, because the powers
They were going to discuss Turkey, which was too busy.
now, to have the leisure to watch over the Nile.

That is why the Rothschilds hastened to strike-blow after blow and to tie Ismail between the hands of England.

The task was not easy; Ishmael was an aca tough competitor, who always found support among those who were fighting around him.

Soubeyran, who had lent him hundreds of millions, was not without having retained agents in the country.

216 speculation

1878

His influence there was well-known; they printed couramment that "all the agitation of the creditors of Egypt, the protests of the chambers of commerce merce, were his personal work"; the name of a French agent, Sienke^yicz, who had appeared in Egypt, in official documents, also appeared, at Paris, on the prospectuses of financial companies founded by Soubeyran.

Léon Say and the men of Rue Laffitte were there.
to take drastic measures.

What Léon Say had not done in May 1876
In the name of public integrity, he decided to do it.
in January 1878, in the interest of the Jews, his employers.
11 appointed a commission to audit the books from Crédit Foncie?^ and conduct an investigation

Soubeyran, very clever, knowing full well that one simply wanted to benefit from the operas in his place Egyptian traditions; that if they had been branded with the name
"of serious errors", it was for the occasion; that finally, if one believed in something weighty in would furnish his cash register – the fault not existing for He, not an employee of Crédit Foncier. – Knowing

All this, Soubeyran, forced to hand over the 15 million to which his responsibility had been quantified, had the villainy of paying them in a check which, on the one hand
At one moment to the next, there could be no cover at all.
like a simple bill of exchange that is refused; – this who was very Jewish, it must be acknowledged – hence Léon Say's fury and his fit of contrôle.

To be more certain of his case, he came to be appointed governor (February 13), a former

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 217

Lawyer at the Court of Cassation: Albert Christophle, which I have dealt with elsewhere'.

However, Soubeyran was still being held in the place – like a hostage, it was claimed...

The struggle was no easier and, almost as-Soon, amazing things began to be seen; the Discord arose within the Council of Ad-
Ministry of Crédit Foncier de France, the paper
It began to rain heavily, like hail, between censors, administrators and governors and all
The courts were seized of the matter:

Trial against Frémy, Soubeyran and Leviez, at the occasion of their anti-statutory operation con-surrounding Egypt.

Trial against Christophle to force him to pay a dividend voted on by the shareholders' meeting.

Here is the secret to comedy:

The aim was to debase the share prices of the Crésaid Landlord, in order to acquire the largest number of them, to hold a majority in the general assemblies,
and more safely direct the liquidation of the door-Egyptian leaf.

To achieve this goal, it was necessary, first and foremost,
that a dividend was not distributed.

In April the general assembly had been held; the governor – Christophle – had not pro-seemingly deciding otherwise, a dividend of 11 francs. was voted on. The governor vetoed the distribution bution, hence: lawsuit before the Commercial Court which condemned Crédit Foncier to pay the dividend

* See the Kings of the Republic, in the Soubeyran chapters, 1st volume and Christophle, 2nd volume.

13

218 Speculation 1878

voted. An appeal was brought before the Court; it was then to everyone's surprise, the minister intervened. Finance Minister Léon Say, to support the veto of governor and claim, in the name of the governor- The senior management of the state institution. The court ruled in his favor and the dividend was not distributary.

Thus, this same Léon Say, who two years earlier- ant had proclaimed, in the middle of Parliament, the security absolute obligations of Crédit Foncier, trou- two years later, and on the occasion of the same ojpè- rfl!i!fo/?s, that the situation was quite compromised for that prudence required the postponement of the dividend.

Shareholders, large or small – uninitiated – They must have found it strange; but what did it matter Do the lords/vassals have a say in the matter? Also, in that same year, we saw variations completely unusual*. It was truly believed that Crédit Foncier was in peril.

That being said, everyone wanted to save him, from the the simplest way, that is to say by knowing- screaming to get that unfortunate wallet Egyptian, the cause of all evil.

Judge for yourselves! I'm taking this from an official report. of Crédit Foncier and as it was published, the list of proposals that were made;

One of the first came from Isidore Dreyfus,

* Here are some courses:

Course

Aclios of the Crédit Foncier Plus baut Plus bat

1876 920 620

1877 760 550

1878 890 615

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 219

in June 1878; this good man offered to buy the 166.5 million versus 103.5 million.

The second, formulated in August, came from Soubeyran; he offered 135 million payable by means of 50 annual installments. The third, dating from September, emanated from a union formed by Crédit Mobilier where Erlanger was hiding; price offered: 109 million.

Around the same time, another union solicited—the acquisition was made for 108 and a half million.

Finally, in November, Soubeyran was still doing a offer aimed at removing from Crédit Foncier all the risks to his portfolio.

All these proposals had been rejected and, Let us note, the only one which, one day, was destined to lead to more or less directly, that of Rothschild, was not Not mentioned.

All of this had happened amidst the loudest noises contradictory; sometimes furious attacks by—were writing in the press against Léon Say and his amor-woven (which I will discuss later); sometimes it was against Ismail and his administration; the latter was accused for having helped the Sultan, his overlord, to fight the Russia, and he was threatened with the wrath of the count-Berlin exchange to which has very documents complete ones would be sent," not counting those already sent to Léon Renault, the lawyer, former prefect of the police and to another lawyer residing in London!

Even the Universal Monitor doesn't found it appropriate to treat learnedly of modifications to be introduced in the order of succession to the throne of Egypt, thus hanging the sword of Lamoclés, who was called Prince Halim, his uncle resident of Vienna.

Except for this last threat, which was the only serious and preoccupied him for some time, Ismail he mocked everyone, including the baron of the rue Laffitte, and continued to pile up the piastres of his subjects.

The mixed courts continually condemned him a certain magistrate was fueling the unrest by declaring that the European colony was not composed only by deranged people; there had been disorder. shattered; but, suddenly, everything seemed to return to normal calm, towards the end of August "after a fire which ft devastated the French consulate in Cairo and con-" "I have a lawyer's paperwork."

And, indeed, in the first days of September People began to talk peacefully about "reforms". parliamentary" projects by Ismail.

In Paris, around the same time (September) Soubeyran had definitively left Crédit land. He was going to establish several financial companies. celebrates and continue the fight; but, for some At the time, he was hampered by a judicial investigation. directed against him and several of his colleagues at Board of Directors of Crédit Foncier.

That was the final blow.

The Journal des Débats had, moreover, treacherously- It was announced, not the prosecution, but the revocation de Soubeyran; only the Public Prosecutor's Office was seeping through- towards the sentence where the newspaper insinuated that, "Léon Say having dismissed, in the same batch, Grivnrt, from Plæuc, Soubeijran and Leviez, you had to see at "The first two dismissals were for political reasons." and for the other two, "administrative" reasons.

From now on, Rothschild would have a free hand

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC

221

and the year will not end without him himself having to in turn lent to Ismail (Egyptian loan, no- (Wednesday).

As for existing loans, they had, pen-
In these intrigues, he performed enough carp leaps.
so that the financiers of both sides had often the opportunity to extensively strip the public.

Let's now see what had become of the war
from the East.

Narrating it in detail would be comparable to ra-to recount a dream, given the historical improbabilitiesrisks had become mixed with specious filth in an inextricable mess.

The Russians and Turks had barely entered in talks (January) that the Queen of the Jews – Victoria – thought of asking for subsidies from “her parliament”, in anticipation of the “im-planned. » •-

Almost at the same time and as if, sorry for the Peace, but Moloch-Baal sought to reignite the war.

* Prices of Egyptian funds from 1875 to 1878:

Egyptian Funds

7 0/0 1866

7 0/0 1868

7 0/0 iS70

7 0/0 1873

7 0/0 1876 (unified debt).

6 0/0 1876 id

5 1/2 0/0 (path of iron and port of Alexandrie.)

1875

18

6

18

7

1!

78

More

More

More

More

More

More

More

More

high down

high

down

high

down

high

down

500

380

440

190

360

275

422

3(K)

87

64

73

37

54

42

»

))

430

285

350

170

235

150

410

201

411

270

XM

173

264

200

290

249

»

II

273

180

257

181

»

»

»

•

192

177

202

136

290

130

»

»

347

325

322

225

387

210

500

100

500

500

500

500

222 Speculation 1878

invisible agents were muddying the waters of the negotiations. tions; so that, unable to trust any diplomat, "the fat sultan obliged to write directly to the Tsar that he accepted his conditions (February).

This brought English irritation to a head, and he did not It took nothing less than a speech from Bismarck to that the Treaty of San Stefano, signed on March 3, between the belligerents, was considered to have existed.

From then on, all the diplomats' efforts were concentrated on towards holding a congress, the only way to undo the Treaty of San Stefano.

However, this treaty had tripled Montenegro's size, enlarging it Serbia and Romania recognized as independent, created a vast principality of Bulgaria^ added to Russia, some Asian possessions, and stipulated compensation of 1.2 billion.

Of all these arrangements, the most worrying to Jews was the one relating to Greater Bulgaria, theater supreme struggle of Hirsch against railway lines Ottoman territories that he had pledged not to consecrate to plow.

Austria wanted to settle the matter alone, with Turkey, the Bulgarian question and, in the meantime, concluded a loan from \q. Banque de Paris and the Crédic land cr^la/rrc/ie/Disraeli-Beasconfield claimed that the Treaty of San Stefano "created a Bulgaria "which was not inhabited by Bulgarians" (April 8) and hinted that he would want compensation; Romania complained about not having been called to the treaty; and, on top of everything, the press sold to Hirsch accused Russia of having massacred Polish Israelites in the Balkans.

From all this, it resulted that the Turkish ministry having worked on the much-criticized treaty, was replaced and that the

The Congress of Berlin began to function.

Others will tell what ostensibly happened there-ly; as for me, I will simply state that Greater Bulgaria and the war indemnity were primarily the subject of discussion.

Bulgaria was cut in two; the part that split
The territorial principality was established as a tributary principality and the
The southern part was established as a Turkish province.
tonome under the name of Eastern Rumelia.

As for the war indemnity, it did not become payable only when the Gate has paid off all his other creditors!

These two stipulations clearly bore the mark from the factory of Jewish moneylenders.

They alone were to be privileged; Russia, victorious, she will wait for her money and as, according to
The words, it seemed, had been dealt with in a vulgar way.
■Security holders, it will suffice for financiers to chi-to can in their name to perpetuate the debate and make
The treaty clause is illusory.

Hirsch, moreover, could accomplish this all by himself.
this task. He was the one who had dominated people of Congress; it was he who had wanted, despite the Russia, a Rumelia interposed between Gonstanti-Naples and Sofia, a new way to postpone the raccordage of Ottoman roads; this connection demanded by the Porte, Russia and Austria, useful to Germany and France, but unpleasant to England and Hirsch, should no more be done that Russia should not be paid; this would lead certain new complications between all states and, consequently, harvests of men

224 Speculation 1878

Money for the Jewish vultures! That was what he
They needed it!

It's incredible, but that's how it is!

The perpetual unrest in the Balkans enriches-
They shunned the Jews. The sections of railway, cralits in wartime; he had enlisted, by Article 14 of its specifications, to be transported half price soldiers and their baggage, thus than all military equipment.

However, Hirsch transported everything at low speed. and charged half the high-speed rail fare. which half was almost always equal to the total low speed tax*.

By this means, in the sole journey of Gonstan- From Tinople to Adrianople, a wagon of munitions was burdened [by a difference of more than 1,000 piastres] or2.

Well, as long as the connection wasn't In fact, Hirsch would benefit from the proceeds of the operation. tion!

If commercial exploitation slowed down on the sections that served the sea, a war occurred and intensified, within, the traffic of the future corpses and future loot.

I say future spoils; but these spoils were still for Hirsch. I'll prove it:

"Shortly after the treaty, Russian troops n of the occupation returned to their homes and the

* Circular from the Railway Directorate, dated Ju 22 May 1876, thus taxing cannons, soldiers, etc.

■' Germany and the Railways of the Orient, Paul Dehn (Munich.)

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 225

"The garrison of the Dedeagadsch fort, too,"
"was preparing to leave. At the last moment, the "Staff Colonel Barmin, acting as ((Transport Commissioner, saw his attention
"drawn to a huge pile of materials intended "to the superstructure of the track, which, apparently-
"acting on the construction, under direct management, of the Bel- section
"Lowar-Sofia, had been imported from Europe by the "Turkish government and stored in Dedeagadsch,
These materials could be worth approximately 800,000
"marks.

"of war, but he had to give up on repatriating him, ((because he couldn't drag these materials to his re-"morque. In the face of this embarrassment of the en-
"enemy of the Turks, emerges as a savior intermediary-
"I want the happy tenant free of charge of the roads of "Turkish iron, Baron Hirsch, with his company. He "offered the colonel a paltry price in exchange
"of the good of the Turkish government, indeed became ac-
"He sought out all these materials and hastened to collect them"
"to make them disappear by using them for maintenance of "The track, on the lines he operated."

The author, from whom I borrow this story*, adds in way of thinking:

"It is not only in Constantinople that "Such transactions have caused astonishment-
"unspeakable lie; everywhere else, according to the law"
"of peace or the customs of war, we would have,
"Quite simply, put a rope around the neck of such a person"
"A man of iron. The Turks would have done it too."

"Paul Dehn, already mentioned."

13.

22G speculation 1878

((very willingly; but, in this respect, they
"They maintain, like the people of Nuremberg, that he does not
No one should be hanged, unless they have it between them.
"The hands."

But it was this man who got everything from the congress.
from Berlin!

At the express request of the representatives of Austria-Hungary, extraordinarily forgetful obstacles put in place in 1872 by the same Hirsch in concert with England, at the joining of Turkish lines with Austrian networks, the Congress of Berlin, in its sessions of the 26th and June 28, resolved, not to force Baron Hirseh to the late execution of its obligations, but to the to understand, and with it his society and its privilegesleges, for the benefit of the peace treaty. Consequently, the Bulgaria, like Serbia, were substituted for their share of the commitments that the Porte had made pulled, both towards Austria-Hungary and towards the Company operating the railways of the connection, as well as operation of the lines railways located on their territoriesK

To draw up the necessary agreements to be settled the agreement, the direction, the construction and the connections-dements, a commission was established by the same treaty, with Vienna as the meeting place and composed by representatives of Austria-Hungary, of the Porte, of Serbia and Bulgaria; it was the famous four-way conference, including the newspapers occupied themselves and who dragged out their deliberations during nearly two years.

"Treaty of Berlin, Articles 10 and 38.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 227

I am forced to suspend the history of this conference; but, to establish the ideas, I must, from now on, mention two specific facts:
In 1882, one of the Austro-Hungarian diplomats committed suicide, and in 1887 the connection of the roads
Turks were still to be made!

Nevertheless, the Congress of Berlin was to end-to be met with a stunning new development.

It was suddenly learned that, by a treaty which had remained Secretly, England had been given over by Turkey
City of Cyprus, that is to say a new station, triple surveillance post towards Asia Minor, the Palestine and the entrance to the Suez Canal! (July.)

The Tsar's response was immediate; he said he deployed his armies towards Afghanistan and, throughout the rest of the year, they fought in Asia, during that, in Bosnia and Bulgaria, there were repeated disturbances threatened.

Clearly, the Congress of Berlin had been a Jewish triumph.

I'm not the one saying this; here are the praises... officially addressed to the French representative Wad-Dington, who, although aware of the English projects on Cyprus, had said nothing about it, but who, seeing the congress completely forget ['improvement of fate'] Christian populations, the sole cause of the WAR, reminded him of his duty, as was customary in ju-will be managed by the following things noted in the

– “Mr. Waddington, our plenipotentiary to "The Berlin congress has just obtained a new a success (?). He was the only one to present the proposal "concerning religious freedom and civil equality"

228 Speculation 1878

"of all the inhabitants of Eastern Rumelia and "of Bulgaria. He was the one who drafted all the ar-
"articles of this major reform, adopted unanimously"
"Muddled up by the congress... If, therefore, peace is restored to <(Europe... we owe it... to France... to its in"a completely disinterested flow, highlighted by "Mr. Waddington K"

– “Mr. Waddington has just received in Berlin,
"From Mr. Crémieux, Senator, a telegram of "1 congratulations which ends like this:"

"The Israelites of the East, brought to the level of all "their fellow citizens, it's a new glory for "France and for Mr. Waddington in history"
"of the 19th century, "^\n

– ((Thirteenth General Assembly of the Alliance) ((Universal Israelite... On the platform one notices-
"Quait MM. Derenburg, Narcisse Leven, secret
"General silence, Lehman, Allegri, Isidor, great
"Rabbi, Mayer, Baron Hirsch, Bamberger, etc.

((Mr. Crémieux profusely thanked France)
"current republican for having shown itself, at the con-
"Berlin sandstone, the worthy successor of France
"of 1789 (?), and he paid homage to the devoted-"The enlightened manner with which Mr. Waddington, mid-"Minister of Foreign Affairs, Senator of "St-Vallier and Councillor Desprez, have "fulfilled the noble mission they had undertaken"
"Positioned ^."

'La Lanterne, June 30, 1878.
2 ia Lanterne., July 5, 1878.
<• La Lanterne, August 15, 1878.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 229

– “Telegraphs are being sent from Constantinople to Stan-

"A French company, familiar with a ((a large number of Israelites, obtained a concession-
"sion for the extraction of bitumen from the sea"
"Dead."

As we can see, the enthusiasm of the Jews had she could hardly contain herself; and I must add here that none For my part, I did not discover any congratulations emanating from or from the pope or archbishop, or even a simple Catholic.

It's about time France understood how much what the Jews mean by "the immortal princes"
"Cipes of 1789" has nothing to do with the cult Progress or the pursuit of one's own interests!

Meanwhile, Waddington being blessed by the al-alliance where Baron Hirsch held a seat, Bismarck was, in turn, through the safe where Rothschild lived and he was able to contract with him, through Bleischræder, a loan of 60 million marks (August).

Amidst these events, the uni- exhibition Versailles had opened, the usual pretext for travel princely and diplomatic flirtations.

England, who had won Cyprus in the small
The game of the Orient, it seems, felt the need to gild the France's pill. Its Prince of Wales, who came to Paris, invited Gambetta to lunch [aonl]. There, it seems-did he, between two bottles of Champagne, the son of The grocer from Cahors was seduced by the grocer's son from London who called him: great man.

Like most children of the people, Gam-Betta had been dazzled by this false prestige which

* La Lanterne, August 12, 1878.

230 speculation ists

We surround the kings and who is, only, a privilege-a privilege of impunity, scandalously granted to their depravities caused by universal cowardice.

Also, some time later, well-informed people
més, to whom people were talking about English Cyprus wine, blinked their eyes and, discreetly, added: Oh!
We have compensation, we will still know: Here is Gambetta's opinion on the Treaty of Berlin: "The mere fact that peace is guaranteed" "Rantie makes me overlook all her faults."

Meanwhile, the tribune's entourage... tightened and furnished itself with finance.

In March, Jules Ferry's brother, Charles, the one who was to distinguish himself in the Franco-Egyptian bank yours and take an interest in Tunisian debt, had married M^{me} AUain-Targè.

That's not all; the Berlin congress had put The question is the delimitation of Greek borders.

Also, shortly afterwards, the newspapers announced that at London, holders of Greek bonds were about to accept an agreement. We shall see soon to emerge from this side of the ■ marvelous operations-uses.

Do we now understand that this poor Gambetta said the following foolish things in Romans:

What is wealth? It is the product of "Work. What is the Republic? It is the "Workers' government! (Thunder of applause)." – This is the credit of France "which made it possible to begin the major works" "public, railways, canals, favoring this 'La IXinterne, July 23, 1878.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 231

"which is essential, the rapprochement of the few-Magpies, thanks to the freedom of trade."

So it's clear, we're going to get closer to Greece and Tunisia. For Tunisia there is already a pre-Text: The looting of a building by Kroumirs. What will be the case for Greece, whose consul general His name is Baron d'Erlanger?

In all cases, action will be taken through credit. that is to say, through Jewish influence! through speculation!

But credit! Loans! That was already everything! system of rulers within.

There had been shouting in every possible way, in the press and activity to all branches of national industry;

The World's Fair was good, but it wasn't Not enough: excessive gambling and speculation above all, they wanted pretexts to shake up the mar-public funds.

Foreign policy had already provided them with some.
an ample supply; but inside, it was necessary predicting unemployment, labor crises? and the strikes. And so, with great enthusiasm, people lived the famous public works plan to emerge, to which
Mr. de Freycinet gave his name to the project.

However, it was written that this overly clever man would pass-would spend his time stirring up prey whose only shadow would be prosecuted.

I said, in recounting the year 1877, to what dismay had brought together the crowd of small interest companies local loan, thanks to the fierce works of finance and major railway companies.

That being said, a man who would have liked to take
j.orps to body the solution of the economic problem

232 speculation ists

national transport, would simply have market on the monopolies that the empire had fortified of iron and gold, would have resolutely gutted them and, to create a national network, would have directly offered Parliament has proposed a buyback plan.

It was too simple and too clear; the engineer Frey-Cinet, a man of curves and ellipses, did not dare directly attack the great lords of the railway, he dealt with them indirectly and presented, all of aon the edge, a classification plan into lines of general interest-general and in lines of local interest.

Strange thing! right at the beginning of his report,
Freycinet is forced to confess that "the economics-
The engineers and the scientists searched in vain for "their"
a formula" therefore, he declares that it is necessary to do studies to arrive at a classification and, as there are no regulations, it's arbitrary (he said arbitr-trage) of a series of commissions which will have to remove-to please.

Finally, the lines had to be grouped beforehand.

national.

This network will later be called: the paths of Vétai iron will be open to all kinds of criticism.
without putting an end to the abuses of large companies;
But, meanwhile, what feverish commotion!
will reign on the Stock Exchange, over the shares of companies to be ra-buy, on the securities to be issued for new works and on the existing liters of the various com-railway companies!

Just imagine! 3 and even 4 billion to borrow!

The Freycinet plan was adopted in the Chamber of deputies by 357 votes to 94. This was the signal of

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 233

the great stock market explosion. More than ever we will see companies of all kinds being founded:
construction companies, industrial companies trials to provide entrepreneurs, financiers to supply manufacturers, depots to facilitate the use of circulating funds among entrepreneurs, industrialists, financiers, and bankers;
issuing companies to represent the funds
Finally, companies have been asked to provide reporting services to receive the... securities created to represent the funds deposited herein culants or employees.

And besides, wasn't that the case for pushing into the public the half-baked shows of the previous year previous (1.8 million), adding to it however for 1878 another sum of 1.200 million'?

That is what was done.

Never before has such abuse of the association been so blatant.
Such extreme wear and tear had never been seen before!
The more powerful octopus could not recover, by the hypocredit crisis, all the money at a given moment under higher wages, but returned, almost immediately, the workers added, as an interest, the loss of their health and their lives.

The whole year passed in this way amidst the agitation-the most fictitious of theories. Judge for yourselves! The rulers
They were doing social economics! There was no need to Say no! We were taking care of the people! We were going to finish-to close the local roads! we were going to multiply the

1. State or city loans: 617 million 6/10

Credit institutions 35 – 1/10

Industrial companies 570 – 2/10

Total 1.222 million 9/10

234 speculation

IS'S

local railways! And Prudhomme said seeminently:

"You'll see, sir! The Companies haven't

"If we behave ourselves, we will have a national network-
nal. »

Poor Prudhomme! He hadn't counted on the two of them.
Rothschild and Léon Say lynxes, without the cha-Soubeyran and without Bontoux, the crow wanting to imitate the eagle.

In short, what had we done?

We had, with taxpayers' money, without no general organizational plan, and "by pure
"benevolence," as the bill stated, saved from bankruptcy a series of small major lines-excessively repetitive.

Sadi-Garnot, the budget rapporteur, found ad-admirable this ineptitude; Wilson, Allain-Targé the de-They declared it divine! Gambet nodded his head; that Did we want more?

Ah! It's a whole clan of newly rich people was going, by this means, to get out of trouble and, better Finally, to climb to the heights of the farms.
guaranteed by the State!

We didn't admit it, of course! We defended ourselves.
even to entrust the exploitation of the few acquired companies; no! we would manage on a temporary basis-
It's all about the lie.

The feudalism of the old railways could be seen emerging major reform: tariffs in the hands of the State and their unification.

The most authoritative economists had shuddered

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 235

faced with this clumsy, articulated, and confidently by Léon Say:

"If the state operates, it will lower the rates. If you
"Lower the tariffs, it's the taxman who will pay the difference"
'(reference. If you transform the path rates
"From iron to taxes, there will no longer be finances in ((FILANCE. »

A valuable admission to remember for those who, like I know what a fatal and deadly yoke it is, for a hoiiinous nation, the reign of finance.

But Léon Say was speaking in a double sense.

If he envisioned the State regulating tariffs, that is to say-that is to say, removing them from the arbitrary control of companies (this idea could have occurred to the State, even without a combination of buyouts, and that's what Say com-was beating}, however, his listeners did not think than the budget; they must have thought it lost, and yet no one, neither among the deputies nor among the senators,
He didn't even think to answer him:

"Come now! You joker! Is tobacco, the posts, gunpowder, maps, salt, etc. do not supply
They don't carry tariffs/taxes? And does the budget suffer as a result?
something "?

Finally, we voted on the defacement buyouts and we left the question of pricing in the shadows.

There were, here and there, a few diversions.

Wilson, for example, who dreamed of war against former companies – murky waters in which he hoped to sin – insisted on redemption and ex-exploitation by the State; this was, in fact, an opportunity to play a trick on Gambetta.

He had been elected president and he, Wilson, had...

236 speculation 1875

draft agreement with the Northern Company for the operation of a purchased line. Gambetta supported the convention; Wilson opposed it.

Gambetta was defeated in the commission, "because "that the convention implied the abandonment of the system-the term of the buyout by the State and the operation by "Farming companies."

Isn't this the right time to recall what I was saying?
in 1876, regarding the price reductions granted, only by the Northern Company, to the workers who were attending the congress, following the benevolent remark published by the newspaper La République fran-Caise?

"It is necessary to note down carefully," I said, "and the name of the "newspaper and company name; we re-
"we will both find when the feudalism of the
"The railways will have crushed their opponents."

The reduction granted to the workers was the first-
First step; Gambetta's attitude, in favor of the convention, was the second.

Despite this minor setback, Rothschild did not take place to complain.

Freycinet's major works had been a
This was an opportunity for Léon Say to create a new fund:
the 3 0/0 amortizable.

This fund was not offered through a public offering;
It was negotiated under the cloak of the fireplace, by packages to both sides, especially to Rothschild.

It was like a variable-rate currency, of which the people paid \a strike, Icfrat, V interest, \exchange;
In short, a fourfold increase in wear and tear.

"Pace 184.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 237

Confident in the placement of his paper, Léon Say had motors and criticisms that, from time to time, Sou-Beyran was doing his best to revive the situation.

While the old and new owners
They thus waged war on the backs of the people, he continued to await the pro-reforms bets.

In parliament, it was enough to talk about interests workers to clear the space in the hemicycles:

((When Mr. Talandier raised his voice in favor "Workers," a newspaper said, "he found none in "The assembly received no response; but it was about-"
"Today's cavalry remount day and the prize"
"to which the government must buy the horses"
"of war, and the orators besieged the tribune."

And it was always like that!

However, despite or because of the exposure, the
The problem lay with salaried employment. "Everything has gone up!"
exclaimed Henry Maret in the Marseillaise.

There were, in fact, many strikes;
blacksmiths in Le Havre, miners in Decazeville, to Monceau-les-Mines, in Anzin; the bakers in Be-Sançon, then in Bordeaux; the tulle dressers at Tarare, the coachmen in Paris, the dyers in Saint-Chamond, the spinners at Le Vigan, and many others very much still, were trying to balance their salaries with their need to live.

They were met with a well-deserved leave of absence.
when, in the name of freedom of labor, they are not wouldn't put him in prison, like in Monceau-lesûlines, in Decazeville and in Anzin.

238 speculation jsvs

Is it understood that in Anzin, where reigned, between other administrators, the Duke of Audifîret-Pasquier and Casimir Périér and where the capital value of the denier had spent, in five years, 300,000 francs (1870) at 1,250,000 francs (1875), we were still at mar-to change the wages of workers who have never-had shared in the extraordinary profits an-completed?

Other administrators, Léon Say and Raoul Duval, bayonets were sent to miners who protested against a wage cut, then that, if justice had deigned to look at the books social issues, she reportedly discovered serious causes of these reductions were suddenly enacted.

Is it understood that in Monceau-les-Mines, a Chagot, ruthless cleric, had the right to impose his harassment of workers and the power of their to obtain a few months in prison in exchange of their grievances?

Isn't all of this ferocious?

And when the same workers seek to... tend to find a remedy for their ills, when They meet in congress, what is the attitude of public authorities?

Here it is:

At the beginning of 1878, they had quietly left to hold a workers' congress in Lyon (January). In March, another congress had been convened in Paris; The unofficial newspapers declared that he did not would not be allowed. Why yes in Lyon and no in Paris? In August, the police were actually preventing the holding this congress; but, alongside it, she left a group of Catholic workers to stand quietly its foundations. Why? Ah! It's because the other one was composed of socialist workers

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 239

Not content with having prevented the meeting of this Lastly, they were prosecuting its organizers and they condemned for having created an association of more of 20 people (October).

From which I conclude, or that V Catholic association contained only 19 members, or else, that the justice- This was once again the case:

{(A dark servant at the command of the strongest,}

as Victor Hugo would say.

"strong" – the weak Mac-Mahon, who was not the president of the Jews, as, later, Grévy will harm especially – manifested, from time to time, his presence in power.

In the future, we will be just as ruthless in socialists, but Catholics will be less protectedliques.

Sensing this future, they did not limit themselves not to enlist workers. Full of provisions
They had also resolved to fight against speculation.
against the Jews on their own ground.

A certain Bontoux, a candidate of the moral order, elected in the October 1877 elections, had been invalidated.

In this adventure, he lost a position of 80,000 francs per year for having declared to the tribune that "for twenty years he had defended the interests "French in Austria."

Bontoux was, in fact, director of the railways of iron from southern Austria, that is to say, an employee of Rothschild.

240 Speculation 1878

He was heavily criticized, it is said, for having displayed his attitude French iudefrançaise of Austrian employee, but in reality having displeased Rothschild who, as we recall, had
He did not value moral order; he had to resign.

But he wasted no time, and three or four months later (March-April), he put the astonishing prospectuses of a bank, with a capital of 25 million, where the following note could be read:

"Our revered Holy Father has kindly agreed to give has a special blessing and autograph at the fund-
"Date holders of the Société L'Union générale."

The famous bank had just been born.

From her very first steps, she had declared war on Rue Laffitte. Indeed, one of the offers concerns-managing the Egyptian portfolio of Crédit Foncier, and which I mentioned above, originated from Bontoux, as president of the General Union trade union;

a secret agreement granting him the construction-railway development in Serbia. As we have seen sees, the struggle between Jewish finance and Catholic finance The plan was being prepared as early as 1878.

Around October, a vague concern began to manifest itself in the country.

The socialists had just been condemned, among whom... had banned the congress; it had just been learned that The Kanaks had revolted and massacred inhabitants of New Caledonia. To what pro- What about this uprising? Many pages have been written about it. subject; I will limit myself to pointing out that before the Creation of the Bank of New Caledonia, the

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 241

The Kanaks had shown no hostility, and that there, as elsewhere on a larger scale, that is to say in Türkiye and the Balkans, the financial actions have, quite simply, caused massacres and uprisings.

It is certain, however, that there was a prevailing emotion. in France. Rumors were circulating. The marshal, He simply could not tolerate what was happening.

The Sun, wanting to reassure people, reproduced- knows an article from Le Figaro, signed this Mystery", and mentioning the country's "nervousness".

"We see ghosts everywhere," Mys- said
"Terre,... we are waiting for something without knowing "What? That's the origin of all this nonsense."
"to which the return of Parliament gives a
"A semblance of a body. It's pure fantasy."
"Under which, I repeat, there is nothing, nothing, nothing!"

Nevertheless, as soon as Parliament reconvened, the bra- The defeats of May 16th began again.

Fourtou, arguing against his own invalidation (November), said: "If I had done all my duty, "You probably wouldn't be here, gentlemen."

This suited the mindset of some supporters of coups d'état.

even in his memoirs, that "General Ducrot, "anticipated by the imperialists, had hesitated and "even refused;" and Fidus to mention his opinion:

"I replied," he wrote; "it's because we did it wrong." "Took. It's not by groping and proposing" "to act at a given moment when one can decide a "General. You have to go to him and tell him: "In a

14

242 speculation ists

"At this hour, the Imperial Prince will be in Paris; here is your "patent signed by Marshal of France, another of "duke, and two million." A man caught in the act of... "even lies, and thus summoned to act, receives a blow (c to the head and the heart, and is trained to carry it "Another one with his hand."

Here Fidus is not clear, and one would hesitate to know if the blow "to be delivered with the hand" were not, by chance, a slap to the author of a similar proposal ?

But no, for Fidus, this is a "competition purchase" is a natural thing, even a honorable one, since it It's about protecting the wealthy!

Reading this, it's incomprehensible that judges were found to condemn the commander Sabiani (March), who, director of the Cherche- prison At midday, he was content to ransom his prisoners. It is true that once convicted, one waited nine months to remove his decoration.

The propertied bourgeoisie had offered, on the other hand part, during the year 1878, enough evidence of its Deep decay. Filthy scandals. had taken place in Auch (aoul), and in Bordeaux (December), attesting to the baseness of evil passions Thusiennes/

Justice, for its part, whether in finance or in morally, he had continued his recantations; it seems even that these inspired the Chamber of deposed, where they ended up devouring each other amongst themselves – blicains.

at V0fpciel (in January 1879,

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 243

For example, Duportal was vilified for having requested thanks to Napoleon in 1852! and Bonnet-Duverdier, for having kept it a little too long a sum intended for public use, while respectfully treated a senior official customs, exempting the girl from all duties of a Rothschild who, having recently married a The Earl of Rosebery was arriving in London with his husband, his silverware, his furniture, and his house Ascent!

I will refrain from citing the astonishing variations of leaders; moreover, I must briefly summarize this end of the year, which is already morally deplorable, It was also materially so.

The black spots seemed to have concentrated in England; although triumphant, it abounded bankrupt and, while its mercenaries were carrying a victory to Kabul, an attack was committed in London against Queen Victoria.

In France, concern had increased; it was with a moderate training that we prepared ourselves for the future senatorial elections, intended to rejuvenate the Senate and to destroy its majority, which had always remained favorable suitable, if necessary, for a new dissolution of the Chamber of Deputies.

In short, in 1878 as in 1877, as before— Before, we had speculated, speculated, and speculated some more!

Agioté on everything:

On corpses, on ideas, on things, about men!

On the Stock Exchange, apart from the stocks I had to to study in particular, the events had been exploited and had caused great variations

244

THE AGROTION

1875

lions'; capital movements were results and, added to the results of the other combinations births, had changed the proportions that I had recorded at the end of 1877.

Out of one hundred inhabitants, twenty owned property, having to to distribute 209 billion; so we had returned, to a little near, to the figures of 1876. ^

The increase in real estate capital amounted to to a few billion; but the strongest belonged, without a doubt, financial capital triumphed Authors of the year!

Alongside this orgy of billions, let's see how-how the non-owning class was treated.

Here is a comparison table:

Per 100 inhabitants

1877 1878

Possessing 'il 20

v -jt \ Employees.. 71/ ..., on ^ Employees 71

Non-possessing jj3.^.^_ 8i_ ^_) Devoid. ... 9

Totals 100 iU0

'Here are the prices of the main stocks:'

1878 Plusliaut Lower

3 0/0 77.70 70.35

5 0/0 H5.03 107.55

Italian 78.10 69.30

Turkish 17.00 7.15

2 Here are the details:

Billions

1877 1878 Difference

Cipilanx real estate 105 9/10 110 2/10 + 4 3/10

– mohiliKrs 65 1/10 67 9/10 + –2 8/10

– Onanciers 25 1/10 317/10 + 6 6/10

Totals 196 1/10 209 8/10 + 13 7/10

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 245

These figures, in turn, tell their own story in their own language.
The year's results are stark and brutal.

We had made no progress; the workload had not increased.
Only misery had risen; speculation, in fact, had been able to reject from among the propertied class some victims who, ashamed or incapable of salaried work, had gone on to increase the misery.

14.

4. – Delilah's Scissors

PERIOD 1879–1880–1881

Summary. 1879. – Grévy, President. – Events in Tunis.

– Bone in Guelma. – Troubles in Algeria; – How Egypt prevented the conversion of the 5%. – Rothschild no longer pays. – A dismissal. – The whys? – The ar-Article 7. – The displaced persons. – Judicial reversals. – The Dying Russia. – Greece. – Beneficial platform!

– The Grévy Congress. – Poverty is rising.

The restricted suffrage, that of the propertied classes, was going to be consulted.

Naturally, the effort of the Jewish party, already triumphantphant, moreover, in the conduct of his affairs, both internal and external factors, had to be considered focus on winning over a Senate docile to his interests and hostile to any further dissolution, may to be dreamed of, if not by Mac-Mahon, at least by his Catholic advisors, eternal conspirators.

the Senate contained a greater number of these politicians calling themselves republicans and, consequently, being able to lend themselves, more easily, to semblance of promised reforms.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 247

Indeed, the social unrest was such that, even to the undemanding voters of the Senate, it had been necessary to promise "changes" in the "way of being" of the moment.

For the Jewish party, these "changes" were very simple. Under the pretext of modifying the old Thiers' formula: "The Republic without the republicans" clerics, "he wanted to purge the bureaucracy and to finally create the republic of republicans.

This was, in fact, the refrain that, the following day of the elections, all the party newspapers had sung in unison.

That being said, and to begin with the functions the most threatening, precisely because they had further threatened the success of the elections From 1877 onwards, the renewal of the major military commands.

That's where they were waiting for the marshal, and he didn't He did not deceive the expectation; he resisted, he stubbed his toe and finally—ly, despite the exhortations of a certain cardinal *■
A politician with a knapsack on his back and a rope around his neck, he gave his resignation on January 30th.

Within a few hours, his estate was opened and closed; the congress, meeting in Versailles, elected for so to speak without discussion Jules Grévy, the lawyer of guanos and the Jew Dreyfus, of whom I have already said what—What words.

As early as 1877, the Jewish party had acclaimed his name at the election time, a time when he believed to the immediate retirement of Mac-Mahon; Grévy, Moreover, somehow, he enjoyed a re—

- Cardinal de Donnet, Archbishop of Rouen.

or of a citizen who did not legitimize it.

As a bourgeois, he had all the flaws of which
The "stiff-necked" salons are used to it, ridiculous Moreover, to make a great deal of it; he was separated from his woman, after having taken her in the "lower layers"
"the inner workings of society," to use the expression-sion employed in the aforementioned salons.

Lawyer's eraser, he had broken the rules of his order, pleading while he was already, and was going to be, once again, president of the House of deputies (1877); as a politician, he was going to accept a mandate against the necessity of which he had voted, when he had no hope of obtaining it never, and by virtue of this mandate he was going to be tasked with defending a constitution that had never existed voted.

Besides the fact that all the palinodies were thus reunited-
He was completely unaware of it in his person, even this kind of chivalry with which they adorn themselves, quite willingly, the soldiers who had reached the highest ranks students !

The bourgeoisie, that is to say, possessive Judaism-dant, had therefore just chosen a representative who, endowed with all his atavistic flaws, but lacking none of its borrowed qualities were even not worthy of its traditional indignity.

Despite, or perhaps because of, this, things moved quickly sloppy.

From the first week of February, we had a ministry Waddington, Léon Say, Freycinet, a a message with no more color than necessary and a President of the Chamber of Deputies: Gambetta,

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 249

which his friends were already quietly calling: "the dictator-
"tor" and who, poor Samson, was, from that day, truly in the hands of the courtesan who de-was going to hand him over to the Philistines.

From the very beginning of the year, the question with the feudalism of the East seemingly dormant, the possessions of the sedentary, that is to say cosmopolitan financiers,

Indeed, one could read in all the newspapers where Havas Agency whispered this insinuation:

"Yesterday morning, Wednesday, at eleven o'clock, expired
"the forty-eight hour deadline granted to the bey
"from Tunis to give his response to the ultimatum" of the French government.

"If this answer, as is believed, is evasive,
(The French consul had to bring his flag,
"leave the consulate and retire aboard
"Vlnfernet*."

All this noise had one apparent cause:
dispute relating to a land concession free rope to the Count of Sancy, one of the members of the financial committee operating near the bey.

As we can see, Gomme was still for the appetites.
capitalists of a few whom they wanted to expose the lives of our soldiers.

This time, however, the expedition was not, it seemed...
Is it ripe, not ripe, or at least those who wanted to Those leading it did not yet feel in control.
of power; thus the result of the ultimatum was declared satisfactory.

Anticipating this outcome, a newspaper had written:

< La Lanterne, January 10, 1879.

250 speculation

1870

"In the East, discussions of this kind are "frequent exchanges between governments and consu-
"European countries and the situation is becoming tense, sometimes, at the
"to the point where a break seems imminent; but at
"At the very last moment, the weakest finally gives in."

The same newspaper also recalled an analogous case.
log dating back to 1872, which it is useful to point out here, because what really needed to happen in the
The sequel was implicitly contained therein.

The Jewish banker Erlanger, of Prussian nationality his own, had usury on the bey of Tunis, conform-ment to the financial traditions that I have already exp-sées.

Now, just like his overlord the sultan, the bey of Tunis was happy to receive visitors but not very fond of reciprocating.
all the more so since, between receipt and delivery, there is an interpos-always know a host of gluttonous appetites.

Also in 1872, Erlanger had demanded the recognition birth and registration of his claim, amounting to 4 million francs, by the international commission national which operated next to the bey; circumstance to which Decazes had alluded in 1876 tribune, when he was dealing with Egypt ~.

Having experienced some difficulties, Erlanger addressed Bismarck and received an ultimatum from him gave him complete satisfaction.

Since that time, in addition to Erlanger, Lévy-Gré-better, the Franco-Egyptian Bank, had made advances to the bey; a French company being in Previously, there was no longer any need to go to Berlin to Petit Moniteur universel, January 9, 1879.

'See chapter III, page 176.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 251

to make diplomatic threats and put pressure on the Tunisian sovereign.

Berlin, moreover, had shown little willingness to a Tunisian occupation; Bismarck found, in truth-similarly, that this was an ill-Bile: What? So close to Italy! So far from the sea Baltic! And then: a huge tour by the sea of the North, the English Channel, the Ocean, the Mediterranean, with obligation to parade in front of Gibraltar and not far of Suez!

For sure, the game wouldn't be worth the marks at spend!

For France? Excellent! He was skillful. to encourage its speculative owners to "rub" and perhaps to "skin" those of London and Rome. It was all profit; and then the Saint Gotthard Pass.

Nothing better than Tunis?

And that is why, as early as 1878, when Gambetta had lunch with the Prince of Wales, one might think to Tunisian compensation*.

That, too, is why we had silently bought the securities of the unified debt ^ and the various claims

'See above, chapter III, p^e 230.

2. The prices of the single debt, the only one listed, were the following:

Higher, more bns

1872 228.73 162.00

1873 • 223.75 199.50

1874 285.00 206.00

1875 290.00 252.00

1876 295.00 200.00

1877, 235.00 157.00

1878 234.00 160.00

1879 242.00 203.00

252 speculation

1878

which it had increased; the official rating had reproduced, in its own way, these various financial maneuvers offices where one could discern the hands of the board of directors administration of the railway company of. Bône in Guelma and those of the Franco-Egyptian Bank yours.

However, in the company from Bône to Guelma, fleu- a veritable bouquet of newly wealthy people, at the head of which G ry was found as president and Siegfried as vice-president, then F. Barrot, S. Guin, etc. *.

former owners: E. Delessert, Rey de Foresta. Albert Rostand; then Jews such as Aug. Lippmann, G. Halphen, Marc-Lévy-Cré-better.

As censors, two sons-in-law of Allain-Targé: Léon Delaporte and Charles Ferry, brother of Jules Ferry 2.

Recently, an attempt at a merger had been outlined between Crédit Mobilier, where Erlanger was, and the Franco-Egyptian Bank; but Erlanger had preferred to take over the French General Credit by purchasing 17,376 shares in a block; however, This did not prevent participation; also the Franco-Egyptian Bank, with a view to its operations

* The council also included the following names: Buisson, W. Chabrol, T. Conlin, Desgranges, Gobron, T. Knight, Lagrange, Maire, de Naléche, Salles; Peytet, cent-sister.

2 II There were also: V. DciàlqnG^ president; Fred. Grenin-Ger, Eug. Roy, Morel Kahn.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 253

multiple external lions, also in Egypt that in Réunion and elsewhere, suddenly doubled its capital as of October 30, 1879, by bringing it from 25 to 50 million.

However, it should be noted that, precisely, the newspapers of the October 30 of the same year reported to the alteration "an interview and a long conversation "of Rouslan, consul, with Gambetta regarding the "Tunis affairs."

A period of calm in Vuliimatun de Roustan had succeeded; even on April 17, Roustan and Géry had solemnly inaugurated the first part of the railway from Tunis to the French border.

Meanwhile, members of parliament had gone en masse to vilify Algeria, where Albert Grévy was installed as governor (April-June).

And, taking advantage of this opportunity, they also wanted to investigate the cause of the disturbances in Aurès (south had made some noise.

However, at the beginning of October (the date of their rap(port deposited in the Chamber), they had discovered that the unrest stemmed from a "holy war" directed, decidedly, against the Arab Bureaux and constituted a further argument in favor of the civil regime.

It was to indicate "by analogy" what one would proposed the problem of doing so in Tunis. However, I must point out Herein lies the singular audacity of certain newspapers.
which, while bringing the Aurès insurrection closer to that of 1871 were careful not to notice

Lantern^ October 30, 1879.

15

y

254 speculation

that before 1871 there had not been a sufficiently Civil to grant Jews the rights of citizens, while they were being refused to the musicians, – nou-
This is further proof of the boastfulness of these diplomats who have slaughtered thousands of men in the East, under the pretext of enshrining civic equality of religions gions.

Let's now allow the affairs of Tunis to mature.
for the following year and let's see what happened from Egypt where Rothschild was doing, on a grander scale, this that the people of the Franco-Egyptian were preparing in a smaller size.

In Egypt, not everything was yet running smoothly the barons of London and Paris; it was necessary to decidea war waged with millions, these in front to be caught not in the vaults of rue Laffitte, but in the pocket of the foolish public who frequent the stock market.

On the other hand, as Gambetta, a member of parliament, had once spoke against the conversion of the 5-0/0, his opponents, some of whom were ministers, wanted to put Gambetta, president-dictator, in order

These are the hidden aspects of what we have learned.
Pelé, the conversion incident, which moved us deeply keenly during the month of February; is it useful to add that the political issues had not were employed without the profits from the financial underpinningscers.

To fully understand what follows, it is necessary to,
First, to understand exactly the effects of what is called a conversion; one will conceive, At the same time, what interest did those who

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 255

as Pei[^]eir-e, the previous year, had already sought to create the illusion of the opera's imminence-
tion.

The audience is told: you hold in your hands a acquired value, generally speaking, above 110 francs. The government reserved the right to repay the capital, but only at par of the type of annuity that gives it its name; thus,
To have an annual income of 5 francs, you have paid 110 francs; the armed government of its right, can tell you: "Give me back my schedule of
"5 francs of income and I will give you 100 francs,"
"because the chosen type is called 5 0/0,"

However, like the State, to reimburse 100 francs to shock carrier, would be forced to borrow from others and, as, when he seeks a conversion, it is, Ordinarily, to reduce his expenses, he modifies his language in the following way:

"I will refund your 100 francs less
"that you do not agree to receive 4.50 francs per year" instead of 5 francs.

We can immediately see that there is a reduction here of 10 0/0, which is a real advantage for Elat, since he would only have to pay 90 million lions, for example, instead of 100 million per year.

Gela being, we make it shine in the public's eyes that the one who buys 3 francs of annuity of the type 3 0/0, is obliged, by the will of the Stock Exchange, to devote such a sum to it that in reality its income is 4.0/0, while, by the same

5 '0/0, is obliged to devote such a sum to it that in reality his income is only 4 1/2 0/0.

256 speculation

1879

But from the moment a law abolishes the type 5 0/0, the rentier will have no choice but to fall back on the other types; then the masters of the fund market Public opinion influences stock prices, by focusing on singing, preferably, to the type of annuity that replaced-cera the old one. That is how if the State has resolved to to make type 3 0/0 the instrument of conversion (because it's with rents created according to this type that he will exchange on the 5th, 0/0, of which he wants the con- (version), speculation will immediately take hold of both values.

After this explanation, I must add that, since For a long time, Rothschild's ulterior motive was to to pull off a major coup, by combining a kind of triple arbitration between the 5 0/0 to be converted, the 3 0/0 perpetual and the 3% amortizable; which amounts to to say that he felt the desire to extort from the public a few hundred million.

To that end, he did not hesitate to take up a cause common with his former employee: Pereire; des then, certain of Léon Say's complicity, the trio which I have just designated, facilitated the organization of a campaign in favor of the 50/0 conversion. In In fact, the rumor gained so much credence that at the com- At the beginning of February, the operation seemed to be... cidée.

A member of parliament named Sourigues, who himself, He was very involved in financial matters and felt obliged to in- to question the minister on February 11th. The latter replied to him pondit:

"As for conversion, I could not have a
"Opinion on the form before having one on the
"Based on, that is to say, on opportunity. Now, I guard-a car if I had one it would be a secret; but I

"I have no secrets for this excellent reason"
"That I have no opinion on that matter."

We are no more Jesuitical than we were in this circumstance: the Jewish-Protestant who serves as the speaker parliamentarian to the monarchs of rue Laffitte.

Following these words, the noise of the conver-
The sion took on even more substance.

"It's a question of opportunity!" they exclaimed.
Chorus: If it were otherwise, the minister would have replied flatly "No!" as he has done on many occasions constants; he could not say "yes" without to have a prepared plan in hand; it would have been fa-To avoid speculation! This Léon Say is definitely a good man!

On top of that, holders of 5 0/0 at 114 francs... they put so many up for sale that in five days, he
There was a decrease of 5 francs.

"Useless, isn't it?" said the small investors.
to keep 114 francs which will then be worth only 100 francs in no time!

Things were organized this way, when the February 18, telegrams from Cairo an-announced an insurrection of the officers, and the invasion elevation of the Ministry of Finance; at the same time such a clamor arose against the English that nothing less than the revocation of Rivers-Wilson and de Blignières. In parallel, at
In Paris, rumors were beginning to spread that the mai-His Rothschild, given the circumstances, would refuse to pay the coupon on his Egyptian loan. Then the February 20, questioned again about the conversion.

258 speculation

Léon Say suddenly declared: "that the operation
"would be unpopular domestically, even more so than internationally"
"an industrial and political crisis would make it no less "impossible; that the possibility had to be considered"
"of a refusal to exchange old securities for
"new, which would then have to be reimbursed,
"by borrowing from the Bank of France, from which we "would exhaust all the metal reserves, which would con-

"would pose a certain danger in seeing the capitals
"French interest rates on foreign loans."

Note this last sentence; foreign borrowings
The gers were mainly the Egyptian and the Turk; the ca-pitiiux bearing down on them, it is the supreeager to meet the offer and, following the savage economy
On the stock market, this is an obstacle for Rothschild to do low prices on foreign funds
the gers he covets, and especially the Egyptian one.

Opinions are formed vilely when one is Rothschildian! In sixteen days, "the absence of opinions" Léon Say's doctrine gives way to a very clear one, and
This time, clearly formulated.

Late declaration, shady behavior, all of that is nothing compared to the circumstances that led to them companies:

On the very morning of the day that Leon had resolved to to refute the conversion and, to give the time Exactly, at noon, Moreau, the stockbrokers' representative, receives the announcement of this directly from the ministerial authorities.
decision; immediately this official will (he has re-conim and avoué), confer with Rothschild then vi-cite Pereire and arrives, only, at 12:40 PM at the Stock Exchange to announce what was going to be said at the

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 259

budget committee; nevertheless, from noon onwards
The news was already known in London!

I don't need to describe the upheaval.
which was produced in the world of finance and, no-tampere, among the small shareholders so often ranconnés by the high bank by means of the same 5 0/0.

As for the budget committee, it seemed stunned, she didn't utter a word, although she was notoriously erily favorable to conversion. But that n*ap-Wouldn't I take it! if I were allowed to discover all the hidden agendas.

In any case, we will never know the number of the harvest of millions that was thus reaped by the Jewish bank.

was serious; moreover, she had a semi-undeniable truths, but in form (as they say) (at the palace) she was "prepared".

In any case, the newspapers were putting to the service vice of their self-serving attitude, the account of these mid-Seres, to make people believe that Egypt, decidedly, could not do without the Europeans.

So the story went that "a native, pursued
"by tax officials regarding a royalty"
(c of 8 piastres and 10 paras (2 fr. 14 c.) had already "incurred 300 francs in expenses"; and they added: "I don't
"Don't know that contemporary history offers a
"same thing done".

And to stumble upon Ismail, the sole cause, etc.

as if, in France, the same abuse were a thing
So extraordinary!

* See Les Bois de la République, chapters Moreau and Say.

260 speculation 1879

But what was wanted, what Rothschild, by-Above all, he wanted to stir up public opinion against Ismail and manage to get him to file any complaint.
ment.

On the other hand, the same Ismail had declared by The Times:

That the difficulties stemmed from the fact that "the "assets ceded by him were, primarily, des-"intended to settle the floating debt, but which, without (I take his warnings into account, instead of (I conceding the land to the creditors, we had nc-(I negotiated a loan, refused to pay the arrears, subsid-c(title of the Europeans to the Egyptians and eliminated
"the indigenous element."

The loan in question was the Rothschild loan, of which I spoke about it earlier, and the areas were precisely those on which Rothschild wanted to have the upper hand and the first mortgage.

The Journal des Débats, a well-known publication of Léon Say, was campaigning against the creditors of Egypt and published, some time later, the lines

"The most complete agreement has been reached between

"the French and English governments"

"Two firms have just sent Gonstan-

"Linople a dispatch by which they proved-they take note of the offer that the sublime Gate has given them

"done at the first moment of depositing the Khé-

"Dive..."

A very clear conditional threat which, in terms of 'The Times, April 18.

2 Journal of Debates, April 28.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 261

ordinary, would surely have led its authors to Maza?

This only led England to Egypt.

Meanwhile, the mixed courts dismissed the case.

continually the creditors who demanded the priority over Rothschild (April): but Ismail does not seem-

He didn't want to be upset about it.

So, the same Rothschild took a major step of which, once again, delicacy is not the side distinctive.

Some time earlier, he had threatened the Khedive to simply eliminate the service of the interest on the loan of which he had been the issuer; he fulfilled his promise {\x\n] .

And too bad for the subscribers! Isn't that right?

In short, at the end of the same month, Israel abdicated.

was a fait accompli and Tewjick succeeded him.

A few days later (July), the new government-

Egyptian government submitted to the approval of the authorities sessions that participated in the creation of the courts mixed (Judicial Reform) a draft decree, the-which declared "the lands ceded to (c the State, by the Khedive's family, with the exception "of those that were subject to mortgages or a of seizures having priority over the Rolhs mortgage-a child.

This sort of drama ended in November, by a formal treaty between the new Khedive and his lord Rothschild. We shall see Soon what was bound to happen will happen!

But before going any further, I must say here that All these events had created blows of scholarship which, as I have explained many times, or

262 Speculation 1873

ruined some or enriched others, by increasing public misery*.

As I move through the years, the
The reader can see that, especially since 1878, the four cardinal points of public affairs have always been: the Freycinet plan, V amortizable ^ the Egyptian affairs and the Land Credit.

On this side, however, the war was nearing its end.

Soubeyran had traveled to Italy to create fondiaina and to establish contact with the mi-nistres d'Humbert l'''.

However, a lingering resentment drove him to har-to sometimes conceal his successor, he subsidized the newspapers that declared the dividends fictitious distributed by him and he put funds into certain opportunistic deals, which earned him in April, "the equivalent of a dismissal order", as she wrote, in dubious language, the Gazette des Tribunaux; this order was rendered on the report of expert Magnin, future Commissioner-censor of the French General Credit Bank, by Attorney General Dauphin, former lawyer of Amiens, shareholder of Crédit Général Français,

* Here are some lectures taken between January and March 1879:

Higher Lower

5 0/0 115.15 January 109.72 March

5 0 0 Ualien 77.35 March 73, 50 January

Turkish 12.05 March 11.20 January

Egyptian 203.75 January 230.00 March

In June Egyptian pound fell to 100 francs; in November it was worth 268.75.

It should be noted that, as I have indicated regarding the conversion, it was clear that the French '6 0/0' was falling, thus that the Egyptian, the Italian and the Turk were going up.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 263

linked with Erlanger, and one of the first products of the infamous "personnel purge", which the party The Jew was beginning to accomplish.

However, all of this was punctuated by minor struggles of bell tower: Soubeyran, indeed, although already at the landholdings or fondiarie, born next to the The discount bank still dreamed of opposing a Competition at Crédit Foncier: the mortgage bank librarian.

4 On this occasion, if the public had had some basic notions of financial mechanisms, it could have learned some lessons.

For example, he would have understood how and why— Germer Baillère, municipal councillor, reports author of a draft agreement intended to reimburse The Crédit Foncier, on the contrary, eventually arrived. to conclude, for the city, a new loan with the same Crédit Foncier; how and why— what the newspaper La Lanterne and its appendix the Financial reform had deemed it necessary to take place if warmly, the defense of the interests of the City of Paris, which the loan hoped for by Christophle would have It might have been missed if the police chief hadn't He seized the Lantern; how and why Christophle imagined he could legitimize this seizure by telling parliament that a Bonapartist money extracted by "a happy blackmail" had served to the foundation of the Lantern, how and why a jury, called an "honorary" jury (I don't really know (not in what context), was content to discover that the director of the Lantern and Financial Reform Cière had received it for a cause not sufficiently explained", 25,000 francs from Mr. de Soubeyran, claiming (the said director) that it was for recognition to be born "the competition of its publicity in business "Egyptian and defend French interests against "Egypt -^ (!j ; how and why, finally, Ghri-Tophle, triumphant at having unmasked his detractor and condemned his agents, and was in great haste to... imitate both of them by having union members sign-silencers, journalists and others, a commitment in by virtue of which and subject to certain financial advantages-ciers, they contracted the obligation to "support pen-giving you a year of Crédit Foncier, its values, ((and to praise his governor.))

264 speculation

And to think that these "scumbags" held public opinion in their grip! wakefulness for almost the entire year, only because a venal but prominently featured leaflet had attacked What about the police headquarters?

Hey! Good heavens! Everyone knew perfectly well that this institution, bourgeois by nature, had no other concern than to conceal the infamies of the wealthy and of to highlight the weariness of the destitute, in order to "to preserve the prestige of the ruling classes," this which led him to be bestial in his methods. Gela Since this is no longer in doubt, an honest critique would have said something else.

She would have said, for example, that the prefecture of police was just one of the brutal forms of para-ruling sedition, but that the day when, by a bold, loyal and scientific reform, we would remove to parasites the means to live at the expense of others trui, the day when work alone creates content-would meet everyone's needs and, consequently, those of for everyone, there would no longer be any governing authority, no more of CM^^e of Vauiorité, more opportunities to win

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 265

a revolutionary, by satisfying him, laughed, as we have told, specifically, with regard to the pr police prefect who had challenged Crédit foncier before the Rooms.

These women, moreover, would have had better things to do. that wasting their time on such nonsense, were veritablement commensurate with the role that Andrieux and

As early as February, they had resumed the project to amnistia, bones that they readily gave to gnaw on people to postpone serious reforms.

This time, however, things went further than the submission of a proposal; there was a vote and by both chambers! then vote, again, on a major issue:
the return of Parliament to Paris, that is to say a Another amnesty!

This vote was accompanied by the news, finally revealed, of the death of Napoleon III's young son (June 20) who, having taken up service in the army Englishwoman, had gone to fight among the Zulus; I say "news finally revealed", because the noise death had been a factor since May 11th.

The entire September, October and no-
November was occupied by the return of those who had been amnestied;
Then we got to work and it was decided that, henceforth-but, the members of the congregation would no longer be able to teach-
To nurture youth. - Beginning of a long and sterile hustle.

It was Jules Ferry who, in turn, gave a bone to to gnaw at the people.

- Big deal! A pointless persecution of garlic-theirs, because it's not changing the teaching It's parasitic to shorten the skirt panels

266 speculation 1875

or the collar of the frock coat of those who donate it nent.

Alas! We shall see at the end of this story It's lamentable that the famous Article 7 will not have... a revolution was not spared.

Meanwhile, the MPs had many other things to do. things in mind: they wanted to have seats lucrative, therefore dismissing the old staff, and to create new administrations.

Also the fight against the monopoly of the railways
The iron was becoming more pronounced day by day.

and was already fomenting complaints against Vexploitation, said to be provisional, of the State lines by making to denounce the game of "occult influences."

However, a large commission, known as the thirthe sixth network was formed; we had had the sinthe common idea of having it chaired by the financier Lehaudij, flanked by Daniel Wilson; also, towards the At the end of the year, we began to notice certain questionable attitudes towards the most important issue serious: that of the tariffs.

On the other hand, ministers were placing and reassigning They were saying; even Léon Say and Wilson were beginning to to hinder each other. Léon Say, who had received, at beginning of the year, 5th order of the crown of Prussia, probably for "exceptional servicesnells," he spoke of patriotism and was offended by ways of his colleague in the House, at the commissionbudget management and elsewhere... he'll complain about it. day...

For his part, the Minister of Justice was manipulating the magistrates; from March onwards, the Palace of justice was enriched by Cotellet, Lefebvre de Vief town, Pradines, Horteloup, Bounicau-Gesmond, Quesnay de Beaurepaire.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 267

But where did the displaced people go without compensation? In the boards of directors of companies financial! Some in the old haunts, others in the new ones, like Choppin d'Arnew town in the Little Cars^ and there they don't delaywill not expose their demoralization atavistic, because, in finance, the results some actions are more tangible than others never those of the palinodes of the juris - imprudensity.

But these movements soon proved insufficient; we wanted to challenge the irremovability of civil servants; that's why we He had his reasons, we will see that all too well.

But how? The discussion would be tedious! Fortunately, in December, a final event occurred. denying the fact, deemed more scandalous than others:

delivers a republican speech

He was booed; the newspapers cried out: this ignited the powder keg and an agenda was imposed on Devés, the Minister of Justice, "to clear jobs" hostile public officials" (December).

Ultimately, the current judiciary will not have
She stole her expulsion from the seat. She was foolish, ill-right, rarely independent, and moderately in-
The one who succeeds him will probably not be worth it.
no better: only, perhaps she will do comto take only what really needs to be changed, that is not

'Chudeau Affair; Angers Courier^ December 1879.

268 speculation I879

It is not men, but institutions, in de-thwarting their base: parasitism!

Nothing, moreover, is stranger than certain judges-comments made during the year.

Philippart had reappeared; having paid his Belgian creditors, he appeared before the judges of Paris, who had sentenced him to correction-Primarily for embezzlement, etc. The judges,
This time, they acquitted him; not that the facts...
appeared to be fabricated, but because, on the plea-Léon Renault's lawyer's house, they had ended up to discover that intention, the sole condition of the offense, did not exist in Philippart (July).

He, therefore, resumed his mercenary dance (August).
The European Bank is making fantastic leaps ticks.

Once again, we had been talking about struggles on the railway values, combinations with Erlanger, with Romania, with Plirsch and the Ottoman roads; it was then said that Philip-part had been defeated by Rothschild in a giganfinancial duel test.

It was quite possible! But the public wasn't paying for it.
no less than the costs.

Philippart's intentions were pure, those Rothschild too, that's understood!

Philippart, like later Erlanger, would have wanted ONLY ^a^/zier" of Vargent by C agiotage. That was the intention, it was not debatable.

But then, what was the cause of this misfortune? several employees, convicted in December, also for Diversions?

He was head of department at the Ministry of Agriculture

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 269

ture: he didn't deny anything, but he explained his actions: "I have only done," he said, "to conform to "constant practice... preparation and di-
"The management of fat animal competitions entails"
"for the ministry staff responsible for this,
"many hidden costs that they could not recover"
"To perish differently."

So, here is the fact; the witnesses come forward to testify that the surcharges are customary instead of to include the bonuses as expenses, we increased other articles; "it was the custom!" And who par-Milk like that? The accused's superior officer, ifé/Hom not convicted, while the unfortunate employee was sentenced to eight years imprisonment!

With our Gode, unbelievably iniqu, the
The system of intentions is arbitrariness in the hands of judges. The Lantern's intention in attacking the police headquarters and denouncing the î^értYcs was-
So, is she guilty?

Yes, replied the magistrate, because it was upsetting the ministry.

This is where, logically, justice must arrive.
playing with facts and juggling intentions.

I am well aware that the Code prescribes certain /afons to commit an offense and that, for lack of a comma, he
There is or there is not a crime. But what does it matter to eternity?
What fairness does a notary have over a spelling mistake?

In this vein, there are primarily the offenses against morals. What is the intention in pa-
What was the case? What were the intentions of all these people?

columns of the anti-clerical press? What were those of these bourgeois of Lyon, arrested as the a-

270 speculation 1879

were previously the filthy ones of Auch and Bordeaux (October)?

If the judiciary had any sense of justice, she would find intentions precisely where she I don't see any!

What intentions, for example, did he have, during throughout 1879, this part of the press which regularly devoted long columns to ex-To cite Europe against Russia?

Never before had he made such a fiercer campaign; "terror in Russia," nihi-Israel, attacks, assassinations; and the fires? Fires in Orenburg (May), Irkutsk and Nizhny Novgorod Novogorod, at the Kremlin (July-August). Russia was ruined, lost, the English armies were going Finish it! (November.)

"Just stock market fluctuations!" some will say, and rightly so! But After this exciting year, we finally ended up in facing a real assassination attempt against the Tsar. (Explosion of (the railway, December 5, 1879.)

Previously, Russophobic newspapers had had to comment on the Eastern War where, constantly, there was talk of "the massacre of the Jews" during that Christians were being killed!

Nevertheless, true or false, the news were then in a situation; but, during 1879, one had noted the dormancy of the Eastern Question and Everything, on the surface, seemed limited to the execution of the treaty. from Berlin.

That being said, why this insistence on hitting Russia declared to be dying • ?

'La Lanterne published at least one hundred articles hostile to Russia during the year 1879.

under the Third Republic 271

If necessary, an isolation of France as in 1870?

Was it to let it all come to a quiet conclusion? in Vomhre the Austro-Prussian alliance treaty? (October 7), which I will discuss when dealing with the year-born 1880.

There would have been an intention here; did you look for it? Judges?

Whatever the case may be, the Eastern Question does not sleep-half-dried milk; she had temporarily donned a new form: the delimitation of the borders hel-Lenic, following the treaty of Berlin, which had led hostilities between Turkey and Greece (May), a At that moment we had said that "the French battleships "were expected in Piraeus" (June). Did they come? He It is certain, however, that in November there was discussion still on the delimitation (tenth session of the conference) .

However, six months earlier, there had been in France a Greek loan of 60 million francs (May 6). The Discount Bank had taken care of it.

I will have to come back to this, because it's not over yet.

But what were the intentions behind this loan? And what about those ships that were announced? Have you looked for them? magistrates? Yet, there was then a circle tain Erlanger who was the Greek consul!

If you have not sought these inter- intentions national, there are others, however, which do not They haven't escaped your notice; even when you don't You didn't damn them, you found them damn-nables.

Indeed, the propertyless suffered in 1879.

275 speculation 1579

as always; in March, the Lyon workers They were asking for "work or assistance."

The strikes began in April:

Weavers' strike in Lyon (April), in Vienna (May), serious miners in Lourches and Douchy, tis-

Saint-Quentin (May), carpenters in Paris and carpenters in Valence (October), and finally miners in Quaregnon (December).

Were we only concerned with unemployment and their causes? Do we have, as with the properties of the Rhône valley ravaged by hail, demanded, A tax exemption for strikers (August)? Nothing! Sometimes prison, always the blame "of the 'The workers' bad attitude!"

These twelve months, moreover, ended in a A dreadful winter. The misery was terrible. At Pa- Indeed, subscriptions were being organized, that is to say, of those vain displays to which the Misfortune serves as a platform! In short: we started again what we had done, a few months earlier, for the flooded from Paris-Murcia-Hopgrle.

Bourgeois charity wants the stage; when She doesn't have one, she quibbles; thus, in April, she had negotiated a loan of 100,000 francs for to rescue those granted amnesty returning to Paris.

But what a noise! What arguments! On the other hand, a proposal had been submitted (in July) to allocate more than 3 million at the Bank of France "in repair- ration of the harm caused to him by the "Com- mune,)) which did not outrage anyone.

Alongside the reversals of charity, there is those of anger:

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 273

Thus, in March, the following were indicted "Ministers of May 16th." Big deal! Lean re- Result: a vote of platonic condemnation! To some Bourgeois insurgents, a stroke of the pen! But to Proletarians of 1871, gunshots!

And, meanwhile, what had the proletarians done? Silent figures of 1879, these perpetual scorned? Eraser They had always waited.

Yes, while, having taken the trestle of the amnesty, a journalist having been accused of having, in a public meeting, "spoke against Vinfàrne" capital » was indignant, made amends naires – they, the patients, were convening a congress in Marseille (October), where, peacefully, they searched for They are uncovering the true causes of social ills!

Fortunately, President Grévy had not stayed
The economic situation appeared to him to be untenable.
tense, with poverty more rampant than usual,
He too wanted to enlighten himself; he did so, and the newspapers will tell us how, towards the end of November,
He also had his congress; indeed, these announced-seriously note that "the President had made it apparent-to the first Messrs. de Rothschild to consult them on the "(Unfortunate state of affairs ^."

Yes, the situation was really bad.

First, the speculation had, as always,

'The Lantern (responding to France)^ January 17 and 18 1879.

2 The Pairie^ commissioned by Soubeyran.

- La Défense, November 16

274 Speculation I879

unbalanced labor and resources and the Stock Exchange had been constantly agitated*.

We had also added sticker papers to those that had been created the previous year. The emissions, which had amounted to 1.2 billion – in 1878, exceeded 3 billion in 1879", of which more two billion requested by the institutions credit; movement contrary to that of the year previous, and, moreover, planned because, the public not directly taking industrial values into account,
This way, we reserved the option of slipping them under him.
the form of bank shares.

Also, at the end of 1879, I must register a new increase in capital assessments.

In twelve months, this increase reached 12 million liards, mainly registered on buildings and financial values.

Furthermore, a considerable number had been created Insurance companies, some enticed by being mere pretexts for agio, that is to say, for

■ Here are the prices of the main stocks:

Higher Lower Difference

3 0/0 81,70 76,35 8,35

5 0/0 115,50 109,72 9,08

UalioQ 82.30 73.80 8.70

Turkish 12.95 9.60 3.35

Government or private loans 7 million 2/10

Kcredit institutions 2,168 – 5/10

Industrial companies 884 – 1.10

Total 3.000 million 1/10

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 275

to buy, in order to resell, pieces of paper 1.

Taxes had followed the same progression than real estate capital.

These, amounting to 115 billion 3/10, required, at 30/0, an income of 3 billion 4/10; it was exactly the figure from the final budget of 1879.

More taxes, less work: accidents, concentrations of wealth; that is the summary of this year; therefore, it will not be surprising to see to increase misery and reduce the number of post-sedentary; these now number only 19%, but They hold 12 billion more than the previous year. previous. Here, moreover, is the table I provide usually:

1878 1879

Owners 20 19

iEmployees 71i (70 employees)

Non-possessors[^]. [^][80 Slf

* 'Destitute. 9[^]

He was destitute.

Totals 100 10^û

The Malthusian bourgeoisie will soon find that men must be killed, because she believes that she has too many to feed.

Here is the breakdown of the capital:

Billions

1878 1879 Difference

Real estate capital H0 2/10 113 3/10 4- 5 1/10

- furniture 67 9/10 68 1/10 + 0 2/10

- financial 317/10 37 7/10 + 6 0/10

Tolanx 209 8/10 2:211/10 -J- 11 3/10

SoM.MARRE. 1880. - Voter factory. - The congregations. - Senatorial Marcliandiigo. - The pursuit of functions. - Poland was drunk! - First scandal Grévy. - Blind and deaf. - Espionage and the lady Kaulla. - Preface by d'Andlau. - Accusations against Waddington. - The Austro-German treaty. - Disasters in Russia. - Nihilism and socialism. - DL-jeunur, deco-Greek ratio and borrowing. - Rogue theories. - The colonies. - Rothschild option. - Soubeyran and Italy.
- Erlanger is agitated. - The strikes. - Prostitution
"They brushed." - The ambassadors.

It is not always easy to induce a people to to decimate his children.

If, in a cesarean section, the master's will does-mine, in a parasitic regime known as "opinion," which If it is law, it is a lie; therefore, it suffices for the di-

wanted the "glorious massacres" and all the experiments War editions are obtained and explained.

Knowing this, and having further noted that, by education, fanatical Catholic congregations-knew their clientele, Jules Ferry had dreamed of subs-to link his influence to theirs and to lead, in turn, the masses by means of a lay clergy of institute-voters, electoral college, voter factory.

This, in short, is the political genesis of

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 277

great determination of which the leaders of 1880 in-surrounded the famous Article 7 of the law on educationhigher assembly, which, already stolen by the Chamber of the deputies, was subject to the deliberations of the Senate in the first few days of the year.

This article was designed as follows:

"No one is allowed to manage an educational establishment-
"public or private education, of any kind"
"that he may be, nor to give teaching there, if he ap-
"spoke to a religious congregation, not self-"Laughed at."

Twice, the Senate rejected this article; it-the reversal of the Ferry plan, the defeat of the Jewish party; also never parliamentary revolt was more lively!

Freycinet, head of the ministry, who, in January, had been pale and vulgar in his presentation of principles cipes and who, being himself a Protestant cleric, was being cold towards the article?, had to, however, let-
to see in the Senate the threatening attitude of his colleagues.
Indeed, what the Senate had not wanted to introduce in a new law, the government was resolved to accomplish it through administrative measures: he will use he would abolish old laws and expel the congressmen unauthorized gations (April).

Never a reform, directed against parasitism financial, aiming, for example, not at the 400 unauthorized congregations, but the 800 societies anonymous, perfectly positioned to ruin the France would not have obtained such energy from a

But nothing, in my opinion, demonstrates more eloquently—how much it was a struggle for influence

16

278 the isso speculation

having, as its ultimate but unstated goal, a dictatorship ture formidably armed in favor of the possessions teeth.

Still naive, the people applauded; for him it was simply a matter of capping the cap which,
According to legend, he was incarnated in Torquemada.
The skullcap itself justified this opinion by per-farming its inquisitions by means of the unbearable confessional.

That was all it took to stir up the rai-popular pipers; moreover, members of religious orders or No, the clergy had lived far too much at the expense of the invisible and all-powerful celestial master.

They were reaping the wrath that their parasitism had sown; they were going to suffer a deserved punishment, this which in no way prevents me from declaring that the those in charge of "the execution" were committing a bad deed. They saw it clearly, moreover, at the moment when, moving from theory to action, he
It was necessary, under the gaze of the street, to chase away one by one the old men from their cell (July).

The Senate, as narrow-minded as the Chamber, took its revenge by clashing with the full amnesty.

It was dangerous for the Jewish party, the people who might find the expulsion of the monks insufficient, if its corollary was the maintenance of the laws exceptional measures taken in 1871 against its defenders.

Freycinet, whom I have already called the man of curves and ellipses, regarding its plane on the railways, again biased in this circumstance.

In a low voice, he promised to suspend the execution.
cut of the decrees, if the Senate voted for amnesty. The

The Senate accepted this opening, but it introduced in the law a mitigating factor that, despite his anger, The Chamber had to adopt a resolution to end it (July 10).

Meanwhile, the congregations were fighting on the judicial field. The judiciary, out of sympathy "In their robes," the rulers let loose; resignations followed. produced; it was necessary to establish and even compose a court of conflicts, but, these are renewed constantly, the best thing to do was, decidedly, to squint at The irremovability of the magistracy; that is what had the place and the last months of the year were full through the preparatory discussions for this measure.

As we can see, it was an escalation of functions at the benefit of new owners of all sizes.

The press, considered reputable, had posed this escalation in principle; in January, John Lemoine wrote in the Journal des Débats:

The Republic has only truly existed since

"One year, but if it is well-founded, it is not "organized

"Every new government, empire or monarchy, "begins with a necessary operation: that of "choosing instruments, agents, functions- "names that, at the very least, do not betray him."

This operation cannot be efficiently ((accomplished only by men free from all

"Links with the past."

So, it was clear: onward with the newbies! in ar- Laugh at those tied to the past! And that's how we took the positions the vanquished, the deposed, the dismissed, the de-missionaries, changing places, but not suppressing- not the opposition.

The government, moreover, had armed itself in view of 280 the speculation stemming of the struggle. A decree of December 29, 1879 had the undersecretariat of state, that of finance, of which the

The starter was Daniel Wilson, with Magnin as minister in place of Léon Say. The rest of the the ministerial troop consisted of Cazot for the justice, Lepère for the interior, Farre for the war, Ferry for public education, Cocherif
For the postal service, Tirard for commerce; Jauréfp.dherrij for the navy and Varroy for agriculture-technology and public works.

As for the undersecretaries of state, besides Wilson,
As already mentioned, there was Gonstans (interior); Martin-jpfeaf/^ée (justice); Girerd (commerce); Sadi-Carnot (public works); Turquet (fine arts), all affmen of gold or braid, ignorant in matters of organization social nization, and astonished only to hear to file complaints "while they were in power" see!", thus applying, with perfect unknowscience, the famous:

"When Augustus had been drinking, Poland was drunk!"

With this new staff, public morality will, however, gain something.

Through an exchange of underhanded tactics, she will see a good part of the infamies committed by those who held the power to see, and, conversely, the expelled, knowing at The marvel "The Detours of the Seraglio" will not be failing to expose the wrongdoings of new leaders, in order to demonstrate victory-sement (which was not debatable), that the new-

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 281

new diapers were no better than the anciennes.

The first scandal fell to the Grévy family (March).

Imbued with bourgeois nepotism, the president... was in a hurry to appoint his brother governor general from Algeria. In this country, already given over to the Jews and where, under the pretext of colonizing and building railways, we had, to the four winds of the con-assignments, throwing away interest guaranteed by contributions Albert Grévy distinguished himself in the metropolis.
right away.

There was a company, already richly endowed and known as V East-Algerian; this one, like any financial company, was willing to accept—to maximize profits, but cared very little about being a service useful to the public, the only pretext she had invoked, however, to obtain both concessions and guarantees.

However, a direct line was urgently requested. by two cities obliged, for their trade, to undergo an expensive process; unfortunately, the creation this line would reduce network traffic already existing. Nevertheless, refusing to build would have It was dangerous; it had to be accepted; but the compagnie increased the spending plans, in such a way that the guaranteed interest should allow for to offset the planned reduction.

Meanwhile, an unfortunate third party thought

The Board of Directors of this company is composed of... then knew of Messrs. Durrieu, Loret, Léger, (General Liébert, J. de Reinach, illiciter. — Commissioners .— Ducrey and Chabert.

1%.

282 speculation 188

to do good by proposing to build, at best account, the projected line. He addressed the secretary General, Mr. Journault, and he had barely to authorize him to make studies, that order was given to him to reread his authorization. Journault resists, indignified and finally resigns in compliance accompanied by a letter that had a certain impact—ment (March).

This was a boon for the opposition; it had beware of letting it slip away. Deputy Bonapartist, Godelle, filed a request for an interpellation; Rumors in Parliament and the submission of a re-interpellation to one month.

One month later (April 22), the discussion began in the Chamber under the presidency of Gambella.

What a session! Albert Grévy was full of words; but on the delicate point, the elimination of all Given the contradictory offer, Irouva had no other response than this.

When the concession company with "which one we dealt with has committed to doing the che-
"min of iron at the price that will be set by the State, the au-authorization to conduct competing studies has not "truly no longer has a reason to exist."

And no one was found, even among the interpellators, to say to Albert Grévy.

"When the State is represented by people who They give cause to doubt them, so who can to assert that the price he set will truly be "A minimum price?"

"Isn't it, on the contrary, to improve the state?"
"out of suspicion that the adjudicators have instilled"
"Public cations and sealed envelopes? In such a way

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 283

"occurrence," "daring to declare to Parliament that "Competing studies are useless and not
"to announce immediately that an adjudication will take place" ((public declaration is admitting that one has a party)
"Given as a favor, if not for a hidden agenda."

It was quite simple, and yet no one said this, neither Godelle, nor Cassagnac, both more more concerned with criticizing their opponent than with ensuring to the inevels of the country.

Godelle only insisted on the inadequacy of the explanations and thus formulated his opinion:

"I persist in demanding, because, like the
"On the first day, he casts insulting suspicions on "The front of the brother of the President of the Republic."

I will refrain from describing the turmoil that followed these words.

Albert Grévy had absolutely no right totified its altitude in relation to the railway; in Furthermore, he had completely failed to explain himself.
on a host of accusations and, notably, on scandalous land concessions, made to officials who, thanks to their position, bought 9,000 francs, which they were certain to resell.

The truth was not revealed; Gambella was odious-biased oath; he dared to claim that the words of Godelle constituted an attack on the person of President of the Republic and had the cent-sure against the interpellator; after which an order of the The day of confidence in Grévy was voted by a strong majority !...

As I write these lines, there is no longer any to emphasize the strange psychological state of the assembly

284 speculation

rro

wheat of 1880; it will suffice for the reader to raise the shoulders and turn the sheet.

Having begun in scandal, the year continued... through other shames.

We had already noted, regarding the nomination of Senator Ronjat to the position of Advocate General near the Court of Cassation (January), that the new elected officials also climbed the ranks of paid positions and accumulated like their predecessors to whom they had committed a crime.

Soon after, another kind of accumulation attracted the attention of the Ministry of War; documents had, it was said, disappeared (September); trials followed.

It was on this occasion that the various attitudes de Girardin towards Lady Kaulla, and that the gra-statements from the wife of a general councillor ral "^ informed the astonished public that there was real-a system of espionage, organized around from the French Ministry of War, and that women-my played a leading role there ^.

Moreover, espionage was so widespread, that at the end of the year we were printing quietly The following, without receiving any denial:

"Is it true that one day General d'Aumale, cau- ((sant with the police prefect Luon Renmlt, racon-

"his general staff, to hide from everyone"

* Affair Yung-Westyne (October); Rochefort affair-Laisanl-Cissey (November).

^ Madame Graux.

3 I recounted these events in the second volume of my Kings of the Republic.

SODS THE THIRD REPUBLIC 285

"generally and to the Prussians in particular, the plans (of the eastern fortifications, of which he had high command)
" direction.

"- Bast!" replied the police prefect, Léon.
"Renault, I will have your plans, my dear general,"
"Whenever I want to."

"-And how is that?" said the general.

"-Good heavens, in Berlin."

"-Impossible," replied the general, "I wear a
"A challenge to your skill."

"-I accept the challenge!" exclaimed Mr. [name], smiling.
"Prefect of Police; grant me only eight " days.

"Is it true that, eight days later, the prefect (police had received from his agents in Berlin, the "copies of all the plans he presented to the "Great astonishment of His Royal Highness the Duke"
"d'Aumale, general of the Republic?*"

Around the same time, a scandalous trial, whose noise was, no doubt, stifled "under a word of a metallic nature," made it possible to foresee all of this that one could expect from the senator appointed count d'AndIau.

Since 1876, this man has been trading on his influence, the ruins, the suicides piled up around He; he alone had not been touched. He had reached the no point in paying his debts with the banknotes he left behind
He knew how to protest and he then dared to have his Creditors for breach of trust. Triumphant For more than four years, however, he had a failure in 1880 and the Chamber of Deputies appeals for correction

- La Lanterne, December 12, 1880.

286 the isso speculation

d'Andlau and Norris, his straw man, qualified ((war munitions broker)>.

Since this legal misadventure, probably-due to the republican zeal of the new magistrates Trats, d'Andlau, adopted by the Elysée, obtained all impunity.

Another scandal, which might not be strangeto the personality of the aforementioned count, led to the dismissal of Rivet, head of the cabinet of Turquet, Minister of Fine Arts (October), this fund-tionary who dared to denounce the existence of certain gifts "intended to campaign for the awarding of the ((ribbon of the Legion of Honour). We got along well prevented from conducting an investigation; no more, for that matter, than on all the allegations made about the past of Deputy Constans, then Under-Secretary of State and future minister.

I cannot provide a complete list of here.
all traces of demoralization noted in 1880;
I have to make a choice and, naturally, indicate especially those that are more closely linked to major collective interests.

In this line of thought, I must not omit to report a serious accusation made by a de-Bavarian prostitute named Von Bühler, friend and, he said-on, confidant of M. de Bismarck.

This MP publicly stated that "Mr. Wad"dington, when he was president of the Council and "the foreign minister, had delivered to the "Chancellor of the German Empire, a proposal"
"of an offensive alliance made by Russia to the
"France".

Of course, by a letter published on September 18th formally protested against such an accusation tion, which accused him of nothing less than a crime of high treason; but as, after this letter, to-no additional light has been shed, nor

As requested, I have a duty to address this point.
investigations into the events that have occurred since,
will give it a decisive character.

As a historian and results calculator, I have no to bow to a denial without proof. Jecons-simply state that Waddington supported the con-Berlin sandstone, all the unpleasant measures to Russia, particularly the emancipation of the Jews from Romania and the rectification of Greece's borders, a way to rekindle all the Balkan conflagrations niques to which, by the Treaty of San Stefano, the Russia had wanted to put an end to it.

I note that Russia has never been attacked.
in the French press, as much as under the mini-Waddington.

Finally, I note that, on October 7, 1879, Prussia had concluded a treaty of alliance with Austria defensive measures directed against Russia, which does not was to be made public only in a case of ur-agency.

The French public only became aware of this treaty in February.
February 1888; I don't know if, for the past year and a half, our diplomacy knew him to the same extent as the Russian chancellery, but what I am saying is that the profession of Waddington, Minister of Foreign Affairs Foreigners wanted to know what was happening in 1879.
between Prussia and Austria (during the alleged the dormancy of the Eastern Question, during the catastrophes

288 the isso speculation

trophies that abounded in Russia), instead of doing publicly the game of Prussia.

And now, whether Waddington had taken it or not the trouble of telling Bismarck:

"Sir, I received the following proposal yesterday."
of a secret treaty with the Tsar.

What could that possibly add to his an absurdity which, given its function, becomes a real

Waddington, adored by the Jews, public acclaim-lying by them, could not have failed to have seen the Austro-Prussian rapprochement, so favorable to Jews, enemies of Russia.

But not having seen it was like having closed your eyes.
and close your eyes or remain silent in such a situation
In that case, it was to have betrayed France to the same degree as to have actually delivered a draft treaty.

All of this is even more striking given that the days-
The October 1879 issues had published the short note next:

"London, October 23. – The Vienna Dispatch,
"published this morning by the Standard, giving the
"Summary of the offensive and defensive alliance treaty"
"concluded between Austria and Germany, a major event ((sensation.)

((It is also confirmed that this treaty actually has
"was signed by the two emperors William and
"Franz Joseph."

However, since the treaty was only defensive, it was sufficient to have the newspapers say:

"It is inaccurate to say that an offensive alliance treaty
"A defensive agreement had been concluded between Prussia and Austria-

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 289

◀(cheat », to divert attention from this serious peculiarity.

In fact, attention was diverted; that's so true.
that, in the enunciation developed, the 15th of December-December 1879, by the deputy Louis Legrand, not one Not a word had been spoken on the subject, and even at the late 1880, in another interpellation addressed by P. Delafosse to Barthélemy Saint-Hilaire, who had succeeded Waddington, the most complete silencecompleteness reigned with regard to this same treaty.

I am aware that the parliamentary platform is reluctantly ready to delve into the details deli-cats that international relations entail;
I take this nuance into account and I note, after having read the debates with the utmost attention, not the feeling of a fait accompli between Prussia and Austria.

However, it was not difficult to analyze the na-
The chancellor's speculations; Bismarck easily loses interest in cosmopolitan speculation.
when they pursue their careers outside of Europe; but On the contrary, he carefully monitors all those who place their sphere of action around his domain continental.

Through this mechanism, the Afghan and even Chinese wars-noises matter little to him, while the slightest movement in Asia Minor and in the
The Balkans, awakens his attention; from this altitude, the
The reason is simple; it lies entirely in the for-next move:

Doing anything that might paralyze action
Russian in the West.

17

509 speculation

ISS0

Knowing, moreover, better than anyone, that the
The Treaty of Berlin (1878) was a simple truce; it did not did not view the delays brought to its execution; but, from one moment to the next, the Gzar, who had abandoned several of the advantages obtained-naked in San Stefano, could be offended and, that same treated by hand, that is to say in a solid posture, of-to ask for explanations.

However, with an absolute sovereign who, less than any another of his colleagues in Europe, needs to to be concerned about the opinion of his subjects, this could to be serious.

A chance occurrence—perhaps orchestrated—took place to paralyze the northern colossus. Throughout Celtic the year 1880, even more so than in 1879, of calamities of all kinds overwhelmed Russia; regarding them,
the so-called republican newspapers and among them
The Jewish newspapers displayed their relentless attacks. That's as well as La Lanterne, a newspaper which aimed to acc-in large print, to articles entitled: The ter-rebels in Russia; the nihilists; the fires; then that with regard to other nations, England, by-in particular, similar events did not inspire him just a few lines of information.

This is not a trivial remark. I have already had the opportunity to point out some of these cam-miscellaneous loincloths, during my investigations tions, – for example: regarding the Slogan and of the United States, in 1877 ^

The sheets that led these campaigns invo-readily expressed their hatred of kings in general and • Passes 205 and 206.

under h\ THIRD REPUBLIC 291

of Czarism in particular; however, they pleuwould be more inclined to focus on Poland than on the Ir-moor?

Why? Was there more profit in this?
What about that?

Unfortunately, this hatred itself seemed to be intermittent.

Was it the visit of the King of Greece or the Prince of Wales? Not a single hurtful allusion.
suggested a short article.

But was it the Empress of Russia? Here's the answer.
what was written (January):

a The Empress of Russia being still in France,
"The French administration continues its traditions"
"Base sycophancy."

Why in February and March, the Empress of Austria cheating, then Queen Victoria, didn't they inspire in the same newspapers as the account of the polite exchanges Precious members of the administrative staff?

It is about nihilists that Russophobes
The French were more susceptible. Certainly, Far be it from me to think of refusing asylum to these vain-
the state of social order; on the contrary, I am convinced that a less hateful attitude would have armed the gu-rulers with more authority to repel a de-miserable expedients'^.

That said, I want to draw attention to the noise especially made in France around the nihilists.

These revolutionaries are often confused with La Lanterne, January 29, 1880. Telegram from Nice.

^The Alissov affair, the Hartman affair, etc.

292 the issue speculation

the socialists; we are making a mistake; every socialist A list may be nihilistic, but not every nihilist is socialist.

The truth is that something is being prepared in Russia which was prepared in France around 1789; that Tsarism, like the old monarchy, is a harsh oppression to all, harder on the Jews, and let them enter in the movement because, for them, it is a
A means of emancipation, that's all.

But woe to the people if, after a revolution,
he allows a bourgeoisie to take root, as in France terrestrial geosis, because he will have only changed from Serfdom!

In any case, the particular sympathy which Jewish newspapers, even the least socialist ones, would, in France, the Russian nihilists, of whom they readily recounted the conspiracies, would explain so easily.

In 1880, these plots were particularly terrible. The attack took place as early as February 17th.
Winter Palace, followed by others of lesser importance.
Then disasters followed one after another without respite.

For just one month, a Russian newspaper summarizes them
in the following way:

"In June, there were 3,110 in the empire" <(fires. 450 are attributed to arsonists, "931 to recklessness, 136 to lightning, the 1,503 to-
"very much due to unknown causes"

Gela resembled a permanent war.

Such being, for almost two years, the assumes that Prussia had ample opportunity to deal

'Official Messenger of Saint-Petersburg, July 20.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 293

with Austria and that, meanwhile, the question
The East could slumber; so too the financiers cosmopolitans who speculated on the Balkans were hastily
They are trying to take advantage of this situation.

Indoctrinated by speculators, trained, flattered, ca-stressed by them, the only man who could have put loyally its strength in the service of popular interests lares, instead of crumbling it in the palinodies par-elementary, Gambetta, in short, played more than never the role of Samson at Delilah's feet.

In May, he paraded as a witness in a
A high-society wedding – and what a high-society wedding it was!
M^{re} de Galliffet married Franck Seillière; in the month
In June, the King of Greece, Erlanger's friend and ally, came to Paris, had lunch with Gambetta and, after to drink, would go with him to visit Freycinet, mid-Minister of Foreign Affairs; in August, the even Gambetta received from his Greek guest the Cross of the Order of the Savior!

Savior? Why? What had happened from June to August ?

In June^ on the occasion of the rectification of fronttières, the rumor had spread that French officers were sent to Greece to carry out the reorganization of the Hellenic army.

Greece, under the pretext of rectifying its borders tières, claimed to double the extent of its territory and was preparing to attack Turkey; there were, from Then, a Greek question; in July there was talk much of the Thomassin mission and the departure of a squadron to the coasts of Greece. The mission did not Since it could be denied, it was claimed that it was neutral.
and technical.

294 the speculation isf(0

Finance had orchestrated this affair; Greece owed money to France; helping Greece was

To get an accurate understanding of the theories scoundrels of the leaders in such matters, he has just brought two facts together.

Here is the first one:

The sad bearers of sad Honduras, having been Having been rejected by all jurisdictions, they resigned themselves to their fate. one day, to exercise the right of petition.

After a long wait, the Minister of Foreign Affairs foreigners replied to them, towards the end of the year 1880, and here is the verbatim reproduction of his words.

"People who invest their capital in ((Foreign loans operate at their own risk
"and perils; it is up to them to weigh the guarantees"
"offered: the possibilities to which they expose themselves"
"sent cannot, in principle, create, for their own benefit,
"a right to diplomatic intervention. This jurisprudence-<(caution is all the more justified, since, according to "The law of May 25, 1872, the issuance of loans"
"Foreigners are free in France, which implies that"
"the government must leave responsibility to "subscribers take care of safeguarding their "Interests as they see fit."

It was as clear as it was dishonest, because the governor-nement, possessing the key to the official coast, there was introduced Honduras alongside the French Rent.

Here is the second fact:

In 1879, I said, Greece had borrowed 2000 lions; at that time she already owed 345 million

* See page 271.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC

in capital, of which she had almost never paid the annual interest'.

Despite, or perhaps because of, this backlog, she proposes to knows how to take out another loan of 120 million in 1881 and, in the meantime, here is the tone in which the economics
Official journalists were talking about this country:

First, the Journal des Débats declared, in a long column, that Greece "suffered from a "Poor delimitation of its borders."

That could be true, but no one other than Waddington had not considered commenting on that suffering before loans, before lunch king with Gambetta, before the Hossin mission.

On the other hand, V, the French economist of the legend-Daire Leroy-Beaulieu, published lengthy studies on "modern Greece"; in one of these studies, It was stated that Greece was "a factor in-essential to the Eastern Question, that it was necessary to "de-to shed prejudices and finally the action of the race "Greek was, all things considered, the best hope" "of a higher civilization that shines for the "countries with which its very name remains historically linked" "How closely associated."

'This was the exact situation regarding the loans' Greeks in 18.9 seconds:

Unpaid interest on the 1824 and 1825 loans placed in England and in France (Drachmas) HERE, 691), 000

Plus the capital of these loans 64,676,000

Plus in interest paid on his behalf by VAngle-land, France and Russia guarantors of the loan

Rothschild of 1832 55,033,031

Plus the capital of this loan ev.000.iHK)

Plus compensation for late payment interest of 4,111,368

Total (drachmas): 343,513,422

The drachma was worth 0 fr. 97 1/3 c.

296 the isso speculation

Behind this beautiful phrase of historical philosophy-risk (which the author could have used outside of any connection with Greek loans and that the leaders of the surrounding nations could have introduced in peaceful, non-poisonous protocols (through money matters), were unfortunately hiding-ple, those of the Rothschilds, the Hirschs, the Camondos, Hentsch, Gunzbourg; and many others, not to mention... less odious.

But what emerged most clearly was that the public was encouraged "to shed his prejudices" – and to his money – in favor of the Greek race, "fac- (civilizationalist), that is to say, to subscribe with enthusiasm for the various loans it has taken out. would need.

Now, you hear me clearly, readers: get people to subscribe borrowing was serving the appetites of the bankers quieters issuers; likewise, demand payment of arrears interest, when the securities that represent them tents were picked up cheaply by some Erlan- Ger or some Camondo, it was, also, a thing sacred, and for that, the armies were all ready! But when those making the demands are poor people Unfortunate, dispossessed porters? Away with the theory! The minister's is the only true one: she is, moreover, the exact reproduction of a resolution of the Society of political economy to which the over- taking Leroy-Beaulieu.

Meanwhile, the Porte resisted the cessions of- ordered, declaring them non-compliant with the treaty Berlin, and she took advantage of the situation to re- delay the execution of a particular clause, concerning under THE THIRD RKPl'BliQUE 207

nant Montenegro and the small town of Dulcigno.

We know that, on this occasion, Europe sent 20 battleships, supposedly without guns, to force Dulcigno to surrender; it is also known that, during For nearly six months, this naval majifestat ion occupied ridiculously the European press; and I must add that Freycinet was only quick to cooperate because it set an easily reprehensible precedent usable in support of Greek aspirations.

Thus, the system of the ruling Jewish party was clearly favorable to outside interference; and if, at the risk of serious danger, he took Orient a Greek attitude (without ceasing, for that reason, to aid English interests against Russia and against Turkey), it was because he was still feeding other combinations, some in Africa, others in Asia.

Already, since the beginning of the year, we had launched articles on Tonkin, on Saigon; One day, letters from the explorer Du- were published. Then, the next day they were suffocated; in February, they was making secret preparations; finally, in May, A credit was officially requested for Tonkin.

The newspaper La Liberté had particularly advocated this expedition; it is worth noting that Liberty was in Pereire's hands, that the Pereire, in turn, had in their hand the Com-Transatlantic company, very affected, very embarrassed and than transport, initially military, then commercial commercial, were desirable to restore the balance free from its financial statements.

In August, Tunisian disagreements regarding the Goulette railway and company Rubatlino began to become acute; the pos-

17.

298 L AGIOTAGE 1880

Italian settlers accentuated an antagonistic appearance to the interests of French property owners and I will have, I will be taking care of it more completely soon.

In the meantime, I would like to point out that the ballots financiers of political newspapers were beginning to Insert sentences like this one:

<(As a result of recent events in "Tunisia, Tunisian bonds have reached the "A course of 300 francs. The future of the Regency is "presents itself in a cheerful aspect; it is full of pro-"masses. The il/a?'sei7/ais will help in their realization*."

Thus, alongside all the fine patriotic pretexts- quaint and chivalrous, I find, incessantly, financial maneuvers, which we are trying to disseminate to mule shamefully personal motives.

Thus: railway affairs in Algeria, in Tunisia, Bulgaria, Serbia, where it was noted already V General Union, which I will have to talk about soon.

Thus: Algerian and Tunisian land loans, ^Franco-Canadian \ thus: the Tonkinese mines;

The list is not complete.

On the other hand, the stock exchange had, as if on its computer-naïve, which has seen rises and falls, including the privileged, those placed at the source of intelligence ments, had benefited'^.

- La Lanterne, August 31, 1880.

2

3 0/0..,

5 0/0..
Italian.

TLUT. . . ,

Egyptian.

Higher

Further down

87.23

81. /.0

120.83

115.80

88.70

79.60

13.15

9.30

357.50

274.00

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 299

This year saw the Topéralion come to a close in-Rothschild's takeover of the Egyptian portfolio

the phases.

Towards the end of 1880, this financier was indeed taking, possession of 100,000 bonds transferred to him by Crédit Foncier.

I indicated previously, by not taking care of this establishment, that the Rothschild combination, the the only one that was supposed to succeed, had not been revealed by the Governor Gristophle'.

The Jew had taken the 100,000 bonds at 0[)tion;
I will not go into the technical definition of here.
This contract is familiar to those who are greedy for financial gain. It...
It will suffice to say that, in the case of the Egyptian portfolio-
Well, Rothschild was reserving all the chances of gain and was not liable for anything in case of loss.

Why did Gristophle undergo this operation?
of his powerful partner, he who, no more than Soubeyran, does he not disdain millions?

Here it is:

I said that the expelled Crédit Foncier had attacked to oppose it with competition, under the Mortgage Bank name, as a result of which is why he produced shows with a large orchestra.

As early as January 1880, Christophle had sent stamped paper to his rival to "make" him "prohibition against issuing bonds in the form stated in the instructions accompanying the cupboard "Of emission."

The rival immediately responded with a demand counterclaim; hence: lawsuit.

* See page 219.

300 the speculation 1880

It should be noted that Christophle was placed in a position of... rent by the main cr- establishments said those who refused to help with the placement of his bonds gations; I don't know if Rothschild, nmni of his option, disdained to come to his aid in this occurrence-Nevertheless, Soubeyran not being a stranger to the conspiracy, the stamped paper fat tasked with resolving the conflict.

It was only towards the end of May that the tribes-
They pronounced judgments; they pleaded before the court consular and, as we recall, this one had already was unfavorable to Christophle, during the veto he had opposed to the distribution of a dividend. The judges the predictions of 1880 did not disprove themselves: they sent back the two parties back to back, with costs being offset;
by defending, it is true, at the Bank hi/pothecary to challenge Crédit foncier in its announces, but noting that this challenge had been "provoked" by the actions of the Crédit foncier and its governor; that consequently-quence the litigants had mutual wrongs.

This judgment cast a chill and must have calmed the certhe rivalry of the two competitors; we will also witness well-early on, to an unexpected outcome: absorption, that is-that is to say, the rescue of the Mortgage Bank by Mortgage Credit!

In the meantime, and to complete the story of the rivalry between Rothschild and Soubeyran, I would say a few words about their battle concerning opera-Italian tion, operation cjuì, decided in November, was completed in 1881.

The aim was to abolish compulsory currency in Italy;
To achieve this, it was necessary to take out a loan of

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 301

644 million in 5-0. Soubeyran had aimed this affair; but Rothschild, seconded by the ran-Isaac Pereire's defeat against Soubeyran almost crushed to list his former Egyptian rival on the stock exchange; happy-
In fact, for the latter, Isaac died quite early to prevent him from taking the plunge, too late to stop-dear to his defeat; thus the newspapers were able to announcecer the victory of Rothschild.

The downfall of one and the triumph of the other
These creeps leave me cold. I want to be alone.
How to address this circumstance:

According to a report by Mr. Magliani, on 5 0/0 itaa link that existed in 1880 on foreign markets, amounted to over 61.5 million, of which 11 million 9/10 in various locations across Europe and 49 million
G/10 in Paris only.

what was the speculator from rue Laffitte going to do in the the goal of depriving the public of the sum necessary to Italy, while itself remaining a creditor of the same amount.

11 did it; it is, moreover, still a new way of acting familiar to the High Bank; But, since I'm on the subject of this kind of operation, I'll take a moment to give an example. topical.

Around the beginning of March of the year in which I am writing history, a movement of speculation at the the rise had manifested itself in the channel's stocks Suez—they were increased from 700 to 1,300 francs; this lasted from March to November. Nothing justified such a move—ly, not even the motives which are, ordinarily, alleged in such an instance; in any event,

302 speculation 188^*

this increase of 600 francs on 400,000 shares just gave 240 million.

But no sooner had the rise been completed than a the announcement of the issuance of 295 million shares of the Panama Canal Company. Only, as by paying 73,075,000 francs, the subscription—tion was covered (at a rate of 125 francs per title), it It was sufficient, in order to obtain this sum, that the maneuver—The increase affected approximately a quarter of the shares of Suez; indeed, it was able to act on 125,000 shares floating, and there's nothing extraordinary about it. Now, an increase of 600 francs, on 125,000 shares, giving 75 million, we had more than the sum necessary to cover the subscription of Panama.

I certainly did not confess the union members—silent subscribers of this loan (not having (the habit of compromising myself in such company), but, when, in the newspapers of the beginning In November, I read the composition of the union In charge of the broadcast, the light dawned on me spirit. Here is the published list:

Companies: Fvanco-égjjptienne; Deposits and accounts—currents; Bank of Paris; Financial company, Cré—said Lyonnais, Discount Office. Furniture credit Spanish; General Society; General Union; Credit discount; French furniture credit; Bank National; Parisian Bank; Winler- Bank thir; Bank of Alsace-Lorraine; Galine, in Lyon; Tacoh Landan and Bleichrøder, in Berlin; Pe- reire; Souheyran, Christophle, Donon, Bamberger, Ephrussi, Camondo, Lehaudy, Heine, Léoy-Créniieu

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 303

Werhrouck, Erlanger, Girod, Alherti, Denière, SéUgmann, Emile de Girardin.

Faced with this list, how can one not accept the explanation of the sudden price increase Higher up? Rothschild is missing from the list, I'll speak for myself. I will go further; but, except for his personality, all the others represent the most brazen speculation.

Furthermore, Girardin's presence implies, am- Furthermore, the press had been largely subsidized tioned.

However, one should not believe that this broadcast having aired without the mi- The Minister of Finance was not questioned by anyone vigilant member of parliament.

Sourigues asked the following two questions:

1. Does the minister intend to refuse admission to the official valuation, especially in the long term, of fund shares owners and shares of the Panama Canal?

2'^ Does he intend to oppose the public negotiation of these securities, in the long term, outside the official market?

The minister had written his response under the pretext that: "a word slipped out unexpectedly could to cause an increase or a decrease. However, This answer was evasive; on the first question, the minister merely stated "that, when the "The trade union chamber would have ruled, then only "it would be seized; but no title was admissible" "By right to the official listing."

On the second question, he alleged "that he had not "No way to operate outside the official market."

Through this commendable circumspection, one senses,

As for me, I simply note that there has been

304 speculation

1850 notoriously scandalous broadcasts, admitted without delay to the official listing, and that, almost ja-

But no member of parliament was found to question him.
the minister on his attitude towards them.

If I wanted to count the values whose quota-
The official policy only served to promote genuine flights, I would almost need a volume; yet I would mention a name and I would have said everything by pointing to the French General Credit.

I now return to the Italian loan.

I pointed out that in the list relating to the Panama issue, the Rothschild name does not
It was not included. This king, in fact, disdains trade unions.
He likes to act alone; he was alone for Italy; at Moreover, the abolition of forced currency affected the matters of currency, "the clipping of coins", and atavism drove the Jew towards this beloved trafficking of his fathers.

Therefore, Italy's task was to compensate for the lack of metal circulation.

That said, listen, you naive French people.

During the year 1880, the cash balance of the
The Bank of France declined considerably, and
This continued until the beginning of 1881.

The gold reserves, in particular, suffered a reduction tion which reached approximately 350 million. The econo-Mists recorded these variations in a doctoral fashion.
when one day someone told the following anecdote-
sells:

"A bank teller approached the cashier"
"from the Ministry of Finance to propose an exchange"
"to trade a few rolls of old louis for some <(new louis. The Treasury cashier is agitated, sniffs

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC o0o

"some dark deed and, without putting more fact on, made the said boy apprehend the body of Bank. He claims to be on behalf of his boss; the boss comes to see the police commissioner and" This gives him the following explanation:

((– I do business with foreign countries: there are 0 countries where French gold coins are received for their value; in this case, all louis are good. "In other countries, on the contrary, these pieces do not are received only for their weight^ and, naturally, "Those that are paved are less valuable than '(The new Louis d'or coins. So I'll exchange them, as much as "that I can, my old louis against louis" "new, which I export, and which are immediately "Re-examined in the countries to which I ship them."

The explanation resulted in a release of tension. the bank boy. Was the trafficking therefore irregraspable?

It is certain, however, that if, as time goes on that the currency mints new louis, a citizen anyone would exchange them for old people for the to immediately recast in Chatou or Villejuif, it would immediately be prosecuted for having demonetized species in circulation.

It seems that, guilty in Chatou, one is innocent in Italy or Belgium.

That's very strange.

Stupidity? It's possible! They say she's in the law – in which case it is not the only one.

Now, consider this speculation in relation to the gold coinage and Italian needs; note that the banker, giving preference to gold louis new ones, because of their weight, could be more natural-

306 the isso speculation

How can I buy so much gold in bars with a thousand louis? new and, consequently, to carry out its shipments abroad where, according to his statement, the new louis were returned to the crucible, and seek to understand why- what this trafficker chose the currency of choice?

to waste France's spending unnecessarily manufacturing.

All of this is extraordinary, isn't it? the cons-anti-French conspiracy, organized by financiers, Does it stand out quite clearly? Well, pull the consequences!

In any case, the monetary question was raised on the carpet, and, towards the end of the year, we saw the resentmentnine Soubeyran tried, without much success, to embarrass the parliamentary gallery.

Meanwhile, speculation had not been limited to foods that I just described. He had also shot down on railway stocks.

Since the beginning of the year, we had re-
He spoke of a total takeover by the PJtat. The question of... it was all the more important to ask this question since the Ministry of Finance was no longer in the hands of Léon Say.

The first attack appeared in the form of a project for the complete takeover of the Orléans network. The
The press, deeply divided and subsidized, argued the for and against; however, the subservient newspapers the companies were the most numerous; those-
They had, moreover, organized demonstrations among the Chambers and commercial courts.
Also, throughout the year, the public could see a a monotonous parade of endless reports and de-reasoned decisions generally concluding that blame is warranted

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 307

the state buyout, but indicating the need for reform the tariffs.

Later, when I have to talk about the scandalstheir conventions, I will perhaps find, in the the oddity of certain prices, the explanation for this enthusiastic movement in support of the companies.

In the meantime, I still have to talk about the financial vibriocier, known as Erlanger.

Hidden behind the Crédit Général Français, this "Dentist" kept launching his remarks at the audience.
poisoned advertisements.

news, having exceeded one and a half billion', to him alone, he certainly had a hand in more than 800 million, not including foreign loans.

His cynicism, his puffery, and above all the evil that he did to France, undoubtedly earned him—ment, Prussian recognition; he had it, as We'll see.

I already said that this vulture was at the bottom of the Greek loanwords; it is also found in the Cape Diamonds and the Insurance Company Emergency services (accidents) on the Alès railway to the Rhône, (which was to cost Cazot and the public], in the quarries and plaster works of Paris; On the other hand, he had gotten his hands on the ^ence //«—go, and through that he obtained the information; he had put the hand on the Godillot Company (military supplies)

Issues from 1880:

State and City loans: 9 million? 9/10

Credit institution 880 — 4/10

Railways and Industrial Societies. 657 — 9/10

Total 1.578 million 2/10

308 the isso speculation

silenced him and, by doing so, could traffic, if not do no longer at the Ministry of War.

Finally, he had been involved in a scandalous scheme. of a merger between the Omnibus and Tramways: and I It will surprise no one to say that, in this regard, During a full session of the City Council, it was necessary to reveal that two-fifths of the company's capital, for the proposed merger, were simply markups estimated at 40 million, which, moreover, were being prepared to double them, so that 80 million fictitious would unnecessarily burden a public service.

Well! That was when he was piling everything up these acts of piracy by the man from the Auteuil palace^ of V Cotton Loan, the roads of Alabama, of the Tunisian loans, the transatlantic cable, the Bingham mines, from baron he was, was made an earl by Emperor William, on account of the services its finances'.

While V honor {\} thus received his reward—
Let's think, let's see what the fate of... had been in France.
dishonored because of poverty.

It will suffice to consult the series of strikes, to to see that the orgy of the wealthy had, necessarily, influenced the fate of the propertyless.

The year had begun with the paving workers' strike, in Paris (January); she continued with that of the carpenters—spinners, in Reims (April), spinners, in Sanges (Hé—rault, calico printers, in Rouen, spinners, so—weavers, tapestry makers and weavers, in Tourcoing;
molders, foundry workers, weavers, in Lille; of the m.enui—

'See my Kings of the Republic, Volume 1', Chapter Er—Langer, and volume II, page 113.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC c09

siers, carpenters and roofers, in St—Omer; Earthmovers, in Béziers; masons, in Lyon.
(All these strikes in May.)

Then came the strikes: carpenters, in Bor—waters; marbles in Marseille: sculptors—Cabinetmaking, in Paris (June), coppersmiths, in Lille (July; embroiderers, in St—Quentin and weavers, in Fiers (August); cabinetmakers, in Paris (September); Cabinetmakers in Bordeaux; miners in Denain, in Valenciennes and Vieux—Condé (October); cigar makers in Lyon and coopers in Moissac (November, finally, typographers, in Grenoble)
(December).

Of these strikes, two resulted in serious incidents; there were cavalry charges troop dispatches to Roubaix and Armenlières in Denain and Valenciennes.

In Roubaix, employers had reduced wages during the previous winter (1879—1880; some, Moreover, that its exceptional rigor would impose silence to all complaints, which is what happened; but when the beautiful season returned and, with it, a more active work, they did not want to resume the old prices. However, it appears from specific documents that The strikers were complaining, quite rightly, about tra—

some 13 francs, others 16 francs, the best paid, finally, 24 francs per week consisting of six days; from minimum to maximum, we find ourselves therefore in the presence of 52 francs and 96 francs per mold. The rent already absorbs 15 to 16 francs also per month, only 80 francs remained for the best paid. for the food and clothing of a single person 310 i/agiutage 18"

The bell rang; but there was a child! It was famine!

That being said, to send troops against these martyrs of the selfishness of capital, this was invoked Crime: They were involved in smuggling!

Yes, these starving strikers were crossing the border third in number from 1 to 5,000, sometimes more, and were trying to benefit from the rights instead of the State, by devoting their meager resources to Purchases of Belgian goods. – The customs officers unable to fight against such masses, one sent cavalry.

In the mines, we also knew that, the wages had decreased. I have before me a report of Varroy, noting that, from 1876 to 1878, the decline—the rate had been 10 percent per year, and that continued!...

After what I've just described, it's barely It is unbelievable to have to address the following words, that Freycineta's words spoken in a speech at Montauban (August):

"You see. Gentlemen, the situation is "Good inside and out; outside, it is to peace, deep peace, peace without boasting,
"as if without weakness; within, there is calm,
"Security, work; that's Jinan's prosperity—
"unprecedented (!) it is a commercial activity—
"civil and industrial which exceeds all expectations" 0 siones, it is a material order that nothing disturbs
"and which rests not only on the firmness of the "Government, firmness which no one doubts,
"but, what is even better, on wisdom"
"G of the populations."

A few days after saying this, Freycinet he resigned rather than be associated with expulsion decrees, he said; basically, to escape per to the responsibility for the scandals he saw appear on the horizon.

Meanwhile, too, and as in previous years In previous years, workers' congresses were held in Marc-Seille (July), then Le Havre (November). In this Lastly, a regrettable split occurred over a serious question of principle.

In the absence of science, which, obviously, their had missed the mark, the dissidents, described as moderates, should have admitted their mistake simply by... to feel the compliments they received from the part of certain Jewish newspapers calling themselves republican caines.

In fact, I believe that, here too, the venom of the ambitions had crept in; some leading figures of the revolutions-former officials having "been satisfied", as had been the police prefect originally from Lyon '.

It was written, moreover, that the year of which I I would be busy going through the whole range of demonstrations.

The demoralization of the bourgeoisie was once again on display. in Bordeaux by filth similar to previous (November), and, in Paris, by prostitutes-carefully brushed tions; these appeared on the occasion of the Marie Bière tragedy (November).

'The Proletarian trials, where the names of Barberet, Quentin and Paulard, revealed details informative.

312 i/aGIOTAGE 1880

Bourgeois enrobé, Lefebvre de Viefville, supporting the prosecution, piled up at the hearing all the vulgar moral failings of the world, qualifying palinode the gentleman who paid "a little" near" the merchandise of love that had been delivered to him the one he had taken without restrictions and that he abandoned without reason.

The unfortunate woman, now a mother, had lost her temper.

one was a gentleman for having paid
And the other was a prostitute for having received it! Now, Having received it, she shouldn't have fired!

The jury did justice by acquitting the accused.
apologia.

But I'm concerned about how the same Lefebvre would judge the case where the gentleman receives and the woman gives, which happens, inevitably, when,
For the purposes of a political career, one marries, eyes closed, a wallet stuffed with millet
lions!

Finally, that same year also brought to light, com-
In the depths of vice, the cynicism so greatly admired, moreover, among the pos-sedentary: the Abadie-Kirail-Knoblock affair was, in Indeed, one of the rare examples of crime in both precocious and experienced.

Now, let's look at the results.

As if to shame the pure seed that fertilizes nature's fertilizer, it is in the middle of the moral dung that the wealth of men increases knows more quickly.

Indeed, the 19% of property owners who, at the end of

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 313

In 1879, they shared 221.5 billion, held 11.5 billion more at the end of 1880.

The proportion had not changed, but the quantity had increased; the buildings, mainly, were facing an increase exceeding 8 billion:
At 30%, it was 240 million more than the contributors
buables had paid:

We can indeed be sure that the delinquent hutlgot of 187'J had been 3 billion 390 million

Adding 0 – 240 –

We get 3 billion 630 million which is, more or less, the budget figure

However, if the wealth of the propertied classes had increased, the
The poverty of the propertyless had also increased;
The strikes listed above have sufficiently confirmed this.

To corroborate their claim, here is the table
Comparison of the last two years:

1879 ISSO

Owners 19 19

(70 employees) (1 G9 employees)

Non-possessors {, , > 81 81 .,, ,.

(deprived. \i\ (12 deprived

Totals 100 100

And yet the people, still believing in the strength

He was using words, imagining he was in a Republic!

* Here are the details:

Billions

1879 1880 Différence

Real estate capital 15.3/10 123.2/10 -|- 7.9/10

- furniture 68.1/10 72.9/10 4-4 3/10

- financial 37.7/10 36.5/10 - 1.2/10

Total 7! 221.1 232.6/10 + 11 6/10

18

il4

THE AGROTION

Judge for yourselves! From the very first days of the year; we had decided that instead of taking the title of ambassador-French diplomats would take de-now that of ambassadors of the Republic
French

Summary. 1881. – Awakening of Catholic property owners. – Anti-Semitism in Prussia. – What the Jews say about France. – Stock market crash. – Ferry, gunpowder merchant.

– Torrent of amortizable assets. – Monetary crisis. – Sou-Beyran saves Christophle! – The elections. – Again. Egypt! – The Kroumirs of 1863. – Tunisian gossip.

– The General Union. – Hirsch and the diplomats. – Absorption or destruction. – The great ministry. – The Issues of 1881. – The strikes. – Capital Jubilee.

– The magistrates. – Wilson's marriage.

Summary of the period: Dead and living. – Depopulation. – Individual wealth. – The destitute. ~ Disorganization.

Meanwhile, the Catholic landowners had found that, decidedly, the Jewish property owners abused know of their triumph.

Having been excluded from the majority, they could not no longer fighting on the political field; but, as As I said, they had taken refuge in the congregations-financial matters and there they had, for a long time, plotted to strike a major blow to the heart even from their rivals, that is to say, in their chest-strong.

The duel was remarkable; but most of those Those who attended saw it as nothing more than a simple game of the vagaries of speculation and, for their part, historians routine-bound, always perceptive, don't even glimpsed that this battle between the wealthy had attached to the year 1881 the function of a jubilee, that is-that is to say, a partial liquidation.

316 Speculation 1881

Since the creation of the General Union, the forces Semitic and Catholic forces were under the weapons; but a chance (which I call a fault) to have in hand the material proof of a pre-ditation), came to provide a relatively immediate addition carrying, to the battalion of Israelites of France.

some noise surrounding an arrest brought to the Tribune of the Prussian parliament, by Deputy Hænel, regarding an anti-Semitic movement that has manifested itself in Germany for several months.

The Protestant pastor Stoecker, chaplain of the Court and deputy, openly preached the crusade against the Semites. Pamphlets were circulating against these; one of them had appeared with the following heading—before: "Arminius is thrown down from his monument of the Teutoburg Forest and, in its place, "Holding a bag of coins, sits an armed figure enthroned" ((of an umbrella.)

It was a clear allusion to power of the Rothschild-Bleichrøder and a rapprochement insulting between William and Louis-Philippe.

At the same time (September 1880), one could read In newspapers, phrases like this one appear:

"The war against the Jews in Germany is taking place
"of such proportions that these, despairing
"to achieve nothing, after having exhausted all means"
"to put an end to it, they have just delegated, to

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 317

"of the emperor, Baron de Rothschild, who had to
"to explain, on their part, to the sovereign that if the If things continued in this way, they would be forced "to leave the German homeland and, of course,
"With their millions."

Indeed, there had been disturbances, collisions, duels; nevertheless, the Prussian parliament heard—The speakers remained very peaceful in November. for and against; Richter, a progressive, defended the Jews; Stoecker, a pastor, attacked them by declaring "that it wasn't their fortune, but the way "which they had acquired, which provoked his "Indignation."

At the same time, a French newspaper printed... Master this:

"Are Jews accused of being bad citizens?"
"of not paying taxes exactly, of refusing—"
"to enforce military service, to incite disobedience—"
"Scandals and laws?... to be adversaries of order"

"Priesthood, propagators of dangerous doctrines-
"reuses?"

"Not in the least!... They were intelligent-"People, active, hardworking and thrifty, and they have
"eniichis; their financial and commercial skills-(ciale=!, their diligence at work, that's their crime. -n

Further on, to clearly emphasize that the monopolize-
Jewish people were not looked down upon by the poor.
The same newspaper added:

"Are they the disinherited of fortune crying out?"
"against prosperity, whether increasing or not,
Mr. of the Israelites? Is this German democracy?...

18.

18 Speculation 1881

"No... this movement is exclusively Catholic"
"and clerical."

Hence, naturally, the republicans had to to conclude that "the persecutions were an act of "An aristocratic reaction."

Bismarck was not particularly fond of the defense of iuifs, were hardly moved by their threat to "leave
"with their millions" and limited himself to a few pa-
"Diplomatic" roles.

Besides, he would have cared little about emigration additional to financial internationalism would have rendered it illusory.

Do I even know if, following Richelieu's example, who formerly, by crushing the Calvi- Republics in France nists, had reinforced those of Germany, he did not ca-did not feel the secret desire to repress in our country, already well prepared to receive it, the overflow of the Semitic solvent about which the ruling classes of his empire?

In any case, it is certain that the census
December 1881 saw a new outbreak foreigners; that of 801,000, a figure from 1876, their
The number reached over a million, and that, in this Last figure, the Germans counted for

Never seen anything like it.

Given this situation, the first stock market move of the year had a more specifically _;"«- character classical.

V Havas Agency, recently formed as a so-anonymous company by Erlanger and dominated by him; The Ilacas Agency, which, under treaties party-

< The Lantern of. November 30 IS^^0.

under THE THIRD KEPURLIC 319

culiers, communicated to Erlanger, Rothschild, Eohrussi, Lebaudy, Hirsch and a few others, some time before delivering them to the newspapers, all the telegraphic dispatches from his department'; VAgence Ilavas had the strange inspiration to to be published, around January 14th and as the latest news, three circulars from Barthélemy Saint-Hilaire, mid-Minister of Foreign Affairs, dated the 24th and 28th December 1880 and January 7, 1881, which, although intended to be included in the Yellow Book, were completely unknown to the French public.

Their tone, like the strangeness of their reasons-statements, phrases, where people were talking about "war" "which will extend across the entire continent," of pre-grim sayings "that are bound to come true all too soon," all while borrowing from the Romans, regarding the Greece, their "Caveant consuls," caused a lively impression on public opinion and brought about a panic-.

An arrest of Antonin Proust (February 3) 7th proved in no way that the French rulers did not encourage Greece to attack Turkey. But things got much worse when, some time later, a newspaper decided to publish dispatches in which it the question was about the promise made by the minister of the French war to deliver 30,000 rifles to the Greece.

These letters were roughly contemporaneous with

'See my lecture. Venalism in journalism.'

- Course

As of the 31st of RCNI

ibie

At

1 15 j:invi.r

I850

I8«i

3 0/0

85.00

83.90

3 0/0 amorlissuli.'c

87.30

85.00

320 the Iski speculation

the "Thomassin mission" (August 1880), but the li-arms sales made by the government had not taken place, "so as not to excite suspensesensitivities.)) However, there was talk of an inter-Diary, benevolent (Heilbronner) who, buying at France would resell to Greece.

Following this, a new arrest warrant was filed by... friend, MP Devés.

Jules Ferry replied as follows:

"Neither the Minister of War nor the governor-
"French nationals, never promised Greece"
c< to supply him with 30,000 rifles.

"The Greek government approached them at the same time ('time he was asking the French government,
"towards the end of last June, to make available to him-
-'■ six general officers to proceed with the "Reorganization of the Greek army."

"The Minister of War has indicated that, if the
If the government wanted it, it would hand over the weapons "requested. But, due to interpretations"
"to which this delivery could give rise,

"These are the facts; if there had been a delivery
"the use of weapons through intermediaries, that's not
"not an appeal that should be made, but ((an indictment.)

"I should add that about two weeks ago,
"The government learned that weapons had "They were bought from several arsenals. Immediately he "broke these contracts, and, obeying legitimate
"scruple, impervious rifles to leave France."

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 321

This response did not dispute the purchase of the weapons, but dismissed the Minister of War.

Unfortunately, the man who spoke thus was of those who place lying among the means of government, and it is highly probable that, without surveillance, not of parliament, but of According to public opinion, the arms shipments were carried out publicly.

In all cases, the newspapers noted that a a number of cartridges and weapons, placed officially out of the model, bought by parties individuals to the oversight committees operating near the different artillery directions, had were arrested as they were about to be boarded for the Piraeus.

The questioning did not concern the "mission" Tliomassin"; nevertheless, Gambetta, accused of a secret government, » felt compelled to take the speech, not to deny the mission, but to declare-to find that he was completely unfamiliar with his organization salion.

As a historian, I have no business pleading either innocence or culaccountability; I must simply declare that, based on facts
The above results, for history, in this certainty that the specious Jewish community, whether through maneuvers, either through borrowing operations, or through tra-weapons files, had seriously engaged the responsibility-the competence of those in power.

But that wasn't all yet:

Having stopped deliveries of rifles, dire^ies or No, now the government was selling indirectly-

322 speculation is

Interrogation (March 5), this time by Clemenceau and, once again, answered by Jules Ferry.

He admitted to having sold 100,000 kilograms of powder at the Rhode house in Vienna; "But, "He added, we don't have to look for who "We sell."

The reversal was blatant.

Rhode of Vienna was a person of mixed standing. for the powder, as Heilbronner had been for rifles; now, regarding the latter, Jules Ferry had had the audacity to say that "if there had been an intervention "A person's position, it would have been for the middle- "Minister, a case for indictment!..." as When this precedent was pointed out to him, his fury knew no bounds. no more limits and led him to confess:

"Yes," he said, "we broke the deal with "Heilbronn, for the 300,000 rifles, is that he "He was happy to do it."

"As for our shipment of powder, we know "that this powder, sold in Vienna, is for the "Greeks, but that doesn't concern us."

These diverse attitudes were well suited to to astound.

We can conclude, however, that since the The deal was broken; the rifles had been delivered by a unknown process and that the powder had gone to the re- to join; but all this traffic: selling, buying^ buying back, reselling, isn't it, absolutely, the a hallmark of a Jewish government- Speculators?

It is worth noting here that Jules Ferry had succeeded Freycinet, since September of the year previous and that it in no way detracts from the rest

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC

Ju cabinet under whose responsibility came

Ilavas. That is, the sales that were processed, denied, then admitted.
of guns and gunpowder.

Here is the position of this ministry:

Jules Ferry, president [public education and &eaî«?-ar^s), Barthélemy-St-Hilaire {foreign affairs-manages), Sadi-Carnot [public works), Tirard {com[merce] Magnin [finance], Admiral Cloué [navy], Gonslans {justice and religious affairs], Cocheray {postal services and televisiongraphs].

It was this troop that was to prepare the way for the grand master, already a hidden dictator; it was she who was supposed to praise Samson to the skies and slit his fingers eyes then.

Throughout all these variations, where morality had nothing to do with it, we had prepared the reopening of the amortizable tap from which, in March, a billion was supposed to flow onto the blessed people
French.

I have already pointed out that the year had begun by a stock market coup; speculation had organized a rocking motion on the shock absorber, in the rejecting from 87.30 to 85, to give the advantage to the new series which would be issued at 83.25. As always-Days later, the operation was hailed as a success. This time Magnin had claimed to be making a public broadcast and announced that she had been covered fifteen times;
this was clear evidence that establishments financiers had absorbed it and that the owner
The bourgeois had, once again, been robbed by his feudal lord.
ity; the public is never allowed to benefit from the weak price of a broadcast; also just as he had

L'AGIOTAGE 1881

He created the decline beforehand, and we easily created the rise for him.
afterwards. Starting in April, in fact, the newspapers, if Pessimists a month earlier, all found themselves agreeing cord to publish that the King of Greece finally accepted, the delimitation of borders, and things turned so peacefully that in June the Discount Bank could issue, pompously, the new loan Greek of 120 million and that, shortly afterwards, we began to talk about piercing the isthmus of Corinth.

The entire first part of the year that I'm talking about
It was therefore a jumble of trafficking and speculation.
It seems that the leaders wanted to procure-to work with metal in preparation for the upcoming elections legislative elections that were to take place at the end of August.

This circumstance forces me to exhaust the series of big business; these, moreover, all have a a preparatory role in the difficulties that will soon follow not to be raised.

I have already said that Soubeyran had, for some time time, turned its activity towards Italy; at the end of by the end of the year, he will have almost completely given up Egypt, but, as was always necessary a little From the East to his Jewish atavism, we find him-will soon be seen in Tunisia, behind certain comments consular complications.

Meanwhile, he was aiming for the suppression operation of the forced course in Italy, where, once again, he was to to be ousted by Rothschild; but, this time, without it to lose a lot, because of the people on Laffilte Street.
having Egypt in their pocket, had less bitterness on their stock market notebook.

I also said how Ja had manifested herself

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 325

anti-French conspiracy of bankers, at the mo-where the Ilian operation was being prepared; this
The conspiracy continued.

From the first months of 188], the metal- reserve the Bank of France had accused of new reductions; the year 1881 is, in fact, that where this reserve was the weakest. In four years, from From 1877 to 1881, half a billion had been withdrawn: the stock in gold, in particular, had suffered the consequences sequences.

In such cases, the ignorance or bad faith of Economists propagate the following fallacy:

"When, they say, the money is no longer in circulation..." ((Bank of France, that is, certainly, it "is involved in French transactions, at least
"By discount."

This is a heinous lie; to put it Naked, one only has to observe the movements of the portfolio, during the same period, and we realize—cevre que stock monétaire et stock papier de circulation, simultaneously reduced to their simplest form expression, were as low as in 1847 and even than in 1870.

This will change the following year, particularly in with regard to paper, but we will then be in the midst of a crisis capitalist. The Bank of France, it is true, rea-will read its highest profits; the bourgeoisie will clap his hands while complaining about the difficulty culture of the times (in which it will have been, like all-days, hypocrite); but the people must know although, in the current organism, the more the benefits the higher the profits of the Bank of France, the more the pro-
The general dies of hunger and that, inevitably, afterwards, he 19

h ACIOTAGE ISSl

There comes a time when the capitalist octopus can no longer even more to make large profits, while The proletarian dies nonetheless.

Jewish economists claim that this moment is inevitably the preface to "a future revival"
"business"; it's a mistake or a lie; the Given the twofold crisis, this is the crucial moment when will erupt the anger of the starving people.

In any case, in 1881, the monetary crisis suggested He managed, only, at the parliamentary podium, what-observations made by those who were the collaborators, and ultimately gave rise to at the meeting of a conference which took part Barthélémy Saint-Hilaire, as Minister of foreign affairs, and Magnin, as governorfrom the Bank of France.

I will not enter into the discussions on the bimetallism including Leroy-Beaulieu and Yves Guyot bored their readers.

These two slaves of mercantilism supporting that the metal coined and minted by the State is a merchandise subject to variation as with all that without this variation which they call "agio", it There is no longer any currency exchange or usurious trafficking; however, the science, which rejects interest as being an agent of disruption and ruin, has no need to search-Dear, how could we have given in to the arbitrary nature of Pricing is the apparent form of an economic law.

I also announced that the harassment long agitating the Crédit foncier of France, and aggravated since the founding of the
The JiypoUiécaire bank was about to reach its end.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 3-7

The leaders in office had, in fact, too much services to request from the large establishment national wear and tear so as not to devote their efforts to calm worrying rivalries.

The task was difficult, and it was necessary to make an effort-that so much trouble to calm Ghri's resentment-Tophle, only to save Soubeyran from ruin
next.

In any case, we got to work:

The finance people started talking again of a possible merger between the two establishments rivals. In February, MP Janvier de la Motte, Soubeyran's good friend risked being arrested lation where the Crédit foncier was called "a house of stock trading" which greatly frightened the conscience Purely from the deputy!

His arrest was poorly received, but, in However, the official odds registered a movement a decline preceding, by one month, a movement an increase of 400 francs per liter.

Note that, a few days before the session, the
The "Calabrian" of the mortgage bank had "Paid" for the luxury of having the newspapers tell the story, that he had reviewed proposals for a merger of emaborn from the Lower Normandy of the Crédit foncier.

However, he was in the process of obtaining the auto-the aim of increasing its capital, in order, no doubt, to be able to better crush his rival. The Council
The State felt compelled to refuse this authorization by pla-^ presenting his refusal under the guise of a simple postponement birth.

A big deal, though: judge for yourselves! The Council
The state had spoken!

328 speculation

1881

Let the reader rest assured; the capitalists they always end up kissing, even when They look more like they're devouring each other; soon, in
In 1882, there will be a general agreement in the House, at Council of State and among the financial sector; Léon Say don-nera, publicly, by letter, a good point to Gristophle, and the Mortgage Bank in dire straits will proudly declare that she deigned to save the CrécZii/onc/er, but by marrying her, which, legally-ment, forced him to lose his name.

Finally, still in the first half of this an extraordinary year, the first echoes burst forth Tunisian combinations.

In accordance with his system of duplicity, Jules Ferry was quite willing to take control of Tunisia, as of an annex to Algeria, but he did not want admit it, let alone ask for permission to the House because, the public being in the con-evidence, there was too much competition around the financial combinations to be made.

Ferry therefore concentrated his efforts on obtaining a re-
The result, achieved with the least possible fanfare.

It is certain that the bey's attitude was, since two months, Italian enough that, if interests
The financiers had not demanded any discretion.
the mere revelation of this attitude would have been enough to obtain-nir of the Chamber, fundamentally bourgeois, all the subsidies that we were forced to request from him, later, under unfortunate circumstances.

Given that things were this way, Ferry preferred to deceive-by the Chamber on all points, or financial or military, and thought to prepare his impunity by displaying a protectorate treaty (May 12).

I will have to return to this subject at the time when, even under the disapproval of his bourgeois peers parasites and property owners, Jules Ferry will have to give his resignation.

For the moment, it will suffice for me to present some interests Remains in the presence, to recall the common aspects which united the staff of the companies of Bône to Guelma, of Crédit Industriel, of the Franco-Bank Egyptian, and to note that the financial actions—the Jews of Algeria, exasperating the Arabs, had provoked a serious insurrection in the southern Oran.

Ferry had taken advantage of this insurrection to accredit the legend of the Tunisian Kroumirs, on the misdeeds on which he had based a dispatch of 'troops,' he said, 'being forced to guarantee the "security-Tunisian border rule." Only the Kroumirs were "supposedly" to the east, while the insurrection was developing in the southwest; which did not embarrass the geographers of the Chamber to declare that Bou-Amena was likely—the leader of the Kroumirs.

It is in the midst of the psychological state created by the parliamentary discussions and the controversy surrounding the press reports that voters were called to the polls.

What emerged from the ballot box was a majority more compact in appearance, more divided into realitigious, because, under the republican guise, the the wealthy had conquered a more important place aunt.

This fact will become apparent upon examining the following table (Plate VII):

L AGIOTAGE ir^j

Sd/' Lb00 idSC) :iS :

Volan's S 1 ;s T0o

Abstainers 1^8^ 293

InsciHs Î.000 1,000

Majority: ■•"

Simon te 4GC ^.'^l'i

Voters. 1..M:' 1,000

Sdf L000 inajoritc:

Possessing ...,.,.,.,. 97 :î90

Not possessing. ,o. o 903 GIO

Majority, 1,000 1,000

Therefore: increasing abstentions, fictitious majority stronger, but, in this majority, four times more dispossessing!

But these people had not equipped themselves with programs republicans so that they could better violate them;
also e- ti, from now on, beyond any doubt that the rac/i;/ approved routes will be "definitely impossible".

Moreover, the history of subsequent periods does not will prove that too much to what extent suffrage, cor-Broken by generosity and deceived by men-dreams, had prepared a disastrous legislature.

However, a new development had marked < es elections: the dictator had not been re-elected Belleville,

In Paris, popular opinion had guessed that, from Increasingly, her former idol was being outmaneuvered, not yet fully hired, continue him, maybe-to be, but singularly cooled. This son of the

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 331

the people had, decidedly, become too entangled with parasites ti me; what am I saying? he had been bogged down by million-like creatures, then by kings, and he had finished, gracefully, to a marquis, by lunch with Rothschild (June,
He was therefore ripe for supreme power; also
They were going to force him to accept this power; but,
This was done, in a short time, by the Kings of the Republic

The elections had barely ended when external events began again to cap- to attract public attention.

From the very beginning of Tannée, a revolt had broken out in Cairo (February). 4,000 men from the garrison, commanded by Arabi-Bey, had entered the Palace and demanded the removal of the members from the Riaz-Pacha firm.

Gela had dragged things out for several months, without too much noise, but, in September, it was a intervention of the powers.

What had happened?

The insurrection was simply the consequence financial transactions, that is to say, taking of possession of Egypt by English agents.

Two camps had formed among the Euro-Egyptians: one supporting the English, the other for the French; summarizing their disagreements two officials were in conflict: Ring and Blignières.

De Ring apparently supported French interests much more than those of Rothschild; while that, unlike Blignières, he readily betrayed his French homework to better serve the intérêts des juifs de London et de Paris; en appa-

33"2 the speculation is

There was a lot of talk about the rivalry between nations. English and French. Poor nations, how many Things are being put on your back!

As I write these lines, I have before me a voluminous brochure entitled: Documents and extracts from journals relating to the affairs of the Geographical Society, which contains the most serious allegations against the Rothschild house, against Léon Say, against Blignières, and have never been denied.

Going into detail would lead me to name too many names. Numerous explanations, however I can affirm that treason against France in favor of the An-

had against him all English interests and that, However, the availability of this function—the letter was signed by the same hand that had signed the frantic circular I mentioned '6n 2om_mençant the year: I named Barthélémy Saint-Hilaire.

This remarkable diplomat was, moreover, very variable and, at times, it happened that he did not listen to Mr. Gabriel Charmes (correspondent of the Journal des Débats — that is to say, Rothschild's — for the control of Blagnière and Minister Ring^, and This stunned the journalist. A joar, leaving from one of his conferences with the minister, Charmes had a ravishing word—

“—What do you want?” he said to someone who “questioned him about Barthélémy's arrangements” ;(Saint-Hilaire, I used to make him walk exi telling him that Mr. Thiers, in his place, would have acted “tei'—s faor.. Today he's the one telling me that

'Paris. Georges Chamcrot Printing House, 19, rue des Sainls—Fathers.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 333

"If he had been in Mr. Thiers' place, he would have done "This or that!"

Should we conclude that Thiers did not revoke of Ring?

In any case, a considerable number of petitions, originating from Egypt, ardently demanded the retention of this official. These pelidons had were sent to the ministry through hierarchical channels regulatory; there a serious incident occurred; it seems that the regulatory route was not safe; this results from a published letter. Despite the observation Strict adherence to all formalities, the ministry returned petitions citing "a procedural defect".

Now, here was the procedural flaw: a note The message addressed to the Consul sheds some light on the mystery:

"You were wrong," the ministerial note said. ((to accept petitions from the colony, in so doing, "You seem to be taking sides in a debate about— "The consul must remain completely foreign."

sulat, one would have said: the petitions are null and void as "having failed to observe the regulatory procedures."

– Now get out of the dilemma!

That's how we made the silence; that's how—how they delivered, not only Egypt, but the French people who worked there, with the appetites of Rothschild.

I do not examine complaints, and even if they without foundation, which is not proven, this fact
This would in no way excuse the denial of justice.

In any case, I note that things have came to the point that the Eastern Question was still awakened by this cold, and that two battleships, one 19.

334 L'Aff. roTACE mi

English, the other French, were sent to Alexandrie (October).

Thus, the betrayals of officials that I do not ceases to report since the early years of This story not only harmed interests
:{Yes, once created, had the right to demand help and protection, but also led to mani-armed demonstrations that could degenerate into conflits and in bloody destructions.

This was in parallel with this new horizon of Eastern things from which crises developed Tunisian and Algerian.

When Jules Ferry was forced to send troops in Tunisia, he had invoked, not the desire to exert pressure on the bey, but the need to repress the crimes of the Kroumirs.

Pretexts, because our soldiers found in this
The expedition dealt less to the Kroumirs than to epidemics.
of which they were decimated.

To demonstrate how inadequate the history was—
To learn about the Kroumirs, I only have to go back a little in the past.

There have been exchanges of almost all times

Tunisia's border with Algeria. There are twenty-five or thirty years, it was not uncommon to read, in the daily press, mentions like this one.
which I note in the Journal of Debates of September 17th September 1863:

Algerian dispatch: Our villages come to be raided by the Tunisians.

I am not aware that anyone has looked into this matter.
something other than inflicting punishment on the tribes

under IA THIRD REPUBLIC 335

pillagers: generally^ this correction was exercised-Published as a reprisal between the tribes; these are there are the customs typical of African tribes.

It is, however, quite curious to note that the oldest financial reports between France and Tunisia date precisely from 1863.

However, the raids did not prevent the borrowing of 1863, issued in France, then another in 1865, then several others followed one another until 1869, at the time when the arrears had not been having been paid exactly, it was proceeded, at the request of the French diplomacy, to the unification of all the debts.

This unification was not actually achieved until 1872.
They then created vouchers representing the arrears unpaid, a simple acknowledgment of debt, and of which
The situation would be resolved later.

As we can see, the financial intervention in Tun'sie is contemporaneous with the other interventions Oriental, Turkish, Egyptian, Greek.

In Tunisia, as everywhere else, the representatives constituents of various nations, driven by interests financiers competed for influence.

There, as in Turkey and as in Egypt, the An-England aimed for the top spot, and had succeeded in to obtain it in 1873, at the time of the English protectorate was official.

Later, when it proved useful to certain intrigues to sow discord between France and Italy, that-ly to manifest his first malicious acts there lances, this fact, also, the moment of the Italian troubles in Marseille.

336 speculation

1881

The financial movement that intensified in France, after 1871, a part of the Jewish community had grown to Algeria, where she was certain to find numerous auxiliaries, thanks to the Crémieux decree who had emancipated the native Jews.

Finance had therefore descended upon the banks.
railway companies, and, so close to the 0-
They laughed at the Tusian laughter, she was careful not to lengthen towards him, its octopus-like tentacles.

From that moment on, it was easy to predict and more of uprisings in Algeria and more difficulties with Tunisia; this is what inevitably happened. to induce.

I've already talked about the Bône company in Guelma and its extensions; greatly favored by the guaranteed by the State, this company aspired, in Furthermore, to realize his pretext of a strategic linegic.

Given that Gela was involved, the first raid was bound to give rise to to the legend of the Kroumirs and provoke complaints capable of making themselves heard differently than those from a simple Algerian tribe, somewhat plundered by its neighbor.

On the other hand, a company from Arseille had acquired a large estate known as VENfida. Land law and legal proceedings are com-logical complements; the native courts had the bad taste of viewing with a displeased eye a foreign enthronement, hence a conflict of legal-tion represented by lawyer M^e P'ioquet, as another-
M^e Emile Ollivier was the one who made the capitulations Egyptian and, more recently, Mr. Grévy, the one Guanos from Peru.

On the other hand, debt and interest bonds being as little settled as the Turkish debt – which is very oriental and is factored into the calculations of the lenders Jewish men, – bank clerks, whom I have as already indicated, had collected these papers from different annuities hands.

It was not until Soubeyran and his com-ordinary parses who were not trying to obtain, in Tunisia, I don't know which mortgage or agricultural credit-Cole, whose lawyer, former police prefect, Léon Renault took it upon itself to go to Bardo to develop the plan.

When I have placed in the middle of these activities various, the names of the G'« Rubattino (road of iron from Tunis to La Goulette), those of Roustan, of Billing, Maccio, Oscar Gay, Elias Mussali and Boc-kos, those of the Crédit Industriel et Com- company commercial, having Gery and Siegfried, as representatives so many, finally the G*^ from Bône to Guelma, itself represented by the same Siegfried and Gery, we will have an overview of the various financial interests of pou-before imposing their demands on their governments respective comments.

The classic operation consisted, first of all, of to become the owner of the securities of the unified debt and of unpaid vouchers.

Then, as these securities were depreciated, we waited-would cause the increase that would inevitably occur, when the French government would have reorganized the payments by killing a few thousand soldiers.

However, as I have already indicated, the expedition tunisienne was, since 1879, in the combinations;

338 speculation

from the same period, the rise in securities had taken shape.

We can easily follow that of the unified annuity, but, with difficulty, that of the good ones, these not having never appeared in the official price guide. Their importance was in block size of approximately 14 million and the profit

As for the debt itself, it must be taken into account that one holder of 100,000 shares (out of 250,000 existing) having acquired them in 1877 at 160 francs each, would have paid 16 million, and then reselling them for 400 francs, He could have made 40 million, hence a net profit of 24 million.

This profit, and that of the woods, combined, give a total of 34 million.

I will not go into the history of the operations military and diplomatic matters, nor the details of Italian intrigues and Turkish protests; I will only say that the protectorate treaty, signed in May, led, almost immediately, to an occupation full passion.

The protectorate form is a budget-driven find to remain silent; it exempts it from submitting to the control of the Parliament, the directorate of expenditure and revenue, even to the limited degree that characterizes management of the Algerian budget and those of colonial expenditures.

We can see, only from the 1883 budget, that the occupation cost 25 million, taken without authorization

* I am completing the table given above on page 231 here.

Unique Tunisian Delta Higher Lower

1879 242 203 »

1850 360 218 75

1881 4Si) 33j .

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 339

special sale, by means of credit transfers previous; in 1884, 20 million were allocated in the budget ordinary, then here and there legal expenses and interest guarantee to railway companies iron, but we don't see at all what comes into play. these.

However, nothing of value is coming in; therefore the ex-
The Tunisian petition appears to have been made solely to procure concessions and 34 million in-

I also believe that, in doing so much as paying, he should have
It would have made much more sense to throw peacefully at these Jews, alms of a few million; that would have saved the lives of thousands of soldiers who
They went to get themselves killed – for them.

And please note, my opinion would not change.
even if the protectorate produced a surplus of budgetary revenues for the benefit of the metropolis; I I would then find, by weighing the military corpses and social demoralization, that the loss would be per-resistant.

A little light was shed only by the revelations tions of V Intransigent (September), and by an interpellation (November) during which Jules Iron , defending himself against accusations of having started a war without the consent of Parliament, dared to say: "Never
"No war was waged against the bey, since his troops
"They marched with our people."

As if the war were not only and united-spending millions and ex-to put the lives of soldiers at risk, for or against anything Who !

However, while the neo-political activists of the Jewish party...

340 speculation 1851

were arguing about their respective responsibilities,

V Union générale had climbed the peaks of the coast and began to cause a kind of astonishment.

From January to June, it had achieved an increase 300 francs was nothing; in the six months that followed, she reached amidst fantastic leaps-ticks, costing 1,500 francs and 2,000 francs each, the
The price of 3,000 francs was six times the initial investment.
primitive foundation.

How and why such enthusiasm?
What power was hidden behind the name of

V. Union Générale? That's what I'm going to undertake. to tell the story, because here I am, having reached the climax of the year, the one where all the speculative forces which, until now, had re-parts on different sides.

For many years, Austria, entirely in-tière or nearly so, was a Jewish fiefdom, having as its main lord, enthroned far above the emperor himselfeven the Rothschild gang.

In Austria, the most sordid usury reigns, then-practiced safely and officially, thanks to means of exchange used in this country, under the name of gold florin and paper florin.

With this system, all the nebulous theories
The double standard are secondary. In reality, the Austria's monetary system is based on a single standard:
theft.

From time to time, when the Jewish community cannot find no longer shearing the inhabitants, when the necess-production figures far exceed what finance deigns to grant to consumption, it causes or allows large-scale massacres to occur.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 341

in order to have fewer mouths to feed and to enjoy ourselves, more fundamentally, the interest on loans from
war ,

That is why, in 1866, everywhere Jews had a firm grip on journalism, public opinion
The public was misled about Sadowa's campaign.
which cost Austria so dearly and benefited so greatly from all the Rothschilds,

It was in this milieu that Bontoux, whom I have re-
"Centmentally spoken," having lived a long time, had forged numerous relationships.

To successfully create his bank, he had surrounded himself with all the malcontents of the calholicism, from the army, in the judiciary and from the old property owners; he had even provided himself with indulgences papal • :eci en. v'is> to attract the economies of the Catholic plebeians, and especially those of the priests.

In October 1881, he had already centralized a large number of Austrian affairs "^; several of them They were composed of princely wrecks, I more or less advantageous debris from other companies crushed by the Rothschilds and their bank; and in the system of mergers and the most significant increases '—îu—dacieuses; if I were to go into detail, by exerir.} 1

See page 239.

— The Bank of the Austrian Countries (Laendcrhark\ la Bancpir ics Hungarian country, the 3rd general bank of depCs (AUGemeine depositen bankj, the Vienna Banking Society { Wiener banl:
gesellschaft, ' . the northeastern path of Nongrois, the Society: %inièie ?t metallurgical of the Austrian Alps (Alpine), the ••lines of Trifail. The Bohemian Mining Company (Prince of Furstemberg), Iol Viennese Construction Company.

34"2 the speculation i8si

for the Alpines and the two Austrian banks and Hungarian, I would astound the reader.

In short, at the time of the big rise, he went!
for the purposes of its combinations, increase the capital of V Union générale.

What were these combinations? By a single
In short, we'll see that they were serious.

Bontoux was the concession holder for the roads of fer Serbs.

I have already explained what financial interests are at stake were due to all the international complications in the Balkans.

I also presented the Treaty of Berlin of 1878, which had pretended to close them and I let things at the time of the four-way conference meeting, as stipulated in the treaty, was expected.

The wait lasted twenty-one months and the first
The session took place only in 1881 in Vienna, on the proposal from the representatives of Austria-Hon—

In this first meeting, we had agreed to cord on the question of the junction of the Turkish lines Serhes in the direction of Constantinople, but on had made this agreement conditional on the prior construction of accessible, via Turkey, from the Bellovar railway line on the Bulgarian border, in the direction of Sofia.

It was a purely platonic decision, because Hirsch took it upon himself, single-handedly, to prevent the Tur—

In this regard, I will simply, for the moment, to point out that it was precisely in 1881 that Battemberg, Prince of Bulgaria, deemed it useful to attempt to overturn, through a coup d'état, the public control of

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 343

its administrative acts and that, precisely, also, at that same time, the affairs of the railway Roulschouk-Warna and those of the connection to Constantinople and Thessaloniki set in motion all the speculators of the principality, mere pantins behind which Hirsch's hand was hidden: One of them, for example, a "former farmhand, "completely illiterate," named Hagienoff, had absorbed Battemberg was completely taken over and, in a short time, had become so influential that, speaking of the deputies, he could get away with saying "my Bulgarian stations" and that, in a telegram officially exchanged between ministers, one could read this phrase astonishing: "Do everything you can to ensure that the Prince Hylkoff does not enter the ministry; "Hagienoff doesn't want it.

That said, I'll continue:

Hirsch, apart from the sticks he reserved for himself to throw into Bulgaria, into Türkiye's path, had prepared other difficulties, thanks to the complicity of Austro-Hungarian diplomacy.

He had changed the attachment point of the Serbian lines towards Thessaloniki and, instead of Pristina, point indicated in his treaties with the Porte, he had made it possible to put: Ueskub or Vranja, which differed the total connection and, consequently, extended, at its profit, the free enjoyment of traffic on the sections existing.

Having explained Gela, I must say that, even before the conclusion of the Treaty of Berlin, the Aulriche-Hon-Egypt had made a preliminary agreement with Serbia

< Five years of reign in Bulgaria, by A.-G. Drandar.

ment of the Austro-Serbian lines.

This agreement, concluded in April 1880, obliged Serbia to execute, within the time limit of three years, the Belgrade-Nisch-Pirot lines (first not towards Bulgaria, that is to say towards Sofia], and Nisch-Vranja (first step towards Thessaloniki (via Ueskub).

"Under the protection of this convention, he was hiding, well "that he was actually the author, Mr. Bontoux, himself-
"Meme, the concessionaire of Serbian railways"
"the favorite and government advisor, the man
"who boasted of always having, even in Austria, "Promoting French interests, the worthy partner and"
a friend of Baron Hirsch.

"It was in his interest to prevent, from ((in whatever way it was, towards Pristina, the pro-
"along the Turkish-Serbian lines in the direction-
"The Salonika tion, in order to be able to evade the "obligations contracted by its treaty with the "Türkiye."

"In his strange benevolence with regard to "Hirsch and de Bontoux, the Austrian representation-"Hungarian authorized the transfer of the connection a from Pristina to F?'a«/a, without considering that she was altering,
"Thus, one of the clauses of the Berlin Peace Treaty,
"who had declared that all treaties concluded by the "Türkiye, with regard to railways, would be "executed by Serbia and Bulgaria."

When I add that this conference of four, who was thus tearing up an international treaty, was only-composed of representatives from Serbia,
* Paul Dehn. Germany and the Eastern Railways.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 345

Bulgaria, Turkey, and Austria-Hungary; when I would have recalled how Hirsch knew how to hold the Turkish diplomats; when I have finally said that the representative of Austria-Hungary was Count of Wimpffen, whose sensational suicide will occupy me Soon, I think I will have sufficiently indicated the elements of speculation that surrounded all Serbian affairs and, by a logical extension, all operations of V Union générale.

Therein lies the secret of the extraordinary movements. liters from this company, comparable movements to those that we had often observed in values eastern and, indeed, like this one, V Union generale transported, on the grounds of the Stock Exchange, the passions and conflicts that had bloodied the Balkans.

The struggle was fierce; precisely because of the influence that the Catholic party could derive from its successors these financial matters, the Jewish party felt obliged or to absorb or kill the instrument of this influence.

Hence two tactics: absorption or destruction
tion.

The first method, absorption, consisted of tra- to register on the Stock Exchange in order to monopolize all the securities, so as to to dominate general assemblies and to impose themselves to serve on the board of directors; the people of Y Union generally knew this process because they had used it. folded, in Austria, to carry out certain mergers.

They therefore put up a fierce resistance; they held out the high-class pill for the difference-makers; then, tempted by the game themselves, they wanted to double their capital by subscribing to it with a portion of the profit- fice that a rise of 2,500 francs on par

346 i/agiotage

1881

(500 francs) had registered in the official price guide. It was their pearl.

If the people of the General Union had not players, they would have retained their titles nominal quality, would have required a transfer and a strict controls, so the shares not falling outside the in the hands of the original subscribers, the maneuver of The stock market would have failed.

And, indeed, how does the listing of securities, by the can the game modify the functioning of an institution? financial protection, when its securities are immobilized in safe hands?

Jews like everyone else, they wanted to cash in 1,000 or a bonus of 1,500 francs that was completely unjustified, that is to say, in short, to receive money without to have earned it through hard work.

And these parasites dare to complain!

In any case, it is certain that strong attacks which manifested themselves, at that time (October), against

V General Union; around the middle of December a The questioning directed against the Laenderhank was organized in front of the Austrian Chamber, to do to know that the words are Imperial Bank, Royal Bank, privileged" did not include any monopoly: pen- During this time, the Rothschilds took great care to to have their claims denied by all the Viennese newspapers. interference, in any way whatsoever, in the speculations of

V. General Union.

This press intervention was like an funeral bells; the end of December 1881 saw the last bright days of Austrian hopes- neon and oriental that the financier had caressed

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 347

Bonloux, and, with him, the entire Catholic party BU bind.

Specifically, this flight amidst the splendors of V. General Union, which Gambetta had to take power see.

He resigned himself to it and modestly assembled his troupe. described as a "major ministry", with the characters following:

Foreign Affairs: Gambetta, President of the council, with Spuller, Under-Secretary of State; - Justice: Gazot, with Martin-Feuillée, undersecretary-State secretary; - Interior: Waldeck-Rousseau, with Margue, Under-Secretary of State. - Finance: Allain-Targé, with Lelièvre, Under-Secretary of State. War: Campenon, with Blandin, sub-secretary State. - Navy: Gougeard. - Public instruction Republic: Paul Bert, with Ghalamel, Undersecretary d Elal. - Public works: Raynal, with Les- Guiller, Under-Secretary of State. - Commerce and State office. – Posts and Telegraphs: Cochery.

– Agriculture: Devés, with Ed Gaze, sous-se-
State co-founder. – Arts: Proust.

Contrary to popular belief, from its
From the beginning, this ministry suffered all the attacks and did not-escaped an immediate fall only thanks to the pe-period commonly called: "the truce of the lockdowns" sisters.

The year whose events I have just summarized
They are more significant because of their results, had also accused a new advance in democracy public production.

In the midst of the orgy of speculation to which.

348 speculation

As we have seen, there was no shortage of pretexts.
that, the ups and downs had been conseparticularly succeeded

Not satisfied by the number of existing values aunts, the speculators had created others and over two and a quarter billion had been requested dice to the public ^.

Within that figure, there were approximately 200 million emissions caused by African appetites and 152 million claimed by speculators in the system-colonial theme, solely in the form of companies of navigation.

Apart from this figure, which only includes French broadcasts, the Argentine Republic, Austria, Greece, Hungary, Portugal, the

18SI Course
Nt-ais values Plus Uuul Wks bas

3 0/0 87 35 82 03

5 0/0 121-25 110 »

Ilalien 94 o0 87 »

Turkish 18 10 1180

Tunisian 490 » 3;13 »

Suez 3,440 » 1,540 »

Gas (Parisian company) 1,762 50 1,433 »

Land credit 1.8't0 « 1.440 »

General Union 3, 030 » 9()3 »

Orleans Railways 1,430 » 1,275 »

Northern Railways 2,290 > 1,703 »

'Here are the details of the emissions for 1S81.

Mirions

State and City Loans 1,031 8/10

Credit institutions (J31 4/10)

Paths of the Far and Inhuman Societies 602 2/10

Total 2.263 4/10

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 349

Russia had issued bonds that the high Jjanque cosmopolitan had, for a good part, located in France.

These issues coincided with the monetary crisis observed, work, moreover, of their elders, not could only worsen the overall situation.

Indeed, the exchange of metal outside for foreign papers, reduces the stock and imposes to the worker a reduction of his resources exchange, consequently, forces him to resort more to credit, that is to say to the usurious markup.

As for bartering within French documents against metal, it promotes the substitution of a a means of exchange with variable value, to a means fixed-value exchange, which reproduces, under a Another form of counterfeiting was the falsification of coins that were once re-close to the kings of France, and leads to the same movements: disorganization of the price of things

It was mainly from the following year onwards that these
The consequences will be felt.

For the moment, the electoral needs had provoked a series of "largesse to the people", so that, in reality, the misery appeared to be less black.

Here, moreover, is the table of situations:

1880 1881

Owners 19 20

(69 employees)

^'on possessing ,. . ,,, 1 81 80 {

(destitute 12) (11 destitute

Totals 100 100

As we can see, salaried employment had hardly changed;

20

300 speculation 188!

misery seemed to have slightly decreased and the name-
The wealth of the propertied classes had risen...

As far as wage labor is concerned, it is through struggle the only one he was able to maintain.

Indeed, there had been many strikes.

In April, painters and bodywork workers went on strike in Lille; in May, a carpenters' strike in Angers, carpenters in Arcachon, tanners in Marseille;
In June, there was a strike by foundry workers in Marquise, and by tailors.
stone in MonipeWier, bakers in Aix, some carpenters and tanners in Perpignan, blacksmiths rons in Gommentry, carpenters in Bayeux and in Lille, butchers in Vémeri, Paris, charpenniers at Cette, miners at Pontgibaux; in August, gxève of miners in Saint-Etienne, of carpenters
In Béziers, bakers in Toulon; in September, Carpenters' strike in Paris; in October, strike coopers in Aix, laundresses in Marseille;

miners in Alais and La Grand-Combe; i.e. a total 24 strikes, compared to the 27 I recorded last year previous.

Regarding poverty, its reduction by half-
The main reason for this was the subsidies.
extraordinary issues stemming from the electoral movement.

Finally, regarding the increase in
For those who own property, it can be attributed to the same causes.
collaborating with the bonuses of speculation.

These various findings will be corroborated by affected by the movement of deaths:

In 1880, these were recorded at a rate of 226 per 10,000; in 1881, they were counted only at a rate of 220 also for 10,000.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC. IQL'E 351

A little less pressure on the prole-the general should, naturally, coincide with less than capital gains.

That is, in fact, what happened:

The parasitic nature of compound interest only operates by direct reason for the decline of domestic production; However, in 1881, this had been zero, everything having passed into the realm of speculation; an operation had been carried out only, changes in distributions;
but it had been necessary to reduce the previous assessments-teeth; as a result, more property owners distributed less value.

This is how the nation's capital, quantified to 232.5 billion at the end of 1880. were des-cendus at 223 billion, at the end of 1881, realizing Thus, as I said at the beginning of this year, a partial liquidation'.

This liquidation was a logical consequence past speculation; there had been, in 1880 and 1881, a vertigo, even regarding the buildings, including the
The cost had been greatly inflated, which was expected to produce a crushing of selling prices; indeed, it was a real estate jubilee of 9.5 billion; but it was, also, the certainty of new budget deficits, that the leaders of 1882 will no longer even be able to

1 Here is the breakdown of the capital

Billions

Late 1830 Late 1851

Real estate assets: 123 (2/10), 113 (8/10), 9 (4/10)

– furniture 7:2 9/10 69 3/10-- 3 4/10

– financial 36 3/10 40 0 10+ 3 5/10

Totals 232 6/10 223 3/10 – 10 3/10

352 speculation ijjsi

In the system of bourgeois parasitism, the real estate capital being reduced by 9 million half a billion, that was (at 3.600/0, average rate of the year) a budget shortfall of 312 million, all the more that the rulers, always ignorant of economics social, calculated their expenses based on the most-previous values, without regard for jubilees of which these capital gains were the cause.

Having ignored the jubilee of 1881, they erected their budget of 1882 based on past errors, without, However, it is impossible to deny a deficit of 47 million. This The figure was greatly reduced; in reality, it reached the 342 million, as I calculated earlier, okay? in this regard with a special work on the finances of the Republic', due to a State Councillor, accountant conscientious, no doubt, but not having, himself, no idea about the scientific reasons for things that he observes.

In any case, real estate capital from- would have to bear, almost single-handedly, the weight of the Liquidation: indeed, while the capital mobilized liers had declined slightly (3.5 billion) purely financial values had grown precisely in the same proportion; this was the result of the transformation of a large amount of capital per-sonnels in financial values, by means of the Formation of public limited companies.

This explains the figure of 36.5 billion obtained in 1880 and that of 40 billion reached at the end of 1881.

Despite the quietness of the street and the height of the

* The Treasury of La Rocque: The finances of the Republic, page 319.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 353

However, the owning company was in-quest.

For some time now, the magistrates have been putting a certain zeal for studying financial affairs who arrived at their bar. On the occasion of the mines de Collo, a president ', eager to distinguish himself, did not refused to admit that /the contributions shares could-felt to be completely freed. The court of com-Merce protested in his own way, by writing a judgment of contradiction in a separate case, where the The same company was involved. Discord was brewing. in case law.

Meanwhile, high-profile trials demas-were the leaders' manipulations?

For its part, parliament, which I have several times pointed out the strange indulgence towards groping that was revealed to him, either in Algeria or in Tunisia, either in Greece or in Egypt, continued his man-sustenance; after having finished, more or less coiri-completely, the investigation into the actions of the general de Gisse, he simply put this one in dis-availability.

I'm not talking about morals; each year brought periodically its ironmondice born in a point any part of France.

Such was the psychological state in the midst of which Gambetta had just gone up to the Capitole, without take care, however, that, not far from him, a 'Mr. Manau.

2 Roeliefort-Roustan trial; Candas and Yvert trial, continuation of the Cisse case.

35^

THE AGROTION

another man – a dangerous one – an enemy (and he knew it), was also climbing the first steps of a throne.

In October, Daniel Wilson had married
Ms. Alice Grévy,

SUMMARY OF THE PERIOD

For not having had the character of the bloody struggles glantes who had reported the period 1870–1875, where This included both external and internal fighting.
the period 1876–1881 is far from presenting a hardware improvement.

Deaths have increased rapidly since 1877, remained at the same rate until 1880 and
births,
They continued to decline and, in 1881, their this proportion is the lowest of the six-year period that I just told.

This can be seen by browsing the
The following table:

I87:i.

Population

Death

Report
per 100

Births

1,1'00,.530

Report

Reminder of

.iG, 732, 785

823,349

2.25 0/0

2.74 0/0

END

187f..

36,905,788

827,339

2.25 0/0

1.001 1.3 '12

2.72 0/0

—

1877.

37,059,0 i0

838,718

2.27 0/0

991.97(1

2.69 0/0

—

1878.

37,212,928

842,201

2.27 0/0

9ilij.(i89

—

187'J.

37,367,455

815,695

2.27 0/0

1,000,225

2,(J9 0/0

.—

1880.

37,522,623

849,210

2.27 0/(1

1.00 1.378

2.69 0/0

—

1881.

37,672,048

828,828

2.21 0/0

978,253

2.61 tl/0

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC

305

If I now compare only the averages overall figures for the two periods 1870–1875 and 1876–1881, of the information contained in the first, the deaths have decreased by only 28/10,000, while the births-sessions only increased by 7/10, 00(); in such a way that social wealth, which is, above all, the population, not only has a development force extremely limited, but still places us at last among the nations surrounding us.

Here is the comparison of the averages:

rérioJcs

lIo^cnne 1570-75 36,705,827
- 1876-81 37,289,982

Population

Death

943,616

838,666

Report
per 100

2.54 0/0

Xaissanccs

965,393

2.26 0/0 995.209

rt ppart

niuir 100

2.61 0/0

2.68 0/0

In short, the normal increase which, mètTie calculated based on the already low birth rate of 1875, would have
It should have been 49/10,000. It was actually only 42/10,000;
Finally, if I take the single year 1881, the figures are not... more than 35/10,000.

Beware, this is depopulation!

There might not be any need to despair if, parallel-
In addition to this slow growth, I could point out any progress whatsoever in the comfort of the greatest number of living people.

Unfortunately, the figures here are disheartening and Speculation, which causes depopulation, also causes midsere of the masses.

Here is how the populations are distributed

306

THE AGROTION

IS reminder:.-..

Late 1876...

- 1877.

- 1875.,

- 1579.

- 1880.

- 1881.

Populat'on

Posséilan'3

Report.

Numbers
absolutes

36,732,780
30,005,788
37,059,0-10
37,212, ti8
37,367,455
37,522,623
37,672,048

8,082,000
7.381.0(j0
7,782,000
7,443,000
7,100,000
7,129,000
7,534,000

22 0/0
20 0/0

No, it's not possible.

ChiîrrM"
absolutes

28,G".i2,000i
29,524,000 i
21 0/0jV9.277,0U0|
20 0/0 29,770,000i
19 0/0 30.26".'. 000 i

- 30,393,000

30,138,000

19 0/0

20 0/0

"App.

78 0/0

80 0/0

79 0/0

80 0/0

81 0/0

81 0/0

80 0.0

Since 1875, the number of property owners has decreased and that of the non-property owners increased – three years-born in 1876, 1878 and 1881 have a striking resemblance to plant.

As for the non-owners, their least [year] 1877 was bad.

Comparison by period gives the results following:

Periods

IIo\fnne 1870–75
– 1876–81.

Pos^edanl?

PopulationQ

Numbers absolute

36,705,827 9,603,000
37,289,982 7,395,000

Piapp.
p. 100

20 0/0

Non-owners

Chillres al)soliis

27,102,000

29,895,000

Report.

p. lue

74 0/0

80 0/0

In terms of numbers, the property owners have decreased by 60/0 and, in terms of numbers as well, the non-owners have increased accordingly.

'But if the number of property owners has decreased, ii
This is no longer the case when we consider the value of capital they hold and we can ensure, by the following table, that, compared to 1875, the ri-The wealth of each owner increased by 33%. One m iment (late 1880s and early 1831), this proportion had reached 49 0/0.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC

357

Here is the table:

Capital
(francs)

Number dispossessing

by owners

H.appel of 1875...

Late 1876...

– 1877...

– 1878...

– 1879...

– 1880...

– 1881...

185,451,600,000

209,736,300,000

196,103,500,000

209,812,800,000

221,092,700,000

232,664,100,000

223,361,500,000

8,082,000

7,381,000

7,782,000

7,443,000

7,100,000

7,129,000

7,534,000

22,940

28,416

25,200

28,189

31,140

32,636

29,647

The period averages, in turn, give

The following differences:

Average 1870–75.

– 1876–81.

Capital
(francs)

160,386,400,000

Average Number

dispossessors by possessors

9,603,000

7,395,000

17,044

29,604

Hence it follows that compared to that of the period 1870–1875, the average wealth of each owner increased by 74 0/0.

With the wealth of the propertied classes, there naturally grew—element, the burdens of the non-property owners, since they only create and pay the income from capital that holds the smallest portion of the population.

However, these capitals themselves having increased in a proportion of 34 0/0, I can conclude this summary by stating that, in the last period 1876–1881, the proletariat had to endure an increase royalties equal to the increase in capital themselves. Thus, the misery worsened at as the wealthy became more richSj, that is to say, more demanding: (Plate VIII.

>08 speculation

Percentage proportions

Owners, Wage Earners

Reminder of IS"5., 22 71 7

End 187G 20 71 9

– 1877 22 70 8

– 1878 20 70 10

– 1880 19 00 12

– ISSt r0 o9 11

The official economists, sworn priests of the Ludique parasitism?, they claim that the development Poverty is inevitable – They're lying.

Studies? And figures that precede them emerge \h obvious proof.

I, DP, cannot stress this enough to those who claim to govern:

To govern, or rather, to administer a country, "is
"to organize solidarity between man and nature,"
"in a given number of hectares, for the benefit of a
"A given number of beings."

But what did they do?

THEY ARE DISORGANIZING THE SOLIDARITY OF THE WHOLEMAN
AND OF NATURE AND SACRIFICED TO THE LEAST OF THE LESS-BRE, THE GLAND NUMBER OF THEIR CONFIDANTS TOYENS.

END OF VOLUME ONE

TABLE OF CONTENTS

FROM VOLUME ONE

Pages–

Attention to those ignorant of the official world!

A lieaoit Malon v

I. – CENTURIES–OLD SOLIDARITY

1. – The historical routine 1

2. – The characteristics 16

3. – Incubation of the Third Republic... 39

II. – ANARCLIC PROGRESSIONS

1. – Wrestling over corpses:

1870 70

1871 75

1872 85

2. – Multicolored vultures:

1873 99

1874 m

1875 128

Summary of period 147

3G0

TABLE OF CONTENTS

3. – Evohé! Jéliovah!

1876.

1877.

1878.

151

188

215

Dalila's scissors:

1879

1880

1881

Summary of period 355

246 4
276;
315,

END OF THE SUMMARY OF VOLUME ONE

Plaiiolve I.

Page 49

Tin 1861

End of 1869

rirLl870

%e98

PLuvdielI.

V

\^^y

■

,

İml869 ,^1870 „lf.71 ,,1872

IloilGe fo.r ^rcUarùii

hge 150

Plaieilte lU

1^0000001^

V

>

/

V

1

1.

.

Late 1870 ,,18 71 ,,1872 ,,187:i „ 187* „18J5

Black ùut cliititt^dr

Red fej- xaUa^ûit

JalUle Icj- po<v.r9t/aJtJ.l

i8:zo

Page1

1376

ELECTORAL DEVELOPMENTS

Rouge noTV-pos.TfdfLnt^

JaVIİ» e /m-rjre'tiartJ.t

%el88

Plaiclie Y

1844 1851 1820 182

184"t

18Î0

1827

Jairm
Route
Nut"

Va/afta/

Iùè^ h'i<i*i<ffeA' .vnfiôricw's &/rprfyniVT/

PlaacKe M

1816

1877

%em

Yellow Par~^edanùì

RoTlge y0TI ftKMdfÜMJtil

39%

Plm.oho VW
1877

ALstetiiiimii}

ALijoi-LU

MitKU'ile

359%

PlailclieVIR at 1» end of:

1875 187S .1877 1878 1829 1880 1881

ië7s Ifi7ë mn mu; 1829 i88« laai

1 lltT,.-

YELLOW

0
Black

.•.,,' I /.M ImitiMli-'t .ifififMHL/-^ fitp/'i/nm/
Vo'rtti'Crnffrtjt 1

0 ggààMh^'*

PLEASE DO NOT REMOVE CARDS OR SLIPS FROM THIS POCKET

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO LIBRARY

HG

Chirac, Auguste

6051

Historical banditry

F8C5

t,l

:

Venality in Journalism (brochure) in - » » 95

In preparation: |
HISTORICAL BRIGADES

A FOURTEEN-CENTURY HISTORY

Divisions of the work:

I. - SALIC PERIOD.

IT. - FEUDAL PERIOD.

III. - MERCANTILE PERIOD. |

IV. - AGIOTIC PERIOD.

This final period includes the following subdivisions:

Speculation under the Bourbons (1610-1774).

_ under the REvolution (1774-1804).

_ under Bonaparte and the Restoration (1804-1830).

- under the Orléans (1830-1852).

- under the Second Empire (1852-1870).

_ under the Third Republic (1870-1887).

Part will be published soon:

SOCIALIST ANALYSIS (Elementary Lectures).

SAINT-DENIS. - LÉON MOTTE PRINTING HOUSE, 20 BIS, RUE DE PARIS

HISTORICAL BRIGADES

AUGUSTE CHIRAC

has

FINANCING

BELOW

THE THIRD: REPUBLIC
1870-1887

VOLUME SECOND

"In a monograph
"centuries, the 19th century should
"to call itself the century of the es-
"Eroquerie."

The Kings of the Republic

Volume 1, page 19.

PARIS

NEW PARISIAN BOOKSTORE

ALBERT SAVINE, PUBLISHER
18, RUE DROUOT, 18

lic{
all NAVETES éEu({
ÿ. 2

SIG 6

WT

IT

ANARCHIC PROGRESSIONS

(Following)

Digitized by Google

Trumpets of Jericho.

SUMMARY. 1882. – Occult Dictatorship. – The Little Catos.
Flood of financiers. – The pickpocket. – The cagnotte. – The crash. – Bismarck's boots. – Where They are the naive ones. – Austrian plan. – Modest bourgeois.
– Touching His Lordship?! – Léon Say, minister again.
– Poor stockbrokers! – The headquarters of Le Petit Journal.
– Moralistic Peace! – Palinodies of the French Republic– French. – Egyptian Comedy. – Where is civilization?
– Tunisian intrigue. – Malagasy clairvoyance. – Syn– Professional dictates. – Horrible class war. –
The lawyer from Amiens. – The strikers sold out to the English.
– The police. – Poverty is rising. – Anti-Jewish ideas.
– Wimpffen's indictment.

I've reached the final epics.

From 1882 onwards, events will take place, with a rapid– dizzying heightened sensitivity, all the consequences of the mistakes, ignorance or ferocity that has been accumulated linked during the four previous periods, and which have finally officially installed corruption in the palace of the head of state.

VOLUME II

2. Speculation 1882

There, indeed, now lives a man who will easily realize the hidden dictatorship that we had Gambetta was so often criticized for; however, this man, Having to safeguard neither a personal consideration– new, neither a partisan attitude, nor, like the tribune from Cahors, a resounding past, will be much more to ease in choosing the means and, naturally,
He will preferably use those he remembers.
dra of having lived as a parasite during his youth depraved and cynical; also the lackeys of the Republic will call "our dolphin" the one which boys and the girls from the English Café had called "Mr. Daniel," and the magistrates who had inter– said: "Mr. Wilson".

Through financial brokerage, he will take the entre–
. matchmakers and go-betweens; through impunity, he will raise an army of criminals and, by means of– coachmen of the state chariot, commonly called deputies.

Alas! what I write in sad prose, Clovis
Hugh said it in splendid verse, in the /ntransigiant, in the middle of May, showing, by this means, that the stale stench of shady practices had, to such an extent, invaded the atmosphere, which had driven out the par-smoke of the first violets.

In stanzas entitled: The Deputies of af-
To do, the poet expressed himself thus:

As long as they needed to, in order to rig the votes,
To play the little Catos,

And to make the doctrine of the wise resound
In the hollow wood of their kazoos;

° e. . e

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 3

CR
se

Of course, we believed they would go down in history.

Without betrayal, without an attack; /
That they would refuse to sell their glory

On the old state counter;

But, oh mockery! as soon as these puppets
They found themselves sitting on us,

They strained their backs to search our pockets
And steal our pennies;

ee e- The 2nd The e L - C2

Good heavens! We become members of parliament to supplement our income.
Gentlemen, money always smells good,

And the Greek Pactolus, today, originates from
To the corridors of the Palais-Bourbon!

Shame! Just when, saved from the abyss,
The people, the eternal pilots

He thought he saw some sublime star rising,
Between the waves and the sky;

We saw rising in the triumphant dawn,
At the bottom of the deep, gentle sky,

The small, mysterious, pale roundness
From a pile of pennies!

This energetic and splendid satire was well-ity, alas! by the Chamber elected in the midst of the truth-1881 stock market speculator's rod.

I have already stated what kind of pursuit they were subjected to positions and jobs, especially the cushy sinecurespaid by the State; those who had not been able to, or daring, the livery, had thrown themselves into financial societies ceremonies; a whole legion of newly wealthy people was entry into the boards of directors of the new new companies.

The Senate, at the end of 1882, had no fewer than of 52 administrators or known stakeholders

4. Speculation | 4852

various companies, even outside of the stock market... silently and carefully dissirlées.

Here is the list of senators notoriously linked to boards of directors, either through functions or by operations that have become public:

Andlau (count d"): Orne railways.

Arbel: Financial insurance. – Central Labor Bank and Savings. – Industrial and Commercial Society of Baragnon: Credit of France.

Bardoux: Industrial and commercial credit.

Barrot: The Land Company. – Algerian Company. – Roads to iron from Bône to Guelma.

Barthélemy-Saint-Hilaire: Tharsis Mines.

Bernard: Large insurance company.

Bocher: Spanish furniture credit. – Southern Railways.

Bondy (de): Shipyards and workshops of the Gironde.

Bonnet: Maritime band. – Crédit foncier de France.

Bozérien: Central gas (Lebon).

Broglie (Duke of): General Union.

Brunet: Centrale-vie. – Linen industry trading post.

Cazot: Alais on the Rhône.

Chabaud-Latour (General Baron de): Western Railways.
– Docks and warehouses of Le Havre. – Mokta- Mines el-Hadid. – Forges and foundries of Santander and Quiros.

Claude des Vosges: Central Bank of Labor and Savings.

Cordier: Financial insurance. – Discount bank. – Docks and warehouses in Rouen.

Dauphin: Fire eagle, – French General Credit.

Denormandie: National fire. – Nickel.

Duclerc: Bank of Paris and the Netherlands. – Land credit Franco-Canadian. – Andalusian Railways.

Dupuy-de-Lôme: Forges and shipyards of the Mediterranean.
Marilimes messaging services.

Dutilleul: Bank of Paris and the Netherlands. – Land credit.

Duval: Major Insurance Company. – Betting Company his gas.

Fay (du): Financial insurance.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 5

Feray: Linen industry trading post.

Fezrouillat: Crédit Lyonnais. – Montrambert coal mines.
Mines of Mokta-el-Hadid.

* Flers (de): General Family Fund. – Grand Mines – Combe.

Fournier: Commercial and Industrial Bank. – Company
Franco-Algerian. – Mines of Malfidano.

Gouin: Bank of France. – Bank of Paris and the Netherlands.
– Urban and Seine (insurance). – Gas for the France and abroad.

Guiffrey: French Land Company. – Land Credit and Algerian agricultural credit. – French land credit.

Haussonville (d'): Paris-Lyon-Mediterranean railways.

lonnoré: Bank of Algeria.

Humbert: French General Tramway Company. – Mines of Campagnac.

Labiche: North-fire. – Central Bank of Labor and savings.

Lareinty (de): Colonial land credit.

Legay (Baron): Crédit foncier de France. – Financial company from Paris.

Magnin: Bank of France.

Martenot: General Family Fund. – Land Rent. –
Forges de Châtillon-Commentry.

Masson (of Mortfontaine): World-accidents. – Counter of es-account. – Crédit Lyonnais. – Foncière Lyonnaise.

Montaignac (de): Caisse mutuelle des Reports.

Oudet: Crédit foncier et agricole d'Algérie.

Palotte: Union mobilière. – Bank for loans to industry.

Pélissier (general): Lyon to Croix-Rousse railway.

Pouyer-Quertier: Telegraph from Paris to New York.

Roussel: Ahun Coal Mines

Roy de Loulay: France-fire.

Say (Leon): Madrid-Zaragoza-Alicante Railways.
Coal mines and foundries of Aveyron.

Scherer: The Real Estate Company.

Scheurer-Kestner: Colouring materials from Saint-Denis.

Tesserenc de Bort: Paris-Lyon-Mediterranean Railways
ranée.— Madrid-Zaragoza-Alicante Railways.
— Mines of Mokta-el-Hadid.

6. Speculation 1882

In the Chamber of Deputies, it was much worse;
nearly one hundred deputies were beholden to finance speculator, in the same way as the senators.

Here is the list of names, compiled according to the same system-
Theme:

Achard: Foncière-vie.

Arnoult: Acclimatization Garden.

Audiffred: General Family Fund.

Baïhaut (Charles): French Fisheries Society.

Bert (Paul): Central bank for labor and savings.

Bischoffsheim: Banker.

Bontoux: Financial company of Paris.

Bouchet (Brutus): Popular savings. — Zodiac [insurance].

Bourgeois: National Progress (insurance). — Commercial Bank Commercial and industrial. — Franco-Algerian Company. — Malfidano Mines.

Bouthier: Crédit Lyonnais.

Brame: Forges of Châtillon-Commentry,

Bravet: Egyptian financial broker.

Brelay: National progress (insurance).

Brice (René): General Family Bank. – Mortgage Credit and Agricultural credit of Algeria. – Land credit of France. – Credit French-Canadian land. – Western Railways.

Cazeaux: Crédit mobilier. – Immeubles de France.

Christophle: Land credit. – Briouse at La Ferté-Macé.

Cibiel: Coal mines and foundries of Aveyron.

Constans: Former industrialist in Spain.

Couturier: Colonial land credit.

Danelle-Bernardin: Wassy in Saint-Dizier.

Delaporte: Franco-Egyptian Bank.

Desprez: Providence-accidents.

Develle: Commercial and Industrial Bank. – Compagnie French-Algerian.

Dufour (baron): Franco-Algerian company.

Durand: The Metropolis.

Durieux: Dyle and Bacalan Construction Company.

Etienne: Central bank for labor and savings.

Faure: Union-life.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 7

Ferry (Charles): Fire confidence. – Franco-Egyptian Bank yours.

Gaillard: Bank of France.

Gautier: Orleans Railway.

Gavini: Transatlantic Bank. – Transatlantic Company.

Gérard (Baron): Western Railways. – Company of Waters. – Coal mines of the Haute-Loire.

Germain (Henri): Crédit Lyonnais – Foncière Lyonnaise. – Austrian roads. – Northern Spain. – Gas of Marseille. – Châtillon-Commentry Forges. – Houil-Montrambert valleys.

Gévelot: Metallurgy and supplies.

Giraud: Bank of Algeria.

Girerd: Central Bank of Commerce.

Guichard: Maritime Shipping.

Hérédia: Central bank for labor and savings.

Hovius: Maritime Bank.

Janzé (de): World-accidents.

Jolibois: Transatlantic bank.

Kergorlay: The Real Estate Company. – Real Estate of France. – Park of Passy.

Leaving: National progress (insurance). – Financial insurance candle.

Lalanne: Bank of French Guiana. – General Company of omnibus.

Laroche-Joubert: Industrialist.

Lavieille: National Union.

Lebaudy: Speculator, banker.

Lecomte: Forges and foundries of Santander and Quiros.

Lelièvre: Havre-Paris-Lyon Shipping Company

Lepère: Central bank for labor and savings.

Levavasseur: Maritime sphere.

Lévêque: Crédit foncier de France.

Lever: World-fire.

Martin: New Union.

Mauger: Commercial and Industrial Bank. – Company Franco-Algerian. – Mines of Malfidano.

Mauguin: Hérault Railways.

Mercier: Fire safety.

Mir: Crédit foncier de France.

Nadaud: Central bank of labor and savings.

8. Speculation 1882

Osmoy (Count of): Pierrelatte Canal.

Pagès: Mines of Bully-Grenay.

Passy: Central bank for labor and savings. – Confidence-Fire. – Colonial land credit. – Industrial credit and commercial.

Pellet (Marcelin): Central Bank of Commerce.

Pénicaud: Bank of France.

Perier (Casimir): Docks and warehouses of Le Havre.

Plichon: Mines of Bully-Grenay.

Chicken (Marius): The Zodiac.

Reille (Baron): Eastern Railways. – Company of Waters. – Waters of the suburbs of Paris. – Forges and foundries deries d'Alais.

Renault (Leon): The two unions of the French General Credit Bank (400 shares). – State Railways.

Rey: Time-life. – Marseilles Credit Society.

Richard: From Bône to Guelma.

Riotteau: Maritime Bank.

River: Central-life. – Crédit foncier de France. – Sub-

Robert: Union-fire.

Roche: Omnibus boats.

Rochette (de la): Commentry-Fourchambaul. – Coal Mines from Saint-Etienne.

_ Rousseau: Gas from Mulhouse.

Rouvier: Auxiliary railway company.

Royer: Rive-de-Gier coal mines.

Roys (Marquis of): Fives-Lille Company

Savary (Charles): Bank of Lyon and the Loire.

Silhol: Railways from Alais to the Rhône. – Railways me-French customs.

Soubeyran (de): The Real Estate Company. – Discount Bank. – Im-Furniture from France. – Austrian Land Credit. – Che-iron mines of Asluria-Galicia-Leon.

Sourigues: Financier; former administrator of Paris cars and of the Transatlantic Company.

Tallon: French company for reporting and deposits.

Tézenas: New Union. – Naval forges and steelworks and railways.

Thomas: Discount counter.

Tirard: Mines of Uruguay.

bigitized by Google

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 9

Trowel: France-fire. – Linen industry trading post.

Valon (de): French Telegraph Company from Paris to New-York.

Villain: Western Algeria.

That being said, will it be understood that the Chamber and the Senate, after having allowed all the palijudicial authorities, have finally thrown themselves into the arms of the old financial feudalism, trained that they were towards it by their common sympathy for the double parasitism of usury and Speculation?

In the first few days of the year, everyone
The official was jubilant; it was the eve of a
A huge financial panic, and nobody saw it coming.
except, perhaps, the clan of Eastern Jews, who knew in advance that, under the name of the national party-
In Egypt, a comedy was about to be performed in Cairo on January 3rd.

It should be noted that, almost every year, in the first quarter, the financiers, the true Kroumirs of savings, find a way to do a raZzia.

This year, the General Union was supposed to provide them
Poccasion.

I said that nobody foresaw a catastrophe financial; here is the proof:

Clément Juglar had doctorally predicted, around October 1881, that "in a year or eighteen months", a financial crisis would inevitably erupt candle.

So for the moment, we could be reassured.

L.

10. Speculation 1882

For his part, Master Leroy -Beaulieu was listing the the finest pearls of his capitalist dialectic.
The man from the Institute demonstrated in the Economist French and in its rambling patois, that all was good; that the civilized world saved annually-10 to 12 billion; that in France alone, we were setting aside two billion, not counting one one and a half billion repayments by draws;
that he also saw with satisfaction the proliferation of the in-

laughter, that the capital called for by these companies was "submitted..., for the most part, as "compensation for sale or transfer price, to the individual industrialist who left the company; and He added, still without laughing: "There is not a absorption, but simply a displacement of capital.

To which I will simply reply that this These are the arguments of scoundrels, and that the pick-pocket which, on the omnibus, silently flows its hand in my pocket to pass my wallet currency in his own, can, to the same degree, de- to declare seriously, "that there is no absorption here- Lion, but a move!

To echo Leroy-Beaulieu, the Economist From London exclaimed at the same time: CII there is no collapse is to be feared; "the capital that one believers absorbed simply act like the soldier of the circus... »

And the Englishman ended with the same refrain: "He This is simply a transfer of capital.

The most serious thing is that, as he himself notes- even a specialist in the service of finance: "These bistissa hs Google

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 11

opinions, formulated in the first days of January four, found many members!

Meanwhile, the rulers continued the dis- allocation of places: de Courcel went to Berlin, . de Chaudordy in St. Petersburg, and, despite the cries, J.-J. Weiss became a civil servant in the Affairs foreign.

It is true that there was a risk of a worried glance from the side of Challemeil-Lacour, ambassador to London; but Well! We had to cross the Channel.

On the other hand, Roustan, the Tunisian plenipotentiary, emerged somewhat bruised from his legal discussion with Rochefort was hurrying back to Tunis... Bah! there

Like salt water washes away reputations!

Hovering above these things, Gambetta, forced to take a step forward, he thought of this folly: read the program: issuance, conversion, repurchase.

But he wanted, first of all, to revise the laws constitutional and to install for this purpose, very pro-chainement, the grand national congress in Versailles. But the legislative session was due to open on January 10th.

Moreover, everything was fine; in the senatorial elections in the trials, the Republicans had just won 25 seats. The Prefect of the Seine, Hérold, had just died just in time for his succession to fall to Charles Floquet.

As for the people, always good and stupid, if they 'was thinking about the legacy of his dead, it wasn't for To live by it, but only to die by it, and, precisely as they had just gathered to celebrate the anniversary Following Blanqui's death, he was going to offer his shoulders to a few sabrades all the more sinister that they were distributed in the field of rest.

12. Speculation 1882

It was amidst these discords that it resonated Suddenly the double funeral bell of the stock exchange and the ministry.

Indeed, the first panics of the OAIICE date back to from January 15th to 17th and, on the 26th of the same month, under under the guise of a political pretext, the Gam- cabinet Bella spilled milk.

To make the infernal maneuver perfectly clear who had just succeeded, I must specify a few points.

The financial program of the Gambetta ministry had as its object, according to Al-'s own words ain-Targé, "to ensure democratic politics and "Progressive, with an unshakeable financial foundation."

To that end, we wanted to proceed with a broadcast public to obtain the necessary funds to be used for the repurchase, at least partial, of the roads iron; at the same time, by converting 5%, we wanted to achieve an interest rate reduction in order to make less expensive | registration of new annuities, natural consequence of the projected emission.

In fact, it was, as always, a matter of asking to the public money to reimburse the public; or, better still: to change the distribution of monetary stocks, taking from some to give to others.

It was creating the same back-and-forth motion as the one which the coffers of the circles grow. However, in organi- In this capitalist system, the kitty is called: La Iaute Bank.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 13

However, she was not well-regarded at court; Furthermore, we had talked about a public broadcast, that is to say direct appeal to savings, outside of intermediaries Official diary of financiers. – That was unacceptable!

It is important to know, in fact, that when the State does not He doesn't take them for accomplices, he's dealing with financiers disastrous competition. – And, precisely, he had airs! He claimed to keep everything for him!

You can well imagine that capital could not tolerate such audacity, especially since usu- laughter at transport and vampire of commerce, he was not in the mood to have his farm taken from him general, called: Monopoly of the railways iron.

Therefore, and knowing full well that the mass is crazy enough to study politics in the rating of the Stock Exchange, he sought to create a stock market panic siere.

But how to do it? The Havas Agency had exhausted, without appreciable success, all the false news news items relating to Germany. It was therefore necessary to find something else.

Here's what we found:

Camondo and Soubeyran had known how to "surround" the area around Gambetta; he let them do it; Not seduced, perhaps, but lulled to sleep by a dinner, sometimes by a more or less hunting party well herded, which gave her the illusion of playing to the Prince of Wales.

Lebaudy, in particular, who had undertaken a campaign to raise prices on Suez shares had managed to make him believe that he was holding this to give the English a good thrashing and that, at the same time, Rothschild (whose Anglo-Egyptian policy was (well-known) was very upset. In short, Lebaudy was doing patriotic finance! You had to be Gambetta, to give in to such a sign!

44 # BITTERNESS 1889

He was probably unaware that Suez's shares lend themselves more easily to intrigue than others of the increase. because, periodically, the compagnie publishes progressive recipes and that, finally- In fact, profits are always increasing. This That's not a reason, I've explained it at length. to continually increase the value of the liter; but The habit is formed, thanks to the ignorance of a A deluded public; and so illogical, so odious, even, Whatever the case may be, this habit has become ingrained.

On the other hand, following the example of the General Union, and to compete with Crédit Lyonnais, the MP Charles Savary, well regarded by the government had created, as early as 1880, a Bank of Lyon and of the Loire with a capital of 25 million, soon to be increased to 50 million. He had chosen the capital of the Rhône. |

The political nature of the General Union did not allow it to offer its services to large ministry, but it was a different story for a institutions such as the Banque de Lyon et de la Loire, led by a "politically correct" person.

There was almost immediate struggle between the two states blissements; first they both climbed with incredible speed, the high peaks of the coast official; then soon they met on the Austrian ground; and while one was coming to obtain the so-called privileged Landerbank, the other was also going to obtain the privilege of a bank maritime.

I don't know what to think about the role played by the Austrian ministers in this affair (the suicide) of Mr. de Wimpffen, which I recount at the end of the year will give me the opportunity to dig a little deeper this question); the fact remains that the privileges themselves—saying they were agreed upon, but which were not, were contested, that consents then refusals followed, and the same blow already dealt to the Union general without much success, was directed against the The Bank of Lyon and the Loire, which could not resist.

The panic in Lyon was terrifying; shortly afterwards, It spread to Paris; then the famous day of January 17th.

Well! Faced with this hurricane, the point of The departure is in Austria and the devastating shock is Made in France, I can't help but make bringing things closer and reminding me that, as As I've already explained, the true "emperor" of Au—The cheat is called Rothschild.

In Austria, and in matters of society, the word privilege does not express the idea of a monopoly; a Prioulège is a "decree", a "diploma". A Imperial, royal, privileged bank is exposed to competition from another equally privileged bank legislated, royal, etc. The "privileged" Landerbank, She, too, is proof of that. Charles Savary ran one more adventure: having obtained the concession He was suddenly refused a loan from a maritime bank. Approval of the statutes.

So what was it? What was this?

46 Speculation 1882

Maritime bank availability of such extraordinary value? I I will explain it in a few words.

Since 1872, work had been actively carried out on

The work was completed on January 1, 1882.
The operation was about to begin. The great transit was going to be diverted from French lines; Marseille Italy was about to be stripped of its territory by Genoa; Italy, in strong good relations with Germany, would benefit from it. That being said, the same financial patriotism, which had inspired Bontoux with the idea of concentrating the communities Eastern nations by Austria, suggested to Savary to oppose Trieste to Genoa. It was clear that the breakthrough of the Saint-Gotthard Pass could, to the same degree, favoring Italian lines as well as those of the north and southern Austria; it was also clear that the idea of providing these latter with a maritime station time, used to develop their business, basically of the Adriatic, constituted a capital combination-smart list. For a long time, in fact, the Southern Railway Company of the Au-cheating (vulgarly called Zombards) worked to improve the port of Trieste; therefore a bank maritime, coming there to add its contribution millions, certainly allowed for the establishment of a base of the most sustainable operations.

Unfortunately for Savary, as for Bontoux, there were on the Board of Directors Southern Austrian railways a fort esca-dron of Jews and, among them, four Rothschilds, nor Nothing more, nothing less.

These biblical robbers certainly weren't going to allowing an "unbeliever" to panic with his millions the balance of their intimate combinations.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 47

If, one day, some power were to crush Genes in favor of Trieste, it is to them that they reserve-were responsible for designating, choosing, and above all to help this power.

But they needed Prussia.

Indeed, if Austria-Hungary is a Roths-fiefdom child; if Rothschild reigns by right in London, at Paris and Vienna are not the same as Berlin. where anti-Semitism had just reawakened.

In Berlin, Rothschild is forced to hide under Bismarck's comment. This one, you see, has... boots and when he takes the fancy to lift them at a certain height, it is only through Bleichræder that he makes them "touch" pro-love Rothschild's father.

This is enough for the latter, who finds his dignity healthy and saves, provided it is rubbed with "a
"pon crosse brofite", marvelous ointment for semi-yours!
Is it any wonder, now, that we see "dis-
"Solder" Savary and crush Bontoux?

It is true that in pure moral terms it is justice. What-What were they doing in that mess? Why this rage to tread on the hegemonic territory Jehovah's Witnesses?

Pirates, they attacked privateers; the cor-
The saires have defeated them; what does that matter to the
The moral of the story? Pirates they are, pirates they remain; as the others are and remain cor-sares.

Only this individual battle led to

18. Speculation 1882

disasters and, as often happens after wars between states, it is the taxpayer, that is to say the people who bear all the consequences.

However, the public had paid 25 million to the Bank from Lyon and the Loire to form the famous maritime bank: as soon as he learned of the refusal of homo-lodging, he ran to claim his money; it was the final blow.

On January 17, 1882, the Bank of Lyon and of the Loire closed its ticket offices: on January 19, the pathe nique, which began in Lyon, reached its peak in Paris.

That is to say, then, 6 public probity! we live
A CROWD OF PEOPLE, HONEST PEOPLE, THEY SAY, WELL CONVINCED THAT THE PAPER SCRAPES, WHICH THEY
THEY HAD STUFMED THEIR POCKETS, THE THREE WERE LOSING QUARTERS OR THEIR ENTIRE VALUE, ARE SPECIFIED-PITER AT THE STOCK EXCHANGE LOOKING, QUICKLY AND QUICKLY, FOR THE

THEIR PLACE.

This is the honest trade that Jews and Christians have conducted.
Look: the priests of the General Union, like the deacons of the Bank of Lyon and the Loire.

We didn't feel much pity for the latter, but
The first ones were presented as martyrs.

Let us examine the management staff; I see there some aon board the Marquis de Plœuc, a former sub-governor member of the Bank of France and administrator of the Ottoman Bank; he was the most astute of all, because he resigned almost at the beginning.

I can still see Mr. Léon Riant there, belonging, di-
He senses his flatterers, among the Parisian upper class, and a former member of parliament; however, his family's fortune is almost entirely derived from speculation on grounds to which the scandalous Docks-Napoleon affairs, land of the Saint-Lazare station, where the Pereires, the Cuzin-Legendre and so many others, which gave rise to sensational trials during which a te-

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 49

I made the following deposition:

– to the commission of 78,000 francs that I have "Touched by Mr. Riant for the sale of his land,
"was not intended for me alone: it was assigned "to many intermediaries, to journalists € in large quantities.

This demonstrates, at the very least, that in the fa-A thousand laughing people know how to speculate and subsidize the leaders of public opinion.

I also find, among the founders-administrators-bankers, bankers who know perfectly well what the official rating and the banking market.

I also find shopkeepers or former residents there Merchants from Lyon and Marseille. Among them, a former glass merchant, long licensed on the quayside in Marseille, and known as the Roazan's name.

she who had become the widow of the Prince of Polignac; but as it would have been hard for a princess, by contract, to then simply call himself "Rozan", the A devout merchant addressed the Pope in order to obtain from him, in exchange for money, that the Jew's daughter could carry the title of Roman countess – to which the pope willingly agreed. – Later, this same Rozan became administrator, alongside Soubeyran, at the Foncière company.

20. Speculation 1882

I still see among the founders of the Union, Rostand, member of the Chamber of Commerce of Marseille; he was no naive person either, that one – there whose family and whose name appeared in boards of directors of several companies financial institutions and, among others, industrial credit and commercial of the Franco-Egyptian Bank, and of Docks of Marseille.

He was no naive person, either, not in politics. nor in finance, than the Prince of Broglie; to this double From this point of view, we should be able to make fire speak Duke Decazes and the all-too-lively Baron Hirsch.

A naive fellow! Viscount Emmanuel d'Harcourt, if Well placed to hear everything at the time of May 16th? The journalists Mayol de Lupé and Eugène were naive. Veillot?

I don't want to lengthen this list, but by studying very closely the composition of the entire board of directors of the General Union, I do not finds absolutely no one whose naiveté is... nisse the stuff of a martyr.

Bontoux was also credited with a patriotic plan. tick.

We have seen in this man's work a reactionary anti-Semitic tion, while the truth finds simply a war between Jews, wanting to seize public wealth. The famous patriotic plan of Bontoux has since been taken over by establishments financiers, who are anything but Catholic; now, do we know who succeeded Bontoux in that part of this plan the most formidable for internal peace, I I mean the one concerning the Bal- peninsula

First, there was Bleichröder, the banker from Bismarck, and then the Ottoman Bank group Anglo-German Jewish-Judaizing group where I find of Plœuc, the resigning president.

Bontoux's plan was perfectly reported to Bismarck's attention, in the German brochure published in Munich in 1883, and which I have already quoted.

The author of this booklet recounts the entire history of Eastern railways – and, on that subject, I must to say that never, in any French newspaper, I have never seen Baron Hirsch treated so severely, and just as accurately, moreover, as the writer does mand.

Here is how this writer summarizes the plan of Bontoux:

"The director of the General Union was considering or-"greenly for a long time to gather in his "main all means of communication by che-
"mins of iron between Western or Central Europe and "the East, and this in order to understand the intentions of a
"Austrian policy of revenge."

As we can see, there was patriotism there-trickster, but I don't quite understand where the pa-French triolism.

It will perhaps be said that serving Austrian policy female dog against Germany, that was doing, in 1881, this that should have been done in 1866. Unfortunately, in 1881, too specifically to serve Austrian interests it was resurrecting the Austro-Russian antagonism in its most dangerous aspect: the Balkans and the Constantinople.

I also know that Bontoux intended to work for the Russian railways, that was

29. Speculation 1882

said and written; but whoever looks at the map of of Austrian origin, wanting to dedicate himself to cons-to destroy railways belonging to the Russians, must be immediately suspected and, consequently, re-pushed by Russia.

So, if indeed Bontoux intended to to promote an Austro-French alliance, difficult, in
In any case, since the Austro-German alliance was In fact, his intention, at the same time, was detrimental.
to any idea of a Russian alliance and reduced France to choose between England or Germany. However, as public opinion, in Germany as well as in France is not yet sufficiently purified to com-
What reservoir of strength, and consequently of peace, should be taken?
would contain the conjunction of the German centers and French, Bontoux's work threw France into the arms of England, that is to say, of its worst enemy.

The main argument of the Union's defenders general consists of invoking the distribution of 70 0/0 announced by the trustee of its bankruptcy; on that point, Isi triumph and exclaim: "See if any of the "Erlanger's companies gave the slightest distribution"
"tion!"

Alas! It is not because the affairs of 'Erdiapers were less good than they were, they had nothing left; it is because, by not stopping their creation-the author, we gave him time to do everything disappear; therefore, we only have the right to say that Erlanger should have been arrested the way he was arrested Bontoux; there, and there alone, lies the truth.

It might be said that Bontoux, left at liberty,

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 93

would have sorted out his own affairs. I reply: no; these business was so inflated that it would died all alone, because there is a proportion defined between the melallis supply that we
We call it capital, and the product that this supply-Business can allow you to create. Business, like Men have stomachs prone to plethora.
or anemia. For any public limited company, a capital-
If there is no increased tal, it's indigestion, and if there isn't Evacuation is fatal.

deaths, it's because bankruptcy or arrest have produces the evacuation; this is so true that those who They collected them and immediately took care of them. to reduce. The whole remedy was there, even according to the logic of bourgeois financial processes.

Now, what I say about the General Union, I can...
Also, regarding the Bank of Lyon and the Loire.

Thus, after having dissected both,
I remain, quite simply, facing one of these speculative ventures which, periodically, concentrate capital in the hands of a few and ruin the mass of the public; but we will see, in the numerical summaries of the current year, that the Crash from 1882 resulted in the displacement of 5 billion, just like the Prussian invasion of 1870:

{ In the meantime, here is, raised to the beginning and to the
At the end of January 1882, the prices of the main traded stocks companies operating in the public funds market:

'Higher Values Lower Values Me
RODLE 8 0/0 error 86.05 82.00 2.05
Annuity 5 0/0.....,....., 414.90 118.95 1.65

Bank of France.....,..... B,985,00 65,025,00 960,00

24 Speculation 1882

Faced with such a debacle, the high bank exulted! Go ahead and do a public broadcast and buy back the railways! she said, on rail-lant. What remains now of the trilogy?
Issuance, conversion, repurchase?

Gambetta and Allain-Targé watched this carnage with a bewildered look. Asked to involve the justice-
They had refused. A lingering unease remained.
High finance: were Bontoux and Savary
Were they really dead? Wouldn't their shareholders be...
How to toughen up against bad luck? And respond with a few blows of aggression? Yet, assemblies were con-summed, it was necessary to avoid even an attempt at recovery.

professes for the "unfortunate" of the General Union.
 I have not hidden the contempt that I have inspired the methods of their adversaries; this-health, I had placed myself solely from the point of view of the morality, which has nothing in common with the point
 From a political point of view. But, if I enter, in my turn,
 In this last line of thought, I cannot disagree-muler that if the head of the major ministry – who had once denied the existence of a social question – had been less ignorant of capital organizations lists and, above all, less surrounded by ravenous appetites
 He could have made some useful pronouncements about the great kings.
 of capital, a blow from the terrible club that he took charge of the General Union affair.

Mortgage loan	4,770.00	14,520.00	250.00
SUEZ collect	3,512.50	4,910.00	1,602.50
General Union.....	3,030.00	000.00	2,530.00

Bank of Lyon and the Loire 4,850.00, 4,850.00

Fat
,

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 25

Indeed, he could then make use of Semitism Catholic to seriously wound Jewish Semiticism daïque; then striking them one after the other, one against
 The other one, 1 liter, could have wiped them both out.

It was simple! A minister who knew a little bit about finance would not have taken four months to execute this temporary sanitation work, easily sustained likely to become definitive by the simple introduction-tion, to the Bank of France and to Crédit Foncier, of some modifications, even limited to the per-administrative sounding board of these institutions.

Furthermore, and since our French laws, which have codified the arbitrary nature of the actions, making it possible to arrest Bontoux, as we had arrested Mirés, a great minister one could have thought that there were just as many reasons for arrest Rothschild, Erlanger, Hirsch, Camondo Bamberger, Ephrussi, Lebaudy, Gunz:bourg, and many others, if only to seize this opportunity-then release while waiting for something better. Alas! if we

If that had been done, how many strange things would have happened?
discoveries?

But go to the bourgeoisie, like the are all our leaders, advising such a person audacity, without their atavistic tendency as decorated lackeys does not wake up, blinding and terrifying them:
"Touching His Lordship!" Ho! And His Lordship,
You know, it's anyone who is full of a lot gold, even when it's Rothschild or someone sinister vultures, about which I wrote earlier names.

Bourgeois, I tell you, and consequently lackeys, these republicans themselves who, in order to make the

VOLUME II. 2?

96 Speculation 1882

change on their degradation, some joke-times the exaggerated respect the English had for their queen.

In truth, I would really like to know what is more odiously ridiculous, or to bellow "God save the Queen, » or to ensure, on every occasion, « that the law
"It hurts the people, but saves Rothschild."

The powerful ministry wanted neither to see nor to know.
Allain-Targé, a modest bourgeois, blushing at the
In view of the infamous and specious acts, he hid his face in his hands; but, through his spread fingers, he silently followed the unfolding plot, of which, Drumont wrote the Anecdotal section in his book: France
Jewish in the eyes of public opinion.

While the internal difficulties were growing, the external
The riveur was not exempt. The negotiations relatives to a new trade treaty between the France and England were industrious; at their
In this regard, the Times had cast its bittersweet note, in involving Egypt and the possibility of an intervention Anglo-French.

It was in the midst of this uproar that the cabinet
Gambetta staked everything on the famous question of the list ballot.

He was defeated and resigned.

From now on we will see the results of the underground work that had been done with a view to making impossible, if necessary, a vote in favor of railway buyout.

From now on, the siege is being placed around the consciences: the state of the finances provides a pretext admirable.

How to emphasize loan projects and

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 27

Conversion? In the face of the Crash! – such is the name that the high bank attributed to his triumph.

Moreover, to add insult to injury, she apologized toyailt:

"It's a great misfortune," she said, "which he We must resign ourselves to it, alas!

However, we will soon learn that, by means of 120 francs per year, the deputies and senators will acquire (?) the right to travel on all networks of France, according to their whims; the companies, lovers of universal suffrage and, even, de-Democrats, known for their views, want elected officials to be able to more easily visit their constituents, while, through list voting, Gambetta wanted to remove them from gner: proh pudor/!

And, having thus bought the vote of the two assemblies– Even if they are struggling, the companies will still find the audacity to stigmatize them in the reports that they will send to their shareholders!

Meanwhile, starting January 26th, the major minis– The father was dead; on the 30th, a new cabinet was formed, and on February 1st Bontoux was arrested.

The new cabinet which, through this arrest chosen, she displayed her Jewish livery, exhibited it more brazenly further evidenced by entrusting the finances to the man Léon Say, rue Laffitte.

To make this scandal go away, they had given the foreign to the engineer Freycinet, man of major works. To add insult to injury, the rest of the group included Jules Ferry, Varroy, Goblet, Humbert, Tirard, Billot, Jauréguiberry, de Mahy and Cochery.

28 Speculation 1882

As for the program, it is Léon Say who will... formulate and lay the fact in the following way: not emission, neither conversion nor buyback.

However, all was not lost on Gambetta. He had sensed the betrayal; his downfall and what he awaited or around, had been a revelation and a lesson; overturned, he immediately had the fixed idea of recommending to begin his old ways, with this goal: the hope of revenge.

That's why high finance wasn't entirely reassured; only the death of the tribune-opportunism/ would be likely to allow him a final triumph. – Strangely enough, death... will obey as the Crash obeyed him.

Meanwhile, barely in power, Léon Say hastened to act, that is, to hunt down his enemies. enemies, to favor his good friends, to come to the aid of his supporting characters more or less affected by the game and, finally, to buy off his opponents.

The first fact was revealed by its unprecedented speed. with whom, contrary to all her usual habits, Justice was used against the enemies of the clan Jewish, dissolving, nullifying, stopping, crushing everything related to the General Union or the Bank of Lyon and the Loire.

The second fact manifested itself in the borrowing of 80 million in favor of the agents' union exchange.

These poor and unfortunate agents had, themselves also, – forced by their monopoly – bought, sold, etc... the papers of the unbelievers.

Once the infidels have fallen, their papers were losing; but if the public could, and even more so

Losing was only fair! But the agents of Never change! They were sacred! You see—
For you, scandals were breaking out in Paris as well as in Lyon; Multiple, complex trials arose from all spoke; we didn't know where it might be stop.

There was no money involved when it came to that.
to buy back the railways; but as soon as it comes to to lend 80 million to the stockbrokers, there was Money, and lots of it, and fast?

Where did it come from? Certainly from where the Crash had it centralized. To see this, one only needs to summarize the loan conditions: it was issued by means of 160 vouchers worth 500,000 CHAGUN FRANCS and, naturally, covered immediately.

Is that clear enough? Léon Say, Chief of Finance and, consequently, Grand Master of the court, facilita, protected and recommended this operation, which was crucial, all at once, all the agents, at the whim of a few top bankers.

I draw attention to this spontaneous assistance granted to an entire financial corporation, very little appealing in itself, because it will serve wonderfully fortunately serves as a foil to capitalist cynicism, which will soon erupt during the crises of Bessèges and Monceau-les-Mines.

I would like, however, to clarify that the 80 million lions advanced by high finance have, in fact, been paid for by the public-taxpayer, in a thousand forms various, but, above all, in the form of an increase in the real estate capital. I remind you here that, during In 1882, real estate capital grew by more than 6 billion.

t°

30 Speculation 1882

In short, the loan has been finalized and the legal process has begun, Moloch-Baal triumphed, and then, if Léon Say, the

Moreover, he would only be able to traffic in it more freely. the corridors; that is, in fact, what happened to him; but, before detailing this period of the year that I'm studying, I have to take several other things into account circumstances.

The scholarly press, that of the Economist which, little some time ago, he had reassured the population, his language changed abruptly.

I will not risk numerous quotes; I will simply point out the new theme developed— lopped by the extraordinary Paul Leroy-Beaulieu.

I showed it some time ago, as the reader will remember, thriving to see so many ano— companies being created nymes and to follow, with a delighted eye, the movement capital, in full and even a hundredfold. paid to the industrialists who were selling their affair.

Well, this official palinodist meme, as soon as its My friend Léon Say came to power and began to write:

"What the great companies used to be"
"€ of adventurers and brigands who extorted the € merchants and looted them, the joint-stock companies
"They are today; not all of them, no doubt,
"Many of them emailed me."

Obviously, as you might expect, it wasn't about neither the railway companies, nor the com— company of stockbrokers, n' of Crédit foncier, nor many others, but only com— newly created companies. The

However, it was among these latter that Gambetta had sought support; it was with them that he had pre— tense to beat the old bank, while, in passing— 'Sant, he threw some bones to his camarilla with teeth long!

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 31

As it was, above all, dominated by the "politician— nerie, » having retained, in fact, finance or economics— nomie, as Helvétius said: "the actions of "Man's desires are determined by pleasure, by

He did a lot of actions while giving them pleasure.
and by trading selfishness for their money.

Furthermore, undoubtedly also dominated by this sub-to come: that the great fortune of the same Helvétius had emerged from successful innovations in the area of
He had surrounded himself with quinine and ipecacuanha.
a bunch of financial doctors, and sincerely believed,
Thus, to heal France. And that was good.

That's right! The proof is that, when he wanted to testify-to express his contempt for those of his former subordinates having been determined to abandon it, by the pleasure and the selfishness of certain rising stocks, he he disdainfully called them "sub-veterinarians."
- _ Fallen from official power in his former dicoccult construction, he sought other means of influence. |

On the one hand, he needed a more widely circulated newspaper.
than the French Republic; on the other hand, 11
He needed some large financial institution, from old date, well-equipped and less risky in its methods were not those of the Discount Bank, the real estate companies and the mortgage bank with their Soubeyran; nevertheless, he did not want to abandon-this one who, in the year 1882, played another

32 Speculation 1882

a fairly important role, a natural consequence, moreover, of the struggles that I have previously narrated.

However, in terms of the press, Gambetta had chosen the Petit Journal and its group; in fact, an institution financially, he wanted to have the Compa-
Parisian gas company.

As for Le Petit Journal, the operation
The projected plan was as follows:

In Paris, there was a bank called: Banque na-national, issuing house, equipped with 400 correspondents weights in provincial newspapers, having possessed for a moment the Universal Echo, having passed then into the hands of Girardin and Genty, who had added a large number to his portfolio of actions of the newspaper /a France and of Le Petit Journal.
However, this institution was scheduled to hold a meeting on April 12, 1882.
a general assembly; if we managed to be in

The former Board of Directors and, in its place, we have would elect a new one who, inspired by the ideas of Gambetta would exert, in his favor, the influence at- due to the possession of a large number of shares from Le Petit Journal, from the newspaper La France, etc.

It was, as we can see, a similar attempt to the one I mentioned when recounting the year 1877!

A union had been created for the acquisition of shares; at its head was Veil-Picard, a banker Jewish from Besançon, then administrators were appointed members of the Crédit foncier et agricole d'Algérie and of The Franco-Egyptian Bank.

However, it proved impossible to combine the shares.

Why and how? The newspaper La Lanterne will { See volume E, page 205.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 33

tell us, because it seems to be particularly good informed:

"The Gambettist gang," this newspaper said, "was not "having managed to seize the securities of the Bank na- "national than through reports with the complicity" "of stockbrokers who, completely forgetting the "charter under which they live, they are not used to" "than to see the advantages."

"The ministry was alarmed by these manipulations and has "summoned the stockbrokers' union to report them- "To peel (the agents) to their duty."

The ministry was, in reality, the Élysée Palace, which had threw fire and flame into his unofficial newspaper, La Peace, and who acted through the person of Daniel Wilson, former administrator of the National Bank- nale, currently Under-Secretary of State at the Ministry of the Interior Ministry of Finance, on which the union of stockbrokers.

The agents who had let the shares out had to bring them back in, and the hoped-for majority did not could manifest itself at the assembly.

This failure of the Gambettists provoked a series of epigrams in the Zntransigeant, the National Truth, the Century, which all, then, were doing, without doubt, the game of the Elysian vibrio, in hatred of the "dictator"; but the assessment which, read from a distance, seems, today, the most Pensane, is that of Peace:

"The maneuver failed," said this welfare recipient. "We'll see about that." We are satisfied, both for the press, including the Respectability is important to us, FOR MORA—"POLITICAL STATE OF THE COUNTRY!"

The irony was complete!

34 | Speculation 1882

But if Gambetta was justly punished for having Judaized and imitated his own detractors even in Even their dishonesty, it is no less true that the son-in-law's covert intervention was already very listened to, when he was only a few months old of "kinship".

The other campaign led by Gambetta, was also pitiful:

This was the Gas Company, in the personnel from which Gambettism counted many friends and also supporters.

The Paris City Council had undertaken to force the said company to lower the price of gas, what this one not only could, but had to: to do, without imposing any conditions. But, feudalism powerful, she disdained complaints and mo-audience satisfaction.

Now, which newspaper was more supportive of the claims-company actions? The same one who advocated, in the takeover, the end of the monopoly of the Company of railways and which, by a strange contradiction, defended that of the Gas Company, in approving in favor of it, the same argument he found it detestable in favor of others. But on that day-nal was:, a French Republic.

This questionable attitude earned him, moreover, some from Alphonse Humbert, the following sentence, vé-

"I admit I wouldn't mind knowing"
"How is it possible that the Gas Company
"defends its monopoly by reproducing the argument-
"Avoid those who claim to attack him!"

1 Intransigent, May 12, 1882.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 39

At the time these things were happening, the comedy Egyptian, which I announced at the beginning, elalt driven to tragedy by its organizers.

Egypt had never seen more troubled days.
that since the famous judicial reform carried out at profit from finance. Let us read its history: ja-but, even since Abbas Pasha (1849), there had been no had to deal with Egyptian troubles; not that The Khedives were models of virtue; but the people, accustomed to oriental ways, did not say Nothing. Everything had changed with the opening of the canal.
Suez.

In this regard, I have already analyzed the British aimsques; or what was going to happen was entirely the international result of designs and corruptions English tions.

England had resolved to take public-possession of Egypt, but alone and, this times, by getting rid of French control.

To achieve this goal, it was necessary to speculate on the oj1-French union, which had a marked aversion to anything that resembled a warlike expedition;
or, as English influence dominated the governments French citizens, the planned cooperation had a full success.

Suddenly, the existence of Egypt was invented what was called a national party. It was exact-the maneuver with which cosmo- Jewry politeness had, for years, bloodied the peninsula Balkan.

The aim there was to uproot, by massacring them, the Christian populations under the hated yoke of Turkey quiet; but in Egypt, while also employing the

30 Speculation 1882

D ne he dt tre

massacres!, we ended up invoking /a suzerain of the Porte, so that, if France intervenes-
As soon as she was born, it was immediately declared that she was awakening the Eastern question.

Our diplomats joined the plot, at instead of unmasking him, thus continuing the attitude shady dealings initiated by Decazes for the benefit of Rothschild since 18795*.

Soon the English fleet bombarded Alexandria
(July 11), but at the first cannon shot, the fleet French woman, who had accompanied her, to make a peaceful demonstration, had withdrawn; therefore after the massacres of Europeans attributed to the nationally, there was a bombardment of the establishments European operations carried out by the English fleet, the everything to protect European populations Ins-planted in Egypt!

The hero of the national comedy was called Arab.
He had, with unprecedented audacity and success, ac-Caparé the government of Egypt; only, at English cannonballs, which carried, he replied with Egyptian cannonballs, which politely sank into the ground, a few meters from the cannon.

We must reread, today, the curses uttered created by the English and French press "against this "Arabi scoundrel," to measure how much we have could make fun of public opinion.

And, indeed, this same Arabi, after having OCCupé the Suez Canal, thus giving the English the opportunity-if they were to do the same, after having simulated a leak,

1 The Alexandria massacres, June 11, 1882.

2 See volume I, page 137.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 31

and after having been solemnly condemned to death, was pardoned, then pompously installed in Ceylon by the English, who pay him a substantial pension.

of English occupation; since that time the financiers
English merchants are the masters there and, since the same
At the time, discussions still revolved around
The neutralization of the Suez Canal!

And why all this traffic?

Because the English parasites have an empire of India and the French parasites an Indo-Chinese, of which Suez is one of the gateways.

So, it's only for the appetites of these two parasitic minorities that the mass of children of people regimented in the army, are exposed to every moment to shed his blood and to double, triple, perhaps, the number of widows and orphans that the Moloch-Baal of capitalism devours ordinary-every year!

Yes, of course, the Suez Canal was a humane idea-native, but, as always, parasitism bour-Geois had transformed it into a weapon of destruction.
of ruin and death.

What he had seen, in this remarkable work,
it was only "a pretext, patriotic or chauvinistic"
"wine, to levy a tithe on the English navy"
"which would benefit French capitalists, while "Facilitating the traffic of the French navy."

Will I find it strange that the parasitism of English capital tends to evade the tithe?

No way! The brutal savagery of capital, their struggle for what they call the Life, is too in their essence to excite my astonishment.

VOLUME 3!

ñ
,
f
1
;
D
L
î
,
L1

*
"Huh." I

RON LE

38 Speculation 1882

However, I cannot without melancholy think that our civilization is so embryonic that we spend our lives arguing over corners of land which is of general use and to us massacre, instead of using it, together, at cost common!

However, while waiting for Europe to be a little civilized, I will limit myself to pointing out to the France, the danger of foreign policy would no longer exist for her if she had decapitalized. Consequently, it socialized its internal organization.

Therefore, by invoking only his right to legitimate self-defense, based on his right to live in inconspicuously testable, it could have, externally, such an attitude that this would inspire in him.

Placed in a collective setting amidst the other collections activities, it would acquire such power that, not only would peace be assured, but also that His example would influence other nations, because that they would see the wonderful effects of a internal socialization which, while paralyzing the appetites of the individual brute, always soiled to address and defend the needs of national labor.

It might be said that this would be to belittle Rothschild for the benefit of Jacques Bonhomme?

What does it matter! If it is, at the same time, raising honor and killing theft.

In any case, the Freycinet firm, after having been saved, once before, by a flight of The confidence shown to Sadi Carnot (May-June) was definitively... the vote was overturned (July 29th), following a refusal of funding. Desunés to protect the Suez Canal. A cabinet Duclerc succeeded him.

Moreover, there had been something to watch out for on all sides. intrigues, unrest or encroachments.

In Tunisia, there was always unrest; Consul Roustan had arrested (January), then released (April), Taïeb, brother of the Bey; then, although the protectorate had already been organized the previous year, it was necessary to reorganize it, to proceed with the takeover, so long denied just that, of the Tunisian debt (July 10), and finally, Naturally, to vote on appropriations.

In Algeria, what was called pacification was not finished; the southern Oran region was still in turmoil; the esparto grass workers, employed by a financial company French cariate, having been massacred the previous year—dent, it was necessary to compensate the company and also the government Spanish government, because the workers alfu—third were Spaniards (June).

In Dalmatia, Bosnia, and Herzegovina, the insurrections, which had ended in 1878, had never stopped and started again with even greater intensity (February).

Serbia, a principality reorganized by the treaty of Berlin and ruined by the General Union, was preparing its future wars, by transforming itself into a kingdom (March).

In Tonkin, the expedition begun the previous year—The battle led to the capture of Hanoi and paved the way thus future complications (April).

Meanwhile, the Duclere cabinet was formed, of which Léon Say was not a part, had displeased England; also, as was its custom, this one did she seek to sharpen all the [attacks] against France? colonial complications.

Madagascar provided the opportunity. I reported, in 1872, a detailed account of existing commercial relationships; the

40 Speculation 1882

English teasing, from 1882, consisted of re—to question the French protectorate (August–December December).

in 1862, by Napoleon III, "to procure certain "advantages to a French colonization company"
"Senegalese!" Indeed, these were the colonial banks.
niales, reorganized at that time, precisely at the day after the famous treaties of 1860, which had sacrificed French interests to those of England.

By virtue of treaties concluded by the Empire, the Fran-
The Spanish had the right to buy, sell, and lease and to exploit land throughout the territory of the Island.

Madagascar is larger than France.
but capitalist abuse must have naturally enlightened-the Malagasy; so they had rendered a law, "punishing with ten years in irons any individual "Who would sell land to a European?"

The French consul made some observations, then withdrew, and the matter entered the diplomatic domain.
tick.

Immediately, the English press, with the same pen who helped in the extermination of the Irish Fenians, threw fire and flames against the "cynical" plans of these Frenchmen, who dared to seize the lands of Malagasy people!

These people, duped, went to London to solicit the protection of these pure philanthropists, and the Foreign-
The Office reportedly took advantage of this to demand abstention.
French with regard to Egypt.

It is believed that all these events had was exploited by speculation.

t André Daniel: L'année politique, 1882, page 322.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 41

In 1882, as before, there were... disorderly movements, this allowed the pre-those who had saved the corporation of agents change, to reimburse oneself a first time, on the public stock exchange, pending its being so, a second sometimes, by the debtors themselves.

It is clear that the crash and the price increases of the year did not present a favorable environment for The creation of new companies. Also the issues-those of 1881, while remaining above those from 1876.

The financiers demanded no less from the public confidence 630 million including businesses colonial, naturally, and some foreign affairs-managers moved a large part.

{ Here are the officially listed and rated courses on the key values:

Year 1882: Higher Lower
D DOS in se 84.50 79.05
1 0 LP ASS ER RE 118.47 413.95
Ita. sir desire 91.02 84.20
EUPÉ datent nes 14.75 10.00
EgyDliens sshatiimes divine 365.00 240.00
OEUDISION Essen ne se dede 455.00 305.00
SUBL axle 3,912.50 4,940.00
Parisian gas company,... 4,690.00 4,510.00
Mortgage loan 4,792.50 4,300.00
General Union..... 3,030.00 325.00
Bank of France..... 5,985.00 4,825.00
Crédit Lyonnais 897.50 545.00
Orleans Railway..... 4,365.00 1,190.00
Northern Railway 2,430.00 1,885.00
2 Issues from 1882: |

State or city loans... 6 million 4/10

Credit institutions 202 – 6/10

Railways and industrial companies 421 – 3/10

Total,..... . 630 million 3/40

42 Speculation 1882

For example, I find, among the new creations-tions, the Pacific Shipping Company (6 million lions); (and, in this regard, I would like to point out the passing of a law modifying the maritime mortgage to facilitate the speculation), the Corinth Canal (30 million), the Egyptian Mortgage Credit (11 million), the Company general transatlantic (5 million), the Construc-naval vessels (5 million), the Panama Canal

(150 million), the Ottoman Bank (20 million); this one was eager to cash in on the profits of a con- recently signed agreement with Turkey.

Amidst the speculation of financiers and speculators sterile parliamentary pronouncements, the notion of reforms Social issues had occupied people's minds less than ever.

However, a well-intentioned member of parliament had en- attempted to legislate on professional unions. Thinking they had discovered a way to balance the reciprocal claims of employers and workers, This deputy, raised in bourgeois doctrines, did not saw no other method than the struggle for orga- to manage life and, having noticed the inferiority of the sa- opposed to the capitalists, had striven to em- to brigade the forces and to settle the conditions of the battle.

The House had passed the law to give itself, In the eyes of the public, a liberal, trans- Moreover, regarding the future, because the Senate, For sure, it would amend it, and it's certainly not for a workers' issue that he would start again the energetic conflict that had arisen from the ar- Article 7 and the decrees.

The Senate upheld all the predictions; it rejected the

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 43

the only article, Article 5, which was the very spirit of the law (August). To obtain cerejel, Senator Bérenger had raised the specter of revolutionary demonstrations recent years, where "these odious things" had been pronounced "Words: the only true, the only war, is the "War is class war." (Strike) (from Bessèges, February.)

I don't know if I, myself, write "odicu- things" his, » but it seems to me that since the first Throughout these years of this story, I haven't done anything else. than to witness the savage war that the class The possessing class does this to the non-possessing class.

The year 1882, as much as, if not more than, its predecessors, had provided very clear examples of the situation injustice done to the poor.

very serious ones.

In Roanne, for example, the bosses had wanted to impose a reduction on their workers 15% of their salary: they changed their tool-
At their age, they changed their production, and it gave them had appeared crazy simple to change theirs too overhead costs, without worrying about whether the prices of the foodstuffs necessary for the life of their ouvriers was thus modified at the same time.

No matter! Eleven establishments were closed, 4,000 workers were dismissed (February), and 11 in resulted from the disorder.

Another strike had broken out in La Grand'Combe, then, soon after, in the mines and foundries of Bessèges (Gard) (February-March); at La Grand'Combe, Gambetta had sent troops, but to no avail.
Moreover, because the bosses had taken arra-

[AA L'AGIOTAGE 1882

movements. But in Bessèges things had gone wrong turned; indeed; as at Grand'Combe, we-was in a hurry – but a little too much – to send a: an unusual quantity of infantry and cavalry.

The miners' demands were legitimate;
They demanded payment every two weeks, modifications-tions and even deletions in the function-the establishment of the company's general stores, and,
Finally, they claimed to benefit from the new law on the unions to support their interests. – At-
So many crimes!

The deployment of armed forces, the intervention – clearly dictated by electoral needs – of some deputies, such as de Lanessan, flanked by Desmons and de Truelle {the latter administrator of France-Incendie and the Comptoir de l'industrie linen), only served to incite the strikers.
These people, moreover, are reeling from the revelations. astonishing events that accompanied the fall of the Union
In general, they had noted with anger that all the rulers, including Gambetta, had not no concern about improving their lot, and they concluded, not without some logic that only they themselves
They had to relinquish the care of their interests.

Moreover, that's what they were being led to believe by a recently formed socialist committee which had held a workers' congress, the proceedings of which I have already reported. periodicals and which represented an organization already powerful and growing ever larger.

All of this was a direct consequence of the facts that I have narrated and the antagonistic state of which I have compiled the figures and drew the graphs.

The reader should refer to chapter

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 45

*

of 1881, in which I placed the electrical calculations raux, et il verra que les majeurs non fonciers never succeed in being represented by their peers, but only by the propertied classes, their ad-classes – because there is no other word,

The semi-official existence of the law on unions cats (not yet voted on by the Senate) and gravity events suggested to the opposition an in-platonic interpellation (March 9).

Goblet, the lawyer from Amiens, the targeted minister, and the minister in charge to respond, resorted to allegations con-found.

He claimed that the strikers led by Four-nière, were going to attack the fans and put in 200 workers still working in danger of death the mines.

The fact had been declared false eight days before the in-'terpellation'. Needless to say, this Chamber, which included so many reactionary property owners, including nearly one hundred financiers adopted an agenda of .Trust.

When we reread today the audacious assertions statements made in support of the claims from the Bessèges company and that we note that, Six years later, this same company will be convinced for having squandered the relief and pension funds One is seized with indignation towards his workers, especially against the negligence of some versus the cynicism of others.

Certainly, I know that the mines and coal mines have went through a crisis due to railway tariffs and to bad trade treaties; but I know

4 See the Lantern of March 1st.
| 3.

46 Speculation 1882

also that the shareholders, having received twenty times their capital, in the form of dividends, was expected to yield their profit instead of exploiting their workers.

A strange state of mind among the wealthy:

During the strike, Four-to be in the pay of the English, who were flooding from their coals the Gard and the Midi.

And no one thought of accusing the companies of railways, undoubtedly paid for by the English, those ones, since they were carrying their coal, from Calais in the Gard basin, to conditions such as those French products undergo-know a higher price to go from one end to the other from the same department as for crossing the France from the northeast to the southwest.

The events in Bessèges and the arrest
- those who had followed them were like a trumpet blast sounding the alarm for social demands.

In August and October, a new warning, and this times in Monceau-les-Mines, where the capital tyrannies lists were associated with religious tyrannies.

Only the set of facts alleged by the justice, even the ultimate verdict rendered by the jury In December, finally the dynamite we had foolishlyadded to this affair, they did not lard him to give the appearance of a simple, polite provocation cière, a system that I will now have to point out often.

In an extra-parliamentary investigation undertaken by the far-left MPs, the former mayor du Creuzot, Dumay, manifested an analogous suspicion log.

He also gave some interesting details, among other things

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 47

others, this one which I reproduce because it complements the election results of 1881 which I have already mentioned above:

"The large number of abstentions observed during
"From the last elections," said Dumay, "comes from
"what the workers, seeing that the deputies have not
"To date, nothing has been done to improve their "They no longer want to vote. At some point,
"If this state of affairs continued, the elders would—
"These monarchists would certainly have some
"a chance to get their candidate elected."

Dumay was right; especially when one considers that a considerable majority of elected candidates had made formal commitments, more than one A year later, none of them were filled, one wonders how the enormous mass of the non-possessing,
Thus oppressed, deceived and robbed, still has the Patience is required!

Besides the main strikes I just mentioned to speak, there were others of lesser importance;
I will simply list them:

In February, a strike by crystal painters in Paris, strike of the Seine carpenters, of the midneurs in Molières (Gard) and decorative painters sculptors in Paris, in March, strike of sculptors Paris, weavers and spinners in Belfort, some:
weavers in Moirans (Isère), knitters in Bar-le-Duc, tinsmiths and plumbers in Nantes, and Miners in Saint-Etienne; in April, a strike of metallurgists in Saint-Étienne, Firminy, Marquise, strike of the terriers in Alais, of the shoemakers

1. Electoral Notebooks of 1881. Published by Martin. — See also the Political Year 1882, by André Daniel.

has
has

In Lyon, there were fabric printers in Saint-Denis.
 painters in cars in Paris, goat herders, ma-leather dressers and tanners in Lyon, well diggers in the Seine department, box makers and packers and piano and organ makers in Paris; in June, Strike by refinery workers in Saint-Ouen and La Villette, truck drivers of the P.-L.-M. company in Paris, and female workers on broomsticks in Paris; finally, in October, Furniture workers' strike in Paris.

To comment on this series, I still need to indicate-regarding the new movements of the increases capitalists. These had not been forced in comparison with previous years; of 223 million liards, a figure at the end of 1881, we had arrived alone-amounting to 227 billion at the end of 1882:.

Financial stocks alone had suffered a partial liquidation; they had lost a little over 4 billion, almost the entire markup fictional from 1881.

This had not happened without upheaval, the wage system had remained stationary, but misery had augmented by all the ruined property owners; here is the Summary table of these various movements:

4881	1882
Owners,...	Re 20 19
Employees...	69 80 el 69 employees
Stripped bare....	11} 77°" 12 stripped bare
Totals.....	100 100
Billions
SR	RE
End of 1881	End of 1882
Difference
Real estate assets	 413 8/10 420 0/10 + 6 2/10
- furniture.....	69 5/10 71 0/10 + 4 5/10
- financial.,.....	40 07/40 35 0/10 - #4 2/10

Totals... 223 3/10 226 8/10 + 3 5/10

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 49

These social fluctuations had been accompanied from a series of private scandals that had just

The filth of prostitution had reached everyone
the bourgeois world; particularly in Paris and Lyon,
In Nice, society continued to rot.

From Italy came the echoes of a trial scandalous matter concerning the succession of the former Pope Pius IX; from Belgium, those of the drama of Peltzer brothers; in France, the Lapanouse and the Castries resorted to usury and then pleaded—were against her! the Chaulnes-Chevreuse were in all its nakedness the intimate wound of their fools prejudices; some time later, the public re—was suffering from marital discord which had led the Fenayrou couple to murder and to court of the assizes”

Since the Crash, there was, moreover, a leaven anti-Semitic sentiment was in the air; this manifested itself in... public violence between Mayer-Déroulède, and pitiful discussions between Dumas and the Pos Jacquet, regarding the Jew of Baghdad.

For its part, the justice system in robes continued its
She had uncovered the scams; she had reversed her position.
colonizers of Port-Breton, but ignored those of Tonkin; she condemned Bontoux, but left Erlanger at liberty.

A sinister noise, however, came to stun a moment and the judges and accusers of the Union General: ;

Count Wimpffen, the Austro-Hon- diplomat
The man I've mentioned several times had committed suicide.
on the public highway; almost at the same time that

50 Speculation 1882

whom his friends called: "the bugle of France"
Gambetta died in Ville-d'Avray.

An investigation into the death is not yet possible.
of the latter; but that of the diplomat is illuminated by a posthumous letter, terrible for the molesters cosmopolitans, of which Hirsch is the finest ornament.

I am giving this letter in full, as the pu—
They forgot the German newspapers; the reader will which I have previously narrated:

"Mr. Baron,

"When you receive this letter, you will open it with hesitation, because you will well suspect what she It contains. Don't worry that I'll reproach you. When I gradually allowed myself to be captivated by your ama- Honestly, I didn't think you were pursuing a hateful goal. It was imperceptibly that, taking advantage of my weakness character, you have led me down the slope of dishonor- My country would judge me less harshly if it knew With what skill you played your part. You have misled and dazzled, with your gold, as you have misled DAYOUD and MAHMOUD, NELHIM-PACHA, the count de BEUST, Count ZICHY, Mr. SCHLEGEL, and many others Again. You have made us all TRAITORS TO THE FATHERLAND, SOLELY FOR THE PURPOSE OF ADDING MORE MILLIONS TO THOSE THAT YOU TAKEN FROM THE POCKETS OF TICKET OWNERS FROM THE TURKISH LOTTERY.

"My death will reveal what I am guilty of," This will be my atonement. The mere fact that the ambassador The Emperor of Austria-Hungary committed suicide and left a letter addressed to Baron Hirsch, will suffice to sway public opinion on the trail of truth. You may try to defend your interests in the Parisian press and the Viennese newspapers, My death, however, will make your gold pale, in Paris and Vienna. I'm not talking about Berlin, because you've never been there. taken seriously. Berlin is now the center of poli-

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 51

Oriental culture. Not so long ago, people were still referring to it- brought to us, in Berlin, as far as the question was concerned oriental; it was because it was unknown that the ambassadors of Au- The cheaters in Constantinople and Paris were merely brokers of Mr. Hirsch. It was a very close call that you didn't successfully completed the famous transaction with Bleichræder. Now, Radowitz will ensure, I am certain, that Germany act independently in Constantine Tinople, and to ensure that she takes a stand against your demands senseless. I sent, at the last minute, to Count Kal- noky a general report on this whole affair, which we we have always considered it yours, although it was OUR.

I would have accused Austro-Hungarian diplomacy of letting itself influenced by you for twelve years, although you do-
Do everything in your power to prevent an arrangement relationship between Turkish railways and Austro-Hungarian. May my death have the effect of inspiring a little of goodwill towards the German government, with regard to My unfortunate country. There are serious reasons in Berlin. to blame us, because we were on the verge of abusing in your interest, the trust and influence enjoyed Germany in Constantinople.

"I will die, to satisfy my conscience,"
The Austro-Hungarian ambassador will kill himself on the road... public, in order to confess his sin in the eyes of all.

"It is certain that you have always ignored the requirements" of honor and conscience, no doubt because you commented on your Talmud as Tartuffe. But the revenge di-Vine will even reach those princes of finance who, Like you, they are completely devoid of principles. Before Soon, you won't have anything left of the 200 million you have. su you procure by means of the Turkish railways, el you You will have to answer for your actions before the law.

"Paris, Christmas Eve 1882."

Signed: "WIMPFEN."

Such was the indictment of the suicide victim.

CONTENTS. 1883. – The suitors. – The Gam- mystery betta. – Social antagonisms. – The expulsion of Roths-'child, – Late confessions of Léon Say. – Anarchists at Lyon. – The Esplanade des Invalides. – Rectangular obsolete-tionary. – Multiple combinations. – The moves of the Conversion. – The Wilson Hotel. – Incorrigible misery. – Chats in Parliament. – Humble prayers to the Com-Companies! – Who pays? – Strange revenues. – General Staff Financial. – Stages of surrender. – The Uhlan king. – Elysian chauvinism. – Military markets. – Pro-brazen pagan. – Boland. – Biedermann suicide. – Worsening misery.

It was a close call that, on the occasion of the death of tribune of Cahors the monarchist property owners regain some hope.

point, speaking on behalf of an interest group:
Jérôme Bonaparte and Henri de Bourbon.

One of them, talkative but disparaged, spoke a lot, wrote
Furthermore, he displayed criticism of the government's management.
government, quite right in several respects points, and managed to get himself incarcerated by the ministère, which inspired the magistracy with the malice of to "release" it almost immediately, and produced a another explosion of laughter from which some died.
actively pursued his ambitions.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 53

The other, who became less and less of a letter writer since 1873, having, moreover, always been silent heavens, did not give his supporters time to I attribute to Frohsdorf a speech from Cahors no particular one, and died in August.

The republic of parasites, for a moment horrified through the death of the lord of Ville-d'Avray, understood soon how favorable the odds were for him, he who, "in the shadows", had done to Gam-Betta, a real knife fight: Daniel Wilson was able to find that his path was, finally, serious-cleared.

I don't much like looking for small, unnecessary details;
However, Gambetta's death came so soon after Wilson's point; since his death, the intrigues his gossip friends accused themselves so brazenly and so messily that I cannot help but I wonder if, in the Ville-d'Avray tragedy, in the 'contradictory accounts concerning the causes, progression and outcome of the disease, there is no wouldn't have had some kind of black combination whose veils no one has dared to lift until now.

All I will allow myself to say is that Gambetta had compromising habits for his health, absolutely like some industrialtriels had compromising "honor" appetites so much for their purse; moreover, I will add that he is it possible for mere cynics to obtain the disappearance of certain people without, for that reason, resorting to what the law calls the dirty word as-assassination.

for a future investigation:

54 BITTERNESS 4853

Gambetta died peacefully, not in the fatigue from political life.

The authors of the autopsy stated, without motivating serious (in the scientific sense of the word), that the subject was doomed to an imminent end; moreover, they have no choice but—
The blow was applied too forcefully to the healed wound.

This injury had a passionate cause.
nelle, that is to say, provoked jealousy, which had erupted, first in anger; then, once the damage was done, in pain!

Perhaps no man is above a
A similar adventure.

But Gambetta, more than anyone else, was mepearly white |

But at the very moment he was plotting his revenge, others, who had calculated the value of a marriage, should also knowing how to rivet the rings iron from the past!

L 2 L2 e L2 e [2 ee [2 L2 L2 L2 e e. e [2nd

The documents and, as I said, the en-quests are what I need to progress further on this. subject; in writing this, I am obeying, I confess, a a series of moral deductions and by no means to a Material certainty; but having had, several times, the opportunity to verify the accuracy of my predictions sions (for example, when, four years in advance, I calculated and announced that Grévy's downfall would be the work of his son-in-law) 1, I could not re-sister to record an impression that, alone, a pou-seeing revolutionary seems to me capable or of to deny or to justify.

'The Kings of the Republic, Vol. 1, p. 372,

Regarding the past, there is no doubt:

As early as September 4, 1870, Grévy, Wilson, Cochery, Tassin and Guyot-Montpayroux already formed a con-Ciliabule hostile to the Tours delegation: and particularly in Gambetta.

In any ministry where Gambetta's friends were dominating, Wilson had been eliminated – that's what had just happened to him when, through his marriage, he had become vice-president; – the newspapers which attacked The tribune who were more concerned were not those that Wilson publicly sponsored, like the Petite France (of Tours), but those of whom he was the in-hacker, discreetly hidden behind certain displays dice; for example: the Lantern, the Event, the France.

I am deliberately omitting the intransigent one, because at In my opinion, the editor-in-chief of this newspaper, more An artist rather than a scholar, perhaps a circumstantial one, no doubt. but not reduced absolutely into servitude.

In the struggle in which the National Bank had been the object (and which I narrated previously), Wilson had finally managed to "fish" for a com-taking several hundred newspapers, the one that became the famous republican correspondence of the Bergère street and the administrative center of the pots-de-wine exorcised to the suitors of the red ribbon.

If I group these various circumstances together, it is in order to to expose the strings of political speculation and not at all to defend Gambetta after the fact against the attacks, too often deserved, which directed against him.

I've said it enough, I have no idol; but I have the right to conjecture that at some point, Gambetta, enlightened by experience, built upon the insufficient awareness of political means, having felt the need to learn the sciences he was ignorant of, would have been natural-rage, to return to the people their cradle, where only he could find a few males accents, and organize, with him, the conquest of the interior comprehensive and simultaneous social reforms, even if at the price of a violent revolution.

1 The Kings of the Republic, Vol. 1, p. 350,

56 BITTERNESS 41383

That's why I wanted to analyze ja: rapid desconstruction of this social instrument, so well tailored for the reforms, so poorly integrated into the government ment.

A power of renewal? Gambetta could have... become.

Unfortunately, to formulate this hope, I am reduced to guessing the size of the funeral-rails and not the depth of the results.

That said, too bad for those to whom these concur-The facts would appear as an indictment.

The agitation of the propertied classes, awakened in their appetites, immediately translated into debates, as interminable as they were sterile, in both Rooms; I won't waste my time analyzing them. lyser; I will only retain this from it, that after some numerous delays, the case of the alleged Dants brought in a ministry headed by Jules Ferry (February 21), which promised to "monitor" the princes,

The people, for their part, having serious reasons to miscontentment, did not remain indifferent to the efferbarely calmed vexations from his masters.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 57

Especially since the end of the previous year, he saw how little he could count on the pro-masses from his representatives, who had given him No, it wasn't a failure, but just the comedy of the discussions. reformist ions, sometimes concerning the right of association ciation, sometimes regarding the responsibility of the patients trunks in terms of accidents, seasoning everything of reflections or projects, some more baroque than others.

To appreciate the effect that these discussions canwere going to produce, it is good to recall in what material and moral conditions had begun

At the end of the previous chapter, I produced some figures indicating an increase in poverty: (11 0/0 at the end of 1881, 12 0/0 at the end of 1882), the immobility of salaried employment (69% in both periods), and finally, the reduction in the number of property owners (20 0/0 end of 1881, 19 0/0 end of 1882).

However, a careful examination of the proportions is all that is needed. to see that the non-owners, although imbalances in bulk, had increased in their portion destitute and that the number of those who had fallen from possession, either to wage labor or to poverty, could encourage an attempted riot or insurrection reaction.

A little before Jerome's manifesto and as for preparing the sensible parts, Le Figaro, under the title of "The World of Millions," and the signing of Philippe de Grandlieu had published an indictment against finance*.

Despite its moderate tone, this article had a

'Under the date of January 13, 1883.

58 Speculation 1883

Serious importance. Initially, 1 liter was an exception. in this newspaper which had always served finance high or low, who had praised to the skies as well the works of Crédit foncier than those of Crédit French general ', even long before his principal editors or managers spoke of unions of the latter establishment *.

Shortly afterwards, and on the occasion of the manifesto Jeromeist, another newspaper, of radical nuance, the Justice, also formulated an indictment and demanded "the expulsion of the big financiers, the bankers" "Jewish families, notably Messrs. de Rothschild-" "lying, whose immense fortune violated the principles "of a healthy democracy."

As we can see, the excitations started equally- the most opposing sides.

As for the governmental world, it also had

Léon Say, in the Journal des économistes de no –
In November 14882, he had published an insolent diatribe against actions that he himself had, carried out on his behalf every time he had been in power. – He was no longer there: hence his 4 See volume I, page 145 regarding Haitian loans.

2 Among the union members for the two increases of capital of the French General Credit Bank, journalists were among them following: Fernand de Rodays, 600 shares (in two installments);
Albert Wolff, 100 shares, both belonging to Le Figaro.
We also find: Arthur Meyer, director of Le Gaulois, 300 actions (in two parts); then again: E. Merson, journalist legitimist in Nantes, 1,000 shares; de Blowitz, correspondent dant of the Times, 200 shares; Léonce Detroyat, 200 shares; Ernest Daudet, 100 shares; Lebey (Havas Agency), 600 shares.

3 Justice, cited in the Political Year 1885, page 19.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 59

anger. To this anger, we must, nevertheless, Confessions and revelations:

The confessions reveal – somewhat belatedly – that
"For several years we had created too many a-"unproductive activities, too many banks in particular, and"
"wasted public savings"... which had produit "like a new ransom of several thousand
"Prices paid to speculation, like a ransom"
"The 1871 payment had been made to the Germans!"

For once, I agree with Léon Say;
but what a shame that the sincerity of his observations
Late reports deserve suspicion!

As for the revelations, they were even less sincere, but materially – we've seen it clearly Since then – they had been telling the truth. Léon Say signed-milk the dangerous actions of the undersecretary
State representative at the Ministry of Finance, that is to say Daniel Wilson; he listed the upheavals, carried out by him within the staff (processes to which further accusations were subsequently added.

spoke of the countless favors granted, notably ment, to those who, having been convicted of fraud commercial matters demanded the remission of fines pronounced.

In three years, said Léon Say, from 1876 to 1879, the traffic violation reports had already decreased, on average, by 9% per year; but by
From 1880 to 1881, he added, they decreased by 22.5%.
also on average.

This almost official denunciation of corruption

4 Journal des Économistes, November 1882, p. 159.

60 Speculation 1883

administrative bodies installed in the government, It horrified parliament and provided a weapon to the parties opponents.

To top it all off, the Lyon court, abusing a law made in 1875 against the Interna-the national workers' union, had just resurrected the Opinion crime. Without having to judge any facts. material attributable to the accused (the perpetrators of the acts which are nothing other than agents provocateurs disappeared), he dared to incriminate the act of "provoking the suspension of work" – which was the strike legal – "the abolition of the fatherland" – that was it that he interpreted the removal of borders as view of fraternity in work, against the war – "the abolition of property, of the family and religion," –thus recalling old clichés bourgeois whom one would rather expect to see followed by the papal formula: "anathema sit," which of famous "for these reasons" used in the legal patoisdisc.

If anarchic terror, organized by the police, had inspired yet another injustice in the magistrates of
From Lyon to those in Paris, the echoes of the same terror seemed to have inspired a feeling of con-milking.

Indeed, in the last days of January, the
The assize court had to judge a worker who, from a a revolver shot, had {a stiff shot of its owner;

verified; the worker had acted out of exasperation legitimate, but he had killed! And, in any other circumstance, the prosecution would not have failed to request a exemplary punishment. Nothing of the sort happened this time, ct.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 61

the public prosecutor himself, having demanded a
The sentence was reduced, and the jury pronounced an acquittal!

Meanwhile, there was talk of Orleanist plots, of organized insurgent committees, of a conspiration attributed to General Charette; on the contrary the agitation of a revisionist league was on full display. organized by Clemenceau and his party.

All these factors contributed to an attempt at revolution; all that was missing was an opportunity to to put the people forward; she did not delay.

The people were already suffering from the evil of poverty, aggravated due to recent flooding in Paris and the surroundings; in addition, several industrialists, apparently attached, above all, to the building industry, which was long affected by a crisis due to speculative markups, having closed their construction sites, There really were "workers without work," naturally inclined to attend meetings public meetings and rallies.

There were meetings, there were gatherings.

Louise Michel, this religious-secular woman (I tell her apologizes for not finding another word to paint it completely for those who misunderstand it are born), Louise Michel, who feels obliged to to respond to any summons whose purpose is a demand of the people, of which it is one of the best their spokespeople were asked to come to the meeting announced for March 9th at the Esplanade des Invalid.

Without paying attention to the strange benevolence that
The most prominent newspapers bore witness to this movement hostile to the popular, such as Le Figaro, Le Clairon, { Brossard-Desportes case, 29-31 January 1881.

62 Speculation 1883

She went to Gaulors; with her a mass of starving people and, along with them, a huge crowd of curious onlookers.

There were stampedes, arrests, and Broken windows, "insults towards officers."
he even threatened the Élysée Palace and, via an omnibus, as Paul de Cassagnac humorously recounted at the podium of the Chamber; but everything stopped there;
This was also the case on March 11th in the town square of the Town Hall and, only, a few "bankers" from social reforms received, in a closed setting, some bruises, regrettable indeed, because it is not It is not possible to approve the introduction of boxing in a theoretical discussion.

All these disturbances were rootless and did not could lead to a revolution.

Certainly, discontent was widespread; it was popular, he was, even, largely bourgeois; but, for a demonstration to turn into an ac-For a serious investigation, two conditions are necessary: First, a a simple idea accepted by all, used to give a disinterested form to personal grievances nels and to launch them in the same movement;

Next, a certain intensity of the anлаго- is required.
economic isms growing on the same plane of claims from both social extremes: wealth and misery; then, from both ends, the third
The most powerful element, salaried employment, is being trained,
The great mass moves and the revolution is made.

However, in March 1883, there was no agreement on the word. In truth, "revision" expressed an idea simple, but it raised, to the same degree, the mc-fiance of the three forces I have listed; better

'Session of March 10, 1883, Chamber of Deputies'

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 63

again: it divided the property owners among themselves same.

However, even if this drawback had not existed, that the intensity of the antagonisms is insufficient economic factors deprived the movement of its support deep masses.

To realize this last point, it suffices—
It is useful to compare, for example, 1848 and 1883.

In 1848, the simple words were "reforms",
"Universal suffrage," that is to say, roughly one revision equivalent!

But the economic antagonism differed in its proportions and intensity. Here is the proof:

Average of 8 years. Owners. Employees. Homeless.
1843–1847..... 19 71 10
1878–1882..... 20:69 11

So, no more misery in 1883, but no more pos—
More sedentary and fewer employees; that's the difference.
proportions.

Here is the difference in intensities:

One can be more or less miserable, more or less wealthy, more or less salaried; now this more or less depends solely on the existing proportion between means of exchange (metal, banknotes) and budgetary requirements (taxes).

Therefore, by comparing the two extreme years 1848 and 1883, taken at their beginning, I find that, by In relation to the resources, the requirements were, in 1848, 32/100 and, in 1883, 25/100.

And that's why the same movements are repeated.
riels did not accompany, in both periods, the same moral dispositions.

64 Speculation 1883

For clarity, I symbolize this difference in the following two figures: (See PLATEIX).

The purple bite that appears on the right
The value of each circle expresses the degree of absorption, by existing in both eras.

By comparison, we realize that the crisis had more of acuity in 1847-1848, because more so than in 1882-1883, the means of exchange had been absorbed by the budget.

To complete this demonstration, I condense in a single geometric figure all the antagonisms that I have just listed and I am building what I can call: A revolution rectangle naire. '

However, since it is only a matter of comparison, To compare two eras, I take, as a unit, the situation of 1847-1848 and, according to the same method of Calculation shows that I compare it to that of 1882-1883.

I thus have two hypotenuses of different dimensions annuities (SEE PLATE X), expressing the relationship between the acuteness of the totalized antagonisms in the two eras!

From this situation, the leaders felt rather than the concept; the proof is that, First, the ministry entrenched itself in its energy and he claimed credit for a pacification in which he was not for nothing; then, that's when we started to see scroll through the series of economic-political panaceas.

'The reader who would like to check the calculations used to draw these different figures will find all the formulas at the end of this work, in the section entitled: THE RESULTS: Scientific control,

Page 64

Plate IX
ANTAGONISMS

1847-18#8 .

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

Board

REVOLUTIONARY RECTANGLE
1847-1848 1882-1883,
_... .. End of 1847

A B-9.536. A B'- 8.608.

Digitized by Google

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 65

There was talk of voting a subsidy of two million to workers of Paris; but he was an opponent (Baudry d'Asson) and the ministry declared "successfully," said one historian, that he was studying the same question"; by Consequently, he asked the House to reject the motion. After which Jules Ferry set to work, in effect; "he placed large orders for furniture "school while, for its part, the City of Paris admitted associations to its auctions "female workers by modifying the clauses of her notebooks" "charges f."

On the other hand, financiers were talking about demolishing the fortifications, to build housing at a good price checked on their location and within the military zone; . _ then the Crédit foncier, recognizing the services that I have narrated above, he too began to government provision to build workers' housing estates.

All these apparent acts of generosity concealed, howeverless, as much ignorance as agglomerative appetites authors.

Meanwhile, on the only point where one could have puncturedcoming: mining legislation, Raynal, prelude to "capitulations" of the railway regime, had had the House declare "that the State had not "qualification to interfere in the performance of a contract" "For hire of labor."

As if the legislator who had endowed the Civil Code the chapter entitled "lease agreement" did not have even the sovereign right to modify it, as he had had the power to enact it.

Amidst these "diversities" we had to deal with

'André Daniel, The Political Year 1883, page 114.
4.

66 Speculation 41883

to fill the admitted budget deficit this time, because it was impossible to conceal.

We were "on the threshold" of the conventions, but in
As a sort of preface, the conversion of the 5 0-0 in 4 1/2 0-0. This could be done without fear; for six months the financial sector knew it was inevitable-table, and she had established her account by playing shamelesslytément, since the beginning of the year, to pro-no to all the princely questions.

Never, even on the worst days of panic Internationally, we had never seen so many movements and also significant discrepancies*.

The January decline occurred on the 23rd, that is to say-to say, it is claimed, at the moment when Justice demanded Rothschild's expulsion. He must not have... to complain about this sudden shift.

The February increases belong to the end of that same month, when it was necessary to carry out, that is to say-to say, to resell at a high price what one had acquired at a low price;
I must point out, however, that the 5 0/0, which was going to be converted, had almost never been more lower than 110 francs, even during the organized panic
nated in January, and that, during the month of the demonstrations Popular festivities, finance also remained impassive; from which it followed that the government saying to the rentiers: "Do you want me to pay you back-
"a stock market at 100 francs for a stock that is listed at 110

Here are the comparative prices for the first quarter of 1883:

TT Plus Plus Plus – Tps Plus Pins

low base high base high base low base

D 00 ass 79.75 76.6.75 81.75 71.90 82.35 80.20

3 0/0 damping| 80.75 77.175 81.50 79.00 83.00 81. 65

5 0/0..... 415.25 113.95 | 415.75 113.95 | 115.90 414.30

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 67

"francs? Or would you prefer to accept the reduction--"

"tion at 4.50 francs of the 5 francs of interest that I give you

"What are you currently serving?" was essentially what they were being asked to do.

not to change much in their situation; in fact-- fet, having paid 110 francs to obtain 5 francs of annuity, it is exactly putting one's money into 4.55 0/0.

Thanks to this lion, the budget deficit was reduced by about 35 million; but more than triple of this sum had been added to the millions of high and mid-range banking.

I've already explained how conversions work!

I will therefore not return to it; nevertheless, as in

In 1883, speculation took on a particular form.

I must give some explanations.

The blow (to use an expression from the ar--

(got bourse) had actually been done in January.

under the idiotic pretext I mentioned: the ar--

Article on Justice.

From that moment on, the government had decided to resorting to conversion and his friends knew that he was going to propose it to the Chambers.

In particular, Daniel Wilson knew the dates on which his stepfather would sign the de-- crets; in such a way that he (as well as several (others, for that matter), could predict the movements capable of stirring up the market.

And indeed, during the discussion which was held before-- ceding the vote "the uninitiated public was smiled at"

uncertainties"; several systems had been considered:

would we, for example, convert to 4 1/2 0/0

1 See volume I, pages 254–255.

68 | Speculation 1583

_ or 3-0? So many hesitations, so many blows stock market.

We have no idea of the relentless pursuit that was unleashed.
focused on this single question: will we convert In 4 1/2 or 3 0/0? There were newspapers newspapers for, newspapers against.

It was only two years later that the cause of This relentless pursuit could have been obvious to an observer.
server.

At that time, and for a purpose that I will seek Later, a newspaper! suddenly published a a series of revelations drawn from an ongoing trial of pleadings before the Queen's bench in London.
It was stated there that in 1880 (the time when Wil-his was at the undersecretariat of finance), an inter-an international mediator, named Cartier, had con-conferred with French figures, with the minister Magnin's finance department; then, he had been received by the President of the Republic and, claiming to be the author of a 30/0 conversion plan of the 6 billion French annuities 50/0, had created a union, from which he had obtained very large sums of money, promising that the conversion would certainly take place in 1881 in the first quarter.

I will simply reiterate, in this regard, how much suffering wind, I noticed some conversion noises almost always launched by the Times.

In short, when the union members and certain associates (one of them, named Boare, was supposed to be cross-eyed near 4 million, and another, Martin, 15 million benefits), saw that all hope was taken from them by

'Le Figaro of March 27 and April 4, 1885.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 69

The vote in the House caused them to become angry and devour each other.

It is very likely that the stock market crashes of January vier, aided by certain timely confidences, to- will have calmed the anger of the English plaintiffs against the French people who had compromised themselves more with them; indeed, they had, first of all, denounced immense wine-pollinators and, when it came time to specify, the Silence fell suddenly.

Was Wilson involved in this affair?

Certain circumstances that I am going to recount per- they put it into conjecture.

__ 11 It should be noted, first of all, that the first decree rel- The treaty for conversion was signed on April 27, 1883.

However, in the first eight days of July, the com- The stockbrokers were openly talking amongst themselves. In the stock market, the following small fact: |

A man named Mesquite, at the time of the conversion, had Couturier executed at the Dollfus agents' place and Fessard, considerable orders. The clerks They suspected him of being a straw man. But Whose?

It was by chance that they became aware of it: we know that the agents pay in blank money orders, which their They return two months after payment: therefore: April-June.

However, during the liquidation of the conversion (end of June), a warrant of 720,000 francs given to Mesquite by Couturier had returned to his office, but with Wilson's acquittal; Mesquite had it endorsed it on behalf of Wilson, who had himself acquitted and touched, thus leaving, without realizing it,

70 Speculation 1883

Traces of his operation were also found at Couturier's. even though it's at the Bank of France!

A few days later (July 17), Le Figaro picked The following entry appeared in the Petites Affiches:

"Mr. Daniel Wilson, Member of the House of

"and electing domicile at 220 rue de Rivoli,
"in the office of Mr. Maza, solicitor at the Court of "The Seine, just bought, on June 30th, for
"the sum of six hundred and seventy-nine thousand
"three hundred fifty-seven francs thirty five centi-
"my (679,357 fr. 35 c.), in addition to the charges, a ter"rain of 2.156 meters 69 centimeters, making the an-"corner of Avenue d'Iéna, Rue Magdebourg and
"From Fresnel Street."

What clarity in this convergence of circumstances!
rebukes!

While official and unofficial people agio-were at the expense of the people, to whom a savings of 35 million (!) we were also thinking much to his moral interests.

First, we dealt with repeat offenders and among them (which is inconceivable!), of those who, not having

Here are the courses for April and May:

April May nn I Sec CC – a are Higher Pius, lower Pius. Higher Pius, lower Pius.

3 0'0..... (the 25th) 80.75l0e 21) 78.50l(the 24th) 80.25l(Ie 43) 79.60
41/20/0 a.|ile 3) 410.60{(the 21st) 109.00|(the 29th) 440.70! (the 45) 110.00
5 0/0..... (the 2) 444.60 {(ie 30) 410.00 . ;
4#1/20/0 n. > > (the Acr) 109.50 !(the 45) 109.45

2 I recounted these events in a letter published by the Incompromising in its issue of October 30, 1887, and none of those whom I had thus publicly designated did not denials,

4

e

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 71

homeless, being vagrants, they disobeyed

Consequently, "they were repeat offenders in the crime of vagrancy-bondage"; truly incorrigible! (April 21).

Then, we thought about abandoned children.
(May 1st); but, as a counterpart, we command-said this factory of orphans and widows called

Tonkin, for which funds were allocated.
(May 15) : at

Having done this, they resumed their mistreatment of the magistrature, that is to say, to create holidays for people to see them filled immediately {May 24, June 5}.

Finally, we arrived at the famous law on trade unions.
professionals, already distorted by the Senate (June 12).
The discussion surrounding this last law, says one historian,
"gave rise to a very fine contest between Messrs. de
"Mun, Lockroy and Frédéric Passy!"

Beautiful or not, it is certain that the struggle has been "played" at the people's expense, and that the only concern-
The dominant aspiration was "the interest of those in power".

Thus de Mun fought against "laissez-faire and "Jaisser-passer" des Passy et autres « économistes" ;
but it was to replace it with the direction of a Catholic monarchy. Consequently, he invoked the socialist theories, because they fought against,
Like him, the "laissez-faire" approach, but he hastened to condemn their scientific bases because they were not clerical.

"If I question socialism," said de Mun, "I "finds in its programs a clear idea, a
"This is the unwavering faith: the suppression of private capital"
"and sharing (?) of the instruments and products of the

* André Daniel. The political year 1883, page 168.

12. Speculation 1833

work... Mr. Benoît Malon has made it very clear developed and inscribed on every page of its writings." Then he added: "I have the right to "Pounding towards the worst forms of despotism."

Lockroy and Passy fought de Mun as de Mun fought Malon, that is to say, by arguments statements and empirical claims; in short, never "A good fight has revealed no more ignorance on our sides." "Rance and bias."

The result was a flawed, poorly designed law, more poorly applied; useless, in short, for the purpose it claimed to achieve.

Another hypocrisy took root regarding savings banks and floating debt.

For a long time, those in power have drawn on funds belonging to depositors, at risk, at cases where there are too many refunds would have occurred simultaneously, not to be able to- to satisfy it.

Paul de Cassagnac, continuing, under this new- In this form, the groaned agitations of the Jero- manifesto mist and meetings, suddenly fell in love with the depots sants, of an interest that he should have felt each year, for several legislative terms and, sowing the In a panic, he sought to provoke requests for mass refunds, which, spontaneously- They were not happening.

All this only results in a precautionary measure. tion which, if it were likely to reassure the depositors, did not in any way reduce the burden on the depositors tributaries so that the danger remained all entire.

s RA

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 73

This unfortunate year was decidedly doomed to economic discussions. It is true that we had raised many questions without ever having to solve, but finally one presented itself which, despite its crucial and capitalist importance, was going to be accomplished in a very short time; I am referring to the agreements with railway companies (July).

The budget was in deficit.

There wasn't enough money to continue the major projects.
works organized according to the Freycinet plan.

Nevertheless, the time had come to make a decision.
question of the repurchase of the railways, that is to say, to pay or not to pay the Companies sums due _considerable.

These were the obstacles.

For their part, the MPs had promised their voters a mass of small railways. The
The Freycinet plan was lenient towards them in this respect; but, faced with the financial impossibility of continuing to vote work that would not be done, to propose rigged which, if they were of interest to individual influence MPs had no chance of obtaining a majority – because the sum of individual interests did not represent a sum of advantages in any way collectives – a means of reconciliation was sought,
And this was found:

To balance the budget, the Companies of railways would repay in advance the sums they owed to the State; to continue the work started and to carry out the others, pre-slightly reduced to smaller proportions, they will provide the necessary funds themselves.

VOLUME IL ỹ

4. TS AGBITATION

Finally, to satisfy the opportunistic bureaucracyniste, the main driver of the general buyback plans, we would round off the state network, by means of some transfers made by one of the Companies (that of Orléans) and thus, definitively, we would constitute-ly, the seventh network, or, if you prefer, the Seventh Company.

If the financial feudalism of the railways dai-
He would condescend to "humble prayers" thus formulated by the rulers, they leave it-would enjoy its general trading farm and industry, that is to say, would leave it in control

the approval, and, by this means, would deliver him, feet and with their fists tied, the entire national effort, exactly as the Empire had done in 1852.

Financial feudalism made things difficult; Raynal, the ex-fierce enemy of the railway monopoly and of "Gambling" companies, converted, declared having sweated blood and tears to obtain consent of these / thus renewing, parliamentary-rement, the farcical stage play where a doctor of Molière gave a voice to a girl who was not muelle. In any case, the Companies imposed this condition that they would be guaranteed a minimum dividend calculated on the average of the last five-previous exercises.

Thus, it is understood that this applies when it comes to non-property owners – workers for example – Raynal does not understand why the State intervenes, "in a "Contract for services,"? to equalize Unforeseen events; but what about the wealthy? Not so.

1 See volume II, page 65.

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 75

of risks! of GUARANTEES paid for by taxes, that is to say-to say, by the non-possessing alone.

I say "by the non-possessors alone" because, as evidenced each year by the budgets final, out of an average of 800,000 deaths, it does not only 200,000 inheritances are opened; therefore (except for the annual variations) Ja France does not understand, in on average, that one quarter of property owners and three-quarters of the non-owners. However, if the owning quarter receives income, it's certainly not him who is generating it pays himself; therefore, three-quarters of them are not owners.

These revenues obviously include the total of taxes, which the wealthy pay upfront, but which they are reimbursed for by the non-possessors; It is clear, in fact, that those who pay the full amount, pay a fortiori the fraction.

Therefore, the heavier the taxes,
The higher the royalties levied, the more direct directly or indirectly, on the non-possessors.

Naturally, in the Chamber, fertile in appeals—
Tits, rare in science, nobody has said these things.
The discussions were, therefore, what they produced.
were expected to be, given the financial composition the parliament building, which I detailed while dealing with from the previous year.

There were, however, scandalous incidents and formal accusations of bribery.

"Passions were even so overexcited—
"They were, at one point, told that a Republican deputy,
"Mr. Laisant," he dared to insinuate in his newspaper,
"A Radical, that bribes had been distributed—

16 Speculation | 1883

"buzz to several members of the majority who voted"
"Conventions!"

Bribe is a blunt expression that expresses the idea of handing over money is too much hand. That's not how things work, thanks to the progress of modern hypocrisy. All the world would not dare to reach out, as was done to Deutz, the money of betrayal, at the end of its tether.

With the theories of mercantilism and agio—
Combined stages, it is easy to achieve, from one Money order trafficking, a simple operation... commercial. "Mr. Jourdain, who knew about sheets,
"was doing his friends a favor by giving them
"For money." Daniel Wilson admitted the merit by working to have decorated the one who had helped advertise his newspapers. During the conventions involved finding a place for a brother or cousin; one helped a marriage, a dowry was facilitated, there were op-lions on stocks, on bonds, who knows?...
And, since the interests of the budget demanded it, why
Not to serve him, by serving oneself?

It is true, vigilant ministers would not have signed the agreements.

Something would certainly have struck them if they had only thought of examining the complexes. |

Never, and especially since 1866, have the recipes had not reached such a high figure as that of-clarified for the 1882 fiscal year, which was included in the calculation guaranteed dividend.

{ André Daniel. The political year 1883, page 255 (note).

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 77

Here is the proof; I give, below, a ta-Summary sheet of gross kilometer products carried out by the six companies; the kilometer-trique has the double advantage of taking into account the lon-exploited resources and facilitate comparisons, by reducing the revenues to a common unit total payments.

Here is the table:

Gross revenue of the Ssix COMPANIES, excluding the State network since its creation.

In 1866.....	45,240 francs per kilometer
In 1810,	46,190 - -
In 1878.....	40,210 - _-
En-1B82us seu	49,520 - _-
In 188%...5:5:6 0.	46,280 - -
In 188, factory	34,130 - Æ

Thus, according to the companies, in 1882, the following day-in the midst of the crash, when the crisis was already intense, that people everywhere were complaining about the slowdown of business activity exceeded that of 1875 and 1866!

A recent document from the commission permanent customs values! and indicating the tonnage transported on the networks, comes again to emphasize the strangeness of the large revenue figure ac-excused for 1882.

The result is that the largest number of tonnes kilometers was transported in 1883 and not in 1882; that the weight of our special trade in ex-Portation was higher in 1881 and 1883 than in port of goods on the railway network

1 Statistics from the Ministry of Finance, January 1888, page 26.

78 BITTERNESS 4883

iron, the sums of 1883 are higher than those from 1882. However, according to CORPABAISS, in 1883, the Revenues have decreased!

It is therefore certain that a minister, who would not have had not had his eyes pleasantly closed, would have seen that at the time when the takeover was a threat, there had some interest in controlling the elements in front to be used for price setting.

None of this happened, and even admitting— Given the incapacity, I say that, in matters of interest, the inability has limits that the Jews have habituated to never see them cross.

Jewish parasitism, that is to say, opportunism, he therefore threw himself headlong into the conventions; The deputies took to the gallop and the haste of Their decision made them seem like schoolchildren hurrying to lick their toast before the master arrives.

Unfortunately, the master, Gambetta, was dead. Well dead; while he was alive, conventions never had— would have been signed |

It is good to know the financial staff who venalt, thus, to triumph insolently against the interests of the entire nation. Here it is:

COMPAGNIE DU NORrD.

Composition of the board of directors:

President: ALPHONSE RoTHscxiLp, Jewish banker; Besides the Northern Company, this financier is also regent of the Bank of France, administrator at the General Marine Insurance Company, at the General fire insurance company, to the General Life Insurance Company,

THERE

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 79

to the Eastern Railways, to the Railways of the southern Austria, at the Central Prus- Land Credit his own, at the Jardin d'Acclimatation. *

Vice-President: BARON DE SAINT-DIDIER who is ap- AMÉ shovel as a customs officer but who became Baron of Saint-Didier as administrator traitor, so as not to reveal that the two are the same person; this is, moreover, a Bourgeois hypocrisy is very common. - Amé se also found at the Compagnie générale des omnibus.

LÉON Say, exercising, as long as he can, the profession-sion of finance minister and, in the meantime, of am-bassadeur in London. He can also be found at the Com-Madrid to Zaragoza Railway Company and in Alicante, and also at the Coal Company foundries and foundries of Aveyron (Decazeville). Sena-their at the time of the conventions.

BARON DE SOUBEYRAN': deputy at the time of the agreements. Also found at Foncières, Vie, Fire and Transport, at the Discount Bank, at Austrian land credit, to the railways of

- Asturias-Galicia-León, at the Mortgage Bank, to the buildings of France.

G. DEHAYNIN?, coal speculator, admi-industrial and commercial credit manager, to Loire mines, formerly owned by the Cail company, at Warehouses and general stores of Paris, at the che-Portuguese iron ore mins, to the Insurance Company

1 Behold, moreover, my Kings of the Republic.

See my Kings of the Republic,

80 Speculation 1883

BARON GUSTAVE DE ROTHSCHILD, same Jewish tribe that Alphonse; administrator at the National-Life and Fire on the Paris-Lyon-Méditerranée railway to those of southern Austria, to those of Madrid-Zaragoza-Alicante.

Duke of Mouchy, remnant of the Empire, sinecure-maker without great renown; administrator of the General Gas Company of Paris.

BURTON, a lesser-known millionaire; administramanufacturer at the Salins du Midi saltworks, at the Pontgibaud Mines, to the Foundries and Forges of Alais.

Core Pillet-Wilhelm, Protestant banker, regent of the Bank of France, administrator at the Nationale-de Vie et de Mort, à la Compagnie des allumettes, at the Ottoman Bank.

COUNT ADRIEN DE GERMINGHAM, old Catholic finance-liques; regent of the Bank of France, administrator to the Western Railways, to the Mortgage Bank of the United States, at the Ottoman Bank.

ALFRED DE ROTHSCHILD, same Jewish tribe. (See (above).

J. HOTTINGUER, Protestant banker, regent of the Bank of France, administrator at the Nationale-Life and Fire, at the Ottoman Bank, at the Credit Austrian land, belonging to the Match Company to the Water Company, to the five colonial banks natives, at the Epinac coal mines and railway, to the Austrian roads and those of Paris-Lyon-

4 See my Kings of the Republic.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 81

FRÉDÉRIC MOREAU!, regent of the Bank of France, administrator at the National Life and Insurance Company fire, to the company L'Abeille-incendie and L'Abeille-hail.

ANDRÉ DE WARU, administrator at the National-Life and Fire, at Lloyd's of France and at Chemins of iron from Orleans.

'BAUDELLOT, judge at the commercial court, administrator at the Discount Counter, at the Sub-counter tour of entrepreneurs and to the Atlas company,

NATHANIEL DE ROTHSCHILD, of the same Jewish tribe, which I mentioned earlier.

AD. VERNES, administrator at Union-vie and in-fire, at the Compagnie lyonnaise des magasins généraux and to the Match Company.

BARON ARTHUR DE ROTHSCHILD, of the same tribe

Jewish woman already mentioned.

In addition to these well-known figures, there were also:

ALEXANDRE ADAM, millionaire, better known for his homonyms; VISCOUNT OF SAINT-PIERRE, administrator tractor only at the Jardin d'Acclimatation; GRIOT, not widely distributed, but very millionaire; A. VALON, which is reminiscent of the father of the Jewish constitution; E. AGACHE and MARIOLLE PINGUET, newcomers in the Rothschild stronghold.

PARIS-LYON-MEDITERRANEAN RAILWAYS

Composition of the Board of Directors
Honorary President: VUITRY, former Minister of

{ See my Kings of the Republic.
b.

82 Speculation | 4883

the Empire, administrator at the National-Life and Fire at the Forges of Châtillon and Commentry.

President: Ch. Mazet', Protestant banker, administrator at Union-Life and Fire, at Austrian Paths, at the Marseille Docks, at Austrian Land Credit, at the Mortgage Bank from the United States, to the Bank of Romania, and to the Crystal Manufacturing Company.

Vice-President: BLOUNT!, President of the Com-Western Railway Company, administrative teur at Société Générale, at the Railways of southern Austria, to those of Madrid-Zaragoza-Alicante, to the Portuguese Railways, to the Che-Ottoman iron mines, to maritime transport steam, to the General Water Company, at the Jar-acclimation period.

CAILLAUX, Vice-President; former Minister of May 16, former senator.

C. DE WITT, Vice-President; Director at Southern Austrian Railways, to the Mines d'Ansin and the Grand'Combe Mines.

ALFRED ANDRE, banker, administrator at the Bank of France, at the National Life and Fire Insurance, to the Pontgibaud Mines, to the Ottoman Bank and at the Azow-Don Bank of Commerce.

CAMBEFORT, administrator at the Lyon- Company marine insurance company, in the South of France (insurance), to the steelworks and forges of Firminy, to the mines of Roche-la-Molière and Firminy, at the Mokta- Mines el-Hadid.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 83

MARQUIS DE CHATEAU-RENARD, administrators
Austrian roads.

DEMaAcuy, banker, linked with the Seillière family, administrators manager: at the Bank of France, at the National-Life and Fire, International (insurance), to Creusot Forges, at the Match Company and of the Ottoman Bank.

DENORMANDIE, Rothschild's solicitor, SENATOR at at the time of the conventions, administrator at the Natio-Life and Fire, on Austrian Roads, and to the company Le Nickel.

BARON GIROD DE L'AIN, administrator at the Che-iron mines of western Switzerland, at the Forges du Creusot, at the Eastern Saltworks.

HÉLYy D'Oissel, administrator at the coal mines and foundries of Aveyron, to the Saint-Gobain Glassworks.

BARON HOTTINGUER, already mentioned, to the Company of North.

LE BRUN DE SESSEVALLE, administrator at Central credit office, at the Forges of Commentry-Fourchambault.

BARON DE NERVO, former tax collector, Bonapartist; administrator at the Pont- mines gtbaud et aux mines de Mokta-el-Hadid.

F. NouETTE-DELORME; one of her homonyms is financial publicist.

VISCOUNT OF RAINEVILLE, administrator at the Providence (insurance).

BARON G. DE ROTHSCHILD, already cited, to the company Northern grion.

84 Speculation 1883

TEISSERENC DE BORT, senator at the time of the conventions, administrator at the railways of Madrid-Zaragoza-Alicante and the Mokta mines el-Hadid.

TRUBERT, administrator at the Forges de Commentry-Fourchambault, to insurance companies general maritime, Life and Fire, at the Docks and Warehouses in Le Havre.

Other administrators are less likely to hold multiple positions; For example: Cornudet, who could be one of Cornudet, ashamed; and Count d'Haussonville, all two millionaire owners; Jagerschmidt and Laugel, two newcomers, Count of Saloandy, a millionaire.

WESTERN RAILWAYS

Composition of the Board of Directors.

President: Eb. Blount, already mentioned.

Vice-President: DELARBRE; he can be found at the commission of the five colonial banks, administrator to the Alais Foundries and Forges and to the Crédit Foncier and agricultural in Algeria.

L. AM; here: AMÉ for short; see above, Baron of Saint-Didier. |

Count BENOIST D'Azy, administrator at the forges and the Alais Foundries, belonging to the Orleans Railways, at the Forges of Commentry-Fourchambault, at Grand'Combe Mines.

Bonnardel, administrator at the Compagnie géné-

Voulte and Bessèges, at Gaz de Lyon, at the Comptoir discount store in Lyon.

RENÉ BRICE, administrator at the General Fund families, at the Crédit Foncier et Agricole d'Algérie, at Crédit foncier de France, at Crédit foncier franco-Canadian. – The entry of this administrator into the financial companies is subsequent to the year 1877. He was a Member of Parliament at the time of the conventions.

GENERAL BARON DE CHABAUD-LATOIR, administrator-manager at the Soumak and Tafna Mines, at the Mines from Anzin, to the Docks and Warehouses of Le Havre, to Mines of Mokta-el-Hadid, at the Forges and Fonderies of Santander and Quiros, Senators at the time CONVENTIONS.

En. DELESSERT ', banker, administrator at the Bank of Indochina, at the Franco-Egyptian Bank yours, in Ecuador (insurance), at the Roads of iron from Northern Spain, to the Carriages of Paris, to the Messageries Maritimes, to the coal mines and che-iron mines of Épinac, at the Spanish Crédit Mobilier.

BARON GÉRARD, administrator at the Coal Mines of Haute-Loire, at the Jardin d'Acclimatation and also (untitled) to the Water Company. – MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT AT THE TIME OF THE AGREEMENTS.

FR. HOTTINGUER, from the family of pro-banking professionals testators who are spread across several companies. See above, at the Compagnie du Nord.

EpMonp JouBERrT ', administrator at the Bank of Paris and the Netherlands, at the Austrian Land Credit, to the Spanish Mortgage Bank, to the Bank of Italian Credit.

Here are the less common administrators, but equally millionaires:

Duke of Ayen, Chaplin and Alfred d'Ailly, owners silences; Desbrières, a former administrator from the North; Alexis Gervais, a veteran; finally, Marquis de la Valette, a political exile.

EASTERN RAILWAY COMPANY.

Composition of the Board of Directors:

President: BARON BAUDE, administrator at the . Mines of Roche-La-Molière and Firminy.

Vice-President: VAN BLARENBERGHE, a foreigner.

BARON DE BARANTE, administrator at the Salins du Noon, at the US Mines in Providence (insurance).

DAGuI!, former judge at the Commercial Court, administrator at the Discount Counter, at the France-vie, at the Forges de Chatillon-Commentry, at the Linen Industry Counter, at Crédit Lyon-born, at the Discount Bank.

DAvillier, banker; he can be found at the Bank from France, to the French and Belgian Banking Company and discount, at the National Life and Fire Insurance, at the International, at the Salins du Midi, at the Docks and Warehouses of Le Havre, at the Junction Canal of the Sambre to the Oise, to the French Sambre canalized

{ See my Kings of the Republic.

A. GROS (there is a Gros-Davullier association), Director at Société Générale.

Viscount REILLE, a financial family widespread in several companies; they are found to be directors at the Compagnie des Eaux, aux Chemins de fer d'Orléans, to the Foundries and Forges of Alès. – THE BARON REILLE WAS A MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT AT THE TIME OF THE CONVENTIONS.

'ALPH. DE ROTHSCHILD, already named.
Baron Ep. DE ROTHSCHILD, already named.

MORRISON, administrator at the Pontgibet Mines baud.

Some others, such as:

From Boischevalier, Count Foy, Gallois, Guibal, L. Lefebvre and Renaudin are newcomers; others, such as: Berthier, Baron Renouard de Bussièrès, Dollfus-Mieg and Werlé [wines of Cham(pagna), are veterans who dedicate themselves primarily entirely to the Eastern Company.

RAILWAYS OF THE SOUTH.

Composition of the Board of Directors:

President: D'Eschvalier, of the Saint-Simon family nienne; it can be found at the Union-life and fire department, at the Austrian Paths, at the Jardin d'Acclimatation, at the Salins du Midi.

Vice-President: COUNT ALFRED DE LA ROCHEFOU-CAULT. té

Épouard Bocher!, steward of the Orléans family
{ See my Kings of the Republic.

88 BITTERNESS – 41883

of millionaires; they can be found at the Crédit Mobilier of the North.— SENATOR AT THE TIME OF THE CONVENTIONS.

DAMAS JUNIOR; could this be one from Damascus, shameful to slum it?

VISCOUNT OF LA POEZE, administrator at the Che-iron mines in Northern Spain.

CH. DE LA SALLE, a name quite common in there finances, but with variations; I will limit myself to to indicate this person, administrator of Providence (insurance). ;

AL. LÉON; there is also Mr. Léon, administrator to the Northern Spanish Railways; and In 1877, there was a Léon Cunin-Gridaine.

E. MaALLET, from the family already designated.

ÉMILE PEREIRE and H. PEREIRE, representatives ac- the financial interests of the Empire's family; we see them found at the Northern Spanish Railways, to the Spanish Furniture Credit Bank, to the Railways Austrians, to the Transatlantic Company, to the Gas from Madrid, to the Montieux-Saint- Etienne, to France Incendie, to the Compagnie des omnibus, to the Transatlantic Bank, to the Company- Parisian gas company.

EuG. PuErari, administrator at the Company Belmesz coal and metallurgical mine, at the Compa- Fives-Lille gnie, at the Salins du Midi, at the Com- General market company (entered since 1877).

4 See my Kings of the Republic.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 89

SURELL, administrator at Austrian Railways, at the Carmaux Mines.

We also find: G. Samazeuille, owner and G. Thurneyssen, allied with the Pereires, two veterans; then some new ones, such as: L. Aucoc, vice-president; Bellaigue, a man of independent means; Darcel, an engineer, administrator at the General Fund of the families.

ORLEANS RAILWAYS

Composition of the board of directors:

President: ANDRAL, a newcomer since 1877 replacing Didion and Solacroup.

Vice-President: COUNT OF SAINT-AIGNAN, a veteran.

Vice-President: LacRorX SAINT-PIERRE; on the found at the Algerian General Society (in liquidation) and to the Messageries Maritimes.

Vice-President: DE VILLERS, of the Commission monitoring of the five colonial banks.

DENON pu PIN, administrator at the General Society, to the Messageries Maritimes, to the Mines of the Loire, at the Forges and shipyards of the Mediterranean, at the Ottoman Bank.

DE FourTou, former minister of May 16, was already administrator at 187%.

LEMERCIER, there are Lemerciers with and without titles nobles. With the title of count, they are found at Crédit Industriel et Commercial and at the Comptoir central credit.

90 BITTERNESS 4883

Marquis de Talhouet-Roy; a mar- is found quis de Talhouët (simple) aux Mines d'Anzin.

A. BARTHOLONI and F. BARTHOLONKI, financiers of the empire, are widespread in several societies; were, in 1877, in the Paris-Lyon company Mediterranean Sea, from where they have since come; we then finds at Providence (insurance), at Lloyd Français, at the Forges and shipyards of the Méditerranéan, at the General Market Company.

COUNT OF PEYRONNET.

BARON REILLE, of the family already mentioned.

THOINNET DE LA TURMELIÈRE, ex-MP.

VicomTE BENOIST-D'Azy, of the family already mentioned.

BARDOUXx, former minister, refugee in finance after 1877, administrator of Crédit industriel and commercial, SENATOR AT THE TIME OF THE CONVENTIONS.

CHABRIÈRE-ARLÈS, administrator at the Compagnie Lyon-based company of general stores, at Crédit Lyonnais and the Compagnie Lyonnaise d'Assurances maritime.

J. DE Waru, of the family already mentioned.

Then some new ones: Count du Martroy, owner; Lalande, administrator of Général insurance, and Vernes, already reported to the Compagnie du Nord-Northern Company.

Thus, 113 administrators were managing nearly 300 diverse companies, which encompassed the entire in-French industry and represented approximately 25 million wards, that is to say more than a third of the value that the annual inheritances agreed, in 1882, to movable capital only.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 91

But, apart from that, each of them possessed

I can say that, out of the 226 billion in capital national assessments at the end of 1882, 100 million at least 113 per-sounds |

And now, place opposite this stream-billions of dollars, the ministers and members of parliament who signed a "peace treaty" with the companies, as Raynal has already stated.

Place before these kings, first of all, this same Raynal, Jewish broker, humble commission agent from Bordeaux then Léon Renault, a financial lawyer, then Baihaut. then Rouvier, and say if the fight was possible!

Here are the stages of this struggle:

January 1882, fall of Gambetta.

March 6, consideration of the proposal Papon (general buyout); March 9, subscriptions reduced; December, death of Gambetta; July 1883, Surrender!

A relevant detail: at the time of the vote, Le Figaro (July 21) published under the title "The Plutocracy" precisely the thesis contrary to the one he had supported six months earlier under the title: "The "A world of millions!"

After that, 1 liter is hardly necessary to add that the discussion of the conventions was accompanied by agio-disordered tages on most values, y including, of course, the actions of the six major companies!

92 | Speculation 1883

The irritation caused by the conventions diverted a little attention to the bad turn that were taking charge of foreign affairs, in the East, in the West casation of Bulgaria and Tonkin, thanks to the colonial policy, decidedly adopted by the cabinet Ferry; I will have to deal with something else soon-addressing these two questions and, to avoid... To reiterate, I will move immediately to the interesting event. laughter which, once again, almost caused trouble.

Daniel Wilson, defeated, but probably not without profit, in his campaign against the compa-railway companies, were very upset by not to have absolute control over the ministry; also was he looking for an opportunity to put this one to actions with the House, in order to provoke a crisis and, consequently, a change in personnel.

Just as he had acted in the public interest, to to support the thesis of the purchase of the railway lines – (this which, for him, was primarily a means of having to distribute places and, therefore, to create a large party of civil servants) – similarly he had determined to stir up French chauvinism, no

5 Here are the courses:
Lower, higher

Eastern Railway.... (January) 687.50 748.75 (August) of P.-L.-M. (December) 1,230.00 1,622.50 (March) from the South.... (January) 41,000.00 1,195.00 (May) North... (December) 4,690.00 1,935.00 (May) d'Orléans.. (January) 4,187.50 1,325.00 (August) of the West. (April) 765.00 805.00 (March)

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 93

on the side of the Tonkinese conquests, but on the side of Germany.

Tonkin, which he once targeted, being taken over Ferry had made him odious.

Also, in collusion with General Thibaudin, that he had managed to place at the Ministry of War, he had managed to prevent a new shipment of trou-pes, but it wasn't enough.

An event, planned in fact, the passage of the king Alphonse XII in Paris, soon provided him with the opportunity desired chauvinistic sion.

Alfonso XII was returning from Germany, where Bismarck had conferred upon him an honorary command of a regiment of uhlands – a type of politeness used between royal bands, not meaning much at all– his grimaces depending on the place; that the "Order,

"You are at home here" from the gentleman who "receives" becomes: "Order, here is your regiment of the lord who "welcomes", which that does not change the fact that, if we take the formula seriously, the "receipt" "ordered" and | "welcomed" "com-
"Mandated," both would immediately be treated as "mere louts."

In any case, for the Parisian bourgeois,
Alfonso XII had nonetheless become king Uhlán! This epithet was whispered to him; immediately and as if the traveler wasn't sufficiently reminded, and by his royal smithy and by his borrowed rank,
The said bourgeois resolved to shout to his face: "Down with him!"
"The uhlan! Down with the uhlan!"

The good radicals saw this as a trick to play on ministry; Wilson saw a fine speculation in real-

04 L'AGIOTACÈ 1883

to read, the republican newspapers a good circulation; by-
From there, everyone gets carried away, each trying to outdo the other.

Having reached this point in my story, I want, for the
The rest is to give the floor to someone else; first, in order to to show how a political historian has "narrated" the events," then because this writer has preceded his narrative with a reflection justifying too well the methods I adopted, in the present work, so that I do not give myself satisfaction faction to record it.

The author I am quoting expressed himself thus:

"The only attitude that suited France at € moment when she was about to receive the King of Spain
"was a calm mixed with coldness... Going further "Far away, patriotism was prostituted from the point of view
"From Germany... but we live in the reception
. "official that was preparing... a means of com-
"Defeat Mr. Jules Ferry and that's enough."

[Here the author places the following note:]

"For the first time... we see each other "Forced to depart from the rule, that we
"We were forced to never judge people

"the gravity of the events of September 29, to the point
"from the point of view of the functioning of the constitutional regime-
"Fictional and parliamentary, forces us to act."
"violation of this rule. May we not have "Never again!"

I hardly need to point out how much
This wish was only partially fulfilled later on: in
In all cases, I insist on this point: that at some point given a writer, accustomed to following the historical routine-risk, judged that he could no longer avoid looking at

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 05

beneath the surface of public actions. If he had looked earlier, How many facts, in his eyes, remained unexplained,
would have been brought to light?

ES

=

=

BAR ARRARMRME SR

I continue the quote: |
"The signal came from who knows where... The intran-
The judges were unfortunately not the only ones to inflame popular passions: the example came from higher up, or from lower down, as one will want.

"In October 1881, the President of the Republic gave her daughter to Mr. Wilson, then Under-Secretary of State for Finance, but well-early overthrow of power with the cabinet to which Gambetta succeeded him. Since then, we have often accused Mr. Wilson of taking advantage of his situation at the Élysée Palace to serve his personal interests; accused him of interfering in a way that was too open-actively, to intrigues aimed at overthrow this or that ministry, and from it in sub-to bury another. Never, however, had audacity

Most importantly, Mr. Wilson had not put forward the name rightly (!) respected by Mr. Jules Grévy; he judged the opportune moment to resort to a process if dishonorable.

"Mr. Jules Grévy was then in the countryside at Mont-sous-Vaudrey and was not supposed to return to Paris that the day before the day set for the king's arrival from Spain. From its special correspondent in Mont-sous-Vaudrey, the Little France of Tours, organ, officially owned and belonging to Mr. Wilson, received dispatches immediately reproduced in Paris by other unofficial Elysée Palace leaflets, such as

96

The Speculation of 1883

France, the Event, etc. (Little France) also received communication of administrative acts notices sent for Mr. Jules' signature Grévy, before the Official Journal published them-bliât). These dispatches aimed at nothing less than to reveal to the public alleged dissent-relations between Mr. Jules Grévy and his ministry responsible; Mr. Jules Grévy, according to these information, did not want to receive Al-phonsus XII, and if, yielding at the last moment to Mr. Jules Ferry, who threatened him with a ministerial crisis-internal and external complications, if he admits-the principle was stated, the President of the Republic refused, at least, to submit to the training Labels required in such circumstances.

That was not the case, as one might well imagine; Mr. The President of the Republic "submitted" to everything what was "demanded" of him, but the important was to generally make people believe that the responsibility Mr. Jules Ferry's competence would be all the more heavy, all the more exclusive, in what for-could occur later, and that's what we worked. These insinuations, these assertions

"even, because it was presented as certain,
"produced all the effect that could be expected"

Mr. Wilson and the hardliners.

"Alphonse XII arrived in Paris on September 29, in the afternoon. Mr. Jules Grévy, accompanied ministers had gone to meet him at the station; only one minister was missing. that one of the war, General Thibaudin, who used as a pretext an indisposition. Upon leaving the station, a lined with whistles, mixed with shouts of im-

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 97

"worlds," welcomed the car of Alfonso XIT; the "that evening, when the King of Spain went to visit Mr. Jules" "Grévy at the Élysée, same demonstrations outside- a tiles » 1,

All of this had brought together 10,000 or 15,000 curious onlookers.

Jules Grévy apologized and the incident there were no further consequences with regard to the exterior laughing.

Inside, there were heated discussions; He spoke of a ministerial crisis, of a near-altercation. between Grévy and Ferry. The latter went so far as to request the removal of Daniel Wilson; he does not ob- only two things mattered: the (apparent) renunciation from this one to the management of Petite Franre and the General Thibaudin's retirement; as for Wilson, he remained at the Elysée Palace.

In light of these various incidents, the state of social decay that undermined the underbelly of the The nation was, however, able to emerge into the open. There was, in the ministerial newspapers, as well that in the reactionary press, a campaign furious with Wilson, so much so that he was at half abandoned by some radical newspapers; However, while stepping back a little, the latter they further alleged that through the son-in-law they wanted to reach the sacrosanct president, who "was unaware" "absolutely the abuse that Wilson, his son-in-law, was committing, "of his situation at the Élysée Palace and took for "mere slander, the accusations that we had "I was able to steal it from his attention."

"The proof," they added, "is that the President has "Given orders: 1° that no document

'André Daniel, The Political Year 1885, pages 318 to 320.

58 BITTERNESS | 4

was distracted from the files and entrusted to Mr. Wilson;
 2° so that the service of double tele- dispatches
 The charts were handed to him personally.
 Mr. Grévy; 3° so that the presidential stamp which allowed Mr. Wilson to free his correspondence
 The pond was entrusted to a reliable person!

And these precautions were so well taken that, four Years later, the same actions were still occurring.
 observed.

Here, on the other hand, is how old newspapers-courtiers changed their manner:

For example, the Lantern, after having saluted gra-esteemed the nomination of Daniel Wilson to the deputy finance secretariat?, after having helped him with unofficial notes like this one: |

"a We know the good intentions of.
 "Mr. Wilson, but seeing his inability to..."
 "to provide accurate information... elc *".

The same newspaper, I say, inserted on October 17 1883, this thread of a bittersweet tone:

"Yesterday, a new publication appeared in Dijon..."
 "Mr. Wilson: LITTLE FRANCE OF THE EAST. The "Little France of the Centre, which is published in Tours,
 "retains the monopoly on indiscretions; The Little "Eastern France must contain articles of dis-
 "percussion intended to make the populations aware"
 "Mr. Wiison's personal politics. We doubt-
 "we hope that this new organ will obtain a large
 "success; in France, we are not in favor of the

THIS

{ The National quoted by Le Paris on October 10, 1883.
 La Lanterne, January 1, 1880.
 3 La Lanterne, July 29, 1880.

"personal politics, whether it comes from Mr. Ferry
"from Mr. Wilson."

This did not prevent the same newspaper from publishing then, in about fifteen issues, an apo-General Thibaudin's book under the title: "History"
"From a minister."

However, after reading this story, if we compare Two facts: 1° the ministry's ill will towards d'Erlanger (manifested by a beginning of prosecutions); 2° Thibaudin's preference for the negotiated contracts for semi-finished supplies litanies (stated in full view of the tribune, in a form (skillful, by the way), we will understand why the days-German officials, friends of Erlanger, pretended to be at-
to give Thibaudin, the Minister of War, a hard time; Indeed, it was hoped that these attacks would consolidate the minister by making him popular, thanks to the chauvinist Overexcited nism, thus, lengthening the duration of its functions and having the time to conclude advantageouslysow a number of markets.

From this group, a fairly clear distinction emerges-Daniel Wilson's interest in retaining Thi-Baudin at the Ministry of War.

Was all of this known or guessed?

Reading the newspapers does not allow us to establish this.
clearly.

However, for the past few months, we had, more openly than before, and with more precision sion that Léon Say, reported the corrupt actions
'those of the son-in-law of the Elysée Palace', for example: employment abusive use of the presidential stamp which involved the 1 See my Kings of the Republic in the chapter Wäson,

400: Speculation 4883

postal franchise and gave, to the letters, a ca-particularly official character.

Scandalous favors were still being reported;

national palaces to friends of Wilson; trafficking in military supplies, so dear to Erlanger, which, only at that time, incurred the pre- the first threats from the justice system, which is paralyzed, moreover later, as I will explain.

Wilson's own friends accused him of... publicly displaying their corruption.

Thus, a circular concerning the election to the Congeneral seil in the canton of Moulins-Engilbert, where General Thibaudin's brother filled the mayoral duties and presented himself as a candidate republican, contained the following sentence:

"In the past, our adversaries were powerful;
"Today they have no credit with the government-
"mention. As the brother of the Minister of War,
"The mayor of Moulins-Engilbert enjoys a rep-
"undeniable position; therefore, he is called upon to exercise it"
"every day in support of some fellow citizen"
"Military or civilian;"

"He therefore dares to hope that the voters... are concerned"
"the interests of their country and those of their family"
"A thousand will be willing to prove it to him, by their sym"pathy, that they are worthy of her benevolent
"provisions"... etc.

Signed: Auguste THIBAUDIN.

This fragment of commercial literature reveals the entire course of action adopted by Wilson.

1 Le Figaro, August 8, 1883.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 401

Unable to flirt with high finance, of which he had declared himself the enemy, consequently reduced to isolated speculations; only able to make contact with those who resisted the Code, like Erlanger, or the prey for repeat offenders like Marlier; doomed, therefore, to shady dealings; nevertheless having numerous newspapers to support, actions to "to issue", but without hope of placing them through the

the influence of his stepfather, that is to say, to traffic decorations, tobacco outlets, impunity, positions, favors of all kinds, under penalty to remain unarmed in the face of the double enmity of the financial feudalism and rioting reactionaries against him.

But these people having monopolized all the means of Corruption forgotten by the law, eternal courtesan the wealthy left Wilson with little more than processes stitched "at the edge of the Code"; and Wilson persisted, risking tearing the sheet. force to pull at the edge.

In the heat of the conventions or of Tonkin, Chamber and the government did not feel pure enough to place the struggle on its true playing field; between The Élysée Palace and the Palais Bourbon were at war. of appetites where morality had no place.

Moreover, there were revelations in the air. even on the gers of the majority.

Since May, Senator Palotte had been the subject of a request for authorization of prosecution regarding the Union Mobilière affairs; since June, a his-bribe: 3-bribes, received by two deputies, treat-born in, {eg newspapers; it was 16,000 francs,

6.

402 Speculation 41883

of a Belgian case and the French financial company candle maker (which went bankrupt shortly afterwards); a infernal noise surrounding the name Boland; time lost! The accusation was never solved; it served only to divert public attention other, much more serious acts, which have remained ignored; I'm talking about the shady dealings that surrounded the project for a second Suez Canal; refusal (August), then of the concession (December), to a English company, of a telegraph cable between _ of Cochinchina and Tonkin.

We will see later what role this was to play cable.

Meanwhile, this latest concession, which is being discussed singular color being brought closer to existence (not yet revealed), from the English tinkering that I have reported when speaking of the conversion! coincided with a softening of the hostile attitude that the Times and the German newspapers had affected in these last few months.

As can be seen, this year 1883 was in Grand and extraordinary party. Immoral in Parliament, in the palace of the head of state and in that of justice, it also abounded in cheating in The circles, in private scandals? ; some, even, were stained with blood. So it is with the surrounding and unexplained cide of a hoarder of oils named Biedermann (April 14), on the occasion from which the astonished public learned about the Jews arrange things amongst themselves to raise or lower

4 See, volume II, page 68.

1 For example, the Frémy-Tual case; May 25, 1883.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 403

Extract the oils and take a portion from consumption in general, an absolutely arbitrary tithe of plutions of millions.

Despite the sugar crisis, despite the bankruptcy or the liquidation of financial companies, – disasters larger in capital than in numbers – the the issuers had not been discouraged; in 1883 they found a way to ask the scholarship recipients for... republic more than a billion.

It is true that she only responded weakly. to the requests; but, certainly, there were still the means–possessing captured by the trebuchet of the finance.

Nevertheless, the agiotagen had succeeded to make up for the reductions of late 1881, because the papiers à vignettes, despite the "jolts", had "Added" 6 billion! It is true that the others capital had hardly varied?, buildings and furniture The workers were a little idle.

In any case, the wealthy could say to themselves that by the end of the year their fortune had grown by more than

{ Issues from 1883:

State or City Loans..... 0 million 0/10
Credit institution..... 401 – 5/10
Railways and Industrial Societies. ... (604 – 4/10
!
Total, £1.005 million 9/40
Billions
D RSS
| End of 1883 End of 1883 Difference
Real estate taxes..... 420.0/10 121.3/10 + 1.3/10
– furniture..... . 74.0/10 72.9/10 + 1.9/40
DANCIEFS, eos. 35.8/10 41.8/10 + 6.0/10

Totals.....,..... 225.8/10 236.0/10 + 9 2/10

4104 Speculation 1883

Their number had remained stationary: 19 0/0 as in 1882, but only these 19% had to distribute the new increase.

The propertyless, too, had no cr nor diminished in their overall proportion; the strikes had persisted, less numerous perhaps, but more acute: there had been talk of unrest in Roubaix and in Marseille. There had also been several disasters phes; among other things, a firedamp explosion at the mines of Lalle, still poorly maintained and poorly monitored linked by the Bessèges Society.

In short, the misery had risen from 12 0/0 to 13 0/0.

Here is a summary table of these various movements
comments:

1882 1883
Owners..... 19 49
Employees..... (69 7 | 68 employees
Destitute..... ∴ 12 13 destitute
Totals..... 1400 100

It is certain that the elements of a catastrophe

How can the March demonstrations not be held?
were going to succeed, for lack of broad support from the masses;
I say the same about the excitement of September and of October, more specifically bourgeois than a-
The others were worth it.

Warnings! Threats! Trumpets of Jericho!
But the walls haven't collapsed yet!

SUMMARY. 1884. – Sated and deaf. – Deathly silence. –
Bankruptcies. – The economies. – Ferry says: there are no Crisis! – He also said: there is no such thing as illegitimate profit! –
2, 2 make 4. – Tirard's success! – The millions of Companies. – Raynal again. – Grévy's audience. – German coal. – Foville's testimony. – The Ragpickers. – Sugars. – Way of colonizing. – The Tunisian woman. – Lang-Son's lie. – Scapin.
– The Saint-Elme affair. – Lalou and Veil-Picard. – Four-Military personnel. – Matches. – Following the example of Hirsch. – Choleric agiotage. – Divorce agiotage.
– Egyptian speculation. – Influences at the Palace of Justice.
– We're talking about guano. – A lawyer executed. – War of races!

Sated, the rulers were deaf; the corruption-
It tires even the corrupt. Yet it was necessary. to act, because the 1885 elections were going to provokequer of investigations into the actions of elected officials 1881.

To give the appearance of taking action, they busied themselves; they beat the water, but in the same place and like a swimmer who drown.

To characterize these twelve months, a historian
He could only find this to say, and in a satisfied tone, Alas! To the reader's dismay:

For a year, we kept the same office;
"This is the first time since Mr. Jules' election"
"Grévy!!"

{ André Daniel; The Political Year 1884.

106 | Speculation 1884

Indeed, that was all that the legislative year could

We were full, I tell you; for when we re-
If a ministry is involved, is it for something else?
so that he can better feed in his place?

Moreover, the rulers had all the chances: they were able, making the war collaborate With cholera, eating a little human flesh.

Yes, there were 17,683 deaths that year.
more than the previous year, alongside 196 births less; also, more abundance was counted and of silence, because death does not consume and Speak even less!

It's painful to say, but the misery is acute during the winter of 1883-1884, it will decrease; at the end of the year, she will have lost 1 0/0; the owners will see their wealth increase accordingly, but their wealth will also increase.
The number of people will have decreased; on the contrary, wage labor will be remained stationary; but less paid he will be less patient and the strikes that will occur will be more serious.

I am giving, right now, the proportions that I usually register at the end of the year, because the concerns whose history I have to trace have filled the entire first quarter of 1884.

Here is the breakdown of those who own and those who do not
owners:

End of 1883 End of 1884

Owners.....	49	20
Employees.....,.....	68	and "0 68 employees
Destitute.....,.,.....	13	12 destitute

Totals.....,. 100 100

under THE THIRD REPUBLIC 107

It is certain, moreover, that 1884 was a jubilee;
Bankruptcies confirm this through their higher numbers.
than in 1883; voluntary liquidations, the re-capital reductions and, consequently, the decrease-financial or industrial companies come, at their turn, corroborate this observation.

And indeed, between the two years, the capital nationals will have decreased by nearly 12 billion.

Approximately 4 billion will represent the depreciation of the real estate sector (land and houses); the building crisis was, moreover, generally observed.

Financial capital will have lost 4 million about half liards; because of bankruptcies and reductions capital actions carried out by the companies.

It is easy for me to provide proof: here is, grouped in a table, a certain number of emissions, carried out in 1881, with their value listed at the end of 1884:

Issues of 41,881 million francs

From RE

– Their value

Payments listed at the end of 1884 Loss

Algerian Credit.....	16,800	11,760	5,040
Mortgage bank.....	35,225	35,000	0,225
3 0/0 amortizable French..	1,000,060	975,375	24,626
Crédit Lyonnais	153,000	104,000	46,000
Union mobilière	8.960	0.600	8.360
Provincial credit.....	11,750	0,000	11,750
Ferfay Mines	4,000	2,900	1,100
Pierrelatte Canal.....	5.750	0.850	4.900

16,966 bankruptcies in 1883 and 7,719 in 1884; increase of 753 in a single year.

BITTERING /

108,188%

Issues of 1881 million francs

born

errates cold fn 88e Loss
Beira Railways

Ales esse 6.128 2.875 3.253
Free docks and warehouses. Mar-

SeillB seems 1.150 0.104 1.046
The Lacemaker,..... 2,500 0,000 2,500
French steam transport

CAIS side eee ssau 11,000 6,000 5,000
French cements..... 5,250 2,000 3,250
Corbeil Mills. 24,000 5,120 18,880
Upper Rhône Cements ... 15,000 6,000 9,000
Grévin Museum..... yes 1,000 0,500 0,500
General Dairy Company. 7,875 3,075 4,800
Time-life (insurance)..... 3.418 0.548 2.870
French General Credit Bank..... 66,000 13,200 52,800
Bank of the Hungarian States. 60,000 31,000 29,000
Lyon real estate company. 8,250 7,000 1,250
Algerian company..... 5,750 4,650 1,100
Credit of France..... 54.000 0.090 53.910
Greek loan 5 0/0 89.520 81.300 8.220
Franco-Algerian Company..... b.000 1.450 3.550
Parisian bank..... 108,000 61,000 47,060
Popular savings plan 10,000 0.000 10,000
Baia de Arama Mines 11,250 0,750 10,500
Gold mines of Uruguay.... ÿ.000 0.090 4.910
Madrid-Ca- Railways

Ceres-Portugal..... 22,781 20,625 2,156 Auxiliary Company of the railways 23.550 3.300 20.2°0

Alais au Rhône..... 6.221 1.851 4.370
Eastern Algerian..... 72.191 67.256 D. 495
General Magazine of France and Al-

DODGE years 30,000 21,600 8,400
Municipal Casino of Nice... 6,586 0,000 6,586
General Society of Suppliers

military works..... : 18,000 4,200 413,800
French bitumen and asphalt

Summer cash registers 6.800 0.009 6.500
Eden-Théâtre..... 6,000 0.720 5.250

RS

Issues from 1881

Millions of francs

RE EE SNS

Their value Loss paid, listed at the end of 4884

Printemps stores 30,958 18,265 12,693
Breton beaches 6,175 0,000 6,175
Paternal Accidents..... 5,750 0,950 4,800
Agricultural insurance fund

COLGN sn seau 13.800 1.820 11.980
Cie foncière de France and from Algeria: 100,000 19,000 21,000

Crédit Maritime de France. 0.000 22.250
Obl. city of Bordeaux... 15,000 14,400 0,600
Banque Lyon et Loire..... 12,500 6,250 6,250
IRP Bank Austria. 123,000 91,750 31,250
Inland railways

Marseilles..... ; 4,500 0,000 4,500
Paris- Navigation Company

Le Havre-Lyon..... 10,300 2,800 7,500
French shoe polishes..... 3.450 2.610 0.840

2,272,948 1,531,259 741,689

Thus, in four years, out of ? billion 1/4 paid by
For him, the public will have lost nearly 750 million, that is-That is to say, three-quarters of a billion! So, finally, a proportion of 30 francs loss out of 100 francs.
requested!

That's another one-third discount!

Furthermore, it must be considered that this table contains only a small portion of financial assets
* listed.

The least affected will be movable capital.
losing roughly 3 billion: this kind of capital focuses specifically on non-negotiable debts

on the stock market, arrangements and gold

Or November 1884,

110 Speculation 1884

some unemployed, others in amortization 1.

All of this will certainly result in less concealments and forced savings.

Indeed, that is what will happen and we will see, at final budget of 1884, which was the least spent (177 million) corresponds precisely to the interest of the reduction suffered by the real estate sector, cal-set at 40/0, average rate for the year (4 billion 2/10 at 40/0 – 168 million). :

I have already had occasion to point out this fact; there is Here, the law of compound interest is applied by capital.
which amortizes, that is to say, is reimbursed by the proletariat, the taxes it pays in advance; but it does not advances them as much as he can get them replaced to stockbroker.

In support of the foregoing and which follows from only scientific investigations, I have only the choice of quotations, in newspapers or in the parliamentary debates, everyone having felt this that no one has explained.

One man only, the head of the cabinet: Jules Ferry dare to say:

"Crises? There are none; far from it (1); the "Foreign trade figures, the yield of "taxes for the end of 1883, indicate a recovery
"General affairs?"

Here is the summary:

|
1883 1884 Difference
Real estate assets 121 3/10 117 4/10 – 4 2/20
– furniture 72 9/10 70 0/10 – 2 9/10
= financial... dde 41 8/10 37 2/10 – 4 6/10
Bitumen and aslotanx A 236 0/10 224 3/10 – 11 7/10
CAiS..... no. 4884, page 16.

Eden-Théiter..

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 411

This man was speaking in January (sessions from January 24 to February 2), while nothing of what was supposed to happen to "kill" the complaints had not yet occurred; while all the islands day-nationals, without distinction of PRE, were proclaiming the crisis in the same tone:

But Ferry said, "We're after the cabinet!"

And, in the name of this political ineptitude, so be it.
For the truth! So much the worse for the nation!

However, Paris!, a friend of the cabinet, citing the American economists wanted to prove that "the wages were not solely governed by the high cost of living. – (I believe it, we forget always the rent, which inexorably absorbs the purest of work).

"Yes!" said the Lantern, "we are crossing a
"one of the most serious economic crises, an in-"industrial and commercial which necessarily weighs "with all its weight on the workers... Yes, there is "in France, in this fertile country... workers
"by the hundreds of thousands, who cannot find
"Use their arms!"

Le Figaro, for its part, acknowledged the existence of the crisis, but, always practical, found, in At the same time, the means of organizing, through a long series of special articles, the perception of a dime advertising, about those whose "troubles" he recounts.

It was MP Langlois who attached serious-the bell in the Chamber by calling out the cabinet on its economic policy.

As always, according to historians, "the debate

1 Le Paris, January 21; La Lanterne, January 18, 1884.

112 Speculation 1884

"It was magnificent!" Langlois, an eloquent and wise man, was "heard a lot", but even more so Ferry, – naturally.

Or Ferry said the following beautiful things:

"For me, there are no illegitimate benefits."
"Eliminating the risk element in profits"
"of capital... would be a beneficial reform... I
"I would be ready to do it... and if someone showed me
"that, in the current organization of society, it
"There is an obstacle to its realization,"
"This obstacle, I would join you in the
" overcome. "

So it's clear: Capital? No risks! All
The risks to the labor that feeds capital!
and finally, there are "no illegitimate profits"!

These are the theories of the "beautiful debate".

Nobody said:

- Sorry! Ferry, 2 and 2 make 4.
- No, not, Ferry would have replied, ? and ? make 22.
- Well!
- The first one? is the capital; the second one? 2 is the work. You can see that I take the two.
- Not at all, you're devouring one!
- Not at all, I said 2 and 2.
- Yes, but your first 2? is worth ten times the second.
- It's capital! What? Would you like by
By chance, put the second one in place of the first?

"Who was underneath," as Danton used to say?

- Calm down, Ferry, and listen: the first
- 2. Capital would not exist without the second, 2. Labor;

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 413

But what about the second? Would the work exist without the first? capital; why is the one that is worth the least worth the more ?

- Because it's capital!

- And the other one?

- Because it's work!

And a facetious one, having slept very "attentively", but, awakened by the silence of the end, would have exclaimed:

"Two and two? Not very clever! The two hens!"

There you have it, stripped of parliamentary frills, the skeleton of what Ferry replied to what Langlois "could have said," instinctively appropriating the quia est in eo oirtus dormitioa" of the doctor by Molière.

However, as the Ferry meme has textual-added: "There are no social reforms" "deeper than those that begin with the "Reform of ideas and morals," I... will allow me to point out to him that the ideas and the Customs are the result of social organization. His words only concealed this foolishness: FOR "CHANGE THE OUTCOME, DON'T TOUCH" TO THE CAUSES | »

In short, the comedy ended with a semblance investigation and the absence of any reform.

However, Jules Ferry's optimism had to to be insulted in what affected him deeply more than popular interest: I want to talk about the loan issued by Tirard on February 12th.

Very convinced of the public's discomfort, whatever the said the President of the Council, the Minister of finance did not want to expose itself to failure payments, that is to say, instead of contacting the small savings, I gave preference to the under- his writings were completely free. It was an admission that he relied solely on the big capitalists; and even then, among these, he also knew he had point to hoping for the assistance of anyone who might have connections with major railway companies iron.

4114 Speculation 1885

It was in these circumstances that the tap of the 3 0/0 amortizable, having reopened, let 350 flow millions of papers, against which no payment was made directly about 90 million, the rest having been so through the establishments of credit which, more or less "interested" in business of the government, lent him their support; he This number must include Crédit Foncier, the Discount counter, Crédit Lyonnais, Crédit industrial and commercial, the Franco- Bank Egyptian and various other holding establishments to Algeria; the first, because he was under the The minister's legal dependence; the others, because that they were incessant solicitors of favors or concessions.

In total, there were 92,320 people in France who subscribed, by paying in full the the amount requested and 20,421 who paid only a portion; in total 115,741 subscribers; we we are now far from the 934,276 subscribers to the loan of 1872!

In any case, we can measure by comparing these numbers, at 6 or 7 million personal ratings- new movable assets, what was, in reality, the state of concentration of national wealth.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 115

This did not prevent historians from declaring, following their usual routine, that "this result "accused of the existence in France of reserves "Considerable sums of money, left available" € due to the stagnation of business.

Then, still "blind," they added: (without "Without the bankers' support, the loan would have failed."
Because it was too expensive!

However, in fact, this 3 0/0 was, by its rate (76.60),
of 3.91 0/0.

At the same time as this deficit loan, the railway companies were also opening their ticket windows; we remember, in fact, that "under "the state guarantee," they borrowed to to carry out the work that the government had openly renounced it.

Noting this fact, the same historians have writing :

"Open-window bond issues"
"in the railway companies had a
"The success that, not knowing what to do with the money
"Having fallen into their hands, the companies had to..."
"Place it in a current account at 1 and at 1 1/20; 0?"

No one understood how much this circumstance affirmed, once again, the concentration of fortunes in the hands of high finance, nor above all, how absurd it was to admit that the State credit was less directly appreciated that being hidden behind a guaranteed intermediary by him!

Official economists have nonetheless

! The political year 1884, page 40.

2 The political year 1884, page 40 (note).

416 Speculation 4884

continued to assert that the fortune was very divided in France, and that the masses preferred the initiative private companies protected from state interference!

Moreover, all of this is corroborated by the total emissions figure, more than one billion, in of which private initiative accounts for approximately nine tenths!

The insolence of financial feudalism, encouraged to assert itself again.

On March 8, a member of parliament from the North developed a Questioning regarding a very important strike recently reported in the Anain Mines.

Raynal replied to him in substance "that the gou-
"The government could do nothing about it; it was not for him."
"It is not possible to interfere in a contract of "hiring of services; that, moreover, the profits
"of the company had greatly diminished; that in-"Ultimately, this resulted from a series of eco- phenomena
:"nomicals out of the reach and of the government "and the company."

On that note, a trusting agenda!

Thus rejected by the Chamber, the complaints of Minors addressed the head of state; a hearing
Having been assigned, the delegates said the following:

"Is it fair that mine workers, after "twenty or thirty, or even forty years, be "Driven from their jobs? That's what this scan- referral is about."

'Here are the broadcasts from 1884:'

Loans from the State or cities. 480 million 5 10
Credit institutions 955 - 0/10
Railways and Industrial Societies 682 - 7/10

Total issinssssssussse 4.118 million 2/10

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 417

"Worried servants in the service of the commanders"
"companies which is the primary cause of the strike.

And not only have we revoked the old tra-
"Vailleurs, but also other well-known workers"
"through their efforts to organize trade unions" € of mine workers.

We recall that a law known as the "union law" professionals had been voted on by both rooms.

The delegates added:

"Regarding the issue of wages and abuses
"the cries we are suffering... we are char-
"They are eager to demand a sincere investigation... that's..."
"That is to say, made by the workers."

Finally, as a sanction, the same delegates from-they were calling for a law SETTING A MINIMUM WAGE.

Nothing could have been easier than voting for such a law regarding mining concessions, these being governed by specific legislation which sufficiently armed the government.

Or Grévy argued, like Raynal: "respect "contracts, laws, foreign coal, the "Necessary savings!"

It really wasn't worth it to have agreed
An audience to Judaize in this way!

The truth was that, in order to satisfy the workers,
It would have been necessary to target the high-ranking officials... and /a
The Republic didn't dare!

Anzin is, in fact, nothing more than a fiefdom royal maintained in France since 1717 and protected at through all the revolutions; its first feudal lords were the Prince of Croy, the Marquis of Cernay, However, they have become depraved, for reasons of "profits".

g

118 Speculation 1884

with the commoners Desandrouin, Taffin and Cordier.

I already said that the Anzin penny had reached a fantastic value, that the profits created had numbering in the tens of millions; I would add that the steering committee, in office at the time of the strike included members of parliament and "not the least influential."

Ordinary, honest people would have noticed the facts and would have rendered justice to the claims female workers; nobody had thought of that.

However, writers not beholden to socialism, far from it! revealed the situation true from the Anzin company:

"As things stand (said the Capitalist)*, the government
"d'Anzin extends its monopoly over nearly 30,000 hectares"
"defects; it owns eight large concessions and
"does not exploit one-twentieth of its im-
"Menses riches."

In another issue, the same newspaper had noted that on more than eight different occasions, the the Anzin management had not granted any increases tions that were constrained and forced by the strikes.

Thus the strikes of 1833, 1836 and 1837 had each time, they snatched an increase of 11 0/0 on the wages of workers; that of 1846: 15 0/0; that of 1847: 10 0/0; that of 1866: 90/0; those of 1872 and 1873, each 8%; in total from 1833 to 1873, 83% increase in wages; however, it is after these hard-won increases force that, in 1875, the dividend of the denier was

See volume I, page 238.

2? See the Capitaiste of April 2 and May 7, 1884.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 4119

40,000 francs and the price of the same ONE MILLION TWO ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND FRANCS, clear proof that the strikes and the wage increases had not never ruined the company.

"

(4

"For ten years (the same newspaper added), the wage fluctuations have not been significant modified the figure from 1873.

Indicating the causes of the 1884 strike, the same he still expressed himself thus:

"

"This is the first time that a strike, which reaches 15,000 workers clustered together, and consequently, more than 60,000 individuals, extends into pa- These conditions... despite the poverty...

"Who is responsible for this strike?"
and why did the company, in its remarks, make such comments?
released, raised these serious salary issues and job security, on the eve of the discussions parliamentary sessions on pension funds and on the responsibility of employers in this regard accidents?

OC. + + + + + . . + + +

"The Anzin management company, threatened in its old pros-perished, could no longer fight against the competition rence of the coal mines of Pas-de-Calais, of which she had managed to delay the operation for more half a century; she was also im-powerful in combating German coal prices orders on the Eastern markets. Not wanting to reduce its profits, it needed to reduce the price of return, that is to say, to cut back on the hand-of work. The management team in Anzin imagined

4. Capitalist of March 5, 1881.

420 Speculation 4884

"to inaugurate its recent advent with a rem-
"denial of old working methods leading to "a decrease in the number of workers.

Nearly 600 workers employed at "the maintenance of the galleries and it was put in charge of "miners proper, not only
"the coal mining, but all the work
"accessories, making them, moreover, solely responsible-
"sands from these works and accidents which occur-
"would come within a radius of one hundred meters of " construction site.

ARR

€ + . + . + . .

"The dismissal of these two groups of workers constituted-killed a net saving for the company of 600,000 francs per year.

This is how a special financial body
The capitalist explained the causes of the strike. And this-
Meanwhile, the House remained unmoved.

Now, do we want to know in the middle of which
What "economic system" did the Anzin management operate?

This is yet another opponent of socialism who will see for themselves; the figures I am about to give have were published by Mr. Alfred de Foville, in his Séareasoned and comparative analysis of France eco-economic!

French consumption, this author says, has raised in 1884 to 30,941,000 tonnes of coal; the French production, at 20,024,000 tonnes. The deficit production on consumption was therefore 10,917,000 tonnes.

'Armand Colin, publisher, 1887.

the real reason for the strike.

R TO

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 191

So it wasn't demand that was lacking.
but rather the production alone; consequently Anain, like others, only had to extend, and not to restrict their exploitation.

This is where the railways come in, which prefer,
by a large margin, transporting German coal,
English, Belgians, etc., than to transport coal
French.

Therefore, imports exceeded the consumption deficit, in the proportions the following, as recounted by Mr. de Foville (page 181):

Coal imported from Belgium.... 5,733,000 tonnes
– from England... 4,260,000 –
– from Germany... 1,618,000 –
– other countries... 7,000 –
Total..... 11,678,000 tonnes

However, for foreign coal, as for many other goods, the companies of Railways grant favorable treaties which they refuse to allow for French products!

Foville himself states that the average price of the ton at the place of production, was, in 1884, 12 francs 33 centimes, and at the place of consumption, of 21 francs 17 centimes. From then on, it suffices to read the accounts–annual reports of most companies French coal mines in the center to observe that foreign coals come to compete with them there–reference at 12 francs and sometimes even at 9 francs ton, transport included!

However, France can be self-sufficient, if it wants to exploit all its deposits and put an end to the protection of foreigners, a practice that is constantly being carried out by the French railway companies ga–state-backed pensions |

192 Speculation 1884

And even French consumption... would exceed its production capacity, I would add that, whatever the price at which France would buy at The foreigner, what she would miss, she would still have a considerable benefit: that of making more people live of 100,000 families that wither away and perish.

It's true, the upper class would be less wealthy! 11
It is true that in order to balance all interests, for ensuring the life of everyone, even the elderly parasites, it would be necessary to address them simultaneously almost all laws, especially those which govern property; is it therefore impossible?

To say out, one would have to dare to assert that the feu–The quality of gold could not live without devouring annual–lying 100,000 families; yet, no one dares to admit this, We wrap ourselves in hypocrisy and "amuse" ourselves by mis–

pital; if, by "whipping them a little fori" one manages usually to make a temporary "ointment", A little rest soon restores the separation-tion; also, it is only at the cost of threshing repeated that the masters hope to maintain the amal-game!

And that is why, on April 8, a member of parliament questioned-milk the government on the intervention of the force army in the Anzin strike.

As if to encourage this "concise" attitude "Liente" of the ruling class, Le Figaro' published omitted articles entitled "the secret of the strikes", where it was simply stated that Germany

'Figaro of April 16, 1884.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 193

had to subsidize the 60,000 dying families of hunger, so that their unemployment would facilitate the entry of German coal!!!

Le Figaro was mistaken: the subsidized ones were, not the families of the workers, but the administrators French railways, knowing that the price The average price per ton in Germany was 5 francs 75 centimes. found greater profit in transporting coal German, thus making them pay their dividends by the 60,000 starving families of Anzin.

Who knows, even, if Anzin didn't buy char-Good German for speculating like the others? This This type of international operation is familiar to Financial parasitism; profit is of little importance to him. Direct or indirect, as long as there's a profit? And then: "There is no such thing as illegitimate profit," he had said. FERRY!

This is also what the Jew Camondo thought, when-that he used speculation to monopolize the Portuguese roads; This affair, moreover, was quite noisy; brought together French and Portuguese partners, and the newspapers, the most "uptight" ones, have there-amassed some rich subsidies - a windfall of-rare occurrence in 1884:

and public passivity were disheartening to workers; these could, in fact, recall what a fuss there had been about the famous garbage bins designed by Prefect Poubelle.

They could compare attitudes and the press and millionaires, because they had been able to read, the January 24, in the same Figaro that accused them to play into Germany's hands:

124 L AGIOTAGE 1884

"Given the difficult situation faced by "ragpickers, much sympathy goes out to these
"disinherited; that is how, yesterday, the Baroness"
"de Rothschild had distributed to these unfortunate people, by "His steward, a sum of 4,000 francs!!!"

But is that really it? Wouldn't it be more accurate to say...
4,000 francs for advertising, charged to overhead of a sponsorship granted to the manufacturers of
Are garbage cans now mandatory?

– Why not?

– While interests were being sacrificed in this way more respectable, those of the miners of Anzin, in in particular, and those of the non-property owners in general, that is to say, the interests of 80% of the population, the same ones who found it impossible to legislate in favor of the proletariat found it very possible to eto promote favoring the wealthy.

Thus: the credits for the Séné railway-gal; thus: the financial agreement with the bey of Tunis; thus: the law on judicial sales of im-furniture (March).

Thus: the law on sugars, the credits for Mada-Gaspar (July) and for Tonkin (August), not to mention all the "accessions" to the different chapters of the budget. |

Of the two laws, one concerns judicial sales one on buildings and the other on sugars – modifications agreeable to the propertied classes – the last only tra-towards some discussions; all the owners buildings have a common interest against the mass, but the same cannot be said of farmers, bet-

I will not go into the details of these laws, which

Cm

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 195

The burden still weighs on the people; I will only say—the fact that this discussion highlighted the appeals children of the Say, Soubeyran, Lebaudy, and pre-Wilson received some small profits, which he found the instrument in the Fives-Lille Company, where He became an administrator.

Apart from these two laws, all the others, as we have seen, were related to the design general, known as: "Colonial Policy."

To fully understand how parasitism opportunist understood the colonial system, one must referring to one of his attempts, that one having failed, She was so extraordinary!

At the end of the previous year, the Algerian deputies nothing had been found to be better, so that the The African colony finally benefited the metropolis, that to claim from it 50 million intended for expro—to ask the natives to build villages, etc.

It was impossible to demonstrate better that all the Jewish community established there with great support from various cessions, such as the Franco-Algerian, the Crédit foncier el agricole d'Algérie, the Bank of Algeria, among others, far from being useful to the country, had completely ruined him.

The MPs, banned from the Chamber, are demonstrating They expressed their outrage in a letter made public in January 1884, and things remained there.

However, Ferry requested these fifty million would certainly have supported if, having embarked in the "damned galley" of Tonkin, he had not constantly needed to start over, alongside the Parliament—Argante, all the tricks of Scapin.

It was understood that France was not doing the war; in this regard, I recall the theory of the expé-Tunisian edition: sending armed troops there, this it wasn't waging war, because the soldiers, at Instead of fighting against, they fought with the Bey.

So no conquest, because conquest would have imposed on France all the responsibilities of finances of the Regency, which did not exist with the simple protectorate.

But then, suddenly, in May, Tirard declares having "concluded, with a bankers' union, a "arrangement under which the Tunisian debt
"was converted into bonds issued in the name of the
"Bey and by the bankers!!"

Was it legal? Yes.

A law of April 11th had made France the GUARANTEE of a loan intended to repay or convert the consolidated debt, amounting to 120 million and the floating debt, up to a maximum of 17,550,000
francs!

This legal operation, carried out without publicity, nor competition, greatly indignant Soubeyran, who had no was not; he explained himself before the Chamber;
She, alas! remained indifferent and collaborated, Once again, at the apotheosis of the bankers (between others, those of the Discount Bank and the Credit industrial and commercial), allowing them everything, even to achieve the Union of professional trade unions-nels, so dreaded, when it comes to French workers
This country, so applauded, is particularly popular when it comes to protectors.
Tunisians.

In any case, the convoluted system used at to lead the Tunis expedition, the financial annexes

{ Political year 1884, page 81.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 427

the secrets that gradually emerged there should have to enlighten the House on the subject of Tonkin.

Full stop. She got carried away. Only a clap of thunder.
will one day shake off its torpor.

In the meantime, she voted for all the appropriations to the single file. We invented special expressions for him-cials to distort the truth; in China, by
For example, we fought against it, but it wasn't "War" was "the state of reprisal"! and France's money was still flowing, often reddened by the blood of his soldiers!

Meanwhile, in Cahors – like Gambetta –
Ferry had made his own apology and declared, April 14, that "the Tunisian protectorate was conso-
"idea" (which was true for the debt), but that "The Tonkin expedition was almost finished." which was false.

A friendly newspaper, Le Paris, had, shortly previously, published at the last minute, to better
To impress, the following communication:

"In recent days, we have stated that the
"the government would merely demand an in-
"China's compensation, when we had occupied
"Hong-Hoa."

The New York-Herald publishes a telegram
"from Hong Kong, according to which France is considering-– "would occupy Lang-Son, etc... , we affirm
"again, the telegram in question is from
"pure fantasy, and we repeat that the operations
"can be considered as completed in "four or five days, that is to say after taking
"Hong-Hoa."

'Paris, April 5, 1884.

198 Speculation 4884

However, on June 12, the same newspaper stirred up further fueled desires by publishing a long article on the mineral wealth of this magnificent country, when, all of a sudden, "the disaster of "Bac-Lé" "a detachment of the experimental corps-
"The director had been tasked with going to occupy Lang-
"Sound!!!"

The reader should note the "contra-the kind of language with which one spoke of "telegrams of " fantasy ".

In any case, given these contradictory pieces of news,
Well-informed investors had nothing to lose, and Throughout the year, there were more fluctuations or less important?

However, this was under the influence of Bac-Lé's failure that, on August 14, the House had to vote on a credit of 88 million, deposited since May and that a Agenda of confidence, signed Antonin Proust and Sadi-Carnot, was granted to the ministry.

We can see the scene from here; it was written by Molière:

Argante has just witnessed the dreadful threats of the
The swordsman Syloestre, having left, Sapin said to Arganle:

'The political year 1884, page 141.
Here are some courses:

Higher Lower
D '0Disissmsemons serves 79.22 75.40
3 0/0 amortizable 82.00 76.27
& 1/2 0/0 new 109.15 105.25
UTC RSR D of 9.95 7.50.
TA TIGN EE A ne ur neo 99.45 91.00
ERYDUCR Series kills 348.00 285.00

TURISIED, esse. 530.00 474.50

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 129

"Scapin. – Well, you see how many "People killed for two hundred pistoles? Now then,
"I wish you good fortune..."

Argante. – Scapin!...

Scapin. – What?

Argante. – I resolve to give both hundred pistoles |

Someone backstage had, quite unintentionally,
Moreover, he contributed to this excellent result.
Daniel Wilson; he had not given up; of The Élysée Palace occasionally received blows that Ferry appeared as best he could.

In June, regarding Corsica, an inter-
The appeal had been brought to the podium. A journalist-list: Saint-Elme, had been imprisoned, then was death in unusual circumstances;
magistrates had been involved in the affair; favors, Biases and preferential treatment had been revealed.
in newspapers and during debates, no more nor less odious than those kept hidden in France, well that they were also frequent there. Respect for the law, the love of fairness, the cult of probity, had not
It had nothing to do with the arrest; it was a simple a scheme hatched by the loser of the demonstration anti-Alphonsist.

Ranc, in Voltaire (reproduced by Paris,
June 10th}, had described the session:

"The far left," he wrote, "applauded
"with enthusiasm, Mr. Andrieux emptied his pocket"
"In a fit of anger; Mr. Goblet was fidgeting on his bench. A
"Every slander, every insult, every ou+ rage launched against the ministers, Mr. Wilson, "son-in-law of the President of the Republic," he said

130 Speculation 1884

A signal for applause... Mr. Wilson, moreover, understood, but too late, the mistake he had made-
"The attempt to uncover oneself; on the third day it is not
"He didn't come; he stayed in the background."

All that history has gained from this honest debate
The key is to be able to observe that Wilsonians, Ferry supporters, Choiseul supporters were no better some more than others; that, under their administration, the same "squandering of state funds" and the same "judicial leniency" had been practiced.

But the Chamber, confronted with these individuals reciprocal kindnesses, no longer lives, in his ministry, that a victim has been odiously mistreated...

A few tens of millions more to pay!

Daniel Wilson's political-financial stock trading had, on the other hand, a preamble outside of the Chamber.

By judgment dated March 29, 1884, the Ban- that national, with a capital of 30 million, had been declared bankrupt. This same bank, we're talking about... he remembers, had been the target of an attempted takeover- ment from Gambetta's friends in 1882!

During the 1883 inventory, it was noticed that, pre- since that time, the newspaper's actions France and the operating shares of Le Petit Journal had disappeared from the portfolio; since 1883, the Financial Week (special newspaper) and the Correspondent universal dance had also emerged from it.

It was also recognized that, although this "cor- respondance would have been constituted as a separate company

{ See volume IF, pages 32-33,

AR

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 431

with a capital of one million francs, in September 1883, (a time when the intrigues of the Élysée Palace had prevailed) their full capacity), the National Bank seemed to have resumed the management on February 20, 1884, because in a In a circular, she announced that she was reorganizing her financial statements dependent on the Correspondence uniorssself.

However, the president of the bankrupt bank was a named Lalou, who was also the newspaper's director France, and also involved in the affairs of the Bank loans to industry.

The situation of this last bank had pro- invoked the intervention of the justice system, caused a- request for authorization to prosecute the sena- Professor Palotte (whom I have already mentioned) and, finally led to his resignation, announced in good place, by Paris, in its issue of

A little while before, a campaign had begun.
by France against the ministry, on the occasion of the Corsican affairs; but, suddenly, on June 10th, at the moment when Ranc was presenting the game in Voltaire France cut short its coalition controversy.

Immediately, the entire editorial staff left this
The newspaper and the Zintransigent of June 12th printed this which follows:

"The following letter has just been sent by
"Mr. Ernest Judet to Mr. Charles Lalou, director"
"French policy:

1 All these details are taken from the special newspaper the Capitalist, issue of April 16, 1884.

1432 Speculation 1884

" Sir,

"The campaign undertaken in France with your full support approval, along with that of the editorial board, on the Corsican affairs were suddenly halted by you, when the debate that had been ongoing for two months was brought before the Chambre, after having captivated the entire French press.

"I don't have to assess purely moral reasons" private individuals who impose this silence on you and show solidarity with a in such an unforeseen way the cause of France with that of the mid-Ministry.

"The public will decide between the director sacrificing a politics, preoccupied with his personal affairs, and journalism-an independent list that refuses to break its pen or to sell it.

This letter, written in a very dignified tone, moreover, says already a long time for those who know how to read between the lines; but a controversy arose between France and Paris came to add some clarity.

Around June 15th, says France (which Paris has not accepted the talks with Lalou; the latter was buying Paris, merged it with France, but wanted to retain political control. There, it seems, was the stumbling block.

Veil-Picard, by agreeing to sell his newspaper, . requested that his entire draft be included in the new combination, but he didn't want the Lalou's direction. At the heart of the disagreement, there is Wilson certainly had it, who would have been obliged to renounce the support of the merged newspaper, at the moment where it would have fallen into the hands of his adversaries saries. :

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 133

Val-Picard kept his journal, Lalou his; Unpleasant words were exchanged; a duel followed and, finally, on June 26, Paris launched this final blow:

"It is on August 5th that he will come, in front of the 11th "correctional chamber, one of the trials which await-
"Mr. Lalou's tooth. We hope that, this time, this "will be without discount".

Things, however, never turned out tragic, because Lalou was still, in 1888, the director from the newspaper La France, but, at least, it did not ob-
The decorations were perfect!

The Wilson agiotages, the Lalou agiotages, the Veil-Picard agiotages, the Palotte agiotages, that's it the "behind-the-scenes" of the votes that prolonged the madness Tonkinese women, resulted in aggravations taxes, and led the people to demoralization stations and the abject miseries that I will have to witness in the following years.

I can't think of a stronger argument against the theory of those who want to govern men instead of simply administering things, for the greatest general utility.

How can one not see that between things and their usefulness we maintain an obstacle called Individual capitalism?

Eliminate this affront to reason, which disguises

Speculatory immoralities will disappear in the same way cut.

So we won't see any more arrests on the Corsica; then we won't have to worry about the ovens anymore military information and "conditions of awarding"

VOLUME I, &

134 Speculation 1884

tions", as took place in the House on the 28th and February 29th, and we will no longer have to search for whether Qun Jewish banker from Besançon was, whether out or not, gone—"Extremely favored."

Then we will no longer have to raise hypo— debates criticisms, as were those of May and June, where, while pretending to fight the monopoly of matches, we were preparing its consolidation.

Indeed, after a farcical two-bid auction public spaces where no one showed up, a system which, to be the opposite of that of the four supplied their military personnel heard together to offer a 'same price', is no less unfair in its As a result, the minister had to deal with it again. the former monopoly, that is to say with the Mallet family, Hottinguer and other honest millionaires, who had been forgetting for nine years to pay (to the treasury of less), © millions of royalties belonging to the year 1875; an oversight which, moreover, the governments Nants had never alluded to it!

Then we won't have to ask ourselves why anymore. after raising a serious claim of several million owed to the Treasury by the companies of railways, for overpayment received on the occasion of the military transports carried out in 1810–1871, and after appointing a rapporteur, who had reported scandalous facts, in his 1883 report (year of the conventions), silence fell completely blow; so much so that the only crime of which the Chamber of 1884 almost caused concern (October), was the one attributed by Raspail to the said companies, to prevent their agents to accept municipal positions!

However, these honorable military men had did exactly what Hirsch had done against the Türkiye, and which I have already described; they had,
Taking advantage of the general confusion, collected the entire fee where half price, where only half and quarter were applicable!

And these people, whom we should shoot, we gouvernent|

Anyone who approaches them is rotten; they sweat
Speculation! They imitated Hirsch and they made Raynal.
Their example is, moreover, disastrous! What? The Did the high barons speculate on the war? Perhaps.
From then on, they speculated about cholera! And so it was done: the scourge that struck the South so cruelly and provoked ministerial trips, nonetheless raised a matter of sanitation work and, at the heart of
In this case, I will soon find some shady dealings, some Venalties, extortion?

Speculation, again, all the discussions on the divorce!

This reform, however, appeared to everyone like a law of social hygiene, it did not hide it less so, beneath its philosophical arguments, psychological and especially philopedic, rapacious combinations that we didn't dare and that no one has dared to denounce.

The Lombard report contained extraordinary details;
for example, a shipment of potting soil, worth 86 francs, from Calais to Poissy, had paid for transport 719 francs 85. – Rifles were being sent from Nevers to Clamecy, 80 kilometers, and the Ministry of War paid a par-80-league course! etc.

The case of the health vouchers in Marseille, which I am handling...
Cupera in 1886.

Divorce, like death, dissolves associations.
tions; that of marriage, a formidable civil society-privileged status, was dear to the propertied classes; deliver to sexual passions the breaking of a contract, golden most often, to return to a woman the gold that one has Received to perform the act of legal prostitution!
This was difficult for a crowd of brides, dowries on-
All !

Well! That was the real cause of the hesitation.

legislative, because, ultimately, respect for the contract Morally, marital fidelity was the least of our concerns Opponents! Ask Jules Simon!

_ So, first of all, this method was found a wonderful term: the judge's arbitrary power, which could at her discretion, refusing the divorce while granting the separation; but this leaves the husband in the hands of the close monitoring of wealth, even dowry, and on knew full well that, when it came to large sums of money, things would happen, exactly, as for Big business! – Only in the long run, we will create a three-year period, sufficient time for that the owner of the property had the means to to return; as for the moral concern of thus constituting, a period of trial, nobody, right? didn't take it seriously |

Do you want another example? This one is a international speculation.

English rule was not a happy one in Egypt; a prophet: the Mahdi, a negotiator mysterious: Gordon, had singularly em-muddied the waters. A conference had been convened.
summoned; at this conference, Waddington and de Bli-
The delegates were gnières; and this thing was seen

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 437

Surprisingly, two old political courtiers English to resist, fiercely, the plans financiers of the English plenipotentiaries.

The fall of the Gladston cabinet: which will happen
The following year, he will explain this whole charade, if we remember that Gladstone had replaced Disraeli, the minister for the Jews. France this time, there was no material damage to

"by its firm stance against England"(?) in received a new affront.

What will I say now, if, as I do
Each year, I study the attitude of the magistrature?

There, too, the servility of intentions had become glaringly obvious.
a thousand ways, under the pressure of con- influences traditional ties between the ministry and the Élysée Palace.

Thus: A magistrate, during a criminal trial-rectional, directed against the Crédit de France and a named Lepelletier (the latter well regarded in a a certain party), had been forced to make the declaration-following tion:

"The court regrets that action was taken with regard to..."
"From him came influences and recommendations which,
"far from being useful to the defendants, they will not be able to-
"would only harm them, because they seem to be a
"An indirect admission of guilt!"

Shall I cite examples? Shall I speak of the trials of Zodiac, in which two MPs were involved: Ma-Rius Poulet and Brutus Bouchet, as were Lalou and Palotte in those of the Loan Bank at Le Figaro, January 17, 1884.

138 Speculation 1884

Industry, as Blanchard was in the Great insurance company.

I am setting aside the Erlanger trials, which were genuine novels, containing, in themselves, all the rivalries governmental matters, which I will be dealing with at the time of their outcome.

Sometimes an investigating judge would issue a warrant:
to bring, and, this mandate remaining a dead letter, a
the president had him executed in open court.

Such was the adventure of the speculator Mary Raynaud; judged by the same president who had denounced the steps taken regarding Crédit de France, he was sentenced to prison, no matter! One day we of his sorrow.

Threatened that same year, Savary, the man of the Bank of Lyon and the Loire, to, nevertheless, the time to disappear after unfortunate trials.

Finally, and this is strange! the ancient trials of Auguste Dreyfus, friend of Grévy and the guanos, who had always been favored by the "silence of the press", emerge into the open, only in 1884; indeed, Le Figaro, which had been largely silent until then, could-blyait, in November a piece of pleading where the persistent influence exerted by the former lawyer des guanos, who became President of the Republic, was skillfully but clearly denounced!

Was this then to enlighten public morality?
Not at all! It was revenge for the arrest.
about Corsica!

But all this disgusted public opinion; so this last-

See my Kings of the Republic, Volume 2, page 325, and Figaro, November 18, 1851.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 439

to express one's feelings about the mistakes or the failings of the sitting judicial staff, standing, swaying in the solicitor's office, the no-silence or the bailiff, had seized the opportunity of a trial in the assize court.

An unfortunate man, victim of a miscarriage of justice, not contested by the prosecution, but of which he had not never able to obtain legal recognition, exasmoreover, he was frustrated by his inability to paralyze the unjustly directed prosecutions, nonetheless.
against him, by a lawyer, had fired two shots at him revolver shots.

Despite a harsh indictment, the jury delivered His acquittal!

Meanwhile, another movement of opinion had began to manifest itself.

All around France, anti-Semitism had established groups had worsened their attitude by refusing to pass a law authorizing mixed marriages, that is to say, between Jews and Christians.

In France, for the first time since All-senel, a special newspaper had conducted a campaign anti-Semitic. The Jews had felt the need to defend themselves; a work entitled "The Mission of "Jews" had been loudly applauded by several newspapers, criticized by others.

Unfortunately, instead of understanding that the anti-Semitic sentiment has its cause in the hor-inspired by parasitic vice, more odious-Catholicism, practiced by the Semitic Israelites, cism, in France as in Hungary, did not seek there

* Pagot-Benoît-Lucy case, June 15, 1884.

440 Speculation 41884

that a means of sharpening, to his own advantage, an antagonist racialism. It was to bestialize the feeling of Honor!

Yet something emerged from it: a symmetrical reaction to the enthusiasm of 1875 com-threatened to rise up against the Jewish constitution born in this era and, although this reaction was not declared at the August congress, which voted for the revision meticulously limited, I will soon realize-to stifle its progress, because, better than all the dis-course, actions and results will begin to to open the eyes of the people.

VI

The Tarpeiah Rock

1885 – 1886 – 1887

SUMMARY 1885. – Royal villainy. – Factory of silence.
– Wilson's revenge. – The fake telegrams. – Ferry succumbs. – The two cables. – Secret language.
– An English Wilson. – The Beijing station. – The coup

His own. – Military unemployment. – Universal peace. –
Interior design agencies. – Justice in the South of France. –
Barraia and Wilson. – Contrasts. – Baker in Tunis. – Gaudissarism. – Lighting? By gas. – Coal of Tonkin. – Airs of a grand lord. – End of a Class. – The Jews. – In Saône-et-Loire. – Victor Hugo.
– Strikes. – Elections. – A threatening error. – Grévy extended.

The story of the three years that will follow – supreme years, moreover! – will turn around of three men!

Two of them have been struggling for a long time:
Jules Ferry and Daniel Wilson; behind them Jules Grévy looks on, having only the three worries of this Royal villainy: pile up, pile up, pile up!

449 Speculation 1885

However ugly, absurd, and sickening it may have been, in her widowhood, devoid of any plumed helmet, Celtic a caricature of royalty, it further fueled the convoisises, and the two champions of French shame-
The people I mentioned earlier, were not trampling the people only to defeat each other.

Despite everything, but perhaps too late. for the France, each of them will find their Tarpeian Rock and the final blows of their battle will not come than to throw out of the Capitol the one who was sitting there.

++

The end of 1884 had been calm; there was less talk of the crisis; I have already explained that the heca-triple graves of war, cholera and the misery had created silence and attenuated, for at one point, the needs of consumption.

I will therefore not dwell on commenting here on the parliamentary discussions which, from January to the end March, fill, with words, the void of the concepts.

electoral issues; then, the study of some serious discussions that could have taken place would condemn us to repetition, whether it be the workers' work (Révillon interpellation, February 5) February), or it is the budget (February-March). either it concerns certain laws; for example, that of the futures markets and that relating to tariffs customs officers; I will, moreover, have a few words to say, not the discussions, but their results when, noting the new progress of the spolia-

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 143

speculative speculations, I will have to nail them down with a few numbers.

I want to get to the big spec- right away culation of Wilson: the fall of Jules Ferry.

It was enough to keep certain facts in mind. from 1883 and 1884, to remember that Daniel Wil- His son had a score to settle.

Seeing, very clearly, that Ferry hoped to obtain in Tonkin enough laurels to dazzle the bourgeois, at the time when he would have to renew the powers of the President of the Republic, he was determined to do anything to sink it before the general elections general elections, which were supposed to take place in October.

In addition, he needed 1 liter to have a blow his own scholarship, entirely his own, during the period when These are the most fruitful, that is to say in the first quarter. As usual, in view elections of all kinds, at the Élysée Palace, need other people's money.

Moreover, since it was the pre- armchair residential, the son-in-law was, more than ever, assured of an absolutely dedicated competition.

On February 13, the French troops had occupied Lang-Son, which, as we recall, France had no intention whatsoever of occupying *; the Chamber, do- Cile, had voted for everything Ferry had wanted: the Millions followed millions! And the great unleash- The colonial power would soon repay, high hand, all the advances that we would have made for open it.

There were hardly any soldiers killed that one could not did not replace, because France was marching to the 1 See volume If, page 127.

144 Speculation 1885

depopulation, and THAT'S WHY he needed colonies!

In short, Ferry, his ministry and his majority were certain of success, because all the news received were announcing victories. It was frankly, de-Now, open war; we didn't give each other no longer need to use the pseudonym: "state of reprisals," so much so that the embargo on rice supplies to destination of Chinese ports.

Suddenly, on March 25, the government received a first telegram dated March 24, confessing a failure; immediately mitigated by another, dated the 26th;
The emotion had subsided when, on the evening of the 29th, the newspapers published a telegram, dated March 28th, which contained these words:

"I announce to you, with sorrow, that the general
"De Négrier, seriously wounded, was forced to e-"Oacuer Lang-Son; the Chinese, emerging by "Large masses attacked... Colonel Her-
"binger having exhausted his ammunition, informs me"
"that he is forced to demote."

"The enemy is growing... whatever happens, I hope" to be able to defend the entire Delta.

"I am asking the government to send me, the
"As soon as possible, new reinforcements."

It was difficult to combine more writing alarming.

This is not how military telegramsareas are usually designed, and if this one had not been invested with the general's signature Brière de l'Isle, I would have gladly sworn that he had
It was manufactured by Erlanger.

AR

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 445

Financially, it did not fail to have its effect:
Between March 29th and 30th, there were:

3.25 francs discount on the 3 0/0.
3.00 francs discount on the amortizable.
And a 2.00 franc discount on the 4 1/2 0/0.

Furthermore, I must point out here that the "Sensational" financial telegrams are pro-
They almost always take place either from the 12th to the 14th, or from the 27th on the 29th, because the Stock Exchange has two liquidations per one on the 15th and the other on the 30th of the month.

Before getting to the explanations, let me summarize
In short, the facts:

On March 31, Ferry requested a loan of 200 million, we voted for 50 million and we overthrew him.

On April 1st, new information emerged:
The telegram of the 23rd is getting increasingly strange; April 4, the preliminary peace talks with China, in drafted since March 22, were signed in Paris;
On April 6th, the Brisson cabinet was formed, and on the 7th, 150 million in new credits were approved, supplementing of the 200 million requested on the 31st by Jules Ferry. Why bother? It was over! And this was, or at least, events did not require no longer the same sacrifices.

No one ever knew; the new mid-ministers, themselves questioned in this regard, replied they said "that they didn't know, that they hadn't
"I didn't have the time to become aware of it"
"Diplomatic or military dispatches arrive-
"naked in Paris, but that this demonstration of the "Parliament's firm commitment to continue the execution"
"Complete version of the Treaty of Tianjin, of the

"On May 11, 1884, it was indispensable to the success of the "French politics!"

And the House and the Senate voted in pa-Reilles conditions!

Now, let's seek the truth:

The government was only expecting dispatches peaceful, since, since March 22, the par-Peace talks were underway.

It is unacceptable that, even for one blow Ferry, the stock market, had imagined the alarming dispatch.
of March 29, all the more so because of his distress, his Please vote on the appropriations without voting on the motion of confidence.
It was clear that he had taken this dispatch at serious.

So this one was quite unexpected; moreover,
in a completely unusual style; finally, from April 1st,
The same Brière de l'Isle telegraphed:

"The evacuation of Lang-Son appears to have been a
"A little rushed... we can't explain it either."
"The rapid evacuation of Dong-Son. In summary, the
"The situation is better than what was expected from sup-
"to ask the exaggerated questions that were given to me"
"Arrived four days ago."

This telegram was dated from Hanoi.

Where did the events take place? In Lang-Son.

What were the means of communication of Lang-Son to Hanoi and from Hanoi to Paris?

From Lang-Son to Hanoi, communications... could only be "flying" and depended, certraining, of the occupying army; once in Hanoi,
It was towards the sea, that is to say towards Haiphong, that he
We had to turn around. A branch of 1 André Daniel; l'Année politique 1885, page 85.

the Bank of Indochina, run by staff friend of the Ferry ministry', which proves that the administration
The French administration was organized enough to support... see, effectively control communications telegraphs.

But, from Hai-Phong onwards, we fell from all sides in foreign hands.

On July 11, 1883, the Minister of the Navy, Ch.
Brun had traveled with an English company:
The Eastern Extension Company, a convention for the laying of a submarine telegraph cable between Cape Saint-Jacques (nearest landing point) of Saigon) and Haiphong (the most neighbor of ÆJanoi).

Subject to the approval of the House, in its
At the meeting of August 1st, this convention had been established.
she was criticized, especially because she confided in French communications in foreign hands.

To fully understand the explanations given to
From the grandstand, one must imagine the appearance of the gulf.
from Tonkin.

Imagine a semicircle, carved into the earth-Asian rite and whose convexity faces the northwest; towards the center of the semicircle is a Island: Jai-nan; yes, from this island to the mouth of the river
Red, a line was drawn on a planisphere

'The directors of the Bank of Indochina were So: Hentsch (also administrator of the Discount Bank), Durieu, vice-president (also president of Crédit Industriel) and commercial), Allard and F. Aubry (of the Société de dépôts et current accounts), Ed. Delessert (also administrator of the Franco-Egyptian Bank), G. Gillet, G. Girod, A. Prévost, Cb. Sautter.

448 Speculation 1885

to the right in the northwest direction, this line intersects would include Tibet, the Caspian Sea, and Asian Turkey, the Balkans, would pass near Venice, and, extended, would get lost in France, at the tip of Finistère.

curve, look at Hainan Island, where the English and the Germans founded establishments considered rables. |

At the northeast end of the curve is a port Chinese, Pa-Koi, and, higher up, outside of the curve, which closes at this point with a very sharp bend advanced towards Jai-nan, lies Hong Kong part-nant to the English.

At the opposite end of the curve, that is to say In the southwest, the land configuration presents a convex relief; there one encounters Hue, then, beautiful- A lower blow, Saigon watching Singapore, period. terminus of the Gulf of Siam.

Hong Kong is linked by telegraph to the EU-rope by a series of cables belonging to the Tele-Northern graphs, a Danish company whose representative The person in France is called G. Bocher.

These cables connect Jong-Kong to Amoy, Amoy to Shanghai, Shanghai to Nangasalki (Japan), and finally Nangasaki in Vladimirstock (Russia). It is from there that, via Denmark, the telegrams arrive in France.

Now, what was the Eastern Company's plan in dealing with the Minister of the Navy? This plan, explained- which was addressed from the podium during the same session on August 1st 1883, was as follows:

Already possessing a cable linking Hong Kong to Singapoer, that is to say, acting as a rope at semicircle which is the Gulf of Tonkin, and tangent with Annamite convexity, it had, in 1881, established a link between Singapore and Cape Saint-Jacques, landing in Saigon; so that, The Eastern Company, via Hong Kong, connected China to British India, the latter being, moreover, connected both to Australia and to the British metropolis, by Constantinople, Vienna and the Pas-de-Calais.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 149

With things being this way, the Eastern Company, taken of a "deep concern for French interests", proposed to directly link Saigon and Haiphong its existing cable from Singapore to Cape St. Jacques); to connect Haiphong to Hong Kong, by a part of Pa-Koi (the Chinese port) and Hainan (the island) Anglo-German) on the other.

Obviously, being able to telegraph from Haiphong to Hong Kong, the main hub of the Grand Telegraph Line From the North, it offered more security than telegraphy. to Singapore via Saint-Jacques, but on the condition that the Haiphong-Hong Kong line was franchise domestic or, at the very least, effectively monitored.

The Chamber of August 1883 appeared to include the importance of this condition, and, by a vote, refused to approve the convention of July 11, 1883.

But, six months later, everything had changed, and the two Chambers approved the concession made to the English Company, as I have previously indicated—previously! [December 1883]. I pointed out, also, that this vote coincided with a period of calm. of the hostile attitude shown in the last month of 1883, by the Times and the German newspapers demands.

{ See volume II, page 102.

450 Speculation 1885

This presentation, somewhat technical but necessary, As we will see, I want, first of all, to Two points to highlight:

Before the vote, it was quite difficult and certainly quite slow, to have a double means of communication communicating with Europe, the most direct route being the one that depended on the Danish network. After this vote, We had two equal sources of telegrams — fast-moving, one using the Danish network, the other the English network; one passing through Russia, the other passing through Austria.

By December 1884, the new cable was already in place. functions, with Eastern Company stating that "the "The cable could be laid in forty days."

It now remains for me to establish that, two

there was a danger, either of indiscretion, or of falsification.

This danger had also been communicated to the
In the chamber, the following fact was cited:

About two years ago, when Goujard was Minister of the Navy and Colonies, dispatches extremely serious administrative issues were exchanged negotiated with the government.

One of them, "excessively serious, actually figure-
"free, and yet, when she passed through Singa-
"Poor, it was read, it was spread, a word to me,"
"Letter by letter."

The MP who presented these facts added:

"I made it known to the ministers a long time ago-
"ter of the navy that its cipher was known by

e

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 451

"The English telegraph. Even an official."
"I was still being told yesterday that an in-"dividu had introduced himself, flattering himself that he could read all
"A kind of coded dispatch, and he had done it!"

That's all for the indiscretions.
favorable to stock market manipulation!

Now, let's talk about falsifications.
and the mixed indiscretions:

In July 1884, a trial of a certain seriousness was being argued in London at the Court of Queen's Bench;
Two television companies were involved:
The Central News accused the Eastern Company and the Exchange Company for having copied and used a dispatch addressed to him.

"The jury decided that Mr. Charles Wilson, whose
"The dispatch had been copied by the defendants,"
"had partly employed the PÉBIERNE of the plai« gnants.p »

the son-in-law of the President of France regarding other matters which I I'll deal with it later; but it has been asserted since that this was a mistake and that Charles and Daniel had nothing in common.

In any case, it is very curious to see, in
In such a circumstance, the name of the one resounds who, in France, had such a great interest in what Jules Ferry, his opponent, was put out of commission.
bat before the elections!

I can't help but group the facts together.

Ferry knew very well that he had in Wilson a A formidable enemy; three days before the debacle of the 1 Official Journal of August 2, 1883, parliamentary debates (Chamber), page 2,052.

152 Speculation 1885

ministry, that is to say under the date of March 27, the Figaro had just drawn inspiration, again from England and still in a trial, the elements of an accusation formal eclipses relating to the conversion of 5 0/0, which I've already described and which fell perfectly into place on the head of Daniel Wilson. For sure, without the emotion of what has been called the Ton- disaster kin, public attention would have fallen on this fiddling.

But too many accomplices had an interest in remaining silent
And besides, the stock market crashes of March, a repeat exact of those of the conversion, brought a a new way to "prune" the discussions.

And now I have to calculate how the gene-General Brière de l'Isle may have been frightened himself, at the Should we send the telegram we know about?
I wonder if Colonel Herbinger was, or a Seduced, or an alcoholic, or a reckless person? Should I search if Erlanger, stuck in all the cable business, mixed with railways Sweden by his house in Frankfurt, which had just come from there obtaining a concession (November 1884), influential in England, where he had launched many affairs, protected by Prussia, of which it was the.
look, didn't also have his hand carefully tern-Companyet if, thanks to this situation, he had not did not collaborate in the manufacture of the means of era-

What benefit did the Elysée Palace receive?

Am I finally supposed to see some kind of link between this triumph of the two men from the Elysée and that d'Erlanger, soon to be snatched from the clutches of the justice ?

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 453

I don't think I need to push my cons-tatations and to tighten a more emphatic indictment giant alone from the whole set of facts.

The role of the Great Telegraph Company Northern pheasants in the conclusion of peace with the China was decisive, that's something we cannot revolt.
who doubts it, after having followed the events and read in the annual report of this company that "The station, which opened on August 22, 1884, in Beijing, had "contributed to the successful end of hostilities"
"Between France and China."

That complicity was forged in England-earth, that cannot be doubted either, when We have read the unanswered questions that,
After Wilson's triumph, Le Figaro of July 6 addressed to those of his friends who, at the time, were in power:

"Is it true that the government, in order to wait
"the major loan which will not be discussed by the new-
"The old room will be open after the January holidays,
"would try to find money from financiers"
"English censors? Is it true that this affair was "led by an individual of foreign nationality
"who left for London these past few days and whose
"The hotel stay was paid for by two of our
"Ministers?"

These were Treasury bonds that were being traded.
thus in silence, at the risk of over-charging the figure of the already so heavy floating debt!

May the stock market crash of March 30th not come from the Jewish clan, which includes Rothschild, Hirsch, Camondo and a few others who, apart from their 9.

454 Speculation 1885

personal information, have with the Havas Agency Special treaties? That's still possible.
because, if it had been otherwise, some of them—
three of them will not have had to register a crash like that of Alfassa (which occurred on that occasion), Camondo's son-in-law and attorney.

Finally, the military actions in Lang-Son contain a "mystery" about which silence has Was it imposed? This undoubtedly stems from this.
that Colonel Herbinger, who came to France, was sent back to Tonkin to be tried; that he did not
It hasn't been that he has always appeared so self-assured.
as have all of Wilson's friends since:
that everything concerning him was suppressed, while Ferry was no longer in power and that finally, later, in December only, General Brière de l'Isle delivered these statements before the commission of inquiry serious words: "that he could not explain the dismissal of the case"
"rendered in favor of Herbinger only by "political motives that he wanted to ignore, and that, if "A welcome bullet had struck the colonel, at
"In the place of Négrier, the disaster would not be on—"came,"

Thus, thousands of men had been killed and millions of francs weighed on the work of the few—ple, and all this because this bourgeois owner:
Jules Ferry had wanted to win over his peers by... whipping off its colonial laurels, and that this other a bourgeois of no less wealth: Daniel Wilson had wanted to keep his general farm of honor
French !

'See the depositions before the commission of inquiry,'
' in Le Figaro of December 1, 1885.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 155

In the Chamber, an accomplice of these two killers of men, of these two harbingers of ruin, of these Indictment, against one person only:

Ferry!

It would have been too much or too little; however, even reduced to unity, the indictment would have been so gè-Nantes, after a few eye rolls and what-
With their boastful airs, the Chamber, cautiously, he sheathed the sword of his justice.

From May to October, parliament and the street had no
just one thought:

The elections.

Therefore, one cannot form an idea of the useless lists which were lengthily and comprehensively discussed in both assemblies, and the innomdifficult financial concessions, construction work iron mines, city loans, etc..., which were voted silently.

At the end of this year, capital recorded will, en masse, the fictitious capital gains arising from the es-perceptions thus heightened and, all at once, they acc-will grow by more than 21 billion.

The increase in customs tariffs on cereals and on livestock, he claimed more than 9 billion capital gains on real estate; the law on the recognition of futures markets was in-interpreted as giving new security to credit securities and financial capital swell up
They are worth more than 5 billion; finally, the tools and unlisted debt, would increase their activity, thanks to the work, thanks to the projects of ex-universal position, which had already haunted the cer-

456 Speculation 1885

new government policies; hence a surplus value of-Spending 6 billion!

Naturally, all these absurd markups will weigh on the future; what can be done about it?

Yet speculation had found the year badvaise; the stock market coup was good, but the issuesifions is even better, because these of-and, moreover, because they sow seeds in the newspapers the windfall of subsidies that speculative ventures tion, whether rising or falling, through their comedy Unforeseen events cannot be motivating.

So, very few new papers had been created.
with stickers; we were even far from the billion of the year-born the previous year! We had barely reached a third of the way through:
300 million!

It was truly pathetic! The financial newspapers... the entrepreneurs declared, seriously, that the spirit of entrepreneurship
The capture was dead; the capitalists claimed they would not knew what to do with their money! – Luckily that Rothschild, in July, issued a new em-

1 | Billions

End of 1884 End of 1885 Difference

Real estate capital..... 417 1/00 426 5/17 + 94/10 .,

_ furniture....., 70 0/10 76 4/10 + 6 4/10

'= financial... . 3792/10 43 8/10 + 5 6/10

Totals... 224 3/40 945 7/10 1 4/10

+ Issues from 1885.

Millions

State or City Loans....., 440 5/10

Credit institutions. : 0 0/40

Railways and Industrial Companies. Your 200 6/10

T0tAE Siemens 311 1/10

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 457

Egyptian loan of 225 million guaranteed by Europe including France! of course; – nevertheless,
For that one, it was over! People were dying of overpopulation there.

The aim of these speeches was to push the government-
He was encouraged to take out a loan; they put it in his eyes that he owed depositors more than one and a half billion savings banks said it was "very dangerous" (simply repeating what Cassagnac and Leroy-Beaulieu have said) in the first weeks of 1886, he declared, in
In effect, France was heading towards bankruptcy.

No one, in all this capitalist pathos, had considered to measure the misery; yet the speculations of the stock exchanges had, above all, resulted in concentration to divide the fortune between fewer hands.

As we saw earlier, there had been considerable differences in prices and not only— Focusing on annuities, but what about other assets?

All of this had moved fortunes, he added.
ques têtes soit à la salataire, soit à la déponance ; as—Surely the general malaise had increased; despite We have just seen how, in its jargon, the capitalism judged this situation |

1 See the broadcast notice in the Zanterne of July 30 1885.

2 Here are some courses:
Course
PR. OS
Higher Lower

00 dre ia 82.30 76.50

8 0/0 amortizable 83.95 78.85
PAC Dr RL ERP 410.40 407.95
A PR EC PE D Te 99.45 92.10
Turkish (converted) eue ss 18.60 43.60
Egyptian..... soso 347.00 807.50

Tunisian Des otonepneageosnéene bi" 600, 00 475,50

458 Speculation | 1885

Furthermore, I will now give the figures that I usually place at the end of the year— born, because, for their part, they will illuminate the election results; these, in fact, will have taking place at a time fairly close to December for that economism has almost entirely accomplished his work of destruction:

End of 1884 End of 1885

Owners..... 20 18:

Employees,... 68 and 69 employees

Destitute....., 12,143 destitute

Total....., 100 100

The owners will have lost 2 0/0, but in re-
Vanche, the remaining 18 0/0 will count themselves richer.
21 billion!

However, let them beware! upon them pesela maintenance charge for the 820/0 non-owners; within that number, there is already 13% poverty; it
It requires work, it requires product, otherwise they won't
They will be able to extract nothing from the people; who, then, will pay?
Tax?

Vainly, shamefully, and clumsily, imitators of Chancellor of Prussia, will they want to draft a law large military contingents; they will never be able to They will, however, vote on a law in June.
on the three-year service, a democratic illusion, and an overwhelming burden on the taxpayer, either as personal service, or financial service.

Bismarck, waving incessantly, in the eyes of his

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 459

bourgeois, the threat of French aggression or Russian, has no other aim than to force them to inter-to maintain, under military control, a proletariat that days growing under the double pressure of proliferation natural attachment to race and appropriation inherent to capitalism, knowing full well that they do not They wouldn't maintain it otherwise. It's true, the emi-Gratation, more than deaths, sometimes moderates the Prussian charges, but the emigration itself-meme became insufficient; from this arose the colonial ideas, attempts in the Carolinas and the Italian trends of the Saint Gotthard and Trieste.

However, France would never accept militarism. Prussian; that is why those who, at the same time, advocate a policy of peace at the borders, a colonial expansion and material growth, ruin the country three times over.

Bourgeois chauvinism wants the big army that "national honor demands it!" but it does not. He doesn't want to pay it; if he did, it would still be... a ruin, because the army, through personal service and through the tax it demands, HARAS" weighs on the people.

He, panicked by the tie, is willing to serve. on the sole condition that there are no exceptions, of favors and exemptions, convinced, moreover (but wrongly), that, despite the ignoble cause as a hospital resident, he will return after an interruption of three years, a career capable of meeting his needs care.

Another cause of national ruin, because the birth rate, that is to say, the vital force of the country, is stationary, and cannot tolerate useless things, even provisional ones. evenings.

160 | Speculation 1885

However, the large army, defensive and never offensive, Socialism alone can provide it, because it will be its organization based on the division of labor, having removed it from him, by prior removal Capitalist parasitism poses the full danger of unemployment. called: "military service."

It is true, he will provide it reluctantly, because Combative ferocity is not in his principles. but he will provide it, all the same, to this constrained party the attitude of his neighbors.

Only these, one day, solemnly assured that the chauvinistic bourgeoisie of the conquest no longer exists in France, seeing, even, a wave of strong sympathy is emerging among their people. to this hardworking, courageous but PACI- people FIQUE, they may imitate him, they will return to the truth social work, with this goal: the equalization of international exchanges; this will then be the first Verselle.

Neither in the Chamber, nor in the Senate, nor in the assemblies popular beliefs, this language was not used. Far from There, passions and anger have always been stirred up. Meanwhile, disgust was added to the mix. Scans- Dales were bursting here and there in all the layers social. |

It was in 1885 that, for the first time, the traffic decorations were brought before the courts: In the first two weeks of February, the court correctionnel learned, with a certain astonishment, that members of parliament and civil servants received from the money to provide the decorations. An agency had been set up, it was functioning administratively- ment under the name: Agence Buret, Soudry and Chesnel.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 461

When revisited in the present day, the debates of 1885 have a completely new aspect:

So, people were "outraged" to see Buret defending himself with extraordinary audacity; he was detained; He was the Ratazzi of that era, more mute, however; during the debates and upon hearing the names of decorated or aspiring, the deputy Jacomy had suddenly addressed to Buret:

Give examples of people in positions of power.

"I'm not childish enough," replied Buret, to give you names of people in positions of power; I don't have no receipt from them; if you brought them here, they They would deny it with indignation!

Immediately, Mr. Millerand had recounted that... talks had begun with the banker

Phrussi: for 100,000 francs, he was to be ob- to hold the cross of Commander of the Legion of Honour neur, - he had indeed been appointed commander- der.

Then President Mercier, who undoubtedly "had "Let's conduct an investigation," he exclaimed.

– But it's not due to the influence of the defendants!

"I will speak when I have proof," he repeated.
Buret.

The deputy insisted:

– I challenge you to name a single member of parliament or a corrupt official appointed by you. Name– These corrupt individuals, WE WILL NAME THEM HERE.

"What's the point?" Buret always said, "they would deny it!"

162 Speculation

What Buret refused to do, Millerand did;
He did mention names, it's true, but not Wilson's.
The prosecutor's office at the time was not at all concerned, and besides, had no desire to do so. The defendants were con-damned: Buret at two years old, Soudry at eight months old and Chesnel was sentenced to six months in prison. It was never known if they had served their sentence.

The considerations of the judgment excel in baneatnesses; they spoke of imaginary credit which, ve-verified, it would be extortion; but they ended– However, they returned through a naivety that denounced the the inveterate bourgeoisie of this magistracy less and less envied by Europe.

"If," the judgment stated, "the defendants had said–
"decorated, even with foreign decorations (!), THEY HAD– (& SENT STARTED BY GETTING THEMSELVES DECORATED– (€ MEMES. »

Around the same time, at the other end of France, a certain knight of Albert and of in-industry, also a decorations merchant, invo-including people in positions of power, members of parliament. After eight months of pre-trial detention and a lengthy investigation tion, indicating some hesitation on the part of the Public Prosecutor's Office – no doubt the terror of stepping on a scanner– embarrassing dale, – the said knight, to whom his Italian names and his profession as a magnetizer have appeared to cause some harm, and was sentenced to eight months in prison.

Another trial, this one in the Assize Court, took place the names of civil servants still resounded, in

In order to better highlight the equality of justice,
I need to bring together a few decisions here:

Digitized by Google on

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 163

In Paris, the courts had just sentenced, to six months in prison, a postal worker, guilty for having embezzled 2 francs 15 in postage stamps.

In Draguignan, they had sentenced him to three years to prison an individual guilty of stealing a sausage and three cheeses.

In the same place, they had acquitted a mayor,
Borough councillor, accused of embezzlement
88,000 francs.

In the same place, they had reduced to ten-eight months, the four-year prison sentence pronounced sued a stockbroker who had misappropriated 400,000 francs.

Finally, in the same place, they had condemned to imprisonment for an individual guilty of having issued 20 francs of counterfeit money.

However, in these various trials, where one could see the
The big guys were spared and the little guys crushed, no name had not been uttered the phrase "high parage" – if this is behind the scenes – but it was not to be even in the following trial:

A stockbroker from Nice named Barraïa, being prosecuted for forgery, embezzlement, etc., had the imprudent naivety to mix into his defense letters like this one:

"Barraïa to Borriglione:

"In one of your letters, you told me that

"Wilson had made a commitment to grant you

"The prosecutor's office will act as soon as the three new charges are filed."

"would have been created. As for me and my two

4. The Pécoud Affair.

161 Speculation 4885

"Other colleagues, we are determined to put
"at your disposal all the sums that you
"You will deem necessary to facilitate your procedures..."

"Borriglione to Barraïa:

"I met with Ministers Tirard and Magnin, to
"The case of the Public Prosecutor's Office; I've also found my man"
"in the director of fund movement. I
"And then walk within the limits, right?"

Furthermore, the same Borriglione, mayor of Nice, deputy, "testifying as a witness at the hearing, re-
"Veil that 'first presidents' and 'pro-
"General curators" had also speculated among Barraïia. |

The outcome is predictable: the judges pronounced the ten-year prison sentence, not against Borriglione, but against Barraïa, who fainted in hearing the ruling.

All of this took place in August; shortly before, the
The Court of Cassation, ruling on disciplinary matters, had dudu pronouncing the removal of a tribal president-civil court for indecent handling in the mania[unclear] of the court's funds.

Then it was an endless parade of shames, 'of embezzlement and trafficking in official functions in individual professions: judges, defendants, Officials, citizens, all fell, at the file, in public contempt.

Acles of revolting immorality brought the dismissal of the governor of Réunion (May),

June 8, 1885, Lajanacci case, president of the court of Saint-Marcelin (Isère).

contrasts with the mysterious indulgence with which one surrounded Colonel Herbinger's conduct.

Reunion Island was quite far away for the reported facts could deeply move the non-shareholder public of the various banks used rant the colony! but it was not the same in Tunis.

An incident, ridiculous in essence, set in motion all the press, and, however thin he may have seemed to be, in its origin, it was nonetheless bound to produce some complications, perhaps not permanent—Men! Calmed.

French officers from the Tunis garrison and dandies from the Italian colony were courting the same actresses from Tunisian theatre.

Bouquets were thrown onto the stage, actresses had preferably picked up those of Italian origin; hence: altercation, brawl and everything that follows, including a proper trial tional.

According to what I narrated previously, regarding From Tunisia, one can surmise influences, transformations driven by interests, they had to engage in continuous battles.

Furthermore, I showed two currents of government, one emanating from Wilson, the other from Ferry; the same dual current existed in Tunis, as elsewhere, in Algeria, in Tonkin, in Senegal, but even more brazen if possible.

The magistracy to which the brawl was submitted Among the Don Juans, there is only childishness reciprocal and, measuring the offense only by the fact malériel, assault and battery, condemned the Italian to a light sentence.

166 Speculation 4883

Here bourgeois chauvinism appears, embodied in the person of General Boulanger; the latter considered this a great opportunity to acquire a dual popularity, both military and civilian, and, in a

From the tribunal, he ordered "every military officer in uniform-
"a way of using one's weapons every time"
"that, without provocation (?) on his part, he will have been "assailed or struck by an individual of some
"Whatever nationality it may be."

From a careful examination of the facts, it appears that the
The phrase "without provocation" simply means that
The French officer was not supposed to "strike" first.
But, as we know, one can also strike with the word only with the gesture. By its agenda, the general was therefore actually giving to his officers the right to insult and impertinence, which under the Tunisian sun, coupled with "French gallantry",
This necessarily meant multiplying the antagonisms.
and the conflicts.

In Paris, there was a heated debate about the judgment.
and on the agenda.

At that time (things have changed since) the Wilsonians supported Boulanger; it was in to speculate on chauvinism, to start again, under another form, the anti-Alphonsist demonstration
from 1883.

On the contrary, the Ferrysles supported Pontois, president of the Civil Court, that is to say, for the cultural. |

But chauvinism, on the one hand, as neutrality,
On the other hand, there were only false noses put on to the financial operations undertaken in the

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 161

protectorate, under the multiple guises of: Waters of Tunis, Bank of Tunisia, Beylical Bank, Railways, etc.

What resulted from the conflict was a pure marvel:
The president was moved, and, as for the general, I...
I will soon find myself Minister of War where he will further fuel chauvinism.

Ah, chauvinism! What good has it ever been?
common with enlightened patriotism, that is to say-to express the feeling of national well-being, inspiring, if necessary, fierce, heroic resistance to of stupid susceptibility, of an absolutely boorish nature geoise, including Gaudissart, this traveling salesman masterfully painted by Balzac, is the perfect type.

Ultimately, being chauvinistic means having "a mood of "Dog." Whether by mistake or malice, "one must not,
"Sir, step on his foot!"

As for knowing s1, the fault lies with the foot above.
or at the foot below; as for noting that,
in three-quarters of cases, if we hadn't
If you had put your foot forward, there would have been no encounter?
Who's thinking about it? Gaudissarism |

We still want to be respected, and all the more so.
The more respectable one is, the less one is.

– I prefer to be Prussian than French, my–
"Sir!" he said.

"Sir, you are insulting France!" he shouted.
The other one and 1 liter, ready to go!!!

Unfortunately, respect cannot be imposed, but this one mo-toé imposes itself on its own.

We don't think about that enough!

In any case, it wasn't the spectacle of his

168 Speculation 4885

inner demoralization that could raise the France's external prestige and, as for diplomacy-matter, whose compromises I have already recounted, its
The decay was becoming public; even some of its members fell into the vulgar scam-gaire; a serving minister plenipotentiary was caught in Rome, cheating at cards, like a simple the rastaquouère he had always been.

He wasn't French, but what did it matter? sila
His nationality was safe, but his function was not.
less dirty!

In France, moreover, the game also stirred up numerous scandals; there was even a circular specifically intended to repress, some say:
to regulate, others finally to "farm" their

This simple speculation is no different from that of the Stock market and, even less so, the bizarre designs of those who had elevated fraud to the level of a system.

It was in July that a candidate conceived the idea of running for office. to prepare voters, as Wilson was preparing for supporters, by asking the government for amnesty—to link the wine merchants convicted of adulterating cations. It is possible, even certain, that judges—unjust statements were pronounced; but, in the the circumstance I am citing, there was not a revision, but a legitimization of fraud, principle unacceptable, even as a means of resisting] unfairness of taxes.

He was an American diplomat: he was dismissed almost immediately. Immediately. (Intransigent, June 23, 1885.)

3 Levaillant Circular; July 1885.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 169

This ambiguity was not the only one.

Newspapers were still hounding the old woman campaign against the Gas Company, of which I have already mentioned; but, while appearing to defend the in—public interest, some were subsidized by the The company itself!

The City Council had finally pushed the prefect to issue an order obliging the Company to lower to 25 cents the price of the gas it sells paid 30 centimes to individuals; the Company had attacked this decree (which, later, was to be reformed) and, in the meantime, it proposed to acc—to deliberately reduce the price if, in In exchange, we were extending its monopoly.

This proposal was truly unacceptable and The Company was abusing an unlawful position thanks to to the negligence, and perhaps the complicity, of the local officials of 1870; what needed to be pursued was the revision of the contract entered into at that latter time, de—to demonstrate its invalidity, due to "serious misconduct" resulting from the failure to establish, in a timely manner, progress made in manufacturing processes

'intended to motivate a price reduction of sale; but, if the 1870 contract were left standing, It was pointless to plead and the case was lost. in advance.

Were those who advised him unaware of this? I I want to believe it; otherwise, the trial and campaign will not would be more than just a vile form of blackmail; and there you have it. why those who were pushing the Council to accept { See the discussions between La Lanterne (July 13) and the Intransigent (July 17) 1885.

VOLUME II, 10

470 Speculation 1885

the price reduction, in exchange for an extension of monopoly, betrayed the public interest for the benefit of the Company, which paid them.

How, amidst these reversals, can one not finding all accusations of enrichment natural-statements made regarding certain people involved in state affairs, either through their functions tions, either by their kinship?

How can we be surprised by the connections being made? between the mining concessions in Tonkin, granted to Bavier-Chauffour, and the cousinship of the latter with Jules Ferry?

Was this cousin, at least, an industrial notable? trielle, as ordinarily required by the bour-code geois?

Not at all, he was a former director in 1882, of the Paris branch of a trading house of Lyon, with offices in London, Yokohama, and collapsed in March 1883.

Frightened by the noise made by Rochefort, Ferry dared not to go further and the concession, transported, by the said cousin, to Marmottan, former deputy mayor of Passy, waited for better days which, moreover, ended by arriving'.

How to take seriously the denials about stamped paper, opposed by Charles Ferry, brother of Small posters proving that he, himself, had ex-humble worker, who became an administrator of the

'Read, in this regard, the Lanterne of August 26, 1884 and the Identical notes published by: Le Petit Marseillais on August 9th 1885, Le Soleil and Le Figaro of August 16, 1885.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 471

Franco-Egyptian bank, bought a house costing 540,000 francs on September 13, 1884? However, Charles Ferry denied owning any property. . furniture; but he denied this in 1885, because, After six months of ownership, a bidding war... had won the bid! Had he had any less How can one spend 540,000 francs? Well, that's it. only that which contrasted with his former situation-tion, and that he was being reproached for!

The most extraordinary thing is the date of purchase and the nationality of the seller by pure force, do not have attracted attention.

However, this purchase came precisely very little some time after the purchase of Tunisian debt (May 1884)*, the seller's name was: Ahmed-Bey-Ben-Aïad. And I'm not talking about the 75,000 francs, the price of a silver service purchased from Odier, nor of the the airs of a grand lord attributed to the buyer This occasion. Ao / the airs of a grand lord! Such was, indeed, the dream of the neo-post- bourgeoisie sedentary woman who had invaded power!

Pull off a great heist (in great secrecy by (example!), then, to be publicly enthroned in a hotel luxurious, among all the servants, with or without delivered, that's the rage of the neo-bourgeoisie, DROISHARSE yesterday !

Such, exactly, had been the rage of this valet of room which held the master's place and open table to Compiègne where he mingled with the "notables of the country," whereas in Paris, at night, 1 liter was simply 'thief and murderer'.

1. A candidate for the Senate, he resigned; report to the as-general meeting of the Franco-Egyptian Bank, held on April 14, 1888 (page 11).

And while the newly wealthy were displaying thus their ugly nudity, on the contrary those called legendary great lords fell in one barrier rut in this other Elysée-Montmartre called Hotel Sagan.

Indeed, in May, all the gold securities and all the securities
The gilded splendor had deafened Paris with the noise of the orgies.
and the abasements in which they had become so accustomed to Very much at the invitation of /a princess!?

The Lantern was right to observe; in a Article titled: "The End of a Class," Decadence social class of the "former high society." Here's what we it read: (May 13, 1885).

"The noble suburb is becoming more humane; China of "Paris is opening up... with a few "millions, you can become a naturalized citizen there... Mesde-
"You financial ladies, go for it, if you..."
"It suits you to be duchesses."

"But it is the noble girls who do not have
"Lucky! Now that the marquesses are marrying
"At Israel's or at Mondor's, there is no longer any left
"No one to marry the poor heiresses"
"whose only dowry is a great name!"

In Le Figaro, Gaston Jollivet had noted the same thing; putting under his pen all the good meaning that his bourgeois brain could contain, he said to be wary of the stock market where, "as long as one
"When you win, you're a financier" or "when you lose"

Marchandon was tried, convicted and executed in 1885.

2 See my Kings of the Republic, vol. II, page 286.

"We're a player;" he mocked those at the club who were the friends of Ephraim or Zebulun, and who "Chamillards of the Louis XIV of high finance, They hoped for everything from their Sun Kings.

Finally, he concluded by offering learned advice to his "Dear contemporaries" of "touching quietly their coupons, their annuities, their rents due fixed and to let loans, securities, values knead national and international, by the hands of which "It's the job," without realizing he was advising them, Consequently, to these same "dear contemporaries", of to allow themselves to be quietly ruined by the Chamber, by the Senate and by the Jews.

This last epithet, never forgotten by the people, However, it seemed to give rise to new comments there. comments and revive memories of hatred antique.

More than ever, the anti-Semitic movement, Already lively on the outside, it seemed to be organizing itself. In Hon-Grie, after having rejected mixed marriages, on had excluded the Jews from the chamber of magnates; In Russia, the quarrel was constant; in Prussia, In Austria, it continued its development. France was a novelty; however there was a very clear and very lively Jewish question, this looked at newspaper articles and books numerous publications for and against, throughout the year? There were even anti-Semitic disturbances in Algeria.

{ Le Figaro of March 18, 1885.

2 Jewish Life, by Léon Cahun; The King of the Jews, by Mario Stuart; The Jewish Question, Statistics on the Jews: Supplement to the Figaro, May 13, 1885.

10.

474 | Speculation 1885

Speculation, speculation, the "I'll take" by all means, was embodied in the word Jewishness.

The divorce proceedings revolved around the separation.
and speculated about the children.

The most honest, being ruined, were going to commit suicide.
last on the landing of their judicial liquidator*.

Finally, still in the middle of this year, where... were preparing for the October elections, and now, without doubt to console France's profound demo-Upon realization, the newspapers unanimously threw in fodder for public lewdness, the scandals of London, which could just as easily have been called-1st of Paris, Vienna, Brussels, or of Berlin!

And, meanwhile, the propertyless honor-Those who did not resort to speculation, nor to venality, nor prostitution, nor even mendicity, a crime whose recidivism led to releg-gation, those people, could they at least, failing Bread, to nourish oneself on hopes?

The facts will answer that:

The miners of Saône-et-Loire, whom I have already had
The opportunity to speak had not been seen to improve.
their situation, even less so in Montceau-les-Mines than elsewhere; also, socialist aspirations there were they constantly being developed? For the
To stop it through intimidation, an opportunity was needed.
to crack down; that is why a plot had been organized arrested by police officers, who had bought the { Trédern case.

2 The League, February 28, and also July 13; Le Figaro,
July 23, 1885.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 175

collaboration of a few unfortunate people and, by this means, obtained the support of the naively convinced of the au-_very.

The facts could not be sustained in court; the hand
The artificiality was even clearly denounced there, so well that the majority of the defendants were released.

On May 24, this outcome was not yet known and the non-possessing were under the impression-irritating sion of the traps set for their suffering.

We saw in the previous accounts that, each year at the same time, the veterans of the town used to go to mass at Père-Lachaise cemetery to honor their deaths.

This cult of the dead is, perhaps, a little bit 1do-latrine, difficult, moreover, among the anti- ideas clericals who now dominate the masses; but these have little more than this "imitation of bourgeois ways" as a way of counting oneself and to reminisce together about their memories of their com- a shared despair.

Moreover, they had a recent death: Cournet. to lead to the tomb (May 25); for its part, the The official world was preparing for a grand celebration. the funeral of Victor Hugo, that is to say almost the funeral of the century.

The popular masses therefore had an incentive new to taking their annual walk.

However, the bourgeoisie was worried; having Aware of her shame, she dreaded the crowd.

Being in a similar psychological state, the bull, the government was quick to enter into fury at the sight of a red flag, and a colli-

L

476 Speculation 1885

A bloody massacre occurred on the 24th; what would happen? the 25th and, above all, the day of the funeral "at poet?

Fortunately, the ministers who were questioned had imagined a trick by declaring that, if the The red flag was legally prohibited, it was not Not so with the red banner! Now, this one being Once it was authorized, there was a lull.

engraved each year, a new strike broke out; this time, in addition to the usual claims of the "born-necessary to live," there was, at the bottom, the bad-employers' bad mood against the recent law on professional unions.

The workers obtained no improvement material; but a judgment from the court of Lyon, which caused astonishment for Le Figaro, gave them The following "holy water of the court":

"The new law on trade unions," said the judge-
"gement, leaves the workers perfectly free to
"to consult with one another to prepare for a strike; the amen-"
"of the prohibitions, exclusions pronounced by
"the strikers against the comrades who would like "Working is no longer a crime... their "Elected committees can announce, by posters"
"or through publications in newspapers, the implementation of "The index of such and such an establishment!"

It's perfect: only the judges forgot to add "to these recognized rights" that of accession to the necessary capital, which is monopolized by property owners, confiscated from the workers and without the-

'Le Figaro, July 22, 1885.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 477

However, any partial strike, to a very
With rare exceptions, it is inevitably doomed to capitulation.

To avoid repetition, I will not list-
I will not be responsible for all the strikes; I will limit myself to to indicate that these were increasingly nom-breux and that the ministers last, by a circuclear, invite the prefects to report them to them immediately that they were occurring (July).

It is in this strangely troubled environment that moral and physical, and where, the closer one got to the
As elections progressed, the number of denunciations increased.
against the MPs tainted by finance, that the
the people were called upon to choose new mandates silences.

As always, programs abounded in beautiful promises, conscious lies in the most of the candidates, and the non-owning masses (in greater numbers than ever before), majority unknown-testable, still naive, with little concern for discernment the blue-colored improvements of those colored lines of red, provided that in spelling them she believes in them to discover the hope of some kind of change, will be fooled once again.

'I will give the final results; but,
as these results are the last I will have to
To study in this book, I believe it is necessary to group together the four electoral consultations of the Republic, recalling, to enlighten them, the plenary-biscite of 1870.

478 Speculation 1885

1870 1876 1877 1881 1885

ment At cmemmmnenmmvmmnmmm | cmmonmemms | mme | tires

Voters..... 820 759 813 705 771
Abstainers 180 211 187 295 229
Totals..... 1,000! 1,000! 1,000! 1,000! 1,000

Out of 1,000 shuttlecocks:
Majority, 850 545 540 714 546
Minority. 150,455,460,286,454

Totals1 41,000! 1,000! 1,000! 1,000! 1,000

eee Pme À cemetmmmmmmnenme | smmencemmemmmnme mm | me emmnstene

Out of 1,000 majorilé:
Owners.....|+ 6001+ 200!+ 97|+ 390|- 40
Non-owners.|+ 400/+ 800 + 9031+ 610|+1,040

enter | ms To cm To cmmusammammmmmmmx | emmmmmemremms

Totals[1,000] 1,000] 1,000! 41,000! 1,000

As we can see, the voters were more numerous—

abstentions were more frequent and fewer in number; but what change in the proportions between the majority and minority /

What difference, above all, in the composition of the majority! The non-property owners were in 1885 in such a state large number that, not only, they are all majority, but also, a certain number of They, undoubtedly the most easily fooled, that is to say, the most ignorant of the others, went to provide a support for the minority. This is the result of perse-religious cult, NOT COUNTERBALANCED by a economic pacification!

To help people better understand the meaning of the numbers, I resort, once again, to the figurative form, more striking to the eye; in the following graphs In front, I reproduce the proportions of the last three ballots mentioned in the numerical table.
(See PLATE XI.)

The 1885 election bears many similarities.

Page 178

1881
Abstentions

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 479

with that of 1877, except in two points: the first that's what the wealthy people who left in 1877 did to the minority to prevent the purchase of the roads iron, returned there in 1885; the second is that, if the non-property owners, having in 1885 provided their ap-the minority had remained in the majority this one would have acquired a power to which it could not have claimed in 1877, because, at that at the time, the property owners, included in the majority were roughly equal to those included in the minority.

Let the people consider this! during the 1889 elections, the slightest mistake that would push him to steal with and to bring two equal forces into contact, that is to say to make the black line become exactly the diameter of the circle, which would be a vote of impower and conflict.

However, the conflict would be all the more formidable because the non-possessing, having the perpetual naivety of to choose their representatives from among the property owners who are THEIR OPPONENTS, would attend a new-a blatant betrayal of their interests. From then on, and, the antaeconomic gonism having reached a sufficient degree In terms of acuity, the revolutionary state would express itself through the civil war, that is to say, through extermination in-later, unless, in the meantime, an epidemic or an international massacre have not changed all the proportions, the latter being able, moreover, annihilated the country!

As early as 1885, threats of war had been circulating.

The situation in Egypt, which has become definitively English, was always fraught with conflict, on occasion-

180 ACIOTING 1383

sion: either financial control or neutrality of the Suez Canal.

Minister Gladstone, the target of a coalition that I already indicated that in 1884, he had resigned and, at the same time, as Turkey hastened to to proceed with the connections of its railways (May-July), it was necessary for England and its agent Hirsch, a means of diversion.

A timely reappearance in Roumélie (first site of the works, September), Then war broke out between Serbia and Bulgaria (November), will satisfy England and reopen again the Eastern Question, as I explain later.

Finally, to close this unfortunate period that I I've just browsed through it, and I'll point out that Grévy, after having spread the rumor that he "was ill" and that, "most certainly, if we renewed his With the presidency expiring in January 1886, it would not happen not at the end of a new term," was re-elected for Seven years, almost without discussion.

And this despite the numerous scandals that had plagued them.
around the Elysée Palace and around himself.

Indeed, very recently, to the ruin of Peru and among the bondholders, a suicide had also occurred.
darkening, therefore, the already so dark work of the guano trial, which he had argued for his friend Dreyfus? This suicide caused quite a stir.
in words, but the newspapers were careful not to to study it as they had studied the death of the prefect from the Eure!

See above, page 137.

2 Suicide of Premsel, November 29.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 181

In short, the father-in-law and son-in-law were despised, but, as we lived off the favoritism of one and the vena-
If you're not on the other side, we'll be quiet!

As an excuse, the politicians said that in presence of elections, where, even, the word "Republic-
"The republic" had lost ground, the Republicans they should have feared splitting up.

And so, as a remedy, the cause was perpetuated.
Even evil: corruption!

This one was more powerful than ever; if one were fewer in number in wealth, I said earlier high, on the other hand a smaller number held more wealth; that's why the means of corruption had acquired greater strength.

Thus, on one side, the monarchist property owners;
On the other hand, the already wealthy or aspiring financiersrant to being (these, moreover, adorned with colors Republicans) having invaded the House, none the majority of social reforms were not possible there and
This will only be for the benefit of those with vested interests,
From time to time, a coalition will form.

And as for the few proletarians who became members of parliament because it had pleased list-makers to deceive
By exploiting their name, what could they do?
being 5 or 6 against 500!

'Among these MPs, however, I must point out the activity and the energy of Basly, Antides Boyer, Camélinat, Planteau.

Volume II, It

SUMMARY. 1886. – The two austere ones. – Net candidates–Toys. – Tragedy in Decazeville. – The cash register is hit. – Dufaure, broker. – Swindles. – Rivers to–pits. – The mine belongs to the miners. – Separatism. – Crisis general. – Bonus for foreigners. – In Vierzon. – On Borrowing. – Funeral displays. – Weddings. – Guano in the Court of Appeal. – Lotteries. – Protec–The principle of saving. – The morality of the state. – Rags of bank. – The Braganza Union. – Boulangism. – In–Seillièr prohibition. – A bouquet of trafficking. – The Jewish–Verie is overflowing. – Partial Jubilee. – Erlanger's friend.

The re-election of Jules Grévy to the presidency of the Republic had preceded the resignation by 24 hours of Jules Brisson and his cabinet.

The two austere ones – for in the second Jules one had also given this qualifier (better applied, it is necessary (hoping for it) – were hindering each other, no doubt, mutually,

However, it was not an easy thing to find a collection of men likely to get along with a Chamber lacking direction and cohesion, like the one whose birth I narrated.

The negotiations lasted eight days, after the–which we saw emerge, finally, a ministry of circumstance, made of curves and ellipses, and naturally chaired by Freycinet (January 7).

Re ET re te

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 183

This former collaborator of Gambetta admitted as "New elements": Baihaut (public works), Develle (agriculture), Granet (postal services), ZLockroy (commerce), Aube (marine), and finally Boulanger (war): This is the general I mentioned earlier. from Tunis.

Freycinet retained, on the other hand, Sadi-Carnot (finance), Demôle (justice), Goblet (punishment) (public and fine arts) and Sarrien (interior).

From this cabinet, as powerless, as divided as it was the Chamber itself, having no other preoccupation than to "leather goods" for as long as possible as far as possible, there was no need to wait for even the slightest hint of a reform.

The ministers merely declared "that they thought they would have to liquidate existing businesses rather than giving it up"; this did not mean absolutely—"Nothing, but nothing" was what needed to be said to the deputies.

The first sessions, after having crossed the being-new amnesty proposal, had to "clean up" the elected candidates, still all "fragrant" of electoral fraud by means of which they had removed the votes.

However, there had been fraud on all sides, but, Apparently, people on the right had more particular-Relieving fears!

Also, after the most Jesuitical of bargains reciprocal, this is what happened:

All the fraudulent MPs were granted amnesty, but we did not grant amnesty to political prisoners, under pre-

1 André Daniel. The Political Year 1886, page 15.

184 Speculation 1886

The text stated that, among them, there were anarchists and Monarchists!

However, the last months of 1885 had achieved—The misery was concentrated; as I have shown, there was had a 10/0 increase among the destitute, this which represented approximately 380,000 hungry mouths more than in December 1884; also the deputies had to at least give the appearance of doing something.

Furthermore, on January 26, in Decazeville where, more

The history of work is a martyrology, an impossibly bad strike. The pregnancy had just been declared. It was a warning. ment.

It resulted that, on January 28, the Chamber voted a law extending to trade union associations the right to... benefit of that of June 21, 1865; essentially, it was a way of encouraging bourgeois initiative to combine financially some business and, on occasion, to "To allocate" work to salaried workers.

An excerpt from the work of Yves Guyot, rapporteur said bill will spare me any further explanation-additional. Recalling that the proposed measure, had already been so in 1877, Yves Guyot concluded Thus :

"If the law had succeeded," he said, "work "such as the completion of Boulevard Haussmann, "the clearing of the Palais-Royal, the completion of the "Hell Boulevard, would certainly have been "Accomplished in Paris in recent years."

From work in Paris, to speculation in the capitals

5 La Lanterne, January 21, 1886.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 185

lists, all of this was insufficient to improve the situation-general tion and, even more so, to relieve the pains strikers from Decazeville.

There, however, things had become serious: the workers' exasperation had turned Tragically, blood had been shed, one of the leaders of The farm had been killed.

And meanwhile, in the Senate, they were working on primary education (January 28). then we say-putait was referring to a controversial article published in the moors and where the recent assassination was being discussed from the prefect of Eure (January 30).

In the Chamber, precious time was wasted on discuss a change of garrison (February 1st) Friday), on an investigation about Tonkin and on monetary circulation (February 8), when, the Zeville, appeared in the form of an interpellation.

It goes without saying that, from the discussions, Neither light nor even a hint that the speaker was aware of his responsibility.

On March 11 and 15, April 3, and May 29, three interpellations on the Decazeville strike and another on October 18th regarding a strike that occurred in Vierzon, revealed only, among the rulers, the same hypocrisy of language, the same selfishness and the same evidence of ignorance that I've already seen so often an opportunity to point out.

In the interval, for example, an incident had passionately and beautifully; for this time he these were their lords, the princes; but, before To write a few words about it, it is necessary that I

has

186 Speculation 1836

briefly retraces the social state in the midst of which The opposing reactions were going to evolve.

Tax revenue was not being collected; already in 1885 accused of a deficit of 37 million, based on assessments, and 5 million, based on the corresponding revenues of 1884, Now, here are the first two months of 1886 reported a new deficit of 23.5 million Regarding the assessments, 5 million regarding the symmetrical designs from 1885.

The cash register being so visibly depleted, the Government torpor was shaken.

Although determined not to borrow anything from social sciences, the government was looking for However, there are means of collection.

It was in Germany that he believed he had discovered them. greens. A "French" professor, Alglave, having greatly admired the alcohol monopoly, born in the Bismarck's brain resolved to Frenchify the same system.

private industry, but it was purifying, transforming and sold alone to retailers, setting a price official.

However, in France, there were precedents, by For example, the tobacco monopoly and Alglave promised one billion of that of alcohol.

However, this professor hadn't considered that the High finance would find this innovation highly advantageous. bad taste, because it was going to pave the way for others state monopolies, such as those of the railways, by for example, also having precedents: the positions and telegraphs.

However, in a country where, even by creating the mono-

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 187

matchsticks, we had resorted to a farming company, how can we hope that, for alcohol, we could do without the interposition of a Financial company? It is true that then all the difficulties resurfaced, as did accusations of agio-stages became formidable, from which he would follow necessarily that the alcohol monopoly would defeated, as indeed he was destined to be in Germany Magne.

Indeed, it would have been necessary to expropriate the industrialists, Compensating the capitalists, that alone killed the reform.

As for expropriating free of charge in order to establish a settlement then the special public alcohol service, that was, Ultimately, it's impossible without injustice.

In terms of socialization, it's all or nothing. is essential; simple logic dictates that everyone should be useful to all and not to the detriment of a few.

Meanwhile, we were amused by the thought of "the State liquor merchant and they were jokingly exhuming a an astonishing circular signed by Dufaure which was being made in May 1876, the broker of the company ee allu- Put it on!

Here is the circular:

MINISTRY Versailles, May 24, 1876
OF JUSTICE

Circular

"Mr. Attorney General,

"The Minister of Finance informs me that on the occasion-sion of the establishment, in France, of the match monopoly chemical company has just concluded, with Mr. Willette, representative of a number of factories

188 Speculation 4886

Furthermore, those with vision problems might have been able to deto cover, in this "naive" attitude of a guard of sceuux, the sign of all-powerful influence exercised, then as now, by the financiers ciders of the company in question."

In competition with the alcohol monopoly, some wanted to introduce income tax, new evidence of either ignorance or perfidy, because,
However you go about it, "so much
"that the capital will recoup its costs on the
"The work of the proletarian, he alone will pay"
"Taxation." Therefore, taxing income is equivalent to to impose the salary, at least, on legal paper.
This one would be clearly exempt from tax.

During the arrests prompted by the events in Decazeville, Parliament had excellent opportunities to thoroughly address the "Social question." He did nothing about it.

It was nevertheless deigned to be noticed that the railway tariffs showed anomalies; Baihaut pushed his devotion to the point of obtaining "of Swedish, a treaty under the terms of which he undertakes to import from Sweden a considerable amount (700 million).

"To facilitate the placement of these products, the company general would like to obtain the support of the pnbli- administrations giving special instructions to the various services under his orders, and by asking his colleagues to send instructions similar actions with regard to their respective departments.

"I therefore ask you, Mr. Attorney General, to invite your substitutes to use these matches, which, Being of the amorphous type, they have the advantage of not being able to... to ignite on their own, and to prevent fires.

"Receive, etc..."

"The Keeper of the Seals, Minister of Justice" and the abutments,

"J. DUFAURE"

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 189

"The Orléans Company, a decrease in "transport tariffs applied to products of "Decazeville, so that the company
"The mining company was able to sell its coal more easily."

This was yet another trick by the "conventional methods," and the workers were not to withdraw from them.
no profit.

To demonstrate this, I will simply need to transcribe to this place the arguments published by the newspapers paid by the railway companies.

"People complain," said the Lantern, "that the line
"From Dieppe to Paris, for example, there are fares" reduced for coal.

"Are you in favor of improving the Seine?"
Or do you want to fill it?

"You don't want to fill her with joy? You want to--"
"As navigable as possible? Yes. What "What will be the result? Bringing coal from Car"diff or Newcastle at the lowest possible rates-"sibles.

"What is the railway company doing? Having
"This competition, the Seine, it reduces its rates
"to transport, in turn, the coal to the most

"Who benefits? The Parisian consumer."

"He benefits from it as a consumer, but he also..."
"benefits, at the same time, as a taxpayer."

"If the Western company does well
"By using these rates, she takes a ga-
"lower interest payments and the taxpayer has "less to give him."

"We will take as an example the company from the West because it is topical; she (sic) could 11.

ES

190 Speculation 1886

"to be completely indifferent regarding price"
"and not trying to develop its traffic,
"since it is she who makes the most use of the "Interest guarantee."

This is the argument of those who receive subsidies.

So, in order not to fill the Seine and to reduce-
To guarantee the interest, it was necessary that 100,000 coal-
Their Frenchmen were exposed to dying of hunger!

As for assuming that the companies could as well as taking the coal from Decazeville and in the other deposits in the Centre or the North than "to Newcastle and Cardiff? As for assuming that the State could also have avoided paying guarantees of in-teret? That didn't even occur to the journalist;
For him, balancing production and consumption
The development of a country is called filling in the rivers.
- the rivers with monthly nuggets, obviously - and he does not "perceive that in writing this it is him, at
On the contrary, which "fulfills" common sense!

Still on the subject of the Decazeville strike, the
The poor brains of those who govern, incessantly dominated by "respect for property rights"
"which must not be harmed" (very well,
"Very well, LEFT (!)*," he continued on March 15th.
to seek a remedy in a modification of the

What came of it was worthless, and as a bill not stolen but deposited, and as an individual design-dual. Indeed, the famous "the "Miners' mine," as interpreted by MP Laur.

'The Lantern of March 24, 1886.

Parliamentary debates of March 11 and 15, 1886.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 491

whose good intentions I do not deny, but whose social myopia I deplore,

Unionizing workers for exploitation any, this remaining in competition with similar capitalist exploitations, is still a the concept of bourgeois hypocrisy.

I] one must not know the methods of competition employees even among property owners, for sup-pause for a moment so we can socialize a piece of a country, a city, a village, a field.

Regarding mining operations
In isolation, the reason is simple:

Since union members have no advance reserves, that is to say, no capital, would be forced to
to build one, little by little, by means of levies.

In the current system, in fact, capital is only an initial reserve allowing time to wait
I'm fed up with the exchanges, which then ceased to exist.
than to repay the advances made.

However, an initial reserve is essential to How to create an annual reserve: how do union members Could they interfere with the order of these creations?
They could only do so if, beforehand, they had markets that have been in place for a long series of years, which would precisely be to take the result for the cause; a vicious circle that consists of wanting to resolve the problem with another problem.

No, the abuses are collective; therefore, they are collective.

I'll go further: if, in capitalist France currently, a department, supposedly entirely so-specialist and surrounded by natural borders (montagnes and rivers) wanted to socialize its means of production, he would be forced to part ways with the rest of the nation, to constitute itself as an autonomous state, to have defense tariffs with an army to make them to respect, that is to say, to maintain equality of his exchanges, otherwise he would die quickly of hunger.

192 Speculation 1886

This issue of tariffs was also raised at the Chamber, following the discussions on Decazeville, because, when, by only one side, in touch with the problems, social problems, all parts of these problems they come in a line, "like drafts of air by "Open doors."

So we were talking about penetration fees that benefited foreign products at the expense of domestic production French. This, in turn, brought back to the forefront the horrible "Riots & Conventions," and the government had to propose to "continue its negotiations with the "companies, to establish the tariff-commission" "rights of interest to the customs regime and to charge "This commission is to propose legislative measures" "specific methods to strengthen the rights of the State in "Railway matters" (March 27).

"Verba!" Verba! prætcreaque nihil! »

The government was thus admitting its weakness; Furthermore: given the widespread corruption observed, it created the new danger of a particular commission-heavily exposed to the allure of gold from the feudalism of the railways.

In any case, it is certain that the year has passed. without "measures designed to formalize the rights" "of the State" no more than to modify the rates of chemin de fer, have been proposed.

And yet, the feeling of misery, the sense-

The nation of the general crisis, vibrated in the days-naux.

Louis Ulbach, in Le Figaro!, proposed a conclusion "without any school of thought." He quoted Émile de Laveleye, "the learned professor from Liège," who, at the occasion of the unrest in Belgium, he had recalled the crises of 1820 to 1828, which Sismondi had described and where "farms were looted and crops burned."

De Laveleye added that this disturbance at the time was, like that of 1886, "brought about by the same causes: increased production, decreased—" "a decrease in the means of exchange, hence an abnormal decline" "prices and ruin of agriculture and industry" "sorting".

But this conclusion contradicted itself; if, instead of writing diminution, de Laveleye had written about the hoarding of the means of exchange, it would have been closer to the truth.

It is certain, in fact, that if production grows faster than the means of exchange, with less resources, we need to have more production, because, Normally, the average fetal weight, whatever it may be, should always pay for the final products.

But it is clear, on the contrary, that the means have grown, for their part, in absolute numbers and that in 1886 they were found to be much more substantial. than in 1826; in France, at that time, the total of minted and legal tender coins, compared to the population, gave an exchange capacity of 89 francs. per head; in 1886: 36% francs per head.

However, in 1826, budget expenditures absorbed approximately 35% of the monetary resources,

{ Le Figaro, April 21, 1886.

The comparison therefore lacks basis and the rethe method advocated by the economist, that is to say, the use non-exclusive of gold in international trade nals, appears only as a conception of a particularly cloudy order.

Moreover, every time they are afraid of a a clearly socialist observation, the economists orthodox people take refuge in the most fanciful. In 1886, this was the case with the legendary Leroy-Beaulieu.

In September, just as we had been cons-to test the deficit in the cereal harvest, where the first known results of the census
They blame an increase in immigration foreign, where a slowdown was noted in the birth rate, that is to say a slow depopulation of the France, where, finally, they continued to proclaim the crisis
From all sides, he, Leroy-Beaulieu, found, for
To remedy the problems, the following ingenious methods are used:

"We should," he wrote in the Journal des Débats,
"Giving bonuses to immigrants; it is they"
"who will establish themselves, among us, as prolific families"
"fiques...; and open wide the doors of the "France is for workers who want to come here."

That's quite clear! And this bourgeois, chauvinistic... his hours, pushed towards brutal destruction for to prevent the invasion of national soil, proposed everything simply to encourage this invasion which, moreover-their, is already happening continuously and is aggravating the social suffering.

For the wealthy, anything goes, rather than a re-

_ UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 495

fair form! They even invented the theory of sterility, a sign of superior races, confound-dant, perhaps deliberately, the relaxation by the morals with cerebral tension; but morals and, consequently, the brain, being influenced by the bru-the nature of capitalism, that we eliminate this brutality-and we will see the French birth rate rise dramatically.
Çaise.

did nothing for the strikers in Decazeville, not more than for those from Vierzon. I'm mistaken: they imprisoned their defenders!, and sent some troops to directors and administrators*.

The Paris City Council alone passed the legislation. not without difficulty, some subsidies for the workers to which devoted friends added their contributions personal tion 5.

The administrators of Decazeville had not no excuse: although a limited company, they refused to publish their financial statements, because these had revealed profits they preferred to conceal They had therefore provoked the strike purely out of spite; they had therefore provoked the speculation.

The outcome was far from favorable to the ou-

{ Duke of Quercy and Ernest Roche.

2. The board of directors is composed as follows:

Léon Say, president; Raoul Duval, vice-president; Gastambide, secretary; Petitjean, managing director; Deseilligny, idem; E.-J. de Bammerville, A.-J. de Bammerville, Cibiel, Marmottan, Hély d'Oissel, Schneider, de Lamber-teric.

3 Cayrade, mayor of Capdenac, helped the strikers in 1886, as he had already done in 1878.

196 Speculation | | 1886

vriers, mails the Company benefited from the reduction-tariff adjustment wrested from the Compagnie d'Orléans, for: – and that's the height of impudence! – to facilitate agreement with the workers!

In Vierzon, the results were also not very promising. geux. The strike caused, as in Decazeville, by capitalist speculation, which "wanted to do double "production with a reduced staff of both" "Tier 4," and reduced wages at the same time of about half, dragged himself into a painful struggle, but energetic. The workers retained, after having seen rejecting their offer to only work six black bread, they declared their solidarity with them and the Unemployment was widespread.

The rulers sent battalions to directors. These, moreover, were also few in number. Are those from Decazeville really that nice?

The President of the Council had been indirectly involved. ment to the Zanque of loans to industry with Pa-Lotte, which I've already mentioned in connection with the Bank national, of the Union mobilière and of Lalou. In short, There was a whole bunch of speculators there.

Dedicated friends helped the strikers of Vierzon as they had helped those from Decazeville; But one day, life had to be lived!.... you can guess the rest |

In any case, if these strikes have not improved anything- They improved the situation of the workers, however

* Furthermore, see my articles in the Socialist Review of February 1886 and in the Ralliement of May 7 and 12, 1886.

1 The Vicrzon Agricultural Equipment Company had been founded, in 1879, by Lucien Arbel, Jacques Palotte, senators, Au-Auguste Barthe, P. Richard, deputies, and Louis Gallicher.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 497

served to stir up questions in Parliament that did not would not have been without them. Only then, could the usefulness of the small group of MPs representing feeling like the non-owning class.

But we are still confused when, after having thus gone through the series of problems Submitted to the Chambers, it is discovered that, for all As for a financial solution, they found only the em-prunt (May 10) and, for any workers' solution, that the vote on the bill concerning a Universal Exhibition to open in 1889 (April-June).

The loan, however, sparked disputes; one he said to the rulers:

– But you are breaking all your promises!

without borrowing.

– How? You're not borrowing 1.466 million?
lions?

– No! We are consolidating!

Indeed, only 900 million were created 30% annuities, including 400 million for depositors Savings banks and the pension fund for old age; so that no one truly offered to the public that 500 million should be used for the budget of the war, in particular, and to face the demands of the war.
agencies of floating debt.

The conversion of the 466 million was postponed.
Treasury bonds, and we will see in 1887 what... nice tampering, this conversion had to be accomplished accompanied. Meanwhile, the ministry's sycophants declared again that the loan was a

+

198 Speculation 1886

success!; and the speculators had yet another opportunity to “pluck” the public hen*.

Wilson, for his part, was lying in wait in his correspondence
Republican ponderance, launched in all the newspapers
The following circular is issued from the provinces:

CORRESPONDENCE Paris, April 28, 1886.
REPUBLICAN

48, rue Bergère, 18

Director's Office

"Sir and dear colleague,

"We have the honor of sending you herewith"
two articles concerning borrowing.

"Please reproduce them"
in your next issue, that is to say before Sunday, May 2nd.

"For this reproduction, the Correspondence repu-
The clerical authority will allocate you either ten francs for the two articles, or five francs for one of them.

"As you will notice, these articles are absolutely in line with the note in your esteemed newspaper;
This is patriotic and republican propaganda.

There were 248,407 subscribers in total; this number is lower than that which I have observed for other loans.

2? Courses for the year:
Course

has --
- Higher Lower

0/0 issues (December) 83.77 80.20 (March)
3 0/0 amortizable .. (December) 86.47 82.05 (December)
4 4/2 0/0 new .. (July) 110.75 408.30 (May) Treasury bond. (June) 527.50 506.00 (March)

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 199

"Please accept, I beg you, the assurance of my best wishes" and all devoted sentiments.

"The Director of Republican Correspondence,
"Alph. BERTRAND,"

"We ask you to send us, without delay, two copies of the legal issue, in return for which the
The amount of the insertion will be sent to you immediately.
Please inform us, by return mail, of the day of integration.

If, on the one hand, the loan, a "success" burdening new taxpayers, was at least one indication

This was a very clear admission of the fears that the future inspired those in power.

Exhibitions are, in fact, the great resource governments in dire straits. This is not to report on the progress of science, the arts and of the industry, that it is used every ten or twelve years ago, it was because of the capitalist system is identical to the operation of compound interest, which, at the usual rate of 50/0, doubles the capital every Fourteen years old.

However, depending on whether the land grabbing was more or less rushed and that the rates have been more or less inevitably, at the end of each Over a period of 10 or 12 years, we see dangerous growth—the impossibility of balancing needs and means of subsistence. So, we stimulate activity and a fictitious movement; the autoch— consumer tone no longer having the means to consume suf— Primarily to serve capital, we seek to at—to shoot foreigners. That's why the exhibitions are international.

9200 L'AGIOTAGE 1886

Simultaneously, displacements are triggered at inland by attracting residents to a Same point, because it provokes exchanges. Bad— Fortunately, these feverish exchanges have the character—the fever; they stop at the same time as the circumstance from which they were born; and our organic stability is such that, after this activity The people are a little more ruined, the majorations are a little more excessive; only feudalism Capitalism has become rich because it has monopolized all the net products.

Let's take a look at the past and... Bringing situations closer together! What was the role of the ex— The universal position of 1855? Did it prevent the Economic crisis? Where did things stand in 1864 and what were the effects of the Universal Exhibition of 1867, twelve years after 1855?

The economic crisis, exacerbated by the social crisis, Has she become less intense? Here the assertions— The tions are sinister: they are called Sedan; they They're called Paris!

In 1877, we were in the same situation; the ten or twelve years were about to be fulfilled; but, as the accumulation of capital had been more ferocious, the period had been shorter; eleven years had been sufficient since 1867. But the international fever of 1877-78 did not prevent the crash of 1882.

In 1886, the same thing happened; the government... takes three years in advance, but, if indeed that so that the 1889 exhibition could open – which is doubtful, – we will see the same engravings that I have reported in the past and which will make the final crisis even more terrible.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC .201

Three years later, in 1867, disasters occurred. 1870-1871.

Three years after 1878, we saw the Crash of 1881-1882. |

Three years after 1889, we are exposed to see a 1892-1893!

It was amidst these various occupations that e- Suddenly, a noise made sinister by its propagating. |

Amélie d'Orléans was going to marry the Duke of Bra- elegance; much more: in "formal receptions", "We had found," said Le Figaro, "all the elements" of a royal court! (May 26.)

And immediately the assertion of "a conspiracy" was added. royalist ration!

A simple marriage had put France in a position of power. boiling.

I'm not superstitious, but I agree that we should not too disdain the influence of marriages; thanks to them, we often have the key to certain complications or certain combinations difficult to explain without them.

And indeed, as long as the corrupt morality of the code French will maintain, under the large number of the Title V, the 194 paragraphs regulating the ignoble traffic which he calls a Marriage Contract, we will be allowed only wanted to use a human multiplication.

For example, will we ever know what it cost?
to France the marriage of Ms. Alice Grévy with Daniel Wilson?

Will we know more about what prepared, accomplished... accompanied and attended the wedding of M^{lle} Périvier, daughter of

209 Speculation 1886

. first president of the Court of Appeal, with the arch-Millionaire Sarlin?

Only the association of ideas leads me to speak
the Périviers when I just mentioned the Grévys;
The witnesses at the Sarlin wedding are the cause:
Their names were Messrs. Jules Grévy and Daniel Wilson.

But Sarlin was once a friend of the Élysée Palace.
litigant before the Court of Appeal, almost at the same time while Dreyfus, another friend of the Elysée, and also:
litigant before the same court.

The reader will remember, I explained to him the broad outlines of a huge trial that has been taking place since several years, incurring the risk to Auguste Dreyfus of considerable risks.

It is true, one of his main opponents,
Premser had just committed suicide towards the end of 1885.
but he left behind heirs who were claiming a few tens of millions.

However, this trial, which had been going on for more than ten years, suddenly, it ends; Périvier being first President, the court delivers five judgments on the same day.
April 22, 1886.

On June 1st, thirty-eight days later – the time it took to lifting the big ones (when the clerk puts a little effort into it) goodwill) – a wedding was being celebrated where plai-Friends and associates of the litigants were listed in the first rank.

Perhaps it's just a coincidence! The same coincidence will Wilson will probably protect Dreyfus from the registration administration; Dreyfus therefore

Yes and no! The ruling is admirable! Dreyfus pays.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 203

a quarter of the costs, because he succumbs to certain points; that's what we see.

But there is arbitration on the major chapters of 25 million, and what we don't see is the outcome—ment.

Moreover, Dreyfus had been clever; to stop the complaints of the holders of Peruvian securities, he had made arrangements with them in England (December 1885); he therefore presented himself in fine form The posture of a generous man.

But admit it, it would be curious to have to note that the suicide victim alone paid the costs of The English arrangement and the French arbitration!

If the first president is offended by these Regarding the connections, I will limit myself to answering him completely. — net: that there are trials that one does not preside over, when we have certain worldly, social or policies with certain litigants or their powerful associates friends; in such a case, one is absent, one asks even, or, for the case, referral to another jurisdiction diction, or, for oneself, a change of residence.

In short, spontaneous recusal, inscribed in the law, of which there are only a few examples, has no other objective than to defend the ra against possible suspicions; and, alas! these do not They were never more so than under the Grévy presidency!

Here's another wedding: the millions are there again—transformed, and, around these millions, speculation. Huge ones have been reported.

I've already talked about the Panama Canal and Lebaudy!

'See the year 1880, volume I, page 302 and also my Kings' of the Republic.

»

This one, aimed at replacing Ferdinand of Lesseps, as president of the Society, sought to monopolize a large number of titles; and, in order to arrive, he maintained, against the company, a cam-lin cloth prices are falling.

"It will take more money than we think we will have"
"Never finished on schedule!" they said.
newspapers in his pay.

In fact, Lesseps had had to change his business-neurs; one of them was named Hersent; the termination The details of his contract were a complete mystery, in which I I don't want to go in; Lesseps was wrong to agree the assistance of this man; but, having accepted it, he he should have explained his breakup better than he did with him. Whatever the case may be, the company had one one more enemy.

Lebaudy seized upon all these circumstances!
The newspapers filled with contradictory accounts toires.

There was even an official report addressed In the government? And why all the fuss? Because that Lesseps was requesting permission to broadcast Lottery bonds. That's what was causing the commotion.

Seized by a sudden moral imperative, the government did not authorize the issuance of the batches.

Yes, there are days when he's like that! He self-rise all sorts of funisian, colonial lotteries

{ Panama stock price:

Course

—

Higher Lower

| (April) 476.50 385 (September)
Report by Rousseau, May 1886

or French, some even having liquidation difficulties; but morality opposed the emission-lot allocation for Panama.

I am not a friend of capitalist enterprises.
– Do I need to say it? – But the hypocrisy of government officials, financiers, and journalists are, Truly, it's far too sickening for me not to... don't expose them; besides, this question of the lots, same on the occasion of Panama, reproducing itself periodically, I want to empty it once and for all.

What criticism is being leveled at Panama?

This one: to draw heavily on savings public for a company whose product is not not insured in proportion to the capital invested; or, if we want to take metal from France to pay work in America, without, in exchange, the France is certain to receive an equivalent service slow.

This criticism is valid. But then, besides the fact that it could be addressed to all foreign broadcasts in management, he applied himself, above all, to the design of Paf- to make interoceanic; therefore, it is at the beginning that it Lesseps should have been prevented from resorting to savings French, and even prevent the creation of the Panama Company.

– And what about free trade? some will say; the emissions- The sions are perfectly free; the State can do nothing prevent |

That's still very accurate; and that's where the batch system.

Competition between the various genres of titles created by financial piracy, produced the struggle rates.

payment.

For example: 25 francs of income is promised from a nominal sum of 500 francs (which is 5 0/0); but they only ask for 450 francs and, sometimes, 400 francs (which is then 6 1/4 0/0).

This struggle is in the public domain, and when there is no There are no serious rivalries, the wolves, I mean The broadcasters don't eat each other too much. They were allied, moreover, to devour the public.

But, as soon as a major rivalry is involved, Everything changes and the unfortunate issuer, put in a position of rantaine, is forced to adopt rates at 7, 8 and meme 9 0/0, that is to say, to offer a potential income 25 francs against a payment of 250 or 300 francs. °

It is clear, isn't it, that the resources thus the ones obtained are half as useful, because, there where some, promising 25 francs, obtain 450 francs, the others promising the same amount, they only receive 250 francs.

But if, in addition to purely industrial risk, exposed to ail- their discussions, more or less fair, the em- The seller can cite another, uncontroversial risk. having only one advantageous side: the perception of a a prize awarded by lot, that is to say a lot, this The emetteur will be able to respond to his opponents:

– The matter is subject to unforeseen circumstances, that is True; which one does not suffer from it? But, for this one, You always have a lucky break; all the world, it is true, cannot go to Corinth, but You can be among those who go.

Hearing this, the subscribers, greedy fools, bour-

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 207

possessive and parasitic geois, moreover, do not deserve no pity, they are seduced by the lof and the subscription- tion is covered, with the circumstance that, for With 25 francs in revenue, the refiner can expect to receive see 450 francs and sometimes 500 francs of res- usable sources.

securities with lots are not. In order to favor—to prioritize one's own interests or those of one's friends, or even, even, to extort money from the financial sector, the State has reserved the ability to defend or permit emissions provided with lots.

This is how certain loans from cities and certain Crédit Foncier securities come with bonuses. distributed by a random draw.

At Crédit Foncier, notably, the ability to self-risatation was, in the hands of Léon Say, a terrible weapon; to judge for oneself, the reader need only... Refer to my previous comments!

Well, if morality has anything to do with it finance, I declare that it is also immoral to self-increase lottery loans in favor of cities and of Crédit Foncier, which was in favor of Panama.

Indeed, the loans of the cities and the Credit land are the main elements of the major-capital flows, which, in turn, crush the people through rent and taxes, in proportion to their increase; to favor them in a way which-conch shell is therefore equivalent to organizing ruin and half-national seras.

However, let there be no mistake: this is not { See the years 1877 and following, in particular, Volume I, pages 193 and 216.

208 Speculation 1886

not, specifically, by lot permissions that one favors these ruins, it is by the mere fact of having ins-written into the law the freedom of borrowing by issuing public sion.

But this freedom existing, being maintained, the The lottery favor becomes a mitigation of its role harmful.

What I am about to write here is true, even to the point from the bourgeois point of view of the middle class.

Let me give you an example:

A city needs five million for tra-road maintenance costs; to obtain these five million in terms of numbers, he will need to borrow six millions two hundred and fifty thousand francs; with prizes, five million two hundred and sixty-five thousand francs {.

Therefore, less markup, consequently less ag-tax increase.

The same applies to Panama:

Without the loans, he will borrow freely more often.
and, to have, for example, 500 million it will be forced to ask for 700 or 800 of them, which, being lost, would certainly be more expensive than 550 or 600 million lots; there is more: if a Refusal would have led to the downfall of the company itself.
This would have caused, at the same time, the loss of the milliara previously paid.

As we can see, the government's concern towards Saving is pure hypocrisy.

The truth is that they wanted to force the actions-naires to pay the balance of the capital they had 4 I only count the differences in these two figures.

differences between issue rates, interest calculation and remaining amortization outside.

$mms - mn \odot = 2 +$

L

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 209

promised, which was in accordance with fairness; but this equity itself was invoked solely because that it was hoped, through a fundraising appeal, to provoke Numerous sales, consequently, a decline, which would make it easier to acquire shares.
That's what happened between 1885 and 1886, but not quite completely, it seems, since the struggle has continued since.

Furthermore, the mass of credit institutions had been somewhat cold, had an interest in this that the title Panama was not endowed with the appeal lottery, which would have given his rags some competition formidable.

Therefore, all governmental morality lies in This observation: that lotteries – simple games – do not compete with the establishments of credit, but that the loferies with placement their are much more sensitive!

Well, it's by speculating on these various circumstances that... constants that Lebaudy and a few other vultures of the Jewish community led their campaign against Les-seps.

That said, I will simply point out that at the end of In January 1886, the upcoming marriage of Me Hersent, daughter of the ex-entrepreneur from Panama, with Paul Lebaudy, son of the multimillionaire speculator-naire. |

So far, the marriages I have reported and to–

'The same maneuver continued in 1888 and we will not know never by what "Sacrifices" will Lesseps have obtained the famous authorization.

2 Figaro of January 30, 1856.

HAS

910 Speculation 1886

to which I can add, without further comment, that from M1 of Marcère with G. Christophle, relative of Those in charge at Crédit Foncier are only denouncing... combinations between possessing groups, but not are only a fraction of the total threats facing the nation. Only the Wilson marriage had this character. to encompass the dual individual and collective peril.

Alas! The same must be said of the Braganza marriage. a rapprochement that will perhaps make the bourgeois of the arrival at Jena, which will only prove that it is not difficult.

You might imagine that I'm going to talk about the Orleanist peril?

No. The Braganza union had something good about it.
more unexpected. This Union has contributed to the popularity of the General Boulanger.

Yes! The astonishment of the ruling bourgeoisie, at the news of an alleged royalist plot, after having brought about the pointless discussions about the expulsion princes, then the vote for this expulsion, gave the spectacle of the strange servility of those who tremble-
They dared to touch the lords and suddenly raised, General Boulanger, who, in turn,
had dared to qualify the duke's impertinent attitude
d'Aumale |

But, you propertied bourgeois, know this: it is not It's impossible that, on that day, you simply... with the debris of your royalist lands, manufactured
The stuff of a dictator!

See the supply chain: From this moment on, Baker, who is ambitious and chauvinistic, two vices, when one bearing a sword and plume, began his propaganda campaign... sonnelle. All the processes followed: color images

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 211

anecdotes, biographical notes, incognito visits in the barracks and in the arsenals, familiar taps on the shoulder of the bewildered sentry for having refused the door to his supreme leader, severity towards the officers and caresses to the subordinates; a little more well-being for the secondly, a few skillfully timed "stops" to the first ones; in short, the whole series of advertisements tra-customary.

The troupe, neglected and mistreated, having been until now more specifically a mine for military supplies taires for Erlanger, Godillot, Seillière, Veil-Picard, Gévelot, Secretan and others less well-known, breathed, felt better, and joined the army
First, a Boulangist party arose which was not to
It won't be long before things spill over onto the chauvinists.

"We will fight! Things will get better 'afterwards!' That's it."
that the bourgeois was saying in a low voice. – And then what?

Does Boulanger even suspect what he needs to to remedy the social ill that has survived all the wars, to all the Napoleons, to all the

Will he be anything other than a Malthusian butcher?
or will he want to be the man feigning strength and:
putting it at the service of so- regeneration internal culture, by imposing respect on appetites exteriors?

This formidable mystery is the least of our worries.
of the people; he shouts: "Long live Boulanger!" he sings it Even... Come what may!

The cumbersome general stunned the ministry. Wilson and Grévy looked at each other in horror.

What was this restless creature that, at first, had accepted all the smiles, returned all the

219 Speculation 1886

handshakes, write a graceful word on thousands of cards, listened to all the proposals of supplies, decorations, and which, all of a sudden, was evading?

Because he was so evasive that he had closed his door to Wilson's meddling, hence his personal downfall one which, next year, will be intentionally included, in a ministerial crisis.

I am well aware that in untangling, at this hour troubled, Boulanger's actions compared to those of Wilson, I give myself the appearance of "holding it for "The general." That's a mistake! The Wil- dispute His baker was recounted to me by an ocu- witness eye and little finger, and I don't want to "hide" it, because my constant preoccupation is to shoot true conclusions from all the facts of which I I am seized. Moreover, for the moment, the act vrsi would only testify, in its author, to a a clear perception of the scandals that were brewing, or a rivalry for influence with the Élysée!

On the other hand, it would seem natural that a man,
eager to secure the army's serious allegiance, sought to cut short the supply of frelate in use for so long. In these con-publishing a break with all of Wilson's protégés or Ferry became inevitable.

This is a peculiarity of a fact revealed in March!

Baron Seillière, a general partner of the Demachy R.-F. Seillière bank, came to be provided with judicial counsel; even a note

'The Devil of March 23, 18K6.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 213

inserted in the newspapers, accused the baron of having 12 million wasted in ten years.

Moreover, we knew that, thanks to the intimacy of the said the baron with Daniel Wilson, his banking house had obtained numerous contracts with the State.
Wouldn't the ban change the situation?
termination of the contracting parties and bringing about a termination treaties passed? This was being asked publicly.
question to General Boulanger.

Later, we will see this prohibition of Seillière to turn tragic, through a kidnapping where Péllysée and the Princess of Sagan will play a role strange |

It was again in 1886 that concern was raised about a new gunpowder for shells and a new rifle, the Lebel rifle; hence Boulanger's demands, claiming an extraordinary 300 million for the army; hence also the no less extraordinary attitude dinner by Daniel Wilson, general rapporteur of the budget, insisting, this time, on savings, and allocating only 105 million for the war |
And yet, regarding arms supplies, the abuses I mentioned, when dealing with the Gras rifle and damaged cartridges, although reported, constantly lied as early as 1884 and 1885 by a metals dealer Albert Hubner, named, had continued. By Unfortunately, this informer of the Laveissière family and Secrétan was a litigant; he had a lawsuit with Secrétan; one could therefore suspect him or of resentment or rivalry; all of this mitigated a little importance to his revelations.

However, when one has the courage to read the prose:
bogged down, with which he has, in turn, burdened Jules

Ferry, Spuller, Jean-Casimir Périer, Camperon, Borel, Billot, Thibaudin, Farre and even Clemenceau
And in Andrieux, one eventually discovers some truths.
frightening, on which political motives
Only financiers were able to succeed in silencing them.

How else can we conclude when we see all public affairs are linked to profits personal?

Were they referring to the sugars for which there were demands?
The extension of the surtax established in 1884? There had, at heart, a trafficker's interest; Wilson and Siegfried, for example, were administrators of the Fives-Lille Company; or we know it in the Report from 1884-85! The following sentence:

"We feared the sale... the new-
"This new tax legislation has allowed one of the "sugar factories to pay us part of the "Interests that she owed us."

The report of November 27th also stated 1886:

"The overall results of the exercise would leave
"to be desired if the profit from our sweets were not
"came to compensate for the reductions, thanks, above all,
to the new tax legislation.

And these reports were signed Wilson, Siegfried, etc.

Were these sanitation works to be carried out at Marseille, to paralyze, as I have already said, the Cholera contagion? Quickly Wilson, Fives-Lille and The Batignolles Society is in motion and sa-Do you know how this ends? With a trial.
scandalous in the Assize Court where, for having hesitated

1 General Assembly of November 20, 1885.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 215

to denounce a bribe, a deputy mayor is was still Wilson; this was clearly stated to the audience and had the unfortunate accomplice executed, all the more harshly because we wanted to avoid pro- to fade the austere name of the President of the Republic- that :.

Regarding the salicylation of beers, the wetting of less, of the metro, of the telephones, of the Boulevard Haussmann, the wooden paving, the Hôtel des Posts, like those around cartridges, sheets, Rifles, mess kits, decorations, everywhere: Traffic! Traffic! Traffic!

The Jewish community is overflowing. This was observed in a restrained manner. weaving in a work supported by two duels*; threatened in the person of Rothschild, that the humble justice sought to defend against the socialism, and that the jury condemned by acquitting the accused * she shakes herself desperately, in further fueling anger against her.

But all sorts of Jewish groups were right. to be furious, because, during the year, they avaricious wanted to issue another billion values, and everything had remained in their hands { ;

4 Case of the Health Vouchers, Court of Absences of the Bouches-du-Rhône, hearing from November 20 to 30, 1886.

2 Drumont. Jewish France.

3. The Cri du Peuple Affair. Jules Guesde, Lafargue, etc. Trial: see Le Figaro of September 26, 1886.

4 Issues from 1886:

State and city borrowers. 507 million 8/40
Credit institutions..... 96 - 7/10
Railways and industrial companies... 514 - 2/10

TOTAL scene 1.118 million 7/40

916 Speculation 1886

even one of their own, the stockbroker Vuaflart, having been executed, he committed suicide (December).

With finance complaining, it will come as no surprise.
to be included in the inventory of national capital
At the end of 1886, there were reductions on buildings!
and on furniture; financial assets only have increased, precisely, by the value of the issues unplaced ions.

In short, the total reduction was 7 billion?

This partial jubilee, this capitalist devaluation, had had unemployment and the collaborators dead.

The number of deaths had been higher: (836,897 in 1885; 860,222 in 1886). Therefore: less than living misery; also it had been observed, towards the end of the year, which tax revenues, without equaling
The forecasts were improving slightly.

The wealth of property owners had not increased; the Wage labor had increased slightly. (The dead no longer in competition.

Here, moreover, is a summary table of the situation:

'The Crédit Foncier executed during this year 162 expropriations on its borrowers; but its pledges to him at the end of 1886, 296 buildings were listed.
core to its balance sheet.

1 Billion

D

1883 1886 Difference

Real estate capital 426 5/10 122 4/10 – 4 4/40

– furniture 76 4/10 72 5/10 – 3 9/40

– financial..... 42 8/10 43 8/10 + 1 0/10

Totals..... 245 7/10 238 7/10 – 7 0/10

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 217

End of 1885 End of 1886

Owners..... 18 18

Employees 69 g 70 employees

Destitute..... 13 12 destitute

Total..... 100 100

But, clearly, social dysfunctions preparations are underway; noisy demonstrations have taken place.
multiplied throughout the year; the blows of pistols, or political exaltation, or irritation individual, are more numerous; the trials of morals, intimate scandals, thefts, everything multiplies.

Crises, government breakdowns, corruption, administrative favoritism and by-Elements are gradually revealed, and begin to scandalize the petty bourgeoisie's labor court.

Also a friend of General Boulanger, finding that
The opportunity was ripe, he dared, in his journal La French military (December), ask outright the general's dictatorship, to which, even more astonishingly again, without protesting, but under various forms, there was an echo in a number of newspapers.

But in the meantime, Wilson was triumphant; a new
The ministry had just been installed on December 10th and, in this ministry, there was a minister of finances, a magistrate, Dauphin, the friend of Crédit French general and Baron d'Erlanger.

SUMMARY. 1887. – The periodic stock market crash. – Assu-France against an accident. – Havas Agency. – Massacres glorious! – To stigmatize, not to punish. – First acquittal-Erlanger's comment. – Coincidences. – At the Hippodrome.
– The savior's order. – Er-'s second acquittal Langer. – The spoliations. – Parliamentary gossip.
– Financial insurance and Dauphin. – Two hypotheses.
– Baker excluded. – Bulgarian combinations. – Suf-
Free information! – False documents. – Factual milestones. – Hirsch is doing his accounts.– Financial battalion. – France hardworking and paying. – Coburg, Orleans and Co. – The mixed race. – Census. – Agrarian Europe. – Invasion Peaceful. – Workers' Congress. – The fiftieth anniversary. –
An unswallowed bribe. – Engineer Chevallier, optiof scandals. – Words from Épinal. – A grain of sand.

– Seillière's sequestration. – Minor speculation. – The Decorations. – Collusion. – Very clear dates. – Crisis serious. – Sadi-Carnot, – Supreme antagonisms.

The periodic stock market maneuver to which speculators subscribed for the first quarter of each year, a acquired a particular character in 1887.

Indeed, one of the main speculators, one of the more dangerous, Erlanger, was running a perilous risk-first.

From the very first days of January, the Court of Correctional appeals was supposed to deal with him; the
The mill of his victims was on his trail and did not pre-
He didn't want to let go. It's true, some spec-

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 219

The perpetrators had infiltrated his victims (the baron having had the imprudence (?) to satisfy some of them-ones), and the result was that: just claims on the one hand and threatening greed on the other had concluded a kind of pact, making it more dangerous, not so much the dishonor of the eventual revelations
tuelles – the baron had seen many others | – that the size of the sums that can be claimed.

It was therefore essential, at all costs, to obtain impunity and to then stifle isolated complaints; that was the af-to make a few million "smart" people take in the public purse.

Almost at the same time, Jules Ferry had combined with political speculation:

BY CHANCE, during the day's visits
That year, he had met Freycinet at Grévy's.

By chance, the three of them had been talking about the General Boulanger; by chance, they had issued common ideas.

For his part, General Boulanger was very concerned of his personal plans, he was chasing popularity and ended up creating the impression of belligerent intentions queses.

The ground was admirably prepared for a stock market hit, and even for two.

With its Prussian specialty, Erlangerle included 3

Having transformed the Havas Agency into a public limited company, having maintained close relations with the leaders from this agency', it was easy for him to "suggest"

'One of them goes every morning to look for Tait- Street the baron's secretary, M. de Wailly, and takes him away- Junior at Peters or Brébant. (See my lecture (On La penæne in journalism.)

2920 L'AGIOTAGE | A887

a sensational new development, which, naturally, would have related to a threat of Franco-German war.

In fact, it was also playing into Ferry's hands. than Wilson's, both fearing the "mou- "ascending flight" of the Minister of War; Therefore, it was doing a service to both rival powers, taking out some kind of insurance against a "judicial accident," whatever the ministry in office.

With things thus prepared, the Havas Agency suddenly published, on January 25th, as being the translation of an article from the Daily News, the note next:

"The Daily News claims that Germany is at "the day before asking France, in a form "Somewhat peremptory, EXPLANATIONS on the "movements of French troops at the border" "From the East."

On the stock market, the effect of this rating was all the more it was devastating that the speculators had overworked the walk.

To clarify, I'll say that a salesperson of 3 0/0 at 82 fr. 50 end of current, which would have operated on 3 million in annuities could deliver securities ra- bought at 79.50 francs and thus win, at once, 3 million Lions Net in just one month!

'The main variations from January to February were the following:

January February

Re. SR CS

Higher Lower Higher Lower

80/0..... 82.55 79.50 79.80 76.40
4 1/20/0..... "bones. 410.95 408.00 408.00 106.00
Italian, 102.40 94.90 96.00 90.50

SU dssistosiouces 2082, 50 1965, 00 1980, 00 1895, 00

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 291

However, the translation by the Havas Agency was intended technically alarming: instead of the words: "The Daily News CLAIMS THAT GERMANY IS AT THE WAKE-UP... » It should have been written:

"No one who is aware of the facts will be surprised"

"If, in a very short time... Germany,

"etc... 15"

Anyone with a bit of brains could not to misunderstand the true origin of this astonishing translations; it was enough to know that Erlanger had the hand, the gaze and creatures in a multitude of offices and, even more so, at the Havas Agency; This one, whatever its status as a public limited company, has arranged in such a way as not to be accountable to its shareholders, on the sole condition that they do not ask for money.

However, as she can, elsewhere than at home, to find whatever he wants to harvest, anonymity For her, it is nothing more than a means to remove its directors from eventual responsibilities tuels. Indeed, if the company wins, nobody can control how and how much; if she loses, The anonymous individual alone, and not men, will be liable of bankruptcy; too bad, then, for the creditors if ACUF is insufficient!

You don't need to be a "cleric" to recognize- to be born, in these statutes, the hand of the one who had

of the French General Credit Bank.

Some newspapers, lacking brains,

'The English text contained, in fact, the following words:

"But no one who is acquainted with the facts, will be surprised if in a very short time", etc...

299 Speculation 1887

some "information" almost pointed him out Clearly, in hindsight, though.

"We believe we know," it was printed, "that the article
"which has produced such a strong emotion in the world"
"The stock market item was ordered and paid for"
"very expensive by a well-known speculator and of origin-
"Foreign gin!"

But that wasn't all. Loyalty had been accused.
of the Havas translation; it was necessary to soften the bad-
The effect produced was that it had been such that Time, himself, (not in confidence, no doubt),
had expressed outrage at the administration's "carelessness"
Havas. |

The Post Office, from Berlin, is a regular occurrence (we remember). threatening communications, ? was tasked with check the Daily-News prediction.

With the title: "Under the Knife's Edge", she launched an article pointing out that "the language of "The French press made it possible to recognize that "the situation of the Minister of War had become "unassailable," that the efforts directed against him had "completely failed," and finally that, more master of the situation, unlike Thiers or Gambetta, "General Boulanger was in a state of "unleash war" 5.

Wilsonians and Ferrystes were clearly in agreement.
cord to conduct this sickening campaign, which yet it went against its purpose; for, far from mitigating,
It boosted the general's popularity; popularity unhealthy, moreover, being based on the hope of 3 See, volume 1, page 163.

3 See the newspapers of February 3, 1887.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 993

to see the massacres and killings organized at-what foolish tradition attaches to an idea of Glory!

Meanwhile, Erlanger had snatched up a few thousand lions, and, equipped with much more powerful ammunition that all the powders and all the rifles, he could to face the situation.

I said earlier that the first forsequels had affected him in 1883.

In June, he was pleading a case in the correctional police court.
Lævw was, at that time, the public prosecutor, Falci-Maigne was his substitute. An expert named Barré, elected deputy for Seine-et-Oise, had been charged to produce a conclusive report against that of the expert Flory.

None of these illustrious figures discovered any kind of guilt: they found that, indeed.
and there, a few tramlings of flowerbeds, but, ja-but, in their opinion, Erlanger had not advanced the foot beyond the limit, "undecided" (Fal- admitted (Cimaigne), which separates the bad administration of the fraudulent act.

"The accused must be condemned, but they must be ren-
"To see the end of the complaint," concluded the deputy prosecutor.
who knew well those he was dealing with.

However, on June 19, 1883, the Public Prosecutor's Office, concerned,
It seems that, on the big day of the hearing, he was dispossessed.
the Court by announcing information and the Tri-Bunal had to concede by handing the matter over to the first day.

As a simple ephemeris, allow me to
It should be recalled here that, on July 11, 1883, the Minister of Marine was granting the Tonkin cable concession to Eastern company, at the bottom of which I denounced the hand d'Erlanger.

That, on August 1st, the Chamber refused to approve this convention, but only in December of the same that year, changing her mind, she had authorized this which she had disapproved of six months earlier!

That said, I'll continue:

In August 1884, Erlanger and the two Berthiers, having satisfied certain claimants who "te- were born "too strong," they demanded the removal of their a matter; but not a simple dismissal, which was not enough for them; instead of the legal formula and constant in such cases: "The Court orders "the removal of the case from the record," (a formula which left the opening the door to further prosecutions), they want- which was written: "The Tribunal refers d'Er- "langer, Berthier, etc... for the purposes of the complaint."

We know, don't we, how rigidly judges and Clerks receive the requests of the unfortunate litigants; we know that, rather than changing a syllable in the old legal jargon, the magistrature would be guillotined!

Well, Erlanger and his friends got the insertion of a "referral of the complaint's purpose" in the the mechanism of the judgment, that is to say, an absolution relating to facts which the court had not been know?

Thanks to this subterfuge, – there is no other word – Erlanger escaped article 419 punishing its fictitious dividends are absolutely undeniable.

{ See volume II, pages 102 and 147.

2. Bigault de Granrut's plea. Stenographic record. graph by Léon Sarradin.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 295

However, we still had the resource of the ar- Article 405 punishing fraud; it was on this point that the pursuers launched new attacks battles, which culminated, on August 4, 1886, in a pre- My judgment.

Allow the reader to insert this—Additional ephemerides:

In April 1886, Loew, who had long been Having previously served as Attorney General, he became President of chamber at the Court of Cassation and Bouchez, who had succeeded as public prosecutor, became attorney general; finally, at the moment when The judgment of August 1886 was handed down; Bernard was public prosecutor.

The judgment of August 4, 1886 was rendered by the 8th chamber, presided over by Judge Vanier; this judge—
"He declared: that the acts described as fraud—
"ries, according to article 405, being the same as "those deemed to be in violation of Article 419, there were
"The matter has been settled with regard to them."

He did, it is true, point out some new offenses.
against the Berthiers, punished them with a fine of 3,000 francs.
mende and six months in prison, but he acquitted Erlan—
to deal with this platonic blame:

"No document in the case has emerged"
"€ that Erlanger participated in the preparation of financial statements" € fraudulent... whatever the culprit may have been "conduct. The specific offense of distributing
"a fictitious dividend cannot be retained at its
"In this regard."

The eighth chamber was truly putting some effort into it.
complacency, because, since she accepted the thing judged, what use was this strange "white—

13.

996 Speculation 41887

"chiment" otherwise to justify Falcimai-'s word
gne:

"They should be stigmatized, not punished."

This theory, moreover, clearly denounces its inspiring, and she displayed it publicly in 1888, on these same benches of the correctional police, being argued for Wilson by his lawyer Lenté.

the outcome of which was particularly favorable to Erlanger were held precisely at the times when the influence of Wilson's was predominant... at the Élysée Palace. Thus, in June 1883, before the Alphonse's skirmish; in August 1886, after the fall of Ferry.

In any case, the acquittal in August having been, on the surface, preceded by a debate, the public, which does not read, one could believe that this poor baron had been strangely persecuted.

What? Him, a crook? A man with such great relations! Was it the very day before the judge? In August, he hadn't been seen in his box at the Hippodrome, Clemenceau himself? No! It wasn't possible!

The truth is that Clemenceau had been linked since he spent a long time with the Berthiers, and he used to dine at their house pretty much every Friday. But these are common accidents; who can even be held responsible for his best friend? Clemenceau was saddened by the misfortune of his family; therefore, he did not spread it: and his newspaper laconically inserted the following note:

"The eighth chamber of the Seine court"
"delivered its judgment yesterday in the Crédit Agricole case"
"French general. Mr. Erlanger was dismissed from the

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC. 297

"End of the complaint, the other defendants detained"
"for violations of the law of 1867."

"The offenses of fraud and breach of trust"
"They were dismissed!"

I am not confusing Clemenceau and the financiers whose odyssey I have just recounted. I know that the leader of the far left is personally quite correct; I also know that he was so convinced of the benignity of the actions of Berthier, that he did not risk any action in their favor. He believed they were sacrificed to Erlanger's unpopularity. Changing diapers, that's all.

But I find it harder to understand his leniency towards the latter, especially reminding me of the severity of his

child *?. |

Alas! I fear that there are still the requirements of this harmful policy, which, during for so long, Justice and the Intransigent had been attached to giant on the chariot of the Elysian son-in-law!

Despite everything, however, Erlanger felt the be-care to present himself to the people in good company; this The financial merchant apparently believed that with the same elbow, which he had greased on the mahogany of the French General Credit, he could rub some gen-Chairs, deputies, kings! {strange association} (of ideas!) that would throw enough dust in people's eyes to hide the damage done to what he used of honor!

That is why, in 1886, having invited the king and queen of Greece, he had wanted his very © La Justice du au août 1886.

2 See volume II, page 58.

298 Speculation 1887

estimable woman went with the queen to visit solemn-mentally the orphanage of Abbé Roussel; sin-choice gulier! because this establishment was already under the of the scandal which, a few months later, was to unravel to tie in the court of assizes 4, almost at the same time that he himself, Erlanger, would triumph again criminal court.

Indeed, in January 1287, as I said, on the plaintiffs' appeal, the Erlanger and Ber-case Thier was registered on the roll.

Almost at the moment when the debats, the newspapers announced that the minister of King of Greece, Delyannis, "charged with handing over to "President of the Republic" the grand cordon of Was the "Order of the Savior" going to be received at the Élysée Palace? Was the Savior's command a "parable"? There it was indeed necessary to save once again the Consul of the Greeks!

Yet he was in good hands; could count on the Court's guidance; his financial matters; a simple investigating judge, he had in time relaxed extraordinarily Soubeyran*, Dauphin being his Attorney General; this not having It hasn't hindered his progress, so why not relax? "Wasn't it Erlanger?" The circumstances were the same. except that Dauphin, instead of being a Prosecutor General, was the Minister of Finance!

The debates lasted from January to March. They were eventful; imprudent actions nearly prevented { Annette Harchoux case, January–February 1887.

2 La Liberté, January 13, 1887.
3 It was Bresselle again who acquitted Wilson in 1888.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 299

indulgence; a forgotten slip earned Erlanger the accusation of having bribed witnesses; he was Incapable! Nothing worked. The damning decision, but without penalty, was in the minds of the court.

At one point, the magistrates had believed themselves the toy of a bad dream: from all corners of their relationship, people were worried about the solution Erlanger. In some dark room or other, they had stripped their file, counted their relationships, their alliances, their interests, the functions that envy them ronnalent.

In short, despite the firm and loyal conclusions of the Advocate General Roullié, whose attitude rests on a Little in all this mess of compromises, the court ruled as follows:

"Considering that it is undisputed, in law, that of "mere false allegations of some kind"
"However folded they may have been, they could not, par-
"the same, constituting fraudulent schemes at "meaning of article 405 of the penal code;

"Regarding fraud:"

"Considering that, if the thorough examination of the
"The facts of the case reveal, among the defendants,
"unscrupulous speculative habits and, more "Especially one of them! A greedy mindset"
"skilled at arranging all things for his own benefit"

"corporate responsibility which he actually has,
"designed and directed*, it is constant that the offense

'Erlanger. Originally, his name was mentioned, but he has was then replaced by the designation "one of the two."

2 J1 does not result from any document in the case, they said

930 Speculation | 1887

"-fraud can only exist on the condition that "remittances were obtained with the help of
"of blatant maneuvers; that it follows from this "which precedes the facts invoked by the parties
"civil, or are not established, or do not "do not present the character of delicate maneuvers"
"killers; therefore, the offense cannot be upheld."

After these fine considerations, the same Court of-declared that the squandering of social funds were not a misappropriation, having been done WITHOUT FRAUDULENT INTENT!!!

Consequently, she acquitted Cal-Erlanger's ment, and, going further, acquitted the Two Berthiers!

It was sold out!

But, when we compare these two rulings those who severely punished so many other financiers ciers, for identical facts, it is impossible to not to surrender oneself, in a movement of co-An indignant era, a far more damning ruling against these judges, who further demoralize the people, that they are allowed to speak to him more up! |

the judges of August 1886, that Erlanger had participated in the confection of fraudulent balance sheets. (See volume II, page 58.)

4 I believe I should give here a table of the spoliations accomplished by the financier I work with:

Regarding the liberating loans....., 60 million
 On the crash of the Union Générale 40 --
 On the decline caused by the Daily News 25 --
 On various stock market transactions.ee 30 --

Sar of the affairs which I detail below 374 --

Gossip SS CS 52 million

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 231
 Inventory of the 574 million:

Southern Loan (cotton)....., 75,000,000
 General military supply company saw 9,525,000
 Agonco Havas issu tone aee 4,250,000
 Bingham Mines..... 47,000,000
 Personal property credit... ..,.....ss.ss.sccscs es 30,000, 000
 Paris Hippodrome 5,000,000
 Autégil Palace ...:4:2.244 02nd issues 12,500,000
 Bank of New Caledonia..... 3,500,000
 French Steelworks 5,000,000
 Land Credit of England. 8,000,000
 French General Credit..... 52,500,000
 Rhine Coal Mines..... 4,125,000
 Northern Coal Mines..... with 2,250,000
 Villaguttierez (shares) 255,000
 _ (bonds). 3,192,000
 Alforville Steelworks , 4,550,000 years
 Jemmeppes-Auvelais 3,525,000
 Bourne Canal 900,000
 Haitian Loan..... RE 99,265,000
 Forges de la Seine..... located at: 811,000
 Tramways of the Nord department sas Ses s 5,040,000
 Bourges to Gien (shares). sea .. _12,500,000
 -- (obligations)..... Pseuse 2,102,500
 Rhenish Coal Mines..... sé iTi anses 380,000
 Foncière-incandie.e..ssesvossosse 8,387,500
 Little Lyonnais..... RS dress 4,605,000
 Horse market.sssos 2,000,000
 Alais au Rhône (obligations)..... Gas ee 5,709,000
 Alais au Rhône (shares),.....s.sssose 41,000,000
 General reinsurance.4.....sss.se. 45,510,000
 Sun-hail..... Re es 3,537: 000
 Plaster quarries of Paris Sie . 14,880,000
 Plaster quarries of the Paris Basin. Rae ennens 8,748,000
 Accident Rescueseossoseseseee 2,640,000
 Bordeaux Navigation Company..... 1,720,000
 Brarrilz Establishment..... year 2,905,000

Shipping company Havro-r aris Lyon. 3,150,000
 General French and Continuous Lighting Company. 5,232,500
 Corbeil Mills..... shape 7,020,000
 Trams of Saint-Étienne 150,000
 Bressuire-Poitiers (Railway;..... to Memory
 Algerian cables.ee Memory
 Sombrero Island Phosphates SR Memory
 Total ssseunes out. 373,626,500

232 Speculation 1887

This trial also revealed a very in-worrying about moral anarchy. How then to end-Would she be this year, which DR of similar way ?

Meanwhile, the Senate and had resumed their eternal supper, their pointless quarrels, their ignorant schemes around the budgetary sphinx. Outside the budget
 They had discussed the freedom of funeral arrangements.
 the divorce regime, the lot concerning the mentally ill, the relief-rights on cereals. Here and there, we inter-called the ministry on a representation of Tar-tufe or on the repatriation of troops from Tonkin, and, as always, the "thing" ended with a simple, if not pure, agenda.

Around mid-March, an incident between the general-Ral Boulanger and de Mahy again reported the a silent struggle that focused on the ministry of the war.

But, behind these incidental sources, there are incessantly concealed speculation, an aglostage.

The increase in duties on cereals, for example-ple, was a marvel of impudence; one had very discussed its effects; free traders and protec-
 The Ionians had engaged in their usual battle, had exchanged question marks, especially more insoluble than, on both sides, it was claimed Respect the obstacle: capital!

Weary of the conflict, it was decided that the surcharge would be adopted but that, if it produced the high cost of bread, it would be suspended by a simple decree!

%

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 233

thus put the power to modify in twenty-four hours, a whole customs regime; when one calculates What a party, the vile speculation of people like the Lebaudy or the Ephrussi could draw from this circumstance, one is indignant either at the ignorance or at the The cynicism of those who voted for such a measure!

On the other hand, and pending the vote or rejection of his budget, Dauphin, Wilson's crony, indulged to the most fantastic combinations:

He had tasked the director of an establishment financial, more full of misfortunes than capital-rate, to negotiate 117 million six-year bonds; Financial Insurance, that was the name of this establishment blissement, set itself the mission of reconstituting the capital; and they claimed to be applying this system to Treasury bonds!!!

In other words, the hope was to offset the needs of The State with the needs of the State!

What was this operation hiding – which was ultimately aborted – theirs – but rescued, it is said, by the Jew Cahen From Antwerp?

It was amidst these bizarre designs that a Franco-Prussian incident broke out, immediately-presented as a German provocation (April 21).

The historical elements of the arrest of the com-no more than a French envoy on Prussian territory, . moreover, those relating to gunshots Raon-la-Plaine (September 24), do not seem to me They are well established. They need to be completed.

Far from believing it to be a German provocation,

'The director of Financial Insurance, named Ronan, committed suicide in 1888 (March).

I believe that Bismarck, having obtained the vote of seven-year military term, harbored no ambitions of war, especially during the last days of his old emperor!

Much better, if I consider the results of the aforementioned incidents, I only find this: or a ma- a new work directed, internally, against a personality an invading military operation or, on the contrary, an attempt to organized event, by this same personality, for to impose his collaboration.

I am not choosing between the two hypotheses because that the contradictory facts there are so far too numerous; I note, however, that there are certain- two speculations undertaken, one without, the other with the general's assistance.

I don't need to elaborate on the first one, simple reissue of the already well-known "I'm here, I'm staying";

1 These lines were written in January 1888; the recent Note from the North German Gazette, dated May 29 1888, absolutely corroborates my point of view; it explains- that, even, in the way I had anticipated, the precautions taken in Alsace-Lorraine.

Here is an excerpt from this note:

"We do not desire war at all; we desire
"only to maintain less close relations with France"
"narrow and, as we are linked to the neighboring state by "a common border, we can only border each other"
"to show more restraint in our relations with the "France, to further restrict these relations on the border-
"a place where they are employed to incite the population of Alsace-
"Lorraine."

What I wrote in January was simply the result of my economic deductions; again, these deductions receive confirmation of the facts. (The reader will find some (The presentation is on page 291.)

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 235

\

That one, moreover, is less dangerous than écœu - shame.

The second point remains; the important point of this one is that, certainly, it involves intervention Capital! We don't make all this noise, all this propaganda of printed materials and newspapers without to have, like Erlanger mounting the assault on his Impunity, a metal supply. Well, This is enough to condemn the hero; if capital The argument is that capital wants to use him, and If capital uses itself, it's over; it will be in a another series of massacres, or Cavaignac, or Thiers, or Bonaparte the Decembrist, or Galliffet the bou-dear; he will be everything, in short, except a benefactor.

Pending further testimony on this last point Let's look at the facts and see how those in power react to them. were taken to get rid of their bulky waste colleague.

On May 17th, they were still arguing about the budget; On similar occasions, many times, disagreements arose the previous day had turned into embraces of the next day; but, this time, "one could vaguely feel that there was something else at stake besides the budget of 1888! ; » also, under the guise of a divergence fiscal matters, the project was referred back to the commission and Goblet seized the opportunity to give his... assignment.

The crisis lasted 15 days, during which the ques- The main question was: Will Boulanger do it, yes or no? part of the new ministry?

1 André Danicl, the political year 1887, page 113.

936 Speculation 1887

It was getting annoying in the end!

Chauvinism had intimidated even the most intelligent people. ambitious; we didn't dare dismiss the een French "patriotism"!

However, a few courageous men decided- and, after flirting with the wealthy mo-narchists, who were burning with the desire to play a little By a majority vote, they accepted the ministry without

These valiant men deserve to be named; they were:

Rouvier (finance and president of the Council), Mazeau (justice), Flourens (foreign affairs), Fallières (interior), General Ferron (war), Barbey (marine and colonies), Spuller (public education and fine arts), Hérédia (public works), Dautresme (commerce and industry), Barbe (agriculture).

"German Ministry!" cried Rochefort; mid-the Élysée Palace ministry, I would say, and especially the ministry of powerlessness.

The wealthy, who describe themselves as right-wing, welcome-
They readily read the new leather books. They had solemnly declared "that they would do no systematic opposition, which they would support "all conservative and liberal measures;
"that they would maintain the: no borrowing, no
"New taxes, savings, already formulated,"
"but that they would fight any anti-religious measure"
"Gentle or anti-social."

The last half of this sentence requires a Explanation: what the wealthy call anti-social, it's not themselves, anti-capitalists social and destructive par excellence, but which-conch does not recognize their superiority and their

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 937

the right to govern France, that is to say whoever is social.

This avatar of the former minority had rami-external factors which I now need to...
I'm busy:

Since 1885, I have relegated to the background (who then suited him), the history of the Balkan Peninsula.
I only mentioned that a revolution, very opportune for Hirsch, had erupted in the Rou-Melia, and that, shortly afterwards, Serbia and Bulgaria had declared war.

Against all odds, Serbia had experienced a defeat (whose true cause was absolutely strange-
"The fate of arms" could be explained

Giénoff, the devoted servant of Hirsch and the English, Battenberg the victorious! had such an air about it that, to calm them down, the Tsar, acting as a true Asian sovereign, had him abducted at night (21 August 1886).

The English, immediately alerted, flooded Europe of direct or indirect claims, works from secret funds – newspapers and diplomats being bribed – and this singular spectacle of the triumphant return, then of the abdication pitiful of the Prince of Bulgaria.

To comply with the Berlin Treaty, it was necessary that the Sobranié chose another master.

Sobranié equivocated, temporized, although several times formal notice was given; finally, towards the end of December 1886, people began to talk of the possible candidacy of a Prince Coburg–of Orléans called Ferdinand.

938 Speculation | 41887

Until now the Balkans had not set in motion the Orleanist monarchists than in the form of finance ceremonial, of the General Union, no less dangerous.

But the princes had been expelled since July 1886. French people from this house could no longer intrigue. Inside, they were hastening to scheme outside,

From a financial point of view, Bulgaria is not perhaps. It wasn't a bad thing at all. Hardly was it born as a principality, which its statesmen (mostly former students who had given head in Paris, with the poison of Roman law, the good principles (of the specious Jewish community), had set their minds on organizing to manage Bulgarian finances.

In October 1880, Karaveloff, Minister of finances, was preparing a national bank in Paris Bulgarian, with the apparent assistance of the Jewish Guns–Bourg, a banker, and Poljakoff, a railway entrepreneur iron ore; financial organizations had continued through all the incidents I've already recounted and the Bulgarian shenanigans, on the occasion of the Varna–Routschouk railway, construction of a palace for Baitemberg, and a crowd of from other countries.

At the beginning of 1887, delegates from Bulgarian stations crisscrossed Europe; in London, they went to toast the Lord Mayor; in Paris, before When visiting Flourens, they confided their anxieties to The Lantern.

When questioned, Grékoff stated that Bulgaria "was "a true democracy, possessing suffrage" "universal"; "whatever its constitution may be" "This constitution is also narchic," he added.

"
"
"

(UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 039

liberal than any republican organization-rabbinical... the assembly is sovereign and the country must always have the last word.

Alongside this panegyric, it is good to place Island

A Bulgarian man's account explaining how the universal suffrage in Bulgaria. This Bulgarian recounts-milk thus the elections of June 26, 1881:

Dm
SN

"To terrorize civil servants," he wrote, "?" They were not afraid of inciting the peasants against them. without enough inclination, everywhere, to see enemies in State agents. In Tern, civil servants saved themselves in Serbia to escape an uprising The villagers' reaction. The same scenes repeated landed in Nicopoli, where the employees were forced to put the Danube between them and the peasant revolt who was pursuing them.

"In order to better win over the peasants, we..." assured that, if he prevailed, the prince... would be an example of taxes for seven years. They do not-

In several places, it was necessary to resort to military executions to force the taxes.

"In Rumelia, this sister principality, the public union had gradually been raised by the spectacle of arbitrary rule and persecution who were wreaking havoc on the other side of the border. meetings of indignation were organized in Philippopolis and other cities, telegrams from protests sent to Prince Alexander, He

'La Lanterne of January 10, 1887.

2 A.-L. Drandar: {lexundre de Battenberg (Dentu, 1884).

240 Speculation | 4887

"he paid no more attention to it than to the complaints that he arrived from different parts of Bulgaria.

"We arrived at June 26th, which was the big day of vote. In all the towns where there were ballot boxes" "In the elections, we saw herds of peasants arrive- "Without being both bewildered and threatening. Most don't "They didn't know why the police had come" "We searched for them in their village. We gathered them together." "in the public square and the following request their "was addressed to:

- "Are you for the Prince or for Kara-
" _ véloff? |

- "For the Prince!" they replied energetically-
"lying."

- "Hurrah!" a voice began.

"Hurrah!" the peasants repeated. Bubble-
"vote slips bearing the names of the favourable deputies"
"Their meals were handed out; the wine circulated and they "were going to vote together."

"Generally the vote was unanimous. The elect-
"those who, by chance, were showing ballots"
"Doubtful items were immediately reported to the carriers."
"with clubs that expelled them from the room."
"In Sophia and other cities, miracles are happening."
"produced. The ballots found in the ballot boxes"

This painting is enlightening, isn't it? Also a country so well prepared to freely demonstrate its will, naturally, was bound to tempt the Hirsch and the Orléans.

That's what had happened; that's why the entrepreneurs of the Orléans-Coburg bid had been able to announce, on July 7, 1887, that ja

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 241

Sobranié, meeting in Tirnovo, had "freely
"Prince Ferdinand, lieutenant in acclaimed"
"The Hungarian army."

Russia now had before it, no longer
The Battenbergs, but the Orleans.

Formal notice to rule on the validity of this election, held contrary to the treaty of Berlin, that is to say, without its prior consent, Europe did as the Bulgarian leaders had done: it temporized risa.

Meanwhile, the newspapers, and especially Le Soleil, were filled with Bulgarian things more than ever.

This is where the incident of the forged diplomatic documents comes in.
matics.

I will not dwell on discussions; few I only care about diplomatic documents from nature to cause discord between the Tsar and the Emperor of Germany whether they existed or not, with or without collaboration Prince Ferdinand; it is enough for me that there was a need to declare them false in order to establish in my eyes the powerful interest of the Orléans to conceal their schemes; even Bocher's letter, rejecting, in the name of his masters, any complicity in the affairs of Ferdinand is still a valuable clue to me; a political denial worth whatever one wants it to be vaille,

I prefer to use a series of milestones as guideposts.
The undeniable facts are as follows:

In July, Count Zichy married Mademoiselle of Wimpffen, whose father had been, as I have { Le Soleil, December 2, 1887.

249 Speculation 1889

In July, the Sobrante elected Prince Ferdinand;
In August, the Alliance Israélie sent to Vienna coins minted in Paris specially for the "Jewish communities of Palestine" (?); in At the same time, it was announced that a union, formed under the presidency of a French financier, came to secure a loan of 25 million for the prince Ferdinand!

In November, Hirsch, the duke's ex-bad genius Decazes (who lost his only son in March) threw handfuls of gold into southern Russia and in the Balkans; it gave, at once, 50 millions, said Le Temps; 100 million, claims Alexandre Weill in his "Paris-lie", to the poor and to the schools of Russia! In December,
The financial newspapers announced that the loan
Bulgarian 25 million would be guaranteed by the principal-Clementine ceases, the funds being provided by the houses Bischoffsheim, Philppson and Montefiore, Flowers of the Jewish quarter.

This exceptional movement of financiers towards Bulgaria, their names and nationalities clearly indicate a determined struggle.

So we will soon see Hirsch to begin new talks with Turkey;
Indeed, the European Coast announced soon that...?
"Baron Hirsch was in Constantinople to "Settling accounts with the Porte. The two "Parties," the newspaper added, "claim
"Mulally a large figure of millions; a

1 L'Intransigeant, August 17, 1887.

3 European rating of January 30, 1888.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 243

"The transaction is likely and, subject to a

The newspaper continues:

"With a view to this solution, an agreement would have
"was signed between the Connections Company, the "Ottoman Bank Group, the Paths" Austrians, the Discount Bank and the Lan-
"Derbank, to merge the interests of the Company"
"of the operation of Turkish railways.

"An Ottoman company would be created with the capital of "180 million: 100 to be provided by Hirsch, under "formed contributions (materials and concession rights),"
"and 80 million by the connections company,"
"in conjunction with the other participating companies.

"This new company would be formed immediately"
"that Hirsch would have obtained his discharge."

Finally, the newspaper I am quoting concluded with this melancholic reflection:

"Nothing is allocated to the Turkish lots!"

As we can see, a large part of the upper echelons of organized crime financial activity was underway around Bulgaria;
As for his intentions, the enumeration of the top
Staff will be enough to denounce them:

At the Ottoman Bank, one could find (for the France), Mallet, the Orleanist banker; de Germiny, the monarchist; then the Hottinguer, Pillet-Will,
of Plæuc, etc.

On the Austrian roads, it was Count Aïchy,
(the newlywed I mentioned earlier), and Mallet, Hottinguer, etc., and in addition,
Henri Germain.

At the Discount Counter, (which already had interests in Serbia and Greece), that was the element

Pre
Pn

944 L'AGIOTAGE 41887

Ferry; his friends Hentsch, Baudelot, Girod, etc., there

At ZLanderbank, it was the clearly Austrian, amalgamated, nevertheless, with some remnants of the General Union.

Finally, at the Connections Company, it was Hirsch, Hentsch, etc.

Here is the main battalion, but alongside these,
Secondary societies were proliferating.

The absolute power of these people is undeniable.
in the East, which already explains the domesticity of Battenberg; what shall I say of the Greek kings and the Serbian or Romanian princes? In Greece, Erlanger and the Discount Bank can do anything; we Do you remember the loans whose origins I described?
These loans continued; 1887 had seen them
a new one will emerge, thanks to the Discount Counter,
And do we want to know how he explained his French role? Let's read the confidences made by to his shareholders!

"By delegation from a group of establishments of "Bankers' credit," he told them, "we have "led the negotiations relating to the loan of "135 million 40/0 Hellenic. Part of this "child loan intended to provide the funds"
"necessary for the payment of orders for materials"
"naval and artillery equipment made for industry"
"French, amounting to a total of 26 million"
"of francs, 1 it was our duty to facilitate "The introduction of the securities on the French market."

So it was clear! France was supplying, first { Report on the 1887 financial year, page 13.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 945

his work and then his money to pay his work!

That wasn't enough; it also supplied the gas and the money to Romania, where the Jewish community had built up the Next move:

The Gas and Water Company! had targeted the Rou-

Bulgaria, which is why she wanted to found a Bucharest Gas Company:

"In the heart of Romania! Infidels?" he exclaimed.
"Camondo is unbearable!"

Soon after, this happened: the king refused to approve the concession.

"New studies were needed," it seems, but These were not long because, soon, the king he was going back on his decision.

Is the gas and water company satisfied? (will say)
No, not at all! Gas and water had to relinquish its shares.
to another company, also French, and named gas for France and abroad; this was the last-the company that benefited from the concession; however, its administration
The administrators were named Camondo, Stern, Brolemann, etc!

I believe this information will suffice.
to show that the financial struggle of 1881 was trans-carried in the Balkans and that the company name Ferdinand, Coburg, Orléans and Co., gave him more than ever, a threatening meaning for the peace of Europe and the security of France.

Indeed, Russia is worried, one might wonder what { French public limited company, founded in 1881, with monarchist elements; among others: the de Bussière and the Foulon family of Vaulx.

14.

246 | Speculation 1887

The new Jewish community is preparing to fight against it, and while Germany, on good terms with the Au-cheating can only lead to gains at the connection stage.
Ironclad, England, seeking to "manipulate,"
As always, Turkish diplomacy will favor,
"In the absence of new guarantees," the operations of Ferdirand and his backers!

While the future of the East was thus being prepared,

French worker?

The Rouvier ministry had a right-wing majority tière, who voted on the spur of the moment for all sorts of nonsense financial or otherwise.

The radicals, who are to the bourgeoisie what the mixed race is to the black man, they had invented reworkings-tax increases, large in appearance, useless in the

Since the end of 1887, several facts have corroborated borcr my assessments.

First, it's the diplomatic noise made by the future
Battenberg's marriage to a little girl from Victoria of England; which proves, once again, that the Great Brittany never abandons its "Arabi," whether they are Egyptians or Bulgarians!

Next, there is the recently published financial prospectus.
(May 1888), under the title of the General Union, its life, its death, by Bontoux.

This publication clearly shows that the tron-
The fools of the snake cut by the Jews seek to reunite dre. Now, look over there in Romania and Bulgaria, lectors... and you will understand.

Moreover, Bontoux, in his half-confessions, does not that confirms everything I said about his financial company, of Hirsch and Gambetta; then he explains, as best he can, his capitalism and seeks, without success, to mitigate its "ju-Daïism.

In short, after reading his book, I have nothing to say.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 947

background. But such was the general routine that the
The mere word of change was enough to postpone the reshape.

This was the seventeenth time in seventeen years,
that the MPs were repeating the same retreat!
Soon the eternal discussions returned: the sugars, pensions, three-year service, and the
On July 23, the Chambers concluded their Feonlon

In the last two months of this session,
Two facts alone had answered the concerns-passions, contradictory moreover, of the proletariat and of the wealthy.

One (the last) was the law on a trial of mobile partial closure (July 18-20) which, through a series of improbable ricochets, were supposed to overturn the President Grévy, as I will soon have the opportunity to explain it; the other was simply the deposit of a proposal concerning the establishment of a tax on the foreigner.

Given the profound ignorance that prevails governing brains, it was obviously by this large side that they had to see a corner of the social question.
subtract from everything I have written in this present work, on the subject that is dear to his heart, I therefore persist in not accepting his claims of "ignorance regarding comp-stability, and inexperience in banking and scholarships", all the less admissible since, for long years, 'he had worked in finance and numbers.' at Rothschild!

As for the rest, as for the magistrate's odious attitude ~~Loew~~, before Bontoux, I had vigorously condemned it,

But, in truth, the vileness of one could not in any degree implicate the innocence of the other!

948 Speculation 41887

The last census revealed that 1,115,214 foreigners were settled in France, and in this Jews were in large numbers.

How, moreover, could France not have attracted the preferences of the surrounding peoples?
Everywhere else but at home, the agrarian question had taken on a particular sharpness.

In America, surprisingly, they had to in-prohibit the acquisition of land by foreign companies manages; in Ireland, Gladstone had just combined a way to make tenants owners of the land, in exchange for calculated depreciation; in Russia, to acquire land there; finally, in Germany, Bismarck had proposed expropriation, in exchange for in-compensation, a number of large landowners Polish people, to divide their land into sufficient plots-health to ensure the existence of a family, then of granting them, in exchange for payment of a fixed annuity perpetual candle, to German peasants of origin.

Thus, while the major nations felt the need to decentralize ownership, France, not only did he do everything to concentrate her and the to increase, but she also sent her own en-children killed in colonial expeditions; of so that, those absent, 1,115,000 foreigners were quietly settling into their places!

'The invasion had been constant since 1861; here are the numbers :

AS ie sims 499,000 foreigners
ADI iase unes East 733,000 _- 1870 sdiinsenunesu ideas 801,000 - ASS ns connetiens 4,001,000 -

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 249

In this peril of peaceful invasion, the gu-
The rulers saw nothing; one of them deposited platonically his tax proposal that we will discuss one day when there will no longer be ministerial ambitions to satisfy-to do - and it will be a long process! - The other, no less platonically, made one take into consideration a proposal proclaiming the "right to work for "every able-bodied citizen; the right to assistance for "Any sick or infirm person!"

What a great deal! The right to work. That is to say the right to say to the capital king: eat me.

The right to assistance? That is to say, the right to tell the capital king: "Buy me!"

These people, I tell you, dream of assisting everyone proletariat electors, hoping that in return this will obediently pour into the urn the long-standing election life, which parasitism thirsts for!

the deliberations of the people, which astonished Paris at August courses |

The workers' congress was holding its annual meetings; There, at least, he put his finger on the wound. His The discussions were, moreover, being followed attentively. By the entire press?

It was declared there that the workers, the employees, the proletarians should expect nothing from anyone but themselves themselves and only recruit through their mandates. official silences.

Alas! If this foresight were widespread, I

1 May 28, proposal by Martin Nadaud; Chamber of De- whores.

2 The Journal des Débats, Le Temps, etc., devoted themselves to them numerous columns.

250 Speculation 1887

would not have to fear the terrible conflicts that I See it rising on the horizon!

For indeed, the ferocity of the wealthy will drive, as if by design, the people are starving.

Do we want to pick up one of these confessions along the way? terrible things sometimes escaping the financiers who di- industrial companies are rising and occupying legions of workers?

Here's one:

Almost at the moment when Martin Nadaud filed the Platonic proposition I just quoted, the directors of the Commen- Corporation try-Fourchambault, that is to say, the barons of the Rochette, of the Viscount Benoist d'Azy, of the du Breuil of St-Germain, of Maurice de Mieulle, of Sessevalle, Paignon, Trubert, Aubert and finally a /van Flachet (a descendant of Stéphane) perhaps?), dared to record, without protesting, this observation of a shareholder disapproving of the long- unanimous support from the council to retain workers when

"The council's decision should not have gone so far as to..."
€ PROMISE THE COMPANY'S INTERESTS FOR (MAKE ONE'S WORKERS LIVE. ? }

The savagery of this phrase will become quite apparent.
even more so when we realize that it

* Allemane, Joffrin, Lavy, the main speakers, clearly-concluded that the complete emancipation of the proletariat does not would only be achieved through "the revolutionary path". (André Danicl, The Political Year 1887, page 195, note.)

2 Report of the Board of Directors of the Company' ano-Commentry-Fourchambault, April 5, 1887, page 19, line 16.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 951

responded to the following observation, officially Made by the board of directors:

"Our establishments," he said, "have been "preserved from the unhealthy agitations that have so painfully affected by other industrial lands
"Trielles. You will congratulate yourself with us on this "proof of the wisdom of our working-class populations,
"whose suffering is great, despite all the "sacrifices that we have imposed upon ourselves, in order to
"to keep some work for them, alas! insufficient-
"Health for them as well as for us."

As we can see, the workers' patience was such that it imposed a kind of circumspection on capital which is evident in the previous sentence.

Nevertheless, however, the voice of the savage ac-
The tionary will be listened to; capital, for too long hampered in satisfying his appetites, he will demand the 'Dismissal of its workers. Commentry-Fourchambault will declare unemployment at her home. For those who know how to read Between the lines, this decision shines through.
kind words from the Council.

Other industrial companies, in the same situation,
They will imitate him; civil wars are not yet a reality.
something other than these isolated cases of unemployment which, multi-folded, they become collective.

Speculation?

1 Same report, page 8, line 7.

2? The report to the general assembly of April 16, 1888 gives This prediction is entirely correct. The old forge is going to be closed and the capitalists declare that they will have "the sa-
"the willingness to give up wearing oneself out in a sterile struggle," in order to to preserve their strength "for other, more fruitful uses:"

(Page 7, line 12, of the report.)

HAS

9252 Speculation 1887

Speculation, moreover, was still thriving.
amidst external concerns and pseudoindoor occupations.

During the year 1887, I did not have a single day of unemployment only for a moment, on the contrary, while he was blowing the revolutionary wind that I observed, the finance-
The creditors were still demanding 900 million from their gullible customers.
usual 1,

This figure must include the Greek loan.
of 135 million, which I mentioned, and an Indo-Chinese of 50 million (June).

Alongside the broadcasts that were launched, there were the broadcasts-prepared sessions and, naturally, preceded or followed by all the usual vileness.

Under the pretext of providing work for the workers From Paris, speculators had resurrected the metropolitan railway project, in preparation-ration for over ten years, large, moreover, of capitalist and expropriation movements, fishing in troubled waters if ever there was one, and certainly increased taxes on the people of Paris.

A scandal on the side has, perhaps, if not prevented definitively, or at least delayed, this "affair":

A Jew had dreamed of preceding the Exposition

railways.

Claiming to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the aforementioned,

4 Issues from 1887:

State and City Loans. 246 million 5/10

Credit institutions....., se 23 – 0/10

Railways, and industrial companies, 648 – 7/10

Folalssnsesunaseses 888 million 2/10

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 953

This Jew had obtained from the City Council the right to
to have a large space in the woods of Vincennes, and the Municipal Council had granted his consent with regrettable nonchalance.

But what? The rapporteur was the youngest of the radicalism and meme of communal autonomy.
As the youngest, he had a soft spot for the tribe de Lévy – it was a family affliction – moreover,
All the newspapers had received the manna from heaven which the Hebrews are always provided with, even in the desert; they had been shown this exhibition like a good trick to play on the companies railways are lagging behind in their equipment; Lockroy, Boulanger, all the other ministers, had written encouraging letters; finally, Lévy had, like a mere Soubeyran, exhibited a check without coverage in the form of a guarantee;
but, on the other hand, there had been a "cover-up" and even "cover put" for a check of 10,000 francs.
that the victorious rapporteur received after his triumph, shortly before the famous exhibition, whose railways were mainly absent, did not fall into complete disarray.

However, this Jewish quarter was discovered almost at at a time when, strangely enough, a municipal election... cipal, made in the ninth arrondissement, had took on the appearance of an anti- demonstration Semitic.

The offices of the failed exhibition being located found it rialurel to entrust him with the examination and the report of the Fiftieth Anniversary.

To everyone's astonishment, a sort of outcome ensued.

VOLUME II. 15

254 Speculation | 4887

of the prosecution's case where the facts were clearly formules.

Great excitement! The youngest child was stunned; he called appalled by the justice system, the ordinary launderer of the civil servants Officials implicated. Justice, as always, found nothing reprehensible in the established fact of a payment of 10,000 francs, because nothing only demonstrated that these 10,000 francs, paid by Lévy, at his wit's end, in the hands of his ex- rapporteur, had any connection whatsoever with the ob- such as the report and the functions of its au- author.

That's how it is! At the Paris courthouse, the neighbor- swimming of the engineer Chevallier, optician, diverts probably the sunbeams from the dark lair of justice. But that's not the case in Marseille where The sun is falling straight down.

Over there, the deputy mayor, whom I spoke to at regarding the health voucher affair, had received a paper bribe, had hesitated to keep it, had returned it without having drunk it, let alone touched it. claiming, to explain his hesitation, that he had "wanted to see what his colleagues would do." Nothing worked; he was condemned to degradation. civic. That'll teach him: another time he will exi- will manage a good check where nothing will be written con- defining the case and which will be easily convertible made of metal.

A far wiser general councillor was one whose The affair noisily occupied the newspapers of Marseille in November 1887.

This county councillor had promised to do his part to obtain, from Dufour, trustee of a house of commerce (Roux de Fraissinet), who complained of having suffered damage during the looting of Tamatave, compensation payable by the Treasury audience.

– You will give me 30% of what you receive–
"vrez," the general councillor had said.

He did more than just talk: he demanded action. passed before a notary, and a notary happened to be who instrumentala under these conditions!

Obviously, what the claimant was paying was 30%. This was not a businessman's competition. vulgar, it was the influence of the general councillor well-connected at the Élysée Palace. Such was, moreover, Pierre Baragnon (he's the hero of 1 adventure), editor-in-chief of the Courrier du Soir at Paris.

In short, his efforts were crowned with a success estimated at 1,200,000 francs.

He was already extending his hand when a tooth... produced...

Shocked by the revelations of the trial. Caffarel-Limouzin, Wilson, the "protector of Baragnon," had just stumbled on his pedestal; of the same Suddenly, in Marseille, there was a lot of noise about the enormity of the aforementioned commission of 30%. The creditors of The merchants joined in, discussed the contract and took legal action.

The courts could do nothing:

"It was not for actions related to his duties"
"as a general councillor, as Baragnon had stipulated"
"A commission."

And indeed, colonial indemnities are not not at all within the competence of the general councils.

So legal morality was preserved, but the morality that is not legal, that is to say, that which is true, he hurled his anathema!

Outcome :

On November 29, 1887, the Petit Marseillais announced the resignation of the General Councillor, and the On November 30, 1887, Le Cri du Peuple printed that "The meme" had reduced its claims to 200,000 It was clear: between function and money, the man had not hesitated!

The Marseille echoes of this political and political drama Commercial sounds only reach the ears in a very muted form. of the Parisian public.

But the scandals of the fiftieth anniversary of the railways of iron caused an infernal noise.

I don't know if the Marseille resignation will risk re-election, but it is certain that the The Parisian slate risked one and was re-plastered by his constituents to whom he exposed the "terrible per-security" of which he was the object; and the Council saw it to return from there, to calmly receive insults, another type of bearer check, which the cashier municipal transforms, at the end of each month, into good, hard cash.

All the preceding accounts already attest, of a common demoralization; I even wanted to give them to maintain a cheerful appearance because it corresponds faithfully to the serenity with which the friends of sons-in-law of the Elysée Palace have always committed their misdeeds; It must be acknowledged that, depending on the circumstances, rescued or denounced sugar fraudsters such as Lebaudy, Halphen and Fiévet, the one who will soon be caught red-handed with the decorations bag, had like all great men rubbed off on his era.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 957

I will refrain from compiling a complete list of all the filthy people who signaled this disastrous year

I will briefly mention the attempts to monopolize replacement of French telegraph cables by the Americans (Jay Gould and Mackay), attempts that shed a unique light on Pouyer's conduct—Quertier, president of the Telegraph Company From Paris to New York.

I will also mention, in a word, the tragedies. sinister events that erupted in one of Er-'s creations Langer, the Steelworks of France!

I'm looking forward to getting to the oddities and the agio-stages of all kinds which surrounded the refutation tion of our armaments and, in particular, the manufacture-tion of the Lebel rifle.

I pointed out, during the previous chapters... clowns that, precisely, every time for-considerable metallic nitrides could be necessary for the Ministry of War, he manifested himself feted a speculation resulting in an increase the costs *?.

These speculations reached significant proportions in 1887. extraordinary, revealing no less extraordinary-serious repercussions.

We know that telephone cables and wires or telegraphs, all electrical and electronic equipment

A mysterious death, reported in the newspapers, has It has never been clarified by an investigation.
2 See vol. 1, pages 114–115.

958 to L'AGIOTAGE at 4887

Finally, most of the parts needed for the marine and military weapons use copper as raw material.

However, in November 1887, it was learned that Rothschild, Secrétan, André Girod and Co* had formed a monopolizing consortium, whose aim is to take over the price of copper; indeed, from 107.50, price On October 21, 1887, they raised it to 214.95. Lecture of December 23, 1887. That is the brutal fact expressed in two words.

One day, it was necessary to prepare it; it was necessary to spend some time markets in America, create, with enormous capital-rates, a series of monopolies, by means of treaties farms.

This is, in fact, what one of the coupables, the Commercial and Industrial Society of metals (former Laveissière and Secrétan) who, even, does Secrétan honor with this good operation, and describes it in his administrative report Official announcement to shareholders! Also the Does the 1887 balance sheet record a net profit exceeding...? sant 16 million, perhaps a twentieth part of general profits from the latest speculation, whereas, previously, it was with great difficulty that the company of metals, reached 2 or 3 million.

Well, when you consider that, for years, these same names, Secrétan and Rothschild, are found winds mixed with almost all past markets with the State; when one considers that Rothschild almost dis- to credit Clemenceau, thanks to his connections ciavec Cornelius Hertz etavec Deprez; when one

'Report to the general assembly of March 19, 1888.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 259

recalls that Cornelius Hertz obtained, in a short delay, the highest ranks of the Legion of Honour – which at the very least demonstrated a great favor with |' Élysée-Grévy; ; – that the same had been appointed engineer for life of the Society of Telephones that need to deal with the state – which re- at least, it brought great favor with the mini- tère; when one remembers that the Secrétan of the car- damaged keys (which made his fortune) is the even though the Secrétan still had the monopoly on Nickel silver cases needed for the Lebell rifle, on wonders, with dread, if public conscience is decidedly nothing more than a woman put on a map through finance!

Around the smallest details of the na- weaponry Nationally, it's a continuous string of shames!

Sometimes it's a sealed wagon that, transporting Lebel rifles, found to be unsealed en route? ; more lied by a French soldier in correspondence with Prussia*; meanwhile, it's an indiscretion of reporter, obtaining, by extraordinary means—naires, the partial mobilization plans {.

On all sides, as in the days of the Moral, men are accused of espionage, of Women, newspapers | A Belgian newspaper reports that Prussians write in several sheets from Paris (January 1887).

1 Le Matin, March 13, 1888.

2 Intransigent of September 26, 1887.

3 Case of Sergeant Châtelain; Evening, December 26, 1887.

4 Aubanel Affair; Lanterne, September 24, 1887.

5 The Brussels Journal.

260 Speculation 4887

More than ever, money is corrupting the press: this the same year, following the trial of a murderer! Sixteen journalists are accused of being a Don Juan and a thief. blackmail (August).

Then comes a chaotic mess of villainy; lawsuits
The most ordinary people suddenly emerge from scandals.
Unexpected: here is the downfall of a powerful milliner known, at the bottom of which one finds mixed a function-high-ranking official of the Ministry of the Interior*; it is a removal-speculation * ; almost at the same time
We see this extraordinary thing: a Rothschild performing respectful acts, marrying despite his family, and demanding — therein lay the true crux of the 'question — the payment of a respectable amount millions, these belonging to him personally. And Who knows if this strong metallic bleed has not its Part of the copper speculation scheme?

In the judiciary, in the army, in the clergy, among the upper, lower, and middle classes, — in official functions, in the palace of the head of state: Scandals were erupting everywhere like rockets!

Public outrage was rising. It was already manifesting itself
She expressed her discontent at every opportunity.

In troubled times, all means of protest-
The reports seem good. General Boulanger, very Cocardier, had organized his fall into apotheosis;
To applaud him was to boo the rulers; hence, at the Gare de Lyon, a huge demonstration at the time

- ' Pranzini. Marie Regnault affair.
- 2. Angèle Renard Trial; Soleil, July 22, 1887.
- 3. Campos Affair; Intransigant, June 18, 1887.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 261

of his departure for Clermont-Ferrand, where he had appointed head of the 13th corps (July 8).

Meanwhile, Jules Ferry also wanted to protest,
he, criticized, against the astonishing popularity of the ex-Minister of War. In a vivid speech to the in the Epinal style (where he was speaking, by the way), he called Boulanger, a "St-Arnaud café-concert". 11 a people who have no right to stigmatize anyone, to whom silence becomes, whose epigrams turn against themselves; Ferry being of Those, only succeeded in exalting the popularity he wanted to lower.

Other means were sought.

Who knows if, in the indiscretions relating to the mobilization plan, we wouldn't find a Boulanger's imprudence, who, during his minitère, had received so many shady people and wrote to So many people?

We searched; we found one of his creatures, a chief of staff, poor devil riddled with debt and seeking loans, anyone
comment. |

A search was conducted; nothing was found against Boulanger, except for a basic card, but on the other hand we found the trace of the works of the Elysian son-in-law |!

It had begun with the vulgar complaint of a bourgeois who, having paid to obtain "the star of "honor," and not having received it, had become angry; that was bound to end with the downfall of the chief magistrate of the Interior design agencies? The police had some

He had seen many others and hadn't even breathed a sigh of relief. How
Was the bell attached this time?

15.

269 Speculation 1887

History is a vicious cycle that repeats itself: in
The Wilson case, there's a comparable grain of sand
To the one who killed Cromwell! This grain of sand his name was Canivet, the editorial secretary of the 19th Century.

The 19th century was in the hands of Portalis, a restless, a vibrio, without social aims, without depth, but always happy to say and to contradict,

Canivet, for his part, was a former colonist from Buenos-Ayres; on the banks of the Chaco, he had found himself buddy and companion with Goron.

However, Goron had become deputy chief at the Sûreté
general and Canivet an indiscreet person by profession.
One told the other the events which became the Caffarel-Limousin affair; the other transmitted them to Portalis, who, licking his lips at the thought of the noise, launched the firecracker?

With the press seized and public opinion informed, it became
It was impossible to stifle the scandal; he screamed!

Several mysteries had already surrounded the Elysian duumvirate; around May, Seillière, a Daniel's close friend had been subjected to a kidnapping.
which occurred the very next day after a visit he had carried out at the Élysée Palace; this sequestration, which was happening at the following the ban, which I dealt with

1 "Cromwell was going to ravage all of Christendom; the family royal power was lost, and his own was forever powerful, without a tiny grain of sand that got lodged in his ureter.

"Blaise Pascal (Thoughts)."

3 I found this story in L'Indépendant, which is published in Buenos-Ayres (issue of January 4, 1888).

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 263

the previous year!, and which was complicated by ques- financial conditions, while military markets had been at stake, aroused astonishment but was or little or not at all explained.

Moreover, since Boulanger's fall, a hos- Utility had been raised against Wilson.

Several newspapers had begun to mistreat- To deal with the son-in-law, especially the uncompromising one. Sometimes It involved stock market speculation and bi- The denials from the Stockbrokers' Union, named Hart. Sometimes they recalled the "old history- "Toire" of the presidential claw; then it was reported that new threatening recommendations having with the aim of providing printing companies set up or unionized by Wilson, the administrative clientele.

But all of this seemed benign; the favoritism and since speculation is common among people no one dared to speak out against the government or parliament. gner, for fear of exposing himself to epigrams.

This was not the case with the decorations trade, set up and organized as a commercial agency.

This was an operation less accessible to vulgar rulers, because, in order to succeed the big In those blows, you had to be close to the ultimate signature!

Daniel had relied too heavily on the servility of his creatures, had faced impunity too often. for the anti-Alphonse demonstration of 1883, he had, for this trafficking, used the name of his step- Father. He had closed his eyes.

Two accusatory letters were discovered. In vain did Grévy himself make them disappear from

1 See t. IT, pages 212 and 213, files, all the coincidences piled up to deto conceal the collusion between the two men.

The outrage was widespread! And yet, this What we were learning was only a part – the most innocent – works by the speculating couple.
This can be judged by comparing the revelations made before the courts and before the commission of en-quest, with the stories – moreover necessarily incomplete, themselves, – which I have sown throughout history story of previous years.

I will not attempt to go into detail.
the incidents that followed; nor the relentless persecution
The president's fool for clinging to power.
in order to delay the legal proceedings quimens-
They concealed his accomplice, nor the very marked hesitations from the ministry which – admirably! – contributed to delay the presidential resignation, as for to have time to get the austere man to sign the de-
'cret converting the 4 1/2 and the 4 0/0!

The dates here are very clear:

October 7, general placed on inactive duty
Caffarel;

October 25, submission of the conversion project;

Same day, urgent parliamentary inquiry relating to the decorations case;

November 3rd, vote on the conversion in the chamber;

November 7, same vote in the Senate;

The decree was promulgated on the same day.

November 9 and 10, incident in the Chamber at pro-regarding the Wilson case;

November 14, execution of the conversion;

November 17, new parliamentary incident on Wilson;

November 19, resignation of the Rouvier cabinet;

November 24th, unofficial announcement of the resignation
Grévy and withdrawal of the resignation from the cabinet;

December 1st, Grévy refuses to withdraw;

On the same day, a formal notice was issued by the Chambers;

December 2nd, Grévy's official resignation.

Two months of indignation had been compounded by a
A fortnight of anxiety!

All of France was breathless; Paris, the avant-Paris, which saw and knew, was in turmoil. One A revolutionary wind was blowing. All the committees were constantly; demonstrations imposhealth services had organized themselves.

The vigilance of the Paris City Council, proinvoked, moreover, by certain military precautions silences, letting a hidden agenda show through power was seized, not by Boulanger, but by Ferry rose to the occasion.

Wilson downstairs was Ferry upstairs.

That was the conclusion drawn, at least by this last, who, belatedly but boldly, had led the anti-Wilsonian campaign by his Paris newspaper.

On December 3rd, Congress was convened.

Jules Ferry fully intended to see his name emerge from the ballot box.

But the calm and firm attitude of the people had produces a beneficial effect; in short, the congress could ignite civil war; he was horrified:

The people in Paris, Boulanger in the army?

Two threats? That was too much!

What to do? Who to choose?

A decidedly bourgeois vote finally emerged from the brains terrified of the rulers.

It had been mentioned, incidentally, that Sadi-Carnot, The finance minister had refused to give the hand to a tax loophole in favor of Dreyfus, Grévy's friend, and this despite the requests of Wilson.

That was enough! Sadi-Carnot thus compared, was the paragon of honor.

He was elected.

A peculiar effect of bourgeois perspective!

In Carnot, they were called:

The one who, in 1880, was working in public works, had chosen the upright Raynal as undersecretary of the state.

The one who, in 1882, had rescued Ferry, during his about-face on the central town hall.

The one who, in 1885, had encouraged borrowing through short-term obligations and had, thus, burdened of 320 million the floating debt.

The one who, in 1886, had shown a rare incapacity-city, even from a bourgeois point of view, in the con-budget preparation.

In short, an accomplice of Ferry, of the conventions and Tonkin!

Is it over?

No, February 1548 was called December 1887.
That's all!

But 1848 had the June Days!

But the revolutionary state persists in its part decisive: economic antagonisms.

From this point of view, 1887 is an exact reproduction from 1847-1848.

Plate XII

1847

REVOLUTIONARY RECTANGLE

Fn 1847...

1882 1887

AB = 9.536.

AB = 9.531. A B': 8.608.

Page 267

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 9267

It is the precise notion of this similarity that has predicted, four years in advance, and the fall of Grévy, and its causes, and the period in which it would produce 1.

I have shown, with regard to the year 1883, how the antagonisms erupted under the pressure of the budgetary requirements.

To complete the comparison, it will suffice for me to condense the results of the three years, 1847-1882 and 1887, taken at the end, in a single rectangle. (See PLATE XII).

As we can see, 1847 and 1887 are identical.

It should be noted that the scandals Teste, Despans-Cubièrre, etc..., had been going on since 1840; they only produced their effect in 1847-1848.

Similarly, the Wilson-Grévy scandals, etc... had been going on since 1880; they have not produced their effect than in 1887.

Why? Not the best rating in 1887

Not at all.

The sense of honor is no more developed loppé in 1887 than he was in 1880; likewise the horror of the July Monarchy's machinations was no more lively in 1847 than in 1840.

In 1840 as in 1880, people were familiar with the accumulations of improbabilities that dishonored the governments.

But, however deep the eco- discontent may be the economic discontent of a population

{ See my Kings of the Republic, Volume 1, p. 372,

Volume 2, page 414. And also, in the Sociological Review of June 1887, "The Law of Social Crises".

268 Speculation 41887

affects so many diverse nuances that it is above all the expression of INDIVIDUAL anger: also not
It does not contain a unique password.

But, if at that moment, a governmental act of scandalous genre, even if already known, is put back into light, he suddenly finds himself endowed with the fa-culture of synthesizing the general discontent, because Each particular selfishness is only too happy to to be able to "enhance" his anger by sheltering it under the flag of national honor.

That's why Grévy was chased out, that's why
We took Carnot.

And now let us beware! The antagonisms
They will always be growing.

The government has reformed nothing.

After promising to establish the Republic,
that is to say, to manage in the public interest,
They merely imposed the rule of public figures.
that is to say, of those we have seen, it is worth-finding, like girls, in these large houses that the tolerance of the bourgeois baplish: minis-

Ministries of gold, yes! Offices of capital; boucherries where both flesh and con- are sold science of men!

Alas! When, instead of seeing the GODS of Capital to kill men, shall I see, finally, men Kill the GODS of capitalism?

To preserve the human species!

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 269

SUMMARY OF THE PERIOD.

From 1882 to 1887, the national decadence, under the the so-called republican regime has deplorably accentuated.

The slow destruction of the population has aggravated, mortality resumed an upward trenddante since 1882; but the most threatening prognosisquant is blamed for the increasingly slowdown marked by births.

Here are the figures:

Population | Deaths Arts Births D ORP200

Recall of 1881.137.672.048/828.828/2.21 0 0/978.263|2.64 0/0
in 1882.137.769.075|838.539|2.22 0/0[935.566[2.48 0/0
- 1883.137.865.918/821.401|2.22 0/0/937.944/2.48 0/0
1884.137.944.892|858.784/2.26 0/01937.758[2.47 0/0
1885. 138.032.553/836.897|2.20 0/0[924.558|2.43 0/0
1886. |38.249.563|860.222/2.26 0/0[912.782/2.40 0/0
18871138.329.887| ? ? ? ?

[He

If I now compare the overall averages
From the last two periods, I will discover that, by compared to the destruction of 1876-1881, those of 1882-1885 decreased by only 3/10,000, that is-meaning that vitality has been more threatened since 1882.

We will be able to judge it better by comparing the two proportions:

Decline in deaths for the period 1876-1881... 38/10,000
5 = _ 1882-1886... 3/10,000

1 The figures for 1887 are obtained only from the donations
These are provisional results, as the final results are not yet available.
published; nevertheless, any discrepancies could not have important enough to alter the proportions involved in my calculations.

270 | BITTERNESS

If the conservative life movement is in full degrowth, the reflective movement of the life, that is to say the birth rate, is frankly in deficit.

Indeed, the period 1876-1881 recorded in-core an average increase of 7/10,000 in the births.

The period 1882-1886 shows a decline average of 23/10,000.

Here, moreover, is the summary table: *

Average of | Report Report
the period Population Deaths per 100 Births per 100

1876-1881.	37,289,982	838,666	2.26	0/0	995,209	2.68	0/0
1882-1886.	37,972,400	847,169	2.23	0/0	929,721	2.45	0/0

This is outright depopulation; and this is of a-all the more dangerous because the comfort of those who already exist is,
She herself was seriously ill.

Here are the figures:

Possessing Non-possessing TT nn EE" Numbers Mt Numbers a 1

Year-end: | Population | absolutes 00 | absolutes

Reminder RS 97.673.068/7.534.000/20 | 00/30,138,000!/80 0/0
End 2,137,769,075|7,136,1400!19 0/0130,593,000!81 0/0
– 1883. 37,865,918,171,950,000|19 0/0]30,671,000/81 0/0
– 1884.137.944.892|7.589.000120 0/0130.356.000180 0/0
– 1885.138:032.55316.846.000/18 0/0131.187.000/82 0/0
– 1886.138.249.56316.K85.000118 0/0131.365.000182 0/0: – 8 0/0131.430.000182 0/0

_18871138.329.887]6.899.000/1

Thus, wealth became concentrated, so to speak.
regularly and, by a parallel movement, has increased the number of the propertyless.

{ See the previous note.

Page 271

1886. 1847

1885

1882 1883 188%

1881

Digitized by Google

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 271

At least they find, as best they can,
It's hard to sustain their lives.

The following table will provide the answer:

Here are the figures:

Reminder of 1881..... .. 20 69 11
End of 18 sine 19 69 12
– 1883 bucket 49 68 13
– PR 20 68 12
– 1888: 18 69 13
– 1886: 18 70 12
– IT esse 18 69 143

Thus misery increases; it is at the limits of Revolutionary proportions?

The same figures highlighted by the lines and the colors (Plate XIII) reveal, on the other hand, the enrichment of the wealthy.

See the previous note.

2 It is very likely that in 1888 poverty will increase by-core, but this time, by recruiting more from among the small landowners.

I already mentioned above (volume 11, page 216) how much the number of expropriations carried out was growing rapidly speaks of land credit.

The situation worsened in 1887: again, 162 expropriations were carried out; so that in two years, he
There were 324 expropriations.

As of December 31, 1887, the buildings completed and remaining at
The number of Crédit Foncier charges amounted to 395.

In 1867, their number had reached only two; in 1873,
It stood at 54 and, after some fluctuations, at 61 in 1883; then came the big numbers.

I said somewhere that Crédit Foncier will be the best instrument of social liquidation. All the prodromes confirm this prediction.

Not only do they have everything, but this everything has Grown in value, in number, in billions!

The people, forced to maintain them, are dying at the penalty !

The following figures eloquently comment
the value of the triangles, menacing guillotines above-hanging on the wage system.

At the end of the year, capital (francs) is positive.

Reminder of 1881 233,361,500,000 7:534,000 29,647 fr.

End of 1882 226,941,000,000 7,176,000 31,620 fr.

– 41x83 236,114,000,000 7,195,000 . 32,950 francs.

– 1881 224,384,000,000 7,589,000 29,560 fr.

– 1885 215,714,000,060 6,846,000 36,000 fr.

– 1886 238,742,000,000 6,885,800 34,700 fr.

– 1887! 240,265,000,000 6,899,000 34,826 fr.

The year 1885 was the peak. Since then, a slight

A slowdown has occurred; salaried employment has nothing to do with it.

They waited, but the wealthy masses were somewhat embarrassed.

compared to the past (you get used to luxury quickly!), will be more willing to lend a hand to a Caesarism no matter what!

Thus, as always, same causes, same effects!

Those who had the duty to organize the sol-

National authorities have, on the contrary, observed

The disorganization was outrageous!

They should beware!

They exploited popular appeals, but the

Overly tight springs have terrifying rebounds |

They should beware!

{ See the previous note.

III

THE RESULTS

Digitized by Google

III

THE RESULTS

I. – Scientific Control

SUMMARY. – A massacre is a fact. – Psychology and mentality. – Armored. – Palpable, shouted, observed. – A picture.

– Purple valleys. – Parallels? – Unit of measurement.
– Capital. – Products. – Formulas. – XY

We don't argue against the facts.

A massacre is a fact.

A number is a fact.

If the massacre comments on the number and if the number
The massacre, in concrete terms, consists of two related events, their
The total is another fact.

We don't argue against the facts.

That's why I've constantly sought to place
The fact of action alongside the fact of numbers.

And that's why the phrase-makers in schools are the mortal enemies of the numbers game!

It's so convenient to play with words, to sew together, with blue thread, or white, or red, a pile of syllables, forgetting to stuff Ideas in the middle!

It is so easy to take refuge behind metaphysics music to motivate the obscurities of language or to quibble over yesterday's actions, by opposing him the action of the day before yesterday and, that of the day before yesterday, in clashing it with that of the previous century!

The bad faith of clerical and para- mysticism the site always ends up in the background of the discussions where psychology (some say the men-(lality) plays the role of basis, guide or canvas of bottom!

And then, to discuss the figures, you need...
Work! We prefer to be witty! It's more Easy! In France, wit runs rampant in the streets and the street chasing after Pesprit. . RP CT will not go

And a burst of laughter is enough to exhaust the question social |

It takes a certain amount of nerve to throw at these (laughs) A little bit of arithmetic; you have to be bulletproof to add algebraic formulas!

I'm loaded!

+
THE

A formula is a generalization of causes.
demonstrating the generalization of the results.

If we modify the terms that make up the causes, we inevitably end up modifying those that make up the results.

From this it follows that, if the social order can be condense with formulas, all the social reforms fall within the exclusively scientific domain and have nothing in common with phrase-mongers and
The liars of politics.

However, everything that can be measured: the femps, space,
the soil; everything that can be counted: births,

deaths, populations; everything that can be measured to nayer: capital, profits, taxes; in one word, all the divisional instruments of a function general operation, contributing to production and to consumption, that is to say to what constitutes the life of a country, all of this, expressed in figures, for to be subjected to comparisons whose elements and the periodic returns, damn it, of the general situations and their results—the events social elements – a much more precise notion than cannot provide the hypotheses drawn from psychological studies, whether specific or general those of philosophical systems or of oral, historical legends, more or less proven, and other processes of pure metaphy-music where imagination plays the main role.

Lacking the necessary tools, that is to say, lacking controllable and controlled statistical documents, on has wandered off into perpetual misunderstandings and we have eventually established a way of believing and thinking which can even paralyze the physical senses, if although we no longer touch the tangible, although we no longer—The shouting is more strained than the observed, and that truth itself appears only as something hypothetical, undulating like the "vague and rippling the ocean of ignorance."

This, precisely, is the state of mind of those who are seeking inspiration for social reforms in I don't know what divine empiricism or, more simply—ly, to their passionate conceptions!

Among the opponents of social change, There are a number of loyal people. Well, the day they come into contact with a

16

978 BITTERNESS

science and no longer of a party, that is to say of a truth and not of an appetite, the revolutionary shock *_ lionnaire will be singularly attenuated | of my current work.

They would be kind enough to take a look at the painting of strange appearance, where I condensed the whole history-France, since FANORIE Sen years:
(PLATE XIV)

Not a single line in this table that isn't the result of a number, and not a number that is not the result of an official finding.

So nothing arbitrary.

Well, look:

Here are three regimes: the monarchy (1830); the re-public, (1848); the empire (1852).

All three claimed to improve the fate of the French nation; all three have succeeded to the killings!

Three different regimes by men, three identical regimes in terms of results.

So, changing men is pointless!

Having established this, what remains to be done?

The same table specifies this.

Look at this central flow, the red flow, which, wide at first, it narrows as it moves forward and designates the calastrophes:

This is the largest segment of the population; they are the propertyless, the wage earners, the proletarians.

©

æ

.

.

[THE]

14

LR DRIET

4ER |
| L
ER den: qu

A

EE, s 4

Hicisedhy Goog le

Fage:

| T ae

a = Ée ni

of
THE

-T

85. . . . 90. . . .95

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 979

The two lines that separate them from the mountains yellow (the possession), and purple valleys (the destitution), have peaks or more distant or closer together.

If we connect the vertices with two straight lines from the most distant to the closest between them, and if we extend these two lines to their mutual encounter, we will have built several triangles.

This will give us the triangle for the period 1834-1852.

1871 (În 0); and finally those of the period 1870-1871-1889 (?) (tui";rsi;hvi}h

However, in the past, each summit denounced a massive massacre, following several smaller massacres strong; thus 1848-1852, thus 1870-1871.

Follow along:

Below the violet valleys of destitution are the black abysses of destruction. Men And things are there jumbled together: the shootings of 1834 and the famines and epidemics of 1846 are found there indicated; the massacres of 1848-1849, 1851-1852 have only lessened the misery; but look at the wars! Look at this dark-brown bite that tra-It exacerbates poverty and encroaches on wage labor. These are the wars of 1354-1855, then those of 1858-1859;
The destruction of 1870-1871 struck at the heart of misery |

Now, examine the yellow mountains, the treasures of the wealthy; these are capital; they are also lost in the fog outside.

Look at those from the period 1830-1843; it's the strange-ger who lives in France.

280 THE BITTERNESS

The empire succeeds; he, on the contrary, eats on foreign countries. Also, the peaks rise to unknown heights; but, everywhere, higher they are, the thinner the salaried workforce, the deeper the misery.

The Republic of 1870 restarted the system from 1830; it too is being devoured by the foreigner who had begun, moreover, with a formidable stroke of jaw!

All of this is clear!

*
+

But is all of this inevitable?

No. All of this is modifiable, as is modifiable each of the proportions that gave rise to session at each of the lines.

Therefore, simply wanting to is enough for that where the vertices determine the triangles, two parallel lines extend to infinity!

So that those who wish to can control my calculations, I give here the elements and composition of my formulas,

Here are the elements first!

*
* x

A nation comprises a fixed number of individuals, living in a precisely defined territory; the statistics Official reports publicize the Global movements;

{ See my presentation on SOocioMETRY Socialist Review, October 1887); I will publish a complete treatise at a later date on this subject.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 281

The aim is to establish the relationship: 1° Between individual consumptions individual and general consumption; 2° between the producers individual actions and overall production; therefore of to measure, as accurately as possible, the mutual action consumption and production.

The components of production include, Certainly, an effort and a means; the first being applied Secondly, their mutuality can be summed up in one word: the work.

As a means, we find, first of all, the territory even of the nation, that is to say all the lands, all The buildings, all the tools, instruments and objects any.

As an effort, we immediately find the populathings listed above.

Now, this set of things has been given a name; the economics
The mists called them capitals.

As for what is generated by labor, it is designated under the product name.

In reality, then, it is a matter of first measuring capital, then the products.

k
x *

UNIT OF MEASUREMENT. – To count the population, to measure the land area, volume of buildings, number of tools, layouts, etc., all of this would certainly give, an overview of the importance of capital, but it would be
It is absurd to calculate a single overall figure, because it is not
It is not possible to add units of different types.

Adding a number of men to the extent of a surface, to the volume of a building and to a quantity of tools, not would not provide any intelligible numerical summary.

Therefore, an agreement was established to represent the quantity of utilities exchanged between individuals; by This convention determined the shape, the weight and the the name of a piece of metal – silver – and it was called:
franc.

16.

282. ... BITTERNESS

From then on, the franc became the name of a measure of currency.
common to all the exchanged utilities.

A piece of land represents so many francs;
A building block represents so many francs;
A tool, an instrument represent a fant of franes; etc.

I must point out here that I deliberately do not use not the word value.

For the moment, I don't really care about the representation of an exchanged utility, whether theoretical or scientific-logical, sincere, accurate; I observe, purely and Simply, what actually exists.

Now, capital and products having thus been reduced to a common unit, the establishment of their overall total and the Comparison of: these totals have become easy.

MEASUREMENT OF CAPITAL. – Each year, the Ministry of Finance publishes a large volume entitled: Final Account of Revenue: This is the actual, controlled budget.

This volume contains, notably, the justification of capital that has changed ownership due to death; to a of these capitals is the amount of tax collected by the State.

The capital is valued in a contradictory manner, that is to say- to say after discussion between opposing interests; one can therefore consider them as faithfully responding to the average of the values accepted during the past year.

As for the tax, it is clearly stated.

Having thus been in possession of the overall total representing, in francs, the inheritance capital of one year, it suffices to bringing them closer to the number of deaths that gave rise to their assessment.

However, it is clear that annually there is a sensitive ratio-constant difference between the total number of deaths and the total amount of inheritance capital,

Therefore, if I call;

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 283

M, the number of deaths:

P, the population figure;

S, the key figure for taxed inheritances;

C, capital measuring the value of the nation's wealth entire.

I can write:

M:P::8:0C

Or by solving to search for C:

PS... c

M

For example, in 1881, 828,828 people died and

This total number of deaths resulted in a tax of 4,914,227,477 francs in suctransfers.

The recorded population being 37,672,048; we have:

$37,672,048 \times 4,917,227,477$

828,828

That is 223 billion 4/19.

– 223,361,500,000 francs.

It will be understood, in fact, that it is sufficient to limit the comparisons to the highest order units and that few will matter, even if it is of 10 or even 100 milliseconds lions.

By operating in an absolutely identical way on the an-born in 1872, we will find that the capital of this year were: 180 billion 4/10.

So that between 1872 and 1881, that is to say in a over a 9-year period, the representation of French capital It increased by 43 billion

It is no less evident that a series of comparisons annual can thus be established and that, provided that it is obtained by always using the same method, it will give an accurate idea of the printed progress to capitalist valuations.

*

xx

MEASURING PRODUCTS. – Now we need to measure the net product or normal reserve created annually by these capital, or if you prefer: to establish the total figure of balance of real exchanges to which these capitals have given place.

This can be achieved by using statistics on means of exchange.

These are of two kinds:

1° Metallic currency;

2° Banknotes from the Bank of France.

I must not include the circulation paper here, created by individuals or credit institutions, because that this paper is not a means of exchange, but an exchange itself, that is to say, a business; indeed, it resolves. Ultimately, it always comes down to a payment, which is made in cash. or in banknotes or part of both.

So, if I can put a figure on the total number of currencies in circulation at the end of 1881, for example, and if I increase it by the sum of circulating government notes, but only for the portion that exceeds the metal casing (in order to avoid a (double employment) I will have a total number expressing all the means of exchange existing at the end of the year studied.

Before going any further, it is necessary to establish here comment:

THE UNIT OF CURRENCY IS SUFFICIENT TO SATISFY THE TRIPLE EXCHANGE

That is to say, how does 1 franc satisfy 3 francs of exchanges.

Let's, for the moment, disregard money and
Let's consider two people exchanging, for example, a tool and a bushel of wheat (assuming equal exchange values). I set the representation of each at 6 francs object; is it not true that there are, in reality, two utilities in presence, one the tool; the other the bushel of wheat, both worth 12 francs together?

That is, $6 + 6 = 12$.

This is where money comes in: the one who offers the tool may not
Not knowing if his most current need will be a bushel of wheat or any other object; consequently, instead of a pre- object

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 285

If he is cis, he would prefer to receive the means to acquire anything at all.
according to his needs.

However, this "whatever foolishness" is implicitly contained in the state currency, whose inscriptions can be traced conducted in the following manner, as explained quite rightly-as an American economist (Peshine Smith):

"Render services to the bearer in exchange for this gift"
"equivalent to those he returned to society, and which have
"were measured by the amount of pure silver contained in "This room."

The utility of money thus facilitates the exchange of the two other utilities-products; in this case 6 francs of mon-Naie put together a 12 franc exchange; therefore, by in relation to the three active utilities, totaled by 18
I can say that:

6 francs satisfied 48 francs, and 18 being triple 6,
I note that the monetary unit satisfies three times the requirements of e-changes.

All commercial accounting is based on on the duality of utilities and the trinity of exchanges.

Therefore, I call:

R, this net product;

O, the total amount of currency in circulation at the end of the year.

N, the total number of banknotes in circulation at the end of the year.

E, the total of the metallic cash of the same bank in end of the year.

And, by applying the triple WAX that I have just determined-Miner, I write:

D

If I want to have the value of R with respect to capital obtained using formula $S \llbracket \gg I$ will write:

$PxSsS$
 $MX[(3(0+NE))]$

By translating this algebraic expression into language
In ordinary terms, we obtain the following comment:

R –

286 | BITTERNESS

The quantum of the net annual product of capital is the quo-consists of a division having:

For dividends:

Inheritance capital multiplied by population recorded;

And for divisor:

The total of the currencies in circulation, increased by the difference-exchange between the circulation of banknotes and the metal cash balance lique, said total tripled as a block, then multiplied by the number deaths.

Finally, if R is to have the meaning of a percentage, I
I will designate it by A (R with a line through it), and it will suffice to write:

$__100X M[3(0+NE)]$ at $PXxS$

PROPORTION OF OWNERS. – The same report final revenue figures which include success statistics ions allows us to establish a connection between the number deaths and the number of opened estates.

The calculations carried out over a period of thirty years have provided an average proportion of twenty-five successions out of one hundred deaths.

To demonstrate that this proportion should be considered As exact, I will take a period of three years, specifically chosen from among those where public wealth is reputed to have been the most divided.

According to the final report from the Minister of Finance During the years 1882, 1883 and 1884, it was taxed in round figures, 676,000 inheritances, which have been or-green by 2,545,000 deaths.

Through a simple calculation, these figures establish that 100 deaths opened 26 and a half estates.

Therefore, it is certain that by taking the average at a quarter, We make no mistakes.

Moreover, if we consider that the number of odds per-movable assets amount to approximately 8.5 million, and if we By comparing this figure to that of the adult population, we will also find that the proportion of one quarter is justified, So to speak, rigorously.

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 987

* e

* x

ESTABLISHING THE FORMULAS. – This being explained, it All that remains for me is to provide the formulas that were used to establish the numerical tables and graphs contained in this work.

I call Ex the capital obtained from the data from the official statistics for each year (populations, inheritances, deaths);

LL

I call gr^u , by abbreviation K, the capital obtained-naked only according to the data from the first year of a period under study.

Therefore, K remains unchanged during the period and an varies each year.

M

All the lines that meander from B to B' (satisfies needs) (plate XIV) and which I call B, are obtained by:

3 (0 -HN-E)XMX 100 __,
PxS En

All the lineages that meander from D to D (deficits of consumption) and which I call D are obtained by:

(: (0 ee) D

As for the lines that meander from A to 4' (plate XIV) and which I call A, and those which meander from G to G' and which I call G, they are complementary to B and D and reported out of a total of 100, which is expressed by the height of the square.

So that:

$z A + AB + BD + DG + Gy = 100$

288 FINANCIAL EQUITY

a sound of 2.5 millimeters for a year.

Nora. – People who would like to study in detail
PLATE XIV, greatly reduced due to the necessities of the format, will be able to obtain the large original plate, measured-measuring 40 centimeters by 50 centimeters. To this end, they will need to register for the publication of this plate. [Note] (from the publisher.)

2. – Forecasts:

Summary. – Danger of death. – Kings' staff. –
Human population growth. – Tax increase. – National appetites. – German peace.

In the space of eighteen years, France has seen its force of reproduction decrease by 23/10,000, which means that in the aftermath of the Franco-German war
In the mande, 10,000 beings still possessed a faculty an increase of 45 per year and that at the end of 1887,

I feel I should mention here the letter I sent, November 18, 1885, to the President of the Chamber of deputies.

"Mr. President,

"As a French citizen and as a voter, I have the
"I have a duty to make the following communication to you, which "results from a thorough study of the material situation
"of our country."

"If the economic, legal and social constitution of the France is not modified without delay based on the principle of equality of exchanges both internally and externally Outside, it will work, whatever the conditions, by the way.
the political expedients employed, towards a series of disasters that will occur in the following order:

"4° In 1888, the country's consumer forces absorbed-will reduce half of its production capacity, which will bring back exactly the situation from which the crises emerged
"from 1848."

"

290 | BITTERNESS

It's barely possible to hope for 10,000 beings will increase by 22 per year.
This result is due to the parasitism of capital.

– Without this parasitism, France in 1888 would not have... would not be born into poverty; she would be rich by 3,000 more inhabitants and wouldn't have to feed
one million foreigners; | |

She could have socialized and, consequently, balanced out.
its production and consumption; |
Finally, she could not be threatened because that it would be able to put online, in case of danger,

"2 In 1890, consumer forces will absorb the
"two-thirds of the productive forces, which will bring back exactly–
"the situation that characterized the year 1850, and, in
"Furthermore, it will usher in the era of paper money, the centenary of"
"assignats of 1790:"

"3. In 1893, consumer forces will absorb the ' "totality of the forces of production, which will generate this
"a situation in which there will be neither savings, nor work, nor "reserves, no money, and therefore the starving masses"
"will imperatively require a liquidation similar to that
"from 1793."

"All these figures are based on official data."
"grouped into a verifiable, but irrefutable formula and
"that I am sending you."

In June 1887, I also wrote in the Socialist Review:

"The form of the struggles, like the pretext invoked, are usually summarized by a simple sentence, or even by a man's name; also the circumstances or the Appearances may vary, but the fundamental causes –

Tales remain the same...

"...Well, I don't think I'll venture into that territory."

"note that the situation in July 1887 was threatening"

_"that which she predicts, for the next twelve months, and "Therefore, for 1887-1888, an extreme situation-
"A serious lie."

(Socialist Review, June 1887, pp. 556-561)

UNDER THE THIRD REPUBLIC 991

a million more soldiers than she can do currently, and this, without the national work garlic to the point of suffering.

On the contrary, thanks to capitalist parasitism, the
